

Halpern, Congregation Shir Tikvah, Portland; Rabbi Michael Strassfeld, Society for the Advancement, New York; Rabbi Andrew F. Straus, Temple Emanuel of Tempe, Tempe; Rabbi David Straus, Rabbi David Straus, Main Line Reform Temple Beth Elohim, Wynnewood; Rabbi William Strongin, Kehillat Ahavat Achim, New Paltz; Rabbi Leah Kurtz Sudran, Congregation B'nai Israel, Petaluma; Rabbi Alvin M. Sugarman, The Temple, Atlanta; Rabbi Yaaffa-Shira Sultan, Reconstructionist Rabbinical College; Rabbi Jeff Sultar, Mishkan Shalom, Philadelphia; Rabbi Alana Suskin, Adas Israel Congregation, Washington; Rabbi Daniel Swartz, Greater Washington Interfaith Power and Light, Takoma Park.

Rabbi Robert Tabak, Hospital of The University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Rabbi Joshua Taub, Temple Emanuel, St. Louis; Rabbi Dov Taylor, Congregation Solel, Highland Park; Rabbi Elliott Tepperman, Bnai Keshet, Montclair; Rabbi David Teutsch, Reconstructionist Rabbinical College, Wyncote; Rabbi Carla Theodore, Witnesses for a Sustainable Economy, Sperryville; Rabbi Robert Traer, Dominican University of California; Rabbi Lawrence Troster, Coalition on the Environment and Jewish Life, Teaneck; Rabbi Theodore Tsuruoka, Temple Isaiah of Great Neck, Great Neck; Rabbi Gordon Tucker, Temple Israel Center, White Plains; Rabbi Jason Van Leeuwen, B'nai Tikvah Congregation, Los Angeles; Rabbi Burton L. Visotzky, New York; Rabbi Andrew D. Vogel, Temple Sinai, Brookline; Rabbi David Vorspan, Congregation Shir Ami, Woodland Hills; Rabbi Moshe Waldoks, Temple Beth Zion, Brookline; Rabbi Brian Walt, Rabbis for Human Rights-N.A., West Tisbury; Rabbi Philip Warmflash, Jewish Outreach Partnership of Philadelphia, Melrose Park; Rabbi Andrew Warmflash; Rabbi Arthur Waskow, The Shalom Center, Philadelphia; Rabbi Michael Wasserman, The New Shul, Scottsdale; Rabbi Mira Wasserman, Congregation Beth Shalom, Bloomington; Rabbi Pamela Wax, Kehillat Chaverim, White Plains; Rabbi Deborah Waxman, Reconstructionist Rabbinical College, Wyncote; Rabbi Joshua Waxman, Or Hadash, Philadelphia; Rabbi Nancy Wechsler-Azen, Congregation Beth Shalom, Carmichael; Rabbi Elyse Wechterman, Congregation Agudas Achim, Attleboro; Rabbi Sheila Weinberg, Amherst; Rabbi Daniel A. Weiner, Temple De Hirsch Sinai, Seattle.

Rabbi Simkha Weintraub, The National Center for Jewish Healing, New York; Rabbi Samuel Weintraub, Kane Street Synagogue, Brooklyn; Rabbi Mimi Weisel, Jewish Community High School of the Bay, San Francisco; Rabbi Lew Weiss, IHC, Indianapolis; Rabbi Zari Weiss, Rodef Tzedek, Seattle; Rabbi Michael White, Temple Sinai of Roslyn, Roslyn; Rabbi Nancy Wiener, Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, New York City; Rabbi Dan Wigodsky, Riverdale; Rabbi Jeffrey Wildstein, Temple Israel, Minneapolis; Rabbi Avi Winokur, Society Hill Synagogue, Philadelphia; Rabbi Irvin Wise, Adath Israel Synagogue, Boulder; Rabbi Jonathan Wittenberg, The New North Masorti London Synagogue, London; Rabbi Jeffrey Wohlberg, Adas Israel Congregation, Washington; Rabbi Arnold Jacob Wolf, Rabbi Emeritus, K.A.M. Isaiah Israel Congregation, Chicago; Rabbi Joseph Wolf, Havurah Shalom, Portland; Rabbi Peretz Wolf-Prusan, Congregation Emanu-El, San Francisco; Rabbi Bridget Wynne, Kehilla Community Synagogue, Berkeley; Rabbi Moshe Yehudai; Rabbi Daniel G. Zemel, Temple Micah, Washington; Rabbi Moshe Zemer, Director, Institute of Progressive Halakhah, Tel Aviv Israel; Rabbi Irwin Zeplovitz, The Community Synagogue, Port Washington; Rabbi Shawn Zevit, Jewish Reconstructionist Federation, Elkins Park; Rabbi Laurie Zimmerman, Congregation Shaarei Shamayim, Madison; Rabbi Michael Zimmerman, Congregation Kehillat Israel, Lansing; Rabbi Henry Zoob, Temple Beth David, Westwood; Rabbi David J. Zucker, Shalom Park, Aurora.

Cantors

Cantor Shoshana Lash, Temple Ner Tamid, Bloomfield; Cantor Barbara Ostfeld, American Conference of Cantors, Williamsville; Cantor Jodi Schechtman, Temple Beth Am, Framingham; Cantor Kerith Spencer-Shapiro, Congregation Adas Emuno, Leonia; Cantor Iris Beth Weiner, Kehillat Mevakshei Derech, Jerusalem.

Rabbinical Students

Student Susan Averbach, Kol Hadash—Society for Humanistic Judaism, San Francisco; Student Leah Doberne-Schor, Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Religion, Brooklyn; Student Joshua Feigelson, Riverdale; Student Daniel Friedman, Yeshivat Chovevai Torah, New York; Student Will Friedman, Yeshivat Chovevei Torah, Rego Park; Student Alexandria Shuval-Weiner, Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Religion, Manhattan Beach.

SALUTING MEG MCCRUMMEN AND THE STUDENT BODY OF ST. PAUL'S EPISCOPAL SCHOOL IN MOBILE, ALABAMA

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, last Friday, Americans from all walks of life—and from all corners of this great country—celebrated Veterans Day 2005.

In our largest cities and our smallest towns alike, people paused, even if for just a moment, to say thank you to the men and women who over the years have helped to keep America free and strong.

Some communities held parades; others held rallies or prayer vigils, especially for the men and women who are currently fighting for freedom in places like Iraq and Afghanistan.

And true to what living in a free country is all about, there were also the occasional signs of protests from people in some parts of the country who oppose our current involvement in the global war on terrorism or, for that matter, oppose anything the majority of Americans support.

At St. Paul's Episcopal School in Mobile, I had the opportunity to wear the hat of a proud parent as the student body held what has become a tradition, the annual St. Paul's school-wide assembly. This year's assembly focused on the meaning of patriotism, as well as a salute to our veterans, a number of whom were in attendance.

Mr. Speaker, last Friday was a beautiful day in Mobile and everyone in attendance witnessed a wonderful tribute to our country, led entirely by the student body. The presentation by the music department set the tone early on with patriotic songs filling the air. It was truly a "Kodak moment" of pride in America.

Naturally, Janée and I were especially proud when it came time for our own 4th grader to represent her class and tell about what patriotism means to her. While admitting some degree of prejudice, we were especially proud because Lee wrote her paper on her own, without either her mother or daddy's input. That seemed to make her teacher, Mr. Fricke, pleased as well.

All of the students who took part in Friday's tribute did a great job. Every parent, grandparent, teacher and friend had to be full of pride as the words of more than a dozen young people were somehow woven together to make a beautiful quilt of patriotism and love of country.

While everyone did a superb job, one young lady, Meg McCrummen, a St. Paul's junior who is secretary of the Student Government Association, perhaps captured the moment as well as any I have ever heard with her essay on patriotism. It is as follows:

"For the love of her country, Rosa Parks endangered her life for freedom; for the love of his country, George Washington turned down a real chance for great power because he knew America didn't need a king; for the love of his country, Jeremiah Denton endured torture in the Vietnam War, saying he was 'honored to have had the opportunity to serve [his] country,' for the love of their country, people from all over America have come to the Gulf Coast to help clean up the mess left from hurricanes; for the love of their country, individuals support candidates whom they believe will lead America well.

"Patriotism goes far beyond wearing red, white and blue on the Fourth of July; it is a very personal response of gratitude to America. Loving America doesn't at all mean blindly agreeing with leaders. Patriots often speak out against the government they believe is wrong—but it means acknowledging the tremendous gift of being American.

"Every person here is blessed by the fact that we are American. There is a contagious spirit of justice and goodwill that is evident throughout our history of dealing with people. Our country is the envy of many others, and we know freedoms that some foreigners only dream of.

"But where does that leave us, here at St. Paul's? When asked by his wife on Election Day who she should vote for, a soldier on active duty in Iraq replied, 'You vote for whom-ever you want to . . . that's why I'm over here fighting.'

"Is there something worth fighting for? He believes so. I believe so.

"If not with guns, fight with service to our community. If not in Iraq, then fight injustice in Mobile. And so, I challenge you to pray for our leaders, love America actively, and be thankful for the men and women that saw fit to sacrifice their lives for her freedom."

Well said, Meg. Well said.

A TRIBUTE TO LOUISE WILLIAMS BISHOP

HON. ROBERT A. BRADY

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor my State Representative, Louise Williams Bishop upon her receipt of the Outstanding Community Leader award from the Friends of Labor Committee of Laborers' Local 332. This amazing woman has simultaneously distinguished herself in three separate careers: as a broadcaster, a Baptist minister, and a State Representative. It defies the imagination even further to realize that she achieved all of this while raising four children.

Within a few years of graduating from high school, Louise Bishop was named the 'Youngest Voice in Radio,' earned a degree from the American Foundation of Dramatic Arts, and later was awarded both an Honorary Doctorate of Humanities from Monrovia College and an Honorary Doctorate of Law from Eastern University. From the success of her own career, Louise has nurtured the careers of world-famous recording artists, including stars such as Aretha Franklin.

Called to the ministry early in life, Louise was ordained as a Baptist minister in 1978. A similar inspiration to benefit the community at large later led her to run for public office, and she was elected to the Pennsylvania State House of Representatives in 1988. The voting public already knew her for her good works as a broadcaster and a minister, and has not been disappointed by her record in office. In addition to her other roles, she is now a highly sought after public speaker, as admiration for her strength, character, and accomplishments has spread far and wide.

Today, Mr. Speaker, I wish to extend my warmest congratulations to Louise Bishop upon her receipt of this award that she so richly deserves. I ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues rise to recognize her for her many accomplishments.

RECOGNITION OF MICHAEL LUSSIER

HON. MICHAEL E. CAPUANO

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to recognize Michael Lussier, the President and CEO of Webster First Federal Credit Union, headquartered in Webster, MA, on his recent election to the Board of Directors of the National Association of Federal Credit Unions (NAFCU). As a Member of the Financial Services Committee, I have enjoyed working with NAFCU to address the needs of our nation's federal credit unions. Mr. Lussier has been a vocal supporter of credit union issues at both the state and national levels and I know he will be an asset to the NAFCU Board.

Mr. Lussier's election to the NAFCU Board is just one more in a long list of accomplishments that has spanned his 19 years with credit unions. He has served as the Chairman, and is currently a Board Member, of the Massachusetts Share Insurance Corporation (MSIC). His illustrious experience further includes service as the Credit Union Ambassador for the United States for Australia and New Zealand and he is a former Director of the Credit Union League of Massachusetts Insurance Agency.

As the President and CEO of Webster First, Mr. Lussier has focused on ensuring his members receive helpful, personal service that caters to the needs of his members and their financial goals. Through his credit union, he is teaching kids necessary life skills by fostering a "Credit Union at School" program to teach the importance of savings to elementary aged children.

Mr. Lussier's involvement to improve the lives of others can be further illustrated in his commitment to the American Red Cross where he presides as a local Board Member. He spearheaded an effort to build a much needed Red Cross facility in Worcester, MA, by coordinating area credit unions to donate funds to pay for the facility.

It is because of the good work of Mr. Lussier, and others like him, that the credit union movement enjoys the success it has today. Such service is the hallmark of the credit union movement and I wish him the best of luck in his new role as a member of the NAFCU Board of Directors and look forward to working with him in that role.

TRIBUTE TO CONGRESSMAN ED
ROYBAL

HON. ADAM B. SCHIFF

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise to mourn the passing and celebrate the life of former Congressman Ed Roybal, an individual who had an extraordinary and inspiring dedication to public service. Ed Roybal's fight for social justice and the rights of the underserved mark him as a true American patriot.

Congressman Roybal's lifelong commitment to public service began at the California Tuberculosis Association, where he eventually became the Director of Health Education. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II, and then returned to Southern California to found the Los Angeles Community Service Organization, an agency dedicated to mobilizing Los Angeles' Mexican-Americans against discrimination. He was the first Hispanic to serve on the Los Angeles City Council. Representative Roybal was also the first Hispanic from California to serve in the United States Congress in nearly one hundred years. During his 30 years of service, Representative Roybal sat on the Appropriations Committee and chaired the Treasury, Postal Service General Government Subcommittee.

Representative Roybal spent his career fighting for and protecting the rights of the underprivileged. Through his leadership in Los Angeles, he advocated for an end to discrimination against Mexican-Americans in housing, employment, and education. On the national level, Representative Roybal fought for funding for civil rights, health programs, and education initiatives. In 1967, he introduced and won approval for the first federal bilingual education law, which established English classes for migrant children and others. Representative Roybal was also one of the first members of Congress to press for HIV/AIDS research funding. In addition, he fought for the elderly, campaigning for funding for senior programs and successfully maintaining Meals on Wheels. In 1993, the retired congressman founded a non-profit agency dedicated to improving the quality and effectiveness of health and human services for older persons.

Representative Roybal will be remembered for his distinguished service and his remarkable leadership in the fight for civil rights and justice. His work is a legacy that serves as an important example for all of us about the immense good that a dedicated and committed public servant can accomplish. I am proud to serve with Representative Roybal's daughter, Representative LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD, who continues the legacy of her father with honor and distinction.

HONORING THE FRANK AND
OCLLO BOYKIN HUNTING LODGE
ON THE OCCASION OF ITS 100TH YEAR

HON. JO BONNER

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to pay tribute to the Frank and Ocllo Boykin Hunting Lodge on the occasion of its 100th year.

Stories of Congressman Frank Boykin are certainly not unfamiliar to many in this chamber. For nearly three decades, spanning much of the Depression, World War II, the Korean War, and the space exploration and civil rights eras, Congressman Boykin tirelessly served as the representative of Alabama's First Congressional District.

During this time, "Mr. Frank" invited some of the most prominent government, military and business leaders to his hunting lodge in Washington County, Alabama. He worked tirelessly on behalf of the residents of southwest Alabama, ensuring that their needs and concerns were always heard and that their individual problems received the attention they deserved over the course of his 14 terms in the House of Representatives. To say that he loved the people of his district would be an understatement; even the sign at the Boykin Lodge underscored his very love of life... "Where everything is made for love."

Starting with his first year in Congress, Congressman Boykin would bring congressional colleagues and other officials to his hunting lodge on a chartered Pullman car. Guests of the Boykin Lodge included three different Speakers of the House and almost every Alabama governor during the congressman's career. The hunts are held a few days after Thanksgiving every year and are attended, even to this day, by local and statewide officials.

Stories of a Boykin hunt weekend almost always included hound dogs, barbecue, cold "adult beverages," a game or two of cards and shotguns. In addition to the hunting stories, the lodge also served as a place for colleagues to relax, enjoy being away from Washington, D.C., and to bond with one another. Many of the friendships fostered at the Boykin Lodge extended far beyond the boundaries of this rural part of Washington County.

It is my sincere hope that the Frank and Ocllo Boykin Hunting Lodge will continue to be such a source of relaxation, good fellowship and camaraderie for another 100 years, and I rise today to salute this proud family and the many contributions they have made toward the betterment of south Alabama.