The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

WRDA PROVISIONS

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, during yesterday's discussion of the motion to proceed to the Water Resources Development Act, the chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, Senator BOXER, inserted into the RECORD a chart that shows which Member or Members requested each project-related provision in the WRDA bill. This chart, of course, was our effort to comply with the intent of S. 1, the Legislative Transparency bill. For some of the WRDA provisions, however, it was in fact a particular Member who secured inclusion of the provision in the bill. Since the chart discloses each request, however, that distinction is not clear. With that in mind, I would like to provide the following list of provisions and the Members who secured them.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the chart to which I referred be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

HONORING MOTHERS

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, Sunday, May 13, is Mother's Day. Motherhood and May are a perfect pairing of all that is warm and nurturing. The earth is soft and green, with the buds of new leaves and new life appearing everywhere. Birds fill the air with their love songs and flowers scent the breezes with their soft perfumes. All around us, if we but look, we see the signs of happy motherhood, from the ducklings in a neat line behind their mother on a pond to calves curled up asleep by their mother's feet in deep green pastures. In neighborhood parks, mothers bring their toddlers out to play in the sunshine before their afternoon naps or push sleeping newborns in strollers along shade-dappled paths. In the springtime, the great cycle of life is at its fullest flow.

On this one lovely spring Sunday, the Nation heeds the Biblical admonition to "honor thy mother." It is an opportunity to make up for those times all year that we may have overlooked our own mother's contributions to our well-being, or snapped at her well-meaning advice and loving attempts to straighten our collars and smooth our hair. Such is the lot of mothers—to be essential but so often unappreciated.

Mothers are like water—without a mother, life could not exist, while not enough mothering can stunt growth like a plant in a desert, but too much mothering can be as smothering as floodwaters on a field of corn.

Motherhood is a delicate high-wire act, balancing love and discipline, care and independence, attention and self-reliance. It is time consuming, often stressful, unpaid, and with no promotion and little recognition. It is a Sisyphean task. Yet mothers persevere, rising each day to begin anew, building families with every meal they prepare, every schedule they coordinate, every book they read with their children, every dirty sock they collect and transform into clean and folded laundry. It takes strong women to do it well and to keep up the effort over the many years of childrearing, for this is not a job that one can hand in a resignation letter or shop around a resume to find a better position. It is a job that is truly what a mother makes of it, for good or for ill. "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world," observed W.R. Wallace.

Many great men have noted the influence of their mothers. George Washington wrote that "All I am I owe to my mother." Abraham Lincoln said that "I remember my mother's prayers and they have always followed me. They have clung to me all my life." Booker T. Washington said that "... If I have done anything in my life worth attention, I feel sure that I inherited the disposition from my mother." Andrew Jackson observed that "The memory of my mother and her teachings were, after all, the only capital I had to start life with, and on that capital I have made my way." Their mothers' hands surely influenced the world through their mothering.

Most mothers will tell you that childrearing does not end after their children are officially grown up, either. Mothers remain a constant in the lives of their offspring for years afterward, sometimes actively involved and sometimes waiting in the background in case they are needed. The strains of sustaining the military deployments in Iraq and Afghanistan have resulted in many more military families calling upon grandmothers and grandfathers to raise their grandchildren while their military parents are deployed overseas for long periods. Strong families and loving mothers make this possible, if not desirable.

Often mothers with children also find themselves taking up a new and
