Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am joined by my colleague from Michigan, Senator STABENOW, in introducing a resolution today honoring the 40th anniversary of Focus: HOPE. This resolution was initiated in the House by Representative JOHN CONYERS and cosponsored by the entire Michigan Congressional delegation.

Focus: HOPE, a civil and human rights organization, was founded by the late Father William T. Cunningham and Eleanor Josaitis in the aftermath of the 1967 Detroit riots in one of Detroit's most economically depressed areas. This outstanding organization has established itself as an integral part of the history and fabric of southeast Michigan. The mission of Focus: HOPE is "to use intelligent and practical action to fight racism, poverty and injustice" and that mission is as important today as it was when the organization was founded in 1968.

Over the ensuing 40 years, Focus: HOPE has sought to effect positive change in southeast Michigan. I have been honored to witness and take part in the evolution of this fine organization. Education and job training has been at the core of these efforts. By bringing together businesses, foundations, government and individuals in the community, Focus: HOPE has truly made a difference in Detroit and across the state of Michigan and has grown into one of the largest nonprofits in the State. Focus: HOPE has sought to meet the needs of southeast Michigan in a comprehensive fashion through a number of highly successful programs, including the Machinist Training Institute, the Center for Advanced Technology, the Fast Track program, the Center for Children and the Commodity Supplemental Food Program.

Real and meaningful change comes from sustained and committed service. Over the past 40 years, Focus: HOPE has embodied this principle and, along the way, has touched many lives in Southeast Michigan in a profound way. Equipping individuals with the ability to compete and thrive in workplaces that are increasingly technologically advanced is central to its mission. The reward has been thousands of heartwarming success stories from those who have benefitted from the many services Focus: HOPE provides.

This momentous occasion will be marked by several celebrations, including one in the Mansfield Room of the Capitol later today. I know my colleagues join me in congratulating each individual that has contributed to the success of Focus: HOPE from its inception. I wish the organization many more years of successful and committed service to the community.
