

came loud and clear that we need to reform Medicaid and ensure that that access really provides quality health care.

And, lastly, I would say that the message that we'd like to send out of that is that we know that it will cost a fair amount of money, but it's our health that we are talking about. We know that many people think or many of the pundits say that perhaps our President is trying to do too much, but we say we need all of it. And we stand with our President as he calls on us to reform our health care system or, rather, transform our health care system and ensure that quality health care is accessible, available to each and every American.

I just want to close with another quote from the Closing the Gap Report that was written in 2005 that addresses the issue of health inequities, and the quote says: "Inequities within the health care system and within larger social, environmental, and economic structures persist not because of a dearth of solutions but because of a failure of political will." And I call on my colleagues to let us develop that political will. Let us eliminate disparities that are causing the premature death of people of color, poor, and rural Americans in this country, and let's transform our health care system so that everyone has access to quality, comprehensive health care.
