ACTIVITIES OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE ON INTELLIGENCE

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, as chairman and vice chairman of the Select Committee on Intelligence, Senator ROCKEFELLER and I have submitted to the Senate the Report of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence of its activities during the 107th Congress from January 3, 2001 to November 22, 2002. The Committee is charged by the Senate with the responsibility of carrying out oversight of the intelligence activities of the United States. Much of the work of the Committee is of necessity conducted in secrecy, yet the Committee believes that the Intelligence Community and this Committee should be as accountable as possible to the public. The public report to the Senate is intended to achieve that goal.

JOHN AND JESS ROSKELLEY'S CLIMB OF MT. EVEREST

• Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate father and son John and Jess Roskelley of Spokane, WA, for their successful climb of Mt. Everest. The Roskelleys' achievement is both inspiring and historic. By reaching the summit on Wednesday, May 21, the Roskelleys became the first father and son to climb the world's highest mountain together. Jess also became the youngest American to ever complete the climb.

Throughout history, explorers and adventurers have held a special place in our imaginations. Their vision and determination to explore uncharted territory, and to surmount overwhelming obstacles in fierce conditions and environments remind us of the indomitable power of the human spirit.

Mt. Everest has long captivated mankind as a powerful symbol of the awe the natural world can evoke. Since Sir Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norgay became the first people to grace its summit 50 years ago, the challenge of climbing Everest has attained an iconic status. Its precipitous slopes, seemingly bottomless crevasses, and thin air are a reminder both of the power of natural forces, and of the fragility of human life.

John Roskelley is an expert climber, with 30 years experience climbing in the demanding Himalayas. He is also an accomplished photographer and author, whose work vividly conveys the challenges and emotions of high-altitude mountaineering. John is a dedicated public servant, as well: he serves as a Commissioner of Spokane County.

Jess Roskelley has clearly inherited his father's mountaineering talents and taste for adventure. Though he is only 20 years old, Jess is already an accomplished climber in his own right. He has climbed Washington State's highest peak, 14,411-foot Mt. Rainier—also an impressive mountaineering feat—a remarkable 35 times.

The Roskelleys' names will long be remembered with those of other magnificent climbers from Washington State—a proud history that includes such giants as Jim and Lou Whittaker, Jim Wickwire, Willi Unsoeld, and Ed Viesturs.

With their accomplishment, John and Jess Roskelley have contributed to this tradition, and to that of all the adventurers and explorers who inspire us to challenge ourselves to realize our dreams, and to persevere in the face of overwhelming odds. They remind us of President John F. Kennedy's affirmation that we pursue some goals "not because they are easy but because they are hard."

The Roskelleys' remarkable achievement reminds us what we can accomplish when we set our hearts and minds upon difficult goals. I congratulate them on their success, and wish them a safe trip home. ●

250TH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION OF KEENE, NH

• Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I rise today in honor of Keene, NH, the Elm City of New Hampshire. As the United States prepares to observe the 227th anniversary of our independence, the citizens of Keene will be celebrating the city's 250th birthday. It is therefore timely and appropriate that we recognize this great American community.

From its first settlement in the early 1700's until today, Keene has been the economic and cultural hub for the Monadnock region. The city's manufacturing and commercial companies have not only energized the local economy but have made significant contributions to our country. The Kingsbury Machine Tool Corporation, for example, was a key supplier of equipment during the Nation's involvement in World War II and the Korean War. The Faulkner and Colony Manufacturing Company is certainly one of the great industrial companies in our Country's history and its legacy is still being felt today. In addition to this central role as an economic engine, Keene has been an education leader. It is home to Keene State College, one of the our State's leading institutions of higher learning.

Of course, we cannot talk about this city without praising its most distinctive asset: the people of Keene. They have never been restrained in lending their talents and energies to any noble cause or to any effort that will strengthen the community's social fabric. Throughout its history, Keene's residents have demonstrated this commitment to their neighbors and their country. For example, upon hearing of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the town organized a celebration of this great news. Unfortunately, they had no way of affixing the new American flag to the Liberty Pole, other than by climbing to the top, which was dangerous. A 9-year-old boy stepped out of the crowd and offered to take up this challenge. Witnesses said as the boy went higher, the pole started to bend. However, he made it and, as the crowd cheered, set the American Flag at the pole's highest reach. In February 1835, a Keene native, the Honorable John Dickson, delivered the first important anti-slavery speech ever made in the United States Congress. In 1892, John Henry Elliot donated the building which became the City's first modern hospital. During the Civil War, 584 men from Keene served; 48 gave their lives. Forty Keene residents fought at the Battle of Bunker Hill. Catherine Fiske opened the Young Ladies Seminary in Keene on May 1, 1814. This was the first boarding school in New Hampshire and just the second in the United States. Its reputation for educating the young women of Keene and of many other States in the country was unmatched in its day.

Horatio Colony, the city's first mayor in 1874, is one of a long line of talented public servants from Keene who have helped make New Hampshire such a great place to live. Today, the city is continuing this honorable tradition. The long-time dean of the New Hampshire State Senate, Clesson "Junie" Blaisdell, hailed from Keene. The sitting mayor, Michael E.J. Blastos, has been a long-time leader here. The current President of the New Hampshire State Senate, Tom Eaton, calls the city his home. In addition to guiding one half of New Hampshire's legislative body, Senator Eaton also serves as acting Governor of New Hampshire whenever the Governor is out of state or otherwise unable to perform the duties of the office. Born and raised in this region of the State, Senator Eaton represents all that is great about the City.

All of these people, and their stories, illustrate the can-do attitude and spirit of activism of Keene's people. With that, I am proud to honor and salute them as they celebrate the 250th birthday of Keene, NH, the Elm City of the Granite State. ●

TRIBUTE TO MICHIGAN'S FIRST ARMY NATIONAL GUARD BRIGADE COMMANDER

• Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, the contributions of women in the U.S. Armed Forces stretches back to the battlefields of our Revolution and continues in the deserts of Iraq today.

But those contributions have not always been recognized.

Today, I rise to note another milestone for women in the military and pay tribute to COL Mandi Murray who recently became the first woman to command a brigade in Michigan's Army National Guard.

Colonel Murray now commands the 2,433 soldiers of the 63rd Troop Command based in Jackson, MI.

The missions of the 63rd Troop Command include maintenance, transportation, administration, Army aviation, and Airborne Ranger duties. One unit of the 63rd Troop Command is now serving in Iraq and—sadly—one of its servicemen was killed there last month.

Colonel Murray has had a remarkable career as both a civilian and an officer in her 22 years with the Army National Guard.

She joined the Guard when she was 17. At one time she juggled full-time duties as a neonatal intensive care nurse, full-time studies at the University of Detroit Law School, and her obligations to the military.

She is married to a fellow officer—LTC Martin Murray with the Michigan Army National Guard's State Area Command—and now outranks him.

But that is not a problem for this couple.

"My husband and I are truly in this as a team," Colonel Murray said recently. "Sometimes one has to step back for the other. He knows I wouldn't be here without him."

The Murray's have two children, and both hold demanding full-time careers. She works as a lawyer for the St. Joseph Health System, and he is an operations director of a 23-physician medical practice.

Our Nation is grateful to have such fine men and women willing to serve, and I am proud this couple hails from my home State.

Women have come a long way since 1778, when Mary Ludwig Hays—also known as Molly Pitcher—manned a cannon at the Battle of Monmouth in place of her wounded husband.

For her bravery, General George Washington made her a noncommissioned officer, and for the rest of her days she was known as Sergeant Molly.

Now, when the armed services are called to duty, almost 200,000 women from all branches of the armed services stand ready to defend their Nation—women like Colonel Murray.

I salute their bravery and their sense of duty as I do all who choose to wear our Nation's uniform with pride.●

HONORING LIEUTENANT COLONEL ERIN M. MCCARTER

● Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the career of LTC Erin M. McCarter. She has served her country in the Air Force for more than 20 years and will be retiring in June.

Colonel McCarter grew up in Moline, IL, and was commissioned as an officer in the Air Force after earning a bachelor's degree from the University of Iowa in 1982. She has served in various logistics assignments during her time in the Air Force. She was the officer accountable for nuclear munitions at Ellsworth AFB, SD; she served as wing supply and headquarters staff officer at Spangdahlem and Ramstein Air Bases in Germany and Shaw AFB, SC. In addition, she served as Chief of the Pacific Air Force's weapon system support at Hickam AFB, HI. From 1996–1997, Colonel McCarter commanded the 8th Supply Squadron at Kunsan Air Base, Republic of South Korea. She also served as Congressional Liaison to Capitol Hill. Colonel McCarter assumed her duties managing foreign military sales to the Royal Saudi Air Force in September 1999.

Colonel McCarter plans to return to her home State of Illinois upon her retirement. I know my fellow Senators will join me in thanking LTC Erin McCarter for her distinguished service to her country and wish her well in her future endeavors.●

IN APPRECIATION OF SISTER AUGUSTA JOHNSON

● Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I rise today to express my appreciation for Sister Augusta Johnson's many years of dedicated service to the Benedictine Sisters of the Mother of God Monastery in Watertown, SD. Sister Johnson has recently announced she will be retiring after 30 years in a leadership position at Prairie Lakes Healthcare System.

Sister Johnson currently serves as vice president of administrative services but began her career as the office manager at St. Ann's Hospital before it became Prairie Lakes Hospital. During her notable career, she has also served as the controller and chief financial officer of St. Ann's. When the organization was merged with Memorial Medical Center to form Prairie Lakes Healthcare System in 1986, Sister Johnson was named interim administrator. During this time, she was responsible for bringing a home-based health care program called Home Connections to Prairie Lakes. Prior to her entrance into the health care industry, Sister Johnson spent time as an elementary school teacher and principal in five South Dakota communities.

As vice president of administrative services for Prairie Lakes, Sister Johnson serves as the administrator for Prairie Lakes Care Center, the vice president overseeing the Lab, Radiology and Environmental Services Departments, and Prairie Lakes Cancer Center. Over her career with Prairie Lakes, she has been the organization's representative for four major construction projects, including the current $11 Million dollar Prairie Lakes Medical Office Building and hospital expansion plan.

After receiving her bachelor's degree in education from Mount Marty College in Yankton, SD, Sister Johnson obtained a master's degree in administration from Northern State University in Aberdeen, SD. She went on to earn a certificate in hospital administration from St. Louis University before returning to South Dakota.

In addition to her countless obligations to Prairie Lakes Hospital, Sister Johnson is one of South Dakota's two delegates to the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging and has served on that organization's board of directors. In addition, she is a member of Sioux Valley's long-term care finance task force and serves on the South Dakota Association of Healthcare Organizations Long Term Care Council.

I commend Sister Johnson for her selfless commitment to the service of others and thank her for all of the work she has done for her community, her State, and her Nation. Her efforts have truly made a difference in countless numbers of lives of people she has never even met. I extend my very best wishes to her upon her retirement and predict that she will find peace and fulfillment in whatever lies ahead.●

HONORING MISS KACEY REYNOLDS

● Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I have the privilege and honor of rising today to recognize Miss Kacey Reynolds of Calvert City, KY. Kacey was selected as first place district winner of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States and the Ladies Auxiliary's Voice of Democracy National Essay Competition Program.

Kacey's essay submission detailing her commitment and responsibility to America caught the eye of the VFW and Ladies Auxiliary. Along with a college scholarship, the national scholarship recipients were rewarded with a trip to Washington, DC.

Currently participating in Paducah Christian Homeschool, Kacey was recognized earlier this year as a Focus on the Family 2003 Brio Girl of the Year finalist and is a member of the National Honor Society. Outside of academics, she is an active teen who enjoys acting, rappelling, scrapbooking, and horseback riding. She hopes to study music and business management when she attends college.

I am pleased that Kacey takes such pride in her community and Nation. She recognizes the sacrifices made by others in order to secure her freedom. Respect and appreciation, as shown by Kacey, can sometimes get pushed to the side during the daily routines of life. I am pleased this young lady has taken time to reflect on the meaning of freedom and the price of it. Please join me in congratulating Miss Kacey Reynolds and wishing her the best of luck.●

IN RECOGNITION OF THE 25TH AN- NIVERSARY OF THE ST. THOMAS ORTHODOX CHURCH OF INDIA

● Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I would like to recognize the anniversary of the St. Thomas Orthodox Church of India for 25 years of dedication and service to my home State of Michigan and specifically the Southfield and metropolitan Detroit communities.

St. Thomas Orthodox Church was the first Indian church established in Southfield, MI. In addition to being a source of spiritual guidance, the church also celebrates and preserves Indian culture and heritage in the
