NATIONAL PEACE CORPS WEEK

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 12, 2008

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I would like to take a minute to recognize an enduring legacy of John F. Kennedy—the Peace Corps—in recognition of its 47th anniversary this year and to commend 44 constituents from Northern Virginia currently serving in 38 countries around the world. It is an honor to serve with the likes of my colleague and friend CHRIS SHAYS and others in this body and the other who served our country in the enhancement of citizen diplomacy. I hope all Americans will join us in supporting and expanding this enduring commitment to convey our values as a nation.

As Fareed Zakaria wrote: “We must begin to think about life after Bush—a cheering prospect for his foes, a dismaying one for his fans (however few there may be at the moment). In 10 months he will be a private citizen, giving speeches to insurance executives. America, however, will have to move on and restore its place in the world. To do this we must first tackle the consequences of our foreign policy of fear. Having spooked ourselves into believing that we have no option but to act fast, alone, unilaterally and preemptively, we have managed in six years to destroy decades of international good will, alienate allies, embolden enemies and yet solve few of the major international problems we face.”

The London Financial Times last December reported that the U.S. has suffered a significant loss of power and prestige around the world in the years since the beginning of this century, limiting our ability to influence international crises, according to an annual survey from a well regarded British security think-tank. The 2007 Strategic Survey of the non-partisan International Institute for Strategic Studies picked the decline of U.S. authority as one of the most important security developments of the past year—but suggested the fading of American prestige began earlier, largely due to its failings in Iraq.

One of our most special and effective citizen agencies of public diplomacy is the Peace Corps. Think of this—more than 187,000 volunteers have served this venerable legacy of former President Kennedy, serving in 139 countries—where they bring our values to other peoples, and bring understanding and appreciation of other cultures back home.

The greatest gift of the Peace Corps and other civilian programs is not just that ordinary Americans share their values and our culture with other peoples, but also that when volunteers return, they bring greater understanding and appreciation of other cultures.

Foreign policy is not just what we do, but also who we are. America as a place has often been the great antidote to U.S. foreign policy—and it should be again. Mr. Zakaria writes that “When American actions across the world have seemed harsh, misguided or unfair, America itself has always been open, welcoming and tolerant * * *

At the end of the day, our openness is our greatest foreign policy. We have succeeded not because of the ingenuity of our government, but rather because of efforts like this unique program to keep ourselves open to the world—to sending our people out across the countries of the world to share our unique culture, our goods and services, our ideas and inventions, our people and cultures. This openness, this civilian diplomacy, has allowed us to make friends across boundaries. It will be central to our place as a Nation in the future.

This week, as we celebrate National Peace Corps Week, we honor the more than 190,000 volunteers who have served in 139 developing countries since President Kennedy's call to service in 1961—and I honor 44 of my constituents currently serving our country in places as diverse as China, Mali, Azerbaijan, Macedonia, El Salvador, and Namibia. This can be lonely and demanding service but service that can create enduring friendships and values that transcend boundaries and cultures.

Today, more than 8,000 Peace Corps volunteers around the world are currently providing training and education in 74 countries. These volunteers each donate their time and skills for over two years, in order to make a difference in the world and to promote understanding between cultures. By offering their valuable skills and showing a passion for helping others, they show the world that Americans value learning and cross-cultural exchange.

Volunteers work in areas of education, health and HIV/AIDS, business development, environment, agriculture and youth, and must often be creative and flexible when living and working in new cultures and learning new languages. The resulting experience is rewarding for all involved, and it highlights the importance of cooperation and involvement between cultures around the globe.

When volunteers return home and share their overseas experiences with their communities, the Peace Corps helps Americans as much as the people in developing countries. From recent college graduates to doctors with decades of experience, volunteers choose to use their valuable skills and education to help people all over the world, but their work affects their lives long after returning home.

This week we remember the dedication and passion of Peace Corps volunteers, young and old, current and returned. We thank them for their service, and encourage more Americans to volunteer with the Peace Corps.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO ROBERT CONGDON

HON. JON C. PORTER-

OF NEVADA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 12, 2008

Mr. PORTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor United States Army Staff Sergeant Robert Congdon, for his heroic efforts in saving five lives while under heavy enemy gunfire on January 18, 2008 in Iraq.

Robert is a native of the Las Vegas community. He is a graduate of Bonanza High School. He was a former local lifeguard, paramedic, and is currently an active member of the United States Army. Robert is currently stationed in Georgia, where his wife Bonnie and two year old daughter Samantha reside.

Robert's parents, Margaret and Gary Congdon reside in Las Vegas, Nevada along with his sister, Crystal Hill. His younger brother Michael is also in the United States Army and he is stationed in Sparks, Nevada.

Robert is currently on his second tour in Iraq. His first was with the 101st Airborne Division. On January 18, 2008, Robert was caught dodging bullets from a sniper while trying to rescue five soldiers wounded from a roadside blast on a Stryker armored vehicle. He found himself close enough to the blast to race toward his wounded comrades, and was able to avoid any other improvised explosive devices that might be nearby. Robert successfully rescued three of the wounded, and on his way back for the two remaining wounded soldiers, a sniper opened fire. He alerted other military personnel in the vicinity about the situation at hand, but he knew that he had to help his two remaining comrades to safety because of the severity of their wounds. Robert and medical personnel assisted in dragging the two men nearly the distance of a football field and bringing them to safety.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to honor United States Army Staff Sergeant Robert Congdon for his dedication to the United States Army, and dedication to his comrades. His leadership is a true testament of his honor and devotion to our nation. I am proud to represent this hero and the many others from the great state of Nevada.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO IRVING
JOSEPH SCHWARTZ

HON. JON C. PORTER—

OF NEVADA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 12, 2008

Mr. PORTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Irving Joseph Schwartz for his service to the United States Military, and his admirable accomplishments and contributions to our country.

Mr. Schwartz was assigned to the 82nd airborne, where he parachuted into Normandy in 1944 six days before the invasion. Due to his great efforts in this battle, he was awarded with the Silver Star for Gallantry in Action, the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge, and Parachute Badge with two Bronze Stars for his combat jumps. He also received the European Campaign Badges, along with the Pacific Campaign ribbons.

Today, Mr. Schwartz dedicates countless hours assisting Jewish War Veterans that are down on their luck, as well as homeless veterans. He is a past National Service Officer for the Military Order of the Purple Heart, and is currently involved with the Purple Heart group throughout the Las Vegas Valley. Mr. Schwartz will be 90 on April 19, 2008.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to honor the accomplishments of Irving Joseph Schwartz, and commend his dedication to the veterans throughout the Las Vegas Valley. I wish him the best of luck in his future endeavors.

THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

HON. MICHELE BACHMANN

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 12, 2008

Mrs. BACHMANN. Madam Speaker, the 20th century was a time of unprecedented, historic gains in human rights, freedom, and democracy. But it was also a century of unprecedented oppression, carnage and bloodshed.

Millions of families were exiled, tortured and executed because of their faiths, their beliefs, and their ancestries. Countless innocents were marched to camps, slaughtered in streets, and had their blood spilled as though it were nothing more than water. This religious and ethnic genocide is a permanent stain on the history of man.

From 1915 to 1923, Armenians were expelled from their 2,500-year homeland by the Ottoman Empire. To achieve this travesty, the Ottomans murdered 1.5 million innocent adults and children, and raped and brutalized many more. Yet to this day, this act of genocide has been widely overlooked. In fact, it is officially denied by today's Turkish government. This is unacceptable.

As we pledge ourselves to fighting evil and preventing genocide in our modern world, we must keep the past alive. For if we allow ourselves to forget the unthinkable crimes of the 20th century, mankind will be condemned to bear witness to many more.

As we dedicate ourselves today to ending the cycle of genocide, it's important to realize that education is a crucial step in preventing future horror. Groups like the Armenian National Committee of America and others work hard to raise this critical awareness, and I pray that the monstrous horrors of yesterday and today are all the lesson we ever need to end the cycle of death and suffering.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO JIM CAVALIERI

HON. JON C. PORTER—

OF NEVADA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 12, 2008

Mr. PORTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor my friend Jim Cavalieri, who is retiring after twenty years of service in the Henderson Fire Department.

Mr. Cavalieri was raised in Henderson, NV where he has resided for fifty-four years. Jim is an alumnus of Basic Elementary School and also attended Basic High School, where he met his wife, Lorna, of thirty-five years. Jim joined the department in 1987 as a firefighter. He would later serve as a paramedic, captain, and deputy fire chief. Jim was selected as Henderson's Fire Chief in May 2001 after thirteen years of service within that department. As fire chief, Jim provided knowledge, experience, and leadership to the department. He led the Henderson Fire Department to receive its accreditation from the Commission on Fire Accreditation International (CFAI) in 2004.

Mr. Cavalieri is a member of several professional organizations, including Southern Nevada Fire Chiefs Association, Nevada Fire Chiefs Association, and the International Association of Fire Chiefs. Jim is active in his church as well as in community service where he has served as a leader in the Boy Scouts of America.

Madam Speaker, I am proud to honor my friend Jim Cavalieri. His efforts in helping assist the residents of Henderson, Nevada are commendable. I congratulate him on this prestigious award and wish him the best of luck in his much deserved retirement.

ONE OF HOUSTON'S FINEST: OFFICER AL AMATO

HON. TED POE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 12, 2008

Mr. POE. Madam Speaker, police officers dedicate their lives to keeping our streets and communities secure. They selflessly venture into dangerous situations every day and put their lives on the line so that the rest of us can sleep safely. Houston Senior Police Officer Alphonso "Al" Amato, Jr., is one of those elite individuals, who dedicated his entire career to protecting the innocent from evil-doers.

Officer Amato enrolled in the Houston Police Academy in 1981. His first assignment upon graduation was with the Patrol Division of the Houston Police Department. One of his more notable experiences occurred when he was testifying against an aggravated robbery defendant in the 177th District Court. While he was testifying, the defendant jumped up and threw his chair at the prosecutor. Officer Amato responded, like any top-notch officer would, and without giving it a second thought, jumped up and immediately took the defendant into custody. He was later prosecuted as the trial continued.

Officer Amato has been responsible for removing dangerous outlaws from the streets of Houston. In 1983, he began working on cases involving juveniles and spent the majority of his career working in the Juvenile Division of the police force. While working in the Juvenile Sex Crimes Unit, he investigated more than 1,000 child exploitation cases. Time and again, he has successfully arrested the worst kind of criminal, the one who preys on innocent children.

He has a knack for difficult cases and has taken on the most challenging, where little or no information has been available. Each time, he managed to track down the criminals and bring them to justice.

Not only does Officer Amato have fine-tuned investigative skills, he is also known for his ability to manage a crime scene. He always kept order, even in the most difficult situations, while questioning the involved parties.

During his many years of dedicated service, he has received countless commendations, expressions of appreciation, Unit Citations, an FBI recognition for Task Force and Sting Operations, a U.S. Marshal recognition for Gang Task Force involvement and a Houston Fire Department recognition. He is also well respected throughout the community and among his peers.

Officer Amato's family has a history of service. His father served in the military. Before becoming a law enforcement officer, Officer Amato served in the United States Air Force in Vietnam for 4 years. After his time in the military, he joined the Federal Protective Services and was there until 1977, when he left to join the Chicago Police Department. He stayed in Chicago until 1981 and then began his career with the Houston Police Department. This year, he is retiring from a distinguished career after more than 26 years of service.

According to his fellow officers, Officer Amato served the citizens of Houston with pride, honor and commitment. He is known as an upstanding citizen, a patriotic American and a devoted law enforcement officer.

I would also like to recognize the contributions of Al's wife, Sandy, and daughter, Raven. I commend them for persevering over the difficult job of their loved one serving as a law enforcement officer. Many of the most successful officers have a significant family support system behind the scenes.

On the date of his retirement, March 21, 2008, I congratulate and thank Senior Police Officer Al Amato for wearing the badge of a Texas lawman with distinction while serving the people of Houston. Future law enforcement officers can learn by the example of Officer Amato and realize that one person truly can make a difference.

And that's just the way it is.
