

of power in the world, things they had asked us to talk about.

And like the incredible and talented country lawyer he was, without a single note, he stood up and made a few simple, powerful, and engaging points with humor and with engagement. And I watched that room full of people just eating out of his hand.

He could make an argument. When you were on the receiving end of an argument you disagreed with, it was unpleasant and uncomfortable. When you were pulling in the same direction, making an argument in all of our best interests, it was a delight to work with him.

One of the things I never really persuaded him on was my passion for patent policy. I chaired the Intellectual Property Subcommittee on Judiciary, a committee we long served on together.

And as we were coming back from a conference in Europe—this was years ago—I spotted my moment to make my case for my really important patent policy legislation and sidling up and sitting down next to him on the plane, I spent some time really making my best arguments.

And as we landed back in the United States, LINDSEY stumbled off the plane and, to me memorably, turned to the other Senators and said: I have a new idea for how we will torture people in Guantanamo; we will make them listen to CHRIS COONS talk about patents.

I said: So you will cosponsor the bill? And he ran.

I have many, many other stories of moments, tense moments with heads of state, moments with a group of Senators trying to hammer out a big bill on immigration or infrastructure where LINDSEY's humor, his irreverent, often inappropriate, but hysterical humor broke the ice and brought us together.

One trip I will never forget was 2 weeks after October 7 when Senator GRAHAM and Senator Cardin pulled together 10 of us, 5 Republicans and 5 Democrats, of a very broad range. We went to Tel Aviv. We went to Riyadh. We went to Cairo. We had 2-hour in-person and intense meetings with Muhammad bin Salman of the Saudi Kingdom, with El-Sisi, President of Egypt, with the Prime Minister Netanyahu and his war cabinet. It was a grim and heavy moment because the people of Israel had just suffered a horrific attack from Hamas.

But part of why that attack had happened was this process of negotiating Saudi recognition of Israel and Israeli recognition of Palestinian self-governance, and an American guarantee to the Saudis was so close to conclusion, was making real progress, that Hamas chose that moment to strike.

LINDSEY never stopped trying to make that happen, not when Biden was President, not now that Trump is President. And at a formal dinner we were at together in Ankara at the NATO summit, he stood up and made the case again.

I hope that my colleagues will look on the history of this man who couldn't believe he had the honor and the blessing of serving here in the Senate, a man with a mercurial temper, a man of incredible humor, and a man with a tireless work ethic who served our Nation in the Air Force and who served our country in the Senate.

And we will redouble our efforts to make real the dream that he and I wrote together to create a conservation foundation that will secure ungoverned spaces—South America and in Africa and Southeast Asia—and shut down jihadist groups and extremist groups and conserve and protect wildlife and open spaces for the future. It requires just one signature from Secretary Rubio.

I hope that this body will take up and reauthorize our Global Fragility Act based on lessons learned over years together going to difficult and dangerous and remote places and looking at what was working and not working, places where our response was overmilitarized or where our response was disorganized or where our response was too little, too late.

And I certainly hope that we will take up and pass the Graham-Blumenthal bill to impose real costs on Putin. That was the source of his joy in his final days. He was so excited, when we spoke, about going into Kyiv, about giving the good news to Zelenskyy, about coming back here this week and passing this bill.

John, before him—Senator McCain, before him—and Senator GRAHAM, often after, said: Putin will only stop when we stop him.

I believed that then. I believe it now. For someone who worked so hard and for so long on our Nation's best interests, I think the least we could do to honor LINDSEY GRAHAM's memory is to take up and pass in this Senate the legislation for which he worked and fought so long.

Let me close by saying to everyone who worked for LINDSEY—and I have known many of you over the years—to his sister Darline, to his extended friends and family in South Carolina, know that even though he and I fought like hell on many occasions, it was like fighting with a brother—someone, although he changed and moved and at times we had great difficulties in distance, I always knew in the end, in his heart, he loved this Nation. He loved this institution. He loved South Carolina. And he loved the people he represented.

My predecessor in this seat—Senator, then-Vice President, then-President—Joe Biden was close with LINDSEY. They, too, had their moments, their fights, their falling out. But President Biden has also said that he and Dr. Biden are praying for LINDSEY's family and all who worked with him and knew him. And I join them in offering my deep and heartfelt condolences.

I am just so grateful—I am just so grateful—that my last memory of him is of him in his best place, seeing a pathway toward accomplishing yet another big goal. And as we walked back to the hotel, he turned to me and he said: I never dreamed—I never imagined—I would get to be a U.S. Senator. And I hope you, CHRIS COONS, won't give up on it because it is a great place. It is a great institution. Change is going to come, and we are going to get a lot of great things done together.

Well, my friend, I look forward to doing those things in your honor.

I yield the floor.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MORENO). Under the previous order, pursuant to S. Res. 801, as a further mark of respect to Lindsey Olin Graham, late Senator from South Carolina, the Senate stands adjourned until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 7:12 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, July 14, 2026, at 10 a.m.
