WELCOMING JARED ANDERSON AND FRIENDS OF CLUB 21 CHOIR TO WASHINGTON, D.C.

(Mr. CRANK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CRANK. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to welcome Jared Anderson and the Friends of Club 21 Choir here to Washington, D.C.

The choir, composed of talented individuals living with Down syndrome and who are based in Colorado's Fifth Congressional District, will be performing the national anthem to launch the March for Life rally this Friday.

Club 21 came and visited me just a couple of months ago here in Washington, D.C., and it is really one of the highlights of my time as being a Member of Congress. They have uplifted the Pikes Peak community onto the national platform, amplifying and empowering these brilliant performers through the arts and education.

I thank them for dedicating their time, their energy, and their passion in advocating for every human life.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you join me in giving a warm welcome to the Friends of Club 21 Choir.

COLLEGE SPORTS

(Ms. STEVENS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. STEVENS. Mr. Speaker, after Monday's college football national championship, I rise to express my concern about the trend of private equity firms attempting to buy up college sports. These deals will be bad for athletes, students, and fans.

We have seen this play before. Media corporations' pursuit of college football and basketball viewers created nonsensical conference realignment that destroyed the regional nature of college sport. For generations, the Big Ten was known as the Midwestern Conference. In recent decades, that identity has slowly been eroded as coastal schools were admitted in the name of more revenue and higher profits.

Now private equity is looking to buy college sports revenue streams. If these deals are normalized, it is only a matter of time before private investors demand control over our university athletic departments. This creates the risk of further conference realignment, cutting nonrevenue sports, and expanding for-profit influence over universities.

This is why I have sent a letter with my Republican colleagues to end the NCAA.

REMEMBERING THE LIFE AND LEGACY OF NATALIE HASLAM

(Mr. BURCHETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURCHETT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today remembering the life and the legacy of a dear lady, Natalie Haslam, who passed away on January 16. Natalie set the true example of what it means to be a volunteer. She spent her life giving back to our community and the people who are in it, and, of course, to our great University of Tennessee.

Born in 1931, Natalie was raised in Knoxville and graduated from UT in 1953. In 1974, she married Jim Haslam, the owner and founder of Pilot Company. She is known for her leadership and philanthropy. Natalie became the first woman to serve as the chair of the East Tennessee Foundation Board in 1987.

I always remember Ms. Haslam when my dad died. I was at the mortuary, actually, with my mama picking out my dad's casket. Big Jim and Natalie called me and told me that everything would be all right and if I needed anything, just to call. I also remember when Mr. Haslam and I would be at events together. She would always shush us and then just give us a smile.

While serving the Knoxville community, her commitments to the University of Tennessee remained unmatched. Natalie and Jim through the Haslam Foundation donated $32 million to UT with $10 million going toward the Natalie L. Haslam Music Center. It is one of the finest music centers not just in the State of Tennessee or the country, but the world, Mr. Speaker.

Natalie is survived by her husband, Jim; three granddaughters; three stepchildren; six grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren. She was a true humanitarian. She will always be remembered as someone in east Tennessee who gave back to a place where she lived and loved. I will always remember her as a very classy lady.

CONGRATULATING ISABEAU LEVITO

(Mr. CONAWAY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONAWAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and congratulate my constituent, Isabeau Levito, who officially qualified for the U.S. Olympic figure skating team where she will represent Team USA at the 2026 Winter Olympics in Milan, Italy, next month.

Isabeau Levito grew up in south Jersey, training for years at the Igloo Ice Center in Mount Laurel.

Long before the spotlight, she was on the ice before sunrise, balancing schoolwork, family time, and relentless practice with remarkable discipline and grace.

This month, Isabeau achieved a lifelong dream. After earning a bronze medal at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in St. Louis, she officially qualified for Team USA and will represent our country at the 2026 Winter Olympics in Milan, Italy.

Isabeau joins what experts are already calling the strongest U.S. women's Olympic skating team in decades, and she stands proudly among the best.

We are incredibly proud of her. On behalf of south Jersey, we wish Isabeau Levito the very best as she skates for the gold and for Team USA.

NATIONAL BLOOD DONOR MONTH

(Mr. WIED asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WIED. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of January as National Blood Donor Month. Each winter, blood centers across the Nation experience reduced donor turnout, while the need for blood remains constant.

In the United States, someone requires a blood transfusion every 2 seconds to treat patients facing trauma, surgeries, childbirth complications, cancer, chronic conditions, and so much more, yet our blood supply remains critically low.

Because of the urgent and ongoing need for blood donations, I recently introduced H.R. 5791, the Boosting Lifesaving Operations, Opening Donation Centers Act, or the BLOOD Centers Act, alongside my Democratic colleague, Congresswoman SCHRIER.

This commonsense, bipartisan legislation would streamline the bureaucratic burdens of opening a new blood center while still ensuring oversight and safety in donation facilities and of the blood they collect.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the BLOOD Centers Act so we can expedite the ability of blood centers to open new locations and collect lifesaving blood for those who need it.

Most importantly, Mr. Speaker, I also want to encourage everyone listening today to consider taking the time to donate blood if you are able to. First-time donors are always welcome, and every donation has the power to save a life.

PERKINS HIGH SCHOOL STEM ACHIEVEMENT

(Ms. KAPTUR asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, last week I visited Perkins High School in Sandusky, Ohio. My role: to celebrate excellence in STEM education.

This year, Kia Preston won the Ninth Congressional District App Challenge for a project titled "Light Teachings."

Kia's interactive app helps users understand fundamentals of ray tracing, a computer graphics technique that simulates how light interacts with objects to create realistic images in video platforms.

Kia's app will be honored here in our Nation's Capital later this year.

I also paid tribute to the school's robotics club that has partnered with NASA. They were the only high school in the United States of America selected alongside other higher education institutions like MIT.

Bravo Perkins.

After 4 school years building a satellite named "Foras Promineo," which is Latin for "outreach," it was launched to the International Space Station back in September.

Thanks to computer science teacher Mike Leffler and Robotics Club adviser John Stout for lighting the way for these bright, young minds who are going to lead America into the future and beyond.

Mr. Speaker, I am just so proud of them.

REMEMBERING LENARD CONKLIN

(Mr. LAWLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAWLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of Lenard Conklin, a devoted son of Stony Point who lived a life defined by service, tradition, and deep community roots.

Lenard was a lifelong resident, living in the very home his great-grandfather built on Gate Hill Road. Lenard was known as the last hay baler of Rockland County.

Lenard proudly served our Nation during the Vietnam war as a Navy Seabee, his dream position. In 2024, he was honored on the Hudson Valley Honor Flight, Mission 34, in Washington, D.C. His commitment to hard work and service continued at home, where he spent 31 years at Algonquin Gas before retiring from the Stony Point Sewer Plant.

Whether sharing stories of his time in service, his love of the Catskill Mountains, his passion for trout fishing and hunting, or dotting on the love of his life, Nora, his presence made a difference in the lives of everyone he met.
