REPORT FROM PENNSYLVANIA

HON. PATRICK J. TOOMEY

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to share my Report from Pennsylvania for my colleagues and the American people.

All across Pennsylvania's 15th Congressional District there are some amazing people who do good things to make our communities a better place. These are individuals of all ages who truly make a difference and help others. I like to call these individuals Lehigh Valley Heroes for their good deeds and efforts.

Today, I would like to recognize Mrs. Grace Hart O'Boyle of Bethlehem. Mrs. O'Boyle is a prime example of someone who has devoted her life to the betterment of our communities.

Mrs. O'Boyle served Bethlehem Township as a junior high school, business and English teacher and was an active participant in the city's summer school program for many decades. Despite commitments to Brownie troops and other youth organizations, Mrs. O'Boyle found time to raise a family and her strong commitment to education and the community is reflected in her own children's education-based careers.

While most would relax in their retirement, Mrs. O'Boyle saw her retirement only as an opportunity to help her community. She continued to substitute teach and was a member of Bethlehem's Professional Woman's Association, American Association of University Women, and served with various other Organizations.

Mrs. O'Boyle is marked by her humbleness and devotion, which she exhibited on her 80th birthday. Instead of accepting the flowers and gifts that usually mark such an occasion, Mrs.

O'Boyle established a Scholarship fund to help bright, needy students at her local parish school.

Mrs. O'Boyle stands out as an example of the effect one person can have upon their community and for this she is a Lehigh Valley Hero in my book.

Mr. Speaker, this concludes my Report from Pennsylvania.

TRIBUTE TO MARGARET VINSON HALLGREN

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Margaret Vinson Hallgren, President of the National Military Family Association, NMFA, in recognition of her distinguished service to our country.

For 18 years, while filling critical volunteer positions within NMFA, including four terms as director of government relations and an unprecedented six terms as president, Margaret has worked tirelessly to help partially offset the extraordinary hardships and sacrifices service members and their families endure while serving our Nation.

Margaret Hallgren, whom I have the honor of knowing personally, has been a military family member all her life, first as an Army "brat," then as an Army spouse. She is the widow of an active duty Army officer, W.H. Vinson, Jr., and is now married to Hal E. Hallgren, who retired after 30 years of active duty in the U.S. Army. She has four grown children and nine grandchildren.

After earning her B.A. degree from Vassar College and a Masters of Accounting from Duke University in Political Science/International Law, Margaret worked for 2 years as an Intelligence Analyst for the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) in Washington, DC.

Margaret later went on to an incredible career at the National Military Family Association, NMFA, where she has touched the lives of hundreds of thousands of active duty, National Guard, Reserve, and retired families in her unwavering efforts to enable them to achieve a reasonable quality of life. It is an understatement to say that Margaret has been in the vanguard of Congress' and the Department of Defense's actions to sustain readiness and the All Volunteer Force.

Among her numerous accomplishments, perhaps her biggest achievement comes from her visionary work as one of the 12 original cofounders of the Military Coalition, TMC. The Coalition was organized in 1985 for the sole purpose of attempting to repeal legislation which would have reduced retired pay cost-of-living adjustments by 22.5 percent over a 7-year period. After TMC's successful effort in this area, Margaret and other leaders in the Coalition had the foresight to recognize its future potential and kept it intact. Today, the Coalition is comprised of 33 military and veterans organizations and represents more than 5.5 million active duty, National Guard, Reserve, retired members and veterans of the seven uniformed services plus their families and survivors. Thanks to Margaret's insight, NMFA continues to be a leader in TMC on issues affecting military families.

Mr. Speaker, Margaret Hallgren's extraordinary career of leadership, volunteerism and personal dedication in protecting the welfare and quality of life of every member of the uniformed services community is an inspiration and continuing lesson to all Americans. My best wishes and gratitude go with her. Margaret, I salute you on behalf of all our servicemen and women, past and present who have worn and continue to wear the uniform.

RECOGNIZING THE WORK OF THE AMERICAN CANINE ASSOCIATION'S SEARCH AND RESCUE TEAMS AT GROUND ZERO IN NEW YORK

HON. JOSEPH R. PITTS

OF PENNSYLVANIA

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to extend my gratitude and appreciation to the Search and Rescue Teams of the American Canine Association, ACA, who, for 8 weeks following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, tirelessly and selflessly served at Ground Zero in New York City. Following the devastating attacks on our country and our very way of life, handlers Robert Yarnall, Jr., Susan Yarnall, Heather Nothstein, Michael Glass, Avi Thol, Travis Hayden, Sean Hayden, and Amy Dinardi, along with canines Gus, Nela, Nala, Samson, and Duchess, came to the aid of a grieving nation and endured tremendous personal difficulty to assist in finding survivors of the Twin Towers.

In the year since September 11, we have come to a new appreciation of the heroes who live among us, those who volunteer their time, ability, and talent, without thought of recognition. The actions of these handlers and canines represent the true values of America—generosity, compassion, and service to community—that have made us great. I am proud to have had these extraordinary people and canines represent Chester County and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The ACA deserves our thanks and our commendation for a job well done.

CONGRATULATING DR. JAMES T.
HARRIS ON HIS APPOINTMENT
AS PRESIDENT OF WIDENER UNIVERSITY

HON. CURT WELDON

OF PENNSYLVANIA

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, today I wish to welcome and congratulate the new president of Widener University, Dr. James T. Harris III. Founded in 1821, Widener University is composed of eight schools and colleges that offer liberal arts and sciences, professional and preprofessional curricula. A comprehensive, teaching institution chartered in both Pennsylvania and Delaware, Widener is a three-campus university offering 150 programs of study leading to an associate's, bachelor's, master's, or doctoral degree. Dr. Harris becomes only the ninth president in Widener's rich 181-year history to lead this institution in continued excellence.

Prior to assuming the top post at Widener, Dr. Harris recently served as president of Defiance College in Ohio. With Dr. Harris at the helm, Defiance's enrollment grew to its highest level in three decades, had the best 4-year graduation rate in the school's history, and rose out of severe financial difficulties. Perhaps most importantly, Dr. Harris improved the lives of his student by teaching them the value of community service and responsible citizenship. The service-learning program he instituted continues to positively impact the surrounding community and the college's academic program. The success of this program ranked Dr. Harris in the Sir John Templeton Foundation's prestigious Honor Roll as one of the top 50 Character Building Presidents in America.

I look forward to watching Widener and the three communities it serves—Chester, PA, Harrisburg, PA, and Wilmington, DE, achieve new heights and benefit from Dr. Harris' experience and leadership. Widener and Dr. Harris stand as shining examples that the greatest service one can provide is to educate another. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the House to join me in thanking Dr. Harris for his contributions to our education system and wish him well in his new endeavor.

MERCY HIGH SCHOOL OF SAN FRANCISCO CELEBRATES A HALF CENTURY OF SERVICE

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to pay tribute to Mercy High School of San Francisco, located in my congressional district, on the occasion of the 50th Anniversary of its founding. Since its inception in 1952, this extraordinary educational institution has dedicated itself to providing the finest education for young women in the Bay area.

Mr. Speaker, Mercy High School was founded half a century ago by the Sisters of Mercy, at the request of the San Francisco Archdiocese, in order to create a high school for girls in the growing Sunset, Lakeside, and Park Merced neighborhoods of San Francisco, as well as in communities in northern San Mateo County.

Mercy High School has come a long way since it first opened its doors to 199 students in 1952. When Mercy High School was first founded, the school consisted of one partially finished building and was staffed by six Sisters of Mercy and one lay person. Today the school can boast of a student body of 600 students, and they are educated on a campus of six and half acres located in the heart of San Francisco's Sunset District. The meticulously maintained campus includes 22 classrooms, a campus ministry, three science laboratories, a chapel, a 10,000-volume library, two computer labs, and studios for the fine and performing arts. Additionally, the school recently completed the Catherine McAuley Pavilion—a magnificent structure containing state-of-the-art athletic facilities and an outstanding art gallery.

Mr. Speaker, Catherine McAuley founded the Sisters of Mercy, a religious order, in Dublin, Ireland in 1831. She was an extraordinary woman who was a socialite turned social worker, a lady of fashion who lived among the poor, a woman of wealth who had no money, and a dedicated activist who learned the discipline of sanctity. Catherine McAuley and her Sisters of Mercy brought aid and comfort to the impoverished of Dublin. Within ten years of its foundation, the Sisters of Mercy had expanded to aid people in other cities in Ireland and in England. In 1843, the first mission was started in the United States, and in 1854, the Sisters of Mercy came to San Francisco. In 1990, in completion of one stage of the process by which the Catholic Church defines sainthood, Pope John Paul II declared Catherine McAuley Venerable.

Since its foundation, Mercy High School in San Francisco has dedicated itself to its mission of educating young women to be leaders who make a difference in their church and in their world. The school's fine arts program is one of the most diverse in the entire Bay Area, and the athletic and speech programs have received state level recognition as well. Additionally, Mercy High School's student government has received the Medalist Award, the highest award given by the California Association of Student Councils.

Mr. Speaker, I am delighted and honored to pay tribute to this outstanding educational institution, and I invite all of my colleagues to join me in congratulating Mercy High School on half century of service to the Archdiocese of San Francisco, the Bay Area, and our nation.

COMMEMORATION OF SEPTEMBER 11, 2001

HON. NICK J. RAHALL II

OF WEST VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, "We must consider that we shall be as a city upon a hill," the Puritan preacher John Winthrop proclaimed, as he and his followers sailed for America and freedom. "The eyes of all people are upon us." And so they have remained for nearly four centuries. Many have looked to us in awe, inspired by a nation rooted in liberty. Others have hated the ideal we embody, and wished us ill. But none can remove us from their gaze.

Today, America's economic prosperity, military power, and technological advancement are without peer. Our daily comforts and conveniences exceed those available to most of the six billion people who inhabit the earth. But the ease of our lives does not render us soft, or reluctant to retaliate when attacked. A year ago, all the world watched in horror as a small gang of wicked men took three thousand innocent lives in New York, Washington, and Pennsylvania.

Since the moment the first airplane struck the first tower, Americans have shown, both on the battlefield and at home, the strength of our spirit, the mettle of our souls, and the force of our arms. From the firefighters climbing to their deaths, to the airline passengers who battled back, to the precious West Virginia sons and daughters who gave their lives in Afghanistan, the world has witnessed acts of American selflessness and bravery that rival the most revered in the annals of human history.

Just as Winthrop defined America's place in the world, he described how we must live to maintain it. "We must delight in each other," he instructed. "Make others' conditions our own; rejoice together; mourn together; labor and suffer together." Our whole nation suffered the same grievous wound on September 11. Those who delivered the blow hoped it would inaugurate our destruction. Instead, they inspired America's return to the community values and mutual commitment upon which our country was built.

The attacks, the ongoing war, and the continuing threats spur us to embrace again our founding ideas: that all men and women are created equal; that America's destiny is the world's destiny—to secure life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that we cannot allow the centuries-old, world-wide fight for freedom to falter. This recollection of our original rights and responsibilities is a fitting tribute, is an apt memorial, to the lives that were lost and devastated on that sad September day.

IN HONOR OF LOUISE WILSON LEWIS

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 1, 2002

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Louise Wilson Lewis, whose commitment to Glendale Memorial Hospital over the last forty years has exemplified the spirit of selfless volunteerism that has been so integral to our community.

Born and raised in Los Angeles, Mrs. Lewis's first involvement with Glendale Memorial Hospital came at the age of sixteen, when she volunteered as a candy striper for the hospital. A self-described "professional volunteer," she served in almost every volunteer position in the hospital since beginning there four decades ago.

Mrs. Lewis currently serves on the Glendale Memorial Health Foundation Board of Directors, where she is helping to raise $25 million for an expansion of the Hospital. She is also an active member of St. Francis Episcopal Church and works with Las Candelas, an organization which assists emotionally disturbed children.

In June of 2001, Louise Lewis was diagnosed with cancer, and began to receive treatment from the hospital she served for so long. For over a year, she battled the disease, which, thanks to cutting-edge treatments and Mrs. Lewis's fighting spirit, has now gone into remission. Mrs. Lewis's outlook on her disease is a statement of her courage: "Cancer is so limited, and there is so much it cannot do to a being. It cannot undermine integrity, or invade the soul, or conquer the spirit."

And it has not. She has continued her volunteer efforts with Glendale Memorial Hospital and in March, she and her husband Tim will celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Lewis's commitment to Glendale Memorial Hospital and the various charitable causes she supports makes her worthy of recognition, but her sheer determination to win her battle with cancer makes her an inspiration to us all. I ask all Members of Congress to join me in saluting Louise Wilson Lewis, whose strength of will and selfless devotion to her community exemplify the best in all of us.
