

HASTERT, or Rep. ROB PORTMAN. According to the Congressional Research Service, they would have their pensions slashed by as much as 69 percent under cash balance plans.

During the next debate on pension legislation, I will be asking my colleagues in the House, if cash balance plans are good enough for workers, why aren't they good enough for Members of Congress?

The answer to that question, of course, is that cash balance pension conversions are not good for older workers. They need to be given a choice.

H.R. 1276: AMERICAN DREAM
DOWNPAYMENT ACT

HON. GARY G. MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 8, 2003

Mr. GARY G. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, we all know that home equity appreciation is one of the most important drivers of wealth creation in the United States. By helping people become homeowners, we promote long-term economic stability for our Nation. It is for this reason that I rise today to urge my colleagues to cosponsor H.R. 1276, the American Dream Downpayment Act. This important legislation sets first-time, low-income homebuyers on the path to homeownership by providing help with downpayments and closing costs.

One of the primary barriers to achieving the "American Dream" of homeownership for low- and moderate-income people is the lack of accumulated wealth and disposable income. Downpayments and closing costs are traditionally the most significant obstacles that would-be homebuyers face.

In order to accumulate enough to cover downpayment and closing costs, households must consume less and save more or receive assistance from relatives or other benefactors. With rent prices skyrocketing, it is very difficult for a family to have enough money leftover for a downpayment after paying for basic needs such as shelter, health care and food. This bill attempts to assist those who have not been able to save enough money upfront but who are earning enough to make the monthly mortgage payments.

Downpayment assistance programs are proven successful in expanding homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families. And the truth is, the private sector has been working, without government intervention, to assist individuals and families who lack the necessary funds for downpayment and other related costs become homeowners.

I would like to talk about one such program, based in Rancho Cucamonga, CA. The Housing Action Resource Trust (HART) was established in 1995 and began its Downpayment Assistance Program in July of 1998. HART is an established non-profit housing organization with a proven track record. The HART program has partnered with builders and listing agents to assist prospective homebuyers across the nation who qualify for a first mortgage loan, but fall short of the downpayment and other closing costs essential in purchasing a home.

The HART program has been recognized as one of the top downpayment programs in the country. The HART program has helped 40,000 families who rent across the country realize their dream of becoming a homeowner.

The American Dream Downpayment Act will complement the tremendous work programs such as HART are doing to help build communities. I urge my colleagues to make the dream of homeownership a reality for even more Americans by supporting this legislation.

TRIBUTE TO SPECIALIST MATHEW
G. BOULE, UNITED STATES ARMY

HON. MARTIN T. MEEHAN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 8, 2003

Mr. MEEHAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to United States Army Specialist Mathew G. Boule, 22, who died on April 2 in service to his country.

Mathew Boule was a resident of a community in my district, Dracut, Massachusetts, who was serving with the armed forces deployed as part of Operation Iraqi Freedom. Mathew Boule was the first confirmed casualty of the conflict from the state of Massachusetts.

After graduating from high school, Mathew Boule signed up for a five-year Army tour. He learned discipline and the value of camaraderie during his tour of duty, and was proud to tell his family of his plans to someday pilot military planes.

Mathew Boule's parents Leo and Sue are proud of their son, not just for the supreme sacrifice he paid on behalf of his country, but for the time he shared with them during his life. Sue Boule eagerly and happily boasts of her son's generosity. "The kind of kid who would give you the shirt off his back," she fondly recalls. His giving of his life, along with the other brave soldiers who have lost their lives so far in this conflict, has contributed immensely to the freedom and security of the United States, Iraq, and the world.

In Mathew's honor, his parents continue their efforts to collect care packages for their son's unit, a project which has both mobilized and unified his hometown.

Mathew was a proud member of the United States army, a loving son and brother. Mathew Boule served his family, his hometown, and his country, valiantly and faithfully. Specialist Boule died serving the country he loved, with comrades he loved and with the love of his family in his heart. Our nation is humbled and grateful for his sacrifice.

Mr. Speaker, it is appropriate at this time we recognize Specialist Mathew G. Boule, United States Army, who gave his life in service to his country.

A SALUTE TO JOHN ANDREW
MARTIN

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 8, 2003

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor for me to pay tribute to one of Dallas' truly outstanding citizens. As the Dallas Lawyers Auxiliary gathers tomorrow to give John Andrew Martin its 21st Justinian Award for his volunteer work, I would like to take a moment to reflect on the achievements of this exceptional individual.

Mr. Martin was born and raised in segregated Birmingham, Alabama. From 1962 to 1964, Mr. Martin was an attorney with the Civil Rights Division of the United States Department of Justice where he helped enforce the Voting Rights Act and other civil rights laws.

He has a broad legal practice which includes experience in hospital and health care law; administrative law; general business litigation, including appellate work.

Mr. Martin's administrative law experience spans more than 20 years, and includes particular experience in utility regulation. He has been involved in major rate cases, certification proceedings, and show cause hearings before the Public Utility Commission.

For over 20 years, he has served as general counsel to a tertiary care pediatric hospital and has had involvement in all aspects of its operation, including financing, Medicaid-Medicare issues, physician credentialing, medical malpractice insurance issues, equipment financing, and environmental issues, to name a few.

His litigation experience is equally broad and he is certified as a civil trial lawyer. This experience includes securities litigation, general business litigation, and condemnation and eminent domain proceedings and will contests. He appellate practice has occurred before the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit and in Texas Appellate Courts.

Throughout the years, Mr. Martin has served various civic boards including the YMCA of Metropolitan Dallas and the Children's Medical Center.

Mr. Speaker, significantly I want to honor Mr. Martin, for his courageous work in the U.S. vs. Cecil Price et al. The trial that followed was a milestone in the civil rights era. Thirty six years ago, a Justice Department team led by Attorney General John Doar and Mr. Martin prosecuted eighteen Klan conspirators, including the Sheriff and Deputy Sheriff of Philadelphia, Mississippi, for violating the civil rights of the three young civil rights workers: James Chaney, Michael Schwerner, and Andrew Goodman. Despite facing an all-white jury and a segregationist judge, the legal team which Mr. Martin was part of succeeded in winning the first convictions ever recorded in a civil rights case in Mississippi.

The film "Mississippi Burning" portrayed those outstanding Americans who have dedicated their lives to the defense of our civil rights. Mr. Martin and his colleagues participated in the Civil Rights Movement, understanding that there was a danger to their own lives.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the House of Representatives to join me in extending my appreciation to John Andrew Martin for over four decades of service to the people of Dallas, Texas and this nation. Congratulations, Mr. Martin and best wishes for future successes.

TRIBUTE TO PULITZER PRIZE WINNING EAGLE TRIBUTE NEWSPAPER—LAWRENCE, MA

HON. MARTIN T. MEEHAN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 8, 2003

Mr. MEEHAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Eagle Tribune, a newspaper in Lawrence, Massachusetts. This week the Eagle Tribune was awarded journalism's highest honor the Pulitzer Prize for breaking news, for its coverage of four young children from Lawrence, Massachusetts who drowned in the Merrimack River earlier this year.

The tragedy was one of the worst on the Merrimack River in the last century. Three young boys, ages 7, 8, and 9 attempted to save their friend, age 11, who had fallen through the thin ice. All four young boys died.

Just as these children, so young and innocent, acted upon their first instinct, which was to help their friend, so did the Eagle Tribune reach out to help their community by reporting this story not only with accuracy and depth, but also with compassion and justice. Expressing their commitment to preventing future tragedies on the River, the Eagle Tribune donated their Pulitzer Prize cash award to a fund established to aid the families of the victims and to the Boys & Girls Club of Greater Lawrence.

As Eagle Tribune publisher Irving "Chip" Rogers III said, "The job of a newspaper is to get the news and publish it instantly, but in doing so we are not immune from its heartbreak." Indeed, the reporters and staff of the Eagle Tribune, led by metro editor Gretchen Putnam, with reporters Jim Patten, O'Ryan Johnson, and Jason Grosky, covered the story with a deep sense of grief and regret felt by both the reporters and the community, while maintaining a stunning truthfulness.

The Eagle Tribune produced excellence at a time when our communities depend on fair and accurate news coverage more than ever. The paper and its reporters are to be commended not only for their excellence in journalism and professionalism, but also for their compassion and generosity in the face of tragedy. They are role models for all of us in public service.
