APPOINTMENT OF MEMBER TO BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE CULTURE AND ARTS DEVELOPMENT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair announces the Speaker's appointment, pursuant to 20 U.S.C. 4412, and the order of the House of January 3, 2019, of the following Member on the part of the House to the Board of Trustees of the Institute of American Indian and Alaska Native Culture and Arts Development:

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska

SUPPORTING THE HEROES ACT

(Mrs. BUSTOS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. BUSTOS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of the HEROES Act.

When I last spoke on this bill in this Chamber, I told a story about a young man in my congressional district that I serve named Noah. He wrote to me that his town may not survive this pandemic.

Now, more than a month since, I am awfully worried, too. The HEROES Act would provide $915 billion for State and local assistance so our small towns and cities, like where Noah lives, are not left behind.

It would strengthen programs for small business and deliver economic security to those that are the backbone of our economy.

As our country is reeling from record-high COVID-19 cases, it would allow uninsured Americans to access health insurance. Pretty darn important during a worldwide pandemic.

For the cities and towns, for our small businesses, and for so many Americans, this is not about politics; it is about survival. I urge the Senate to join us in passing the HEROES Act.

HONORING CRAIG JOHNSON AND AURASH ZARKESHAN

(Mr. KEVIN HERN of Oklahoma asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KEVIN HERN of Oklahoma. Madam Speaker, I rise with a broken heart today. On Monday, two of our police officers were shot during a routine stop.

Sergeant Craig Johnson was a leader in Tulsa, serving on the police force for over 15 years. Sergeant Johnson had a strong relationship with local leaders and took pride in keeping the community he loves safe. He was a strong friend to fellow officers and a compassionate leader with a servant's heart.

Sergeant Johnson died from his wounds earlier today. Officer Aurash Zarkeshan remains in critical condition.

Craig and Aurash are examples of the remarkable men and women who choose to put themselves in harm's way to protect us every day.

The best sound a police officer's spouse can hear is the sound of the Velcro of the officer's vest coming off at the end of the shift. Instead of that sound, Sergeant Johnson's wife had to get the worst call a spouse can get.

Madam Speaker, Black lives matter and so do those who wear the blue.

My prayers are with his wife, Krysta, his two children, and the many ones he left behind.

HONORING COACH PAT DYE

(Mr. ALLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ALLEN. Madam Speaker, on June 1, 2020, America lost a football legend. Pat Dye was a player, coach, administrator, and, most importantly, a dear friend.

Coach Dye's ties to the 12th District of Georgia run deep, as he was born and raised in Blythe, Georgia.

He started his football career at Richmond Academy as captain of the team that won a State championship there. He went on to play at the University of Georgia, where he was a two-time All-American.

Coach Dye was most known for his work transforming the Auburn University football team, where he served as Auburn's head coach from 1981 to 1992 and as athletic director from 1981 to 1991.

As the only Auburn alumnus currently serving in Congress, what a privilege it is for me to stand here on the House floor and enter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD Coach Dye's amazing record, which includes four SEC championship wins, including three straight from 1987 to 1989.

He led Auburn to three Sugar Bowls and finished in the top 10 five times, including four straight seasons, from 1986 to 1989. So it was no surprise that he was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame as a coach in 2005.

He fought the good fight. He leaves an incredible legacy, not only at Auburn, but as a great mentor and coach to thousands of young men on the football field.

Thank you, Coach and War Eagle.

UNITED STATES AND REPUBLIC OF INDIA RELATIONS

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the strong diplomatic partnership between the United States of America and the Republic of India. Our relationship shares important values that are rooted in democracy.

I had the privilege of meeting with the consulate general of India last week, and I learned even more about India's partnership with the United States, their economy, India's challenges with combatting COVID-19, and their state of international affairs. It was a wonderful opportunity to listen and learn more about our friends in India and ways in which we can help each other continue to thrive.

In February, President Trump spoke at the Motera Stadium in India, filled with 110,000 spectators, and was given a warm welcome to the country. At the successful event, President Trump discussed ways in which he has been working with Prime Minister Modi on an array of topics that will help both of our nations move forward. Some of these topics include security and defense cooperation, energy, trade, and promoting women entrepreneurs.

Additionally, India and the United States are both working on combating terrorism in all forms. I applaud the joint efforts of India and the U.S. in eradicating terrorism.

Madam Speaker, I thank Prime Minister Modi for being a friend of the United States.

PAYROLL TAX HOLIDAY

(Mr. JOHN W. ROSE of Tennessee asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. JOHN W. ROSE of Tennessee. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of a payroll tax holiday.

As we consider providing additional direct assistance to Americans, a payroll tax holiday would be a logical way to encourage folks to get back to work and help stimulate the economy.

Suspending the payroll tax would ease the impact of the government-imposed economic shutdown. By allowing small businesses to keep more of their hard-earned money, we enable them to reinvest in operations and avoid employee layoffs.

Direct assistance through a payroll tax holiday would reduce potential fraud, as individuals must be verified employees to receive the benefit. I believe this commonsense solution would boost the great American comeback that is already underway.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to consider a payroll tax holiday in any future relief bill.

RECOGNIZING STUDENTS OF THE YEAR ZACHARY CRYER AND ANTAVION MOORE

(Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHNSON of Louisiana. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize two exceptional students from Louisiana's Fourth Congressional District, Zachary Cryer and Antavion Moore.

Zach, from Benton, was recently named Louisiana's Middle School Student of the Year. Zach has maintained a 4.0 GPA throughout his time at Benton Middle School, and he has already scored a 28 on the ACT as an eighth grader.

Tay, from Ringgold, was named the Louisiana High School Student of the Year, and he has already earned an associate's degree and a certificate of general studies. He plans to major in biomedical engineering in college and to become an orthopedic doctor.

By being recognized as Students of the Year, Tay and Zach show a tremendous amount of dedication, excellent character, phenomenal leadership skills. Clearly, the best is yet to come for these young men.

Louisiana's Fourth Congressional District is home to some of the brightest and most hardworking students in the Nation, just like Zach and Antavion. I am so proud to represent them here in Congress.

Once again, congratulations, guys. The best is yet to come.

RECOGNIZING UNITED BIOLOGICS

(Mr. CORREA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CORREA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize United Biologics in Santa Ana, who stepped up during the pandemic to help our local healthcare workers.

After I called on local manufacturers in my district to retool and manufacture PPE, United Biologics' President, John Barnhill, stepped up to the plate. The company designed a face shield, ordered supplies, and even added more employees to their workforce to produce thousands of face shields. Not only did this effort keep the company running and in business, but John Barnhill decided to donate the PPE to the local healthcare workers.

United Biologics shows what happens when we call on American companies to do the right thing.

TRIBUTE TO OREGON STATE UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT DR. ED RAY

(Mr. SCHRADER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHRADER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the Oregon State University president, Dr. Ed Ray, who officially retires today after 17 years of dedicated service to the school, the faculty, and, most importantly, the students.

During his tenure at Oregon State University, President Ray set a course for the school that made huge impacts in teaching, research, outreach, and engagement.

Under Ray's leadership, Oregon State University has undergone an incredible transformation, which has seen: student enrollment increase from 19,000 in 2004 to over 32,000 this year; completion of 96 major facility renovations and new buildings at OSU campuses, in excess of $1.1 billion; and a capital fundraising campaign that successfully raised nearly $1.15 billion.

President Ray leaves Oregon State with a legacy and vision for the future that will continue in service to student success, faculty and research excellence, outreach, and a 21st century mission.

Madam Speaker, on behalf of a grateful Beaver Nation, we say thank you to Ed.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Oregon State University President Dr. Ed Ray, who is officially stepping down today after 17 years of dedicated service to the school, faculty, and most importantly the students.

President Ray is a passionate advocate for higher education—it is his life's work in which he has dedicated the last 50 years as a teacher and administrator.

Prior to his arrival at Oregon State University in 2003, Ray spent over 30 years at Ohio State University where he was a member of the economics faculty from 1970 to 2003, served as economics department chair from 1976 to 1992, served as associate provost then senior vice provost and chief information officer from 1992 to 1998, and finally executive vice president and provost from 1998 to 2003.

Upon his arrival at OSU, President Ray set a course for the school to make substantial impacts in teaching, research, and outreach and engagement. Focusing on inclusive excellence through student access, learning, and success, as well as leading a campus community that is safe, inclusive, and diverse.

Under President Ray's leadership, OSU has become an internationally recognized public research university, undergoing an incredible transformation which has seen:

Student enrollment increase from 19,000 in 2004 to 32,744 students this year—making OSU the state's largest university for the sixth straight year. Of that number, 5,978 were first-generation students, 8,327 were students of color and 3,492 were international students.

The percentage of historically under-represented students at OSU has nearly doubled from 13.5 percent to 26.3 percent.
