

Thank you, Herb.

I would now like to yield to the distinguished majority leader, Mr. HOYER.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the Speaker for yielding.

I have the honor of representing Herb in the Congress of the United States. He was born in Aquasco in April of 1936. In my view, he's a young man. For those of you who are much younger, I want you to know he's still a young man.

Herb, let me say to you, as the Speaker has pointed out, Herb has served with seven Speakers of the House, from Speaker Albert to Speaker PELOSI. For those of you in the Republican Cloakroom, I've had the opportunity to come over to your side, and I love the folks that you have working on your side. Like Herb, they treat us all alike. There are no Republicans or Democrats for them. They're just Members of Congress who serve together and work together on behalf of our country.

Herb, you have been a wonderful friend, and you have made everybody's day brighter every time they come in contact with you. You have been someone who has been so thoughtful, so courteous, so kind that all of us have been advantaged and our lives have been made better by your service. And Herb, as you leave—not our hearts, but this House, at least the Cloakroom—we know that you will hopefully come back from time to time and visit with us, and we will be again enriched with your presence and your demeanor.

We wish you God speed. And we say to you, thank you, good friend.

Mr. BAIRD changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

So the second portion of the divided question was adopted.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. BOREN. Mr. Speaker, I was absent when rollcall votes occurred for H.R. 4213—The American Jobs, Closing Tax Loopholes and Preventing Outsourcing Act. I was not present because I was attending a funeral for a family member.

If I would have been present for the rollcall votes listed below for H.R. 4213, I would have voted in the following manner:

1. Roll No. 324, On concurring in Senate amendment with amendment (except portion comprising section 523) Agreed to by the Yeas and Nays; 215–204. I would have voted "nay."

2. Roll No. 325, On concurring in Senate amendment with portion of amendment comprising section 523 Agreed to by recorded vote: 245–171. I would have voted "nay."

AMERICA COMPETES REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2010

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PAS-TOR of Arizona). Pursuant to clause 1(c) of rule XIX, proceedings will now resume on the bill (H.R. 5116) to invest in innovation through research and development, to improve the competitiveness of the United States, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will remind Members not to traffic the well.

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, our country faces a serious challenge. We are in danger of falling behind our global competitors in Europe and Asia in the critical fields of innovation and technology.

Our children have fallen behind the rest of the world in critical math and science skills. We lag behind other economic powers in our investment in research and science, and we rank 26th in broadband penetration worldwide.

The alarm bells are sounding—and we have a responsibility to future generations of Americans to respond.

That's why nearly 5 years ago we began to answer that call to arms. I joined with then-House Democratic Leader NANCY PELOSI and other colleagues to launch The Innovation Agenda: A Commitment to Competitiveness. The policy proposals we developed were the result of extensive consultation and meetings that began at Stanford University from the high-technology, biotechnology, venture capital and academic communities. It was a long-term strategy to invest in the critical areas of science and education to ensure that America will lead the world in innovation.

The original COMPETES legislation, which passed in 2007, contained the key elements of the Agenda.

That legislation laid the foundation for America's future success. It has prepared thousands of teachers in math and science. It doubled the funding for the National Science Foundation, the Department of Energy's Office of Science, NIST, and the Manufacturing Extension Partnership over 10 years. It established the new Advanced Research Projects Agency for Energy, ARPA-E, and funded high-risk, high-reward, pre-competitive technology development.

The reauthorization of COMPETES we are considering today keeps these investments in innovation on track.

I've already seen the benefits of the original COMPETES and other government funding first-hand in my District, the heart of Silicon Valley. The types of investments this bill makes have been the catalyst for some of the greatest innovators and drivers of our economy, including Google, Genentech, and Cisco. This legislation will fund the next generation of innovators to ensure that the 21st century is an American century.

Americans of my generation and that of my parents have always accepted it as an article of faith that the United States would lead the world in invention, ingenuity, and innovation. No matter what the challenge, America has risen to meet the competition and we have come out on top.

With this legislation, we renew our commitment to the generations to come that we will plant the seeds today to ensure America's growth in the future.

I applaud Chairman GORDON on this legislation and I strongly urge my colleagues to support the reauthorization of the COMPETES Act.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, as a cosponsor of the America COMPETES Reauthorization Act, I rise today in strong support of this legislation. In recent years we have watched as our country has fallen behind in educating our children for the 21st century and developing technology that our neighbors envy. Today's legislation will help to turn these trends around by making the strong investments necessary in research, education and manufacturing.

This bipartisan legislation reauthorizes our basic research programs and lays the groundwork for doubling funding levels for the National Science Foundation, the Department of Energy Office of Science and the National Institute of Standards and Technology. Funding through these programs has been critical to many of the faculty, staff, scientists and investigators in my district who rely on funding from these agencies to support their research. Research that has led to spin-offs such as A123, now a leader in advanced battery technology. America COMPETES also reauthorizes the Advanced Research Projects Agency for Energy, which has made great efforts at developing the energy technology of the future.

This research cannot be done without providing our students with the strong educational foundation necessary for a college education. This legislation will expand and improve STEM education from kindergarten to college through scholarships to train secondary teachers in STEM fields to teach in high need schools, provide grants to increase the number of students who pursue undergraduate degrees in STEM fields, and establish fellowships for recent doctoral degree candidates who can lead STEM education research and program development. America COMPETES will also help our colleges and universities to retain and recruit underrepresented groups in STEM fields. These are necessary improvements to ensure that the next generation of researchers, faculty, engineers, and entrepreneurs can compete with their counterparts abroad.

America COMPETES legislation will also provide critically needed help to our small- and medium-sized manufacturers who have been hard hit by the financial downturn. In order to improve competitiveness and access to capital, America COMPETES will provide Innovative Technology Federal Loan Guarantees for these manufacturers. To help manufacturers modernize, this legislation authorizes the National Science Foundation to support research needed for advances in manufacturing. To ensure manufacturers will have the skilled employees they need, the Manufacturing Extension Partnership Centers will be directed to work with local community colleges to ensure training programs fit the needs of local manufacturers. It will also reduce the cost share contribution for Manufacturing Extension Partnership program centers, which provides invaluable assistance to manufacturers by increasing their technological capabilities, instituting green or lean manufacturing techniques, and increasing their sales.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues all agree that our country has the best education system in the world and the most talented and innovative manufacturers and entrepreneurs. However, they cannot continue to compete with their foreign colleagues who have benefited from strong leadership and investment from their government and a clear plan for the path forward. The future success of our children and grandchildren depends on our government partnering with private industry in investing in the education and innovative technology of the 21st century. To truly compete with our neighbors abroad, we must pass the America COMPETES Reauthorization Act, which is why I urge my colleagues to vote "yes."

Mr. VAN HOLLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the America COMPETES Reauthorization Act.

Over the course of our nation's history, one of our greatest strengths has been our ability to innovate. We have led the world in scientific discovery, expanding the boundaries of knowledge and thinking creatively about difficult problems. However, in recent years, we have seen our technological edge diminish as other countries increase their investment in research and development.

In 2005, the National Academies released "Rising Above the Gathering Storm," warning that unless the United States made a serious commitment to science and technology, it would lose its competitive edge in the world economy.

We responded in a bipartisan way in 2007 with the original America COMPETES Act, a comprehensive investment in education, research, and small business. Today's bill continues and improves upon that approach. It invests in the American innovation economy, providing the resources necessary to create good, sustainable jobs at home and ensure that the United States remains at the forefront of discovery.

Importantly, this bill will double funding for basic research at the National Science Foundation, the Department of Energy Office of Science, and the labs at the National Institute of Standards and Technology, NIST, over 10 years. This funding provides the cornerstone of our nation's research and development efforts. It is vital that we have a stable, sustainable authorization path and that we fund it reliably so that our nation's researchers know that they have dependable support for long-term projects.

The America COMPETES Reauthorization Act will continue to assist our nation's manufacturers and businesses by strengthening the Manufacturing Extension Partnership at NIST, providing innovative technology federal loan guarantees for small- and medium-sized manufacturers, and coordinating with community colleges to ensure that there are good, regional pipelines of workers with the skills necessary to keep business moving. The Office of Innovation and Entrepreneurship at the Department of Commerce will assist businesses with commercializing the results of research to speed market application of new products.

The legislation also creates a new program to develop Regional Innovation Clusters, which will build up regional economies working within a given field by bolstering scientific collaboration between businesses and other entities. We will track the progress of these clusters to determine best practices for other regions.

And finally, this bill continues to recognize that our nation's long term success is dependent on the strength of our education system. It coordinates science, technology, engineering, and math, STEM, education efforts across the federal government, invests in grants and scholarships for college students pursuing STEM careers, and provides resources to diversify our future STEM workforce.

Mr. Speaker, I commend the House Committee on Science and Technology and its Chairman, BART GORDON, for their excellent work on this issue. I urge my colleagues to join me in voting for this important legislation.

Mr. GORDON of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the instructions of the House in the motion to recommend, I report the bill, H.R. 5116, back to the House with an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment.
