

COMMEMORATING THE LIFE OF EDWARD JOSEPH KELLY III

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise with a very sad duty today. As the chairwoman of the Transportation Security and Infrastructure Protection Committee on Homeland Security, I rise to pay tribute to the late Edward Joseph Kelly III, who passed away this month.

He was born October 1, 1942, in New York. He joined the Navy and served his country and graduated from the University of Scranton in 1967, and he retired as vice president and controller of Emery Worldwide in 2000.

He truly is an American hero, for after 9/11 he could not sit still. In response to that horrific tragedy, Mr. Kelly left retirement to join the Department of Homeland Security, signing on as the first general manager of the air cargo security for the Federal Transportation Security Administration, whose mission is securing the Nation's transportation network.

Air cargo industry officials have indicated and gone on record to say he transformed the industry. If future airline passengers feel safe about what is carried in the belly of a cargo plane, then they should credit Mr. Kelly. Officials who worked with him said that he was an impeccable professional. He loved this country. Yes, a Navy man. And the president of the Cargo Security Alliance said that he was front and center on this work.

Madam Speaker, his contributions were immeasurable. He is a great American hero. I pay tribute to this distinguished American, Edward Joseph Kelly III. Thank you, and may you rest in peace.

Madam Speaker, I wish to take this time to commemorate the life of a great American, and an outstanding public servant—Edward Joseph Kelly III, who died Saturday at Inova Alexandria Hospital of Legionnaires' pneumonia.

He was born Oct. 1, 1942, in New York, the third child and oldest son of the late Edward and Jessie Cobane Kelly. Mr. Kelly completed service in the Navy before graduating from the University of Scranton in 1967, and retired as vice president and controller of Emery Worldwide in 2000.

In response to 9/11, Mr. Kelly left retirement to join the Department of Homeland Security, signing on as the first general manager of air cargo security for the Federal Transportation Security Administration, whose mission is securing the Nation's transportation network.

Air cargo industry officials have gone on record saying he had transformed their industry. If future airline passengers feel secure that the commercial cargo in the belly of their flight will not blow up or poison them, they should credit Mr. Kelly, officials said. Walt Beadling, president of the Cargo Security Alliance, a trade group, told reporters "He's been front and center in this work of implementing the plan to secure air cargo." Acting TSA administrator Gale D. Rossides wrote in an e-mail to employees, "Ed's contributions to TSA are immeasurable."

He was responsible for implementing a Federal law that requires screening of all cargo transported by flights originating in the United States by next August. The voluntary system established by Mr. Kelly and his team shifted screening responsibility to shippers before cargo reach airports. TSA certifies shippers and their facilities.

His friendships span the globe. He and his wife, Ann, enjoyed a network of family and friends on many continents and most loved returning home to Lake Ariel and Ireland. He loved the sea and spent his early retirement years traveling by boat from San Francisco, to Newport, R.I. On this trip, he and Ann bravely cruised the Pacific coasts of California, Mexico and Central America, passed through the Panama Canal into the Atlantic and crossed the Caribbean Sea.

He is survived by his wife and three sons, Edward IV and wife, Sasithorn, Bangkok, Thailand; Packy and wife, Robyn, Redwood Shores, Calif.; and Daniel and wife, Crissy, Fairfield, Conn.; three sisters, Maureen Kelly Dufour, Kathleen Kelly Hoban and Rosemary Kelly Morgan; three grandchildren, Devin, Mairead and Catherine; several nieces and nephews.

That is why I stand here today—to offer my condolences to Mr. Kelly's family, and gratitude for his public service.

DEBT CEILING

(Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Madam Speaker, it is a darn good thing that the credit reporting agencies don't factor in each American's share of the national debt when they calculate an individual's credit scores. If the agencies did, there would be quite a few otherwise-eligible borrowers who couldn't get a mortgage or a car loan.

Think about that. I wonder why they don't include the national debt? Perhaps it's because no one seems to think it's real. Madam Speaker, it is real.

Last year, America spent $250 billion in interest payments alone, $250 billion. That's $250 billion a year we cannot invest in America's future. Yet, in spite of this situation, Congress is preparing to increase the debt again by another $1.8 trillion. Attaching it to a must-pass Defense bill holds our troops hostage. And it might be convenient politics, but our country deserves much better.

Congress should use the TARP returns to pay down the debt and redirect the failed stimulus money to tax reforms that actually work. Wouldn't that be unique?

GLOBAL WARMING

(Mr. QUIGLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, coal miners used to keep a canary with them to let them know when the air was getting dangerous. Today, we have much more sophisticated measurements, but the concept is still the same: The canary is dying.

Over 200 peer-reviewed studies have concluded that global warming is real and potentially catastrophic. No scientific peer-reviewed studies have found the opposite. None. But some of my colleagues have seized on a few illegally hacked e-mails to convince themselves that the little bird is fine. Well, that must be comforting, except it ignores the nasty case of asthma from increased emissions and the tiny bits of soot that thicken the canary's blood and boost harmful inflammation.

Watching my colleagues hold the canary like Monty Python's dead parrot would be funny if it were just an imaginary bird, but it's not a canary we're killing with increased emissions. It's our children.

And that's the way it will always be.

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, breast cancer mammograms have been in the news with concern for Federal Government guidelines on who should have a mammogram and at what age.

More relevant is the fact that breast cancer is the most common cancer among American women next to skin cancers. The American Cancer Society estimates that 40,170 women will die from breast cancer in 2009.

As daunting as that figure is, there is another figure that tells the story. At this time, there are more than 2.5 million breast cancer survivors in the United States.

Death rates from breast cancer have been declining since about 1990. The decreases are believed to be the result of earlier detection through screening and increased awareness, as well as improved treatment.

Guidelines are simply that. Every woman should talk to her physician about her past history and current health to determine the frequency of mammogram exams.

This disease touches us all. I doubt there is anyone here who doesn't have a relative who has suffered from breast cancer. In this season of giving, encourage your loved ones to talk to their physicians and have screening tests as often as they suggest. It will save lives.

WHITE HOUSE CONSIDERS BUSINESSES THE ENEMY

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Madam Speaker, the White House considers business owners the opposition, but don't take my word for it. In his autobiography,

Mr. Obama wrote that when he worked in the business world, he felt like a “spy behind enemy lines.”

So it's no surprise that as President, he has appointed fewer people with business backgrounds to Cabinet positions than any other President in over a century, according to an analysis by J.P. Morgan. Maybe that explains why the President favors government control of the health care, energy, automobile, banking, insurance, and student loan industries.

Perhaps the administration has forgotten that without employers, there would be no employees, and that small businesses generate 65 percent of the new jobs in America. It is the private sector, not the government, that makes America productive and prosperous. Business owners are our friends, not the enemy.

RUNAWAY SPENDING

(Mr. INGLIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. INGLIS. Madam Speaker, this week follows a surreal week last week. Last week, we did an omnibus bill that spends $446.8 billion. That's on top of the $634.2 billion from other discretionary spending. Those are increases of 7.6 percent over 2009 levels and 16.8 percent over 2008 levels. This is on top of the mandatory spending programs like Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid.

That is why this week the surrealness will continue as the majority will find it necessary to increase the debt limit from $12 trillion, which is 20 percent of GDP. They will raise it by another $2 trillion.

Madam Speaker, we must stop the runaway train. We must stop the runaway spending.

RECOGNIZING THE SACRIFICE OF OUR NAVY SEALS AND THE INJUSTICE CURRENTLY OCCURRING

(Mr. BOOZMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOOZMAN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the valor, sacrifice, and contribution of the United States Navy SEALs and to bring attention to a great injustice.

Our SEALs routinely defend our Nation in some of the most dangerous places in the world, sacrificing their lives for their mission and our country; yet recently, three of our SEALs have been forced to defend their honor.

The alleged mastermind of the brutal murder of four American security contractors claims that these SEALs punched him in the stomach while he was being detained under supervision. Despite reports that he was armed at the time, he was captured without the SEALs firing a shot. Because of the accusation, these SEALs opted to have a court martial rather than a nonjudicial punishment that would have essentially been an admission of guilt.

Rather than a trial, we should be giving these guys a medal. I am pleased that these men will have the opportunity to defend their honor and confidence that justice will be served. At this time, we must not waste the time and resources of our Armed Forces on political correctness and facts based on hearsay of terrorists and other people who wish our country harm.

GIVING A VOICE TO TEA PARTY ACTIVIST

(Mr. McCAUL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. McCAUL. Madam Speaker, tonight I want to give a voice to one of my constituents by the name of Jennifer Heiden. She is a TEA party activist. She wrote me a letter. She said, “My name is Jennifer Heiden. I am a wife, a daughter, a mother, a sister, business professional, and grassroots leader.

“We are dismayed at this Congress and its proposed health care legislation. You stress accountability and transparency, but fail to disclose to the American people that its 20-year costs are in the $4.9 trillion price range once you cut through the budget gimmicks. You avoid town halls and citizen gatherings since you found that we had questions you could not or would not answer. And you draft bills in secret and give no one sufficient time to read them or understand them.

“The majority of Americans do not want this bill, and you know it. Do what this country elected you to do. Scrap this legislation and give us health care reform that will help—not hurt—this country and its citizens.”

WE MUST STOP UNNECESSARY SPENDING

(Mrs. SCHMIDT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SCHMIDT. Madam Speaker, I rise once again to remind this body that we must stop the unbridled spending that continues to raise our deficit.

We have been reminded by Moody's that we are in jeopardy of losing our AAA rating by 2013 if we do not get our spending under control. Today, Bar-ron's echoed the same warning.

Our debt ceiling currently is $12 trillion. It is my understanding we are going to be asked to raise it an additional $2 trillion this week. Enough is enough. We must stop this unnecessary spending and stop it now before it is too late. We cannot spend our way into prosperity. I fear the results.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO COACH BOBBY BOWDEN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ALTMIRE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ALTMIRE. Madam Speaker, I rise tonight to pay tribute to Bobby Bowden, who will coach his last game on January 1. Coach Bowden will retire following the Gator Bowl, ending an amazing career as one of college football's most successful coaches.

Many of us may not realize that Bobby Bowden was an outstanding football player in his own right. He graduated from Woodlawn High School in Birmingham, and he achieved his dream of playing quarterback for the University of Alabama before transferring to Howard College, now Samford University.

After college, Bowden worked his way up to becoming head coach for 4 years at Samford, and he later was head coach for 6 years at West Virginia, but it's his 34 years as head coach at Florida State for which he will most be remembered.

In 1976, he took the reins of his Seminoles team that had gone winless the previous season. From that unlikely beginning, he built one of the powerhouses of modern college football. During his 34 years at the helm of Florida State, he led his teams to 31 bowl games, including the past 28 years in a row, during which he once went 14 consecutive bowl games without a loss. He was named coach of the year six times, and is already a member of college football's hall of fame. From 1987 to 2000, Bowden's Florida State teams compiled a streak of 14 consecutive years in the season-ending top 5. During that time, he coached two Heisman Trophy winners, and his Seminoles played in five national championship games, winning two.

It was in the beginning of that streak in the late 1980s that I first encountered Coach Bowden. As he did with so many, he left upon me an indelible impression. As a walk-on on the Seminole football team, I had the good fortune to see firsthand Coach Bowden's rare skill on the practice field, but it was his kindness and generosity away from football that I will most remember.

While serious about winning, with the results to prove it, what most stands out about Bobby Bowden is his love of people. Known for his down-to-Earth colloquialisms and disarming Southern drawl, he can charm even the most intense personality. He is never at a loss for words, and sportswriters across the country will surely miss his quick wit and accessibility.

On the Seminole practice squad, I occupied, perhaps, the lowest possible position on the team, yet Coach Bowden treated me and every player with respect. When you crossed paths with
