

what the senior Senator from Maine said: "It is when passions are most inflamed that fairness is most in jeopardy." She said, "when passions are most inflamed" is when "fairness is most in jeopardy."

We all know that the events of recent weeks have strained the country's comity and fanned the flames of partisan discord. But, even more critically, our very commitment to the basic principles of fairness and justice is also being tested. The basic principles of fairness and justice are being tested right here.

A vote to confirm Judge Kavanaugh today is also a vote to send a clear message about what the Senate is.

This is an institution where the evidence and the facts matter. This is an institution where the evidence and the facts matter. This is a Chamber in which the politics of intimidation and personal destruction do not win the day.

This is the body whose Members themselves uphold the same commitment to American justice that we seek in the judges we examine.

A vote to confirm Judge Kavanaugh today is a vote to end this brief, dark chapter in the Senate's history and to turn the page toward a brighter tomorrow.

The Chamber we are privileged to occupy is often called the world's greatest deliberative body for good reason. We are called the world's greatest deliberative body for a good reason. When the rubber meets the road, when the hour is critical, when a historic precedent needs to be set, the U.S. Senate most often finds its way to doing what is right.

Today, we can honor that history. We can vote to turn away from the darkness. We can vote to set a precedent about fairness and judgment that will define this body for the better. We can vote to confirm an excellent Supreme Court Justice who will make the Senate and the American people proud.

I yield the floor.

The VICE PRESIDENT. As a reminder to our guests in the Galleries, expressions of approval or disapproval are not permitted in the Senate Gallery.

Under the previous order, all postcloture time has expired.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Brett M. Kavanaugh, of Maryland, to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States?

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

(Disturbance in the Visitors' Gallery.)

The VICE PRESIDENT. The Sergeant at Arms will restore order in the Senate.

The clerk will call the roll.

The VICE PRESIDENT. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

Mr. CORNYN. The following Senator is necessarily absent: the Senator from Montana (Mr. DAINES).

Further, if present and voting, the Senator from Montana (Mr. DAINES) would have voted "yea."
