

laws that are already in existence. I am not convinced we need a whole lot more new laws as far as the criminal behavior is concerned. What we need are more resources out there to these agencies to enforce the laws that exist.

So the President today made it very clear, and I think it would be to our benefit in both the House and the other side, in the Senate, to follow this lead. And this week I hope we can accomplish with some strong firm legislation an enforcement of a policy in this country that makes your punishment from stealing from the shareholders, from stealing from the public, for misappropriating, from lying on your accounting, from cooking the books, makes those offenses much more serious consequences than you would face if you went out and shoplifted a candy bar from the local retail store.

Our business system in this country depends on integrity. Now we know that not everybody is going to be honest. It cannot happen. Any time you get a group of people together, you will have a bad apple. It is the same thing in Congress. It happened in the Catholic priesthood. It has happened in the corporate world. So we have to build in, we have to anticipate that you will have a crooked corporate executive here and there. But the key to it is not to pretend that it is not going to happen or to depend totally on honesty. Our society has never totally depended on honesty. We have always had law. It is to put the laws in place. It is not just to put the laws in place. It is to enforce the laws that you have in place.

Let me conclude by saying this, I hope that we give the support to the President that he has asked; that we give the resources to the Securities and Exchange Commission that they need to police this problem; that we crack down hard on corporate governance; that we crack down hard on the auditing and audit oversight for companies like Arthur Andersen. And, by the way, the five major auditing firms in this country, all of them have been named in some of these transactions. It is clearly a mess out there that can be cleaned up. It has to be cleaned up.

Do not let us forget that what is being highlighted here, and appropriately, I think we need to focus a lot of attention on it, but sometimes when we focus all our attention on the misdeeds by a few, it tars everybody else. I mean, look at the Catholic priesthood. You get a few bad priests and all priests out there are being tarnished unfairly. Let me say we have people out there who do run ethical business. We have people that deliver good products. We have people that care about their shareholders. We have people that are responsible to their board of directors and we have boards of directors that are responsible to the people that they represent and we have a lot of good workers out there. That is what has made the American system great and the American system will stay great as long as we jump on top of people who have committed misdeeds.
