MOMENT OF SILENCE IN REMEMBRANCE OF EL CAMARON GIGANTE VICTIMS

(Ms. ANSARI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. ANSARI. Mr. Speaker, a tragic incident occurred last night in my district outside the El Camaron Gigante restaurant in Glendale. A senseless act of violence took the lives of three people, injured five others, and shattered our community.

I am heartbroken to say that my district has once again been touched by gun violence as far, far too many have.

No one should be unsafe in this country eating in a restaurant or celebrating a holiday like Cinco de Mayo with friends and family.

Mr. Speaker, in memory of the innocent victims of this tragedy, their families, and the entire community, I would ask for everyone present in the Chamber to please rise for a moment of silence.

IN RECOGNITION OF NATIONAL ASTRONAUT DAY

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize National Astronaut Day.

It was 64 years ago today when a brave American, Commander Alan B. Shepard, sat in the cockpit of the Mercury rocket ready to face the unknown. With three simple words, "light this candle," he launched into the vast expanse of space, becoming the first American to break the bounds of Earth.

His spacecraft, Freedom 7, was a tribute to the seven Project Mercury astronauts and to one of our Nation's founding principles: freedom.

That mission marked not just a milestone in science, but a defining moment of national pride in American leadership.

Just 8 years later, Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin planted the Stars and Stripes on the Moon.

When we think of the astronauts, we often picture rocket launches, moonwalks, and zero gravity. Yet, what we don't always see is the years of rigorous training, the risks they accept, and the teamwork behind every mission.

Mr. Speaker, on National Astronaut Day, we honor the pioneers who have blazed a trail into the final frontier. They remind us that boundaries are meant to be pushed and discovery is a never-ending journey.

TIME TO FOCUS ON COSTS

(Ms. BYNUM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. BYNUM. Mr. Speaker, today is the 122nd day of the 119th Congress. It has been 122 days since I began the fight in Congress for lower costs, more jobs, and a better quality of life for Oregonians.

Unfortunately, I have yet to have the opportunity to vote on a single meaningful bill that would help achieve those goals. Grocery prices are still increasing, housing isn't getting more affordable, and it is getting harder for families to make ends meet.

Yet, we are voting this week on the Gulf of America Act, a bill that does nothing to lower costs. It has been the same story week after week. That is why I led my freshman colleagues in telling Speaker JOHNSON that we are fed up and that it is time to work on costs.

I will keep sounding the alarm until we start helping the American people.

Mr. Speaker, it is time for us to get serious.

IN RECOGNITION OF WARREN BRINSON

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize an extraordinary young man, Warren Brinson, whose journey from Savannah, Georgia, to the NFL has inspired us all.

Warren is not only a proud Savannah native but also a true champion. He was proudly a key part of the University of Georgia's back-to-back national championship teams.

This year, Warren made us proud again by being drafted by the Green Bay Packers in the sixth round. On the field, his strength, discipline, and determination make him a powerful force, but off the field is where Warren's character truly shines.

Through the Warren Brinson Foundation, he has made a lasting difference. His back-to-school giveaways help local students feel prepared and confident when school starts in the fall. He uplifts families each year through Thanksgiving turkey giveaways and Christmas toy drives. His youth football camp provides kids with mentorship, encouragement, and a vision for a brighter future.

Mr. Speaker, Warren Brinson is more than an athlete. He is a servant leader, a mentor, and a hero to our district. He reminds us that genuine success involves giving back to others.

EXPRESSION OF OUTRAGE ON NATIONAL DAY OF AWARENESS FOR MISSING AND MURDERED INDIGENOUS WOMEN AND GIRLS

(Mr. STANTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STANTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise on the National Day of Awareness for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls to express my outrage over more broken promises.

In my home State of Arizona, we are mourning the death of 14-year-old Emily Pike, a member of the San Carlos Apache Tribe. Emily disappeared from Mesa earlier this year and was found brutally murdered 2 weeks later off of U.S. Highway 60.

Months later, her case remains unsolved. Emily Pike, like Hanna Harris 30 years ago and hundreds and hundreds of native women and girls, should be alive today.

It is far too common that their cases go cold and that loved ones are left without answers and without justice.

To this day, the MMIP crisis remains the most underreported, under-discussed, and under-resourced tragedy in America, and Congress and Presidents have promised for decades to do much more to address it.

Despite some progress towards justice for victims and their families, Trump's budget announced Friday strips millions of dollars from public safety and criminal justice programs across Indian Country. We have the unique trust responsibility to our Tribal Nations and rarely, if ever, has our Federal Government delivered.

NO ACTION ON LOWERING COSTS

(Mr. LATIMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LATIMER. Mr. Speaker, I have been a Member of this body for just over 120 days. It was clear in November that the American people voted for their family economics. They wanted to see lower costs.

Mr. Speaker, I am perplexed that this House has yet to vote on any legislation that lowers costs for the average family. In fact, we will be voting this week on a bill that renames the Gulf of Mexico.

No one is clamoring for a newly named body of water. They want lower grocery bills. House Republicans' proposals to cut Medicaid and SNAP to pay for tax breaks for billionaires will make life more, not less, expensive for people in Westchester and the Bronx.

The President's thoughtless red light-green light tariffs are making it harder and more expensive to import goods. Those increased costs are paid for by Americans, not foreign countries.

Mr. Speaker, instead of mind-bending tariffs, giveaways to billionaires, and renaming bodies of water, we should be voting on bills that lower costs for the average family. I know many of my colleagues agree. Let's get to real work on behalf of our constituents.

IN RECOGNITION OF ANNUAL STAMP OUT HUNGER FOOD DRIVE

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I stood yesterday with food pantry leaders from across northwest Ohio at the SeaGate Food Bank. We shared deep concerns about rising unemployment, rising food prices, and Federal cuts to food programs by the Trump administration.

This is creating greater hardship across the region I represent. The burden of tariffs and irresponsible Federal food cuts are negatively affecting food banks. They are lifeline to our families.

This coming Saturday, May 10, the National Association of Letter Carriers Branch No. 100 in northwest Ohio and postal workers nationwide will be holding their annual Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive.

They will head out on their routes this Saturday morning. I am urging all Americans to please find an empty paper bag and put protein, peanut butter, canned tuna, canned chicken, canned beef, green beans, and canned fruit in them.

Since launching their program in 1993, this has become the largest food drive in America. Believe me, senior citizens need this. Our families with children need it. Our unemployed workers and our disabled people really need this. I encourage all who want to help to put the food out this Saturday morning after 10 o'clock.

Mr. Speaker, may God bless America and Americans who care.

IN MEMORY OF SANTA ANA CAR ACCIDENT VICTIMS

(Mr. CORREA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CORREA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with a heavy heart to recognize five young students who were taken too soon from the city of Santa Ana. Recently, five students from Santa Ana Unified School District were victims of a brutal car cash: Aurelia Robles, Cynthia Torres Zarate, Natalia Vidal Zarate, Jaqueline Torres Zarate, and Emanuel Gonzalez Martinez. They were full of life, love, and adventure, and this tragic loss has broken all of our hearts.

The families of these students are in our prayers. May the souls of Arely, Cynthia, Jaqueline, Natalia, and Manny rest in peace. Our community will never forget them, and we will miss them dearly.

IN RECOGNITION OF TEACHER APPRECIATION WEEK

(Mr. MRVAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MRVAN. Mr. Speaker, as we recognize National Teacher Appreciation Week, I rise today to express my heartfelt thanks and appreciation to every teacher in northwest Indiana and across our Nation who shows up every day with enthusiasm and positivity to prepare our next generation of leaders.

As a Member of the House Committee on Appropriations, I will do my very best to stand with teachers and support their selfless efforts by providing appropriate direction, oversight, and funds through the Federal programs.

While we are here in the beginning days of May, we should have a full budget proposal from the administration and be holding hearings in our respective subcommittees from agency leaders and defend the details of their budget requests.

Instead, we find ourselves today with a four-page skinny budget and an executive order that proposes to dismantle the Department of Education.

This is more than a budget cut. This is a direct hit on our classrooms, our children, and our future. Eliminating title I funding would mean over 600 teachers gone in northwest Indiana and critical support needs and programs hanging by a thread.

During Teacher Appreciation Week, let's be clear. Appreciation isn't just a thank-you. It is action.

Mr. Speaker, I will fight with everything I have to ensure that our educators get the respect, resources, and support that they deserve to keep doing the life-changing work that they do every single day.

RECOGNIZING INTERNATIONAL FIREFIGHTERS DAY AND TREVOR BROWN

(Mr. SUBRAMANYAM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SUBRAMANYAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in recognition of International Firefighters Day to honor the brave firefighters in Virginia and around the world.

Virginia is home to thousands of dedicated firefighters who put their lives on the line every day to keep our communities safe.

Whether it is battling wildfires, responding to plane crashes, or kitchen fires, firefighters are always there to answer the call.

International Firefighters Day is also a solemn reminder of those we have lost in the line of duty. Just last year, our community lost one of our own, Firefighter Trevor Brown, a husband and father of three from Sterling. He passed away responding to an emergency gas leak call. His sacrifice, like that of many others, is a testament to the courage that firefighters display daily, running into danger to keep us safe.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the fighters in Virginia and around the world for their service. Because of them we are safer and stronger and our communities are more prosperous.

KINSTON BBQ FEST ON THE NEUSE

(Mr. DAVIS of North Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, no one does barbecue like
