

only 21,000 survived to return to the U.S. at the end of the war. Of the 1,800 men deployed in New Mexico's 200th and 515th Coast Artillery Regiments, fewer than 900 returned to the United States after the three and a half years of captivity.

Today, the men forced to perform slave labor in the Japanese corporations still await their just and overdue compensation and recognition for the labor performed. Recently, however, a California law was enacted that enables these men to seek damages up to the year 2010 against responsible Japanese companies. Seventeen lawsuits have been filed on behalf of former POWs, but their claims are currently pending in the California State court system and have been since they were filed in 1999.

Over the past few years, the U.S. government has helped facilitate the resolution of claims for thousands of individuals who were forced to perform slave labor for German companies during World War II. However, the U.S. State Department and the Department of Justice have been opposing, rather than supporting, the claims of the U.S. POWs who were forced to perform slave labor in Japan.

I am a cosponsor and strongly support the important legislation introduced by several Members present at this special order today, H.R. 1198. "The Justice for U.S. POWs Act of 2001," will allow POW suits against Japanese companies to go forward without interference from the Department of State. This legislation has broad bipartisan support and I am hopeful that we can soon bring this legislation before the full House for consideration to help bring compensation and recognition for the hardship these POWs endured at the hands of their captors.

Finally, I would like to invite my colleagues here as well as anyone else to visit the recently dedicated Bataan Memorial Park in Albuquerque, New Mexico. This touching memorial is a poignant reminder of the sacrifices made by both the living and the dead for the freedoms we enjoy today.

Again, thank you Mr. HONDA for organizing this special order. I look forward to working with you further to bring H.R. 1198 to the floor for passage.

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
