

leader to get these three nominations confirmed. Two are under the category of the Department of Defense, and the third is Energy. Nevertheless, the Energy nominee works carefully with the Committee on Armed Services, which makes up 60 percent of the Department of Energy's budget. Together with my colleague, Senator LEVIN, we have worked very hard, and this is probably one of the shortest periods in which we have been able to completely go through the advice and consent process very carefully, meticulously, but in a very timely fashion. I will have further remarks about these nominations, but the Department is very much in need of these key personnel, particularly the Under Secretary of the Army, a former member of Congress.

I thank the leader for his cooperation in insisting that we get these nominations done in a timely manner, and I thank the staff. There is a lot of staff work that went into this effort.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 2006

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment under the provisions of H. Con. Res. 345 until 2 p.m. on Monday, February 27. I further ask that following the prayer and pledge, the morning hour be deemed expired, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and that the Senate then conduct a period for the transaction of morning business until 3 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each. I further ask that following morning business, the Senate resume consideration of S. 2271, the PATRIOT Act amendments bill, as under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, today the Senate will adjourn for the Presidents Day recess. When we reconvene on Monday, February 27, we will resume consideration of the PATRIOT Act amendments bill, and under the agreement reached this week, we will have a vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the bill at 2:30 p.m. on Tuesday, February 28, and a vote on passage at 10 a.m. the following day, on Wednesday. The vote on Tuesday will be the first vote of the week.

I thank Senator SALAZAR for today's reading of George Washington's Farewell Address. This tradition has been long-standing. It began in 1892 and became an annual event in the Senate beginning in 1893. Ever since that point in time, we celebrate Washington's birthday with the reading of the 7,641-word address, and the address has been made available to each of our colleagues. I have had the opportunity to read that 7,641-word address. It means a lot to be able to share those words which have been so meaningful and such a tremendous tradition for this body and our heritage and, speaking very directly to the future as well, the tradition that we will continue to pass on and respect.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. FRIST. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment following the remarks of my distinguished colleague from Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Virginia.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE NOMINATIONS

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I again thank the distinguished majority leader. He made reference to the George Washington Farewell Address. I remember 25 years ago, a quarter of a century ago, I gave the address and I was awakened on that day to 25 inches of snow. The only people who came to the Congress that day were the Presiding Officer, a clerk, and myself to deliver that address. I remember I walked from my then-residence some 2 miles in the snow. There was a farmer's march here, and they were all in a tent camp, and a tractor drove me up the hill the final 3 or 4 blocks. It was one of the few moments of any fame in my life. I was picked by The New York Times as the "Man of the Week" for forging through the storm to give that very important address. Since then, it has all been downhill for me.

I wish to address the Senate with regard to these nominations for the Department of Defense. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a brief biography of each of these distinguished Americans who have stepped forward to take on these responsibilities.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JAMES I. FINLEY

Jim has over 30 years of multi-national business leadership and management experience. Programs span air, land, sea and space for the DoD, all services and DARPA, and include the FAA Automatic Surface Detection Radar systems and the NASA Space Shuttle Program. Systems and subsystems experience includes mission analysis, design, development and deployment of weapon delivery, flight control, navigation, information management, C4ISR, battle space management, chem/bio defense systems. His education includes a Masters of Business Administration, MBA, and Bachelors of Science in Electrical Engineering, BSEE.

With a background that includes marketing, finance, program management, engineering and manufacturing, he brings a broad experience base of technology including international technology transfer, outsourcing, product development, multi-plant operations management, lean manufacturing implementation, demand flow technology programs, six sigma/black belt systems, information technology systems, purchasing, logistics, facilities, security, product support and total quality management.

His leadership and strategic planning abilities have led many companies, including large and small operations, to achieve double-digit financial growth. Jim has also participated in many acquisitions and divestitures providing business analysis including strategic fit, organizational alignment, marketing assessments, project evaluations and manufacturing audits.

Jim has achieved significant operational recognition and success through progressive, increasing management responsibilities at General Electric, Singer, Lear Siegler, United Technologies and General Dynamics, where he was a Corporate Officer, President of Information Systems and Chair of the Business Development Council. In 2002, Jim formed his own consulting company, The Finley Group, LLC, that provides business assistance and advice for all facets of the business cycle including start-up, growth, acquisition and divestiture.

He resides in Ghanhassen, Minnesota, and enjoys golf, cycling, fishing, reading and volunteer's work.

PETE GEREN

Pete Geren joined the Department of Defense in September of 2001 to serve as Special Assistant to the Secretary of Defense with responsibilities in the areas of inter-agency initiatives, legislative affairs and special projects.

Prior to joining the Department of Defense, Geren was an attorney and businessman in Fort Worth, Texas.

From 1989 until his retirement in 1997, Geren was a member of the U.S. Congress, representing the Twelfth Congressional District of Texas for four terms. He served on the Armed Services, Science & Technology and the Public Works and Transportation Committees during his tenure in the Congress.

Geren received his BA degree from the University of Texas in 1974 and his JD from University of Texas Law School in 1978. He and his wife, Beckie, have three daughters, Tracy, Annie and Mary.

THOMAS PAUL D'AGOSTINO

Mr. Thomas Paul D'Agostino is the Assistant Deputy Administrator for Program Integration and leads the Office of Defense Programs at the Department of Energy's National Nuclear Security Administration, NNSA. Mr. D'Agostino directs the Stockpile Stewardship Program, SSP, which is responsible for maintaining the safety, security, and reliability of the Nation's nuclear weapons stockpile. The NNSA's nuclear weapons complex includes three national research laboratories, the Nevada Test Site, and four production plants.

Defense Programs oversees the SSP, which employs over 30,000 people around the country. This approximately $5.2 billion program encompasses operations associated with manufacturing, maintaining, refurbishing, and dismantling the nuclear weapons stockpile. Defense Programs also provides oversight and direction of the research, development, and engineering support to maintain the safety and reliability of the nuclear weapons stockpile in the absence of underground testing, and assures the capability for maintaining the readiness to test and develop new warheads, if required.

In other previous assignments, Mr. D'Agostino served as the Deputy Director for the Nuclear Weapons Research, Development, and Simulation Program where he directed the formulation of the programs and budget for the research and development program that supports the SSP. From 1989 to 1996, Mr. D'Agostino worked in numerous assignments within the Federal Government in the startup of the Department's tritium production reactors and at the Naval Sea Systems Command as a program manager for the SEAWOLF submarine propulsion system.

Mr. D'Agostino is currently a Captain in the U.S. Naval Reserves where he has served with the Navy Inspector General and with the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Submarine Warfare in developing concepts for new attack submarine propulsion systems. He also served with the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Plans, Policy, and Operations, N3/5, in the Navy Command Center in the Pentagon. In this capacity, he was the French Desk Officer for the Chief of Naval Operations responsible for all Politico-Military interactions with the French Navy and served as the Duty Captain at the Navy Command Center.

He spent over eight years on active duty in the Navy as a submarine officer to include assignments onboard the USS Skipjack, SSN 585, and with the Board of Inspection and Survey where he was the Main Propulsion and Nuclear Reactor Inspector. In this position, he performed nuclear reactor and propulsion engineering inspections for over 65 submarines and nuclear-powered ships in the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets.

Mr. D'Agostino's awards include the Navy Commendation Medal with Gold Stars, Navy Achievement Medal, Navy Expeditionary Medal, Meritorious Unit Commendation, National Defense Service Medal, Presidential Rank Meritorious Executive Award, and numerous other awards. Mr. D'Agostino is married to Beth Ann Alemany of Manchester, CT, and has two children. Mr. D'Agostino is a member of the Senior Executive Service.

Education: Naval War College, Newport, RI, MS National Security Studies, 1997 (Distinguished Graduate), Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD, MS Business Finance, 1992, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, MD, BS Physical Science, 1980.

Mr. WARNER. In a time of great concern for those of us who, on a daily basis, work the situations primarily in Iraq and Afghanistan, I hope to make I think my sixth or seventh trip to that region in the not-too-distant future, and I am hopeful that a number of Senators will find the opportunity to make similar trips because the situation in both areas, in my judgment, still has a high degree of fragility and a high degree of uncertainty. We have to reinforce the resolve of our Nation, working with our coalition partners, to achieve the goals that were set down by the respective governments in the coalition and, indeed, the wise and strong leadership of the President of the United States, in the absolute necessity that we enable both of these nations to establish that form of democracy that they consider best suits them.

Great progress has been made in Afghanistan. Elections have been held there. We have seen recent elections likewise in Iraq. Progress is being made. I will have further remarks on this subject when the Senate returns after the recess. But it is absolutely imperative that the various factions in Iraq—Shia, Kurds—work together to bring in a representative group from the Sunni faction to establish this government. It seems to be off to a start, a little slower—I will speak for myself—than I had hoped. But we have to impress upon the leadership in those three political divisions that time is running out. That government must be formed. They must pick individuals of unquestioned strength and integrity to run the Ministries—primarily the Ministry of Defense, the Ministry of the Homeland—the Interior.

I think we have given an extraordinary measure, through loss of life, loss of limb, through economic support. It is an enormous drain. We will soon be dealing with enormous sums of money in continuing supplementals to allow those people in Iraq, as well as Afghanistan, to achieve their level of democracy.

As does every Member of this Chamber, I feel for those members of the family in the United States, and indeed for those of our coalition partners, who have lost a family member or are bringing back their family member to nurture that individual who has been wounded so they can once again resume their life and their own responsibilities.

SURVEILLANCE

I wish to comment on a different subject which has given me a great deal of concern, and that is this question of surveillance. I will unhesitatingly now say, given the statements yesterday by the distinguished chairman of the Intelligence Committee—I am privileged to serve on that committee—that in consultation with the White House, we will proceed, hopefully, on a constructive and fair and objective, to the extent we can get politics out of it, look at the existing laws and determine such modifications as can be agreed upon.

I have continuously taken that stance, quietly, in consultation with my colleagues here, with members of the gang of 14, I may say, which has taken a constructive role in other areas—they have given some consideration and they have a position on that after we return. But it is imperative that we approach this in a bipartisan way.

The intelligence system underpins—it is the foundation on which we conduct our operations of the military in harm's way. It is what we call a force multiplier, meaning for every bit of factual, sound, accurate intelligence effort that can be given to the Armed Forces engaging the enemy, the likelihood is that it produces an advantage such that you possibly would have fewer military people to carry out the mission if you know with great precision what has to be done. We refer to it as a force multiplier in the annals of military planning and history, throughout our recent history. That system has undergone some stresses, occasioned by the wise—I was a partner through this—legislation to establish the means by which our Nation, through its military and civilian representatives, deals with those taken as prisoners. That is behind us.

We are now faced with the imperative necessity to give our President every possible power in which to continue to utilize the wide spectrum of assets this Nation has to gain that same intelligence to guide us in the days and the weeks and the months to come and, indeed, I say the years to come because the war on terrorism is going to go on long after I have departed this Earth, and it will be the responsibility of my children and my grandchildren, regrettably, for their lifetimes.

That is the turn of events that we now experience in this troubled world. Consequently, our President, as the leader of the most powerful Nation of the free world, must be given all the powers that we possibly can under our Constitution, preserving the integrity of what we call our basic rights and freedoms as given by the Constitution. But at the same time, without that valuable intelligence, we run a greater and greater risk to preserve these freedoms if we do not have it strong and in place and fully functioning.

I hope we can arrive at some legislative package—and it should not be seen as the administration giving in to the Congress or the Congress overriding. No, we must work as coequal branches in partnership.

Recently I had a chance to have a private conversation with the Attorney General of United States and, indeed, the senior officers who are engaged in intelligence gathering. I felt they should build a bridge between the two branches of Government and let us cross it together and decide how we can strengthen this system and leave no doubt—I underscore that—no doubt in the minds of every American citizen that our President is acting within the law, acting consistent with the Constitution of the United States as those powers were enumerated 200-plus years ago but still are as vitally important today as ever.

But this world has moved so far, for example, in the 30-odd years of the FISA Act, which is the core piece of legislation at the moment that is out in the public domain with years of study—so much new technology has come on that it is time to look at the revisions which need to be made under that act.

I do not think we should hold tenaciously on this question of the constitutional authority of Government as being the sole province of the administration for interpretation. Having trained in the law myself, I don't express any great expertise, but I know men and women of clear and sound and patriotic conscience on both sides of this issue looking at the words of the Constitution will determine exactly what the powers of our President are. Yes, this is a political potion and element to the debate, but still beyond that there are men and women of good, sound character and will on both sides of that issue.

People say: Well, let it be resolved by the courts. It may well come to pass.

But each day we let this uncertainty exist has the potential to further impair the intelligence system. Those of our citizens engaged in it and those partners we share intelligence with around the world are beginning to wonder if there is an uncertainty about the status and the authority of what we are doing out on the front lines gathering intelligence, as well as all the way through the chain back to those in positions of responsibility in Washington and elsewhere. You might not get the degree of intelligence that you need.

We have to remove that uncertainty, and move this Nation forward ever so strongly in its collection capabilities, and remove from those citizens—I am not one who follows the polls, and I am not one dictated to by the polls, but the reality is a lot of citizens of clear conscience believe the President may not be acting within the law. We have to remove that. We want every person in the United States to believe our President is acting within the law as we pursue this war on terrorism.

I am very pleased to support what the distinguished Chairman PAT ROBERTS said about the meeting yesterday, and that there will be, in a consultative process, an analysis made by the Congress and the administration in resolving this, and possibly we can seek legislation. It will be a challenge because of the question of the degree of knowledge that we have with regard to how collection is undertaken and how we translate that into law. That will be an unusual challenge facing this body, and we are going to have to reach down and search in our souls and put politics to one side and determine that we are acting in the present and long-term interests of this country—that we have to do it in such a way that when it is concluded we have across the board supported the American public to continue to move forward stronger.

I yield the floor.
