

“I am somebody, you are somebody.” He said: You are somebody. He was talking to some young folks, and he said: “Up with hope, down with dope,” because you are somebody.

He then talked about unity. He said: Black, Brown, Red, Yellow, or White, we are all precious in God’s sight. If your mind can conceive it, you can achieve it.

I looked at the young people who were in that audience, and he had them all standing up. Some of them in Far Rockaway had never been to Manhattan in New York, just some 12 miles away, you could see the New York skyline. He inspired these young people, and for days thereafter, they were telling everybody: “I am somebody.”

□ 2120

This is a man that knew how to bring out the best in everyone and bring us all together, teaching us how to make this land a better place, making the sacrifices to make America America.

Jesse Louis Jackson was a man that when we look at American history, what the cameras of history have recorded, and how so many people then turned out in the city of New York, for example, because David Norman Dinkins would have never been the mayor, the first Black mayor in the city of New York if it wasn’t for 1984 and 1988 and the spirit of Jesse Jackson.

I close by just saying this: I thank God for the opportunity to have lived in the life and times and have Jesse Jackson then come and endorse my first candidacy for the United States House of Representatives. He was one of the very first when there was no one else because he never forgot me working with him in 1984. I thank the Lord for this opportunity to speak and give tribute to one of the greatest men that this planet has ever seen.

Mr. CLYBURN. Let me just close, Mr. Speaker, if I may, by thanking the organizers of this, Cleo and Jonathan.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. CLYBURN. Let me just say that I do believe you have heard from my colleagues tonight about one of America’s best products.

I yield back the balance of my time.
