which will carry 5,400 passengers. This supersized cruise ship is twice the size of a Nimitz class aircraft carrier.

During a typical 1-week voyage, a large cruise ship (with 3,000 passengers and crew) is estimated to generate 210,000 gallons of sewage; 1 million gallons of graywater (wastewater from sinks, showers, and laundries); more than 130 gallons of hazardous wastes; and 8 tons of solid waste. A large cruise ship will also generate more than 25,000 gallons of oily bilge water (oil and chemicals from engine maintenance that collect in the bottom of ships and are toxic to marine life).

We all know what happens when untreated sewage is dumped through accident or failure: It damages the environment. Beaches are closed. Swimmers and surfers get sick from a number of diseases. Americans have come to expect that the sewage they create is regulated and that cities will not dump untreated sewage into the water. When sewage spills occur, Americans expect that they will be quickly informed and protected.

Isn't it reasonable to think that these ships should be subject to the same wastewater regulations as those governing municipalities of comparable size? I think so. Is it our responsibility to enact the policies which will ensure that these floating cities do not cause damage to our marine environment? With 75 percent of the passengers going through U.S. ports, it is our duty.

While many cruise ship companies have environmental policies and agreements in place, many are voluntary with no monitoring or enforcement provisions. Unfortunately, I am all too familiar with the down-side to voluntary agreements. In my district a cruise ship—breaking its voluntary agreement—illegally discharged 36,000 gallons of sewage into the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary in 2002.

Simply put, voluntary agreements between cruise lines and States are not enough to ensure protection of our oceans. The public deserves more than industry's claims of environmental performance. We need a Federal law and we need it now. It's time we strengthen the environmental regulations and in so doing, bring these floating cities in line with current pollution treatment standards. The Clean Cruise Ship Act of 2008 is the answer.

The legislation that I am introducing today has bipartisan support and is endorsed by many local and national groups, plugs existing loopholes in Federal laws, bans the dumping of wastewater within 12 miles of shore, bans the dumping of hazardous waste, sewage sludge and incinerator ash in U.S. waters, requires ships to treat their wastewater wherever they operate, and authorizes broadened inspection and enforcement authority.

Several States including California, Alaska, and Maine, have enacted legislation to better regulate various cruise ship wastes—similar to the legislation I am introducing today. In fact, I am proud to report that California is leading the country in protecting its coastal waters from cruise ship pollution.

Now I would like to mention another way in which ships may damage our coasts: aquatic invasive species that slip into our lakes and coastal waters in discharged ballast water. Alien species that have escaped into U.S. waters are causing massive harm. We have to do everything in our power to prevent new invasive species from getting loose. With this in mind, many of us have been closely watching court cases surrounding the Environmental Protection Agency's responsibility for regulating ballast water under the Clean Water Act. That litigation may have implications for cruise ship wastewater pollution.

I do not intend for this bill or these comments to interfere with or undermine the provisions of the Clean Water Act that deal with discharges of pollution into the Nation's waters. I have always supported and continue to support the Clean Water Act. It will continue to be an important tool that, in conjunction with the Clean Cruise Ship Act, can significantly reduce wastewater pollution from cruise ships.

Passing the Clean Cruise Ship Act of 2008 is one of the ways to provide all States with the kinds of ocean and coastal protections that the people of California, Alaska, and Maine benefit from. Enacting this bill will protect the tourism industry by making sure that the beaches and oceans, two of the attractions that make California the most visited State in our country, will be protected from cruise ship pollution. Simply put, this legislation ensures two things: (1) a sustainable future for our oceans, and (2) a sustainable future for the cruise and tourism industry.

This legislation promotes the public interest for all Americans. The public expects and deserves clean water—both in our inland water—ways and in our oceans. The Clean Cruise Ship Act of 2008, through its discharge regulations, will give the public what it deserves.

In closing, Madam Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support this critically important legislation.

TRIBUTE TO JERRY DWYER

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 9, 2008

Mr. LATHAM. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and congratulate Jerry Dwyer of Clear Lake, Iowa, for earning the Federal Aviation Administration Wright Brothers Master Pilot award and the Charles Taylor Master Mechanic award.

Jerry began flying at age 13 and earned his student pilot rating at age 16, the same year he became an apprentice aircraft and engine mechanic. He has also obtained commercial pilot and aircraft transport pilot certificates. At the age of 77, Jerry remains a licensed pilot and mechanic and is the president of Dwyer Aircraft Sales Inc.

It is very uncommon for a pilot to receive both awards in a lifetime, especially at the same time. Jerry received the FAA awards at the FAA ceremonies in Ames, lowa earlier this year. The Wright Brothers Award recognizes pilots who have practiced and promoted safe flight for 50 consecutive years. The Taylor award recognizes the lifetime accomplishments of senior mechanics.

I know that my colleagues in the United States Congress join me in commending Jerry Dwyer for his leadership and dedication to aviation safety. I consider it an honor to represent Jerry in Congress, and I wish him the best in his future endeavors.

IN HONOR OF THE ITALIAN CULTURAL GARDEN

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 9, 2008

Mr. KUCINICH. Madam Speaker, and colleagues, I rise today in honor and recognition of the Italian Cultural Garden, within which the beautiful and ancient notes of Italian Opera, will be heard in the garden for the first time since 1943.

The Italian Cultural Garden was formally opened on October 12, 1930, in honor of the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of the Italian poet, Virgil. Clevelander, business owner and Italian American Philip Garbo led the effort to create the garden. His expertise in the areas of Renaissance art, along with his commitment to keeping his Italian heritage vibrant in Cleveland, is reflected throughout the garden.

Visitors to the Italian Cultural Garden are awestruck by the magnificent sandstone towers that mark the entrance. Once inside, exquisite stone walkways and staircases wind through landscapes that meander throughout the two-level garden. On the lower level, a stone wall fountain adds elegance to a reflective courtyard of circular stone. The fountain is flanked on either side by the countenances that highlight Italian brilliance: Giotto, Michelangelo, Petrarca, Verdi, da Vinci and Marconi.

Madam Speaker and colleagues, please join me in celebration and recognition of the Cleveland Italian Cultural Garden. On Friday, June 27, 2008, the ancient melodies of Italian opera will once again rise above the falling water, light, flora and stone in the Italian Cultural Garden. The ancient art of opera celebrates the history of Italian culture—a culture that covets and encourages artistic discovery; a culture that understands the significance of historical preservation; and a culture that continues to offer significant contributions to Cleveland, to our country and to the world.

EXPRESSING SUPPORT OF THE THURGOOD MARSHALL RESOLUTION

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 9, 2008

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to express my support of the Thurgood Marshall Resolution that recognizes the 100th birthday of Thurgood Marshall, introduced by Congressman DONALD M. PAYNE.

Thurgood Marshall was one of the America's most important leaders of the civil rights revolution and architects of affirmative action. Being born as a grandson of a slave in Baltimore, MD, Marshall grew to become the Nation's first African-American Supreme Court justice and a recognized fighter for equal rights and integration. Marshall, who was rejected by the University of Maryland Law School because of his race when he applied, eventually earned his law degree from Howard University. And again, when he was refused the opportunity to practice law, he became the lead attorney for the Legal Defense Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Marshall firmly believed that only through racial integration could equality of opportunity be achieved for blacks and whites in our society. Throughout his life Thurgood Marshall worked to abolish the legacy of slavery and eliminate the racist segregation system. His most famous successful legal case, Brown v. Board of Education, created historic precedent and stopped the separation of black and white children in public school. The victories of his Supreme Court cases led to enormous accomplishments for the American people in the areas of housing, education and voting.

In recognizing the 100th anniversary of Thurgood Marshall's birthday, we are not only honoring his life and superior accomplishments, but also continuing his noble mission. This great man's lifelong struggle to end racial bias and discrimination is highly meaningful and inspiring. Marshall fought for legal protection of children, women, elderly, homeless and prisoners. His role in ending legally sanctioned inequality and segregation which had created an American apartheid was of critical importance and deserves the Nation's recognition.

TRIBUTE TO RICHARD LOUDEN

HON. MARILYN N. MUSGRAVE

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, July 9, 2008

Mrs. MUSGRAVE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Richard Louden, a lifelong rancher, historian, and community servant.

Richard Louden was born in Branson, Colorado, on September 2, 1920, to R.D. "Dick" and Zita Louden. He graduated from Branson High School and shortly after earned an associate of arts degree from Trinidad Jr. College. He then earned a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Colorado and the University of Missouri.

When his country became involved in World War II, Louden served in the U.S. Signal Corps and Air Force. After the war, he returned to the family ranch and married Grace Wakefield. The couple had one child, their son Mack.

Richard's interest in history and his love for the high mesas and extensive prairies of his native land led him to a continuing study of southeastern Colorado. His articles on ranching and agriculture were published in the Arkansas Valley Journal, the Chronicle-News, Cattle Guard, and Colorado Magazine. In the 1950s, Richard joined the Colorado Archaeological Society, and went on to become its president. He was fundamental to the establishment of the Louden-Henritze Archaeology Museum, which bears his name. He also served as president of the Trinidad Historical Society, and as a founding member of the A.R. Mitchell Museum of Western Art.

Mr. Louden was heavily involved in his son's school, and he served as president of the school board for 16 years. His knowledge and commitment to the community made him a respected figure on both the State and local level, resulting in his recognition with numerous honors by the organizations he served or impacted. These awards include the Colorado Board of Community Colleges Achievement and Service Award, the Chenoweth Award for Community Service, the Honored Alumni Award at Trinidad St. Jr. College, Kiwanis Citizen of the Year, and the Colorado Community College and Occupational Educational Alumni Hall of Fame.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to honor the memory of Richard Louden, who led a life of service to his family, his community, and to this country.

EDITORIAL HAILS CARICOM CON-FERENCE A SUCCESS BUT LEAD-ERS NEED TO FOLLOW-UP

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, July 9, 2008

Mr. RANGEL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to enter into the RECORD an editorial by Tony

Best published on June 23, 2008 in the New York Carib News, entitled: "Caribbean Community Conference in New York Had Its Successes but Effective Follow-up Needed by CARICOM States and Their Leaders."

By all accounts, the Conference was a success. With the Caribbean leaders leaving New York having made powerful connections with the financial community and the New York Stock Exchange, one of the biggest successes was New York City Comptroller Bill Thompson's announcement that New York City pension funds will soon be investing in the region. There is also news of an expanded educational exchange and cooperative agreements between Medgar Evers College and the University of the West Indies.

Despite the high hopes that are a result of the conference, there is some skepticism that Caribbean leaders will hold up their end of the bargain. "One thing is certain: any success would depend on an efficient and well coordinated follow-up, something the region itself has failed to do on many occasions," says Tony Best, the New York Carib News editorial writer. Now that the conference is over, the ball lies in CARICOM's court and it is up to them to make sure that the relationships established during the meetings lead to tangible results in the Caribbean. I remain ready to do whatever I am able to facilitate the full flowering of the promising relationships that were established at the conference.

TRIBUTE TO CHRISTY DEMARIS

HON. TOM LATHAM

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 9, 2008

Mr. LATHAM. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize a great achievement by Christy DeMaris, a Girl Scout from Huxley, Iowa. Christy convinced customers to buy extra boxes of Girl Scout cookies so she could send the boxes to our troops in Iraq.

As Christy sold Girl Scout cookies to her customers, she politely asked them if they would be willing to purchase extra boxes to be sent to troops in Iraq. She amassed 172 boxes to be sent to American troops. Christy's mother, Mandi, came up with the idea after hearing of a Boy Scout who sent popcorn to soldiers overseas. Christy was very excited about the idea because her father, John, works as a civilian computer systems administrator in Iraq, keeping the e-mail system working for American soldiers. So Christy put the plan into action and made it a success.

Christy DeMaris is a shining example of the generosity present in today's youth and their promise as tomorrow's leaders. I am proud to represent Christy and her parents John and Mandi in the United States Congress. I know that my colleagues join me in congratulating Christy for her efforts to make brighter days for our American soldiers and I wish her and her family the best in their future endeavors.
