INSULIN IS TOO EXPENSIVE

(Ms. BROWN of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. BROWN of Ohio. Madam Speaker, put simply: insulin is too expensive for millions of Americans.

Here are the facts: From 2014 to 2019, the average retail price of insulin rose by 54 percent. And in America, people pay more than 10 times the price of insulin compared to other countries.

What is the result of these high prices? Around one in four Americans who rely on insulin have cut back or skipped doses due to costs.

No person should have to choose between paying rent or buying the insulin they need to survive. And no person should be forced to skip or ration doses.

Last week, the House passed the Affordable Insulin Now Act to cap the cost of insulin at $35 per month. Insulin is a lifesaving drug, but it must never be a wallet-wrecking drug.

We must continue to work to lower costs for families everywhere from the pharmacy counter to the gas pump.

RECOGNIZING THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEATH OF MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

(Mr. COHEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COHEN. Madam Speaker, 54 years ago tonight one of the great tragedies in our Nation's history occurred in my hometown of Memphis, Tennessee. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was assassinated.

In Memphis, there is great love for Dr. King and his dream. He had given the "I've Been to the Mountaintop" speech the night before in Memphis. And tonight, at this hour there is a memorial service at the National Civil Rights Museum, which was constructed at the Lorraine Motel where he was staying and where he was slain.

In Memphis, a phoenix has risen from the ashes. The National Civil Rights Museum celebrates Dr. King's life and all the pioneers that preceded him and were after him in fighting for civil rights and civil justice in this Nation.

I share with all in mourning the death of Dr. King 54 years ago but take great pride in Memphis having the National Civil Rights Museum and encourage people to visit.

HONORING LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2021, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. NEWHOUSE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the topic of my Special Order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, today I rise in honor of the brave men and women in blue who serve and protect us each and every day. I am proud to be able to be part of this Special Order remembering Washington State law enforcement, and I am proud to share this Special Order with most all of the delegation of the great State of Washington.

According to statistics released by the FBI, intentional killings of law enforcement in the year 2021 were the highest in 20 years. Already this year—and we are only in April—there have been more officers shot and killed than all of last year.

Every day, police officers across central Washington, across my State, and across the United States put on a badge and go to work knowing they face extremely dangerous situations exacerbated by significant economic uncertainties, open border policies, and the raging opioid crisis.

Let me be clear: Nothing justifies the targeting and the murdering of law enforcement. Whether on regularly scheduled patrol duty or answering an urgent call for help, law enforcement officers put on their uniforms every day with no guarantee they will return home safely.

Just 3 weeks ago, Madam Speaker, Pierce County Sheriff's Deputy Dominique "Dom" Calata, a 35-year-old Army veteran, who had been with the force for the past 6½ years, made the ultimate sacrifice while protecting his community. While assisting the South Sound Gang Task Force and serving a warrant for second degree assault, Deputy Calata was shot and killed. The deputy leaves behind his wife and a 4-year-old son.

Tragically, during his memorial service 2 weeks ago, Everett police officer Dan Rocha was killed during a run-in with a suspect who shot and killed him before running over his body while fleeing the scene. His memorial service took place just this afternoon. Officer Rocha leaves behind his wife, as well as two children.

Madam Speaker, I would ask for a moment of silence for both of these brave officers.

□ 1945

We all owe a debt of gratitude to these individuals who risk their lives to enforce the law and to protect our communities.

Law enforcement officers take time away from their families, their loved ones, often without the thanks that they deserve, and often, putting themselves in harm's way. Our men and women in law enforcement deserve nothing less than our full support.

I am deeply concerned, frankly, with the anti-police policies that our State has implemented and continues to consider. While there may have been positive steps taken to roll back this legislation this past session, there is still much progress to be made, both in Washington, and at the Federal level.

We have to fully fund our police departments. We have to provide them with the necessary resources to do their important jobs.

Over the past several years, I have had many opportunities to meet with police officers, with sheriffs, first responders, all across Central Washington in my district. I participated in ride-alongs with officers, from Pasco and from Sunnyside to see firsthand how they interact with their neighbors and local businesses.

And I regularly meet with law enforcement officers in each of our counties to learn how I can help them in Congress to make their policing efforts much more effective.

I am constantly in awe of the great work that these officers are doing to engage with families that are in need, or at-risk children, as well as students, and individuals who may be in danger. They do all of this with the goal of making our Central Washington communities a better, safer place to live and work; and for that I am truly grateful.

Police officers around the country are dedicated to protecting us and defending the liberties that we hold dear. Law enforcement officers selflessly put themselves in harm's way to protect Americans, preserve the peace, and maintain law and order. They are truly heroes in blue, and we owe them our respect and our support.

Today, I remember Deputy Calata and Officer Rocha, and offer my sincere condolences to their family, their friends, and the departments that they left behind all too soon.

I commit to continuing to fight for the men and women in law enforcement and their families who sacrifice so much to keep our communities safe. Today, as well as every day, we offer our appreciation and our respect for law enforcement officers across this great Nation.

Madam Speaker, as I said, I am honored and delighted that we have many members of the Washington State delegation to share in this Special Order this evening, to share their thoughts and their observations about what is going on, not only in our State, but States across the country.

I first want to turn to my neighboring district, to my east and thank her for being part of this Special Order.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Spokane, Washington, (Mrs. RODGERS).

Mrs. RODGERS of Washington. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for bringing us together this evening to honor some of the finest that serve our communities to protect our communities day in and day out.

And today, I rise with a broken heart to honor two of Washington State's finest: Pierce County Sheriff's Deputy Dom Calata, and Everett Police Officer Dan Rocha, both tragically shot and killed in the line of duty, protecting and serving the communities that they called home.

For years, these 2 men, like so many others, put on the uniform each day, hugged their kids and kissed their wives and went to work to keep us safe; not knowing if they would ever walk back through the door at the end of the night.

Deputy Calata and Officer Rocha made the ultimate sacrifice and my heart breaks for their grieving families and the families of the other 685 officers killed in the line of duty since 2021.

Madam Speaker, we must do better. This is the United States of America and we cannot allow these assaults on our law enforcement to continue. We must fund the police and give them the resources they need to keep us safe, and make sure they make it home safe at the end of the day.

All around our communities, we see a surge of violent crime. We see heart-breaking drug abuse, violence in our schools, homelessness; and law enforcement is fighting an uphill battle, and they are on the front lines day in and day out. They need our support. Now, more than ever, we need them to do their jobs to address all of these issues.

The anti-police rhetoric only makes things worse, and it has infected too many hearts and minds. These individuals are our heroes.

Dom Calata was a hero. Dan Rocha was a hero. Each and every selfless man and woman in blue who gave their last breath in service to our community was a hero. And today, their families are without them. We must never forget their sacrifice and always back the blue.

I am encouraged tonight so many of my colleagues are joining together as Americans to recognize the fallen, and to remember them for who they are, heroes.

My heart goes out to those who are grieving this tragic loss, and I pray that God keeps watch over all those still serving.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for her remarks; heroes, I couldn't say it better.

Now I yield to the gentlewoman from the west side of my district in Washington (Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER), my good colleague and friend.

Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER. Madam Speaker, it is a privilege to get to be here sharing this Special Hour with my colleagues. I wish it was about something else, quite frankly.

I am very, very honored to get to stand here and share the names of some of these officers to whom we owe an unimaginable debt of gratitude. So it is a privilege to join the gentleman as we honor the officers who have laid down their lives for our safety, for our security, for our families, for our homes, for our businesses, for our communities.

And to the families and the colleagues of our fallen heroes, I know words will never be enough. But please, please know that we stand alongside you in your grief, and we pledge to always remember their names and to honor their service and their sacrifice.

In just the past couple of weeks, we have tragically lost two brave Washington State police officers: Pierce County Sheriff's Deputy Dominic "Dom" Calata, and Everett Police Department Officer Dan Rocha. My heart breaks for the families and the colleagues of these brave officers as they grapple with this devastating loss.

And I have had the privilege, in this body, of representing my hometown in Congress, Southwest Washington State, which boasts some amazing and outstanding police forces and officers, many of whom I have come to know over the last several years.

Sadly, we too have had multiple officers lost in the line of duty in the last few years. And I want to take this moment to recognize and honor those officers here today. I am just going to read their names.

Vancouver Police Officer—which we are going to go from here across.

Vancouver Police Officer Donald Sahota. His end of watch was January 29, 2022.

And then Clark County Sheriff's Sergeant Jeremy Brown. His end of watch was July 23, 2021.

Washington State Patrol Trooper Justin Schaffer; end of watch, May 24, 2020.

And Cowlitz County Sheriff Deputy Justin DeRosier; end of watch, April 13, 2019.

And again, to the families and to the colleagues of these officers, my heart breaks for you, and we are so proud of these officers and what they have given. We pledge to you to always remember their bravery and their sacrifice and to honor their memory by standing up for and supporting the law enforcement that support our communities.

I want to take a moment to say to our men and women in blue, we stand in solidarity with you; and I will always, always, always, support your efforts to keep our communities safe.

I recognize it is no easy feat to get up every morning, put on your uniform, kiss your loved ones goodbye and not know the dangers that could lie ahead, just in that day. I know this because you have told me how disheartening it is when people call to abolish or to defund law enforcement, or when politicians who have no clue what it is like to walk in your shoes, pass laws that make it more difficult for you to do your job, which is to protect us, our families, and our communities.

But because of your bravery and commitment to public safety, we are able to safely live our lives. It is an amazing gift that you give us and, for that, I humbly thank you.

We are forever grateful for your willingness to serve and protect our communities, and I look forward to hearing the comments from some of my other colleagues tonight as we honor your sacrifice and remember your service.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I appreciate the gentlewoman's comments. I thank her for adding to the list. The list is far too long for us to list everyone, unfortunately. And it is like the gentlewoman said: I wish we were here for a happier occasion, but this is an important one and I thank the gentlewoman for her contributions.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from the Eighth Congressional District of Washington (Ms. SCHRIER), another neighbor. I am surrounded with good Members of Congress. I believe she lives in the town of Sammamish.

Ms. SCHRIER. Madam Speaker, I thank Representative NEWHOUSE, my friend, for gathering us together here to honor law enforcement and to mourn several recently fallen police officers.

Whenever a police officers is killed in the line of duty it is a tragedy, for the officer, for the family, and for the entire community. Even one such death is too many. And in the last several weeks in Washington State, there have been several, and we have mourned together.

As I speak, the funeral is underway for Officer Dan Rocha, killed in the line of duty in Everett on March 25. Just 2 weeks ago, I attended the funeral for Pierce County Sheriff's Deputy Dom Calata, who leaves behind his wife, Erin, his darling preschooler, Dylan, family, and friends.

Dom's friend and partner in duty, Officer Rich Scaniffe, spoke at the funeral. And he was critically injured at the same time but, thankfully, survived and will make a full recovery.

Back in 2019, when I was first sworn into office, Kittitas County Deputy Sheriff Ryan Thompson was also killed while serving his community.

Every day, police officers put themselves in danger to keep our communities safe, and every day, they and their families face the risk that they might not make it home to their loved ones. This is why it has been such a priority of mine to meet with police officers and police chiefs to thank them for their work and to learn how I can help support them and keep them and their communities safe.

I have heard from many of my constituents about rising crime rates in our district, including these hostilities toward police officers. Everyone, everyone deserves to feel safe in their communities. That is why I voted to increase funding for local law enforcement a few weeks ago, and why I will continue to push for funding to make sure law enforcement have the tools they need to protect themselves and our communities.

I am deeply grateful to police officers for their service. I understand the worries that their families face daily, and mourn together with families and communities for those who have been killed in the line of duty.

May their memories be a blessing.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I appreciate the gentlewoman's remarks for a very special occasion here.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Medina, Washington, (Ms. DELBENE), my friend. We used to work together in Olympia, serving as cabinet members together.

Ms. DELBENE. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for pulling everyone together.

Earlier today, family, friends, colleagues, loved ones, and the community of Snohomish County gathered to honor the life and sacrifice of Everett Police Officer Dan Rocha.

Officer Rocha was fatally shot while protecting and serving our community. He is survived by his wife and his two sons. Our hearts are with his family and his loved ones.

Officer Rocha served with the department since 2017, and lived in the community for more than a decade. He worked his way up the ranks after starting in parking enforcement, before becoming a fully commissioned officer with the department.

Police officers and first responders put their lives on the line every day to keep our communities safe and, sadly, our State has lost far too many officers.

There is more we must do to support police and first responders across the country. We often ask police to do too much for our communities when other proven alternatives exist.

We need to invest in mental health services so those suffering behavioral issues get the appropriate care that they need. We need to invest in gun violence prevention to limit risk to officers and families. We need to invest in community-based policing to build trust between law enforcement and the communities that they serve.

Congress has a role here, and I will continue to work with my colleagues to be part of the solution to protect those who put their lives on the line and the communities that they serve.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I thank Ms. DELBENE for those great words.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. LARSEN), from the city of Everett, one of our longer-serving colleagues and a very well-respected Member of Congress.

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Madam Speaker, Everett, Washington, suffered a tragic loss 2 weeks ago. On Friday, March 25, Everett Police Officer Dan Rocha was killed in the line of duty while responding to a call near Everett Community College.

Today, the city of Everett celebrated Officer Rocha's life at a memorial service attended by many family members, his friends, law enforcement, other first responders, and, of course, community members.

My thoughts and prayers are with the Rocha family during this very difficult time, Dan's wife, Kelli; his two sons, Thomas and Harrison; and his very large extended family.

As a citizen of Everett, I myself have called upon the Everett Police Department a few times in my neighborhood for help, for assistance, and just for presence. They have always responded without question.

Officer Rocha made an incredible impact in a short time at the Everett PD, serving as an officer for the last 4 years. Two years ago, he landed his dream assignment as a day-shift patrol officer in north Everett. On the day he passed, Officer Rocha was doing the job he loved, serving and protecting the community.

Sadly, the Everett PD has experienced tragedy before. In 1999, Officer Brian DiBucci was killed while pursuing a suspect near the U.S. 2 trestle.

Law enforcement officers like Officers Rocha and DiBucci have dedicated their careers to keeping northwest Washington communities and residents safe.

I know that the women and men of the Everett Police Department will continue to go out into the community every day and carry on Officer Rocha's legacy by upholding that department's commitment to service, integrity, professionalism, and honor.

Today, I stand with my hometown of Everett to honor Officer Rocha and his service to our community.

I thank Representative NEWHOUSE for this opportunity to participate in the Special Order tonight.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I thank Congressman LARSEN for personalizing this. This is your hometown, and this is real stuff. Like Ms. HERRERA BEUTLER said, I wish we were here for a more celebratory cause, but this is very important. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. STRICKLAND), from the city of Tacoma, one of our newest colleagues in the House of Representatives.

Ms. STRICKLAND. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his leadership in holding this Special Order on such an important issue.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize our law enforcement officers across Washington State and to honor those killed in the line of duty.

I want to personally thank our law enforcement officers who work tirelessly to keep our community safe despite staffing shortages and, increasingly too often, at the expense of their own safety.

We live in challenging times. We are coming out of a pandemic. Our social safety net has been frayed. People are anxious. Mental and behavioral health issues are prevalent. Gun violence is on the rise.

As my colleagues and I gather here to thank and acknowledge the contributions of law enforcement across our State, I also stand here in honor of those officers and deputies injured and killed in recent weeks in the South Puget Sound.

For those not familiar with our community, it is a special place, a tight-knit community of veterans, seniors, military families, educators, and, yes, law enforcement professionals who come together to serve and help each other every single day.

The past 3 weeks have been rough in our community. We lost one officer and have had at least three more officers and deputies injured. Just this past Thursday evening, two Olympia police officers were stabbed after pursuing a suspect. Thankfully, both are recovering and will be okay.

Nearly 3 weeks ago, in Spanaway, our community was shaken as our Pierce County Sheriff's Department officers put their lives on the line in service. Sergeant Rich Scaniffe was seriously injured and survived the incident, but tragically, we lost a young hero who served alongside him, Pierce County Sheriff's Deputy Dom Calata, whose photo you see over there.

Deputy Calata's heroism and his commitment to protect his community will always be remembered. Our thoughts are with his family and loved ones during this difficult time. I am grateful for their service and hope we can all stop for a moment to reflect on their sacrifices to serve our State.

I hope all of us in this House will take a moment to remember Deputy Calata and our fallen law enforcement officers in Washington State.

Before I close, I want to reiterate my support for and appreciation of law enforcement serving South Sound and the State of Washington, doing their part during these challenging times. From Mason County Sheriff's Department to Lakewood Police Department, Tacoma Police Department, Olympia Police Department, and Pierce County Sheriff's Department, please know that we appreciate your service.

Madam Speaker, I thank Representative NEWHOUSE for calling this Special Order.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I thank Ms. STRICKLAND for making this very special. Pierce County is a huge and important part of our State. Unfortunately, one of the most recent tragedies was in Pierce County, and I thank the gentlewoman for being part of this Special Order and recognizing that.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. KILMER), my final speaker today. He may be the last but certainly one of the best, and he is a good friend, who I served with in the State legislature, from Gig Harbor.

Mr. KILMER. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, for organizing this Special Order, and for his extraordinary leadership.

Madam Speaker, I join him in rising today in support of Washington State's law enforcement community.

Each and every day, law enforcement officers in every corner of the district I have the honor of representing—and the communities all around our State and all around our country—go to work with one goal in mind: to serve and to protect. That includes officers like Pierce County Sheriff Deputy Dom Calata, who tragically gave his life serving his community last month.

Deputy Calata admirably served his country and our community. I had the honor of attending his celebration of life in Tacoma. It was clear from the hundreds of emergency vehicles and the thousands of Washingtonians who showed up, first, that he was just a really good person; second, that our communities value the work of our law enforcement officers.

Hearing the stories about how he supported other people, how he encouraged others, how he brought smiles to people's faces, how he had just a zeal for service, it was a reminder of the best of us.

Our communities enjoy safety and security because of the commitment of our law enforcement officers and our first responders. That is a commitment that we should return as we continue to support and ensure the safety of those who have dedicated their lives to serve and protect.

The Federal Government has to have their backs. That certainly means what we are doing here, offering our words of support. It means our prayers. It means our gratitude. But it has to mean more than that.

Having their backs means making sure they have the tools and the training that they need to keep us safe and to strengthen the bonds of trust with the communities in which they serve.

Having their backs means giving communities the resources they need to hire and train new officers. It means that when we had a pandemic that led to the cratering of local government revenues, Congress passed the American Rescue Plan because none of us wanted to see cities, counties, and Tribes issue a bunch of pink slips to law enforcement officers.

Having their backs means funding for the COPS Hiring Program and funding for effective, accountable community policing and programs that build trust, save lives, and reduce crime.

Having their backs means dealing with some of the underlying problems that make their lives more difficult. I can't tell you how many law enforcement officers I have spoken to in recent years who have bemoaned the fact that the largest provider of mental health services in nearly every county I represent is the county jail.

If we can address the challenges posed by mental health, posed by addiction, we can help better people's lives, but we can also help our law enforcement officers by getting at some of the root causes of crime in our communities.

Our Nation asks a lot of our first responders. In return, we have to keep working to ensure Congress and the Federal Government do all they can to help these men and women do their jobs to ensure the safety of all Americans and ensure their safety while they are doing those jobs.

Former President Obama wrote a letter to the law enforcement community following some tragic events nearly 6 years ago. In it, he spoke of the importance of being united and not divided. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for organizing this Special Order because you saw Democrats and Republicans united tonight in the importance of celebrating and thanking our law enforcement officers.

President Obama also spoke of acknowledging that any violence against law enforcement officers is an unjustified attack on all of us as a community. Perhaps, most importantly, he said thank you. He said, "Every day, you confront danger so it does not find our families, carry burdens so they do not fall to us, and courageously meet test after test to keep us safe. . . . We recognize it; we respect it; we appreciate it; and we depend on you."

That is why tonight's discussion matters, and it is why the work of every person in law enforcement matters. It is why I am grateful to my friend, Mr. NEWHOUSE, for organizing tonight's discussion.

Mr. NEWHOUSE. Madam Speaker, I thank Mr. KILMER for his great words and for putting some specifics around what we can do to help the men and women in blue and green and brown keep our communities safe.

Madam Speaker, the cost, as you know, of keeping our communities safe, keeping us safe, is great. The people who pay the price of that cost are very dedicated, special people. It truly is a solemn honor for all of us to be able to pay tribute to, and to thank, the men and women who work every day to do just that, keep us safe.

As Mr. KILMER just said, we should be committed to doing all we can to provide all they need for them to be able to do their jobs.

Madam Speaker, I thank all of my colleagues from the State of Washington, and I thank the men and women who do their jobs without thinking twice, who are dedicated to protecting us, to keeping our families and communities safe. We owe them a great deal.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
