

Homeland Security (DHS), Department of Commerce (DOC), Department of Interior (DOI), as well as state and local representatives. Workers diligently worked to get the necessary equipment to coastal waters but there were delays that can't be ignored.

I commend our efforts to immediately respond to the disaster by passing H.R. 5503, the SPILL Act, to reform the following maritime liability laws: Death on the High Seas Act, Jones Act, and Limitation on Liability Act. These bills are to ensure the families of those killed or injured in the BP Spill and other similar tragedies are justly compensated. We also passed H.R. 5481 that gave subpoena power to the National Commission on the BP Deepwater Oil Spill and Offshore Drilling tasked with providing recommendations on how to prevent future oil spills that result from offshore drilling. Our efforts should not stop there.

Strides have been made to establish a clear chain of command and developing a coordinated and efficient response to disasters. But, there is much more that has to be done to avoid another oil spill of this magnitude. We must stay vigilant in evaluating our nation's capacity to respond to oil spills. Develop standard national protocols for oil spill response and clean up assessments and develop guidance and tools for oil spill responders. Establish direct research and take action to improve the ability of the United States to conduct oil spill prevention, response, and recovery in Arctic waters. Our civic responsibility is to learn from our mistakes and apply those lessons to future oil spills and other such disasters that unfortunately may occur.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the tragic two-year anniversary of the Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill. I urge this body to continue to introduce and support legislation that prevents and protects our environment, economy, and families from future unfortunate disasters that may occur.

He completed basic training at Fort Ord, and was selected to train as a musician with the Army Band Training Unit. Upon completion of band training, he was assigned to play the trombone with the 6th Army Band at Fort Mason in San Francisco. The band played for troops leaving and arriving by ship to and from the Far East, primarily Korea. Numerous Hollywood and local professional celebrities performed with the band.

Wanting to see a bit of the world, Sergeant Schnoor subsequently volunteered for duty with Army occupation troops in Japan. Upon arrival in Japan, Sergeant Schnoor was informed that although he had been trained as a musician, the Army considered him an infantryman first and a trombone player second. His next stop would be Inchon, Korea, carrying an M1 rifle and a pack.

While deployed in Inchon, Sergeant Schnoor joined the 5th Regiment of the legendary First Cavalry Division stationed near the front lines southeast of Seoul near Yong Dong Po. He was assigned to a fire team for a 75 MM recoilless rifle mounted on a 3/4 ton 4 x 4 utility truck. He and his fellow soldiers were sent on missions to deliver fire with high explosive rounds and armor piercing rounds on North Korean troops along the front lines.

Sergeant Schnoor served in North Korea until the truce was signed in 1954. After the conclusion of the war, he joined the rest of the First Cavalry Division in Hokkaido, Japan. The mission of the division was to serve as a deterrent to Russia from attempting to invade the Japanese islands of Northern Hokkaido. At the end of 1954, the 5th Regiment relocated to Sendai, Japan, where he joined the First Cavalry Band and Orchestra. He was recommended to audition for the U.S.O. Orchestra. After a competitive audition process, he was accepted. Sergeant Schnoor spent the remainder of his overseas service as one of three trombonists traveling in Japan playing U.S.O. shows for American servicemen.

Sergeant Schnoor returned to the U.S. in the spring of 1955. He was discharged as a Sergeant. For his service, he was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation, the Korean Service Medal, the United Nations Medal, the National Service Defense Medal, and the Good Conduct Medal. After his military service, Sergeant Schnoor returned to Chowchilla and began a career in farming that has continued for 56 years.
