HONORING THE COURAGE AND DE-TERMINATION OF VIRGIL HAW-KINS

HON. ALAN GRAYSON

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 24, 2010

Mr. GRAYSON. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the courageous civil rights hero Virgil Hawkins. Mr. Hawkins was the leader in the fight for the desegregation of Florida's universities. Mr. Hawkins is a true role model for his determination and personal sacrifice.

Born in 1906 in Okahumpka, Florida, Mr. Hawkins decided from a young age that he wanted to be a lawyer after witnessing the unfair treatment of African Americans in the judicial system. Mr. Hawkins graduated high school in Jacksonville, Florida, and attended Lincoln University in Pennsylvania. By the time Mr. Hawkins was 42, he had saved up enough money to attend law school by selling insurance and working as a school teacher. In 1949, he applied to the University of Florida Law School in Gainesville.

At the time Mr. Hawkins applied, it was against Florida law for African Americans and whites to attend school together. Mr. Hawkins was denied admission because of the color of his skin, not because he did not meet the qualifications. He decided to challenge this unjust practice by filing suit with the state Supreme Court. The state offered to pay Mr. Hawkins tuition for an out of state school, but he refused. To prevent similar lawsuits the state opened a law school for African Americans at the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical College (FAMC) for Blacks in Tallahassee. In 1952, the Florida Supreme Court dismissed his case, arguing he could attend FAMC. Mr. Hawkins turned to the United States Supreme Court and in 1956 the Court ordered the state of Florida to admit Mr. Hawkins to the University of Florida Law School. Initially, the state did not comply with the Supreme Court's order, citing the violence that would erupt if Mr. Hawkins was admitted. Finally, a district court judge ordered the University of Florida graduate school to open its doors to all qualified students, regardless of race. This was a major step forward in Mr. Hawkins's struggle; unfortunately, University of Florida claimed he was not qualified and did not admit him.

After a nine-year struggle to desegregate Florida universities, Mr. Hawkins attended the unaccredited New England School of Law in Boston, Massachusetts. Due to the lack of accreditation of the law school, he was not allowed to take the bar when he returned to Florida. Mr. Hawkins was not allowed to practice law and worked as a salesman, teacher, a public relations director, and as the director of a community action agency.

Holding on to his dream to practice law, at the age of 69, Mr. Hawkins asked the Florida Supreme Court to admit him to the Florida bar. In 1976, the court allowed Mr. Hawkins to become a lawyer without taking the bar examination. After spending 30 years fighting the discriminatory foundations in the educational system, Mr. Hawkins opened his own law firm in Leesburg, Florida.

Today the law library at the University of Florida is named the Virgil Hawkins Library in honor of the sacrifices he made in his struggle for justice and equality in the admissions processes of the state's university system. A monument honoring Virgil Hawkins stands in his hometown of Okahumpka, Florida, and is located a few blocks from his childhood home. These are just minor tributes to a man who contributed so much to the civil rights struggle in Central Florida, and America as a whole.

Madam Speaker, as Black History Month comes to a close, it is with great honor that I recognize the incredible activism of this civil rights leader. Mr. Hawkins's lifelong struggle for justice is inspirational to all future generations of Floridians, and Americans. As a fellow lawyer, I admire his dedication to seek justice and equal educational opportunities for all. Florida is indebted to Mr. Hawkins for the personal sacrifices and the pathways to equal access to education in the desegregation of our school systems.
