(Mr. DEUTSCH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DEUTSCH. Mr. Speaker, this is with both great pride and sadness that I rise today to join what I really think are unprecedented spontaneous words of Members to talk about our friend and our colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

I joined this Chamber with her 10 years ago with several other Members from Florida, and particularly from south Florida. Three of us were elected: myself, the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK), and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART).

For those of us in south Florida, we literally stepped on the shoulders of giants: Claude Pepper, Dante Fascell, Bill Lehman. I think for all of us those truly were icons in American history. We felt we could fill their shoes, but we knew of their legacy. I think after 10 years it is absolutely clear that at least one of us has attained that legacy, and that is the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK), who really in the history of America stands out as a unique leader.

Clearly not just in the history of Florida, in the history of south Florida, but truly in the history of America she is an icon, an icon in terms of integrity, accomplishment, work, and compassion. I think that is something that she will remain for the rest of her life and for all history. Her legacy is not just her good works but her family, as well, who join her in public service and will continue.

(Mr. PRICE of North Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I want to add my words of tribute to the spontaneous demonstration this afternoon on behalf of our colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK), who has recently announced her retirement. This is an announcement that caught us by surprise and that we regret; but we welcome this chance to pay tribute to the gentlewoman from Florida for whom we have great admiration and affection.

I have sat next to the gentlewoman from Florida on both of my Appropriations subcommittees for some years now, both the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies and the Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service and General Government. We have sat through many hearings and many markups together. We have had some good times, and we have had some real challenges. I have developed great affection and respect for the gentlewoman from Florida during this period of service.

The gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK) is a fighter. I will never forget the kind of fight she made for the hurricane victims when her district was stricken some years ago. This very day, I have seen her fighting for people without adequate banking services in our Committee on Appropriations.

The gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK) does not always win these fights, but she always fights with conviction, with a compelling case, and with the kind of style that makes her a very hard person to oppose. She has a warm and winning way; she wins admiration and friendship on both sides of the aisle. She is a unique Member of this body. I have counted it a real privilege to serve with her and am looking forward to several months more of service as we go through the appropriations cycle.

I wanted to rush over here when I saw this spontaneous tribute arising on the House floor, because I am so fond of Mrs. MEEK and so admiring of her. I am pleased this afternoon to add my words of tribute, to wish her well, and to say that in her months remaining here I anticipate many more good fights and good times as we serve together.

(Ms. WATSON of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WATSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I had not intended to give my tribute this afternoon, but we cannot be in these Chambers or in hearing distance and not be compelled to come up and add to this tribute. We are going to say more later.

I have known the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK) for almost 30 years now. I remember her as a legislator who rushed up to me one day and said, What is the name of that bill, that bill? What is the number of that bill that you had? We want to do it in Florida. She was always probing, always seeking to make good public law.

We served together in Noble Women many years ago. I just went up to her and I said, I want to take credit for getting you here in 1992. After that very devastating earthquake she called my office. We had had a big uprising in Los Angeles. She said, What can I do? I have two young men running against me. I said, Turn your headquarters into an emergency relief center. She did that. She gave out beds and blankets and food, and she ended up in the place where she needed to be; that was in the House of Representatives.

She has served with distinction, but most of all, she has served with heart, directly under God, and shared that with all of us. For that, we will be eternally grateful to you, Carrie. We love you.

(Mrs. JONES of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, it just happens that today I had on the great colors red and white. I am pleased, as a member of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., an international woman's sorority, to stand here to salute my soror, the Honorable gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

It has been wonderful to have an opportunity to serve in the House of Representatives with her. We had a wonderful chance to talk about the great Delta days, about Bethune College, about basketball. In fact, recently she and I coached the Congressional Basketball Team called the Hills Angels as we played the Georgetown law faculty.

But more importantly, she is full of history, full of wonder, full of grace; and I am so pleased and blessed to have had the opportunity to serve in the House of Representatives with her, if only for 4 years.

□ 1700

In your lifetime God gives you the opportunity to be touched by a number of people. I am so pleased that I had a chance to be touched by this wonderful, wonderful woman called CARRIE MEEK. And I look forward to your further years of service. We will not let you retire. We may let you leave here, but we have other jobs for you, Mrs. CARRIE MEEK.

On behalf of all the Deltas from across the world, 190,000 strong, we salute our soror, CARRIE MEEK.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHUSTER). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. JONES of North Carolina addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. THURMAN addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, today the President gave a long, rather long speech full of words that really administered a pretty heavy feather duster to the miscreants on Wall Street, the CEOs, the analysts and the others who have been robbing our corporations, our economy, blind. He said he was not going to put up with it anymore. He was going to get tough.

But it is more what he did not say than what he did say that is important. He did not say he would support tough legislation to overhaul the securities firms, the Sarbanes bill. He did go on to say he would support the weaker House version, the one that really would not do anything for pension reform or auditing, the show bills that passed the House here before this thing really imploded, that the Republican majority pushed through. They would still allow corporations to direct their employees to be stuck with stock and would not really fix the problems of auditing and those things.

He did not talk about corporate tax dodges. The phony incorporations of U.S. firms in Bermuda to avoid tens of millions of dollars in taxes. He did not talk about rescinding his order which would allow corporate lawbreakers to get government contracts. He did not say a word about Harvey Pitt, the toothless watchdog of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Now the principal watchdog over America's securities firms and the stock markets and all those financial investments, all of those very complicated, high falooting things which have allowed people to steal hundreds of millions, billions, of dollars, bankrupt companies, put people out of work, steal their pensions and crater the 401(k)s of tens of thousands of American. We have an organization already in place that is supposed to take care of that. The Securities and Exchange Commission.

Earlier this year, just a couple of months ago, the President proposed a zero funding increase for them. Today, he pretended that he had been asking for a long time for more money for the SEC. He has not been, but I am glad that he has been born again in asking for some increase. But the increase he is asking for is a tiny fraction of the money that has been stolen. It will be inadequate to make the SEC the kind of watchdog we want as long as Harvey Pitt is the chairman.

Now, Harvey Pitt is a former securities lawyer. He is so compromised that when he recently met with a firm that was being investigated and he was questioned about it, he said, well, look, you cannot ask me not to meet with firms that are being investigated by the SEC just because I represented them, because then I would not be able to meet with anybody.

This is our watchdog. This is the President's appointee. This is the guy who is going to bring honesty. Come on. If that gentleman is not removed the President is not serious.

Recently the SEC tried to do an enforcement action against Ernst &

Young. There were three commissioners present. They heard the evidence and at the end, the evidence was compelling, Ernst & Young should pay a fine. They had committed some improprieties. But guess what? Only one of the three SEC, Securities and Exchange Commission, members could vote because the other two were so compromised that they would have been penalized under law for voting because of their associations with this firm. So the one voted to penalize them, the Clinton appointee. But then an administrative law judge said, you cannot convict these people with one Securities and Exchange commissioner. You have to have more than one.

So here we have a Securities and Exchange Commission which is so compromised with their contacts, with their clients, who have represented all these people robbing America blind that they cannot even vote on enforcement actions. And the President is trying to tell us with his speech today, by God, he is taking care of this problem. He has not taken care of the problem.

He has tried to take care of one problem today and that is the political problem he has, the gathering storm of anger in this country that is beginning to look for someone to blame for the fact that billions of dollars of wealth have evaporated.

Americans are opening their 401(k) statements this month and many of them are shocked, disappointed and, yes, angered. They want to know who is responsible. How could these high-flying companies, how could these CEOs who are paying themselves tens of millions, hundreds of millions of dollars, boards of directors loaning themselves hundreds of millions of dollars, how could they suddenly be worthless? How could their 401(k)s have dropped so much? Because the money was stolen. And because there is no one home to enforce the law.

The Securities and Exchange Commission is the place to enforce the law, and until the President replaces the compromised people on the SEC; he has even got one nominated now, he comes from a securities firm. But as soon as that person gets there, he will not be able to vote on any of these things because they worked on all of these things. These are their buddies, the people they go to the luncheons with, the country club, they go yachting with, they go to their multimillion-dollar homes in Florida with.

We need to clean up this mess. The President had a chance today; he did not take it. Perhaps we can give him another chance again soon. Perhaps the Republican leaders of the House will relent and allow real reforms for pensions, real reforms for securities. Maybe they will undo some of the things they did back in 1995, which essentially exempted these securities firms from prosecution.

We can take some real measures here if there is the will. But there is so much money flooding from these people into politics that I fear we will not get there.

Some of us will continue to speak out. Others will begin to speak out. But will they put their vote where their mouth is? And will the President really put firm steps where his rhetoric is? Not today.

Tomorrow is another day. Americans will be a little madder tomorrow. This will still be going on tomorrow. Let us see what happens then.

DISASTER IN SOUTH DAKOTA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to speak this afternoon to some issues that are important to my State.

In the last week I have had the opportunity to travel the State of South Dakota and witness some enormous devastation that our State has experienced as a result of drought. It was announced yesterday that the month of June was the driest in the 114-year history of our State. In western South Dakota we have farmers and ranchers who are experiencing tremendous economic impacts, losing, having to sell and liquidate their herds. We need a solution.

I will continue to prevail upon this body, upon my colleagues here, as I have already, to provide assistance to our farmers and ranchers who are so desperately in need of help this year.

In my judgment, the drought we are experiencing in South Dakota is not unlike many of the other natural disasters that affect other parts of this country, and it demands that this Congress and the people of this country step up and support those in my State who are suffering so desperately this year.

I also had the opportunity, Mr. Speaker, to witness firsthand some of the devastation that resulted as a result of the Grizzly Gulch fire, fire that ravaged about 11,000 acres of South Dakota this last week. Fortunately, it is under control; it is being contained. For that, we owe an incredible debt of gratitude to the extraordinary effort that was made by fire fighters all across South Dakota, volunteers who came and joined the Federal fire fighters who were doing such a great job of controlling, containing that blaze.

It came very, very close, right down to the city's edge, the city of Deadwood and other communities that would be impacted. It burned a number of structures and homes, but it did not come into the community as a result of the extraordinary efforts; and for that, I give the fire fighters of my State, many of them volunteers from across our State, great credit for the tremendous work that they did in controlling that blaze.

The people of my State have pulled together as they do in times of adversity to address this tragedy. We saved
