

cessation of tobacco use. Lung cancer is the second-most diagnosed cancer and the most commonly fatal form of cancer for both men and women in our country.

Through comprehensive efforts of leading institutions our Nation teams up in the quest for more information, campaigns for prevention awareness, and researches and disseminates improved treatments. The American Association for Cancer Research, AACR, is the oldest and largest scientific organization in the world dedicated to cancer, and it has led to the creation of several other leading cancer research centers in Connecticut and throughout the nation. The work of these cutting-edge institutions—guided by dedicated leaders in clinical research and education awareness—advance our understanding of cancer treatment and prevention every day. They are improving quality of care, enhancing our ability to reach a larger national audience, and developing personalized treatments.

Connecticut has been on the frontlines of pioneering novel methods of researching and treating tobacco-related cancers. For example, Yale Cancer Center, under the direction of Dr. Roy Herbst—Associate Director for Translational Research and the Chief of Medical Oncology—has focused on lung cancer research and clinical care, spearheading a vast number of anticancer drug studies. He has placed original DNA research into the traditional scientific method and used this framework to discover cancer treatments that are catered to the individual patient. In this way, the type of tumor becomes less important than the underlying genetic driver. He is a role model for our Nation's researchers and physicians and an inspiration to current and future medical students.

Today, I also commend the bravery of patients who participate in novel clinical trials. By assuming risk and embracing the unknown, these cancer patients help to further medical research and look out for future generations.

Throughout Connecticut and the nation, we have seen the positive effects of national organizations with engaged, local arms, such as the AACR, the American Lung Association, and Tobacco Free Kids. These institutions have shown Americans of all generations the carcinogenic effects of tobacco products. The AACR's Task Force on Tobacco and Cancer drives the message that cancer research and the dissemination of this new information to Americans are equally important in fighting our national cancer epidemic. The American Lung Association creates a forum for Americans and their families, empowering smokers—and those with loved ones who are addicted to tobacco—with the tough truth while offering proactive ways to integrate what we know about tobacco and cancer into daily life. Tobacco Free Kids keeps watch over Federal,

State, and local government initiatives against tobacco addiction, building and maintaining momentum for a national tobacco policy and cancer prevention campaign.

These three organizations—as well as a number of other groups—host critically important forums for policy experts, lawmakers, and the public. They explain the science behind tobacco-related cancers and teach Americans how to care for their long-term health and the well-being of our future generations through smoking-cessation techniques and treatments. Today, the National Cancer Policy Forum is hosting a workshop on “Reducing Tobacco-Related Cancer Incidence and Mortality” at the National Academy of Sciences. I applaud this exemplary conference of panel discussions, new ideas, and collaboration—that brings together physicians, administrators, researchers, and organizations to foster proactive measures that inspire healthy futures.

At a time when Federal and State investment into prevention programs is at an unfortunate low, these leading institutions prove we can save lives through education and awareness. We must also continue to support robust medical research funding through the National Institutes of Health, the Centers for Disease Control, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and the Federal Drug Administration, to maintain and continue to improve upon our Nation's comprehensive and effective approach to fighting tobacco-related cancers.

In the face of this truly devastating disease that takes one American per minute, those that work fastidiously towards prevention and a cure, are true heroes. Their quest for knowledge gives us hope. I am especially proud of the great progress made in Connecticut, and hope my colleagues will join me in supporting these efforts and those around the nation as we unite in the fight against cancer—which continues to be the second leading cause of death in America.●

TRIBUTE TO REVEREND BONITA GRUBBS

● Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, today I wish to honor Reverend Bonita Grubbs, a community leader who has given so faithfully and generously to New Haven and Connecticut. Reverend Grubbs has been recently awarded the 11th Annual Reverend Howard Nash Community Leadership Award by Community Mediation, CM, an extraordinary organization that helps individuals and organizations resolve conflict through mediation and dialogue.

Since 1988, Reverend Grubbs has served as Executive Director of Christian Community Action, CCA, leading a set of well-established and crucial programs and social services for the poor and under-privileged in the Greater-New Haven area. CCA prides itself on providing emergency solutions with the underlying intention of proactive education for long-term sustainability and self-sufficiency. In addition to offering emergency services, CCA also runs education, housing, food, mentorship, after-school, and youth summer programs.

However, this role is only one dimension of Reverend Grubbs' contributions to her community. She is a champion of social justice, conscious of laying the foundations of sustainable lifestyles that will last for future generations. Reverend Grubbs has made tremendous impact through the Greater New Haven Community Loan Fund and as President of the Connecticut Coalition to End Homelessness, Co-Chair and member of the Steering Committee of New Haven's Fighting Back Project, columnist for the New Haven Register, Board of Trustee for the Hospital of St. Raphael, and Board Member for both Connecticut Voices for Children and Connecticut Center for School Change.

Very appropriately, Reverend Grubbs has been given an award named after Reverend Howard Nash, who was renowned in New Haven as an omnipresent peacemaker and founder of the Dialogue Project—an interfaith effort by CM and Interfaith Cooperative Ministries, ICM. Although ordained within the American Baptist Church, Reverend Grubbs' public service transcends religion and race.

In addition to this most recent honor, she has been lauded by several community organizations, receiving the Public Citizen Award from the Connecticut Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, the Consultation Center's Prevention Award, the Women Who Make a Difference Award by the Connecticut Women's Education and Legal Fund, and the Greater New Haven Community Loan Fund's Good Egg Award.

Reverend Grubbs' generous spirit and loving care for her community make her a role model for all. I ask my Senate colleagues to join me in thanking Reverend Grubbs for her contributions to humanity.●

REMEMBERING MAURICE SENDAK

● Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, today I wish to pay tribute to Maurice Sendak, famed children's book author and illustrator, who passed away on May 8 in Connecticut, where he spent most of his life. He would have turned 84 yesterday.

Tucked away in an 18th century home in Ridgefield, CT, Mr. Sendak drew inspiration for his widely read, uniquely bizarre illustrated stories from his own memories and contemplations. His fantastical realism—experienced by most American families through the eyes of Max, the central character in “Where the Wild Things Are”—changed the way children grew up. Mr. Sendak created a new genre of children's literature full of vestiges and memories of the horrors he and others faced maturing during World War II, the Holocaust, and the Great Depression.

Many of us have read Mr. Sendak's phrases to loved ones and puzzled over his intended meaning. Stories like "Chicken Soup with Rice," "Pierre: A Cautionary Tale," "In the Night Kitchen," "Seven Little Monsters," and "Outside Over There" are now legendary.

He committed himself to being an artist, beginning as a window designer at FAO Schwartz, and from there adding illustrator, author, producer, animator, and costume and set designer to his repertoire. He collaborated with many famed creators, including Jim Henson, Carole King, the Pacific Northwest Ballet, the Houston Grand Opera, the Los Angeles Music Center, the New York City Opera, the Chicago Opera Theatre, and Tony Kushner. Most recently, Mr. Sendak teamed with the Yale Repertory Theatre, in conjunction with the Berkeley Repertory Theatre and the New Victory Theater in New York, to produce a contemporary English version of a 1938 Czech children's opera about the Holocaust called "Brundibar."

Mr. Sendak's emotional intelligence, visual expertise, and way with words have produced over 100 works, some of which have been celebrated with several prestigious literary awards. In 1964, "Where the Wild Things Are" was given the Caldecott Medal from the American Library Association. In addition, Mr. Sendak received the Hans Christian Andersen award for Illustration in 1970, National Book Award in 1982, Laura Ingalls Wilder Award in 1993, and was presented with a National Medal for the Arts by President Bill Clinton in 1996. The New York Times has selected 22 of his titles as best illustrated books of the year, and an elementary school in North Hollywood, CA was even named in his honor.

Mr. Sendak was a lover of life and forever faithful to the artistic process. In a public and deeply personal National Public Radio interview in 2011, he shared vulnerable emotions, ending simply, but profoundly and quite tellingly with mantralike poetry: "live your life, live your life, live your life."●

SUPPORTING JERRY KRAMER

● Mr. CRAPO: Mr. President, my colleague, Senator JIM RISCH, joins me today in highlighting the career of one of Idaho's most distinguished football players, Jerry Kramer.

Jerry graduated from Sandpoint High School, in the northern part of our State, and attended college at the University of Idaho on a football scholarship. He was a standout player there, garnering selections to both the East-West Shrine Game and College All-Star Game.

After being drafted 39th, he signed on to play for the Green Bay Packers in 1958, and as football fans know, was part of a championship dynasty during his 11 playing years. He was an integral part of the famous "Packer Sweep" as the lead blocker for a running back going around the end.

Jerry Kramer is perhaps most famously known for "The Block" where he led quarterback Bart Starr into the end zone as time ran out in the 1967 NFL Championship game, defeating the Dallas Cowboys in what is known as the "Ice Bowl."

Jerry Kramer was a five-time All-Pro, a member of five championship teams, including the first two Super Bowls, and a member of the NFL's 50th Anniversary All-Time team. He was named to the NFL's All-Decade Team of the 1960s at offensive guard and led the NFL in field goal percentage in 1962.

Surprisingly, Jerry Kramer is the only player selected to the NFL's 50th Anniversary team who has not been inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, OH.

It is time for this oversight to be corrected. Jerry Kramer is highly regarded. Sixteen current members of the NFL Hall of Fame, many who played against Kramer, have endorsed his nomination and election to the Hall. That list of players includes such greats as Roger Staubach, Frank Gifford, Alan Page, Bob Lilly, Jan Stenerud, Gino Marchetti and Coach Joe Gibbs, to name just a few.

There is no doubt in my mind, and certainly not in the mind of my colleague, Senator RISCH, who highly favors his native State's Green Bay Packers, that Jerry Kramer's NFL career clearly qualifies him for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Besides his contributions on the football field, Jerry is a highly regarded citizen of Idaho who gives his time to worthy causes. Idahoans are very proud of his accomplishments and football fans throughout the state support his induction.

As Idaho's U.S. Senators, we support Jerry Kramer's selection to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.●

RECOGNIZING THE DAVE THOMAS FOUNDATION FOR ADOPTION

● Ms. LANDRIEU: Mr. President, as co-chair of both the Congressional Coalition on Adoption and the Senate Caucus on Foster Youth, I wish to congratulate the Dave Thomas Foundation for Adoption on the occasion of its 20th anniversary.

The foundation was established in 1992 by Dave Thomas as a public charity with one primary goal: to help every child in foster care find a loving, permanent family. Throughout its history, the foundation has set forth on a mission of dramatically increasing the number of adoptions of waiting children.

For 20 years, the Dave Thomas Foundation for Adoption has committed itself to finding permanent families for the more than 100,000 children waiting in the United States foster care system.

The Dave Thomas Foundation for Adoption awards grants to public and private adoption agencies all across the country. Last year, these grants totaled more than $8 million and focused on supporting adoption professionals who implement proactive, child-focused recruitment programs targeted exclusively on moving the longest waiting children from foster care into adoptive families. This signature program is called Wendy's Wonderful Kids, WWK, and today exists in all 50 States, DC, and four Canadian provinces.

The results from an empirical 5-year case study on WWK were released in October 2011. The research showed that children in the program are up to three times more likely to be adopted.

The foundation also supports employers through the Adoption-Friendly Workplace Program, is a founding member of National Adoption Day, and is a proud partner of the annual television special, "A Home for the Holidays."

The foundation is an accredited charity of the Better Business Bureau Wise Giving Alliance, Standards for Excellence certified, and has received the highest possible rating on Charity Navigator. The foundation has helped more than 3,000 children find their forever families and provided information and support to tens of thousands of potential adoptive families.

For these reasons, I am proud to applaud the Dave Thomas Foundation for Adoption and its dedicated staff for their extraordinary contributions to the people of my district and throughout the United States for the last 20 years.●

RECOGNIZING FIFE LAKE PUBLIC LIBRARY'S 125TH ANNIVERSARY

● Mr. LEVIN: Mr. President, as they have for generations, libraries across our Nation and my home State of Michigan enable people to gain access to a sea of information and facts. They serve as a gateway for exploration. Libraries allow young people to journey back in time with great authors and experience the world as it was for past generations. They allow them to travel across the globe and experience life in other areas of the world, and they allow them to dream and imagine ways to make our collective future better. These are places where the only limitation is your imagination and your willingness to read and learn.

For the past 125 years, one such library in Fife Lake has played this unmistakably important role, and it is with great pride that I pay tribute to the Fife Lake Public Library on its Quasiquicentennial. This wonderful institution has surely helped to cultivate and nurture the interests of individuals seeking to broaden and deepen their understanding of a variety of pursuits.

The Fife Lake Public Library was established in 1887 with a $17 grant from Grand Traverse County. Since then, this library has been a mainstay of the community and has met the diverse and growing needs of residents of Fife
