

Finally, I'd like to again extend my gratitude to the thousands of volunteer poll workers in central and southwest Iowa who stepped up to serve their communities and our democracy. They have performed an essential civic duty to ensure their neighbors could safely participate in record numbers, and they did so while dealing with a global pandemic. Their efforts and dedication are a true reflection of Iowa values, and I'm proud to name them Iowans of the Week.

2020 NOBEL PEACE PRIZE RECIPIENT THE WORLD FOOD PROGRAM

HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Mr. McGOVERN. Madam Speaker, today, December 10th, International Human Rights Day, at 7:00 AM Eastern Time, the 2020 Nobel Peace Prize was awarded in Oslo, Norway to the World Food Program (WFP) for its outstanding humanitarian work to feed the world's hungriest and most vulnerable people.

The World Food Program is the largest humanitarian organization addressing hunger and promoting food security internationally, providing aid to nearly 100 million people in 88 countries last year alone.

Since the COVID-19 pandemic began wreaking havoc on people's lives, livelihoods and economic security, WFP has redoubled its efforts to address global hunger and failing food systems. Last month, WFP executive director David Beasley warned of the potential for famine of Biblical proportions if the world failed to provide support now to the those currently made most vulnerable by the pandemic and its associated economic shocks, climate change, natural disaster, war and conflict.

I have had the privilege of seeing WFP operations up close and personal in various regions of the world. I was in eastern Chad on the border of Sudan visiting Sudanese refugee camps in 2007 when Janjaweed militias crossed the border and attacked two villages. WFP and many humanitarian aid groups swung into immediate action, providing safety, food, water and emergency medical care to hundreds of villagers made homeless in hours.

In Colombia, I've seen WFP provide nourishing meals in schools for the children of families internally displaced by violence. And in Ethiopia I visited health centers serving individuals and families ravaged by HIV/AIDS that could provide food for their patients thanks to WFP and its local partners.

In the wars in Syria, Yemen, Sudan and South Sudan, the deliveries of food and related services provided by WFP are often the only source of nourishment for civilian populations trapped in conflict zones, forcibly displaced inside their countries, or forced to flee to neighboring nations for safety.

I am very proud that the United States is the largest donor to WFP operations world-wide, and that USDA, USAID and our own Food for Peace Program are among WFP's most reliable and effective partners. The U.S. provides food grown by America's own farmers, ready-to-eat meals, cash assistance, support for school feeding programs, and nutritious food products tailored for the very young and especially for infants and young children suffering from malnutrition and undernutrition.

Many of us cannot imagine the range and scale of WFP's global mission. It includes 17,000 staff worldwide, works in some 80 countries, and has more than 20 ships, 90 planes, and 5,600 trucks on the move on any given day. It certainly has some of the most generous and dedicated local staff that I have ever met and works with a broad range of local, national and international NGOs and partners to combat global hunger and food insecurity.

I will never forget those days when I have been with WFP in the field. I give my warmest congratulations to David Beasley, and the extraordinary local and international WFP staff, for being awarded the 2020 Nobel Peace Prize. May they carry on their noble mission until the day comes when no child, no man or woman goes to bed hungry and every household in the world is secure in the knowledge that there will always be food on the table.

CELEBRATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE JOINT CENTER FOR POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC STUDIES

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Ms. JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies on the occasion of its 50th anniversary.

Founded and chartered in 1970 as the first of its kind, the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies has since served as America's chief Black think tank inside the beltway. Though diverse in their research and advocacy, the Joint Center has remained a consistent presence in the application and advancement of empirical-based policies supporting strategies to advance Black America.

Madam Speaker, it is common that any resolution addressing the disproportionate impact of a policy on the Black community introduced in this chamber cites a study conducted by the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies. Even I, along with countless Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) colleagues have referenced their reports when legislating and communicating with my constituents. The Joint Center plays a critical role in keeping our leaders properly informed and educated on the issues that Black Americans face daily.

Just last year, the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies was credited for several efforts to achieve diversity in the workforce. Among them include bringing increased awareness to congressional staff diversity, culminating with the establishment of the Office of Diversity and Inclusion in the U.S. House of Representatives; encouraging companies to consider the future of their work through a racial equity lens, resulting in companies like McKinsey & Company. Another example of the fruition of their work would be The Atlantic and the National Skills Coalition releasing, 'The Future of Work' reports and hosting listening sessions. Over the last five decades, they have successfully convened leaders of major cities to discuss workforce modernization in Black communities.

The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies' work is more relevant and necessary now than ever before. In the face of a crisis disproportionately affecting Black Americans' health outcomes and economic security encompassed by a global pandemic, we must push for a national agenda with viable solutions that address the systemic racism that prompted these inequities.

Madam Speaker, as we celebrate the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies for their successes over the years, let us also reaffirm our commitment as a body to working alongside them and others to advance noble ideas and policies that promote the Black community.

INTRODUCTION OF A RESOLUTION DECLARING THAT PUBLIC TRANSIT IS A NATIONAL PRIORITY WHICH REQUIRES FUNDING EQUAL TO THE LEVEL OF HIGHWAY FUNDING

HON. JESÚS G. "CHUY" GARCÍA

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Mr. GARCÍA of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I rise today to introduce a resolution declaring that public transit is a national priority which requires funding equal to the level of highway funding along with my colleagues HAKEEM JEFFRIES from New York and AYANNA PRESSLEY from Massachusetts.

Joining us in this introduction are 30 other members from across the country and dozens of organizations invested in ensuring we build a more just, equitable, and sustainable transportation system in America.

The near 40-year precedent of an "80-20" split between highway and transit funding does not reflect our citizens, businesses, and communities' needs for safe, reliable, and convenient public transportation. The split underfunds transit needs leaving too many reliant on deteriorating transit systems with infrequent, inconvenient, and unreliable service.

The 80-20 split was agreed to in 1982, when 1 cent of a 5 cent gas tax increase was dedicated to transit. But since 2008, over $144 billion in taxpayer dollars have supplemented gas tax revenues for highway and transit spending. The user fee is not working as intended, yet the 80-20 funding split persists.

Transit is an essential lifeline for the over one million rural households without a car and millions of Americans of color disproportionately reliant on public transit. 2.8 million essential workers and millions more rely on transit to access their jobs, food, and health care.

In Chicago, CTA trains and Pace Buses are the arteries of our city and they've kept our people moving—especially frontline workers who keep our country moving despite the raging pandemic.

Rebuilding a stronger, sustainable economy will require robust, reliable, and frequent transit and we must fund transit equitably like the vital public good and toll for economic empowerment that it is.

HONORING PENNY BISIGNANO AS IOWAN OF THE WEEK

HON. CYNTHIA AXNE

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Mrs. AXNE. Madam Speaker, October was National Bullying Prevention Month. As such, I rise today to ask my colleagues in the House of Representatives to join me in recognizing Penny Bisignano for her efforts in bullying prevention in our schools. She has played a key role in supporting anti-bullying training and programming for teachers, parents, and students in Iowa. In fact, our Senate colleagues may remember Penny's 2012 testimony on the issue of bullying.

In 2018 alone, there were more than 835,000 reported incidents of bullying among students ages 12 through 18. As a parent, these numbers are deeply concerning. While the act of bullying is nothing new, the rise of on line communication, social media, and smart phones has provided new and highly accessible environments for aggressions to occur. As a result, bullying has become more subversive and difficult to recognize. Thankfully, we have people like Penny who have coached teachers, students, and parents on what to look for and how these incidents can be prevented.

While working with school counselors, Penny began to see concerning trends in the way children were treating each other. She realized she wanted to help people better understand the seriousness of bullying and how difficult it can be for children to talk about. In 2004, she decided it was time to act and set her sights on championing bullying prevention statewide.

For years, Penny ran the Olweus Bullying Prevention Program in Iowa. The Olweus Program has a comprehensive approach to creating a positive and safe environment in schools. The program's goal is to not only reduce the number of bullying incidents in schools, but also improve relations between students. By addressing antisocial behaviors, this programming has been found to reduce bullying among students as well as truancy and vandalism. Iowa is fortunate to have not only quality programming available, but also so many dedicated organizations working to keep all children safe.

A longtime education consultant, Penny has participated in the Iowa Safe and Supportive Schools Grants Team, focusing on prevention and intervention. She's provided training and networking statewide and facilitated various projects for the improvement of schools and teachers' roles in bullying prevention. Penny also expanded her expertise beyond Iowa by dedicating five years to the Board of Directors for the International Bullying Prevention Association. She eventually founded her own small business, Bisignano Consulting and Coaching, to work on several projects including a study observing possible links between bullying and chronic health conditions.

Penny remains passionate about bullying prevention. In fact, she's come out of retirement three times to continue her work. That speaks volumes about Penny's character and rings true for so many Iowans: if there's a job to do, they won't rest until it's done well. She's now enjoying her fourth (and hopefully final) retirement while still offering expertise whenever asked. Penny hopes her fellow Iowans continue having conversations about bullying so children and adults alike can learn how to better care for one another, and I couldn't agree more. It is my honor to recognize Penny Bisignano as our Iowan of the Week.

CELEBRATING A.G. HEINS COMPANY 100 YEARS OF SUCCESS

HON. TIM BURCHETT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Mr. BURCHETT. Madam Speaker, American entrepreneurial spirit is the bedrock of our nation's economy, creating good-paying jobs, solving everyday problems and providing the goods and services we rely on. I rise today to celebrate one of East Tennessee's own, the A.G. Heins Company, which rode that entrepreneurial spirit from humble beginnings to 100 years of success.

Currently in its fourth generation of family ownership, the A.G. Heins Company has long provided building materials to the East Tennessee region. The company provides necessary resources to complete projects of all sizes, from individual household repairs to construction at the University of Tennessee.

Staying in business for 100 years is no easy accomplishment, and the A.G. Heins Company persevered through many challenging economic times, such as the Great Depression and the Second World War. The company's history is a reminder that small businesses can grow and innovate even in the face of adversity.

I would like to extend my congratulations to the Heins family as they celebrate their 100th year in business this month, and I wish them many more years of success.

REMEMBERING ANNABELLE BEAUCHAMP

HON. JOE CUNNINGHAM

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Madam Speaker, I arise today to honor the short life of Annabelle Kristine Beauchamp of Bellevue, Kentucky.

Annabelle was only three years of age when she left us on December 2, 2020. But in that short time on earth, she inspired a multitude of people with her great inner strength, determination, and fearless zest for life. She bedazzled the world as to how anyone so frail could be so powerful.

Born with Downs Syndrome and a badly damaged heart she endured against all odds. Annabelle fought her way through numerous surgeries, and frequent and prolonged stays in the hospital. In the end, it still took a monstrous and murderous worldwide pandemic to vanquish her. With her death-grappling struggle she easily won all of us to her side. As Virgil wrote, "those things doomed to die, touch the heart."

Against the torrent of hardships which beset her from the very beginning, sweet Annabelle gallantly soldiered on through it all. With her captivating smile and determination, she breathed life into the state's ethos of unbridled spirit.

Though faced with many obstacles at birth, Annabelle was richly blessed with two incredibly brave and loving parents—Will and Jessi Beauchamp. They proved to be a match in love and devotion with little Annabelle's undaunted courage.

Anyone blessed to have known Annabelle during her short life knows that she did not intend to leave us so soon. She intended to live, to grow, to thrive and to bless us all for a long time to come. She intended to stay and bless us, no matter what it took. But, tragically, death conquers the earthly vessel in which we live, even if possessed of the vigor and zest as our little heroine. Annabelle left behind a little bit of herself wherever she went. No amount of physical impediments nor human restraints can be retentive to the strength of spirit. She left us with the eternal gift of that spirit. Even now, though freshly gone, she whispers to us in her own unique and endearing voice.

Do not stand at my grave and cry,
I am not dead, I did not die.
I am the stars that shine at night,
I am the sun in morning's light.
Do not stand at my grave and cry,
I do not sleep, I did not die.

HONORING THE LIFE OF DAN F. MOHON

HON. BRIAN BABIN

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, December 10, 2020

Mr. BABIN. Madam Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I rise today to honor the life and legacy of Dan Mohon who passed away on December 6, 2020, just four days shy of his 81st birthday. Dan filled his days with hard work and loyal service to his faith, family, friends, and community.

Dan F. Mohon was born in Vernon, Texas, on December 10, 1939, to his parents Walter and Flora Pauline Beach Mohon. Just before his 13th birthday, Dan, as the eldest child, took on the responsibility of caring for his mother and younger siblings, Nanene and Gary, following his father's death. In order to care for his family, Dan worked 32 hours a week while continuing his education.

After Dan graduated from Quanah High School in 1958, he attended Texas Tech University where he graduated with a degree in
