

for Americans. In essence, what are our priorities in Congress and in the White House? Should we, on the one hand, provide relief for over 17 million middle-class American taxpaying households, as we propose; or should we, as the other side proposes, provide relief that benefits principally one-fifth of 1 percent of the wealthiest Americans in this country?

Federal budgeting is no different than family budgeting at the end of the day. Yet if you look at the actions of this Congress today and over the last several years, what this Congress is saying to American families is, do as I say not as I do. This year, the Federal Government will run a $518 billion deficit. We are running record deficits this year. That deficit is portrayed as being $337 billion, only $337 billion, because this Congress is taking $181 billion out of the Social Security trust fund to help cover the massive size of the Federal budget deficit.

The total national debt today stands at over $8 trillion, and President Bush, in his budget, admits that we will pay more than $247 billion next year in interest payments on the Federal debt alone. A quarter of $1 trillion to do nothing but pay the interest on the debt.

There was a joke I heard not too long ago about how you could know if 2006 would be a challenging year. The top three choices, to let you know, are: one, your twin sister forgets to congratulate you on your birthday; two, you see a "60 Minutes" crew waiting outside your office for you; and the number one way you can tell it is going to be a challenging year is you file your income tax statement and are expecting a refund, and what you get is a bounced check from the Federal Government.

Now, as funny as it may sound, there is some truth in that as we run massive deficits and increase the size of the national debt. President Bush has borrowed three times the amount that the first 39 Presidents in the Nation's first 191 years borrowed in all their time. We are spending about $6 billion a month in Iraq, and we are talking about cutting taxes for the wealthiest Americans. That is something that had never been done until this administration cut taxes for the wealthiest Americans at a time when we are running massive deficits and have men and women sacrificing their lives abroad.

It is time for us to have some fiscal sense, be responsible and recognize what every American family must: that you have got to figure out your books before you spend money. And that is what this motion to instruct says. Let us have priorities when it comes to tax cuts, let us target help towards middle-class America before we give tax cuts to the wealthiest Americans. If you have some left over after you help middle-class America, okay, fine. But don't cut $14 billion out of student loans for mostly middle-class families sending their kids to college.

Don't cut $600 million out of foster care programs for some of our neediest children who are being abused. Don't take money out of the child enforcement program that helps make sure kids get money from their deadbeat dads.

If you can take care of all those things, fine, let's cut taxes for the wealthiest Americans. But today we are running massive deficits and we cannot do it. So vote for this motion to instruct. It says our priorities are middle-class Americans, and we will do the work the right way.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
