

A NEW DAY FOR AMERICA

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, January 5, 2007

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Madam Speaker, now begins a new day for America. During the first "100 Hours" of the 110th Congress, Democrats will answer the voters' call for change. We will restore honesty, openness, and civility to Congress, require Medicare to negotiate for lower drug prices, lower the cost of higher education, raise the minimum wage, invest in "saving embryonic stem cell research and alternative energy, and strengthen our homeland security.

The election of NANCY PELOSI as Speaker of the House is a historic moment—a testament to Nancy's able, dedicated, and unifying leadership. I am confident that Speaker NANCY PELOSI (D-CA), Majority Leader STENY HOYER (D-MD), Majority Whip JAMES CLYBURN (D-SC), Caucus Chairman RAHM EMANUEL (D-IL), and Caucus Vice Chairman JOHN LARSON (D-CT) will lead us in a new direction that makes our country stronger and more just. While we will make great strides during the first "100 Hours," it's just a downpayment. Even greater change is on the horizon.

On November 7th, Americans demonstrated that they will not wait for change in Iraq. Three thousand of our troops have lost their lives and civil war is spreading. Even the Republican co-chair of the Iraq Study Group, James Baker, warned 'We can no longer afford to stay the course.' I will work with members of both parties to pressure the Bush Administration to begin to draw down troops as quickly as possible so that a diplomatic course may be pursued.

While corporations and the few at the top have profited from tax breaks and giveaways, the majority of workers and families in our country have been left behind. My fight to provide opportunity and economic security for the majority of Americans continues. I will work provide good jobs with strong benefits, to end waste and abuse in the government contracting process, and to protect consumers from corporate wrongdoing.

The challenges facing our great nation are many. With a focus on our most urgent priorities, Democrats will lead the United States to thrive again, as a force for good that provides opportunity for all.

Madam Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Nicholas J. Moore for his accomplishments with the Boy Scouts of America and for his efforts put forth in achieving the highest distinction of Eagle Scout.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BREAST CANCER AWARENESS

HON. CHRISTOPHER SHAYS

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, January 5, 2007

Mr. SHAYS. Madam Speaker, breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death among American women and more than 40,000 women will die from breast cancer this year alone. Three of four women diagnosed with breast cancer have no known risk—no family history.

While the diagnosis rate of this cancer continues to increase, I am thankful the breast cancer death rate is steadily decreasing, which is in large part due to advancing medical treatments and an increase in early detection. By continuing to support breast cancer research and early diagnosis, we can help bring an end to this disease that takes a new life once every fourteen minutes.

In recognition of last year's Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Karen Stevenson, a resident of New Canaan, Connecticut, gave an address at the launch of the "Paint the Town Pink" program at New Canaan Town Hall. I submit the text of Ms. Stevenson's remarks to be entered into the RECORD.

Good morning. Active and healthy—definitely much more fit than I am now—with no history of the disease in the family, I was completely blindsided by a breast cancer diagnosis 5 years ago based on an unusual mammogram result. I had a mastectomy and reconstructive surgery followed by 5 months of chemotherapy. My daughters were 7 and 10 at the time.

With the warm generosity of family, friends and colleagues who supplied moral support, hugs, and many a meal to help maintain normalcy in the girls' routine at home, we navigated through that difficult period and came out the other side.

The kids were troopers. To this day they still find such humor in telling the story of Mom having melted her wig on Thanksgiving Day with a sudden blast of heat from the oven while basting.

My situation is not unique, but rather, representative of what so many women in our community have faced.

I shared the first few weeks of chemo with a group of spectacular women and we quickly banded together to help carry one another through the various rounds of surgeries, chemo, radiation, genetic testing, additional surgeries, and follow-on treatments in all the years since.

Licia, a young professional diagnosed only 4 months after being married,

Kerry, an exceptionally talented marketing director, artist and mom, diagnosed only 1 week before giving birth to her second child,

Debbie, a teacher and beautiful mother of three young school children,

Julia, a NYC actress and mother of two teenagers,

Chris, an attorney and mother of two preschool daughters.

Of note, while we were a randomly assembled group of six, four of us were under 35 years old and all of us were under age 43.

Breast cancer is everywhere and I'm sure you can each add several names of patients and loved ones to the growing list. While the topic doesn't typically surface in casual conversation it always amazes me how often we discover this common sisterhood.

While the diagnosis itself is daunting, we are the fortunate beneficiaries of the drug trials and experiences of the many who have gone before us over the past 20 years, and as a result, there are many more treatment options available, as well as access to solid information about their efficacy and managing side effects. In my case and for many others, early detection and the rapidly evolving treatment have ensured we can continue to attend the soccer games and school plays, host family holidays and be here to enjoy our families.

The harsh reality is that even the treatments available today are not successful for all of us and the implication of later diagnosis is significantly added risk. It is just heartbreaking to watch so many vibrant women in our community struggle and suffer for years, exhausting treatment options that will hold back their cancer and pain while trying to continue care for their families.

We are so fortunate to live in an area with such excellent access to quality care locally—for regular check-ups, for mobile mammograms, and should it be necessary, for both proven and innovative cancer treatments. But we must take advantage of that access!

Ask yourself tonight as you are tucking your children into bed . . . or talking to your college student via phone this weekend . . . or watching your grandson's football game . . . Are you willing to put this in jeopardy unnecessarily when it takes only an hour of your time to make and keep a screening appointment? As you walk past the waves of pink on Elm and Main Streets, won't you take a pledge today to ensure all the important women in your life make this a priority?

On behalf of all of those who have been touched personally by Breast Cancer—and I'm sure there are many here today—we offer our profound thanks to the merchants of New Canaan and to Janet Blaylock and the team of volunteers she has mobilized. Your efforts to Paint the Town Pink for a weeks in October as a collective call to action will most certainly be a positive turning point in the lives of many families in our community.

PROMOTION TO BRIGADIER GENERAL

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, January 5, 2007

Mr. GORDON of Tennessee. Madam Speaker, today I rise to honor David Ogg on earning the rank of Brigadier General in the U.S. Army. Today, BG Ogg is being honored in a ceremony to commemorate this great achievement.

During the course of his 28 years of distinguished service, BG Ogg has served in Germany, where he was on the front line of the cold war in Europe. Later, his career transitioned to project management, and he worked with some of the military's most important and most sophisticated new hardware, such as the M113 and Stryker combat vehicles.

While his military service has led him around the globe, BG Ogg has never forgotten where he comes from. Although he is currently stationed in Michigan, BG Ogg still calls Murfreesboro, Tennessee, home. In fact, he returned to his alma mater, Middle Tennessee State University, to teach ROTC for 4 years. And his two sons now are continuing the family tradition and seeking their degrees at MTSU.

As a fellow MTSU alumnus and former student of MTSU's ROTC program, I thank BG Ogg for his service to his country, and I commend him for his hard work and dedication. I also commend his wife, Pam, and their sons, Jason and Stuart, for the sacrifices they have made as BG Ogg has proudly worn the uniform of this Nation. I wish David Ogg and the entire Ogg family continued success and happiness.

HONORING THE LIFE OF GERALD FORD, 38TH PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

HON. ARTUR DAVIS

OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, January 5, 2007

Mr. DAVIS of Alabama. Madam Speaker, we overlooked Gerald Ford's significance when he served as President. His tenure was only slightly longer than a congressional term, a cruel irony for a politician whose political career was so grounded in the by-ways of the House. He was hardly a master politician, if the term refers to the winning of elections or the swift dispatch of opposition: Ford came within an inch of not being re-nominated, and he lost in the general election to the most obscure winner of our times.

This week, as we mourn Ford's passing, his legacy is much clearer: first, he gracefully presided over the aftermath of Richard Nixon's forced removal, and over the culmination of our debacle in Vietnam. Had he gotten either moment wrong, the country might have been ripped into two, bitter competing halves. As we contemplate the mistakes subsequent presidents have made, it is a virtue that Gerald Ford made not a single major error in judgment: he did not blunder into any ill-chosen wars, and as much as an opposition dominated Congress thwarted him, he never resorted to subterfuge in an effort to tip the scales.

Then there is the graceful way Ford practiced politics. The challenge from Ronald Reagan was perilous because even in 1976, Ford was not of a philosophic kin with most Republican primary voters. A less principled president would have demagogued on issues like busing or affirmative action; certainly, he might have abandoned the détente that was a major contributor to taming the Soviet Union. A modern, win-at all cost politician would have savaged an unknown like Jimmy Carter. The fact is that the 1976 election season was at once breathtakingly close and remarkably civil.

Imagine if Gerald Ford's major value, the cultivation of common ground, had dominated the last two fractious decades. Our two major political philosophies would not have been at irreconcilable odds, with both tending to treat each battle as if it were the ultimate one or as if we weren't bound to share a future together. We mourn Gerald Ford's decency and we also mourn the loss of the political character that left the stage when we retired him.

RECOGNIZING HEROISM

HON. CLIFF STEARNS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, January 5, 2007

Mr. STEARNS. Madam Speaker, I appreciate this chance to recognize a true hero, someone who put aside the natural reaction to remain safe and instead risked his life to save another.

Wesley Autrey recently demonstrated heroism at the subway station at 137th Street and Broadway. Mr. Autrey was waiting with his two children on the subway platform when he saw a young man suffer a seizure and fall onto the tracks.

Realizing that a train was approaching and with no chance of helping the young man off of the track, Mr. Autrey jumped down onto the tracks and placed his body on top of the victim to protect him from the train. The train missed Mr. Autrey by mere inches and both emerged unscathed.

In a world plagued by terrorism, indifference, and selfishness, Mr. Autrey's action demonstrated a commitment to preserving life and showed that we still have heroes among us. I commend a real American hero, Wesley Autrey.
