(1) The United States possesses strong and deep connections with the peoples of the world separate from its relations with their governments. These connections can be a major asset in the promotion of United States interests and foreign policy.

(2) Misinformation and hostile propaganda in these countries regarding the United States and its foreign policy endanger the interests of the United States. Existing efforts to counter such misinformation and propaganda are inadequate and must be greatly enhanced in both scope and substance.

(3) United States foreign policy has been hampered by an insufficient consideration of the importance of public diplomacy in the formulation and implementation of that policy and by the underuse of modern communication techniques.

(4) The United States should have an operational strategy and a coordinated effort regarding the utilization of its public diplomacy resources.

(5) The development of an operational strategy and a coordinated effort by United States agencies regarding public diplomacy would greatly enhance United States foreign policy.

(6) The Secretary of State has undertaken efforts to ensure that of the new job positions established at the Department of State after September 30, 2002, a significant proportion of the positions is for public diplomacy.

(b) PURPOSES.—It is the purpose of this Act to enhance in scope and substance, redirect, redefine, and reorganize United States public diplomacy.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) and the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3969, the Freedom Promotion Act of 2002. As Americans, we are justly proud of our country. If any Nation has been a greater force for good in the long and tormented history of this world, I am unaware of it. We have guarded whole continents from conquests, showered aid on distant lands, sent thousands of youthful idealists to remote and often inhospitable areas to help the world's forgotten.

Why then when we read or listen to descriptions of Americans in foreign press, do we so often seem to be entering a fantasyland of hatred?

Much of the popular press overseas, often including the government-owned media, daily depict the United States as a force for evil, accusing this country of an endless number of malevolent plots against the world. As we battle the terrorists who masterminded the murder of thousands of Americans, our actions are widely depicted in the Muslim world as a war against Islam. Our efforts at self-defense, which should be supported by every decent person on this planet, instead spark riots that threaten governments that dare to cooperate with us.

How is it that the country that invented Hollywood and Madison Avenue has such trouble promoting a positive image of itself overseas? Over the years, the images of mindless hatred directed at us have become familiar fixtures on our television screens. All this time, we have heard calls that "something must be done." Clearly, whatever has been done has not been enough.

I believe that the problem is too great and too entrenched to be solved by tweaking an agency here or reshuffling a program there. We must rethink our entire approach and seek out new perspectives and methods. We must both address our immediate needs and also lay the groundwork for long-term changes, changes that must include utilizing the full range of modern media and tapping into the private sector's vast expertise in the creation and promotion of compelling messages and images.

To begin this process, with the assistance of my cosponsors, the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS) and the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN), I have introduced the bipartisan bill now before us, H.R. 3969, the Freedom Promotion Act of 2002. This legislation is designed to meet a number of pressing needs by reorienting and reinvigorating our approach to public diplomacy.

The bill is divided into three titles. The major provisions of title I elevate the role and prominence of public diplomacy in the State Department's programs and decision-making and include a requirement that the Secretary of State prepare an annual strategic plan for the use of public diplomacy along with an operational plan for its implementation. Title II establishes a series of initiatives focused on the Muslim world, the goal of which is to increase those people's direct contact with the American people for the purpose of enhancing their understanding of the United States and its values. Title III reorganizes our international broadcasting operations in order to ensure greater clarity and responsibility in decisionmaking. All sources agree that the current organizational structure produces great confusion. Our purpose, however, is not merely to rationalize decisionmaking but to create the conditions needed to design and implement fundamental reforms throughout our broadcasting efforts.

Mr. Speaker, these are the broad goals of this legislation. I have prepared a section-by-section description of the bill that I insert in the RECORD.

LEGISLATION SUMMARY

TITLE I: DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Specific authorizing language. The legislation gives shape to the direction and manner in which public diplomacy is carried out by defining the statutory authorization; defines the role of the Secretary of State in public diplomacy more specifically in terms of standards, technologies, and target audiences:

Requires the Secretary of State to ensure that there is a "cohesive and coherent" strategy to "aggressively . . . counter misinformation and hostile propaganda concerning the United States."

In coordination with the reconstituted International Broadcasting Agency, the Secretary of State "shall develop and articulate long-term measurable objectives for United States public diplomacy."

Mandates development of an annual strategic communications plan by the Department of State to advance U.S. foreign policy goals including a tactical communications plan for implementation at the embassy level. The development of this plan must be coordinated with the many federal agencies active in international programs. Although the State Department is not given operational control over programs and activities conducted by other agencies, it is designated as the lead agency.

Under Secretary of State for Public Diplomacy—Created in 1999 with the consolidation of the Department of State and the United Information Agency (USIA), the Under Secretary is given new authority over public diplomacy directors serving in the department's six regional bureaus to improve coordination of public diplomacy activities.

The legislation creates a firewall around the budget for public diplomacy and authorizes an additional $70 million for exchange and cultural programs and $40 million for other public diplomacy programs over two years.

The legislation also provides $7.5 million annually to the Office of Broadcast Services at the Department of State to accelerate its outreach to the world. A key objective is to equip the State Department with the requisite facilities, including studios and satellite capability, to enable it to act as a command center for a public diplomacy operations globally and in real time.

Development of programming. The State Department is authorized to develop programming in coordination with U.S. Agency for International Development for foreign audiences separate from the renamed International Broadcasting Agency. State is encouraged to work with foreign television broadcasters and other media to produce and distribute programming.

Establishment of the Public Diplomacy Reserve Corps. Includes a database of eligible experts in foreign policy and mass communication for temporary assignments to augment the Department during "emergency and critical circumstances worldwide."

Enhanced training in media and advocacy skills for the Foreign Service and Ambassadors. The Foreign Service is encouraged to recruit individuals with experience in public diplomacy and to emphasize to all incoming officers that public diplomacy is an important part of their job. Training for Ambassadors and Foreign Service officers should include a component on public diplomacy and the tools and technology of mass communication. In particular, Ambassadors should take a prominent role in the formulation of public diplomacy strategies for the country and regions to which they are assigned and be formally held accountable for the operation and success of the public diplomacy efforts at their posts.

Translation services. To assist Public Affairs Offices in embassies worldwide, the legislation adds an additional $4 million annually for document translation services.

Mandates in-depth research on public and media attitudes in regions chosen at the discretion of the Department of State. This includes a requirement that analyses of the comparative effectiveness of the various efforts undertaken in the area of public diplomacy be provided annually, including the use of the private sector in the U.S. and overseas.

Alumni program. A database of international alumni of U.S. exchange programs will be created in order to expand and utilize the connections established.

American Library initiative. A demonstration program will examine the most effective way to augment resources in local public library systems to improve literacy and to "familiarize participants with American values and society, particularly the importance of freedom and democracy."

Reform of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy. Mandates a comprehensive biennial study by the Commission of the State Department's public diplomacy and requires that at least four of the seven Commission members have "substantial experience in the conduct of public diplomacy or comparable activities in the private sector."

TITLE II: INITIATIVES AIMED AT THE MUSLIM WORLD

Youth Ambassadors—Authorizes a summer youth exchange program for young individuals from countries with a predominantly Muslim population. (Short-term exchanges of 3-4 weeks in length) to familiarize participants with the United States.

Journalism program—Authorizes an initiative to work with foreign journalists to increase their familiarity with appropriate practices and techniques and to enhance international standards of quality and objectivity. This program will be established and operated in cooperation with private sector sponsors, including universities and exchange programs.

English language training. Creates a pilot program to increase English language skills by sending Americans to middle schools in the Muslim world to provide English language instruction.

Sister Cities Initiative: Authorizes funds for an expanded "sister cities" program to increase the number of US-sister city partnerships in countries with a predominantly Muslim population. (Currently there are 42 such partnerships). These partnerships are aimed at community level development and volunteer action and include non-federal support.

Fulbright Exchange Programs: Requires new emphasis on exchanges of U.S. professionals seeking to study, teach, conduct research or pursue scholarship in predominately Muslim countries.

National Endowment for Democracy: Provides an additional $10 million over two years to fund programs "that promote democracy, media, religious tolerance, the rights of women and strengthening of civil society" in predominately Muslim countries.

TITLE III: INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING

Establishment of the International Broadcasting Agency—The legislation reorganizes U.S. international broadcasting programs, now headed by a part-time Board of Broadcasting Governors, into an agency headed by a director appointed by the Board. The reorganization is designed to ensure accountability by an identified decision maker while causing minimal disruption to broadcasting operations and preserving the strengths of the Board. The present Board of Governors will be reconstituted as the Board of International Broadcasting of the U.S. International Broadcasting Agency and will retain operational control of grants to entities including Radio Liberty, Radio Free Asia, and Radio Free Europe.

Development of television services to the Middle East and elsewhere. The legislation provides an initial $135 million to the Board of International Broadcasting (formerly known as the BBG) to expand television and radio broadcasting to countries with predominately Muslim populations, in order to dramatically expand access to mass audiences of uncensored news and entertainment.

There is a manager's amendment that includes a few changes from the bill as reported. We have made a number of accommodations to the concerns expressed by the State Department and others, and the bill now enjoys State Department support. These changes include reducing the authorization for the 2003 fiscal year for State Department's operating account for public diplomacy programs; providing a 2-year authorization for the initiatives focused on countries with predominantly Muslim populations for the 2002 and 2003 fiscal years; and adding a sense of Congress to establish a training program for journalists from regions of conflict.

The measures in this bill are long overdue, but they represent only the first steps in what must become an ongoing effort to ensure that the truth about our country rises above the cacophony of hate and misinformation that often passes for discourse in many areas of the world. Our goal should not merely be to talk to the governments and elites of the world but to engage people at all levels and in every country and do so on a permanent basis. We must do so not as an adjunct to our foreign policy but as a central component of that policy.

America's story is a compelling one, but it is up to us to tell it. We have much to do, but we must never forget that beyond the islands of hatred populated by vocal enemies, there is an enormous reservoir of good will and that legions of silent allies await.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I rise in strong support of H.R. 3969, the Freedom Promotion Act of 2002.

Let me begin, Mr. Speaker, by applauding Chairman Hyde for his tireless work on this bill. It is his push, his creativity, and his efforts that have brought this bill into introduction, through passage in committee and now to the floor. He has a strong personal commitment to enhancing our public diplomacy programs and he is showing tremendous leadership on that critical issue. I would also like to commend my ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), for his great dedication to public diplomacy. As both of these distinguished Members are well aware, winning the information war is critical to winning the war on terrorism. Helping prevent one key element in the prevention of future terrorist attacks must be the enhancement of international understanding of U.S. policies and values and a response to the hateful anti-American propaganda that often fuels terrorism. This can only be done through strong public diplomacy, including expanded international broadcasting and enhanced educational and cultural exchanges, particularly in the Middle East and in other countries with large Muslim populations.

Mr. Speaker, in the struggle against international terrorism, the United States must not be afraid to proclaim the universal values we espouse, democracy, free markets, human rights and social justice. These ideals represent the strongest weapons in America's arsenal and are the ultimate guarantors of our victory in this struggle. Disseminating these values more broadly and more effectively is the purpose and the promise of this legislation.

This compromise bill represents the best in bipartisanship in pursuit of U.S. national security interests. In the Committee on International Relations, we worked together to craft an amendment that streamlines the management of our international broadcasting operations while at the same time maintaining a bipartisan board as a firewall to shield broadcasting from inappropriate political influence. This structure is key to preserving journalistic integrity and the credibility of our broadcasts.

We also adopted important amendments to increase funding for the National Endowment for Democracy's activities in the Middle East, to more systematically advertise our foreign assistance to overseas audiences, and to ensure that the predominantly Muslim countries of Africa are not overlooked.

Finally, we adopted an amendment that I offered with the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CANTOR) to provide additional resources for a 24-hour Arabic language satellite television service in the Middle East, as well as new television services and expanded radio broadcasts to countries with large Muslim populations in Central, South and East Asia. It is critical that we offer people in these countries a balanced alternative to al-Jazeera and other media sources that have contributed to growing anti-Americanism in the Muslim world.

Mr. Speaker, Congress has a responsibility to ensure that the brave men and women fighting for freedom in Afghanistan and beyond are the best trained, best equipped, and best led in the world. We also have a duty to provide our diplomatic corps and our broadcasting personnel, who are on the front lines of our public diplomacy efforts, with the same moral and material support. The funds authorized in this bill are a drop in the bucket compared to the amount we have already spent in the war on terrorism, but they will make a difference in our public diplomacy efforts.

Mr. Speaker, in the wake of last September's horrific events, this Chamber has united to take bold and courageous action in support of our war against international terrorism. The legislation before us is an integral part of that war effort and deserves the same strong bipartisan show of support.

I urge all my colleagues to support the resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would not want this opportunity to pass without commending my friend and colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN), who has made his usual indispensable contribution to good legislation. He is a very valuable and contributing Member. I am delighted to have him as an active cosponsor on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Freedom Promotion Act. This important legislation is designed to enhance public diplomacy in countries with predominantly Muslim populations.

During the 1990's, the United States fought in four military conflicts in support of countries with majority Muslim areas. We liberated Kuwait, saved 250,000 people in Somalia, ended the Bosnia genocide, and halted Milosevic's ethnic cleansing in Kosova. With that record, it is almost inconceivable to me that we need to enhance our nation's image in the Middle East and other areas with large Muslim populations. Nevertheless, for a variety of reasons we do. This bill is an important first step toward telling the world the story of America and the values for which we stand.

I particularly support this legislation because it includes my amendment authorizing funding for the promotion of democracy, good governance, the rule of law, independent media, religious tolerance, the rights of women, and strengthening civil society in Middle Eastern states. For too long, America has tolerated Arab dictatorships because of our need for secure oil supplies. September 11th demonstrated that our country needs true friends in the region—democracies which respect the rights of their people—not petty autocracies which trample civil and political rights to perpetuate their rule. The funding to promote democracy in the Middle East will be coordinated by the National Endowment for Democracy, which does such excellent work around the world to promote America's democratic values.

My amendment passed prior to the recent release of the Arab Human Development Report 2002 written by Arab scholars and experts with the support of the United Nations Development Program. Yet, this report, which found a "freedom deficit" in the Arab world, only adds to the importance of democracy promotion in the Middle East. As stated in a July 7 New York Times Editorial, "For too long, America embraced corrupt and autocratic Arab leaders, asking only that they accommodate Western oil needs and not make excessive trouble for Israel. As a result, too many young Arabs now identify the United States more readily with repressive dictators it supports in the Middle East than with the tolerant democracy it practices at home." My amendment is designed to turn back that tide.

Once again, I strongly support H.R. 3969, the Freedom Promotion Act and urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3969, the Freedom Promotion Act.

Mr. Speaker, Chairman HYDE has crafted a superb bill and I am proud of him and of our Committee. The bill, as our Committee report states, is intended to "enhance in scope and substance, redirect, redefine, and reorganize United States public diplomacy." It is clear that we have not been getting the desired results from our public diplomacy efforts. Even with the major reorganization of the last decade, our efforts have not met the challenge of the post-September 11 world.

The team assembled by the President, including Under Secretary Beers and, of course, Secretary Powell, a most formidable communicator in his own right, are working overtime. But they need the tools and resources that this bill provides them.

I am especially interested in the special authorities for outreach to the Muslim world that are incorporated in this bill. The governments of too many Muslim states have been directing the energies of their people at the United States, or at Israel, in the search for an excuse for mismanagement at home. We need to tell our story and deflect this improperly-placed blame, which can only lead to hatred, terrorism, and war.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud the work of Chairman HYDE and my colleagues and urge them to support the bill.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3969, the Freedom Promotion Act of 2002. I would like to thank Chairman HYDE and Ranking Member Lantos of the House International Relations Committee for their leadership on this very important issue.

Mr. Speaker, American leadership and generosity have made the United States the leading international donor. Each year, the United States provides billions of dollars in foreign aid. Unfortunately, despite our efforts to improve the daily lives of people around the world, anti-American sentiment exists and is—quite alarmingly—on the rise. Often, the recipients of our aid do not know that it comes from the United States.

I was pleased to offer an amendment to H.R. 3969 during the International Relations Committee markup ensuring that the positive work and support the United States provides to troubled regions around the world be properly identified. U.S. assistance funded by the American taxpayer should be clearly identified, and the extent of American generosity for purposes of poverty reduction and development should be well known.

Foreign aid is a potentially powerful tool in our public diplomacy campaign. Broadcasting this fact abroad can help in building support for U.S. foreign policy and generate good will. Directing the Secretary of State to take advantage of this untapped resource, and requiring him to report to Congress on his efforts to do so, ensures that U.S. foreign assistance becomes an integral component of public diplomacy.

My amendment to H.R. 3969 was only the first step in the effort to effectively promote U.S. assistance abroad. Now more than ever, this bill is vital to shaping an effective foreign policy that ensures America's security interests in the aftermath of September 11, and advances America's enduring principles of justice, democracy and human rights.

Thank you and I urge an 'aye' vote.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3969, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
