

cities like Portland, Seattle, and St. Louis.

Then they thought it was cute to ignore our border. They allowed millions to storm America. Many were sex traffickers, drug runners, child predators, murderers, and thugs. Now thugs are rioting and burning Los Angeles, all because ICE is arresting and deporting killers, rapists, and drug dealers.

They are attacking local police, Federal agents, and the rule of law.

I think they would have learned, but they have doubled down. They are supporting mayhem, burning American flags, and foreign nationals are waving flags from other countries.

They can't support the police while supporting those who attack them.

SUPPORTING DAVID HUERTA

(Ms. BALINT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. BALINT. Mr. Speaker, I stand here today in support of labor leader David Huerta. The head of the SEIU California union was arrested in Los Angeles while exercising his First Amendment rights to speech and assembly, rights that are guaranteed to all of us in the Constitution. That is what separates us from autocratic regimes around the world.

The Trump administration is now going after judges, Members of Congress, political opponents, students, law firms, reporters, Governors, and now the leader of a powerful labor union.

This is about abusing power to silence dissent. This is about generating fear to turn us against each other so that we don't pay attention to this lawbreaking administration.

David Huerta said this after being arrested: "What happened to me is not about me. This is about something much bigger. This is about how we as a community stand together and resist the injustice that is happening. Hard-working people and members of our family and community are being treated like criminals. We all collectively have to object to this madness because this is not justice."

CELEBRATING GEORGIA PHARMACY ASSOCIATION'S 150TH ANNIVERSARY

(Mr. CARTER of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CARTER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Georgia Pharmacy Association and recognize its 150th anniversary this year.

Founded in 1875 in Macon by a group of Georgia pharmacists, the Georgia Pharmacy Association has acted as a platform to promote pharmacy both as a profession and a vital component of healthcare. The organization's reach has expanded into our four pharmacy schools in Georgia, fostering involvement from the next generation of healthcare professionals.

The Georgia Pharmacy Association has achieved several legislative wins, both at the State and Federal levels, including a recent State reimbursement bill supporting independent pharmacies in their battle against PBMs.

I congratulate the Georgia Pharmacy Association on their achievements for pharmacy throughout the past 150 years, and I wish them all the best at the upcoming State convention in Amelia Island this weekend.

NORTHEAST CORRIDOR AMTRAK CUTS

(Mr. LATIMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LATIMER. Mr. Speaker, before I hopped on the Northeast Regional train to D.C. this morning, I joined Westchester County Executive Ken Jenkins to bring attention to the Trump administration's proposed 25 percent cut in funding the Amtrak Northeast Corridor service. This is a bad business decision that speaks more to politics than any objective analysis of what will grow the economy and jobs.

In the congested corridor between Boston and D.C., where major businesses are headquartered and where we generate major revenue for this Nation, we don't need more cars on the road and more planes circling our airports.

We can attract more Amtrak riders with modernization and upgrades, but this administration shows every day that if you don't support them and their policies, you don't count. They will remove Federal services from key cities, take away longtime tax deductions, impose their values and policies, and now curtail transportation options.

Those of us who represent northeast and mid-Atlantic States get the message loud and clear: We don't count.

Amtrak represents growth and expansion for America. When we treat it as such, we will see more of these benefits in other corridors.

LAW AND ORDER MATTER

(Mr. LAMALFA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMALFA. Mr. Speaker, we are seeing it again in another large city. This time, it is in Los Angeles, where what the media sometimes terms "a mostly peaceful protest" is burning part of the town down.

Indeed, it is lawless chaos. Streets are blocked. Law enforcement is under attack. Foreign flags are being waved while American flags burn. Businesses and vehicles are going up in flames. It is less like a demonstration and more like a foreign invasion.

California officials, though, have stood by and done virtually nothing. The Los Angeles police chief says that his department is actually overwhelmed. Other officials in California are outraged that the National Guard was deployed to clean up the mess that they have refused to address. Governor Gavin Newsom told people to resist ICE and then acted surprised when things got worse.

My colleagues can see this little gem right here written on the side of the car. We had to clean it up a bit for public viewing.

These riots should be stopped immediately. Those doing it should be arrested. Those who are aiding and abetting it, including elected officials, need to be dealt with very sternly in this process.

I fully support our National Guard, Department of Homeland Security, and law enforcement on the ground for doing the job that Governor Newsom and Los Angeles city officials simply won't do.

Law and order do matter.

SLASHES TO SNAP BENEFITS

(Mr. MRVAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MRVAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my profound opposition to the unjust slashes to SNAP benefits included in the House majority's reconciliation legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I have seen the tangible benefits of SNAP benefits in northwest Indiana and how it is essential for many seniors, children, and working families.

Throughout my career, I have worked to support all individuals when they need emergency assistance, often through no fault of their own. I also appreciate the longstanding relationship with the Food Bank of Northwest Indiana and other organizations that are responsible for distributing these essential food benefits.

These cuts are being pushed under the false pretense of targeting waste, fraud, and abuse. If that were truly the case, they would be part of the farm bill. Instead, this legislation rips food from the tables of those in need to pay for tax breaks for the most wealthy.

I have seen the need firsthand: miles-long lines on 61st Avenue as families wait for the food bank to open. My community is hurting, and this cruel policy is a betrayal of our most vulnerable.

I urge my Senate colleagues to reject this harmful legislation.

JUNE IS NATIONAL DAIRY MONTH

(Mr. GROTHMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GROTHMAN. Mr. Speaker, I spent the weekend back in Wisconsin, and what does a weekend in Wisconsin in June mean? It means National Dairy Month.

I was at breakfast on the farm in Manitowoc County. I will tell you that June has been National Dairy Month since 1937. When I think of June, I think of cream cheese. I think of cottage cheese. I think of yogurt. I think of raw milk. I think of pasteurized milk. I think of Colby cheese, cheddar cheese, mozzarella cheese, and provolone cheese.

I think of the fact that, whenever you tour your factories in Wisconsin, they say they don't have workers like they used to have workers because they used to have workers who were raised on a dairy farm, and there is nobody who knows the value of hard work more than somebody on a dairy farm.

I will tell you that, more recently, other groups have weighed in since 1937 and said June is their month. It is not their month. June is the dairy industry's month, and I hope everybody spends next weekend going home to buy themselves a brick of cheese.

REMEMBERING NANCY ROSEN STERN

(Ms. GILLEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. GILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Nancy Rosen Stern on what would have been her 60th birthday.

Nancy was a proud Long Islander who lived on the south shore her entire life. She graduated from Lawrence High School and raised her family in Hewlett, just a few miles from where she grew up.

Above all, what Nancy revered most was her family. It began with her devoted parents, Joan and Marty, who passed down their moral compass to Nancy and her sisters, Ilene and Lynn.

Along with her beloved husband, Steven, she raised three children, Michael, Corey, and Samantha, who have all embraced her zest for life and her passion for giving back to her community.

Nancy was looking forward to the birth of her first grandchild, Sloane Naomi, and helped her daughter-in-law Gwen prepare for Sloane's arrival. Sadly, she never had the opportunity to meet Sloane, but her legacy lives on in her beautiful smile and cheerful personality.

Throughout her life, Nancy strove to give back to those in need. She was incredibly active in the Marion & Aaron Gural JCC of the Five Towns, helping children with special needs. The UJA meant very much to her.

A devoted daughter, best friend to her sisters, proud mother, supportive aunt, grandmother, reliable friend, and soulmate to her husband, Nancy Rosen Stern will always be remembered.

I am honored to share her story with all of my colleagues here today. May her memory be a blessing.

RESTORE FUNDING FOR LIFESAVING FOOD AID

(Mr. MAGAZINER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MAGAZINER. Mr. Speaker, I stand today for the 18th time to demand that the Trump administration restore funding for lifesaving food aid.

Edesia Nutrition in North Kingstown, Rhode Island, is one of only two U.S. manufacturers of Plumpy'Nut, a ready-to-use therapeutic food that saves lives every day.

This operation includes a supply chain that encompasses American farmers, American distribution companies, and American logistics companies.

The Edesia location in Rhode Island in a normal year sources 85 million pounds of raw materials: peanuts, soy, dairy, sugar, and more, all from the United States. That is enough to fill 128 Olympic-sized swimming pools a year.

When the Trump administration cuts USAID funding, they are not only hurting children around the world who rely on this nutrition. They are also hurting American farming and manufacturing.

The Trump administration needs to deliver on its word to restore this aid. Until they do, I will continue to speak on this floor.

RAISING AWARENESS ABOUT MEN'S HEALTH

(Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2025, Mr. CARTER of Louisiana was recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.)

Mr. CARTER of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor that I rise today to co-anchor this CBC Special Order hour, along with my distinguished colleague from Virginia, Congresswoman JENNIFER MCCLELLAN.

For the next 60 minutes, members of the CBC will have an opportunity to speak directly to the American people during this Men's Health Month, an issue of great importance to the Congressional Black Caucus, Congress, the constituents we represent, and all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, every year, we recognize the month of June as Men's Health Month. It is a time to encourage men to set an example for their families by engaging in preventive healthcare. It is about breaking harmful habits, making informed decisions, and prioritizing health in a way that protects not just individuals but the whole community.

This effort plays a vital role in addressing a stark and troubling reality: Men have higher mortality rates in most of the leading causes of death and have a lifespan nearly 6 years shorter than women.

These numbers should concern all of us because they affect all of us. When men ignore their health or delay getting care, it doesn't happen in isolation. It impacts their children, their spouses, their coworkers, and the broader economy.

By highlighting the importance of routine check-ups, screenings, and early detection, Men's Health Month aims to shift that reality. It is not just about improving men's personal outcomes; it is about strengthening the support systems around them: the women who care for them, the employers who depend on them, and the families who love them. However, we have a long way to go.

Did you know that only 49 percent of men in the U.S. aged 21 and older had a routine doctor's appointment or cancer screening in the past year? These are dismal numbers. That is according to the Prevent Cancer's 2025 Early Detection Survey. That is less than half. It is not just a missed opportunity; it is a public crisis in the making.

We can't normalize avoidance or downplay the importance of check-ups. Preventive care isn't optional. It is essential. Preventive care is much cheaper, much more efficient than curative care: pay me now or pay me later.

I am proud to serve as the co-chair of the Men's Health Caucus, stepping into this role following the passing of my dear friend and colleague, the Honorable Congressman Donald M. Payne, Jr. Donald was a tireless advocate for health equity, and I am honored to continue his legacy.

The Men's Health Caucus is a bipartisan group. We are united by a shared goal, ensuring that men, no matter where they live, what they look like, what their race or religion may be, all have access to healthcare, to health information, to quality care that they need to live longer, healthier lives.

As chair, I am committed to continuing this important work and encouraging men to take a proactive approach to their health not just during June but every month of the year.

The caucus focuses on key areas like mental health care, prostate cancer screening, traumatic brain injury, and urological health. These are not fringe issues; they are central to the well-being of men across America, and yet they often go unaddressed until it is too late.

We are working hard to change that. We are educating Congress and the public, bringing in medical professionals and public health experts, and pushing for legislative solutions that will have real and lasting impacts.

We know that men and boys historically have not been as proactive in seeking medical care. Too often there is a stigma, a belief that asking for help or going to the doctor is a sign of weakness. We have been taught to suck it up, big boys don't cry. Come on, man. You can do it. Until it is too late. We often only go to a doctor when we are deathly ill or we break a bone.

Our counterparts, young ladies and women, unlike boys and men, because
