The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FOSSELLA). Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 3873.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this measure, which represents months of hard work and commitment to bipartisan cooperation. In that spirit, we have before us a bill that will extend the life of the Federal child nutrition programs while strengthening program integrity, ensuring effective use of Federal resources, and providing continued nutrition services for millions of American children.

First and foremost, I would like to thank the author of this bill and those who have worked closely with him to reach our shared goal of strengthening Federal child nutrition programs. The chairman and ranking member of the Subcommittee on Education Reform, the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY), deserve a great deal of credit for their hard work and cooperation that have brought this bill before us today. I would also like to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER), the ranking member of the committee, for his continued commitment to a bipartisan, cooperative process.

The Federal child nutrition programs ensure millions of needy children have access to healthy and nutritious meals. The investment in these programs is considerable, and so is our obligation to ensure our Federal resources are being used effectively and efficiently. Children and families depend on the Federal child nutrition programs, and they depend on us to ensure that these programs are being administered with integrity.

The Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act reauthorizes the National School Lunch and Breakfast programs, Child and Adult Care Food program, After-School Snack program, the Summer Food Service program, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children. Taken together, the reforms in this bill will help ensure we are making the most of Federal child nutrition resources, while being mindful of program quality and integrity.

The bill before us strikes, I think, an important balance between our desire to promote healthy nutritional choices and physical activity among children, and the need to preserve local control for schools, communities, and States. The gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), the author of this bill, has been a leader in our efforts to reduce the epidemic of child obesity by promoting a comprehensive approach that includes nutrition education and physical activity. In particular, the establishment of local wellness policies, written at the local level to reflect local needs, marks significant progress that will promote nutrition education and increase physical activity in schools while maintaining local control.

To improve program integrity within the Federal child nutrition programs and ensure access for eligible children, the legislation makes a number of positive reforms. The bill allows children whose parents are in the Armed Forces and living in privatized military housing to continue to receive free or reduced-price meals in school if they meet the eligibility requirements. It also helps the parents by allowing them to submit a single application for multiple children and ensures enrollment of eligible children through the use of direct certification of school lunch eligibility for those children in families receiving food stamps.

Importantly, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act also takes steps to reduce paperwork by allowing school lunch certifications to be valid for one full year, preventing situations in which schools are forced to repeatedly certify children within a single school year. The bill also includes a provision originally proposed by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. KELLER) to help reduce the stigma amongst children receiving free and reduced-price lunches by helping schools make technological improvements such as automated meal card systems that keep students' financial status confidential. That, in fact, will also increase the efficiency of program operations.

These are just a few of the numerous reforms that will ensure eligible children and families access to services and Federal resources that are being effectively leveraged to serve children in need.

I would also like to recognize the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. UPTON) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) for their commitment to encouraging partnerships that allow fresh and local produce to go from farms to schools. In recognizing the success and popularity of the fruit and vegetable pilot program, which provides free fresh and dried fruits and fresh vegetables to children in 25 schools in each of four States and on one Indian reservation, I am pleased that the bill before us authorizes the continuation and expansion of this valuable program.

The act before us will prevent important nutritional programs from expiring, while ensuring that they continue to operate effectively and efficiently. I am pleased to support this measure and encourage my colleagues to join me in voting "yes" and ensuring the availability of nutritional services for millions of vulnerable children and their families.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER), the ranking member of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me such time as I may consume, as long as I do not go on and on.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the majority for working with us and for bringing this bill to the floor today. I want to thank the chairman, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), and the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), the chairman of the subcommittee, for their efforts, as well as the ranking member of the subcommittee, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY), for her participation and effort in arriving at this compromise, which I think is a very good bill on child nutrition. I also want to thank the American School Food Service Association for all of their years of effort to improve the quality of this program, to expand its coverage of this program, and for continuously looking after the nutritional state of our schoolchildren, especially since we now so clearly understand the link between nutrition and school performance among children.

Over 27 million schoolchildren take advantage of the school meals program every day. More than 2 million children receive meals during the summer, and the Child and Adult Care Food program provides over 1.5 million meals to children in child care programs. The Women, Infants and Children program provides information on healthy eating and nutritious foods for nearly 7.5 million poor women and their children. Clearly, families still struggle to provide their children with healthy meals, and the need for quality nutrition continues to exist in this country.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3873 acknowledges these needs, and it contains significant program improvements to allow more and more low-income children to access these programs in schools, after-school programs, child care centers, and through the Women, Infants and Children program. These policies reflect common sense in these programs. If a child is deemed to be eligible for both the Federal assistance programs, they should be eligible for free and reduced-price meals. The bill removes barriers for migrant children and homeless and runaway youth by making them automatically eligible for school meal programs. It continues a provision to allow children in low-income and military families to participate in these programs.

While many of us would have liked to go further to eliminate the reduced-price category of meals so that more children could eat for free, this bill makes headway in assuring that children who are eligible for these programs are, in fact, receiving the meals. These program improvements are laudable, and I support the bill for all of these reasons.

I am, however, disappointed that at a time when the trends in childhood obesity rates reveal a disturbing health crisis, we did not take the opportunity presented to us to improve the quality of foods available to children in the school meals program.

Obesity rates have doubled for children and tripled for adolescents in just for over the last two decades. More children are experiencing adults' health problems such as high blood cholesterol, high blood pressure, Type II diabetes, all of which is contributed to the threefold increase in annual hospital costs for obesity-related diseases in children over the past 20 years. This Nation can no longer ignore the cost of this problem to our children and to the health care system in this country.

We can all agree that there are no simple solutions to the issue of childhood obesity. The local wellness policy that will now be required of schools is a good start, as is a new emphasis on physical activity. However, this is not an adequate response to the health problems facing millions of children and youth.

The Federal Government can and should address the nutritional quality of food available in schools. Without Federal guidelines on this issue, the overall quality of the school meal programs is significantly undermined and children will continue to be surrounded by unhealthy food choices in schools. I will continue to press for action on this area, and I hope that the chairman will join me, as will the members of the committee.

This is a significant reauthorization. It is a substantial improvement in the existing programs and I urge all of my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), the author of the bill and the chairman of the Subcommittee on Education Reform.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

The bill before us today represents several months of hard work, cooperation and dedication to strengthening nutritional services for vulnerable children. I am pleased to have this bill before us and to have the support of so many members of committee, including the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) and gentlewoman of California (Ms. WOOLSEY) and obviously the great help of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER) and all the work that he did.

The fact that this is on a 40-minute calendar situation does not show the kind of work that went into getting it ready for the floor here today. I thank all those people.

The Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act makes a number of positive reforms focusing on reaching three main goals: ensuring eligible children have access to services, promoting comprehensive solutions to the health and nutrition of children, and strengthening program integrity to ensure Federal resources are being effectively leveraged to serve children who qualify.

The bill reauthorizes the National School Lunch and Breakfast programs, Child and Adult Care Food program, After-School Snack program, Summer Food Service program, and the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program For Women, Infants and Children, which we know as WIC, and I think it goes a long way in strengthening these programs on behalf of disadvantaged children and their families.

While the bill includes a variety of important reforms, there are a few I would like to mention specifically. With little money to work with, we were able to increase access to child nutrition programs for eligible children. For example, the bill extends participation for eligible children whose parents are in the Armed Forces and living in privatized military housing so these children may continue receiving free or reduced-price meals. This provision alone would benefit 250 children in my home State of Delaware and up to 100,000 children nationwide.

The Federal Government invests roughly $16 billion annually in child nutrition programs. Ensuring the effective use of these resources by enhancing program integrity has been a top priority for me during the reauthorization process to ensure that children who deserve these services are receiving them and those who do not are not. To this end, we have taken steps to reduce administrative error, improve accuracy, and enhance accountability for program administration.

Finally, I would like to highlight an issue of particular concern to me, childhood obesity. During visits to schools over the past several years, I have noticed a growing number of obese children. We all recognize the fact that obesity has reached epidemic proportions in our Nation. Defeating this crisis will require the work of many, including schools, parents, government, the health community, and industry.

The bill before us today also includes important steps to promote comprehensive solutions to child health and nutrition, including provisions to promote nutritional education and physical activity at the State and local level.

H.R. 3873 also asks that local educational agencies have a local wellness policy. The policy will include goals for nutrition education and physical activity and include nutrition guidelines for foods sold in schools. Developed in consultation with parents, students, school food service professionals, school boards and administrators, and the public, the wellness policies will serve as a catalyst for encouraging a larger dialogue on how to combat obesity.

The Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act is the result of cooperative efforts to strengthen nutritional services provided to needy children and families through the various child nutrition programs. I would like to thank my colleagues for their cooperation in bringing this bill forward, and I urge its passage.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3873, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act, which reauthorizes the Federal Child Nutrition programs. This is a bipartisan bill. It was unanimously reported out of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, and I thank the chairman of the full committee and the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), chairman of the Subcommittee on Education Reform, for working in good faith with the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) and myself in getting to this point.

But I want to say that we would not be here without the great staffs on both sides of the aisle. I thank the staffs so much.

While there is more that I would have liked to do in this reauthorization such as a full expansion of the free breakfast program for all kids, no matter their economic status, and tighter restrictions on the junk food that is sold in schools, the Child Nutrition and Improvement and Integrity Act does improve the Federal Child Nutrition programs in many important ways.

H.R. 3873 improves accuracy in school meals programs without dropping eligible children; makes it easier for eligible students to get free and reduced-price meals by making the application process easier; makes homeless and migrant youth and children, whose families receive food stamps, automatically eligible for free meals; allows youth up to age 18 to participate in meal programs if they are living in domestic violence or homeless shelters; increases start-up and expansion grants for school breakfast programs; and includes a study for the best ways to overcome common barriers to offering breakfast at schools; helps students make better food choices, and fight obesity with Team Nutrition which provides nutrition education to students and training and support to improve the nutrition of foods sold in school; requires school districts to develop a local "wellness policy" which addresses both what students eat at school and the role that physical activity plays in good health.

This bill creates greater opportunities for schools to include fresh and dried fruits and fresh vegetables in school meals, gets our very youngest children off to a healthy start with the new WIC Fruit and Vegetable pilot program that will study the benefits of including fruits and vegetables in the WIC food package.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act improves the nutritional well-being of low-income children by improving the Federal child nutrition programs. H.R. 3873 proves that child nutrition truly is bipartisan and it is a priority of this Congress. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CARTER).

(Mr. CARTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3873, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act, which includes language which I offered to stop infant formula theft.

Stolen infant formula is a major problem throughout the country, including Texas. In 2003, an international crime ring stole and sold as much as $2.5 million worth of baby formula a month in Texas. Testimony before the Congress revealed that some of the proceeds may go to terrorism. Undercover work also shows that this extends across the United States.

After being stolen, the formula is stored and sometimes repackaged with phony expiration dates and then it is sold to small convenience stores in the United States. The stolen formula is often resold to customers using vouchers from federally funded Women, Infants and Children programs. Undercover agents say WIC is unwittingly the number one fence for this operation in the country.

Section 409 of this legislation requires the State agencies to license and maintain a list of infant formula manufacturers, wholesalers, distributors and retailers approved to provide infant formula to the vendors. This section closes the loopholes that would allow crime rings to steal infant formula and resell this formula to the retailer, who often is unaware that the formula is stolen.

I want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), along with his staff, including Kate Howston and Stephanie Milburn for the important work they have done on this legislation.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE), who has very effectively added the irradiation part of this bill.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the chairman of the committee and subcommittee and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) and the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) for their incredibly hard work on this very important program.

Let me talk about the provision of the bill dealing with irradiated food in the National School Lunch program. Today, over 27 million low-income children throughout the Nation have come to rely on the National School Lunch program and also the breakfast program for a healthy and nutritious meal. In many cases, these programs provide the only source of information and nutrition that these children receive all day. So really it is very important that we provide healthy, nutritious meals to these students and information to their parents so that they know what they are eating.

Basically when it comes to irradiated food, food of course that is really bombarded with gamma rays or electrons, there is no requirement in law that schools must notify parents or students about what they are eating or even that irradiated food is being served in schools. So that is why I introduced the Right To Know School Nutrition Act, which was intended to do just that.

I want to thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) and the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) for making sure that the provisions of that bill are included in this bill.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. KELLER).

Mr. KELLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support H.R. 3873, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act. I support this legislation not only because it strengthens the current school lunch program, but more specifically, it included language in the bill that I introduced called the Pride in the Lunch Line Act, H.R. 3869. The Pride in the Lunch Line Act amends the National School Lunch Act to allow schools access to existing Federal funds to purchase technology. This technology would allow low-income children to go through the lunch line without being identified as recipients of the free or reduced-price lunch program.

I support this legislation because it addresses an issue many low-income children face every day as they go through the lunch line, and that is embarrassment, embarrassed that their parents cannot afford to pay for daily meals so they are singled out in the lunch line in front of their peers as participants in the free or reduced lunch program.

I have modeled my legislation after a program in one of my local school districts, Lake County, Florida, that uses technology to enable every child to go through the school lunch line without being identified as a free or reduced lunch recipient. Regardless of family income, every child has the exact same debit card which either their parents deposit money into or is funded by the program.

This legislation will expand existing Federal funds to allow more schools across the Nation to implement similar technology programs. It will reduce the stigma for students and reduce the paperwork for schools. For these reasons, I encourage my colleagues to vote "yes" on the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, how much time remains on both sides?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FOSSELLA). The gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) has 12 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE) has 8 minutes remaining.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN), a member of the committee.

Mr. RYAN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time.

Obesity will soon take over smoking as the number one cause of death in America; and in 2020, one of every five health care dollars will be spent fighting obesity. This is a good bill, but we can do much more.

We teach our kids in our schools to eat healthy, but then we have vending machines full of junk food all over the schools. And I think one of the issues we need to address is to give the Secretary of the Agriculture the ability to regulate food in the food service areas and outside.

If we tell our kids that they have to eat at a certain standard, a certain level in the food service area, we should also be able to regulate that outside. We feed our kids, basically, garbage.

□ 1315

We wonder why they misbehave in class and we wonder why they cannot sit still, and then we put them on Ritalin to get them back under control.

This is a fiscally responsible way to go about it. It will save us money in the long run. It will save our health care system money, and quite frankly, our kids deserve better. We cannot be sending them mixed signals saying, Eat well, but only during lunchtime, and after lunchtime they can drink as much Coke and eat as much junk food as they possibly want.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE).

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman BOEHNER), the gentleman from Delaware (Chairman CASTLE), the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER), the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) and, of course, their staffs.

I think this is a good bill. I am certainly in full support of it. It is a bipartisan bill and makes several needed changes to child nutrition. I would like to mention two of those that have particularly caught my attention.

Number one, it creates a grant program to educate students about wellness through a teen nutrition program. I guess it has been my experience that so few young people really understand what a balanced diet looks like, and so I think the educational component is very important.

Number two, it requires nutrition and physical education programs to be based on dietary and physical fitness guidelines issued by the Secretary of Health and Human Services. So we need some science-based standards because there are so many fad diets, fad exercises out there. Unless we have some uniform system, some uniform science-based standard, we are not going to do very well, and that bill does address that issue.

As has been mentioned over and over again, childhood obesity has doubled over the last 2 decades. This is due to two factors, one, poor nutrition, and number two, lack of exercise. The average child spends 6 hours a day watching television, playing with the computer or doing video games. So we see arteriosclerosis, we see diabetes occurring at earlier and earlier ages.

Obesity currently costs the United States $117 billion annually, and this figure is only going to continue to escalate, as has been pointed out previously, unless we curb childhood obesity. The best way to combat child obesity, the epidemic, is through education at an early age and promotion of physical activity. This bill takes steps to do that.

I certainly support it. I urge support of H.R. 3873.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, while I support the passage of H.R. 3873 today, I cannot support the budget that constrained, limited and ultimately stunted its final form.

In the Committee on Education and the Workforce, we were told that funding was not available to eliminate the reduced-price category to allow more low-income children to receive school meals, often their only meals, for free. We were also told that the budget resolution did not allow for any expansion of school breakfasts and other programs.

H.R. 3873 now comes before this House on a suspension calendar, perhaps to ensure that Members cannot offer amendments that might add additional costs to this bill. I had planned to offer an amendment that would have allowed schools to offer free breakfasts to students on the mornings they are scheduled to take a No Child Left Behind assessment.

The NEA, the Ohio PTA, the National Farm Organization, the National Family Farm Coalition, the Community Food Security Coalition and others supported this amendment. Millions of parents, teachers, students and school administrators would have also supported it, along with other positive changes, but all further improvements and expansions are blocked in this bill.

In contrast, later today we will debate a budget bill that allocates $10.2 billion, a 13 percent increase from last year, on a missile defense system that does not work, while this morning we restrict to $16 billion a nutrition bill we all know does work but could work even better.

There is money to improve and expand education and nutrition, but situations like this force us to recognize lost opportunities that come about from tax cuts for the wealthiest and from unaccountable defense spending.

I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 3873, but I also urge them to remember those left behind and left hungry by the administration's misguided agenda.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER).

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, today we are talking about a bill that requires schools to develop nutritional guidelines for all foods sold in schools. I support this bill, and I believe it is very important for schools to have specific nutritional guidelines in place so healthy food is served in our school cafeterias, but I also want to make sure that everyone realizes that nutritional guidelines are only one piece of the childhood obesity puzzle.

What we could overlook in this debate is that government-imposed guidelines can only do so much to prevent childhood obesity. If we really want to make a difference, we must focus on educating youth and their parents about the need to eat right and be physically active. Parents and their children must be acutely aware of the dangers of being overweight or obese.

We now know that being overweight can lead to diabetes, heart disease, stroke, hypertension, uterine cancer, breast cancer, kidney cancer, gall bladder cancer, pregnancy complications, psychological disorders, and that is not the entire list.

I say to parents and the Members today, do they know that people who are obese have a three times greater chance of dying in surgery due to complications? Did my colleagues know that obesity is costing this Nation almost as much as cigarette smoking? Did my colleagues know that over 40 million workdays are being lost each year to obesity?

Do I have all the answers to the problem? No, but I do know that educating our youth and their parents is the necessary first step. Education is knowledge and knowledge is empowerment.

This pamphlet, Healthy Habits for Healthy Kids, developed by experts from the American Dietetic Association is being passed out to 500,000 elementary age children in Texas, free of charge, in the coming weeks. It gives easy-to-understand hints and suggestions that help youth and their parents make better choices in their diets, like one appropriate serving of meat is about the size of a deck of cards and one appropriate serving of pasta or rice looks like a tennis ball. It also lays out a physical activity game plan that an entire plan can adhere to.

Efforts like these are going to make a dint in childhood obesity, one child and one parent at a time. As Members of Congress, we owe it to our constituents to educate them about the dangers of obesity.

School nutritional guidelines are only one piece of this puzzle. Americans have to make the right choices.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS), a very important member of the committee.

(Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my good friend for yielding me the time.

I want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER), the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) for their terrific leadership on this very important bill that helps a lot of children. I am honored to have had the chance to work with the committee on this bill and on four areas in particular that I think are a great step forward.

The first is children who are in WIC-eligible families that are eligible for the Women, Infants and Children Program. Some of these children were not enrolled in the school lunch program, even though they were legally entitled to, because the right forms were not filed. This bill gives States the option of automatically enrolling children who are in the WIC program in the school lunch program, which is an excellent idea.

The second thing we had the chance to work on was to make sure that children who attend for-profit schools and preschool centers will have a fair opportunity on a continuing basis to receive the benefits of this program. We think that every child, irrespective of the educational setting, ought to have that opportunity.

The third group of children that this helps are children in summer schools. We are learning through our research in education that many children benefit from year-round schooling, summer school in particular. This bill extends more school nutrition to more summer school students, and I was proud to help make that a reality.

Finally, there are a lot of children who for health or cultural or religious reasons prefer soy milk. The chairman deserves great credit for brokering a very good compromise on this issue, a very contentious issue, where under this bill if a parent sends a note to school with the child, expressing the desire that the child wishes to have soy milk, then the child gets it. That is a significant improvement over present law which requires a doctor's note, and I thank the chairman and the ranking member and the leaders of the subcommittee for making that very fine compromise a reality.

A lot of children will be helped by this bill. I am proud to support it. I congratulate its authors.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. THOMPSON).

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3873, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act.

I would like to compliment the chairman and ranking member of the committee. They have brought a good bill to this House, and I urge my colleagues to vote for it.

Among its many important provisions, this legislation will promote the consumption of milk in our Nation's schools. I, along with a few other colleagues, introduced H.R. 3250, a bipartisan bill to promote school milk. The Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act before us includes several provisions of H.R. 3250, and I appreciate the committee's efforts.

Under the child nutrition bill before us, milk will continue to be offered with every school meal. Schools will be able to offer a variety of fat levels. Schools will also be encouraged to offer a variety of flavors, as well as lactose-free milk for children who may be lactose intolerant, and regardless of any so-called exclusive sales contracts, schools will be able to sell milk anytime, anywhere on school property or at school events.

This bill is a fair, reasonable compromise on substitutes for milk. Schools will be able to offer substitute beverages at their option where a child has a medical or a special dietary need. Parents will be able to certify their special dietary need. They will not have to obtain a physician's statement.

Mr. Speaker, child nutrition programs are vital to all Americans. Our schools, our WIC clinics need the support of everyone in Congress. This bill renews and strengthens nutrition assistance and education and should pass unanimously. Please vote for this bill.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Again, I thank the staff for a bipartisan bill that was unanimously reported out of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

I also thank ASFSA, FRAC, NEA, AFT, the Hispanic Education Coalition, the Food Policy Working Group, the National Association of State WIC Directors, who all played a major role. And to name the staff, Kate Houston, Stephanie Milburn, Krisann Pearce, Julian Baer and Sara Rittling on our side of the aisle; Lynda Theil, Denise Forte and Joe Novotny, on the other side of the aisle. They worked really hard to represent us well, and I thank them so very much.

There is something missing in this bill. We all know that if a child enters the classroom having had a nourishing breakfast, that child learns better, has better attendance and better discipline and tests better. But we have not ensured in this bill that every child will enter the classroom having had a nutritious breakfast. We have expanded the breakfast program by making it easier for those who are eligible or who want to participate in the program, making it easier for them to do that.

But, Mr. Speaker, some day this country's going to have to step up to the plate, understand children are 25 percent of our population. They are 100 percent of the future of this country, and unless they learn to the best of their ability, we are not going to have the country we want in the future.

So, in the future, and my colleagues can count on me, I am going to continue to talk about a universal school breakfast program for every single child in this Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back my time.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of our time.

As we have seen during the debate today, this has been a very cooperative process, very bipartisan process, both sides of the aisle coming together to do what we can do to improve the nutrition services and nutrition programs that the Federal Government operates for millions of American children.

There is a lot more that a lot of people would want to do in the bill that we have before us, many things, unfortunately, that we cannot afford under the current budget to do, but I think it has been demonstrated that there is broad bipartisan support for this bill, and I would encourage Members to not let the perfect become the enemy of the good.

We have a good, sound bill before us that will, in fact, ensure that millions of needy children are served either through the school lunch program, the WIC program or the breakfast program. For many of these children, it may be the only meal that they get all day.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask Members to support the bill. I also thank all of the staff, including Kate Houston on my staff, Stephanie Milburn, Krisann Pearce, Cindy Herrle, Julian Baer, Tyson Redpath who works in my personal office, and Sarah Rittling who works with the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), and all of our staff, Denise and others on the Democrat side for all of their hard work because they went through months and months of discussions and negotiations.

I also thank all of the groups, the outside groups from the food service administrators to all of those involved in helping us forge this bipartisan agreement. This was not a very easy bill, but it did become easy because there was good cooperation between both sides of the aisle, good understanding of the issues of what we could and could not do. And in the end, bipartisanship does work when Members put their minds together and try to come up with a product that is in the best interest of American children. I would encourage Members to vote for the bill.

Mr. RENZI. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman JOHN BOEHNER of the Education and Workforce Committee for his leadership in the effort to reauthorize and improve Federal nutrition programs. Since our Nation's youth are facing increased problems of obesity, high cholesterol, diabetes, and malnutrition, these programs are vital. H.R. 3783, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act, includes provisions to promote healthy choices among children, strengthen nutrition service programs, and ensure eligible children have access to services.

Of particular interest to my State of Arizona are the important provisions that will increase the availability of fruits and vegetables in Federal child nutrition programs. Most notably, section 307 expands the Fruit and Vegetable Pilot Program to additional States and Native American reservations. I strongly favor efforts to expand this program. In just a short span of time, the results of the original pilot program appear overwhelmingly positive, as reports from the original participating schools indicate increased consumption and demand for healthy fruits and vegetables.

I urge Secretary of Agriculture Ann M. Veneman to strongly consider expanding the Fruit and Vegetable Pilot Program to Arizona and its Native American reservations.

Arizona, and Indian reservations within the State, are perfect candidates for the program's expansion for a number of reasons. Arizona has great diversity in its student profile, both in race and national origin, that span from the rural areas to its inner city sections, to its Native American reservations. Having the State of Arizona as a participant would enable the United States Department of Agriculture to better determine how such a program would perform on a national basis.

Also, the need for fresh fruits and vegetables, and better overall nutrition, is especially acute in rural areas of Arizona, including Native American reservations. In general, these areas suffer from an aging transportation system, making it difficult and costly for distributors to deliver fruits and vegetables. If these items are available, they are often too expensive for many low income residents.

I have seen how a lack of proper nutrition impacts children in these areas, most notably on tribal lands. It is not uncommon for children in these areas to suffer from dysentery and other illnesses either complicated or caused by poor diets.

In addition, including Arizona and Native American reservations as participants would be money well spent. I have met with child nutrition advocates from Arizona and they are dedicated to providing school age children nutritious meals and are enthusiastic about the possibility of participating in this most important program. I will work to foster cooperation among school administrators, food service directors, and private sector participants to ensure that this program would be administered efficiently.

Arizona and its tribal lands are also prime candidates because the State boasts a thriving produce industry that specializes in a wide range of specialty crops. Because of strong agricultural industry within the state, Arizona schools will be able to secure private/public partnerships with the produce industry. This is a key factor in that section 307 of H.R. 3873 requires participating schools to secure at least 15 percent of operation funding from private industry, either through in-kind donations or monies. Arizona growers and farmers are willing participants and economically viable partners who are eager to form a partnership with Arizona's schools to provide the benefits of healthy fruits and vegetables to school age children.

Again, I thank you, as well as the bill's sponsor, Representative CASTLE, for your efforts in writing this legislation and promoting expansion of the Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Pilot Program. I hope that Arizona and its Native American reservations will be selected by the USDA as a participant under this most important program.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 3873, the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act. As a member of the Education and the Workforce Committee, I am pleased with the process in which this bill moved through the Committee; it is a critical bill that will greatly benefit our nation's children as well as family farmers.

Specifically, I am pleased that several provisions were included in the base bill, which I coauthored in previous legislation, H.R. 3250, the Child Nutrition Improvement Act of 2003, with Representatives BENNIE THOMPSON, GIL GUTKNECHT, and TOM PETRI, that will combat the increasing problem of child obesity through increased child milk consumption by preventing commercial beverage companies from pressuring schools to remove milk vending machines.

With 90 percent of teenage girls and 70 percent of teenage boys currently not getting enough calcium, it is imperative to provide increased availability of milk products in schools. This provision is necessary in light of recent stories about school districts being pressured to remove milk vending machines at a time when kids need milk more than ever. This amendment will ensure milk vending has a chance and that machines are not ripped out of schools; yet at the same time it does not force soda companies to sell milk. Wise choices can only be made when choice is provided and real milk vending is a logical part of a healthy school environment.

Another provision included in the base bill, from H.R. 3250, will improve child nutrition by making it easier for schools to offer milk in a variety of flavors and fat contents to better meet students' varying tastes and needs, thereby increasing milk consumption by children. It is important to maintain milk's unique role in the reimbursable school milk programs. Since 1946, schools have offered milk with each school meal. The natural calcium found in milk plays a vital role in minimizing the risk of students developing calcium deficiency—which is already a serious problem, especially for our teenage girls, as I mentioned earlier.

During Committee consideration, I also offered an amendment that would have augmented the reimbursement rate for school meals in schools implementing a plan to increase milk consumption. Under this amendment schools would have been allowed to use various measures to enhance milk products sold in schools. The National Dairy Council and the American School Food Service Association conducted a school milk pilot test to specifically measure the impact of an enhanced milk product on milk consumption and student attitudes towards milk in schools.

The milk enhancements included: Plastic packaging and various sizes; a third flavor; improved storage and refrigeration; and better milk product merchandising.

The results of this pilot were significant in that they showed milk sales increased 18 percent in all participating schools and milk consumption increased 28 percent in elementary schools. I withdrew this amendment, however, with the Chairman's agreement to continue working on it between now and conference. I hope we will be able to work out a compromise and include it in reauthorization.

Numerous studies have proven how important milk is in young people's diets. A study published in 2002 in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association showed that teens who drink flavored milk drink fewer soft drinks and juice drinks, and have an overall better nutritional profile. Another study released recently found that children with the lowest intakes of dairy products gained much more body fat over an 8-year period and that a diet low in calcium may increase the levels of certain circulating hormones that in turn promote the storage of energy in fat cells.

Additionally, H.R. 3873 includes legislation that I sponsored with Representative UPTON, H.R. 2626, the Farm-to-Cafeteria Projects Act of 2003. This provision focuses on connecting local agriculture to schools in every State, through a competitive, one-time matching grant directly to local communities. This allows each locality to design a farm-to-cafeteria project tailored to specific farm and school community needs. Experience has shown that kids' food choices can be improved by connecting farms to the lunchroom. This program directly benefits the food and health needs of our Nation's children. At the same time, the program will help family farms, and provide markets and community support for agriculture.

A final amendment I offered in Committee authorized a 3-year pilot project in elementary schools that links the school breakfast program with morning educational activities, similar to those authorized in the 21st Century Community Learning Centers. The goal is to increase participation by removing the stigma that accompanies the current school breakfast program. If the school breakfast program is perceived as an enrichment program that will benefit all students, it is suggested that more students will participate.

Mr. Speaker, again, I am pleased to support this bill on the floor today and I look forward to continuing to working on it as we move towards conference. Our goal in the 21st century should be to ensure that every child receives proper nutrition needed to succeed in school. It is a simple fact: good nutrition is an educational tool that improves children's performances in school.

Mr. CARDOZA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today as Congress considers the H.R. 3873 Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act to continue to advocate for achieving greater nutritional benefits for the children and needy of the United States.

However, first I must commend the Committee on Education and the Workforce for making important structural improvements in federal child nutrition programs in the bill we are considering on the floor today. H.R. 3873 will eliminate barriers to participation for low-income children and families in Federal feeding programs and will ensure greater access to critical nutrition programs. This bill also provides for an important pilot program to be implemented within the Women, Infant, and Children's (WIC) program to allow participants greater access to nutritionally valuable fruits and vegetables.

Unfortunately, I believe that the Committee has missed an important opportunity to address a national health epidemic facing our nation's children: the dramatic rise in childhood obesity. Obesity has recently become the leading cause of death among Americans. Furthermore, commitment to a healthy lifestyle begins at a young age and particularly among disadvantaged Americans. School feeding and other nutrition programs, often provide the only opportunities for the consumption of healthy foods. Quite simply, our Federal feeding programs have failed to keep pace with modern nutritional standards and have not provided full access to healthy choices critical to combating chronic diseases and obesity.

The are many bills currently pending before Congress, including one authored by myself and my colleague Representative ADAM PUTNAM from Florida, which mandates the use of scientifically proven nutritional guidelines such as the 5-A-Day program in school breakfast and lunch programs. As only 15 percent of elementary school students are currently consuming the required 5 servings a day of fruits and vegetables, stronger language in H.R. 3873 could have ensured that the foods available to children are nutritious, healthy and provide children with choices necessary to achieve a healthy lifestyle.

Additionally I believe that all WIC participants, not just those participating in the pilot program outlined in H.R. 3873, should have complete access to fruits and vegetables. It is unfortunate that since its inception almost 30 years ago, the WIC program has changed little in its dietary science. Consuming nutritionally rich foods has been proven time and again to combat disease and obesity we should be encouraging not discouraging WIC mothers to purchase these items for their families.

Again, I commend the legislation under consideration today for reducing barriers to accessing Federal nutrition programs, but I also strongly urge my Colleagues and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to remain vigilant in the challenge we face in providing America's children and needy individuals healthy nutritional choices.

Mr. GRIJALVA. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Mr. BOEHNER, Mr. CASTLE, Mr. MILLER, and Ms. WOOLSEY for working on this reauthorization in a bipartisan fashion. I am very pleased to see a number of provisions in this bill that will help the Hispanic community, and specifically the migrant and seasonal farm working community to access the services they are entitled to.

The average farm worker earns just $7,500 a year—leaving most of their families well below poverty level. The hardships that the children in these families face are only amplified by their migratory lifestyle. Their parents, who are poor, uneducated, and often with limited literacy in their native language, face many barriers in helping their children apply for services every time they move. These are the families that put food on our tables and these barriers are leaving their own children hungry. It is our responsibility to help them overcome these barriers because all children suffering from poverty deserve a nutritious lunch through this program.

This bill includes a number of provisions that will help these eligible children gain access to free or reduced price lunches. It requires that materials sent to the parents be in an understandable and uniform format, and to the extent practicable, in a language that the parents can understand. By dismantling literacy and language barriers many more eligible families will be able to access information and be empowered to better make sound choices regarding healthful diet and lifestyle.

Significant improvements have been made to the certification and verification process. Children will now be certified for one full year—helping migrant children in maintaining access through the school year, wherever they are. It will extend automatic eligibility to children who qualify for migrant educational services under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. It allows for the direct certification of such children if they are identified by the district's migrant education coordinator. Schools will have the option to verify income data through Medicaid and the Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations, FDIPIR, in addition to TNF and Food Stamps. Schools will have the option of substituting applications under criteria established by the Secretary when they have independent knowledge that the household selected for verification is eligible, and they know that certain barriers will prevent them from responding.

In addition to improvements to the certification and verification process, the bill encourages schools to consider the needs of ethnic minorities, who are at higher risk for obesity and diabetes, in the development of their nutrition education programs.

These program improvements are significant, and as indicated in the bill title, they will certainly improve the program as well as increase the program's integrity. I recently decided to become a cosponsor of this bill, and I urge my colleagues to support its passage.

Again, I would like to thank the leaders of the Committee on Education and the Workforce for considering these provisions a priority and for moving forward in a cooperative and bipartisan fashion during this reauthorization. Additionally, I would like to thank Mr. EHLERS for his commitment to migrant children during this reauthorization. I would also like to thank the staff on both sides of the aisle for their persistence and dedication to working cooperatively during this reauthorization. I urge my colleagues to support this reauthorization bill.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this Child Nutrition Act and I ask permission to revise and extend my remarks. This bill is a step in the right direction of important reforms in federal child nutrition programs. I would like to thank Chairman BOEHNER, MR. CASTLE and Ranking Member Mr. MILLER and Ms. WOOLSEY for their hard work on the bill. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank the Chairman for taking my amendment eliminating the cost-accounting requirement for severe need breakfast programs in the manager amendment in the committee markup.

This paperwork problem was brought to my attention by the director of the New Jersey Child Nutrition Programs, Kathy Kuser. Many States, including New Jersey as well as Wisconsin and Illinois, are making significant efforts to improve their school breakfast participation rate, and reducing the paperwork requirements would help these efforts.

Under current law, schools in which at least 40 percent of the lunches served during the second preceding school year were free or reduced price qualify for severe need breakfast assistance. They have to calculate their costs per breakfast by prorating their labor costs, and figuring out their food, supplies and other costs associated with the school breakfast program. They have to save their receipts and calculations and submit them in order to get the severe need reimbursement. Removing the cost-accounting requirement would be a significant paperwork reduction for the schools without significantly increasing cost for the government.

I also want to commend the committee for including direct certification for children from food stamp households for free school meals. Many schools are not aware of this method to determine eligibility for free meals. Direct certification improves access to eligible children for free school lunch meals and improves program integrity according to a study done by Mathematica.

I am also pleased to see the bill authorizes grants for "farm-to-cafeteria" projects that include nutrition education activities that incorporate the participation of school children in farm and agricultural education projects and that procure local foods from small- and medium-sized farms for school meals.

Finally, the expansion of eligibility for Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP) for children in shelters from age 13 to 18 who live in domestic violence shelters and homeless shelters is a wonderful improvement to the previous child nutrition legislation. My constituents who participate in Mercer Street Friends, Anchor House, Triad House, Family Preservation Center (Homefront) and the Family Preservation House would benefit from this change to CACFP eligibility. These organizations depend on food donations to feed their clients who are nutritionally at risk and should be eligible for this important nutrition support program.

I do want to point out two provisions of the bill I wish had been improved. While there are federal dietary guidelines for meals served that are reimbursed through the Federal meals program, Federal nutrition standards for foods that are not offered through the Federal meals program are lacking. As a result, children are faced with numerous food choices during the school day with little nutritional value. Our colleague, Representative TIM RYAN (D-OH) offered an amendment in Committee that would have resulted in enormous improvements in the school nutrition environment for children for foods sold on campus.

We also should have eliminated the reduced price school meals category. Such action would make the school meal programs more accessible to low-income families; better prepare students to learn; and make the programs easier to administer.

Mr. Speaker, once again I want to thank my colleagues and their staffs for their hard work and I ask my colleague to support this bill that will eliminate barriers to participation for low-income children and families and ensure greater access to these critical nutrition programs.

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 3873. I thank Chairman BOEHNER and Mr. CASTLE for their work on this legislation. I particularly thank them for their willingness to include direct certification of migrant children under the Richard B. Russell National School Lunch Act. I also commend Mr. HINOJOSA and Mr. GRIJALVA for their persistent efforts to assist migrant children.

Migrant families are among the poorest of the working poor, and are largely eligible for the child nutrition programs. Unfortunately, the mobility of migrant children often complicates their access to the child nutrition programs. Migrant families face significant barriers in accessing federal, state, and local resources due to issues associated with mobility, language and literacy. Currently, migrant children are forced to reapply each time they enroll in a new school district. In addition, literacy and language are a problem at the application phase of the child nutrition program.

I am pleased that this legislation provides direct certification for migrant children. This legislation works to protect eligible children's access to the child nutrition programs by extending automatic eligibility to children who qualify for migrant educational services under Title 1, part C of the No Child Left Behind Act. It allows for direct certification of migrant children if they are identified by the district's migrant education coordinator. Such a change makes it easier for migrant children to receive school meals as soon as they enter a new school.

In addition to migrant provisions, I support promoting nutritional education and physical activity. I am very pleased that this legislation promotes such education and physical activity at the state and local levels to prevent childhood obesity. I am hopeful that local school wellness policies will be established by schools participating in the school nutrition programs will promote health and prevent childhood obesity throughout schools in Michigan.

Finally, I support strengthening partnerships between local agriculture and schools. I co-sponsored Representative UPTON and Representative KIND's Farm-To-Cafeteria Projects Act, and I am pleased to see these provisions included. This legislation will promote partnerships between local Michigan farms and the child nutrition programs to ensure that children receive fresh and local produce.

In closing, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act. I would like to commend the committee and subcommittee chairs, Mr. BOEHNER and Mr. CASTLE and our ranking members, Mr. MILLER and Ms. WOOLSEY, for bringing this bipartisan bill forward. It is a bill that strengthens the child nutrition programs for our most vulnerable families.

Measures to allow for the direct certification of migrant students and the direct verification of eligibility will protect our most at risk students from being dropped from the program, not for lack of eligibility but for lack of understanding or fear. The provisions to ensure that school lunch information—throughout the entire process—is in a language and form that the parents can understand will go a long way to building understanding and trust. These are significant improvements to the program.

Additionally, the bill strengthens nutrition education. Childhood obesity and diabetes are reaching epidemic proportions in South Texas and across the nation. We must do more to help young people develop healthy lifestyles. This legislation is a step in the right direction.

In conclusion, I would like to concur with my colleagues that we should make a commitment to replace the reduced lunch program with free lunches for all low-income children.

America is the wealthiest nation in the world. We can afford to feed our children. This investment is the right thing to do.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be here today to talk about the Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act, as passed by the Committee on Education and the Workforce. Periodically in Congress, we are able to see true bipartisan legislation that addressed the needs of our constituents. While it is disappointing that we were not able to amend the bill to more fully support the school breakfast program, I am pleased that its overall intent to help children and families is apparent and effective.

The Child Nutrition Improvement and Integrity Act streamlines the application and verification process. It allows schools to certify children for participation for one full school year. It also eliminates individual applications and allows a household to use one application, rather than one for each child. Children in families who are recipients of Food Stamps and migrant children will be directly certified for eligibility in the school meals programs.

This bill also addresses the growing issue of childhood obesity. Childhood obesity rates have tripled over the past twenty years resulting in children suffering from early onset of traditionally adult diseases such as hypertension, diabetes, and heart disease. Meal programs offered in schools, childcare settings, after-school and summer programs, and through WIC offer an ideal way to address these child health issues head-on.

This bill includes "Nutrition Quality Promotion." It requires Local Education Authorities to establish a school nutrition policy by July 31, 2006 that provides nutrition guidelines for all foods sold on campus. It must include goals for nutrition education, physical activity and other school based efforts to promote student wellness.

This bill provides grants to states and schools to develop and implement a coordinated nutrition education and physical fitness program, as well as to improve nutritional quality and school nutritional environment.

As Chair of the Congressional Children's Caucus, I know how important it is to invest in our children. I have met with Houston representatives from the American School Food Service Association, all of who stress the importance and value of well fed, healthy children and the positive effects it has in the classroom. Unfortunately, there are children in America who go hungry during the school day as well as children with illnesses caused by poor nutrition. Healthy children are an investment in the future of our country's economic well being. I am pleased to support this legislation, and encourage all my colleagues to do so.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MILLER of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BOEHNER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3873, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

CELEBRATING 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF INTERNATIONAL GEOPHYSICAL YEAR (IGY) AND SUPPORTING AN INTERNATIONAL GEOPHYSICAL YEAR-2 (IGY-2) IN 2007-08

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 189) celebrating the 50th anniversary of the International Geophysical Year (IGY) and supporting an International Geophysical Year-2 (IGY-2) in 2007-08, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. CON. RES. 189

Whereas the year 2007 is the 50th anniversary of the IGY of 1957-58;

Whereas the IGY, conceived in and promoted by the United States, was the largest cooperative international scientific endeavor undertaken to that date, involving more than 60,000 scientists from 66 nations;

Whereas the IGY legacy includes the dedication of an entire continent to cooperative scientific study through the Antarctica Treaty and the inauguration of the global space age through the launching of Sputnik and Vanguard;

Whereas IGY cooperation continues as the model and inspiration for contemporary world science and also, in this strife-torn era, for the human species as a whole;

Whereas the IGY was conceived as a follow-on to the International Polar Year of 1932 that would reflect new and more globally comprehensive research and measurement techniques in geophysics; and whereas in like-minded spirit it would be appropriate for an IGY-2 to reflect global developments in biology, genetics, the neurosciences, and other areas of scientific research;

Whereas it also would be appropriate for an IGY-2 to recognize interdisciplinary research that incorporates the physical and social sciences and the humanities in enriching understanding of diverse life on Earth;

Whereas the 35th anniversary of the IGY was commemorated by the International Space Year, a globally implemented congressional initiative conceived by the late Senator Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, that was highlighted by globally coordinated environmental monitoring and research whose ongoing legacy continues to benefit humanity; and

Whereas it is entirely fitting that Congress takes the lead again, in the same spirit, in promoting global cooperation through worldwide commemoration of the IGY with activities reflecting the unity and diversity of life on Earth: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring),

That it is the sense of Congress that the President should—

(1) endorse the concept of a worldwide IGY-2 for the 2007-2008 timeframe;

(2) direct the Director of the National Science Foundation and the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, in association with the National Academy of Sciences and other relevant governmental and nongovernmental organizations, to initiate interagency and international inquiries and discussions that explore the opportunities for a worldwide IGY-2 in the 2007-2008 timeframe, emphasizing activities dedicated to global environmental research, education, and protection; and

(3) submit to Congress at the earliest practical date, but no later than 6 months after the date of adoption of this resolution, a report detailing the steps taken in carrying out paragraphs (1) and (2), including descriptions of possible activities and organizational structures for an IGY-2 in 2007-2008.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BONNER) and the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. UDALL) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BONNER).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material on H. Con. Res. 189, the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, today we are considering H. Con. Res. 189 which recognizes the 50th anniversary of the International Geophysical Year (IGY). I thank the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. UDALL) as well as the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS) for leading Congress in the celebration of this important anniversary and milestone.

The IGY, spanning 1957 through 1958, was an internationally coordinated effort to observe and collect data about Earth science. More than 60,000 scientists from 67 countries participated in IGY. Their efforts had a far-reaching effect on a variety of scientific disciplines. IGY scientists paid particular attention to Antarctica, representing the first and only time an entire con-continent was set aside for cooperative research. That designation continues to this day and was formalized with the Antarctic Treaty in 1959, which currently has 45 signatory countries.

Also, research to develop rockets and satellites for IGY, atmospheric studies laid the technical foundations for the U.S. space program. Modern-day weather and natural-disaster forecasting, including El Niño forecasting and volcanic eruption predictions, are a direct result of IGY research.

Yet many questions remain about the complex interactions of the ocean, land and atmosphere; and today there are more advanced tools scientists can use as they search for answers to these questions. H. Con. Res. 189 calls on the National Science Foundation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to pursue plans for a second International Geophysical Year in 2007 and 2008. This will provide an opportunity for today's Earth scientists to focus their efforts and to inspire the next generation of scientists.

This resolution does not authorize any new money. It simply expresses the sense of Congress about celebrating the anniversary of the first IGY and endorsing the idea of a second IGY. I urge my colleagues to support this timely and important resolution and thank my colleagues on the Committee on Science for bringing this matter before us today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as its author, I obviously support passage of this concurrent resolution. I am pleased to be here today with the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BONNER) to discuss what the gentleman has just acknowledged is an important resolution. I also want to extend my thanks to the gentleman from New York (Chairman BOEHLERT) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. GORDON), for making it possible for the House to consider H. Con. Res. 189 today. I am also grateful to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Environment, Technology, and Standards, for his support of the resolution.

Last year, I introduced this resolution calling for a worldwide program of activities to commemorate the 50th anniversary for the most successful global scientific endeavor in human history, the International Geophysical Year of 1957 and 1958. It is hard to imagine not commemorating the historic global undertaking that was the historic International Geophysical Year, popularly remembered as the IGY.

The 60 nations and 60,000 scientists who participated in the IGY left an ongoing legacy that is beyond measure. Satellite communications, modern weather forecasting, modern natural-disaster prediction and management,
