

against an unlawful referendum is just the tip of the iceberg. A recent report by the Human Rights Commission of Pakistan indicated that respect for human rights in Pakistan is afforded to few and that women and children in particular experience tremendous violence and discrimination.

These facts provide a glimpse of the social conditions in Pakistan. However, other human rights violations such as limited press and religious freedom, torture and killings by the police and lack of free and fair elections are also evidenced in the report.

Although Musharraf has been an ally to the United States in the war against terrorism, we cannot forget that he is the dictatorial leader of Pakistan and that he is not in fact the duly elected President. The political, social, and economic situation in Pakistan is bleak. This fragile country can only be improved by a democratic leader who will represent the interests of Pakistani citizens. It is unsettling to think of the negative repercussions of 5 more years of rule under Musharraf, given the current majority of opposition and given the current lack of basic human rights afforded to Pakistanis.

URGING SUPPORT FOR RESOLUTION TO INFLUENCE MEXICO TO REJECT OPEC AFFILIATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GEKAS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, soon after the tragic attacks on our institutions on September 11, as everyone knows, our economy began to sink, to plummet to depths that we could not have foreseen. While we were struggling to right our ship, as it were, the OPEC nations decided, before the end of the year, before the end of 2001, to cut oil production, which would have the natural consequence of rising prices at the gas pump here in the United States and elsewhere. This was an insult added to injury to have our former allies, like Saudi Arabia and Kuwait who are part of OPEC, to make certain that prices would rise at the gas pump in the midst of an economy that was being severely hurt by what had happened at the World Trade Center and at the Pentagon and in Pennsylvania.

Imagine my surprise then when, we all know that OPEC has to depend on the non-OPEC nations to go along with their guidelines, their decisions on oil production and pricing, et cetera; imagine my surprise, my pleasant surprise when I learned that Mexico, for instance, was not going to join with OPEC in this drastic decision that they made.

Well, that was good news for the United States on two fronts: one, that Mexico, our neighbor to the south, was sticking with the United States in its hour of economic peril and, in effect saying to OPEC, no thank you, they will not go along with the price-setting and oil production cuts that OPEC proclaimed. Imagine my next round of surprises when not too long after that, Mexico, in a meeting with Venezuela, decided to jump back into the OPEC pool and there again indicate to the world that they were going to join OPEC in the cutting of oil production, thereby having the effect of rising prices at the gas pump.

Now, this is the same Mexico that said that they would not join with OPEC. Now they have decided to stick with OPEC; and in doing so, they slapped us right in the face, because the cut in production of 100,000 barrels per day, or cut of availability to the United States of that 100,000 barrels a day, was an ingredient that caused the rise of prices that we saw in March of 15 to 17, and some places higher than that, 17 to 20 cents a gallon over a short period of time, and more to come, because the normal period for rising prices, the summer season, is already upon us.

Well, I have introduced a resolution just today which would call upon the President and the administration to again approach our OPEC allies, as they were, they were allies, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia; as a matter of fact, we came to their aid, we came to their side against an aggression by Iraq. We are asking the administration to convince or to try to convince those allies of ours whom we saved in that particular period of time to produce what is needed for the consumption in the world without regard to setting prices and to cutting production to artificially raise prices while, at the same time, the resolution calls for extra efforts to convince our neighbor to the south, Mexico, not to join with OPEC.

Mr. Speaker, the Mexican economy and the Mexican-American border which we share, all of that depend on a strong American economy. The Mexican economy itself depends on the American economy. Can my colleagues imagine that they would take steps to cause rises in the prices at gas pumps? We must convince them that they should renounce joining with OPEC now and forever and to remain with the United States in a hemispheric system to become an economic engine of its own. We do not need OPEC if Mexico would simply deal with the United States in oil production.

So this resolution calls for an important foray into Mexican-American relations, strictly with respect to the OPEC cartel and the insistence of Mexico to go along with OPEC. We cannot tolerate that.

So whatever comes by way of oil production, if the United States and Mexico can cooperate one on one in the production of oil and in the market, sale and pricing of oil, the American economy will be better off and, therefore, so will the Mexican economy. I ask for Members to join in this resolution.

TRIBUTE TO NATIONAL CHAMPIONS MARYLAND TERRAPINS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, as the boxing great Muhammad Ali once observed, "Champions are not made in gyms. Champions are made from something they have deep inside them, a desire, a dream, a vision."

Thus, it is with great pride, Mr. Speaker, that I rise tonight, a 1963 graduate of the University of Maryland at College Park and a current member of the University system's Board of Regents, to congratulate the men's basketball team and a fellow alumnus, Coach Gary Williams, for realizing their dream 8 days ago: winning the 2002 national championship, the first in the university's long history.

□ 2045

Too often perhaps, Mr. Speaker, we imbue athletic competition with a seriousness beyond its significance. However, anyone who watched these 12 Terrapins this season observed the qualities that carried them to the mountaintop: hard work and determination, teamwork and skill, and an unbending will to win that allowed them to overcome virtually every obstacle. Those are lessons for life as well as success in sports.

After the Terrapins had won their game with the Indiana Hoosiers in the title game on April 1, Washington Post columnist Thomas Boswell wrote, "This was not just a great Maryland team. In time, it will be seen as a champion among champions."

Who could argue with that? There was the school record for wins in a season, 32, the fourth consecutive season with 25 wins or more. There was the undefeated home record of 15-0 at Cole Field House in the last year of play in Cole Field House. What a way to end a run.

There was the second straight appearance in the Final Four and the ninth straight appearance in the NCAA Tournament under Coach Williams, and there was the first Atlantic Coast conference regular season championship in some 22 years.

The path to preeminence, however, of course was not paved with ease. There was a heartbreaking loss to Duke University in the Final Four last year. There was a season opening loss and an unexpected defeat in the ACC tournament this year. There was personal hardship off the court, as well.

The national championship, Mr. Speaker, was never a coronation. The Terrapins faced and defeated perennial basketball powerhouses Kentucky, Connecticut, Kansas, and then Indiana. Collectively, those teams won over 15 national titles.

In hindsight, it was fitting to win the championship on that road. Difficulty and adversity vest victory with an even greater sense of accomplishment. No one will ever claim that these young men and Coach Williams failed to earn the title "champion."

The Terrapin team, led by senior guard Juan Dixon, who overcame incredible adversity in his life, losing his two parents when he was just a teen, Juan Dixon took their loyal fans through the peaks and valleys of competition, and we shared their deep disappointments, but yes, we shared their final joy, as well.

Juan's superb shooting and defense were as crucial to this team's success as was Steve Blake's ballhandling and passing ability, Lonnie Baxter's powerful inside game and rebounding, Chris Wilcox's fierce blocks, and Byron Mouton's energy, hustle, spark, and extraordinary defense.

It is a tribute to this team's depth that practically every member, every nonstarter, entered the game and we picked up points, be it Tahj Holden; Calvin McCall; Andre Collins; Drew Nicholas, an extraordinary young guard who would have started on any other team in the country; Ryan Randle; Earl Badu; and Mike Grinnon, 12 extraordinary young people. The Terrapins would actually increase their lead when those young people filled in for our starters.

This championship, of course, is the ultimate tribute to the architect of the men's basketball program, Gary Williams. There can be no doubt, Gary is one of the finest coaches in college athletics today, but that was true regardless of the outcome of last week's final championship game. Gary has been a winner wherever he has coached, amassing an extraordinary record of 481 career wins in 24 years. He was a winner at American University, Boston College, and Ohio State University before returning to his alma mater and becoming the champion.

Gary was not alone, of course. He was ably assisted by Dave Dickerson, Jimmy Pastos, Matt Kovarik, and director of basketball operations Troy Wainwright.

I must point out, Mr. Speaker, the contributions of Dr. Deborah Yow, the university's athletic director, one of two women in America who head up a major program. In her 8 years in that position, she has laid the groundwork not only for this national championship and an Orange Bowl appearance by the football team this year, but also for a national all-sports ranking in the top 15 percent of the NCAA Division One institutions.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I know that all the Members of the House join me in congratulating the University of Maryland Terrapins for a championship hard won and well earned.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, let me observe that the University of Maryland now becomes one of five teams in history to have a team that won both the National Football Championship and the National Basketball Championship.

Gary Williams, Maryland Terrapins, thank you, thank you for a great year and for great examples.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FERGUSON). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. FOLEY addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. NORTON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

AMERICA SHOULD PRACTICE ENGAGEMENT TO PROMOTE WORLD PEACE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I just want to add my congratulations to those of the distinguished gentleman from Maryland. I, too, was proud of those young men as very fine examples for the young people of America. Congratulations again for both of their success stories.

Mr. Speaker, I believe this is an important time as we return back from the work recess that Members were just participating in. I believe it is an important time because we have many challenges before us besides the domestic economy. We have the issue of peace. I do believe that Americans want peace. I believe the world wants peace, and that peace we want to be found in the Mideast.

I want to bring to the attention of my colleagues an editorial in the Houston Chronicle today, Tuesday, April 9. It reads: "Weapons Check. Measure of trust and hope in IRA announcement."

The first two paragraphs read, "While so much attention is focused on the near-war in the Mideast, one of the world's other long-running sectarian struggles got a bit of good news with the announcement on Monday of further weapon decommissioning by the Irish Republican Army.

"This week marks the fourth anniversary of the signing of the historic 'Good Friday Agreement,' through which the British government offered to trade a number of significant governance concessions in exchange for similar moves from the Irish Republican resistance, including the 'decommissioning,' or putting out of commission, of illegal explosives and other weapons."

While the op ed goes on to raise concerns on whether or not they are making sure that all the Ts are crossed and the Is are dotted, it did end with the emphasis that we must have trust and we must have hope.

I cite this opinion because I want to discuss this evening the value of diplomacy and the value of negotiations. I believe the tragedy which faces us in the Mideast has come about for a number of reasons, and I am sure that policymakers proficient in foreign policy issues as it relates to the Mideast over a long period of years will have many, many analyses on the Mideast crisis. But I certainly would point to one that I believe and hope we can turn around, and that is the lack of engagement.

On the floor of the House on February, 2001, I spoke to this issue. It was shortly after the unfortunate lack of agreement on the agreement that had been negotiated by the past administration, a very effective agreement that Prime Minister Barak and we would have hoped that President Arafat would have considered as one of the best opportunities for trust and hope.

It was not consummated, but in the lack of consummating that peace treaty, I believe this administration made an egregious error. Upon coming into office, their quick response was, let them handle it; let them solve it.

We see now some 12, 13 months later that, tragically, that did not work. We have seen the loss of lives of women and men and children, of Israelis and Palestinians. Any of us who care for human life and love people are tragically, tragically upset that we have lost so many lives over the period of time.

Advocates for the survival and existence of Israel, our friend and ally, recognize that no loss of life, no matter who it is, should be accepted, the loss of life of those who lived in the Palestinian areas or in Israel.

We recognize that we who are Americans have both benefit and burden. When I speak to my constituents, I explain to them the importance of foreign policy and the appropriation of the small percentage that we utilize to engage in diplomacy and friendship around the world. And most of them, people of good will, people who are willing to think outside of the box, understand that we who have the benefit of living in this country also have the burden of engagement; no, I did not say sending troops everywhere around the world, but diplomacy. Diplomacy works.

Tragically, as I attended a Passover seder this past Passover holiday with my friends, a very blessed time, we were facing tragedies of suicide bombers in Israel. We cannot tolerate that, as we cannot tolerate the continued warring that is going on, and the loss of life.

Today it is reported that 13 Israeli soldiers were killed, again by a suicide bomber. None of this brings about peace. I am reminded by the words of President Lyndon Baines Johnson 40 years ago who said that the guns and bombs, the rockets and warships, all are symbols of human failure. That means it is most important that this administration turns around and begins to look long-term at engagement.
