

provided with the appropriate assistance, to advance research and development of testing mechanisms and knowledge about drug driving and its impact on traffic safety, and to enhance the training of traffic safety officers and prosecutors to detect, enforce and prosecute drug-impaired driving laws. I hope that each Member of Congress will sponsor this bill and that we can move this bill, if not as part of the larger transportation will, as a free-standing bill.

I also wanted to call attention and will include in the RECORD this article about a DEA exhibit that highlights, among other things, the drug-impaired driving accidents. This was in USA Today yesterday, September 13, 2004, about an exhibit that is opening in One Times Square, New York City, today. It will be a three floor exhibit on the perils of drug use and what it is doing to devastate American youth, adults and people in our country, as well as around the world. The exhibit also links terror and drug traffic.

The picture here shows an automobile obliterated in a wreck, I believe in Ohio, a 1994 Ford Thunderbird, whose driver killed a woman and just obliterated the car.

We have had multiple deaths in my hometown because of drug-impaired driving, even though we have a very limited ability to test. It has been clear that the marijuana in particular has been the primary culprit. We have had multiple deaths related to meth, and in addition kids using that and taking other kids out. We even had a couple of grizzly murders where it appears the kids were either after the Ecstasy or some other drug, at the very minimum, marijuana.

In this DEA exhibit, among other things, in addition to the display regarding the automobile wrecks and the deaths due to drug-impaired driving, on the third floor they have a "Wall of Lost Talent," a display of prom, graduation and school photos of those who have died because of drugs. Visitors are encouraged to leave photos of friends and family members who have been harmed by drugs as well.

Karen Tandy, the Director of DEA, said, "I want Americans to realize that although they may not use drugs, everyone is impacted by drug use in this country. That car," and she is referring to the devastated car that caused the deaths, "represents the threat to every one of us on the road."

I am glad that the DEA administrator and the DEA is taking the message out to the general public that drug use is not just something you do at home on your own or a recreational-type thing. When you use drugs and you get behind the wheel, you are putting everybody else on the road at risk.

Mr. Speaker, I chair the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy and Human Resources of the Committee on Government Reform, and what we have heard in testimony after testimony after testimony is not only when you go out on the road, but even in the home, is of young kids terrorized by their parents, who come home and beat them or just ignore them but use up their food money. This article also links the terrorists to drug money and much destabilization in other countries.

Mr. Speaker, it is very important that the DEA has done this, and it is very important that we pass the legislation in the House.

EXHIBIT LINKS TERROR, DRUG TRAFFIC

(By Donna Leinwand)

NEW YORK.—The crumpled green 1994 Thunderbird is a jarring sight in the lobby of One Times Square. The driver, DEA agents say, was high on cocaine, barbiturates and marijuana when he hit and killed a 31-year-old Ohio woman. The man is serving 10 years.

The car is the opening assault in an exhibit meant to lay bare the harsh world of illicit drugs from the intensely personal car accident to the global financing of rebel armies and terrorists.

Target America: Drug Traffickers, Terrorists and You is an expanded version of a Drug enforcement Administration Museum traveling exhibit that opens here Tuesday.

The exhibit, housed in three floors of borrowed space, is designed to illustrate through graphic photos and artifacts the societal costs of the production, trafficking and use of illegal drugs.

"I want Americans to realize that, although they may not use drugs, everyone is impacted by drug use in this country," DEA administrator Karen Tandy says. "That car represents the threat to every one of us on the road."

The car is the centerpiece of a field of debris piled in the lobby of the tall retail-and-office building. The wreck is surrounded by drug paraphernalia and barrels of chemicals used to make methamphetamine, as well as broken toys representing children neglected by drug-addled parents.

The overriding theme of the exhibit, visible from Times Square through plate-glass windows, is the link between drug trafficking and global terrorism.

The exhibit invites visitors to trace the path of cocaine and heroin from drug labs in Afghanistan and Colombia to the pockets of insurgents in Colombia and Peru and to such terrorist organizations as Hezbollah.

But it also makes a more controversial link between terrorism and the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. The exhibit includes a large display of debris collected from both sites. The exhibit does not specifically tie the attacks to drug trafficking, but it uses the events to explain how terrorists use the drug trade as one of several methods to fund attacks. It cites U.S. intelligence linking the Taliban in Afghanistan, and by extension its thriving heroin economy, to Osama bin Laden and al-Qaeda.

"Someone who thinks he or she is making an individual choice that won't harm anyone else is not seeing the larger picture of where their money eventually goes," says Anthony Placido, special agent in charge of the New York division of the DEA.

In Peru, for example, Shining Path insurgents "killed thousands of people, destroyed the economy, reduced the country to rubble, and paid for it all with the cocaine trade," Placido says.

After 9/11, Americans shifted their focus from the war on drugs to the war on terror, Placido says. The exhibit, he says, will help relate the illicit drug trade to homeland security.

"The same techniques used to smuggle in drugs can be used to smuggle in weapons of mass destruction," Placido says. Terrorists and drug criminals "fish out of the same sewer."

Although the exhibit includes the events of Sept. 11, it takes a broader look at the drug trade, tracing its history from the Silk Road routes between China and Europe, says Sean Ferans, director of the exhibit and also the small DEA museum in the agency's headquarters in Arlington, Va.

The Times Square exhibit is loaded with whiz-bang law enforcement memorabilia. Visitors can keep into an actual cocaine lab uncovered by DEA agents in Colombia, dismantled and shipped to the USA; a Stinger missile launcher; heroin tax receipts from the Taliban; Ecstasy pills; and photos of arrested drug kingpins.

On the second floor, visitors will see a replica of a crack den cluttered with soiled diapers and guns. There are photographs of children rescued from their parents' meth labs, including one who was covered in car battery acid.

A "Wall of Lost Talent" is a display of prom, graduation and school photos of those who have died because of drugs. Visitors are encouraged to leave photos of friends and family members who have been harmed by drugs.

Parts of the exhibit have traveled to other cities, including Dallas and Omaha. Sections may go on the road again; no schedule has been set. In New York, hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily through January. Information: www.usdoj.gov/dea/deamuseum/website/index.html.

Admission is free.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 10 a.m.

Accordingly (at 9 o'clock and 21 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until 10 a.m.

□ 1000

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. OSE) at 10 a.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

Lord God, as people loyal to diverse faith perspectives and hoping to be consistent in the commitment to serve the common good of the Nation, we pray today for the Members of the House of Representatives.

Lord, grant wisdom to the leaders of this Government by the people. We hear, "You, O God, give wisdom generously without finding fault to all who ask."

You provide people of faith with values, standards and principles. These need to be applied with human wisdom to specific events and recognized challenges of the times. You sustain believers, particularly in critical moments, that they may discern the real importance of needs and events and be able to deal with times of adversity with a certain calmness and deepening hope.

For You are our saving Lord now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. HAYWORTH led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

TWO QUESTIONS FOR DAN RATHER

(Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, earlier this morning, I came to this well reflecting on the difference between holding public office and being engaged in public service. Public office is not a prerequisite for public service. Neither, Mr. Speaker, is public office a prerequisite for holding the public trust.

It is in that spirit that I again come to the well to cite apparently falsified documents utilized by CBS News in portraying the service record in the Texas Air National Guard of our Commander in Chief.

Mr. Speaker, two questions need to be answered: What did Dan Rather know, and when did he know it?

Understand, we believe in the first amendment; Congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of the press. All we ask, Mr. Speaker, is that Dan Rather answer those two questions.

SUPPORT NEW TRANSPORTATION FUNDING

(Ms. WATSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, America's roads are coming to a standstill because of ever-increasing congestion. The latest research shows that the average American wastes almost 2 full days a year in traffic. Measured in dollars, the cost of congestion is now $63 billion per year. My own hometown of Los Angeles is again ranked as the most congested city in America, with congestion delays and costs twice the national average.

With this congestion causing such a drag on our economy, the American public might expect their Congress to be rushing to resolve such a problem. But we are now almost 2 years past the deadline for passing a new transportation bill, and the administration is still blocking Congress from passing new transportation funding. The issue is, as always, money. The President, after having racked up the largest deficits in American history, is fighting to block this needed investment in roads and transit.

Mr. Speaker, my constituents are as fed up with government gridlock as they are with freeway gridlock. America needs transportation relief now.

TERROR ATTACKS ON AUSTRALIA WILL NOT DETER WAR ON TERROR

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, last week, al Qaeda-linked terrorists savagely attacked the Australian embassy in Jakarta, Indonesia. The blast killed nine and wounded more than 180 innocent people, most of whom were Muslims. Australian Prime Minister John Howard properly responded by saying, "This is not a nation that is going to be intimidated by acts of terrorism. We are a robust, strong democracy."

Indeed, he is exactly correct. Free nations must never be intimidated by hate-filled extremists which will only lead them to commit more murderous acts. The only proper response to terror is to aggressively go on the offense as President Bush and coalition partners have done for the past 3 years. Instead of waiting for another attack, we need to bring justice to the terrorists wherever they are and hold terror-supporting regimes accountable.

Australia, Spain, Russia, Israel, America and many others have been attacked in a war started by radicals against the civilized world. Yet this campaign of fear will fail as nations who value freedom will continue to fight together to win the war on terror.

In conclusion, may God bless our troops, and we will never forget September 11.

IN SUPPORT OF DRUG REIMPORTATION

(Mr. EMANUEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, today, in The Washington Post, there was a story about a senior executive from Pfizer who announced that reimportation of pharmaceutical drugs was safe and could be worked out. Peter Rost, vice president of marketing for the pharmaceutical company Pfizer, publicly announced his support for drug reimportation.

In addressing the issue of safety, which the pharmaceutical companies continue to raise as their main concern with reimportation, I want to quote this executive from Pfizer, "This has been proven safe in Europe. The real concern about safety is about people who do not take drugs because they cannot afford it. The safety issue is a made-up story." This, from an executive in Pfizer Corporation.

Mr. Speaker, today seniors are traveling to Canada and buying their medications there where they save up to 40 to 50 percent. Kaiser Foundation found that 29 percent of seniors had not filled prescriptions because they could not afford them.

The issue of safety is a hoax, and when somebody tells you it is not about money, folks, it is about money. It is time we do right by the American seniors and taxpayers.

CONGRATULATING THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF GARLAND

(Mr. HENSARLING asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to welcome Dr. Greg Ammons to Garland, Texas, as the new pastor of the First Baptist Church.

The First Baptist Church of Garland was founded in 1868. They currently have over 3,500 active members and offer countless mission and service opportunities for their members to help serve the community.

The First Baptist mission statement reads, "To know Jesus and make him known." I can tell you that, through their faith and through their dedication to service, they are living up to that statement and doing the Lord's work in the Garland area.

Today, I would like to offer my heartfelt welcome and prayers to Dr. Ammons, his family and his entire congregation at the First Baptist Church. I know firsthand that the members are very excited to have Dr. Ammons, Lisa and young Camden join their congregation.

May God continue to bless Dr. Ammons, the First Baptist Church of Garland, and may He continue to bless the United States of America.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET RECORD

(Mr. BLUMENAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, there is a certain humor in the Bush attacks on Senator KERRY's budget plans. The Bush administration, after all, has the most reckless fiscal management in our Nation's history. It has produced the largest deficit, after turning the largest budget surplus that they inherited into a sea of red ink.

His prescription drug Medicare program hid the true cost even from Republicans in Congress. His proposal to
