MOMENT OF SILENCE IN REMEMBRANCE OF STAFF SERGEANTS JOSE DUENEZ, JR., EDVIN F. FRANCO, TROY S. KNUTSON-COLLINS, AND PRIVATE FIRST CLASS DANTE D. TAITANO

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, we are gathered here today to honor the lives of Staff Sergeants Jose Duenez, Jr., Edwin F. Franco, Troy S. Knutson-Collins, and Private First Class Dante D. Taitano.

These men, these heroes, were part of the 3rd Infantry Division out of Fort Stewart, Georgia, and members of the 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team. Tragically, they were found deceased last week after a training accident in Lithuania. Our hearts break for their families and all who were lucky enough to know these brave men.

While none of these men were native to Georgia, they are forever part of our States’ and our Nation’s story, thanks to their selfless and courageous service. Their loved ones, the Fort Stewart community, and all those impacted by this tragic loss of life have been in our prayers, and we humbly request that they be in yours, as well.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I ask that the House join us in observing a moment of silence.

STOPPING IRANIAN PUPPET HOUTHIS

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, the Houthi rebels are still a murderous puppet of Iran, the foremost state sponsor of terrorism in the world.

After the December collapse of the murderous Assad regime in Syria, when he fled to Moscow, the Tehran regime retains two conspirators, Yemen and Iraq, both supported by terrorist militias armed by war criminal Putin.

Sadly, Houthi terrorists have been gaining ground in Yemen and are possibly taking over oilfields which would provide them resources to support terrorism. The Houthi rebels are armed by war criminal Putin and will be stopped.

Mr. Speaker, I am grateful that just days after President Donald Trump took office, he designated the Houthis as a foreign terrorist organization, as Houthis have attacked American ships. I am encouraged that the Trump administration is working with our regional partners, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, and Oman, to stop Houthi aggression.

In conclusion, God bless our troops as the global war on terrorism continues. Open borders for dictators put all Americans at risk of more 9/11 attacks imminent as warned by the FBI. Trump is reinstituting existing laws to protect American families with peace through strength.

PROTECTING THE MIDDLE CLASS

(Ms. BYNUM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. BYNUM. Mr. Speaker, this administration is taking money out of people’s pockets and robbing the middle class of their earnings, and I am fighting back.

I am fighting for the food bank in Redmond that can’t offer meat in its meals because of funding cuts. I am fighting for the seniors across my district that are watching their life savings evaporate in the stock market. I am fighting for retirees taking required distributions from the their IRAs at a loss because Trump’s tariff policies that are tanking the market.

I am fighting for the parents who can’t afford clothes for their kids, for the families who can’t afford groceries, and for the young people who can’t afford to buy a car or a home.

This foolishness can’t continue, Mr. Speaker. Costs are skyrocketing. The stock market is in free fall. We are headed toward a recession.

I call on Congress to pass my Protecting Families From Inflation Act and to vote to put an end to this ill-advised trade war. The American people can’t wait.

CONGRATULATING RUSSELL HENLEY

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the remarkable achievement of professional golfer Russell Henley.

Russell, a University of Georgia alum—go Dawgs—recently secured his fifth PGA Tour victory at the 2025 Arnold Palmer Invitational.

Russell delivered a pivotal chip-in eagle on the par 5 hole during his final round at Bay Hill, taking lead over his playing partner, Collin Morikawa. Ultimately, he maintained his score of 11 under par to win by one stroke.

Russell was finally back in the winner’s circle for the first time in over 850 days, having been one of the most consistent players on the PGA Tour since 2024. With this win, he has solidified his position as one of the top ten players in the world. He outplayed some of the world’s best golfers, showing his determination under pressure and setting an example for athletes worldwide.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud Russell Henley for his outstanding performance.

QUELLING U.S. FINANCIAL MARKETS

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, needless chaos on U.S. financial markets must be quelled. Today's continuing historic losses on top of last week's are unprecedented, totalling over $6 trillion. That is trillion. This has never happened before. America's enemies are applauding.

Congress needs to act to rein in this chaos. Trump tariffs of this magnitude equate to new taxes on everything the American people buy or own. Today, the Dow Jones and Standard & Poor's continued their nosedive with the worst 3-day performance in nearly a half a century.

These are not just numbers. They represent people losing wealth they worked for. It is evaporating retirement savings, businesses losing capital, cars not being sold, and rising unemployment that has started in industrial and agricultural America.

Our people produce real products for market, and we know what pink slips are. Too many families are fearing for their financial futures, with senior citizens unable to meet the rising cost of living, including for food and medicine.

Mr. Speaker, Congress must pass legislation to support sustained growth, not destroy wealth. The Trump extreme taxes must be stopped.

BUDGET RECONCILIATION

(Mr. LAMALFA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMALFA. Mr. Speaker, this week the House will take up the Senate's amendments to the budget resolution, an essential step in moving forward with the reconciliation process.

This vote paves the way for meaningful action on securing the border, strengthening the tax code to support our families and economic growth, and investing in reliable domestic energy, which ensures a strong national defense and setting the country on a healthier financial path. Passing this amendment allows the House to begin drafting instructions for committees to take up these critical priorities in their subgroups.

The challenges facing the country require decisive action, and this process is key to delivering real solutions. Americans have voted for and have been waiting for. With this step, the groundwork is in place to advance policies that strengthen the economy, protect American interests here and abroad, and create a more stable future.

Let's quit hemming and hawing and get this thing done. Then we will see the positive, productive results the American people have been begging for for several years.

PROTECT DUE PROCESS

(Ms. BALINT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. BALINT. Mr. Speaker, this week we learned that 75 percent of the men on that plane to El Salvador, the men who President Trump claimed were the worst of the worst, were, in fact, not hardened criminals.

Are we surprised that it was another example of optics over evidence?

Mr. Speaker, 75 percent of these men had no criminal charges in the United States. One of these men is 31-year-old Andry Hernandez Romero who was snatched off the streets and put on a plane to El Salvador to rot in a prison there.

Andry is not a gang member. He is not a terrorist. He is a threat to no one. He is a son, a brother, a makeup artist, and a hairdresser. He is a man who fled his home country to come to the United States because he feared for his life because he is gay.

We are being lied to. These kinds of cruel tactics are not necessary to keep us safe. This is about taking away due process and intimidating us into silence and submission. If this administration will do this to Andry, then they will do it to anyone. We are all at risk.

PROTECT COLLEGE SPORTS

(Mr. BAUMGARTNER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BAUMGARTNER. Mr. Speaker, tonight is the NCAA championship, but the magic of March Madness is gone. Every number one seed has made the Final Four. There are no upsets, no Cinderellas, just bigger brands with bigger budgets. Why? It is because college sports is on a downward trajectory, and the magic of what used to make it special is gone.

Now the House v. NCAA settlement will unleash even more chaos with no plan to protect small schools, Olympic sports, or competitive balance. That is why tonight I am introducing the Restore College Sports Act. It replaces the NCAA with a new entity under Presidential authority to regulate public college sports as a public good. It fixes the NIL transfer process to eliminate chaos, and it equally shares revenue across all sports and all schools to increase opportunities in Olympic sports and create competitive balance.

Mr. Speaker, indeed, tonight is a big moment with the Restore College Sports Act.

RECOGNIZING AMY COOPER

(Ms. OMAR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. OMAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the trailblazing accomplishments of Amy Cooper, this year's recipient of the Minnesota History Center National Girls and Women in Sports Day Wilma Rudolph Courage Award.

Amy's athletic career started at Washburn High School in Minneapolis where she was a standout athlete in swimming, track, basketball, and soccer.

Then, playing for Howard University, she went on to become the first soccer player from a historically Black college and university to earn all-conference honors.

Not long after, Amy was diagnosed with health conditions that prevented her from continuing to play soccer competitively so she turned to coaching. Yet, her commitment to expanding athletic opportunities for women of color never wavered.

Her perseverance and commitment to expanding opportunities for girls and women in sports makes her the perfect candidate for the Wilma Rudolph Courage Award, and we could not be more proud of her for this accomplishment.

MADISON HOUSE

(Mrs. MCCLAIN DELANEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MCCLAIN DELANEY. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to recognize the incredible work of the Madison House Autism Foundation, particularly through their Madison Fields program in my district in Montgomery County, Maryland.

As we observe Autism Awareness Month, we celebrate the progress that we have all made with individuals on the autism spectrum. However, we have to acknowledge the work still to be done.

Madison Fields provides a vital space where adults with autism gain job skills, build independence, and experience a sense of community.

Located in the heart of the agricultural reserve, Madison Fields offers hands-on experiences, whether it is caring for animals or working in the soapery, that foster independence, relationships, and personal growth.

The success of Madison House relies heavily on the support of critical agencies like NIH and the CDC, whose research on autism is essential for informing the data-backed best practices.

Moreover, we must support the Department of Education to ensure that students with autism continue to have educational opportunities.

As a Member of Congress, I am committed to supporting organizations like Madison House and ensuring continuing funding for proven research.
