Subtitle F—Critical Mineral Mining Education

SEC. 1271. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Critical Mineral Mining Education Act of 2026''.

SEC. 1272. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States mining industry and, more broadly, mining and mineral processing and refining, is widely reported as facing a significant personnel shortage.

(2) This shortage is driven by an aging workforce, declining numbers of graduates entering mining careers, and difficulty recruiting and retaining skilled workers.

(3) Fifty percent of the current mining workforce is expected to retire within the next 5 years.

(4) As of 2023, only 14 United States universities and colleges had mining and mining engineer programs.

(5) Downstream segments, such as ore processing, refining, and metallurgy, are affected by the same workforce trends.

(6) Institutions and personnel from allied countries with mining expertise can share their knowledge and experience with the United States workforce through education exchange programs.

In this title:

(1) COVERED PROVIDER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the term ''covered provider'' means a person who—

(i) synthesizes and sells synthetic nucleic acids to persons in the United States or in a foreign country; or

(ii) produces and distributes or sells, including resellers, equipment for synthesizing nucleic acids, including benchtop synthesizers, to persons in the United States.

(B) EXCEPTION.—The term ''covered provider'' does not include a person the extent the person sells or distributes synthetic nucleic acids within a commercial entity for the purpose of such entity's research and development activities.

(2) DIRECTOR.—The term ''Director'' means the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy.

(3) SECRETARY.—The term ''Secretary'' means the Secretary of Commerce.

(4) UNDER SECRETARY.—The term ''Under Secretary'' means the Under Secretary of Commerce for Standards and Technology.

SEC. 102. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the Sense of Congress that—

(1) the field of biotechnology is accelerating and the United States is at risk of losing its biotechnology leadership to foreign adversaries;

(2) this acceleration of the field brings the United States into a period of both great opportunity and risk;

(3) policymaking for biosecurity, biosafety, and responsible innovation needs to be flexible to keep pace with advances in biotechnology and ensure an environment that allows biotechnology research and industry to flourish;

(4) the current landscape of biosecurity and biosafety authorities is spread among multiple agencies, contributing to slow policymaking, which, coupled with the rapid advancement of biotechnology, becomes outdated quickly;

(5) previous studies conducted by the Government Accountability Office, the National Security Commission for Emerging Biotechnology, and several presidential administrations have already identified gaps in the Federal Government's oversight of biosecurity and biosafety risks;

(6) the United States Government needs to streamline biosecurity and biosafety authorities to ensure efficiency and clarity;

(7) gene synthesis technology is becoming increasingly sophisticated and accessible, along with the ability to design novel nucleic acid sequences;

(8) both of these factors described in paragraph (7) may increase the risk of the development and deployment of new pathogens by bad actors; and

(9) gene synthesis screening of orders and customers is immediately needed to mitigate risk in the short-term, which will act as a stopgap while the United States Government develops a comprehensive biosecurity and biosafety strategy that is appropriate for the dynamic and rapidly advancing field of biotechnology.

TITLE IV—BIOMANUFACTURING INNOVATION

SEC. 401. FINDINGS; SENSE OF CONGRESS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Biotechnology is the designing and engineering of biological systems. Biotechnology allows scientists to grow everything from medicines to crops to materials, enabling ''biology by design''.

(2) Biotechnology holds the potential for the United States to transform its military capabilities, strengthen food security and agricultural resilience, and cure life-threatening diseases, but it holds that same potential for other countries. The countries that master biotechnology first will gain the ability to shape how those technologies are used for decades to come.

(3) Biotechnology unlocks the capabilities of producing medicines via biological systems, known as biopharmaceutical manufacturing. Biopharmaceutical manufacturing will enable better and less invasive treatments that extend and improve lives.

(4) By investing in biomanufacturing, the United States Government would reduce dependency on foreign supply chains.

(5) For United States manufacturers, the biggest roadblock to commercialization is proving that their products and processes can scale and produce a return on investment. Biomanufacturing requires flexible and affordable infrastructure for development, to ensure that innovative products can rapidly move from the lab to commercial-scale production.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) to realize the potential of biotechnology in the pharmaceutical sector, the United States Government should establish and operate a biopharmaceutical manufacturing innovation center;

(2) the center should facilitate and accelerate manufacturing innovation, support good manufacturing practices, and provide for collaboration among public, private, and nonprofit institutions; and

(3) the center should also facilitate training for workers to operate biotechnology tools and equipment and to bolster talent throughout the biotechnology sector.

SEC. 402. ESTABLISHMENT OF NATIONAL BIOPHARMACEUTICAL INNOVATION CENTER.

Subtitle __—Precious Metals Depositories

SEC. 1_____. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Precious metals exchanges currently require physically traded metals to be stored within close proximity to New York City.

(2) Geographic concentration creates systemic risk vulnerabilities, reduces available liquidity, and increases the cost to market participants.

(3) Recent liquidity events in global metals markets underscore the need to minimize regulatory barriers that reduce the available supply of metals to the publicly traded marketplace.

(4) Notwithstanding the current limited supply, the security standards of existing vaults supporting publicly traded exchanges are outstanding and have enhanced the confidence of market participants.

(5) Market liquidity and participant confidence will be enhanced by the addition of storage vaults of relative scale and commercial importance in the marketplace.

(6) Additional supply in lower-cost markets, especially markets that are near hubs of precious metals activity and interstate transportation networks, would also reduce storage costs, enhance competition in the storage marketplace, and promote greater market access to investors.

(7) It is in the public interest for systemically important financial market utilities to provide a clear and transparent selection process for precious metals storage facilities within their network.

SEC. 1_____. PRECIOUS METALS DEPOSITORIES USED IN CONNECTION WITH FUTURES CONTRACTS.

Section 5b(c)(2) of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 7a–1(c)(2)) is amended—

(2) in subparagraph (F)—

(A) by redesignating clause (iii) as clause (iv); and

(B) by inserting after clause (ii) the following:

‘‘(iii) APPROVAL OF PRECIOUS METALS DEPOSITORIES.—

‘‘(I) IN GENERAL.—A derivatives clearing organization that clears agreements, contracts, transactions, or swaps that can result in the physical delivery of precious metals and is a designated financial market utility (as defined in section 803 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (12 U.S.C. 5462)) (referred to in this paragraph as a ‘systemically important derivatives clearing organization’) shall—

‘‘(aa) develop, publish, and employ objective and transparent criteria in evaluating and selecting depositories for the storage of precious metals used in connection with a contract of sale of a commodity for future delivery; and

‘‘(bb) provide a formal process for those depositories to apply for that selection.

‘‘(II) SELECTION FACTORS.—In selecting depositories under subclause (I), a systemically important derivatives clearing organization shall—

‘‘(aa) assess and account for, among other factors, geographic diversity, competition, risk management, storage costs to members and participants, and systemic risk implications; and

‘‘(bb) approve new depositories in the context of a public interest in increased geographic diversity, increased liquidity, market resiliency, market access, competition, and cost efficiency, consistent with appropriate security and quality standards.

‘‘(III) GEOGRAPHICAL REQUIREMENT.—

‘‘(aa) IN GENERAL.—A systemically important derivatives clearing organization shall select at least 2 depositories described in subclause (I) in each time zone described in item (bb).

‘‘(AA) Eastern time.

‘‘(CC) Mountain time.

‘‘(DD) Pacific time.’’;

(3) in subparagraph (I)—

(A) in clause (ii)(II), by striking ‘‘and’’ at the end;

(B) in clause (iii), by striking the period at the end and inserting ‘‘; and’’; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(iv) periodically assess the ease of access for market participants with respect to the physical settlement of any commodity, regardless of the geographic location within the United States, to ensure system availability and resiliency.’’;

(4) in subparagraph (L)(iii)—

(A) in subclause (IV), by striking ‘‘and’’ at the end;

(B) by redesignating subclause (V) as subclause (VI); and

(C) by inserting after subclause (IV) the following:

‘‘(V) in the case of a systemically important derivatives clearing organization, conditions for applying to, and receiving approval from, the systemically important derivatives clearing organization as a metal service provider, such as a depository for the storage of precious metals; and’’; and

(5) in subparagraph (N)(i), by inserting ‘‘, including with respect to the approval of a metal service provider, such as a depository for the storage of precious metals’’ after ‘‘trade’’.

SA 6337. Mr. WYDEN (for himself and Ms. LUMMIS) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 4784, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2027 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

SEC. ____02. FINDINGS, DECLARATIONS, AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS AND DECLARATIONS.—Congress finds and declares the following:

(1) All Federal Government records related to unidentified anomalous phenomena should be preserved and centralized for historical and Federal Government purposes.

(2) All Federal Government records concerning unidentified anomalous phenomena should carry a presumption of immediate disclosure and all records should be eventually disclosed to enable the public to become fully informed about the history of the Federal Government's knowledge and involvement surrounding unidentified anomalous phenomena.

(3) Legislation is necessary to create an enforceable, independent, and accountable process for the public disclosure of such records.

(4) Legislation is necessary because credible evidence and testimony indicates that Federal Government unidentified anomalous phenomena records exist that have not been declassified or subject to mandatory declassification review as set forth in Executive Order 13526 (50 U.S.C. 3161 note; relating to classified national security information) due in part to exemptions under the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.), as well as an over-broad interpretation of ''transclassified foreign nuclear information'', which is also exempt from mandatory declassification, thereby preventing public disclosure under existing provisions of law.

(5) Legislation is necessary because section 552 of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the ''Freedom of Information Act''), as implemented by the Executive branch of the Federal Government, has proven inadequate in achieving the timely public disclosure of Government unidentified anomalous phenomena records that are subject to mandatory declassification review.

(6) Legislation is necessary to restore proper oversight over unidentified anomalous phenomena records by elected officials in both the executive and legislative branches of the Federal Government that has otherwise been lacking as of the enactment of this Act.

(7) Legislation is necessary to afford complete and timely access to all knowledge gained by the Federal Government concerning unidentified anomalous phenomena in furtherance of comprehensive open scientific and technological research and development essential to avoiding or mitigating potential technological surprise in furtherance of urgent national security concerns and the public interest.

(2) Maintaining the leadership of the United States in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics will require a diverse population with the skills, interest, and access to tools required to advance these fields.

(3) Just as earlier digital revolutions in communications and computation provided individuals with the internet and personal computers, a digital revolution in fabrication will allow anyone to make almost anything, anywhere.

(4) These creations include elements of a typical household basket of goods (furnishings, apparel, food production equipment, shelter, transportation, education and communication, recreation, and other goods and services), personal technology, means for personal expression, the production of digital fabrication machinery, community design, and manufacturing capability.

(5) The Center for Bits and Atoms of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has contributed significantly to the advancement of these goals through its work in creating and advancing digital fabrication facilities, or ''fab labs'' in the United States and abroad.

(6) Such digital fabrication facilities may include MakerSpaces, Hackerspaces, and other creative spaces that use digital fabrication as a platform for education, innovation, entrepreneurship, personal expression, public access, and social impact.

(7) Such digital fabrication facilities provide a model for a new kind of national laboratory that operates as a network, linking local facilities for advanced manufacturing, providing universal access, cultivating new literacies, and empowering communities.

(8) The nonprofit Fab Foundation was established to support the growth of the international network of digital fabrication facilities, to amplify the educational, entrepreneurial, and social impacts of digital fabrication facilities, and to support the development of regional capacity building organizations to broaden impact as well as address local, regional, and global challenges through the use of digital fabrication technologies.

SEC. 12_____. EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN GATEWAY ACT.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Eastern Mediterranean Gateway Act''.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to support the role of Eastern Mediterranean countries as a strategic gateway in the India-Middle East-Europe Economic Corridor (IMEC).

(c) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The India-Middle East-Europe Economic Corridor (IMEC), launched at the G20 Summit in 2023 with G7 backing, enhances connectivity between Asia, the Middle East, and Europe while serving as a strategic alternative to Chinese infrastructure investments.

(2) The Eastern Mediterranean region is of strategic importance to the United States and its allies, as demonstrated by the United States founding role in the 3+1 framework with Greece, Israel, and Cyprus.

(3) Energy projects such as the Great Sea Interconnector, the Gregy Interconnection Project, the Greece-Bulgaria Interconnector, and the LNG terminals in the Eastern Mediterranean play a key role in European energy security and provide critical infrastructure that can serve as the backbone for linking India, the Gulf, and Europe through the Eastern Mediterranean and improve opportunities for United States energy security.

(4) Cyprus, Greece, Egypt, and Israel are key United States partners in promoting stability, security, and economic development in the region.

(5) Enhanced defense and security cooperation, as well as educational and cultural exchanges, strengthen bilateral and multilateral ties.

(6) According to Presidential Determination 2025–03, ''the furnishing of defense articles and defense services to the Republic of Cyprus will strengthen the security of the United States and promote world peace''.

(7) The statement of policy in the Israel Relations Normalization Act of 2022 (22 U.S.C. 8601 note), notably that it is the policy of the United States ''to expand and strengthen the Abraham Accords to encourage other nations to normalize relations with Israel'', should guide the Secretary of State and other United States actors in their work to promote integration between India, the Middle East and southeast Europe.

(8) India has strengthened strategic ties with Greece, Israel, and Cyprus, fostering economic, maritime, and security cooperation that aligns with United States regional priorities.

(9) The success of the India-Middle East-Europe Economic Corridor depends on infrastructure, security, and innovation partnerships rooted in the Eastern Mediterranean region, which serves as the primary connective hub linking the Gulf and Indian subcontinent to Europe.

(d) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the significance of diplomatic initiatives such as the Greece-Cyprus-Israel-US ''3+1'' format, the East Mediterranean Gas Forum and the Abraham Accords should be recognized and the United States should maintain its leadership role in these diplomatic initiatives;

(2) the United States should continue to actively participate in the initiatives of the East Mediterranean Gas Forum;

(3) the Eastern Mediterranean region is a key gateway that can link three continents and the United States should support energy and transportation infrastructure, connectivity initiatives, defense cooperation, and other forms of integration in and around the region;

(4) the United States recognizes the unique role of Eastern Mediterranean countries as both a distinct subregion and a central connector within the broader IMEC corridor;

(5) the ''3+1'' diplomatic initiative should resume with a meeting of the Secretary of State with the Foreign Ministers of Israel, Greece, and Cyprus; and

(6) the statement of policy in section 203 of the Eastern Mediterranean Security and Energy Partnership Act of 2019 (22 U.S.C. 2373 note) should guide the Secretary of State in promoting connectivity between India, the Middle East and Europe, including participation in the trilateral dialogue on energy, maritime security, cybersecurity and protection of critical infrastructure conducted among Israel, Greece, and Cyprus.

(e) DIPLOMACY IN EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN REGION.—

(1) STRATEGIC DIALOGUES.—The Secretary of State may institutionalize multilateral strategic dialogues between the United States and IMEC countries, including dedicated formats with Eastern Mediterranean countries, with which the United States has a bilateral strategic dialogue.

(2) PRIORITIZATION OF THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN.—The Secretary of State shall prioritize the Eastern Mediterranean region in United States foreign policy, focusing on energy security and defense cooperation with countries in such region.

(f) REPORTS AND STUDIES.—

At the end of subtitle G of title X, add the following:

SEC. ____01. VIEQUEST RECOVERY AND REDEVELOPMENT ACT.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Vieques Recovery and Redevelopment Act''.

(b) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) Vieques is an island municipality of Puerto Rico, measuring approximately 21 miles long by 4 miles wide, and located approximately 8 miles east of the main island of Puerto Rico.

(2) Prior to Hurricane Maria, residents of Vieques were served by an urgent medical care facility, the Susana Centeno Family Health Center, and residents had to travel off-island to obtain medical services, including most types of emergency care because the facility did not have the basic use of x-ray machines, CT machines, EKG machines, ultrasounds, or PET scans.

(3) The predominant means of transporting passengers and goods between Vieques and the main island of Puerto Rico is by ferry boat service, and over the years, the efficiency of this service has frequently been disrupted, unreliable, and difficult for cancer patients to endure to receive treatment. Each trip to Ceiba, Puerto Rico, for the cancer patient is an additional out-of-pocket expense ranging from $120 to $200.

(4) The United States Military maintained a presence on the eastern and western portions of Vieques for close to 60 years, and used parts of the island as a training range during those years, dropping over 80 million tons of ordnance and other weaponry available to the United States military since World War II.

(5) The unintended, unknown, and unavoidable consequences of these exercises were to expose Americans living on the islands to the residue of that weaponry which includes heavy metals and many other chemicals now known to harm human health.

(6) According to Government and independent documentation, the island of Vieques has high levels of heavy metals and has been exposed to chemical weapons and toxic chemicals. Since the military activity in Vieques, island residents have suffered from the health impacts from long-term exposure to environmental contamination as a result of 62 years of military operations, and have experienced higher rates of certain diseases among residents, including cancer, cirrhosis, hypertension, diabetes, heavy metal diseases, along with many unnamed and uncategorized illnesses. These toxic residues have caused the American residents of Vieques to develop illnesses due to ongoing exposure.

(7) In 2017, Vieques was hit by Hurricane Maria, an unusually destructive storm that devastated Puerto Rico and intensified the existing humanitarian crisis on the island by destroying existing medical facilities.

(8) The medical systems in place prior to Hurricane Maria were unable to properly handle the health crisis that existed due to the toxic residue left on the island by the military's activities.

(9) After Maria, the medical facility was closed due to damage and continues to be unable to perform even the few basic services that it did provide. Vieques needs a medical facility that can treat and address the critical and urgent need to get life-saving medical services to its residents. Due to legal restrictions, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (in this section referred to as ''FEMA'') is unable to provide a hospital where its capabilities exceed the abilities of the facility that existed prior to Maria; therefore Vieques needs assistance to build a facility to manage the vast health needs of its residents.

(10) Every American has benefitted from the sacrifices of those Americans who have lived and are living on Vieques and it is our intent to acknowledge that sacrifice and to treat those Americans with the same respect and appreciation that other Americans enjoy.

(11) In 2012, the residents of Vieques were denied the ability to address their needs in Court due to sovereign immunity, Sanchez v. United States, No. 3:09–cv–01260–DRD (D.P.R.). However, the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit referred the issue to Congress and urged it to address the humanitarian crisis. This bill attempts to satisfy that request such that Americans living on Vieques have a remedy for the suffering they have endured.

SEC. 1274. TRAINING TO IMPROVE TAIWAN'S CRITICAL ENERGY INFRASTRUCTURE PROTECTION.

Section 5504(a)(3) of the Taiwan Enhanced Resilience Act (22 U.S.C. 3353(a)(3)) is amended by inserting after ''capabilities'' the following: ''and critical energy infrastructure protection''.

SEC. 1275. FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING TAIWAN'S USE OF NUCLEAR ENERGY.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) According to the International Atomic Energy Agency, nuclear energy—

(A) is the second safest source of energy;

(B) is one of only 2 clean energies that offer non-stop baseload power required for sustainable economic growth and improved human welfare; and

(C) when compared with other sources of electricity from cradle to grave, has the lowest carbon footprint, uses fewer materials, and takes up less land.

(2) A nuclear fuel assembly lasts up to 6 years, making supply more resistant to maritime disruption.

(3) Taiwan has built a robust civilian nuclear capability over previous decades that has shown the potential to provide clean, reliable power to Taiwan.

(4) On May 17, 2025, the Maanshan-2, Taiwan's last operating nuclear power plant, was shut down after its 40-year operating license expired.

(5) There are compelling economic and security reasons to evaluate placing existing infrastructure back in service to ensure Taiwan has clean, reliable power that is more resilient in a contingency.

(6) As a result of Taiwan's substantial use of energy in industrial manufacturing and production, and emerging energy requirements for electrification, artificial intelligence, and data center support, there is considerable benefit for Taiwan to evaluate new small modular reactors technology to augment its energy capacity and resilience.

(7) As Taiwan modernizes its military, the power demand from command-and-control systems, intelligence platforms, drone operations, and joint battlespace integration will continue to increase.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) it is in the interests of both the United States and Taiwan for Taiwan—

(A) to maintain nuclear power as an energy source; and

(B) to utilize new nuclear technologies, including Gen III+ nuclear reactors and small modular reactor technology; and

(2) the United States should prioritize assistance and cooperation with Taiwan on nuclear energy to improve technology exports and job creation in the United States and energy security and resilience in Taiwan.

SEC. 1276. INSURANCE FOR VESSELS TRANSPORTING VITAL GOODS TO STRATEGIC PARTNERS.

Section 53902 of title 46, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(d) VESSELS TRANSPORTING VITAL GOODS TO STRATEGIC PARTNERS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation may provide insurance and reinsurance under this chapter for any vessel engaged in commerce transporting critical energy, humanitarian, or other goods to Taiwan or another strategic partner of the United States that is facing coercive maritime threats if the Secretary determines, in consultation with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, and the Director of National Intelligence, that providing such insurance or reinsurance is necessary to support vital strategic commerce or to deter coercive maritime behavior that undermines regional security.

''(2) NONAPPLICABILITY OF CERTAIN CONDITION.—The condition under section 53902(c) shall not apply with respect to a vessel described in paragraph (1).''.

SEC. 1277. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION REGARDING CONTINUED UNITED STATES POLICY TOWARD TAIWAN AND THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA.

Nothing in this subtitle may be construed as a change to the One China Policy of the United States, which is guided by the Taiwan Relations Act (22 U.S.C. 3301 et seq.), the three United States-People's Republic of China Joint Communiqués, and the Six Assurances.

At the appropriate place in title X, insert the following:

SEC. 10_____. MULTILATERAL ALIGNMENT OF CONTROLS ON SEMICONDUCTOR MANUFACTURING EQUIPMENT.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) export controls on semiconductor manufacturing equipment and components represent one of the United States' most effective defenses of this foundational technology;

(2) advanced computing applications like artificial intelligence are transforming military affairs and the balance of power;

(3) the United States and its allies have an advantage in the foundational technologies that underpin advanced computing applications, including advanced-node integrated circuits and the equipment and software required to design and produce advanced-node integrated circuits;

(4) robust controls on semiconductor manufacturing equipment and components have been a bipartisan priority across multiple administrations, reflecting a shared recognition that protecting America's semiconductor advantage is essential to national security;

(5) the adversaries of the United States are exploiting gaps in the current export control regime;

(6) certain entities, including ChangXin Memory Technologies, Hua Hong Semiconductor Limited, Huawei Technologies Company, Semiconductor Manufacturing International Corporation, and Yangtze Memory Technologies Corporation are engaged in efforts to produce advanced-node integrated circuits that are especially crucial for the Military-Civil Fusion efforts of the People's Republic of China and warrant comprehensive export controls to prevent those companies from accessing items made with United States technologies;

(7) companies located in adversary countries that produce semiconductor manufacturing equipment are critical to adversaries' efforts to overcome exports controls to develop advanced-node integrated circuit production capabilities, and such companies should not be permitted to utilize or benefit from United States or allied technology or components;

(8) the United States Government should work closely with allies and partners of the United States to align export controls on semiconductor manufacturing equipment and components to prevent gaps in controls, reduce the risk of circumvention, and ensure a level global playing field; and

(9) securing a diplomatic agreement, including through the use of positive incentives to encourage adoption of these controls, is the best and most sustainable path to alignment.

(b) IDENTIFYING CHOKEPOINTS.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and annually thereafter, the covered agency heads shall—

(1) jointly conduct a review to identify all covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment and all covered facilities;

(2) submit to the appropriate congressional committees a list of all such equipment and facilities; and

(3) notify the public in the Federal Register when this submission has occurred.

(c) DIPLOMATIC ENGAGEMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The covered agency heads shall prioritize and, upon the date of the enactment of this Act, immediately engage in diplomatic efforts to encourage the governments of allied supplier countries to adopt—

(A) countrywide controls, or other policies that have the same practical effect as countrywide controls, on covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment that are subject to the jurisdiction of such allied supplier country; and

(B) license requirements for the export of all applicable items to any covered facility and the servicing of all applicable items at any covered facility, with a policy of denying such license.

(2) BRIEFING ON DIPLOMATIC EFFORTS.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the covered agency heads shall provide a briefing to members of the appropriate congressional committees that—

(A) describes the status of diplomatic efforts to secure the adoption by allied supplier countries of the controls described in paragraph (1);

(B) outlines and assesses positive incentives to encourage adoption of these controls; and

(C) identifies—

(i) countries that have not adopted the controls described in paragraph (1)(A);

(ii) countries that have not adopted the controls described in paragraph (1)(B); and

(B) apply comprehensive end-user or end-use restrictions to all covered facilities located in countries of concern.

(2) EXHAUSTION OF DIPLOMATIC RECOURSE.—Except as provided in paragraph (4), for each allied supplier country, the covered agency heads shall jointly certify, not later than 150 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, to the appropriate congressional committees that either—

(A) the country has implemented—

(i) countrywide controls, or policies that have the same practical effect, on all semiconductor manufacturing equipment that is subject to the jurisdiction of the allied supplier country; and

(ii) licensing requirements, with a policy of denying the license, for the export of all applicable items to any covered facility, or other policies with the same practical effect; or

(B)(i) the country has not adopted the controls described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of subsection (c)(1);

(ii) the covered agency heads have prioritized and exhausted available diplomatic channels;

(iii) such channels have failed to secure export controls from the allied supplier country that have the same practical effect as those described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of subsection (c)(1); and

(iv) continued delay would materially undermine the national security of the United States.

(3) EXTENSION OF CONTROLS.—For each allied supplier country for which the covered agency heads submitted a certification described in paragraph (2)(B), the Secretary of Commerce, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall issue regulations that—

(A) establish jurisdiction over and apply countrywide controls, by directly controlling the equipment, indirectly restricting the end-use of essential components of such equipment, or both, to covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment exported from the allied supplier country; and

(B) require a license for the servicing of any applicable item that is also subject to the jurisdiction of the allied supplier country in any covered facility located in a country of concern and implement a policy of denying the license for such servicing; and

(C) establish jurisdiction over applicable items from the allied supplier country and apply end-user or end-use controls prohibiting the export of such items to any covered facility.

(4) NATIONAL SECURITY WAIVER.—The covered agency heads may jointly grant a one-time waiver to extend the 150-day deadline for certification under paragraph (2) by not more than 90 days, if the covered agency heads, with concurrence from the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Energy, jointly—

(A) submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees describing—

(i) justification for why the deadline could not be met; and

(ii) the interim steps the covered agency heads have taken to prevent stockpiling; and

(B) determine and certify to the appropriate congressional committees that—

(i) the extension is in the national security interest of the United States, despite the risk that countries of concern may take advantage of the delay to further stockpile covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment; and

(ii) the government of the allied supplier country is taking concrete, verifiable steps, pursuant to their domestic laws and regulations and as expeditiously as possible, to adopt and implement controls that have the same practical effect as, or are more stringent than, the controls that would otherwise be imposed under paragraph (3).

(e) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and annually thereafter, the covered agency heads shall provide to the appropriate congressional committees a report that includes—

(1) a list of all covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment;

(2) a list of all entities that own or operate a covered facility;

(3) the scope of the countrywide controls imposed by the United States and allied supplier countries on each covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment identified pursuant to paragraph (1);

(4) a summary of diplomatic engagements and unilateral actions undertaken by the covered agency heads in the 12-months period prior to the submission of the report to close any gap among allied supplier countries in the countrywide controls imposed by such countries for covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment; and

(5) a certification that the export of any covered semiconductor manufacturing equipment to a country of concern and the export of any applicable items to any covered facility, or servicing of any such item located in a country of concern, requires a license issued by the United States or an allied supplier country, with a policy of denying such license.

(f) TERMINATION AND REIMPOSITION OF CONTROLS UPON ALLIED ACTION.—

(1) TERMINATION OR MODIFICATION.—The Secretary of Commerce, in consultation with the Secretary of State, may terminate or modify any control imposed under subsection (d)(3) for items exported from an allied supplier country, if the country has established controls, including licensing policies, that have the same practical effect as those described in subsection (c)(1).

(2) REIMPOSITION.—If, after terminating or modifying a control under paragraph (1), the covered agency heads determine that the allied supplier country has materially weakened, suspended, or revoked the control that justified the termination or modification under paragraph (1), the Secretary of Commerce shall, in consultation with the Secretary of State and not later than 60 days after making such determination—

(A) notify the appropriate congressional committees of such determination; and

(B) reimpose the control under subsection (d)(3) that was terminated or modified under paragraph (1).

(g) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this Act may be construed as diminishing or superseding the authority of the Secretary of Commerce to control the export, reexport, or in-country transfer of items under the Export Control Reform Act of 2018 (50 U.S.C. 4801 et seq.).

Subtitle ___—Securing Semiconductor Supply Chains Act

SEC. ___01. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Securing Semiconductor Supply Chains Act''.

SEC. ___02. SELECTUSA DEFINED.

In this subtitle, the term ''SelectUSA'' means the SelectUSA program of the Department of Commerce established by Executive Order 13577 (76 Fed. Reg. 35715).

SEC. ___03. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Semiconductors underpin the United States and global economies, including manufacturing sectors. Semiconductors are also essential to the national security of the United States.

(2) A shortage of semiconductors, brought about by the COVID–19 pandemic and other complex factors impacting the overall supply chain, has threatened the economic recovery of the United States and industries that employ millions of United States citizens.

(3) Addressing current challenges and building resilience against future risks requires ensuring a secure and stable supply chain for semiconductors that will support the economic and national security needs of the United States and its allies.

(4) The supply chain for semiconductors is complex and global. While the United States plays a leading role in certain segments of the semiconductor industry, securing the supply chain requires onshoring, reshoring, or diversifying vulnerable segments, such as for—

(A) fabrication;

(B) advanced packaging; and

(C) materials and equipment used to manufacture semiconductor products.

(5) The Federal Government can leverage foreign direct investment and private dollars to grow the domestic manufacturing and production capacity of the United States for vulnerable segments of the semiconductor supply chain.

(6) The SelectUSA program of the Department of Commerce, in coordination with other Federal agencies and State-level economic development organizations, is positioned to boost foreign direct investment in domestic manufacturing and to help secure the semiconductor supply chain of the United States.

SEC. ___04. COORDINATION WITH STATE-LEVEL ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATIONS.

Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Executive Director of SelectUSA shall solicit comments from State-level economic development organizations—

(1) to review—

(A) what efforts the Federal Government can take to support increased foreign direct investment in any segment of semiconductor-related production;

(B) what barriers to such investment may exist and how to amplify State efforts to attract such investment;

(C) public opportunities those organizations have identified to attract foreign direct investment to help increase investment described in subparagraph (A); and

(D) resource gaps or other challenges that prevent those organizations from increasing such investment; and

(2) to develop recommendations for—

(A) how SelectUSA can increase such investment independently or through partnership with those organizations; and

(B) working with countries that are allies or partners of the United States to ensure that foreign adversaries (as defined in section 8(c)(2) of the Secure and Trusted Communications Networks Act of 2019 (47 U.S.C. 1607(c)(2))) do not benefit from United States efforts to increase such investment.

SEC. ___05. REPORT ON INCREASING FOREIGN DIRECT INVESTMENT IN SEMICONDUCTOR-RELATED MANUFACTURING AND PRODUCTION.

Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Executive Director of SelectUSA, in coordination with the Federal Interagency Investment Working Group established by Executive Order 13577 (76 Fed. Reg. 35,715; relating to establishment of the SelectUSA Initiative), shall submit to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate and the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives a report that includes—

(1) a review of the comments SelectUSA received from State-level economic development organizations under section ____04;

(2) a description of activities SelectUSA is engaged in to increase foreign direct investment in semiconductor-related manufacturing and production; and

(3) an assessment of strategies SelectUSA may implement to achieve an increase in such investment and to help secure the United States supply chain for semiconductors, including by—

(A) working with other relevant Federal agencies; and

(B) working with State-level economic development organizations and implementing any strategies or recommendations SelectUSA received from those organizations.

SEC. ____06. NO ADDITIONAL FUNDS.

No additional funds are authorized to be appropriated for the purpose of carrying out this subtitle. The Executive Director of SelectUSA shall carry out this subtitle using amounts otherwise available to the Executive Director for such purposes.

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. _____. DARK WEB INTERDICTION ACT OF 2026.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Dark Web Interdiction Act of 2026''.

(b) FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(A) The dark web is made up of websites and other network services that leverage overlay networks providing anonymity. These overlay networks use the internet but require specific software and configurations to access. The overlay networks use multiple encrypted traffic relays for which an individual relay computer knows its source of information and where the individual computer is sending the information but never knows both the original source and ultimate destination of the traffic simultaneously. This anonymity has provided criminals with the ability to host illicit material in a way that circumvents the ability of law enforcement agencies to serve legal process to remove or effectively investigate websites offering illegal content or goods for purchase or sharing.

(B) Dark web marketplaces include e-commerce websites based on the dark web on which individuals use virtual currencies to engage in transactions involving drugs, weapons, malware, counterfeit currency, stolen credit cards, personal identifying information, forged documents, unlicensed pharmaceuticals, and other illicit goods.

(C) Due to the anonymity provided by the dark web, illicit activities can be hosted from anywhere in the world without accountability to—

(i) the Federal Government;

(ii) Federal laws; or

(iii) any other government or system of laws.

(D) The use of the dark web to distribute illegal drugs has contributed and continues to contribute to the substance abuse crisis that is devastating communities across the United States. This devastation is due in large part to the fact that the dark web has made illicit goods obtainable anonymously.

(E) Law enforcement agencies at every level of government continue to investigate drug trafficking and the sale of illegal goods and services through the dark web that occurs as a result of interactions on the dark web, both within the United States and at the international border of the United States, but the increased anonymity the internet provides has made it more difficult to identify and prosecute the individuals and organizations who—

(i) administer or otherwise operate websites on the dark web that facilitate the distribution of illegal drugs, goods, or services; or

(ii) buy and sell illegal drugs, goods, or services through illicit marketplaces hosted on the dark web.

(F) Despite difficulties in identifying and locating individuals and organizations who engage in drug trafficking on the dark web, law enforcement agencies have been effective in investigating and prosecuting the distribution of illegal drugs through illicit marketplaces on the dark web, as evidenced by Operation SpecTor, an operation conducted across 3 continents that resulted from a partnership between the Department of Justice and foreign law enforcement agencies, which—

(i) was announced in May 2023;

(ii) resulted in—

(I) 288 arrests;

(II) the seizure of approximately 850 kilograms of drugs, including 64 kilograms of fentanyl or fentanyl-laced narcotics;

(III) the seizure of 117 firearms; and

(IV) the seizure of $53,400,000 in cash and virtual currencies; and

(iii) is an example of one of many cases conducted jointly by—

(I) the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(II) the Drug Enforcement Administration;

(III) Homeland Security Investigations;

(IV) United States Customs and Border Protection;

(V) the United States Postal Inspection Service;

(VI) the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network;

(VII) the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives;

(VIII) the Naval Criminal Investigative Service;

(IX) the Department of Justice;

(X) the Department of Defense; and

(XI) additional local, State, and international law enforcement partners.

(G) Although law enforcement agencies have succeeded in investigating the distribution and sale of illegal drugs, goods, and services that occurs as a result of interactions on the dark web, investigative and prosecutorial collaboration, innovation, and advancement are critical to—

(i) increasing the capacity to combat the threat posed by the dark web and the illicit marketplaces hosted on the dark web; and

(ii) enhancing collaboration and coordination among Federal, State, Tribal, local, international and other law enforcement partners, as appropriate.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(A) the dark web and illicit marketplaces hosted on the dark web facilitate the distribution of illegal drugs and pose a unique threat to the public health and national security in the United States; and

(B) Congress should—

(i) support law enforcement agencies and prosecutors at the Federal, State, Tribal, local, and international levels in their efforts to investigate and prosecute the distribution of illegal drugs, goods, and services through the dark web; and

(ii) increase the investigative and prosecutorial tools available to law enforcement agencies and prosecutors to address the distribution of illegal drugs, goods, and services through the dark web.

Subtitle D—Military Chaplains Modernization Act of 2026

SEC. 931. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the "Military Chaplains Modernization Act of 2026".

SEC. 932. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Religion and religious liberty have always served an essential role in society, culture, and military service, making them necessary for good democratic governance and a strong military.

(2) George Washington, as a young colonel, recognized the importance of religious practice for his soldiers, repeatedly requesting chaplains for his troops and periodically performing religious duties himself.

(3) When the Second Continental Congress established the Continental Army in June 1775, it recommended "all officers and soldiers diligently to attend Divine Service".

(4) In 1775, at the behest of George Washington, then General of the Continental Army, the Second Continental Congress established the Federal chaplaincy that is in existence to this day, making it one of the oldest military services provided for American troops.

(5) From their earliest days, military chaplains have existed to provide pastoral care, meeting the religious needs of members of the Armed Forces and their families.

(6) In 1775, the Continental Congress, understanding the significance of chaplaincy, similarly instructed its fledgling navy that, "The commanders of the ships of the Thirteen United Colonies are to take care that divine services be performed twice a day on board, and a sermon preached on Sundays, unless bad weather or other extraordinary accidents prevent it.".

(7) John Adams instructed his Secretary of the Navy on the influence of a Navy chaplaincy, stating, "I know not whether the commanders of our ships have given much attention to this subject [chaplains], but in my humble opinion, we shall be very unskillful politicians as well as bad Christians and unwise men if we neglect this important office in our infant Navy.".

(8) In 1942, Franklin D. Roosevelt also acknowledged the importance of the chaplaincy by vowing to "never fail to provide for the spiritual needs of our officers and men under the Chaplains of our armed forces", and during World War II, President Roosevelt had Bibles printed and provided to troops in the field.

(9) Understanding the importance of religion not only to the members of the United States military, but also to the United States as a whole, the Founders ratified the First Amendment to the United States Constitution in 1791.

(10) Under the First Amendment, which applies to the Armed Forces, the Federal Government has a constitutional duty to provide for the religious exercise of members of the Armed Forces, an obligation to which the chaplain corps is essential.

(11) The Supreme Court stated, in Kennedy v. Bremerton School District, 597 U.S. 507 (2022), that the court is "aware of no historically sound understanding of the Establishment Clause that begins to 'mak[e] it necessary for government to be hostile to religion'. . .".

(12) In Kennedy v. Bremerton School District, the Supreme Court further explained that "the Establishment Clause does not include anything like a 'modified heckler's veto, in which . . . religious activity can be proscribed' based on 'perceptions' or 'discomfort'" and that the Clause does not "'compel the government to purge from the public sphere' anything an objective observer could reasonably infer endorses or 'partakes of the religious'".

(13) The Supreme Court made clear in Parker v. Levy, 417 U.S. 733 (1974) that chaplains in the Armed Forces do not forfeit their First Amendment rights by virtue of their military service.

(14) Section 6 of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. 2000bb–3) specifies that that Act (42 U.S.C. 2000bb et seq.) "applies to all Federal law, and the implementation of that law, whether statutory or otherwise, and whether adopted before or after [November 16, 1993]".

SEC. _____. FIGHTING POST-TRAUMATIC STRESS DISORDER ACT OF 2026.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Fighting Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder Act of 2026''.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Public safety officers serve their communities with bravery and distinction in order to keep their communities safe.

(2) Public safety officers, including police officers, firefighters, emergency medical technicians, and 911 dispatchers, are on the front lines of dealing with situations that are stressful, graphic, harrowing, and life-threatening.

(3) The work of public safety officers puts them at risk for developing post-traumatic stress disorder and acute stress disorder.

(4) It is estimated that 30 percent of public safety officers develop behavioral health conditions at some point in their lifetimes, including depression and post-traumatic stress disorder, in comparison to 20 percent of the general population that develops such conditions.

(5) Victims of post-traumatic stress disorder and acute stress disorder are at a higher risk of dying by suicide.

(6) Firefighters have been reported to have higher suicide attempt and ideation rates than the general population.

(7) It is estimated that between 125 and 300 police officers die by suicide every year.

(8) In 2019, pursuant to section 2(b) of the Law Enforcement Mental Health and Wellness Act of 2017 (Public Law 115–113; 131 Stat. 2276), the Director of the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services of the Department of Justice developed a report (referred to in this subsection as the ''LEMHWA report'') that expressed that many law enforcement agencies do not have the capacity or local access to the mental health professionals necessary for treating their law enforcement officers.

(9) The LEMHWA report recommended methods for establishing remote access or regional mental health check programs at the State or Federal level.

(10) Individual police and fire departments generally do not have the resources to employ full-time mental health experts who are able to treat public safety officers with state-of-the-art techniques for the purpose of treating job-related post-traumatic stress disorder and acute stress disorder.

(B) a draft of any necessary grant conditions required to ensure that confidentiality is afforded to public safety officers on account of seeking the care or services described in subparagraph (A) under the proposed program;

(8) The people of the United States will always remember the victims of these hateful attacks against law enforcement officers and stand in solidarity with individuals affected by these senseless tragedies and incidents of hate that have affected law enforcement communities and their families.

(9) The United States must demonstrate to its brave law enforcement officers that they are important, valued, and respected.

(10) Congress has made a commitment to helping communities protect the lives of their police officers, as evidenced by the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Program Reauthorization Act of 2015 (Public Law 114–155; 130 Stat. 389) and other laws.

(11) Subsection (c) of the Uniform Federal Crime Reporting Act of 1988 (34 U.S.C. 41303(c)) requires the Attorney General to ''acquire, collect, classify, and preserve national data on Federal criminal offenses as part of the Uniform Crime Reports'' and requires all Federal departments and agencies that investigate criminal activity to ''report details about crime within their respective jurisdiction to the Attorney General in a uniform matter and on a form prescribed by the Attorney General''.

(E) recommendations for improving State, local, and Federal responses to ambushes and violent attacks on law enforcement officers;

(F) a detailed survey of Federal and State-based training programs that law enforcement officers receive in preparation for violent attacks, including ambush attacks;

(G) an analysis of the effectiveness of the programs described in subparagraph (F) in preparing law enforcement officers for violent attacks, including ambush attacks;

(H) recommendations on how to improve State, local, and Federal training programs for law enforcement officers relating to ambush attacks;

(J) an analysis of the ability of the Department of Justice to combine the Law Enforcement Officers Killed and Assaulted Data Collection and a 09C Justifiable Homicide report for officer-involved shooting reports and any roadblocks to producing a clear report with such information;

(K) an analysis of the ability of the Criminal Justice Information Services of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to expand data collection to include a suspect offender's level of injury at the time of a reported Law Enforcement Officers Killed and Assaulted Data Collection incident;

(L) an analysis of the existence and extent of, and reasons for, disparities in the availability and reporting of data between—

(i) data relating to ambush attacks against law enforcement officers; and

(ii) other types of violent crime data; and

(M) an analysis of any additional legislative tools or authorities that may be helpful or necessary to assist in deterring ambush attacks against law enforcement officers.

(2) DEVELOPMENT.—In developing the report required under paragraph (1), the Attorney General, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Director of the National Institute of Justice, and the Director of the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, shall consult relevant stakeholders, including—

SEC. _____. TREY'S LAW.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Terminating Restrictive Enforcement of Youth Settlements Law'' or ''TREY'S Law''.

(b) FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.—

(1) FINDINGS.—

(A) INSTRUMENTALITIES OF INTERSTATE COMMERCE.—Congress finds the following:

(i) Sexual abuse of minors, including abuse facilitated through instrumentalities of interstate commerce, is a matter of national concern.

(ii) Agreements containing nondisclosure and confidentiality provisions, frequently concluded through the instrumentalities of interstate commerce, have been used to silence survivors of sexual abuse and conceal ongoing or repeated abuse.

(iii) The enforcement of such provisions interferes with reporting to law enforcement agencies, child protection authorities, Federal regulators, Members of Congress, and the courts, and frustrates the enforcement of Federal criminal and civil law.

(B) NECESSARY AND PROPER CLAUSE AND ENFORCEMENT OF FEDERAL CRIMINAL LAW.—Congress further finds the following:

(i) Sexual abuse and trafficking of minors are prohibited under Federal criminal law, including chapter 110 of title 18, United States Code, and section 1591 of title 18, United States Code.

(ii) Nondisclosure and confidentiality agreements that prohibit or restrict disclosure of sexual abuse of a minor interfere with reporting to law enforcement, child protection authorities, courts, Federal regulators, and Members of Congress.

(iii) Such agreements frustrate the investigation and prosecution of Federal crimes, chill cooperation with law enforcement, and function as private mechanisms to obstruct justice.

(iv) Congress has authority under clause 18 of section 8 of article I of the Constitution of the United States (commonly known as the ''Necessary and Proper Clause'') to ensure that private agreements are not used to impede the enforcement of Federal criminal and civil law protecting minors from sexual exploitation and abuse.

(C) STATE ACTION AND SECTION 5 OF THE 14TH AMENDMENT.—Congress further finds the following:

(i) Survivors of child sexual abuse possess fundamental constitutional interests, secured by provisions of the Bill of Rights as incorporated against the States through the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, in reporting crimes, seeking redress through the courts, cooperating with law enforcement, and petitioning the government for protection and enforcement.

(ii) When State courts or other governmental authorities enforce nondisclosure or confidentiality provisions that prohibit or restrict disclosure of sexual abuse of a minor, such enforcement constitutes State action for purposes of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(iii) Judicial enforcement of such provisions may deprive survivors of due process of law, equal protection of the laws, and meaningful access to courts, including rights derived from the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and incorporated against the States, in violation of the 14th Amendment.

(iv) Agreements that obstruct justice, suppress the reporting of crimes, or conceal criminal conduct have long been regarded at common law, including at the time of the founding of the United States, as void and unenforceable as against public policy, and fall outside the traditional scope of protected contractual liberty.

(v) At the time of the founding of the United States, private agreements purporting to suppress prosecution, conceal felonies, or restrain the reporting of crimes were not recognized as valid or enforceable contracts, and no party possessed a vested right in their judicial enforcement.

(vi) Congress has authority under section 5 of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States to enact appropriate remedial and preventive legislation to prevent and remedy constitutional violations arising from State judicial enforcement of private agreements that suppress disclosure of criminal conduct involving minors.

(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is—

(A) to enforce the guarantees of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, including the right to petition the government for redress of grievances and the right of access to courts, by preventing State courts and other governmental authorities from enforcing nondisclosure or confidentiality provisions that suppress disclosure of sexual abuse of minors;

(B) to ensure, pursuant to the authority of Congress under article I of the Constitution of the United States, including the Necessary and Proper Clause, that private agreements are not used to obstruct the investigation or prosecution of Federal crimes involving the sexual abuse or trafficking of minors;

(C) to preserve access to courts and the right to petition the government for redress of grievances; and

(D) to ensure that survivors of sexual abuse of minors, and persons with knowledge of such abuse, may disclose such abuse freely and without fear of civil liability.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) MINOR PERSON.—The term ''minor person'' means an individual who has not attained 18 years of age.

(2) NONDISCLOSURE CLAUSE.—The term ''nondisclosure clause'' means a provision in a contract or agreement that prohibits 1 or more parties to the contract or agreement from disclosing conduct or information covered by the terms and conditions of the contract or agreement.

(3) SEXUAL ABUSE AGAINST A MINOR PERSON.—The term ''sexual abuse against a minor person'' means—

(A) conduct that constitutes or allegedly constitutes—

(i) an offense under chapter 110 of title 18, United States Code; or

(ii) sex trafficking of a minor person under section 1591 of title 18, United States Code; or

(B) any sexual act or sexual contact involving a minor person that constitutes a criminal offense under Federal law or the law of the State in which the act or contact occurs.

(d) NONDISCLOSURE AGREEMENTS VOID AND UNENFORCEABLE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A nondisclosure clause shall be void and unenforceable as against public policy only to the extent that the nondisclosure clause prohibits—

(A) a victim or alleged victim of sexual abuse against a minor person from disclosing—

(i) that act of sexual abuse against a minor person; or

(ii) facts related to that act of sexual abuse against a minor person; or

(B) any other person from disclosing facts related to sexual abuse against a minor person described in subparagraph (A) in support of, in furtherance of, or consistent with the right of a victim or alleged victim to disclose under that subparagraph.

(2) PERMISSIBLE CONFIDENTIALITY.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a person, including a victim or alleged victim of sexual abuse against a minor person, from entering into a contract or agreement that restricts the disclosure of information, including the amount or payment terms of a settlement, by another party to the contract or agreement, including an alleged perpetrator, so long as such restriction does not prevent disclosure protected under paragraph (1).

(e) RETROACTIVE APPLICATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This section shall apply to any nondisclosure clause in a contract or agreement entered into before, on, or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) NO ENFORCEMENT ACTIONS.—No person may enforce or attempt to enforce a nondisclosure clause described in subsection (d)(1), regardless of the date on which the contract or agreement containing the nondisclosure clause was entered into.

(3) PREEMPTION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—This section supersedes any State law to the extent that such law permits enforcement of a provision, the enforcement of which is prohibited under this section.

(B) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a State or locality from enacting legislation that—

(i) is consistent with this section; or

(ii) provides greater protection to a victim of sexual abuse against a minor person than is provided under this section.

SEC. ______2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Computer instruction set architectures and their associated intellectual property, specifications, documentation, and compliance resources are fundamental to the functioning and interoperability of semiconductors, computing systems, and software that are the foundation of critical infrastructure, national defense systems, and other sensitive applications.

(2) Excessive concentration of control over an instruction set architecture that has become entrenched in systems or applications described in paragraph (1) may create national and economic security vulnerabilities and undermine the national defense, including by enabling supply chain disruption, coercion, discrimination, and strategic denial against United States persons.

(3) United States semiconductor leadership is essential to the national security and economic security of the United States and requires that United States semiconductor companies and other United States persons have access to entrenched instruction set architectures on terms that are fair, reasonable, and nondiscriminatory.

(4) Critical infrastructure, national defense systems, and other sensitive applications in the United States have become substantially dependent on a limited number of instruction set architectures, and disruption of access to those instruction set architectures would impair the ability of the United States to procure, maintain, operate, and modernize systems essential to the national defense.

SEC. ______3. LICENSING OBLIGATIONS OF COVERED ISA PROVIDERS.

(a) OBLIGATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A covered ISA provider shall make available any covered instruction set architecture to any United States person on licensing terms that are fair, reasonable, and nondiscriminatory in view of any licenses, implied licenses, authorizations, or equivalent rights to implement the covered instruction set architecture that the covered ISA provider has granted to any other United States person or foreign person.

(2) CONTENTS.—A license for a covered instruction set architecture made available under paragraph (1) shall include at least those rights sufficient to permit the applicable licensee to design, make, cause to be made, use, sell, offer for sale, import, and export (subject to applicable export controls) products or services that implement the covered instruction set architecture.

(3) PROHIBITION.—A covered ISA provider may not exclude, foreclose, or disadvantage United States persons in the provision of license rights to any covered instruction set architecture.

(b) EXCEPTION.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to an instruction set architecture that a covered ISA provider makes available to the public through royalty-free open-source licenses.

(c) SPECIAL RULES FOR LICENSING DISPUTES.—In the event of a dispute between a covered ISA provider and an existing or prospective licensee regarding the terms of a license to a covered instruction set architecture (referred to in this subsection as a ''disputed license''), the following rules shall apply:

(1) Upon written notice of the dispute from the existing or prospective licensee, the covered ISA provider may not bar, delay, condition, degrade, or otherwise restrict access to that covered instruction set architecture by the existing or prospective licensee during the pendency of the dispute.

(2) Access to the covered instruction set architecture provided under paragraph (1) shall not prejudice the right of the covered ISA provider to be compensated for the use of the covered instruction set architecture by the licensee upon resolution of the license dispute.

(3) A court or other applicable tribunal hearing the dispute shall ensure that the court or tribunal, as applicable, and the parties to the dispute have complete and open access to the terms of all other licenses for a covered instruction set architecture granted by the covered ISA provider to any other person so that the court or tribunal may determine fair, reasonable, and nondiscriminatory terms for the disputed license.

(a) ANTI-CHALLENGE PROVISIONS VOID.—Any provision in a license or other agreement, whether express or implied, between a covered ISA provider and a United States person that prohibits, restricts, penalizes, or otherwise limits the ability of that United States person to assert, bring, or maintain a legal challenge in a court of competent jurisdiction with respect to any intellectual property owned or controlled by the covered ISA provider, including patents, copyrights, trademarks, or other intellectual property rights, shall be void and unenforceable.

(b) PROHIBITION ON RETALIATION.—A covered ISA provider may not, directly or indirectly, retaliate against a United States person for asserting or pursuing a legal challenge described in subsection (a), including by—

(1) terminating or threatening to terminate a license or other relevant agreement;

(2) suspending, curtailing, conditioning, or otherwise limiting rights granted under that license or agreement;

(3) withholding, delaying, degrading, or refusing to perform any obligation required under that license or agreement; or

(4) taking any other action intended to deter, punish, or disadvantage the United States person for the exercise of rights under United States law.

(c) NON-WAIVER.—The protections of this section—

(1) may not be waived, whether by contract, agreement, course of dealing, or otherwise; and

(2) shall apply notwithstanding any contrary provision in a license or related agreement.

(1) shall issue an injunction ordering the covered ISA provider to comply with this title;

(2) may, upon request of a party to the action, issue a declaratory judgment establishing licensing terms that comply with this title; and

(3) may, if determined necessary to prevent existing or future violations of this title, require the appointment of an independent compliance monitor, at the expense of the covered ISA provider, to assess, oversee, and report to the court on the compliance with this title by the covered ISA provider.

(e) STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—No civil action under this section may be commenced more than 5 years after the cause of action accrues.

(2) CALCULATION.—For purposes of this subsection, a continuing violation accrues anew on each day on which the violation continues.

SEC. _____6. RULES OF CONSTRUCTION.

Subtitle F—Reassessing the United States-Tanzania Bilateral Relationship Act

SEC. 1281. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Reassessing the United States-Tanzania Bilateral Relationship Act''.

SEC. 1282. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Tanzania is one of Africa's fastest growing economies with strong economic growth over the past decade due to the expansion of key sectors, including agriculture, mining, and tourism.

(2) Tanzania's reliability as a partner to the United States is increasingly in question due to ongoing political repression, violations of religious freedom and freedom of expression, and persistent barriers to United States investment.

(3) The October 29, 2025, general elections were marked by significant political interference, including ballot manipulation and vote tabulation irregularities, which favored incumbent President Samia Suluhu Hassan and other candidates of Tanzania's parliamentary majority party, Chama Cha Mapinduzi (CCM).

(4) Leading up to the general elections in Tanzania's October 29, 2025, election, multiple incidents of political abductions and disappearances occurred in Tanzania, most recently the abduction and subsequent disappearance of Tanzanian Ambassador Humphrey Polepole on October 6, 2025.

(5) A range of actions by the CCM, a political party that has continuously held a parliamentary majority and controlled Tanzania's central government since the CCM's formation in 1977, has severely undermined democracy in the country.

(6) The ongoing treason trial of Chadema opposition figure Tundu Lissu, terrorism charges against Chadema Deputy John Heche, and charges and detentions of other opposition party members are politically motivated and intended to prevent opposition figures from standing for elections.

(7) The Government of Tanzania has engaged in violations of religious freedom, including the revocation of registration for religious institutions, harassment, detention, and attacks against religious leaders, and restrictions on religious worship and expression.

(8) During mass citizen protests against Tanzania's fraudulent and illegitimate October 29, 2025, general elections, the Tanzanian Police and Tanzania Defense Forces killed hundreds of Tanzanian citizens and endangered the lives of United States citizens and tourists visiting the country.

(9) While protestors faced attacks by Tanzanian Security Forces, the Government of Tanzania imposed an internet shutdown impacting online connections, communications, business, and banking, disrupting regional trade and costing the country an estimated $238,000,000 in the process.

(10) In response to this unprecedented violence and unrest in Tanzania, the United States Embassy in Tanzania issued a Security Alert on October 30, 2025, calling on United States citizens in Tanzania to shelter-in-place.

(11) Following the electoral protests, the Tanzanian electoral commission released disputed results from the fraudulent election, declaring President Samia Suluhu Hassan the winner with 98 percent of the vote.

(12) On December 4, 2025, the Department of State announced a comprehensive review of the bilateral relationship between the United States and Tanzania.

SEC. 1283. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) over the last three years, the actions by the Government of Tanzania—

(A) have subverted democracy;

(B) have blatantly violated citizens' internationally-recognized human rights;

(C) have disrupted regional trade;

SEC. _____. DARK WEB INTERDICTION ACT OF 2026.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the ''Dark Web Interdiction Act of 2026''.

(b) FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(A) The dark web is made up of websites and other network services that leverage overlay networks providing anonymity. These overlay networks use the internet but require specific software and configurations to access. The overlay networks use multiple encrypted traffic relays for which an individual relay computer knows its source of information and where the individual computer is sending the information but never knows both the original source and ultimate destination of the traffic simultaneously. This anonymity has provided criminals with the ability to host illicit material in a way that circumvents the ability of law enforcement agencies to serve legal process to remove or effectively investigate websites offering illegal content or goods for purchase or sharing.

(B) Dark web marketplaces include e-commerce websites based on the dark web on which individuals use virtual currencies to engage in transactions involving drugs, weapons, malware, counterfeit currency, stolen credit cards, personal identifying information, forged documents, unlicensed pharmaceuticals, and other illicit goods.

(C) Due to the anonymity provided by the dark web, illicit activities can be hosted from anywhere in the world without accountability to—

(i) the Federal Government;

(ii) Federal laws; or

(iii) any other government or system of laws.

(D) The use of the dark web to distribute illegal drugs has contributed and continues to contribute to the substance abuse crisis that is devastating communities across the United States. This devastation is due in large part to the fact that the dark web has made illicit goods obtainable anonymously.

(E) Law enforcement agencies at every level of government continue to investigate drug trafficking and the sale of illegal goods and services through the dark web that occurs as a result of interactions on the dark web, both within the United States and at the international border of the United States, but the increased anonymity the internet provides has made it more difficult to identify and prosecute the individuals and organizations who—

(i) administer or otherwise operate websites on the dark web that facilitate the distribution of illegal drugs, goods, or services; or

(ii) buy and sell illegal drugs, goods, or services through illicit marketplaces hosted on the dark web.

(F) Despite difficulties in identifying and locating individuals and organizations who engage in drug trafficking on the dark web, law enforcement agencies have been effective in investigating and prosecuting the distribution of illegal drugs through illicit marketplaces on the dark web, as evidenced by Operation SpecTor, an operation conducted across 3 continents that resulted from a partnership between the Department of Justice and foreign law enforcement agencies, which—

(i) was announced in May 2023;

(ii) resulted in—

(I) 288 arrests;

(II) the seizure of approximately 850 kilograms of drugs, including 64 kilograms of fentanyl or fentanyl-laced narcotics;

(III) the seizure of 117 firearms; and

(IV) the seizure of $53,400,000 in cash and virtual currencies; and

(iii) is an example of one of many cases conducted jointly by—

(I) the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(II) the Drug Enforcement Administration;

(III) Homeland Security Investigations;

(IV) United States Customs and Border Protection;

(V) the United States Postal Inspection Service;

(VI) the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network;

(VII) the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives;

(VIII) the Naval Criminal Investigative Service;

(IX) the Department of Justice;

(X) the Department of Defense; and

(XI) additional local, State, and international law enforcement partners.

(G) Although law enforcement agencies have succeeded in investigating the distribution and sale of illegal drugs, goods, and services that occurs as a result of interactions on the dark web, investigative and prosecutorial collaboration, innovation, and advancement are critical to—

(i) increasing the capacity to combat the threat posed by the dark web and the illicit marketplaces hosted on the dark web; and

(ii) enhancing collaboration and coordination among Federal, State, Tribal, local, international and other law enforcement partners, as appropriate.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(A) the dark web and illicit marketplaces hosted on the dark web facilitate the distribution of illegal drugs and pose a unique threat to the public health and national security in the United States; and

(B) Congress should—

(i) support law enforcement agencies and prosecutors at the Federal, State, Tribal, local, and international levels in their efforts to investigate and prosecute the distribution of illegal drugs, goods, and services through the dark web; and

(ii) increase the investigative and prosecutorial tools available to law enforcement agencies and prosecutors to address the distribution of illegal drugs, goods, and services through the dark web.

TITLE II—EXPLORATION

SEC. 201. CONTINUITY OF PURPOSE FOR SPACE EXPLORATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) NASA continues to make progress in developing and testing the Space Launch System, Orion, and associated ground systems, including through—

(A) the successful completion of the Artemis I mission in November 2022; and

(B) continued preparations for the Artemis II crewed flight demonstration mission.

(2) The number of spacefaring countries is increasing, and foreign countries have expanded activities for space exploration efforts, including efforts to explore and use the Moon through human and robotic missions in partnership with the United States, independently, or with adversaries of the United States through alternative arrangements such as the International Lunar Research Station (ILRS) of the People's Republic of China.

(3) A strong and ambitious space exploration program conducted with international and commercial partners is important to maintaining United States leadership in space and enhancing the international competitiveness of the United States, especially with respect to space exploration efforts of adversaries.

(4) The development of clear mission objectives, tied to concrete long-term programmatic and national policy goals, is a method for ensuring accountability, enhancing public support for exploration missions, and providing a clear signal of commitment to both international and domestic partners.

(b) CONTINUITY OF EXISTING CAPABILITIES AND PROGRAMS.—

(1) SPACE EXPLORATION.—As part of the human exploration activities of the Administration, including progress on Artemis missions and activities, the Administrator shall continue development of space exploration elements pursuant to section 10811 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 117–167).

(2) LOGISTICAL SERVICES.—The Administrator shall leverage the private sector for logistical services to the extent practicable, consistent with the Moon to Mars architecture requirements and in accordance with section 50131 of title 51, United States Code.

(3) CONTINUITY OF PURPOSE.—Congress reaffirms the need to maintain continuity of purpose as described in section 201 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Transition Authorization Act of 2017 (Public Law 115–10; 131 Stat. 21).

(4) SPACE WEATHER RESEARCH FOR EXPLORATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall continue to conduct, and to partner with Federal agencies or research centers that conduct, research into space weather phenomena, including solar flares, solar energetic particles, and galactic cosmic rays, for the purpose of characterizing the radiation environment of cislunar space, the lunar surface, and the Martian surface.

(B) INTEGRATION.—The results of such research shall be integrated into the Moon to Mars architecture—

(i) to inform the design and shielding requirements of human-rated lunar landing capabilities and the orbital lunar outpost;

(ii) to develop predictive modeling and early-warning systems to ensure the safety of astronauts during travel outside the Earth's Van Allen radiation belts, extravehicular activities, and long-duration habitation; and

(iii) to ensure the reliability of lunar and Martian communications, navigation, and power infrastructure against space weather-induced disruptions.

(c) MARS EXPLORATION COORDINATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In carrying out exploration missions to and around Mars, including science missions and infrastructure development missions for future human exploration missions, the Administrator shall establish and maintain a robust process for collaboration and coordination across all NASA mission directorates and the Moon to Mars Program Office for the unified implementation of activities required by law.

(2) BRIEFING.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall provide the appropriate committees of Congress with a briefing on the process required by paragraph (1) and the manner in which such process has been applied to authorized Mars programs, including with respect to the following:

(A) The Mars Relay Network.

(B) The Mars Telecommunications Orbiter.

(C) Commercial Mars payload services.

(D) Mars future missions within the Science Mission Directorate.

SEC. 202. ARTEMIS PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Exploration of outer space, including exploration of the lunar surface and cislunar space, provides economic, scientific, technological, security, and societal benefits and economic opportunity, including by inspiring future generations and expanding the science, technology, engineering, and mathematics workforce needed to sustain United States leadership in science, space, and technology.

(2) The lunar south pole is home to shadowed craters that may contain water ice and other volatiles. Understanding the nature of lunar polar volatiles, such as water ice, would advance science related to the origin and evolution of volatiles in the inner solar system and could facilitate the long-term future of space exploration. Water ice lunar resources have the potential to become an enabling component of future space exploration missions throughout the solar system, including crewed missions to Mars.

(3) Other countries have demonstrated technological advances and successful robotic missions for lunar exploration and have announced credible plans for long-term human exploration of the Moon that include the intent to establish lunar bases. Such countries are forming alternative organizational entities to structure their efforts, such as the ILRS of the People's Republic of China.

(4) United States leadership of, and measurable progress on, the exploration of deep space is essential for guiding development of norms related to operations on and around the Moon and for other space destinations.

(5) It is in the national interest of the United States to maintain a leadership role in the establishment of future norms governing activities in space, including such activities on the lunar surface and in cislunar space.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—In carrying out activities to enable Artemis missions under the Moon to Mars Program set forth in section 10811 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 117–167), the Administrator shall—

(1) use relevant elements set forth in subsection (b)(2)(B) of that Act under the direction of the Moon to Mars program manager;

(2) continue to ensure that such elements enable the human exploration of Mars, consistent with subsection (b)(2)(C)(i) of that Act;

(3) include scientific objectives as integral components of Artemis missions and coordinate with the Science Mission Directorate and the Space Technology Mission Directorate to ensure that opportunities for lunar science are incorporated throughout the Artemis and Moon to Mars architectures;

(4) engage with international partners, as appropriate, including through the Artemis Accords to guide the development of norms of behavior in a manner that—

(A) is consistent with subsection (b)(2)(C) of that Act; and

(B) increases redundancy, efficiency, and cost savings;

(5) leverage capabilities provided by United States commercial providers, as appropriate and practicable; and

(6) certify that each existing and future contract entered into for NASA exploration activities conducted by commercial partners includes provisions—

(A) to ensure the preservation of mission continuity and adherence to initial operating capability timeline requirements; and

(B) to preclude cessation of contract activities before completion of the contract, as appropriate.

(c) UNITED STATES COMMERCIAL PROVIDER CAPABILITIES IN SUPPORT OF LUNAR EXPLORATION EFFORTS.—The Administrator may enter into agreements with United States commercial providers or engage in public-private partnerships to procure capabilities and services to support the human exploration of the Moon or cislunar space.

(d) BRIEFINGS.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and quarterly thereafter, the Administrator, in coordination with the Moon to Mars management entity, shall provide the appropriate committees of Congress with a briefing on—

(1) the status of the elements set forth in subsection (b)(2)(B) of section 10811 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 117–167) to enable lunar operations and the human exploration of Mars, consistent with subsection (b)(2)(C)(i) of that section; and

(2) the readiness of such elements to meet the respective Artemis missions.

SEC. 203. SPACE LAUNCH SYSTEM.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Space Launch System—

(A) represents a national capability for super-heavy lift space launch that may support a range of unique commercial, civil, and military mission opportunities;

(B) is the only vehicle ready to support human flights to the Moon; and

(C) has not met the flight rate of the integrated Space Launch System and Orion crew vehicle missions set forth in section 10812(b) of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20301 note; Public Law 117–167).

(2) The Space Launch System Exploration Upper Stage was conceived to increase Space Launch System launch cargo capacity in an era before the emergence of competitive lunar payload delivery capabilities.

(3) The report of the Inspector General of NASA entitled ''NASA's Management of Space Launch System Block 1B Development'' issued on August 8, 2024, noted that the current Exploration Upper Stage technology is behind schedule and over budget.

(4) Alternative technologies exist that may be used within the current Space Launch System architecture.

(b) EXPLORATION UPPER STAGE ALTERNATIVES.—Subject to the availability of appropriations, the Administrator may seek to identify and fund an alternative technology to replace the Exploration Upper Stage if the Administrator determines that the Exploration Upper Stage efforts under section 10812(b) of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20301 note; Public Law 117–167) are unlikely to achieve the mission goals of the Artemis campaign.

(c) BRIEFING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall provide the appropriate committees of Congress with a briefing on the challenges of the Administration in achieving the flight rate set forth in section 10812(b) of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20301 note; Public Law 117–167).

(2) ELEMENTS.—The briefing required by paragraph (1) shall include an assessment of methods for reducing the complexity and cost of production and operation of the Space Launch System, including—

(A) a standardization of the design of the Space Launch System;

(B) the simplification of contracts;

(C) a balancing of government and industry workforce components, roles, and responsibilities; and

(D) the optimization of the use of Administration infrastructure.

SEC. 204. HUMAN-RATED LUNAR LANDING CAPABILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall continue to support the development and demonstration of, and shall obtain, human-rated lunar landing capabilities to further the goals of the human exploration roadmap under section 432 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Transition Authorization Act of 2017 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 115–10) and the Moon to Mars Program set forth in section 10811 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 117–167).

(b) RELEVANT REQUIREMENTS.—The Administrator shall ensure that such human-rated lunar landing capabilities meet all relevant human rating and certification requirements, including the requirements of the Moon to Mars Program and requirements for human rating and certification.

(c) UNITED STATES COMMERCIAL PROVIDER.—Any commercial provider from which the Administrator obtains human-rated lunar landing capabilities must be a United States commercial provider.

(d) DUTIES OF THE ADMINISTRATOR.—In carrying out subsection (a)—

(1) the Administrator may include uncrewed lunar landing services; and

(2) the Administrator shall—

(A) subject to the availability of appropriations for such purpose, seek to obtain capabilities from not fewer than 2 commercial providers;

(B) submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report that assesses the development milestones of human-rated lunar landing systems developed by commercial providers.

(e) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on the status of human-rated lunar lander development and key enabling technologies, including cryogenic propellant transfer and storage.

(f) MOON TO MARS LANDING CAPABILITIES.—The Administrator shall, to the extent practicable, use existing Human Landing Systems technology in developing Mars and deep space exploration landing capabilities.

SEC. 205. ADVANCED SPACESUIT CAPABILITIES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Spacesuits and associated extravehicular activity (referred to in this sections as ''EVA'') technologies are critical-path exploration technologies that are necessary for future human deep space exploration efforts, including crewed missions to low-Earth orbit, the Moon, and Mars.

(2) NASA is currently contracted with a single commercial provider for the development of extravehicular spacesuits to be used on the lunar surface and in deep space as part of the Artemis program.

(3) While NASA's commercial services approach to acquiring advanced spacesuit capabilities has resulted in the private sector making substantial investments in the research, development, and testing of advanced spacesuit capabilities and the related supply chain, reliance on a single spacesuit provider creates strategic, operational, and technical vulnerabilities that may threaten mission continuity and United States leadership in human spaceflight.

(4) As the United States competes with the People's Republic of China to maintain leadership in exploration beyond low-Earth-orbit operations, it is critical to ensure redundancy and resilience in all mission-critical systems, including spacesuits.

(5) The NASA workforce at the Johnson Space Center provides unique experience and capabilities for designing, integrating, and validating spacesuits and associated EVA technologies.

(6) Maintaining a strong NASA core competency in the design, development, manufacture, and operation of spacesuits and related technologies allows the Administration to be an informed purchaser of competitively awarded commercial spacesuits and subcomponents.

(7) Testing spacesuits and related technologies on the ISS could reduce risk and improve the safety of spacesuits and related technologies.

(b) CAPABILITIES REQUIREMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall obtain the advanced spacesuit capabilities necessary to achieve the goals of NASA's human spaceflight exploration programs.

(2) DEVELOPMENT BY NASA.—If advanced spacesuit capabilities from a commercial provider are not reasonably available to meet NASA mission requirements with respect to cost, schedule, and performance, the Administrator may pursue development by NASA of advanced spacesuit capabilities to ensure United States access to and use of such capabilities.

(c) ELIGIBILITY.—Any commercial provider from which the Administrator obtains advanced spaceflight capabilities shall—

(1) be a United States commercial provider; and

(2) be required to ensure that such capabilities comply with applicable NASA safety and performance requirements.

(d) PRESERVING SPACESUIT EXPERTISE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In carrying out subsection (b), and while maintaining a strong partnership with United States industry, the Administration shall maintain the internal expertise necessary to certify and develop spacesuits for extravehicular activity and surface operations, including through partnerships with the private sector.

(2) ROLE OF JOHNSON SPACE CENTER.—The Johnson Space Center shall continue to manage the spacesuit and extravehicular activity programs of NASA.

(e) BRIEFING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall provide the appropriate committees of Congress with a briefing on the plans of the Administration for in-space testing of advanced spacesuit capabilities.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The briefing required by paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a detailed justification of compliance with section 30301 of title 51, United States Code; and

(B) a detailed certification and justification of compliance with section 50503 of title 51, United States Code.

SEC. 206. BRIEFING ON LUNAR OUTPOST.

Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall provide the appropriate committees of Congress with a briefing on plans for the Gateway outpost.

SEC. 207. LUNAR TERRAIN VEHICLE ELEMENT.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Artemis lunar human exploration is essential to maintaining United States leadership in influencing norms and responsible behavior in the conduct of scientific and economic activities on the lunar surface.

(2) Human surface mobility and the establishment of infrastructure and technology that enable long-term lunar habitation and exploration are essential to United States leadership.

(3) The completed Phase 1 of the Lunar Terrain Vehicle element has successfully engaged multiple contractors, each of which has conducted a year-long study to develop a capable human surface mobility system through the preliminary design maturity project phase.

(4) A robust domestic industrial base will support the longevity and success of United States space missions and allow the Administration to leverage the rapid pace of commercial innovation while providing value to taxpayers.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—In carrying out activities to enable Artemis missions under the Moon to Mars Program set forth in section 10811 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2022 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 117–167), subject to the availability of appropriations, the Administrator shall—

(1) enter into an agreement a United States commercial entity or entities, or engage in public-private partnerships, to procure capabilities and services to support the human exploration of the lunar surface; and

(1) The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, through the Artemis program, is advancing United States leadership in space exploration by developing the capabilities necessary for sustained human presence on the Moon and beyond, reinforcing the role of the United States as the global leader in space science and technology.

(2) The lunar south pole is a strategically important region due to its unique resources, making it a critical location for establishing a sustainable presence on the Moon, as well as a departure point for missions deeper into the solar system, including crewed missions to Mars.

(3) Establishing a lunar base ensures that the United States can explore from the ultimate high ground of the Moon, providing strategic advantages for science, technology, international cooperation, and national interests, while ensuring peace and freedom of exploration beyond Earth.

(4) Through the Commercial Lunar Payload Services program and Lunar Terrain Vehicle procurements, NASA is laying the foundation for logistics and mobility capabilities necessary for a sustainable lunar base.

(5) Meaningful and robust scientific research on the lunar surface is essential to the success, justification, and long-term sustainability of a permanent lunar presence, including investigations in planetary science, heliophysics, astrophysics, life sciences, in-situ resource utilization, and other disciplines enabled by sustained access to the lunar environment.

(6) A lunar base that is designed to enable and be supported by high-priority scientific objectives will maximize return on investment, strengthen United States leadership in space science, and generate knowledge necessary for future missions to Mars and other destinations.

TITLE III—SPACE OPERATIONS

SEC. 301. MAXIMIZING UNITED STATES PRESENCE IN LOW-EARTH ORBIT.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) it is in the national and economic security, foreign policy, and scientific interests of the United States to maintain a continuous human presence in low-Earth orbit;

(2) capabilities in low-Earth orbit should include a mix of crewed and uncrewed commercial platforms;

(3) platforms in low-Earth orbit should transition from government-only enterprises to commercially led enterprises; and

(4) low-Earth orbit should be used to advance human space exploration, scientific discoveries, and United States leadership, economic competitiveness, and commercial participation.

(b) CONTINUOUS HUMAN PRESENCE REQUIREMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall maintain a continuous human presence in low-Earth orbit to advance human space exploration, scientific discoveries, international cooperation, and United States economic competitiveness and commercial participation in low-Earth orbit through and beyond the useful life of the ISS.

(2) WAIVER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may waive the application of paragraph (1) if the Administrator determines that technical or safety issues exist that—

(i) would put the lives of United States astronauts in jeopardy; or

(ii) prohibit the continued safe operation of the ISS or other low-Earth-orbit destinations operating under contracts, cooperative agreements, or other arrangements with the Federal Government.

(B) NOTIFICATION.—The Administrator shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of the exercise of the waiver authority under subparagraph (A).

(c) UNCREWED COMMERCIAL PLATFORMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the availability of appropriations, the Administrator shall support and fund uncrewed platforms to meet the growing demand for observational and microgravity research and commercial activities in support of United States economic competitiveness and commercial participation in low-Earth orbit.

(2) PARTNERSHIP.—The Administrator, through a full and open competition process informed by commercial market estimates, shall partner with commercial providers to pursue phased development and demonstration of technologies required for uncrewed platforms in low-Earth orbit, including returnable uncrewed vehicles and downmass capability.

SEC. 302. COMMERCIAL LOW-EARTH-ORBIT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The ISS has been the cornerstone of United States human spaceflight in low-Earth orbit for over 2 decades.

(2) The planned retirement of the ISS necessitates a transition to commercial destinations so as to maintain continuous United States human presence in low-Earth orbit.

(3) Relying on a single commercial destination provider risks programmatic, operational, and strategic vulnerabilities.

(4) Strategic competition with countries such as the People's Republic of China requires the United States to maintain a resilient and redundant space infrastructure in low-Earth orbit.

(b) CONTINUOUS CREW PRESENCE AND ACTIVITY.—The Administrator shall use commercial low-Earth-orbit destinations to ensure the continuous presence of United States Government crew to advance human space exploration, scientific discoveries, the national defense, and United States economic competitiveness and commercial participation in low-Earth orbit.

(c) COMMERCIAL LOW-EARTH-ORBIT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall—

(A) establish a Commercial Low-Earth-Orbit Development Program; and

(B) designate the Johnson Space Center as the lead NASA center responsible for coordinating all NASA activities related to commercial low-Earth-orbit space destinations, including crew operations, mission integration, and astronaut training.

(a) TRANSITION PROCESS.—

(1) INITIATION.—Beginning on the date on which 1 or more commercial low-Earth-orbit destinations have commenced operations, the Administrator shall commence the process of an orderly, managed transition of operations from the ISS to 1 or more commercial providers in a manner that maintains a continuous human presence.

(2) VEHICLE CERTIFICATION.—As part of the process described in paragraph (1), the Administrator shall develop and initiate a process for the certification of a commercial destination capable of providing services to the Administration so as to enable continuous, safe crew operations.

(3) DEMONSTRATION OF CAPABILITIES.—In order to be considered for the transition of operations under this section, a commercial low-Earth-orbit destination shall demonstrate, based on requirements set forth in accordance with section 302(d)(1)(B), capabilities sufficient to support scientific research, technology development, national laboratory functions, and commercial activities previously conducted aboard the ISS.

(4) AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER OPERATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may transfer operations from the ISS to a commercial low-Earth-orbit destination that has successfully demonstrated capabilities sufficient to support scientific research, technology development, national laboratory functions, and commercial activities previously conducted aboard the ISS.

(B) NOTIFICATION.—Not later than 7 days after the date on which the Administrator makes a decision to initiate the transfer of operations under this subsection, the Administrator shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of the intent to initiate such transfer.

(C) MIXED PORTFOLIO.—In transferring operations under subparagraph (A), the Administrator shall seek to maintain the same average number of commercial crew and frequency of cargo flights to low-Earth orbit and the same tempo of operations, crew size, and research throughput in low-Earth orbit as existed before the date on which the transfer commenced.

(5) DURATION OF MANAGED TRANSITION.—A transition under this subsection shall, to the extent practicable, occur in a manner that ensures an overlap between ISS operations and commercial low-Earth-orbit destination operations, during which both platforms may support continuous human presence for not less than 180 days.

(b) DE-ORBIT OF THE ISS.—The Administrator shall not initiate the de-orbit of the ISS until the date on which a commercial low-Earth-orbit destination has reached an initial operational capability to support crew in low-Earth orbit.

(c) WAIVER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may waive the application of subsections (a) and (b) if the Administrator determines that technical or safety issues exist that—

(A) would put the lives of United States astronauts in jeopardy; or

(B) prohibit the continued safe operation of the ISS.

(2) NOTIFICATION.—Not later than 7 days after the date on which the Administrator makes a determination under paragraph (1), the Administrator shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of the intent of the Administrator to exercise the waiver authority pursuant to that paragraph.

SEC. 304. EXTENSION OF INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The United States has maintained a continuous human presence in low-Earth orbit since November 2000, through operations aboard the ISS.

(2) It is the current policy of the United States to support full and complete utilization of the ISS, in consultation with the international partners of the United States.

(3) It is the intent of Congress to ensure an orderly transition from the ISS to commercial low-Earth-orbit destinations without a gap in continuous United States human presence in low-Earth orbit.

(4) Pursuant to chapter 501 of title 51, United States Code, and related authorities, NASA has undertaken efforts to transition from the ISS to commercial low-Earth-orbit destinations.

(5) The successful development of commercial destinations capable of maintaining continuous human presence in low-Earth orbit depends upon timely, stable, and transparent Federal acquisition strategies, clearly defined operational requirements, and predictable transition timelines.

(6) Over the course of the effort to transition from the ISS to commercially owned and operated low-Earth-orbit destinations, NASA has issued programmatic direction and planning guidance that materially altered previously communicated acquisition approaches, operational requirements, funding assumptions, and transition schedules.

(7) NASA has repeatedly delayed the release of a request for proposals for sustained commercial low-Earth-orbit services, and such delays, coupled with shifting requirements and inconsistent programmatic direction, have introduced substantial uncertainty into the development planning, financing, workforce scaling, and infrastructure investment decisions of commercial providers.

(8) As a result of such uncertainty and delayed procurement action, commercial providers have been unable to scale development and private investment at a pace aligned with the previously articulated NASA objective of de-orbiting the ISS in or around 2030.

(9) The risk of a gap in continuous United States human presence in low-Earth orbit between the retirement of the ISS and the availability of at least 1 fully operational commercial destination capable of demonstrating sustained continuous human presence has been exacerbated by delayed and inconsistent Federal acquisition actions, rather than solely by technical or industrial base challenges of commercial providers.

(10) Maintaining uninterrupted United States human presence in low-Earth orbit is a matter of national interest, scientific continuity, workforce stability, international leadership, industrial base preservation, and strategic competition.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that until the date on which NASA has certified a commercial low-Earth orbit destination to which the operations of the ISS may be transferred, it is in the national and economic security, foreign policy, and scientific interests of the United States to maintain and support the ISS.

(c) PROPER SUPPORT.—To adequately maintain the effective use of the ISS, until the date on which 1 or more commercial destinations are capable of providing services to the Administration, the Administrator shall seek to maintain the same average number of commercial crew and frequency of cargo flights as before the date of the enactment of this Act, including exploring opportunities for private cargo missions to build commercial operational experience, maintain crew size or maintain or increase tempo of operations, completion of regular maintenance and procurement of critical spare parts, and research throughput.

(d) EXTENSION OF THE ISS.—Section 501(a) of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2010 (42 U.S.C. 18351(a)) is amended by striking ‘‘September 30, 2030’’ and inserting ‘‘September 30, 2032’’.

(e) WAIVER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may waive the application of subsection (c) if the Administrator determines that technical or safety issues exist that would put the lives of astronauts in jeopardy.

(2) NOTIFICATION.— The Administrator shall notify the appropriate committees of Congress of the exercise of the waiver authority under paragraph (1).

TITLE VI—SCIENCE

SEC. 601. MAINTENANCE OF BALANCED SCIENCE PORTFOLIO.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) a balanced and adequately funded set of activities consisting of research and analysis grant programs, technology development, suborbital research activities, and small, medium, and large space missions, contributes to a robust and productive science program and serves as a catalyst for innovation and discovery; and

(2) the Administrator should set science priorities by considering the recommendations and guidance provided by the scientific community through the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine decadal surveys.

(b) POLICY REAFFIRMATION.—Congress reaffirms the policy of the United States set forth in section 501(c) of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Transition Authorization Act of 2017 (51 U.S.C. 20302 note; Public Law 115–10), which states, ''It is the policy of the United States to ensure, to the extent practicable, a steady cadence of large, medium, and small science missions.''.

SEC. 602. IMPLEMENTATION OF SCIENCE MISSION COST CAPS.

(a) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) NASA science missions address compelling scientific questions prioritized by the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine decadal surveys, and often such missions exceed expectations in terms of performance, longevity, and scientific impact;

(2) the Administrator should continue to pursue an ambitious science program while also seeking to avoid excessive cost growth that has the potential to affect the balance across the Science Mission Directorate portfolio and within the science missions of NASA;

(3) audit reports by the Inspector General of NASA and the Government Accountability Office have revealed that—

(A) early cost estimates for missions in the preliminary phases of conception and development are unreliable; and

(B) the cost of a mission typically is not well understood until the project is further along in the development process;

(4) cost growth of a mission beyond its early cost estimates is a challenge for budget planning and has the potential to affect other missions in the Science Mission Directorate portfolio, including through delays to future mission solicitations; and

(5) relying on early cost estimates made prior to preliminary design review for science missions that later experience cost growth may disincentivize program and cost discipline moving forward.

(b) REQUIREMENT.—To the extent practicable, the Administrator shall ensure that, unless overwhelmingly necessary to do otherwise, NASA—

(1) minimizes changes to requirements, capabilities, and mission objectives under fixed-price contracts with commercial providers; and

(2) otherwise adheres to the requirements, capabilities, and mission objectives of such contracts.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on NASA practices related to the establishment of and compliance with cost caps of competitively selected, principal investigator-led science missions.

(2) ELEMENTS.—The report required by paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) An assessment of current cost cap values and a determination as to whether existing cost cap amounts are appropriate for different classes of missions.

(B) Consideration of the effectiveness of cost caps in maintaining a varied and balanced portfolio of mission types within the Science Mission Directorate.

(C) A description of the information relating to project cost estimates and proposal compliance with cost caps that NASA requires for proposal submissions, and an assessment as to whether such information provides sufficient insight or confidence in cost estimates.

(D) Consideration of NASA processes for assessing proposed cost estimates and an evaluation of the accuracy of such assessments for past competitively selected, principal investigator-led science missions.

(E) For the period beginning on January 1, 2000, and ending on the date of the enactment of this Act—

(i) a list of competitively selected, principal investigator-led science missions for which costs have exceeded the associated cost cap, including the reason the mission costs exceeded the cost cap;

(ii) an assessment of NASA's role in predicting, preventing, or managing competitively selected, principal investigator-led science mission cost increases; and

(iii) a description of the impact of increased competitively selected, principal investigator-led science mission costs beyond the cost caps on—

(I) the missions for which the cost cap has been exceeded; and

(II) other missions within the applicable division and within the Science Mission Directorate.

SEC. 603. MODIFICATION OF NATIONAL ACADEMIES DECADAL SURVEYS.

Section 20305 of title 51, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking ''The Administrator shall enter into agreements on a periodic basis'' and inserting ''Not less frequently than every 10 years, the Administrator shall enter into agreements'';

(2) in subsection (c), by inserting '', significant changes to the budget of NASA,'' after ''cost growth''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(d) MID-DECADAL REVIEWS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 5 years after the date on which each decadal survey report under this section is issued, the Administrator shall enter into an agreement with the National Academies to conduct a mid-decadal review.

''(2) ELEMENTS.—Each review required by paragraph (1) shall assess the following:

''(A) The effectiveness of the manner in which the programs of NASA address the strategies, goals, and priorities outlined in the most recent decadal survey and other relevant National Academies reports.

''(B) The progress made by NASA toward realizing such strategies, goals, and priorities, including consideration of significant scientific discoveries, technical advances, and relevant programmatic changes since the date on which the decadal survey was published.''.

SEC. 604. REPORT ON LANDSAT MISSION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Since 1972, the Landsat mission has served as the definitive data reference network that continuously informs how landscapes and associated natural resources are changing at local, regional, and global scales.

(2) Continuation of the Landsat mission will not only ensure the continuity of the longest space-based record of Earth's land surface but will also fundamentally transform the breadth and depth of actionable data and information through significantly enhanced temporal, spatial, and spectral resolution.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report describing—

(1) efforts made by the Administrator to comply with section 60134 of title 51, United States Code;

(2) aspects of Landsat observations that could be provided by private sector data buys or service procurements; and

(3) aspects of Landsat observations that could—

(A) meet associated science and technical requirements while maintaining or exceeding the quality, integrity, and continuity of Landsat observational capabilities and performance as of the date of the enactment of this Act, including the requirements necessary to ensure high-quality calibrated data continuity and traceability with the 50-year Landsat data record; and

(B) comply with nondiscriminatory availability of unenhanced data and public archiving of data pursuant to section 60141 and 60142 of title 51, United States Code, and all other relevant Federal laws, regulations, and policies related to open science and data accessibility;

(4) any potential tradeoffs or other impacts of the requirements described in paragraph (3) that could reduce the benefit of Landsat data for scientific and applied uses or reduce the Federal Government's ability to make such data available for the widest possible use; and

(5) recommendations with respect to opportunities for the Federal Government to mitigate potential tradeoffs or impacts identified under paragraph (4) or to otherwise facilitate private sector data buys or service procurements.

SEC. 605. COMMERCIAL SATELLITE DATA.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Section 60501 of title 51, United States Code, states that the goal for the Earth Science program of NASA shall be to pursue a program of Earth observations, research, and applications activities to better understand the Earth, how it supports life, and how human activities affect its ability to do so in the future.

(2) Section 50115 of title 51, United States Code, states that the Administrator shall, to the extent possible and while satisfying the scientific or educational requirements of NASA, and where appropriate, of other Federal agencies and scientific researchers, acquire, where cost effective, space-based and airborne commercial Earth remote sensing data, services, distribution, and applications from a commercial provider.

(3) After the completion of the Private-Sector Small Constellation Satellite Data Product Pilot launch in 2017, the Administrator established the Commercial SmallSat Data Acquisition Pilot Program in 2019 to identify, evaluate, validate, and acquire from commercial sources data that support the Earth science research and application goals.

(4) The Administrator has—

(A) determined that the pilot program described in paragraph (3) has been a success, as described in the final evaluation entitled ''Commercial SmallSat Data Acquisition Program Pilot Evaluation Report'' issued in 2020;

''(c) AUTHORIZATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In carrying out the program under this section, the Administrator may—

''(A) procure commercial Earth remote sensing data and imagery from commercial vendors to advance scientific research and applications for the purpose set forth in subsection (a); and

''(B) establish or modify end-use license terms and conditions to allow for the widest possible use of procured commercial Earth remote sensing data and imagery by individuals other than NASA-funded users, consistent with the goals of the program.

''(2) ACQUISITION FROM UNITED STATES VENDORS.—The commercial Earth remote sensing data and imagery procured under this subsection shall be procured, to the maximum extent practicable, from United States vendors.

Subtitle F—Arctic Security and Diplomacy Act

SEC. 1281. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Arctic Security and Diplomacy Act''.

SEC. 1282. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States is an Arctic nation by virtue of the State of Alaska.

(2) The Arctic is a critical domain for the security and sovereignty of the United States and faces elevated risks related to the threats of territorial expansion and violation, influence operations, sabotage of critical undersea infrastructure, and espionage by foreign adversaries, particularly the People's Republic of China and the Russian Federation.

(3) The Russian Federation holds a significant portion of the Arctic, accounting for approximately 53 percent of the Arctic Ocean coastline, and has significantly expanded its military basing infrastructure and capabilities in the region.

(4) In 2018, the People's Republic of China declared that it is a ''Near-Arctic State'' with significant interests in the Arctic and is attempting to become a ''polar great power'' through economic expansion, scientific investments, and dual-use civilian and military infrastructure.

(5) The Russian Federation is cooperating with the People's Republic of China to establish a ''Polar Silk Road'' in the Arctic, and the two countries are working together to strengthen cooperation in polar shipbuilding and ship technology.

(6) The People's Republic of China has made multiple attempts to gain strategic footholds in the Arctic, has research stations in Norway's Svalbard archipelago and in Iceland, and consistently attempts to co-opt and manipulate civilian science and research activities, university partnerships, and multilateral science and research initiatives throughout the Arctic.

(7) The People's Republic of China has observer status on the Arctic Council, has significantly increased diplomatic engagement with Nordic countries, and uses investments in cooperative marine scientific research as a form of soft power in the Arctic.

(8) The People's Republic of China engages in extensive marine surveying, much of which has dual-use risk for military applications, including seabed mapping, NATO asset monitoring, and other espionage-related activity.

(9) The Russian Federation and the People's Republic of China have overlapping priority interests in the Arctic, though each have their own distinct interests with associated challenges.

(10) In 2022, the Danish Security and Intelligence Service reported several attempts at espionage by the People's Republic of China against Denmark, Greenland, and the Faroe Islands.

(11) In 2024, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service warned of espionage activity by the People's Republic of China and the Russian Federation, and the Canadian military discovered and removed buoys in the Arctic owned by the People's Republic of China.

(12) In 2025, the head of the National Police Commission in Iceland warned that the China-Iceland Arctic Science Observatory poses dual-use risks and may be used for espionage.

(13) The 2026 Annual Threat Assessment by the intelligence community describes the Russian Federation as ''our primary challenge in the Arctic . . . Moscow is seeking to expand and deepen its presence in the Arctic through increased maritime trade, natural resource extraction, and military activity,'' while warning that the People's Republic of China ''seeks to expand its Arctic presence using scientific research, investments, and commercial ventures along the Northern Sea Route.''

(14) The 2025 NATO Maritime Strategy highlighted the Russian Federation's military build-up in the Arctic and use of hybrid threats like sabotage against critical undersea infrastructure, while warning that the People's Republic of China ''is pursuing a military build-up, including rapidly expanding its naval capabilities, increasing its use of dual-use military-scientific vessels and surging its presence in the High North and the Arctic, while remaining opaque about its intentions.''

(15) According to the Department of Homeland Security, an unprecedented number of military and research vessels of the People's Republic of China are operating in or near United States Arctic waters.

(16) On May 22, 2026, at the NATO Foreign Ministerial in Sweden, the Arctic allies, consisting of Canada, the Kingdom of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, the Kingdom of Norway, the Kingdom of Sweden, and the United States, issued a joint statement which stated that ''With Russia's increased military activity and China's growing strategic interest, we seek to bolster stability in the Arctic region'' and ''recognize the importance of economic and resource development in the Arctic and have tasked our experts to coordinate more closely on these issues . . . to achieve our common goal of a safe, prosperous, and peaceful Arctic'';

(17) It is in the interests of Arctic countries to cooperatively limit the ability of the Russian Federation and the People's Republic of China to conduct further espionage in the Arctic.

(18) It is in the interest of the United States to encourage marine scientific research, as President Ronald Reagan noted in his Statement on United States Oceans Policy on March 10, 1983.

SEC. 8763. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Sabotage of critical undersea infrastructure poses a growing threat to United States and allied security and economic prosperity.

(2) In recent years, numerous critical undersea infrastructure sites were destroyed or damaged, including—

(A) in January 2022, the reported damage to subsea communications infrastructure connecting the Norwegian mainland with the Norwegian archipelago of Svalbard, home of SvalSAT, the largest commercial satellite ground station on Earth;

(3) In February 2024, NATO Defense Ministers established the Critical Undersea Infrastructure Network to coordinate information and threat intelligence sharing among private and public sector actors to protect critical undersea infrastructure.

(4) In January 2025, following critical undersea infrastructure sabotage in the Baltic Sea in December 2024, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) launched Baltic Sentry to strengthen the protection of critical undersea infrastructure.

(5) On February 21, 2025, the European Union published an EU Action Plan on Cable Security to include the development and deployment of an Integrated Surveillance Mechanism for Submarine cables work to establish a dedicated regional hub in the Baltic Sea to serve as a test bed of the integrated surveillance approach.

(6) The Association of Southeast Asian States (ASEAN) published guidelines for Strengthening Resilience and Repair of Submarine Cables and most recently announced plans to ''build a secure, diverse and resilient submarine cable network'' and ''to facilitate the expeditious deployment, repair, maintenance, removal, and protection of submarine cables, between ASEAN Member States''.

(7) On July 1, 2025, the Quad, represented by the United States, India, Japan, and Australia, met to reaffirm its commitment to the Quad Partnership on Cable Connectivity and Resilience. In the meeting, the Quad underscored the need for digital infrastructure collaboration, organizing a subsea cables forum to be hosted by the United States and India and encouraging regulatory harmonization between Quad partners. SEC. 8763A. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) critical undersea infrastructure represents vital strategic and economic links between the United States and its partners and allies;

(2) according to NATO, ''undersea cables carry an estimated $10 trillion in transfers every day; two-thirds of the world's oil and gas is either extracted at sea or transported by sea; and around 95 percent of global data flows are transmitted via undersea cables'';

(3) since Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine in 2022, there has been a marked increase in high-profile suspected sabotage incidents resulting in damage to critical undersea infrastructure, especially across Northern Europe and East Asia;

(4) the United States Government has an important role to play in advancing United States interests in international bodies that oversee the protection of critical undersea infrastructure, including promoting network resilience and redundancy, and advancing regulations in support of these goals;

(5) the United States Government should play a more active role in NATO initiatives such as the NATO Maritime Centre for the Security of Critical Undersea Infrastructure, the Critical Undersea Infrastructure Coordination Cell, the Critical Undersea Infrastructure Network, and the NATO-EU Task Force on the Resilience of Critical Infrastructure, allied maritime security efforts such as the Joint Expeditionary Force, Indo-Pacific initiatives, including the Quad Partnership for Cable Connectivity and Resilience, and international organizations such as the International Cable Protection Committee (ICPC), in order to advance United States national security and economic interests;

(6) the United States should lead efforts to promote the deployment of resilient critical undersea infrastructure networks, enhance situational awareness, strengthen preparedness, and formalize collective responses among allies and partners through enhanced information sharing and coordination; and

(7) while critical undersea infrastructure owners and other associated private sector stakeholders carry significant responsibility in safeguarding this infrastructure, the United States Government and allied foreign governments need to play a greater role.

SEC. 8763B. ENHANCING UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT ENGAGEMENT WITH RELEVANT INTERNATIONAL BODIES TO SAFEGUARD UNITED STATES INTERESTS.

(1) A description of how increased United States Government engagement with relevant international bodies, including in coordination with the United States domestic subsea cable industry, could support United States national security objectives as it relates to the protection of critical undersea infrastructure.

(2) A description of key objectives for promoting and protecting United States national security interests within relevant international bodies.

(3) A description of how the People's Republic of China entities leverage their engagement with relevant international bodies to further their strategic interests.
