Safeguards: The metal container described above is maintained within the area assigned to the Office of the Regional Counsel within the New Federal Building. During non-working hours the room in which the metal container is located is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards.

Retention and disposal: Indefinite.

System manager(s) and address: Regional Counsel, Room 7422, United States Customs Service, 300 N. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, California 90053.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of Customs, 300 N. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, California 90053, or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record source categories: The information contained in these files originates with the filing of a Supplemental Petition as prescribed by section 171.33 and 172.33 of the Customs Regulations with the District Director of the District in which the fine, penalty, forfeiture or claim for liquidated damages issued. The Petition along with all supporting documents or documents relating to the case are forwarded to the office of the Regional Commissioner who refers the case to the office of the Regional Counsel for review and recommendation. During this period of review further information may be elicited from Customs Service employees, private persons, or any other parties who may have information regarding the facts surrounding the case.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Treasury/Customs 00.098

System name: Fines, Penalties and Forfeiture Records—Treasury/Customs System location: Customs district offices. (See Customs Appendix A).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals and firms who have been administratively charged with violations of Customs laws and regulations and other laws and regulations enforced by the Customs Service.

Categories of records in the system: Entry documentation, notices, investigative reports, memoranda, petitions, recommendations, referrals and dispositions of fines, penalties and forfeiture cases.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended. 19 U.S.C. 66, 1618, 1624; 19 CFR Parts 171 and 172.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties. Such uses would include reference to the files for information as to prior violations and ongoing investigations and cases. (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto. Such uses would include referring records to the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Transportation, the appropriate U.S. Attorney and other Federal agencies for recommendations and enforcement of fines, penalties and forfeiture cases.

For additional routine uses, see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are maintained in folders in file cabinets and safes.

Retrievability: The records are filed either by the name of the individual or chronologically with a cross reference index by the name of the individual.

Safeguards: During non-working hours, the records are maintained in locked rooms, locked buildings and buildings guarded by uniform guards.

Retention and disposal: The records are retained for three to five years after which they are either destroyed or forwarded to the Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address: District Directors of Customs (See Customs Appendix A).

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record source categories: Information and representations supplied by importers, brokers and other agents pursuant to the entry and processing of merchandise or in the clearing of individuals or baggage through Customs. Information also includes information gathered pursuant to Customs investigations of suspected of actual violations of Customs and related laws and regulations and recommendations and information supplied by other agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Individuals who have filed supplemental petitions for relief from fines, penalties and forfeitures assessed for violations of the laws and regulations administered by Customs.

Categories of records in the system: Petitions and supplemental petitions and other documents filed by the individual; reports of investigation concerning the fine, penalty or forfeiture; and documents relating to the internal review and consideration of the request for relief and decision thereon.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended; Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1965. 19 U.S.C. 1618; 19 CFR Parts 171 and 172.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) Information contained in the files is used to process requests for relief from fines, penalties and forfeitures and is made available to the officials within the Customs Service who review recommendations and who make final decisions with respect to them; (d) Information contained in the files may be made available to the Department of Justice or an individual United States Attorney to assist that Department or United States Attorney when suit is filed by the Government in civil prosecution of the fine, penalty or forfeiture; (e) Information contained in the files may also be used internally by the Regional Counsel or members of his staff insofar as it relates to precedent or guidelines for their handling of subsequent cases.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each case file is inserted in an alphabetical file folder which is filed in an unlocked drawer within a metal file cabinet.

Retrievability: Each case file is identified in a manual alphabetical card file by the name of the petitioner and in the alphabetical file folder within the metal file cabinet by the name of the petitioner.

Safeguards: The metal file cabinet described above is maintained within the area assigned to the Office of the Regional Counsel within the Federal Building. During non-working hours the room in which the metal file cabinet is located is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards.

Retention and disposal: Supplemental petition files are retained indefinitely or until there is no longer any space available for them within the metal file cabinet, at which time the oldest files may be transferred to the Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address: Regional Counsel, 211 Main Street, San Francisco, CA 94105.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record source categories: Information contained in these files is obtained from the individual petitioning for relief and from the District Director of Customs within whose jurisdiction the fine, penalty or forfeiture action lies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

System location: Penalties Branch, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Records are maintained on persons who have been administratively charged with violating Customs and related laws and regulations and on persons who have applied for awards of compensation for providing information regarding such violations.

Categories of records in the system: Entry documentation, notices, investigative and other reports, memoranda of information received, petitions, recommendations, referrals and dispositions of fines, penalties and forfeiture cases and applications for awards of compensation.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended. 19 U.S.C. 66, 1618, 1624; 19 CFR Parts 171 and 172.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties. Such uses include the processing and disposition of fines, penalties and forfeiture cases pursuant to 19 CFR Parts 171 and 172 and reference to the records for information as to prior violations and ongoing investigations. (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto. Such uses would include referring records to the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Transportation and other Federal agencies for recommendations on the administration of fines, penalties and forfeiture cases. (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit. (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: The records are kept in file cabinets in the central file room of the Entry Procedures and Penalties Division at U.S. Customs Service Headquarters.

Retrievability: The records are filed chronologically with a case number given to each file. The records are retrievable by means of an alphabetical card index system by names of individuals charged with a violation.

Safeguards: The records are maintained in the U.S. Customs Service Headquarters building which is guarded by security police. During non-working hours, the central file room is locked and the building is guarded by security police.

Retention and disposal: The records are generally retained for five years after the close of the case. The records are then forwarded to the Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Penalties Branch, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record source categories: Information and representations supplied by importers, brokers and other agents pursuant to the entry and processing of merchandise or in the clearing of individuals or baggage through Customs. Information also includes information gathered pursuant to Customs investigations of suspected or actual violations of Customs and related laws and regulations and recommendations and information supplied by other agencies.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Treasury/Customs 00.101

System name: Fines, Penalty, and Forfeiture (FP&F) Records System—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Office of the Regional Counsel, U.S. Customs Service, Region IX, 55 E. Monroe Street, Room 1417, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons seeking relief from fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred for alleged violations of the laws enforced by the United States Customs Service, and/or restoration of proceeds from the sale of seized and forfeited property.

Categories of records in the system: Statement from individual explaining circumstances justifying relief sought and history of the fine, penalty, forfeiture or seizure involved.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended; 19 CFR part 171 and 172.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service, the Department of the Treasury and the Department of Justice, who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto. (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit. (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter. (f) Information contained in these files is routinely used by the attorneys in the Regional Counsel's office in determining and resolving legal issues, in denying or granting the petition and possibly in litigation. Litigation will require disclosure of the information to the Department of Justice, and the information is often channeled through the Department of Treasury.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each case file is inserted in a file folder which is filed in a lockable drawer within a metal filing cabinet container.

Retrievability: Each case file is identified in a manual alphabetical card file by the name of the person who initiated the petition for relief. In addition, each case file is similarly identified on the file folder with the alphabetical name on the file which is placed and located within the metal container.

Safeguards: The metal filing drawer containing the files described above is maintained within the area assigned to the office of the Regional Counsel, Region IX, at 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois. During non-working hours, the room in which the metal filing drawer is located is locked, the file container itself is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards with a check-in system for employees. Only employees of the Regional Counsel's office and authorized building personnel have keys to the building.

Retention and disposal: These files are retained indefinitely or until there is no longer space available for them within the metal filing cabinet at which time the oldest files are transferred to the storage area within the confines of the office. The storage area is a large area containing cardboard boxes with metal storage cabinets which are not able to be locked. Files which are closed and not retained for precedent purposes are retired to the Federal Records Center, General Services Administration, 7358 S. Pulaski, Chicago, Illinois 60602 in accordance with the U.S. Customs Service Records Disposal Manual.

System manager(s) and address: Regional Counsel of Customs, Room 1417, United States Customs Service, 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto. (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit. (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records maintained in standard Custom file folders in locked, metal cabinets.

Retrievability: System indexed by identifying file number and manually retrieved.

Safeguards: File maintained in locked, metal file cabinet the keys of which are controlled by the custodian of the files. Those departmental officials who may occasionally be granted access consistent with their positions have been cleared by a full field background investigation and granted appropriate security clearance for critical sensitive positions. During non-working hours the room housing the metal cabinets is locked.

Retention and disposal: Memoranda of Information Received are normally destroyed after three years. On active cases or individuals, files could presumably be retained for duration of interest in individual. Disposal is by means of shredding.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Regional Patrol, 600 South Street, New Orleans, LA 70130.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption are contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Contesting record procedures: See Access above.

Record source categories: Information submitted by individuals.

System name: Internal Security Records System—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Internal Security Division, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. Tort Claim Investigation Files and index card files at each Regional Director (Internal Affairs) Office. See Customs Appendix A.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Present and past employees, applicants for positions that require an investigation, and others that are the subject of an investigation.

Categories of records in the system: Security clearance records; background, tort claim, special inquiry, conduct, and equal employment opportunity investigations and other Customs related investigations including individuals involved in accidents under investigation.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosure required in the administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) Provide the proper authority within the Department of the Treasury with sufficient information to make a decision as to whether or not an applicant or employee is suitable for employment in a sensitive position, and to make a determination regarding a subject's loyalty; (d) When routine background investigation develops evidence of violations of law, case is referred to Investigative Branch; (e) Serves as a basis for granting access to classified information and material. When necessary, advise Government agencies and private industry of employees having security clearances; (f) To provide basis for disciplinary action, criminal prosecution establishing guilt or innocence, identifying procedural weaknesses, establishing liability in tort claim investigations, give information to Equal Employment Opportunity Division in EEO cases, provide information to appropriate officials, management and Congressmen; (g) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (h) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit; (i) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

A record contained in this system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to possible sources of information in connection with civil or criminal investigations or inquiries under circumstances where it is necessary to disclose certain information in order to pose a question to those sources.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Investigative records are maintained on microfiche and in file folders and stored in metal security cabinets secured by government approved three-position, combination locks. Security clearance records are stored on magnetic tape with a manual back-up system.

Retrievability: A manual, master card index is maintained for the entire system. This index includes name and/or numerical identifier.

Safeguards: In addition to being stored in secure metal containers with government approved, combination locks, the metal containers are located in locked rooms, the keys of which are controlled and issued to the custodians of the files. The security specialists and administrative personnel who maintain the files are selected for their experience and afforded access only after having been cleared by a full-field background investigation and granted appropriate security clearances for critical sensitive positions. Those departmental officials who may occasionally be granted access consistent with their positions to employ and concur in the granting of security clearances have also been investigated prior to filling critical-sensitive positions.

Retention and disposal: With exception of tort claim investigations, the file records are maintained as long as the subject of the investigation is employed by the U.S. Customs Service and for 1 year after the subject terminates employment. The files are then transferred to the Federal Records Center.

Tort Claim investigations are retained for 5 years after the close of the investigation and then destroyed. Once files are transferred, they are retained for the following periods of time by the Federal Records Center and then destroyed: Background investigations—25 years, Conduct and special inquiry investigations—15 years, Equal Employment Opportunity investigations—10 years.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Internal Security Division, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties which may include the administration, investigation, enforcement and prosecution of civil and criminal Customs and related laws; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) Disclosure may be made to any civil or criminal law enforcement authorities, whether Federal, state, local or foreign; (d) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigation or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto; (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit; (f) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

A record contained in this system of records may be disclosed as a routine use to possible sources of information in connection with civil or criminal investigations or inquiries under circumstances where it is necessary to disclose certain information in order to pose a question to those sources.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in both hard copy files and on microfiche which are placed in locked metal containers.

Retrievability: The record system is indexed on 3 x 5 file cards by the individual's name and/or identification number and by the investigative case numbers to which the information relates. The hard copy and microfiche records are retrieved by means of the investigative case numbers.

Safeguards: All records are held in steel cabinets and are maintained according to the requirements of the United States Customs Records Manual and the United States Customs Security Manual. Access is limited by visual controls and/or a lock system. During normal working hours, files are either attended by responsible Office of Investigations employees or the file area is restricted. The office in which the records are located is locked during non-working hours and the building is patrolled by uniformed security guards.

Retention and disposal: The index cards are retained indefinitely. The hard copy and microfiche records are retained for one year or more depending on the subject matter to which they relate and are then either destroyed or transferred to the appropriate Federal Record Center, all in accordance with standard Customs Service record retention and disposal procedures.

System manager(s) and address: Assistant Commissioner, Office of Investigations, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C., 20229.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption are contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Treasury/Customs 00.135

System name: Legal Case Inventory System—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Classification and Value Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Customs employees to whom legal cases are assigned for initial review at Customs Headquarters.

Categories of records in the system: Name of Customs employees to whom legal cases are assigned for initial review, name of inquirer, date of correspondence, description of request, control number, and status.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) To maintain a log system of all requests received in the Office; be able to locate each request, obtain present status, and to whom assigned. Obtain statistical information indicating the number of requests received per month for budget purposes.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic tape and hard copy print-out.

Retrievability: A weekly print-out for each division in the Office of Regulations and Rulings by the name of the employee assigned to the case is prepared. Retrieval of information by employee is accomplished by a manual search of the print-out.

Safeguards: The weekly printout is used only by division personnel to locate a specific case. Each branch in the division receives a copy of the printout for their use. During non-working hours the room is locked and the building is guarded by security police. Only authorized persons are permitted in the building.

Retention and disposal: An inquirer's name will remain in the computer until 90 days after a reply has been made to afford the inquirer ample time for resubmission of a request for consideration. Thereafter, his name is expunged by erasure of the tape. The print-out is disposed of as paper trash when a new print-out is received.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Classification and Value Division, U.S. Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Known violators of Federal narcotics laws. Suspected violators of Federal narcotics laws. Associates of known and suspected violators. Informants and other persons of interest to patrol officers in the performance of their duties.

Categories of records in the system: Criminal and civil case files; information of possible violators, informant files, known suspect files, and files of information of interest to patrol officers.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosure required in the administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) Used by patrol officers to determine an individual's previous record when determining the proper recommendations for criminal and civil penalties; (d) Used by patrol officers to determine patterns of violations and assist in the more efficient performance of their duties; (e) Used by officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury to compile statistics and determine patterns of violators; (f) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or possible violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (g) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit; (h) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in file folders and stored in metal file cabinets which are located in locked or occupied offices which are located in locked and guarded Federal Buildings.

Retrievability: A manual master card index is maintained for the entire system. This index includes name and/or numerical identifier.

Safeguards: In addition to being stored in secure metal containers, the containers are maintained in offices which are either occupied or locked at all times. These offices are located in locked Federal buildings.

Retention and disposal: The file records are maintained indefinitely.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Baltimore Patrol Division, U.S. Customhouse, 40 South Gay Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21202.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system or records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption are contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Treasury/Customs 00.156

System name: Narcotic Violator File—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Fines, Penalties and Forfeitures Office, District Director of Customs, Room 603, U.S. Federal Building, 111 West Huron Street, Buffalo, New York 14202.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons who have been found in possession of any controlled substance within the Buffalo District.

Categories of records in the system: Alphabetized cross reference of violators names and the associated case numbers assigned to these individuals.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of the law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto; (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit; (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Open card file (3 x 5) is kept in metal flip file.

Retrievability: Narcotic violator case files are cross-referenced by a 3 x 5 alphabetized card which contains both name and case number.

Safeguards: Open card file is kept in the Fines, Penalties and Forfeitures Office which is locked after working hours. During working hours, a staff person is always in the office. The building is under 24-hour guard.

Retention and disposal: File system has a purge date of two years after which cross reference cards are destroyed and case numbered file is no longer accessible by name of the individual.

System manager(s) and address: District Director, United States Customs Service, Room 603, 111 West Huron Street, Buffalo, New York 14202.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willingly seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record access procedures: Requests by an individual to be notified how he can gain access to a record pertaining to him contained in a system of records, and how he can contest its content shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Contesting record procedures: See access above.

Record source categories: The information in these files is obtained from Search/Arrest and Seizure Reports transmitted to the Fines, Penalties and Forfeitures Office by ports and stations within the district.

Treasury/Customs 00.159

System name: Notification of Personnel Management Division when an employee is placed under investigation by the Office of Internal Affairs—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Personnel Management Division, 500 Dallas Street, Houston, Texas 77002.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Customs employees who are suspected of misconduct.

Categories of records in the system: A written or telephonic notification made by the Office of Internal Affairs that an investigation has been opened on an individual employee.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Notification serves to notify certain Personnel Management Division employees of the investigation to assure compliance with Chapter 751 of the Customs Personnel Manual which precludes the processing of certain personnel actions while employees are under investigation. Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties. Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552).

In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto.

A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit.

A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Notifications provided by the Office of Internal Affairs are maintained in a file folder and stored in a metal security cabinet equipped with a lock.

Retrievability: The file contains the name of the employee; therefore retrievability is by the individual's name.

Safeguards: A metal container, described above, is maintained within the area assigned to Personnel Management in the One Allen Center Building. During non-working hours, the room in which the metal container is kept is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards.

Retention and disposal: The name file is retained until notification has been received that the investigation has been cancelled or on receipt of a report of investigation from the Office of Internal Affairs.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Personnel Management Division, 500 Dallas Street, Houston, Texas 77002.

Record source categories: The only source of notification that an employee has been placed under investigation is the Regional Director, Internal Affairs.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Storage: The information in this system is contained on GSA Forms 7415 (Parking Permit Applications) which consist of index card applications. The index card applications are placed within a file box which is located in a metal file container.

Retrievability: Each index card is identified by the name of the applicant, and the cards are filed alphabetically within the file box.

Safeguards: The card file box is placed within a metal cabinet which is located within an office that is locked during non-working hours. The building is guarded by uniformed security police, and only authorized persons are permitted in the building.

Retention and disposal: Active index cards are retained in this system indefinitely. However, the information in this sytem is reviewed every six months, and outdated index cards are discarded.

System manager(s) and address: Chief, Headquarters Support Branch, Logistics Management Division, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Director Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record access procedures: Requests by an individual to be notified how he can gain access to a record pertaining to him contained in a system of records, and how he can contest its content shall be in writing and directed to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each CF 151 covering personal searches is maintained in alphabetical order at the various ports of entry.

Retrievability: By name of person searched.

Safeguards: Records are retained in file cabinets (lockable) and buildings are locked during other than office hours.

Retention and disposal: Records are retained for 5 years and destroyed by burning.

System manager(s) and address: Port Directors at the various ports of entry in the Nogales, Arizona District.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Customs Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedure to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record access procedures: Requests by an individual to be notified how he can gain access to a record pertaining to him contained in a system of records, and how he can contest its content shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Customs Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Contesting record procedures: See Access above.

System name: Personnel Action Records System—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Office of the Regional Counsel, U.S. Customs Service, Region IX, 55 E. Monroe Street, Room 1417, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons employed by the Treasury Department, Customs Service who either initiate a grievance, discrimination complaint, an unfair labor practice complaint against the U.S. Customs Service and officer or employee therof, or have a disciplinary or other adverse action initiated against him or her by the U.S. Customs Serivce in Region IX.

Categories of records in the system: The Personnel Action Records System contains information regarding employment history, i.e. basic personnel data, age, birth, marital status, address, phone number, general health, details of the incident leading to the grievance, discrimination complaint, disciplinary action, adverse action, or unfair labor practice complaint.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in the Personnel Action Records System of the United States Customs Service are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service, the Department of the Treasury, the Civil Service Commission, and the Department of Justice who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto; (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit; (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; (f) Information contained in these files is routinely used by the attorneys in the Regional Counsel's office in determining and resolving legal issues related to the personnel action involved, in preparing for, and representing management in, administrative hearings and administrative appeals, and providing information and assistance to U.S. Attorneys and the Department of Justice in litigation. Potential litigation or litigation will require disclosure of the information to the Department of Justice, and this information is often channeled through the Department of the Treasury.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each case file is inserted in a file folder which is filed in a lockable drawer within a metal filing cabinet container.

Retrievability: Each case file is identified in a manual alphabetical card file by the name of the person who initiated the action against the Customs Service, or against whom it was initiated. In addition, each case file is similarly identified on the file folder with the alphabetical name on the file which is placed and located within the metal container.

Safeguards: The metal filing drawer containing the files described above is maintained within the area assigned to the office of the Regional Counsel, Region IX at 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois. During non-working hours, the room in which the metal filing drawer is located is locked, the file container itself is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards with a check-in system for employees. Only employees of the Regional Counsel's office and authorized building personnel have keys to the building.

Retention and disposal: These files are retained indefinitely or until there is no longer space available for them within the metal filing cabinet at which time the oldest files are transferred to the storage area within the confines of the office. The storage area is a large area containing cardboard boxes and metal storage cabinets which are not able to be locked. Files which are closed and not retained for precedent purposes are retired to the Federal Records Center, General Service Administration, 7358 S. Pulaski, Chicago, Illinois 60602 in accordance with the U.S. Customs Service Record Disposal Manual.

System manager(s) and address: Regional Counsel of Customs, Room 1417, United States Customs Service, 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Customs Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowinly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record source categories: The information contained in these files originates with the initiation of any personnel action either by or against an employee. The information submitted by the employee is in the file as will be the information submitted by the employer if the action is initiated by the employer. Further information in this file is derived from both employee and employer information of an investigation made by the Office of Internal Affairs, investigation reports by the Office of Investigations, memoranda from the Civil Service Commission and possibly other agencies having employed the individual. Information could also be obtained form Customs employees, former Customs employees, private parties, corporations, confidential informers, credit bureaus, foreign countries or officials thereof, foreign citizens and any other source with information pertinent to the Personnel Action.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: All Customs employees, present and former.

Categories of records in the system: These records contain Personnel data maintained primarily in the Official Personnel Folder and Payroll information such as name, social security number, grade, series, step, organizational codes, tax withholding information, bond purchase and issuance, emergency salaries, overtime and holiday pay, optional payroll deductions, other deductions, and all payroll information. Also in this system are records of time and attendance and leave.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto; (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision conerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit; (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; (f) Records are used for payroll processing, reports on payroll information such as Employee Service Record report (IRS Form 3695), Comprehensive Payroll listing (IRS Form 2979), Payroll Journal Detail Listing (IRS Form 3124) and others.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records are maintained in file folders and on mag-tape and computer printout.

Retrievability: Records are indexed by name or social security number.

Safeguards: Records are maintained in locked files, secured rooms, or limited access.

Retention and disposal: Individual records are not in system after separation; Official Personnel Records of separated employees either are sent to new agency or to Records Center. Time and attendance records are maintained three years or until after audit; then destroyed.

System manager(s) and address: Directors, Personnel and Financial Management Division in each region and headquarters.

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Customs Appendix A), or to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record access procedures: Requests by an individual to be notified how he can gain access to a record pertaining to him contained in a system of records, and how he can contest its content shall be in writing and directed to the Regional Commissioner of the region in which the records are located (see Customs Appendix A), or the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

System name: Regulatory Audits of Customhouse Brokers—Treasury/Customs.

System location: Division of Regulatory Audit, United States Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20229, and at each of the nine regional offices of Regulatory Audit (see Customs Appendix A for addresses).

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Persons licensed to conduct customhouse brokerage business pursuant to 19 U.S.C. 1641.

Categories of records in the system: Audit reports of customhouse broker accounts and records; correspondence regarding such reports; Congressional inquiries concerning customhouse broker and disposition made of such inquiries; names of officers of customhouse brokerage firms, license numbers and dates issued and district covered.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 19 U.S.C. 1641; 19 CFR Part III. 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in the administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). (c) The information may be furnished to other government agencies which may have an interest in the broker. (d) Copies of broker audit reports will be retained in the office that performed the audit and at the headquarter's office. These reports will serve as a permanent file providing such essential information as the names and broker license number of company officers and other licensed employees. The reports will create a historical record of broker performance. The headquarter's file will also provide a means of evaluating the effectiveness of audits conducted by the regional audit staffs.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each customhouse broker file is inserted in alphabetical order by name of the firm in one of nine regional file folders which are filed in an unlocked drawer within a metal file cabinet. Duplicate copies are maintained at Customs Service Headquarters.

Retrievability: Each broker file is identified on alphabetical file locator cards which contain the name and address of the broker, the region and district in which he operates, and the number of the file drawer. In addition each regional office maintains their own alphabetical file, containing the above information, for broker activities within their region.

Safeguards: The files described above are maintained within the area assigned to the Regulatory Audit Division within the Customs Service Building. During non-working hours, the room in which the files are located is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards.

Retention and disposal: Customhouse broker files are retained indefinitely, or until there is no longer any space available for them at which time the oldest files are destroyed by burning or shredding.

System manager(s) and address: Director, Regulatory Audit Division, United States Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20229. Regional Director, Regulatory Audit Division at each of the nine regional offices (see Customs Appendix A for addresses).

Notification procedure: Requests by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to 5,000 dollars. A comparison of his signatue and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record source categories: The information contained in these files originates from audits conducted by the regional Regulatory Audit staff, of customhouse brokers' businesses. The audits may be supplemented with information furnished by the Office of the Chief Counsel, Office of Investigations, and the Office of Regulations and Rulings. These audits include examinations of brokers business records, including all financial books of accounts, check books, and financial statements. In the event that the broker is engaged in various business enterprises such as freight forwarding and insurance, and these financial records are commingled with those financial records relating to the brokerage business, it would be necessary to examine the other business records to complete the audit.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: The Commissioner of Customs pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and/or (k) has proposed to exempt this system of records from certain requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is proposed to be exempted and the justification for the exemption is contained in a general notice which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Categories of records in the system: Tort Claim, Standard Form 95 (claim for damage or injury) containing name, address, marital status, personal injury and property damage information, and insurance information; also correspondence, accident reports and investigatory records regarding the alleged damage or injury and possible medical information.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 28 U.S.C. 2671 et seq.; 5 U.S.C. 301; Treasury Department Order No. 165, Revised, as amended.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in the Tort Claim Records System of the United States Customs Service are as follows: (a) Disclosure to those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) In the event that this system of records includes information which indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal, or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule, or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local, or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation, or order issued pursuant thereto; (d) A record from this system of records may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a Federal, state, or local agency maintaining civil, criminal, or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit; (e) A record from this system of records may be disclosed to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; (f) Information contained in these files is routinely used by the attorneys in the Regional Counsel's office in determining and resolving legal issues, in recommending approval, denial, compromise or settlement of the claim, and possibly in litigation. Litigation will require disclosure of the information to the Department of Justice, and the information is often channeled through the Department of the Treasury.

For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Each case file is inserted in a file folder which is filed in a lockable drawer within a metal filing cabinet container.

Retrievability: Each case file is identified in a manual alphabetical card file by the name of the person who initiated the tort claim against the Customs Service, and officer or employee thereof. In addition, each case file is similarly identified on the file folder with the alphabetical name on the file which is placed and located within the metal container.

Safeguards: The metal filing drawer containing the files described above is maintained within the area assigned to the Office of the Regional Counsel of Customs, Region IX at 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois. During non-working hours, the room in which the metal filing drawer is located is locked, the file container itself is locked, and access to the building is controlled at all times by uniformed guards with a check-in system for employees. Only employees of the Regional Counsel's office and authorized building personnel have keys to the building.

Retention and disposal: These files are retained indefinitely or until there is no longer space available for them within the metal filing cabinet at which time the oldest files are transferred to the storage area within the confines of the office. The storage area is a large area containing cardboard boxes and metal storage cabinets which are not able to be locked. Files which are closed and not retained for precedent purposes are retired to the Federal Records Center, General Service Administration, 7358 S. Pulaski, Chicago, Illinois 60602 in accordance with the U.S. Customs Service Records Disposal Manual.

System manager(s) and address: Regional Counsel of Customs, Room 1417, United States Customs Service, 55 E. Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Contesting record procedures: See Access above.

Record source categories: Customs Officials.

System name: Early Implementation System (EIS)—Treasury/Customs.

System location: The Computer is located at 1900 West Park Drive, McLean, Virginia 23701. Computer terminals are located at Customhouses and ports throughout the United States and at U.S. Customs Headquarters, Washington D.C. (For addresses of Customhouses see Customs Appendix A.)

Categories of individuals covered by the system: U.S. Customs Service employees and individuals involved in the import trade.

Categories of records in the system: The system data base is comprised of commodity and merchandise processing information relating to Customs administration of trade laws. Certain portions contain no information about individuals. These are the Tariff Schedules of the United States Annotated (TSUSA) file, country file, criteria file for the selection of routine items, Team TSUSA file, district port file, and the entry master file. The following system files may contain information about U.S. Customs Services employees and/or individuals/companies involved in the import trade.

(1) Authorized Terminals Users File: Contains Randomly established five-digit identification codes and passwords assigned to Customs Service employees authorized to use the system. The file consists of the names and identification of all Customs Service employees using the remote terminals to input information into the system. It does not contain Social Security numbers. The degree of access to the system varies according to the users responsibilities in the system.

(2) Importer/Broker/Consignee Bond File: Records consist of importer of record number, importer name, type of importation bond, expiration date, and surety code. The importer of record number is used as the method of accessing the file. The number is assigned by any one of three code formats according to availability and the following hierarchy. The first choice is the IRS employer Identification number (EIN). The vast majority of importers have the EIN because of the business necessity of it.

The second alternative is the Social Security number (SSN). The third alternative is a Customs-assigned number. This file is referenced during entry processing to verify that the individual or company making entry is authorized to import and is properly bonded.

(3) Broker File: A record consists of a three-digit Customs-assigned Customhouse broker number (non-SSN) and the broker name. The file is referenced during entry processing to validate the broker nunber and to prepare and distribute the Broker ID Performance Report to the individual or company concerned. The subject of the report is compliance with the entry filing requirements under the immediate delivery program. Information is disclosed only to the party-of-record.

(4) Surety File: A record consists of a three-digit surety code (non-SSN) assigned by the Customs Accounting Division and the surety name. The file is referenced during entry processing to validate these surety codes. No information on surety company affairs is collected or disseminated in the system.

(5) Liquidator File: A record consists of a Customs-assigned three-digit liquidator identification (non-SSN) and a Customs employee's name. The employee's liquidator code is input into the system as a means of maintaining quality control and an audit trail on entries liquidated.

(6) Manufacturer File: The file contains only a three-digit manufacturer code number (non-SSN) and manufacturer name.

Authority for maintenance of the system: 19 U.S.C. 66, 1448, 1481, 1483, 1484, 1505, and 1624.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in this system of records are as follows: (a) Disclosure of those officers and employees of the Customs Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in adminstration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) To provide the Bureau of the Census with a magnetic tape containing foreign trade data.

For additional routine use see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Magnetic Disc.

Retrievability: By identification codes and/or name.

Safeguards: Access to computer area is controlled by a security pass arrangement and personnel not connected with the operation of the computer are prohibited from entering. The building security is protected by a uniformed guard. At the ports of processing, terminal rooms are under close supervision during working hours and locked after close of business. The system security officer issues a unique private five digit identification code to each authorized user. The codes are changed periodically to enhance security. All computer terminals are key-locked when not in use. Access to the Customers computer from other than system terminals in prohibited by hardware controls. Users must input a unique identification code during the terminal log-in procedure to gain access to the system. The identification code is not printed or displayed at the port of processing. The system validates the user ID by transaction type, thereby limiting a system user's access to information on a need to know basis. A listing of identification codes of authorized users can be printed only at the computer room site by request of the security officer.

Retention and disposal: Files are retained indefinitely but are periodically updated to reflect changes, etc.

System manager(s) and address: Director, AMPS Program Division Customs Service Headquaters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229, is responsible for all data maintained in the files.

Notification procedure: Request by an individual to be notified if the system of records contains records pertaining to him shall be in writing and directed to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification, he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine of up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Record access procedures: Requests by an individual to be notified how he can gain access to a record pertaining to him contained in a system of records and how he can contest its contents, shall be in writing and directed to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, U.S. Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20229. The requester will be notified in writing of the procedures to be followed. Where the request is presented in person, the requester shall present adequate identification to establish his identity, and a comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature. If an individual can provide no suitable documents for identification he may be required to make a signed statement asserting identity and a stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willing seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars.

Where the request is not presented in person, it shall be accompanied by a notarized statement executed by the requester asserting identity and stipulating that he understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses is punishable by a fine up to five thousand dollars. A comparison of his signature and those in the records may be made where the records contain the necessary signature.

Contesting record procedures: See Access above.

Record source categories: The system data base is limited to data about individuals and/or companies incidental to the conduct of foreign trade and required by the Customs Service in adminstering the tariff laws and regulations of the United States. No information concerning any individual's or company's importation activity, bonds status, and compliance or noncompliance with Customs Regulations will be disclosed for non-authorized purposes to any person other than the party-of-record upon receipt of a written request.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Title 5 USC; Federal Personnel Manual; Executive Order 11478.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Within the Department of the Treasury, the aforementioned records are routinely used to determine the suitability of an applicant for employment; to verify an employee's orientation processing; to supplement official personnel records for clarification of personnel actions; to authorize deductions of state and/or local or District of Columbia taxes from an employee's salary for payroll functions; to provide information for determining the eligibility and suitability of an employee for promotion or award; to appraise an employee's performance following hiring or promotion; to judge the necessity for disciplinary action and to make record of the same; to inform an employee of his present leave and retirement benefits status; to make record of all correspondence exchanged between an employee and the Division of Personnel for reference purposes; to locate an employee in an emergency situation if the employee's permission was granted; to issue building passes and make record thereof; to record work-related injuries and illnesses and to process compensation therefor; to perform security investigations and to provide security clearance for attorneys and certain other employees in order to protect security information; to furnish Internal Revenue Service, Secret Service, and other Federal agencies with information in the course of their investigations; to document grievances or complaints of discrimination for purposes of hearing and passing decision on a case; to furnish management with information necessary for the hearing and resolution of administrative grievances and grievances arising within the framework of the labor-management framework; to record, analyze and approve travel expenditures; to furnish data needed by the Division of Budget and Accounts in the performance of its duties relating to the estimating and accounting for budget expenditures, maintaining records, providing payroll data to the Fiscal Service Payroll Facility, Bureau of Government Financial Operations, to the individual employee, and to supervisors who have need of such information in the performance of their duties; to maintain records of correspondence for reference and precedence purposes; to provide Federal income tax filing information on employees, GS grade 12 and above, for the purpose of tax checks; to process and document merit promotion actions; to conduct turnover studies; and to maintain records of those employees who have requested voluntary withholding of union dues.

Routine users of records within the Department are the Division of Personnel; the Division of Budget and Accounts; the Division of Management Services; the EEO Officers; Internal Revenue Service; Secret Service; and all other employees who have need of such information in the performance of their authorized duties.

Outside the Department of the Treasury, qualified information is routinely used to furnish other Federal Agencies with pre-employment information for hiring purposes; to verify debt complaints and employment data upon request by creditors; to respond to requests for information by Federal investigative agencies for the purpose of security or criminal investigation, and civil or criminal judicial proceedings; to provide data to the Civil Service Commission and other Federal agencies upon authorized requests; to supply data necessary for employee compensation; to provide union representatives, arbitrators, and other third parties responsible for the administration of the federal labor-management relations program with information needed, in the performance of their authorized duties under a Bureau-union contract or E.O. 11491, as amended; to disclose to Members of Congress who inquire on behalf of constituents; to disclose to next-of-kin, voluntary guardian and other representative or successor in interest of a deceased or incapacitated employee or former employee.

Routine users outside the Department are other Federal Agency Personnel Offices; the Civil Service Commission; U.S. Department of Labor, Office of Employees Compensation; State unemployment offices; union representatives, arbitrators, and other third-parties who have responsibilities and a Bureau-union contract or E.O. 11491, as amended, for the administration of the federal labor-management relations program as qualified in the routine use; creditors; Federal agencies; Members of Congress and next-of-kin; voluntary guardian and other representative or successor in interest.

For Additional Routine Uses, see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Electronic media, paper and microfilm.

Retrievability: By name, and in some cases social security number.

Safeguards: Information is contained in secure buildings, Federal Records Centers, or in areas which are occupied by officers and responsible employees of the Bureau who are subject to the Bureau's personnel screening procedures and the Treasury Department Code of Conduct. Information stored in electronic media is safeguarded by automatic data processing security procedures in addition to physical security measures.

Retention and disposal: Records are maintained in accordance with GSA and CSC retention schedules. All records are destroyed by incineration, maceration or shredding. Records in electronic media are electronically erased using accepted techniques.

System manager(s) and address: For Administrative records: Commissioner of the Public Debt, 15th and New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226. For Personnel records: Director of Personnel, Bureau of the Public Debt, 13th and C Streets, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20226.

Notification procedure: Address Administrative inquiries and initial requests for correction of records to: Privacy Act Request, Commissioner of the Public Debt, 15th and New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226, (202) 376-0249. Address Personnel inquiries and initial requests for correction of records to: Privacy Act Request Director of Personnel, Bureau of the Public Debt, 13th and C Streets, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20226, (202) 447-1297; or Privacy Act Request, Personnel Officer, Savings Bond Operations Office, Bureau of the Public Debt, 200 Third Street, Parkersburg, West Virginia 26101, (304) 422-8551.

Record access procedures: Individuals who wish to request access to records relating to them or who wish to request correction of records they believe to be in error should submit such requests pursuant to the procedures set out below in compliance with the applicable regulations (31 CFR Part 1, Subpart C Sections 1.7 & 1.8; 31 CFR Part 323). Requests which do not comply fully with these procedures may result in noncompliance with the request but will be answered to the extent possible.

Requests for access to records: (1) All requests for access to records should be in writing, signed by the individual concerned, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, clearly indicate that the request is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. The Bureau reserves the right to require additional verification of an individual's identity in certain cases. (2) The request must specify the Bureau system of records within which the desired records are located as well as the categories of records within the system. These categories are set out in the applicable system of records description. (3) Requests for records concerning a deceased or incapacitated individual should be accompanied by either evidence of the requester's appointment as legal representative of the individual or his estate or by a statement attesting that no such representative has been appointed and giving the nature of the relationship between the requester and the individual.

Requests for correction of records: (1) All requests by an individual for correction of records relating to him should be in writing, be signed by him, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, state that the request is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. (2) The request for correction should specify: (a) the dates of the prior correspondence had with the Bureau concerning the records in question, (b) the specific records alleged to be incorrect, (c) the correction requested, and (d) the reasons therefor as well as any available evidence in support of the request.

Appeals from an initial denial of a request for correction of records: (1) All appeals from an initial denial of a request for correction of records must be in writing, be signed by the individual involved, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, state that it is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. (2) All appeals must, to be handled under the Privacy Act procedures, be delivered to the address set forth for submission of appeals within 35 days of the individual's receipt of the initial denial of the requested correction. (3) All appeals must specify: (a) the records to which the appeal relates, (b) the date of the initial request made for correction of the records, and (c) the date that initial denial of the request for correction was received. (4) All appeals must also specify the reasons for the requester's disagreement with the initial denial of correction and should furnish any applicable evidence available in support of his appeal.

Contesting record procedures: See notification and access.

Record source categories: Information on records in the system is furnished by the individuals, by creditors, by supervisors, medical personnel, other employees, or as the result of security investigations.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Present and former owners or first-named coowners of, claimants to, persons entitled to, and inquirers concerning United States savings-type securities and interest thereon—including but not limited to United States Savings Bonds, Savings Notes, Retirement Plan Bonds, and Individual Retirement Bonds. In addition, second-named coowners of Series G savings bonds.

Categories of records in the system: (1) Issuance: Records relating to registration, registers of issuance of securities and records of correspondence in connection with issuance of savings-type securities. (2) Holdings: Records documenting ownership, status, payments by date and account numbers, including inscription information; interest activity; correspondence in connection with notice of change of name and address, non-receipt of interest and over- and under-payments of interest; numerical registers of ownership. Such records include information relating to savings-type securities held in safekeeping in conjunction with the Department's program to deliver such securities to the owners or persons entitled. (3) Transactions (redemptions, payments and reissues): Records which include securities transaction requests; interest activity; legal papers supporting transactions, applications for disposition or payment of securities and/or interest thereon of deceased or incapacitated owners; records of retired securities; check payment records. (4) Claims: Records including correspondence concerning lost, stolen, destroyed or mutilated savings-type securities, bonds of indemnity, legal documents supporting claims for relief and records of caveats entered. (5) Inquiries: Records of correspondence with individuals who have requested information concerning savings-type securities and/or interest thereon.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended (40 Stat. 288) and 5 U.S.C. 301.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Within the Department of the Treasury, the information contained in this system of records is routinely used in connection with the issuance of securities, the payment of interest thereon, processing of claims therefor, responding to inquiries thereon, processing of transactions therein and the redemption and retirement thereof. Users for these purposes are officials, authorized employees and agents of the Department for the purpose of administering the Public Debt of the United States. Information in this system is also routinely furnished to the Internal Revenue Service for use by officials and authorized employees for the purpose of facilitating collection of tax revenues by the United States. In addition to these uses within the Department, records concerning holdings are routinely disclosed outside the Department as follows: (1) To the next-of-kin, voluntary guardian, legal representative or successor in interest of a deceased or incapacitated owner of securities, and others entitled in connection with reissue, distribution or payment thereof; users for this purpose are as described for the purpose of assuring equitable and lawful disposition of securities and/or interest. (2) Information is routinely furnished, when appropriate, pertaining to securities to the United States Secret Service for inclusion in the National Crime Information Center of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to the Department of Justice and to other Federal agencies; users for this purpose are law enforcement officials, for the purpose of reducing monetary losses of the United States and to aid in law enforcement. (3) Information is routinely disclosed pertaining to holdings of securities, interest thereon and transactions therein to the Department of Justice in connection with lawsuits to which the Department is a party; and to Trustees in Bankruptcy; users are Federal officials for the purpose of carrying out their duties. (4) Information is routinely disclosed to the Veterans Administration and selected veterans publications in connection with attempts to locate owners, or their next of kin or persons otherwise entitled to bonds undeliverable and being held in safekeeping by the Department. (5) Information regarding records of holdings of securities registered in coownership form is routinely disclosed to either coowner upon request. Information regarding records of holdings for securities registered in beneficiary form ("P.O.D.") is routinely disclosed to the beneficiary named thereon provided acceptable proof of death of the registered owner is submitted. (Note: If the request for disclosure is made by the second-named coowner, or by a beneficiary the name or social security number of the first-named person must be furnished, except in the case of Series G savings bonds.) (6) Information regarding holdings is routinely disclosed to Members of Congress who inquire on behalf of constituents. (7) For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records in this system are stored in their original form in file cabinets, as information in electronic media or on microfilm.

Retrievability: Information can be retrieved alphabetically by name, bond serial numbers, or, in some cases, numerically by social security number. In the case of securities, except Series G savings bonds, registered in more than one name, information relating thereto can only be retrieved by the name or in some cases social security number of the first-named coowner.

Safeguards: Information is contained in secure buildings, Federal Records Centers, or in areas which are occupied by officers and responsible employees of either the Department who are subject to personnel screening procedures and the Treasury Department Code of Conduct, or by agents of the Department who are required by the Department to maintain proper control over records while in their custody. Additionally, since in most cases, numerous steps are involved in the retrieval process, unauthorized persons would be unable to retrieve information in a meaningful form. Information stored in electronic media is safeguarded by automatic data processing security procedures in addition to physical security measures.

Retention and disposal: Records of holdings are maintained permanently. Forms, documents and other legal papers which constitute the basis for transactions subsequent to original issue are maintained for such time as is necessary to protect the legal rights and interest of the U.S. Government and the persons affected, or otherwise until they are no longer historically significant. Other records are disposed of at varying intervals in accordance with records retention schedules reviewed and approved by the National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration. All records are destroyed by shredding, incineration or maceration. Records in electronic media are electronically erased using accepted techniques.

System manager(s) and address: Commissioner of the Public Debt, 15th St. and New York Ave., N.W. Washington, D.C. 20226.

Notification procedure: Address inquiries to: Privacy Act Request, Assistant Commissioner of the Public Debt, Savings Bond Operations Office, 200 Third Street, Parkersburg, West Virginia 26101, (304) 422-8551. Inquiries should include the full name, social security number, address and security serial number(s), if known.

Record access procedures: Individuals who wish to request access to records relating to them or who wish to request correction of records they believe to be in error should submit such requests pursuant to the procedures set out below in compliance with the applicable regulations (31 CFR Part 1, Subpart C Sections 1.7 & 1.8; 31 CFR Part 323). Requests which do not comply fully with these procedures may result in noncompliance with the request but will be answered to the extent possible.

Requests for access to records: (1) All requests for access to records must be in writing, signed by the individual concerned, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, clearly indicate that the request is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. The Bureau reserves the right to require additional verification of an individual's identity. (2) The request must specify the Bureau system of records within which the desired records are located as well as the categories of records within the system. These categories are set out in the applicable system of records description. (3) In the case of requests for information concerning holdings of securities, the type of security involved (e.g., Series E savings bond, Series H savings bond, savings note, retirement plan bond, etc.) must be specified. Additionally, the request should, to the extent possible, specify the approximate date of issue, serial number(s) and exact form of registration, including social security number and address. Requests which do not furnish all or some of the above information will be complied with to the extent possible but may be subject to the requirement that additional identificatory evidence be furnished. (4) Requests for information concerning records of holdings of securities except Series G savings bonds registered in coownership form must be accompanied by the name and, wherever possible, social security number of the first-named coowner. Requests for information concerning securities registered in beneficiary form must also be accompanied by the name and social security number of the owner thereof and, if made by the beneficiary, must be accompanied by proof of death of the registered owner. (5) Requests for records of holdings or other information concerning a deceased or incapacitated individual should be accompanied by either evidence of the requester's appointment as legal representative of the individual or his estate or by a statement attesting that no such representative has been appointed and giving the nature of the relationship between the requester and the individual.

Requests for correction of records: (1) All requests by an individual for correction of records relating to him should be in writing, be signed by him, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, state that the request is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. (2) The request for correction should specify: (a) the dates of the prior correspondence had with the Bureau concerning the records in question, (b) the specific records alleged to be incorrect, (c) the correction requested, and (d) the reasons therefor, as well as any available evidence in support of the request.

Appeals from an initial denial of a request for correction of records: (1) All appeals from an initial denial of a request for correction of records must be in writing, be signed by the individual involved and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, state that it is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. (2) All appeals must, to be handled under the Privacy Act procedures, be delivered to the address set forth for submission of appeals within 35 days of the individual's receipt of the initial denial of the requested correction. (3) All appeals must specify: (a) the records to which the appeal relates, (b) the date of the initial request made for correction of the records, and (c) the date that initial denial of the request for correction was received. (4) All appeals must also specify the reasons for the requestor's disagreement with the initial denial of correction and should furnish any applicable evidence available in support of his appeal.

Contesting record procedures: See notification and access.

Record source categories: Information on records in this system is furnished by the individuals or their authorized representatives listed in "Categories of Individuals," by issuing agents for securities, or is generated within the system itself.

(4) Claims: Records including correspondence concerning lost, stolen, destroyed or mutilated United States securities (other than savings-type securities) or securities for which the Treasury acts as agent and interest coupons thereon, bonds of indemnity, legal documents supporting claims for relief and records of caveats entered. (5) Inquiries: Records of correspondence with individuals who have requested information concerning United States Treasury securities (other than savings-type securities) or securities for which the Treasury acts as agent.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Second Liberty Bond Act, as amended (40 Stat. 288).

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: Within the Department of the Treasury, the information contained in this system of records is routinely used in connection with the issuance of securities, the payment of interest thereon, processing of claims therefor, responding to inquiries thereon, processing of transactions therein and the redemption and retirement thereof. Users for these purposes are officials, authorized employees and agents of the Department for the purpose of administering the Public Debt of the United States. Information in this system is also routinely furnished to the Internal Revenue Service for use by officials and authorized employees for the purpose of facilitating collection of tax revenues by the United States. In addition to these uses within the Department, records concerning holdings are routinely disclosed outside the Department as follows: (1) To the next-of-kin, voluntary guardian, legal representative or successor in interest of a deceased or incapacitated owner of securities and others entitled in connection with transfer, exchange, distribution or payment thereof; users for this purpose are as described for the purpose of assuring equitable and lawful disposition of securities and/or interest. (2) Information is routinely furnished pertaining to securities reported as lost or stolen to the United States Secret Service for inclusion in the National Crime Information Center of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice and to other Federal agencies; users for this purpose are law enforcement officials, for the purpose of reducing monetary losses of the United States and to aid in law enforcement. (3) Information is routinely disclosed pertaining to holdings of securities and transactions therein to the Department of Justice in connection with lawsuits to which the Bureau is a party; users are law enforcement officials for the purpose of administration of justice. (4) Information concerning holdings of Armed Forces Leave Bonds is routinely furnished to the Veterans Administration in connection with redemption or disposition of these securities. Users of the resultant information furnished by the Veterans Administration are officers and authorized employees of the Bureau, for the purpose of making proper disposition of these bonds. (5) Information regarding records of holdings of securities registered in the names of two or more owners is routinely disclosed to either owner upon his request. (Note: requests for disclosure by owners other than the first-named owner should include the name or social security number of the first-named owner.) (6) Information regarding holdings is routinely disclosed to Members of Congress who inquire on behalf of constituents. (7) For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records in this system are stored in their original paper form and as information in electronic media and on microfilm.

Retrievability: Information can be retrieved alphabetically by name or, in some cases, numerically by social security number. In the case of securities registered in more than one name, which matured prior to January 1, 1973, information relating thereto can only be retrieved by the name or social security number of the first-named owner.

Safeguards: Information is contained in secure buildings, Federal Records Centers, or in areas which are occupied by officers and responsible employees of either the Department who are subject to personnel screening procedures and the Treasury Department Code of Conduct, or by Federal Reserve Banks and Branches as Fiscal Agents. Additionally, since in most cases, numerous steps are involved in the retrieval process, unauthorized persons would be unable to retrieve information in a meaningful form. Information stored in electronic media is safeguarded by automatic data processing security procedures in addition to physical security measures.

Retention and disposal: Records of holdings are maintained permanently. Forms, documents and other legal papers which constitute the basis for transactions subsequent to original issue are maintained for such time as is necessary to protect the legal rights and interests of the U.S. Government and the persons affected or otherwise until they are no longer historically significant. Other records are disposed of at varying intervals in accordance with records retention schedules reviewed and approved by the National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration. All records are destroyed by shredding, incineration or maceration. Records in electronic media are electronically erased using accepted techniques.

System manager(s) and address: Commissioner of the Public Debt, 15th St. and New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226.

Notification procedure: Address inquiries and initial requests for correction of records to: Privacy Act Request, Assistant Commissioner of the Public Debt, 13th and C Streets, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20226, (202) 964-7994. Inquiries should include the full name and social security number of the inquirer.

Record access procedures: Individuals who wish to request access to records relating to them or who wish to request correction of records they believe to be in error should submit such requests pursuant to the procedures set out below in compliance with the applicable regulations (31 CFR Part 1, Subpart C Sections 1.7 and 1.8; 31 CFR Part 323). Requests which do not comply fully with these procedures may result in noncompliance with the request but will be answered to the extent possible.

Requests and access to records: (1) All requests for access to records must be in writing, signed by the individual concerned, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, clearly indicate that the request is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. The Bureau reserves the right to require additional verification of an individual's identity. (2) The request must specify the Bureau system of records within which the desired records are located as well as the categories of records within the system. These categories are set out in the applicable system of records description. (3) In the case of requests for information concerning records of holdings of securities, the type of security involved (e.g., Treasury Note, Armed Forces Leave Bond, Adjusted Service Bond, etc.) must be specified. Additionally, the request should, to the extent possible, specify: the loan and issue thereof, approximate date of issue, denomination, serial number and form of registration, including address. Requests which do not furnish some or all of the latter information will be complied with to the extent possible but may be subject to the requirement that additional identificatory evidence be furnished. (4) Requests for records of holdings of securities which matured prior to January 1, 1973 registered in the name of more than one person must include the name and, wherever possible, social security number of the first-named owner. (5) Requests for records of holdings or other information concerning a deceased or incapacitated individual must be accompanied by either evidence of the requester's appointment as legal representative of the individual or his estate or by a statement attesting that no such representative has been appointed and giving the nature of the relationship between the requester and the individual.

Requests for correction of Records: (1) All requests by an individual for correction of records relating to him should be in writing, be signed by him, and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, state that the request is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. (2) The request for correction should specify: (a) the dates of the prior correspondence had with the Bureau concerning the records in question, (b) the specific records alleged to be incorrect, (c) the correction requested, and (d) the reasons therefor as well as any available evidence in support of the request.

Appeals from an initial denial of a request for correction of records: (1) All appeals from an initial denial of a request for correction of records must be in writing, be signed by the individual involved and, in order for the Privacy Act procedures to apply, state that it is made pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. (2) All appeals must, to be handled under the Privacy Act procedures, be delivered to the address set forth for submission of appeals within 35 days of the individual's receipt of the initial denial of the requested correction. (3) All appeals must specify: (a) the record to which the appeal relates, (b) the date of the initial request made for correction of the records, and (c) the date that initial denial of the request for correction was received. (4) All appeals must also specify the reasons for the requestor's disagreement with the initial denial of correction and should furnish any applicable evidence available in support of his appeal.

Authority for maintenance of the system: The protective authority of the U.S. Secret Service is contained in 18 U.S.C. 3056 and Section 1 of Public Law 90-331. Criminal investigations relating to protection, such as threats or unauthorized entry (18 U.S.C. 871; 18 U.S.C. 1751), are authorized by 18 U.S.C. 3056. The protective and security authority of the Executive Protective Service is contained in 3 U.S.C. 202 and of the Treasury Security Force in Treasury Orders issued by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the provisions of Reorganization Plan Number 26 of 1950.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The routine uses of the records contained in the Protective Information System of the U.S. Secret Service are as follows: (a) Disclosures to those officers and employees of the Secret Service and the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the records in the performance of their duties; (b) Disclosures required in the administration of the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552); (c) Referral to the Department of Justice and other Federal, state and local governmental agencies having a prosecutive function for the use of attorneys, magistrates, and judges; and parole and probation authorities for the purpose of prosecuting, sentencing, and determining the parole and probation status of criminal offenders or suspected criminal offenders; and for civil and other proceedings involving Secret Service and Executive Protective Service protective functions; (d) Referral to personnel of other Federal, state and local law enforcement agencies, foreign and domestic, for the purpose of developing information on subjects involved in Secret Service protective investigations and evaluations and for the purpose of protective intelligence briefings of personnel of other law enforcement and governmental agencies assisting the U.S. Secret Service in the performance of its protective functions; (e) Referral to personnel of Federal, state, and local governmental agencies, foreign and domestic, where such referrals are considered reasonably necessary for the purpose of furthering Secret Service efforts to investigate the activities of those persons considered to be of protective interest; (f) Referral to personnel of Federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies and other governmental agencies, foreign and domestic, where there is a showing of a reasonable need to accomplish a valid enforcement purpose; (g) Referral to personnel of private institutions and to private individuals of identifying information pertaining to actual or suspected criminal offenders or other individuals considered to be of protective interest for the purpose of furthering Secret Service efforts to evaluate the danger such individuals pose to persons protected by that agency; (h) Records maintained in the Protection Information System indicating a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, may be referred to the appropriate agency, whether Federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto; (i) Disclosures in the course of presenting evidence to a court, magistrate or administrative tribunal and disclosures to opposing counsel in the course of discovery proceedings for the purpose of enforcing, or prosecuting a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto; (j) Disclosures to Federal, state or local agencies maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant or other benefit; (k) Disclosures to a Federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter; (l) Disclosures of information relating to criminal and civil proceedings to the news media in accordance with the guidelines contained in 28 C.F.R. 50.2; (m) For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system:

Storage: Records comprising the Protection Information System of the U.S. Secret Service are contained in file jackets located at Headquarters, U.S. Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. or in file jackets located in the offices of various protective units of Secret Service, the Technical Security Division, and in Secret Service field offices geographically dispersed throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, and one foreign country. (see Location Section of this notice and United States Secret Service Appendix A.) Components of the Protection Information System are located in the office of the Executive Protective Service, 1310 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. and in the office of the Treasury Security Force, Main Treasury Building, Washington, D.C. Portions of the indices and information contained in the Protective Information System are programmed into a computer maintained at Headquarters, U.S. Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Retrievability: The Protective Information System is indexed alphabetically by name in the Headquarters, field master, protective units and computerized indices. Access to the physical files containing records is by case number obtained from the alphabetized name indices.

Safeguards: (1) The file jackets and indices containing the records comprising the Protection Information System located at the U.S. Secret Service Headquarters, in the protective units, the Executive Protective Service, the Treasury Security Force, and the Technical Security Division of the Secret Service are secured by alarms and other internal security devices in locked rooms with guards on duty on an around-the-clock basis. Access to the records is available only to employees responsible for record management and operational employees who have a need for such information, each of whom holds a top secret security clearance. 2. The file jackets and the master field indices comprising the Protective Information System in Secret Service field offices are located in locked filing cabinets and in locked rooms when Secret Service employees are not on duty. Access to the system is limited to employees of the Secret Service holding top secret security clearances.

Retention and disposal: The retention schedule for records comprising the Protection Information System is as follows: (1) All judicial case records are retained for a period of twenty years. In cases where checkups are being made or quarterly investigations are conducted in protective intelligence cases, the retention period is computed from the date of the final checkup or quarterly investigation. In the event of a protective intelligence subject's death, the file is destroyed immediately. Otherwise the checkup and quarterly investigative files are maintained for a period of twenty years; (2) All other protective intelligence case records including protective surveys and nonjudicial protective intelligence cases are retained for a period of five years; (3) Administrative records and files on all types of physical protective activities are retained for a period of ten years. (4) Disposal of records contained in the Protective Information System is by burning.

System manager(s) and address: Assistant Director, Office of Protective Research, U.S. Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20223.

Storage: File folders, magnetic tape, punch cards, micro-film lists and forms.

Retrievability: Records are retrieved primarily by name (filed alphabetically by category of records). Secondary identifiers are used to assure accuracy (date of birth, social security number or employee identification number).

Safeguards: Records are stored in lockable cabinets or secure rooms; access is limited to officials who have a need for the information; employees are trained to make only authorized disclosures.

Retention and disposal: Most personnel type records are retained for 30 days after termination at which time they are transferred to the Civil Service Commission or destroyed. Some records are retained for varying periods of time. Individuals wishing more detailed information should write to the Director, Public Affairs, 490 L'Enfant Plaza, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20219.

System manager(s) and address: Deputy Comptroller for Administration, 490 L'Enfant Plaza, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20219.

Notification procedure: Individuals wishing to be notified if they are named in this system of records, or gain access to records maintained in this system must submit a written request containing the following elements: (1) Identify the record system; (2) Identify the category and type of records sought; (3) Indicate the location of the Comptroller of the Currency office where last employed or where application for employment was made; (4) Provide at least two secondary identifications (date of birth, employee identification number, dates of employment or similar information).

Record access procedures: Director, Public Affairs, 490 L'Enfant Plaza, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20219.

Contesting record procedures: Submit requests to the Director, Public Affairs at the above address.

Record source categories: The information contained in these records were provided or verified by the subject of the record, employers, co-workers, friends, neighbors and associates listed as references, financial and educational institutions.

Treasury/USSBD 00.001

System name: Savings Bonds Employee Records System—Treasury/USSBD.

System location: Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, 1111 20th Street, N W., Washington, D.C. 20226.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Employees of USSBD.

Categories of records in the system: Appeal and Grievance Records, Applicant Supply Files, Case Actions, Employee Earning Statements, Employee Financial Statements, Equal Employment Opportunity Files, Incentive Awards and Reports, Itineraries, Locator Cards, Medical Records, Merit Promotion, Motor Vehicle Records, Payroll, Performance Evaluation, Personal Investigation, Position Control, Reduction in Force File, Register of Separation and Transfer, Retirement Cards, Time and Attendance Records, Tort Claims, Training Records and Reports, Travel Vouchers.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Treasury Department Order No. 13 established the Division of Savings Bonds under the office of the Fiscal Assistant Secretary, April 1941.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The Personnel Office of the Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, maintains in its system of records detailed information pertaining to each of the specific categories listed in Categories of Individuals. Routine use of the various files enables Personnel to have ready access to applicants for hiring purposes, placement and to aid in assessing the need for employee training and promotion. Necessary information about an individual employee is also provided to other Federal Personnel Offices when a Division employee is under consideration for a position in another Federal Agency. Also, other records carry accrual information that permits annual reviews on an employee's performance. All information is used solely for the purpose for which it was collected which serves as a general internal source bank. The Budget and Fiscal section of the Savings Bonds Division maintains in its record system data pertaining to each of the identifiable categories listed in Categories of Individuals. This information permits the Section to make employee payroll reconciliations, budget forecasts, check and bond issuance verifications, internal audits, supply retirement records to the Civil Service Commission, prepare earning statements and document payments of employee travel claims. Disclosures may be made to a Congressional Office from the record of an individual in response to an inquiry from the Congressional Office made at the request of that individual. For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system: All records in Personnel, with the exception of card files, are stored in metal correspondence files, indexed by individual names and numbers. Files are maintained in separate offices according to the nature or content of data. Files are accessible to Personnel employees and are locked at the close of each day. Records pertaining to personal historical data are maintained for two years and are then sent to the Federal Records Center. The records of a less important nature are destroyed after the two-year period. Storage of financial information is maintained on computer printouts supplied by Government Financial Operations. Individual retirement cards, time and attendance reports and travel vouchers of employees are stored in separate files and are accessible by name and social security number. All payroll and time and attendance records are retained between audit periods (normally two years) and then destroyed by shredding, retirement cards go to the gaining agency or to the Civil Service Commission. Travel vouchers are maintained on file for three years after audit and then sent to the Federal Records Center.

System manager(s) and address: Director of Administration, Department of the Treasury, Savings Bonds Division, 1111 20th Street, N W., Washington, D.C. 20226.

Notification procedure: Records that are housed by the Savings Bonds Division are not of a nature that would warrant strict guidelines for accessibility. An individual may request access to his record or any information pertaining to him by merely notifying the office or officer in charge. The individual, however, must be under the supervision of a Savings Bonds officer during the entire time he has this information in his possession.

Record access procedures: See System Manager and Notification above.

Contesting record procedures: See System manager and Notification above.

Record source categories: Data accumulated in the record system at Savings Bonds are gathered from the individual and/or from sources directly connected with the employee's appointment.

Systems exempted from certain provisions of the act: Portion of this system are exempted elsewhere in the Federal Register.

Treasury/USSBD 00.002

System name: Savings Bonds Sales Promotion/Volunteer Record System—Treasury/USSBD.

System location: Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, 1111 20th Street, N W., Washington, D.C. 20226; and/or Regional and Branch Offices.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Bond Tellers, Campaign Managers, Campaign Nominees, Committee Volunteer lists and Contacts, General Correspondence, Geographical Chairmen, Governmental Biographical Sketches, Honorary Chairmen, Individual Volunteer Lists, Mailing Lists—General and Labor, Major Corporation Executives, National Panel of Public Relations.

Categories of records in the system: Administrative lists and related detail.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Treasury Department Order No. 13 established the Division of Savings Bonds under the office of the Fiscal Assistant Secretary, April 1941.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The Sales Office of the Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, maintains a nation-wide volunteer sales force that promotes the sale of Savings Bonds. The listing in Category of Individuals describes the type of data that supports this effort. This information provides a means by which the Sales Division may review plans and follow progress of individuals in their sale and promotion of Savings Bonds, supplies, volunteer lists and bios for recruiting, appointing and retiring volunteer leaders. Lists also provide a means of supplying volunteers with Savings Bonds program materials and information, invitations to meetings, special bulletins, letters of progress, sales reports and newsletters. Lists are available only for Savings Bonds purposes. For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system: Mailing lists are accessible to employees and stored on addressograph plates. Other correspondence and materials are filed in the regular correspondence file cabinets and permanently retained.

System manager(s) and address: Deputy National Director, Department of the Treasury, Savings Bonds Division, 1111 20th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226.

Notification procedure: Records that are housed by the Savings Bonds Division are not of a nature that would warrant strict guidelines for accessibility. An individual may request access to his record or any information pertaining to him by merely notifying the office or officer in charge. The individual, however, must be under the supervision of a Savings Bonds officer during the entire time he has this information in his possession.

Record access procedures: See System Manager and Notification above.

Contesting record procedures: See System Manager and Notification above.

Record source categories: Data accumulated in the record system at Savings Bonds are gathered from the individual and/or from sources directly connected with the volunteer's appointment.

Treasury/USSBD 00.003

System name: Savings Bonds Sales Record System—Treasury/USSBD.

System location: Savings Bonds Division, Department of the Treasury, 1111 20th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226, and/or Regional Offices.

Categories of individuals covered by the system: Blue Ribbon Target Cards, Blue Ribbon Target Status Control Sheets, Field Call Reports, Itineraries, Net Saver Reports, Payroll Savings Reporting Procedures Forms, Progress Summaries, Time and Attendance Records, Training Reports, Work Plans, State—County Chairmen, State and Volunteer Fund Lists, "Take stock in America" Records, Telephone calls, Volunteer Bio's.

Categories of records in the system: Routine lists and administrative details associated with sales.

Authority for maintenance of the system: Treasury Department Order No. 13 established the Division of Savings Bonds under the office of the Fiscal Assistant Secretary, April 1941.

Routine uses of records maintained in the system, including categories of users and the purposes of such uses: The Sales unit of the Savings Bonds Division houses records of individual sales plans, program plans and regional reports for the purpose of coordinating plans for smoother operation of field work. Final plans are disseminated to field and/or volunteer offices for implementation. For additional routine uses see Appendix AA.

Policies and practices for storing, retrieving, accessing, retaining, and disposing of records in the system: Records of this nature are filed in large notebooks and are indexed according to individual names, regions, areas and states. Notebooks are placed on shelves and do not warrant tight security. High priority records are kept for long periods as references, others are destroyed after a two year period.

System manager(s) and address: Director of Sales, Department of the Treasury, Savings Bonds Division, 1111 20th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226.

Notification procedure: Records that are housed by the Savings Bonds Division are not of a nature that would warrant strict guidelines for accessibility. An individual may request access to his record or any information pertaining to him by merely notifying the office or officer in charge. The individual, however, must be under the supervision of a Savings Bonds officer during the entire time he has this information in his possession.

Record access procedures: See Notification and System Manager.

Contesting record procedures: See Notification and System Manager.

Record source categories: Data accumulated in the sales record system at Savings Bonds are gathered from the individual and/or from sources directly connected with the employee's appointment.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY APPENDIX

Additional Routine Uses

In the event that a system of records maintained by this agency to carry out its functions indicates a violation or potential violation of law, whether civil, criminal or regulatory in nature, and whether arising by general statute or particular program statute, or by regulation, rule or order issued pursuant thereto, the relevant records in the system of records may be referred, as a routine use, to the appropriate agency, whether federal, state, local or foreign, charged with the responsibility of investigating or prosecuting such violation or charged with enforcing or implementing the statute, or rule, regulation or order issued pursuant thereto.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed as a "routine use" to a federal, state or local agency maintaining civil, criminal or other relevant enforcement information or other pertinent information, such as current licenses, if necessary to obtain information relevant to an agency decision concerning the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of license, grant or other benefit, provided that disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which such record was collected.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed as a routine use to a federal agency, in response to its request, in connection with the hiring or retention of an employee, the issuance of a security clearance, the reporting of an investigation of an employee, the letting of a contract, or the issuance of a license, grant, or other benefit by the requesting agency, to the extent that the information is relevant and necessary to the requesting agency's decision on the matter, provided that disclosure is compatible with the purpose for which such record was collected.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed in response to a court subpoena, to appropriate parties engaged in litigation or in preparation of possible litigation such as potential witnesses for the purpose of securing their testimony when necessary to courts, magistrates or administrative tribunals, to parties and their attorneys for the purpose of proceeding with litigation or settlement of disputes, to individuals seeking information by using established discovery procedures, whether in connection with civil, criminal, or regulatory proceedings.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions which relates to civil and criminal proceedings may be disclosed to the news media in accordance with guidelines contained in 28 C.F.R. 50.2.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed to foreign governments in accordance with formal or informal international agreements.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed to unions recognized under E.O. 11491 when required or relevant to union's duties as exclusive representative under E.O. 11491.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed to third parties during the course of an investigation to the extent necessary to obtain information pertinent to the investigation.

A record maintained by this agency to carry out its functions may be disclosed to a congressional office in response to an inquiry from the congressional office made at the request of the individual to whom the record pertains.

(f) "Statistical record" means a record in a system of records maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only and not used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual, except as provided by the Census Act, 13 U.S.C. 8.

(g) "Routine use" means, with respect to the disclosure of a record, the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected, as described in a notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO REQUESTS BY INDIVIDUALS FOR INFORMATION, ACCESS OR AMENDMENT OF RECORDS MAINTAINED ABOUT THEM

PRESENTATION OF REQUESTS

§ 9.52 Types of requests.

(a) Individuals may make the following requests respecting records about themselves maintained by NRC in a system of records subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974:

(1) Request a determination whether a record about the individual is contained in a system of records.

(2) Request access to a record about the individual. Access requests may include requests to review the record and to have a copy made of all or any portion thereof in a form comprehensible to the individual.

(3) Request correction or amendment of a record about the individual.

(b) Requests for accounting of disclosures. Individuals may, at any time, request an accounting by NRC of disclosures to any other person or Government agency of any record about themselves contained in a system of records controlled by NRC, except the following: (1) Disclosures made pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552; (2) disclosures made within the Nuclear Regulatory Commission; (3) disclosures made to another Government agency or instrumentality for an authorized law enforcement activity pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(7); (4) disclosures expressly exempted by NRC regulations from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k).

§ 9.53 Requests: how and where presented.

(a) Requests may be made in person or in writing. Assistance regarding requests or other matters relating to the Privacy Act of 1974 may be obtained by writing to the Director, Office of Administration, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555. Requests relating to records in multiple systems of records should be made to the Director, Office of Administration, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555. The Director, or his designee, shall assist the requestor in identifying his request more precisely and shall be responsible for forwarding the request to the appropriate system manager.

(b) All written requests shall be made to the Director, Office of Administration, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, and should clearly state on the envelope and in the letter, as appropriate: "Privacy Act Request," "Privacy Act Disclosure Accounting Request," "Privacy Act Correction Request." A request that is not so marked will be deemed not to have been received by the NRC until it is actually received by the Director, Office of Administration.

(c) Requests may be made in person during official hours at the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission office where the record is located, as listed in the "Notice of System of Records" for the system in which the record is contained.

§ 9.54 Verification of identity of individuals making requests.

(a) Identification requirements in paragraphs (a) (1) and (2) of this section are applicable to any individual who makes requests respecting records about himself, except that no verification of identity shall be required if the records requested are available to the public under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act. With respect to certain sensitive records, additional requirements for verification of identity stated in the appropriate published "Notice of System of Records" may be imposed.

(1) Written requests. An individual making a written request respecting a record about himself may establish his identity by a signature, address, date of birth, employee identification number if any, and one other item of identification such as a photocopy of a driver's license or other document.

(2) Requests in person. An individual making a request in person respecting a record about himself may establish his identity by the presentation of a single document bearing a photograph (such as a passport or identification badge) or by the presentation of two items of identification which do not bear a photograph but do bear a name, address and signature (such as a driver's license or credit card).

(b) Inability to provide requisite documentation of identity. An individual making a request in person or in writing respecting a record about himself who cannot provide the necessary documentation of identity may provide a notarized statement, swearing or affirming to his identity and to the fact that he understands that penalties for false statements may be imposed pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 1001, and that penalties for obtaining a record concerning an individual under false pretenses may be imposed pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3). Forms for such notarized statements may be obtained on request from the Director, Office of Administration, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555.

(c) Verification of parentage or guardianship. In addition to establishing the identity of the minor, or other individual he represents as required in paragraph (a) of this section, the parent or legal guardian of a minor or of an individual judicially determined to be incompetent shall establish his status as parent or guardian by furnishing a copy of a birth certificate of the minor showing parentage or a copy of a court order establishing guardianship.

§ 9.55 Specification of records.

(a)(1) Requests relating to records shall, insofar as practicable, specify the nature of the record sought, the approximate dates covered by the record, the system of records in which the record is thought to be included and the system manager having custody of the record system as shown in the annual compilation, "Notices of Records Systems", published by the General Services Administration. Requests shall, in addition, comply with any additional specification requirements contained in the published "Notice of System of Records" for that system.

(2) Requests for correction or amendment of records shall, in addition, specify the particular record involved, state the nature of the correction or amendment sought and furnish justification for the correction or amendment.

(b) Requests which do not contain information sufficient to identify the record requested will be returned promptly to the requestor, with a notice indicating what information is lacking. Individuals making requests in person will be informed of any deficiency in the specification of records at the time the request is made. Individuals making requests in writing will be notified of any such deficiency when their requests are acknowledged.

§ 9.56 Accompanying persons.

An individual requesting access to records about himself may be accompanied by another individual of his own choosing. Both the individual requesting access and the individual accompanying him shall sign the required form indicating that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is authorized to discuss the contents of the subject record in the presence of both individuals.

NRC PROCEDURES FOR PROCESSING REQUESTS

§ 9.60 Acknowledgment of requests.

(a) Written requests by individuals to verify the existence of, obtain access to or correct or amend records about themselves maintained by NRC in a system of records subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, shall be acknowledged in writing by the Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, within ten working days after date of actual receipt. The acknowledgment shall advise the requester if any additional information is needed to process the request. Wherever practicable, the acknowledgment shall notify the individual whether his request to obtain access to the record or to correct or amend the record has been granted or denied.

(b) When an individual requests access to records or permission to correct or amend records in person, every effort will be made to make an immediate determination as to whether access or correction or amendment should be granted. If an immediate determination cannot be made, the request will be processed in the same manner as a written request. Records will be made available for immediate inspection whenever possible.

§ 9.61 Procedures for processing requests for records exempt in whole or in part.

(a) When an individual requests information concerning the existence of, or access to, records about himself which have been compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding in either a court or before an administrative tribunal, the NRC shall advise the individual only that no record available to him pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974 has been identified.

(b) Specific exemptions pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k). Individual requests for access to records which have been exempted from access pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) and § 9.95 shall be processed as follows:

(1) Information classified pursuant to Executive Order 11652 and exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(k)(1). Requested information classified by NRC will be reviewed by the responsible official of the NRC to determine whether it continues to warrant classification under the criteria of sections 1 and 5 (B), (C), (D), and (E) of Executive Order 11652. Information which no longer warrants classification under these criteria shall be declassified and made available to the individual. If the requested information has been classified by another agency, the responsible official of the NRC will request the classifying agency to review the information to ascertain if classification is still warranted. If the information continues to warrant classification, the individual shall be advised that the information sought is classified, that it has been reviewed and continues to warrant classification, and that it has been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1).

(2) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(k)(2). Requests shall be responded to in the manner provided in paragraph (a) of this section unless a review of the information indicates that the information has been used or is being used to deny the individual any right, privilege or benefit for which he is eligible or to which he would otherwise be entitled under Federal law. In that event, the individual shall be advised of the existence of the information and shall be provided the information except to the extent it would reveal the identity of a confidential source. Information that would reveal the identity of a confidential source shall be extracted or summarized in a manner which protects the source and the summary or extract shall be provided to the requesting individual.

(3) Material within a system of records required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records and exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(4). The exempted information requested will be reviewed by the responsible official of the NRC to determine whether it continues to warrant exemption. Information which no longer warrants exemption shall be made available to the individual. If the information continues to warrant exemption, the individual shall be advised that the information sought is exempt from disclosure, that it has been reviewed and continues to warrant exemption, and that it has been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(4).

(4) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts, or access to classified information and exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Information exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) shall be made available to an individual upon request except to the extent that the information would reveal the identity of a confidential source. Material that would reveal the identity of a confidential source shall be extracted or summarized in a manner which protects the source and the summary or extract shall be provided to the requesting individual.

(5) Testing or examination material exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6). Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) shall not be made available to an individual if disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process but may be made available if no possibility of such compromise exists.

§ 9.62 Special procedures.

(a) Records under the control of another Government agency. (1) Medical records. Requests received by NRC pertaining to medical records under the control of the U.S. Public Health Service or another Government agency will either be referred to the appropriate agency or returned to the requestor with the name of the controlling Government agency, if known, within ten working days after receipt by NRC. NRC will inform the requestor of any referral of his request to another Government agency at the time the referral is made.

(2) Nonmedical records. Requests received by NRC pertaining to nonmedical records under the control of another Government agency will be returned to the requestor with the name of the controlling Government agency, if known, within ten working days after receipt by NRC.

DETERMINATION AND APPEALS

§ 9.65 Access determinations; appeals.

(a) Initial determinations. The Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, with the advice of the system manager having control of the record to which access is requested, shall determine whether access to the record is available under the Privacy Act and notify the requesting individual in person or in writing of that determination. Unless the request presents unusual difficulties or involves extensive numbers of records, individuals shall be notified of determinations to grant or deny access within 30 working days after receipt of the request.

(1) Notices granting access shall inform the individual when and where the requested record may be seen, how copies may be obtained, and of any fees or anticipated charges which may be incurred pursuant to § 9.85 of this subpart.

(2) Notices denying access shall state the reasons for the denial, and advise the individual that he may appeal the denial to the Executive Director for Operations in accordance with the procedures set forth in this section.

(b) Appeals from denials of access. If an individual has been denied access to a record the individual may request a final review and determination of his request by the Executive Director for Operations. A request for final review of an initial determination should be filed within 60 days of the receipt of the initial determination, shall be in writing, shall be addressed to the Executive Director for Operations, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, and should be clearly marked on the envelope and in the letter "Privacy Act Appeal—Denial of Access." A request that is not so marked will be deemed not to have been received by the NRC until it is actually received by the Executive Director for Operations.

(c) Final determinations. (1) The Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, shall make a final determination within 30 working days of receipt of the request for final review, unless he extends the time for good cause shown such as the need to obtain additional information, the volume of records involved or the complexity of the issue. The extention of time shall not exceed 30 additional working days. The requestor shall be advised in advance of any extension of time and of the reasons therefor.

(2) If the Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, determines that access was properly denied because the information requested has been exempted from disclosure, he shall undertake a review of the exemption to determine whether the information should continue to be exempt from disclosure. The Executive Director for Operations or his designee, shall notify the individual in writing of his final determination to grant or deny the request for access. Notices denying access shall state the reasons therefor and shall advise the individual of his right to judicial review pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g).

§ 9.66 Determinations authorizing or denying correction of records; appeals.

(a) Initial determinations. (1) The Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, with the advice of the system manager having control of the record, shall determine whether to authorize or refuse correction or amendment of a record. Unless the request presents unusual difficulties or involves extensive numbers of records, individuals shall be notified of determinations to authorize or refuse correction or amendment of a record within 30 working days after receipt of the request. In making this determination, the Director, or his designee, shall be guided by the following standards:

(i) Records shall contain only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish an NRC function required to be accomplished by statute or by executive order of the President;

(ii) Records used by NRC in making any determination about any individual shall be as accurate, relevant, current, and complete as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination;

(iii) No record shall describe how any individual has exercised rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless such record is expressly authorized by statute or by the individual about whom the record is maintained, or is pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(2) If correction or amendment of a record is authorized, the Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, shall correct or amend the record, notify the requesting individual in writing that the correction or amendment has been made and provide the individual with a courtesy copy of the corrected record.

(3) If correction or amendment of a record is refused, the Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, shall notify the requesting individual in writing of the refusal and the reasons therefor, and shall advise the individual of his right to request a review of the refusal by the Executive Director for Operations in accordance with the procedures set forth in this section.

(b) Appeals from initial adverse determinations. If an individual's request to amend or correct a record has been denied, in whole or in part, the individual may request a final review and determination of his request by the Executive Director for Operations. A request for final review of an initial determination should be filed within 60 days of the receipt of the initial determination, shall be in writing, shall be addressed to the Executive Director for Operations, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, and should be clearly marked on the envelope and in the letter "Privacy Act Correction Appeal." An appeal that is not so marked will be deemed not to have been received by the NRC until it is actually received by the Executive Director for Operations. Requests for final review shall set forth the specific item of information sought to be corrected or amended and should include, where appropriate, documents supporting the correction or amendment.

(c) Final determinations. (1) The Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, shall make a final determination within 30 working days of receipt of the request for final review unless, for good cause shown such as the need to obtain additional information, the volume of records involved or the complexity of the issue, he extends the time for making the final determination. The extension of time shall not exceed 30 additional working days. The requestor shall be advised in advance of any extension of time and the reasons therefor.

(2) If the Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, makes a final determination that an amendment or correction of the record is warranted on the facts, he shall notify the Director, Office of Administration, to correct or amend the record pursuant to the procedures in § 9.66(a)(2).

(3) If the Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, makes a final determination that an amendment or correction of the record is not warranted on the facts, he shall notify the individual in writing of his refusal to authorize correction or amendment of the record in whole or in part, and of the reasons therefor, and shall advise the individual of his right to provide a "Statement of Disagreement" for the record and of his right to judicial review pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g).

§ 9.67 Statements of disagreement.

(a) Written "Statements of Disagreement" may be furnished by the individual within 30 working days of the date of receipt of the final adverse determination of the Executive Director for Operations. "Statements of Disagreement" shall be addressed to the Executive Director for Operations, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, and should be clearly marked on the statement and on the envelope "Privacy Act Statement of Disagreement".

(b) The Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, shall be responsible for ensuring that: (1) The "Statement of Disagreement" is included in the system or systems of records in which the disputed item of information is maintained; and (2) the original record is marked to indicate the information disputed, the existence of a "Statement of Disagreement", and the location of "Statement of Disagreement" within the system of records.

§ 9.68 NRC Statements of Explanation.

The Executive Director for Operations, or his designee, may, if he deems it appropriate, prepare a concise statement of the reasons why the requested amendments or corrections were not made. Any NRC "Statement of Explanation" shall be included in the system of records in the same manner as the "Statement of Disagreement". Courtesy copies of the NRC statement and of the notation of dispute as marked on the original record shall be furnished to the individual who requested correction or amendment of the record.

§ 9.69 Notices of correction or dispute.

(a) When a record has been corrected upon request or when a "Statement of Disagreement" has been filed, the Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, shall, within 30 working days thereof, advise all prior recipients of the affected record whose identity can be determined pursuant to an accounting of disclosures required by the Privacy Act or any other accounting previously made, of the correction or of the filing of the "Statement of Disagreement".

(b) Any disclosure of disputed information occurring after a "Statement of Disagreement" has been filed shall clearly identify the specific information disputed and be accompanied by a copy of the "Statement of Disagreement" and a copy of any NRC "Statement of Explanation".

DISCLOSURE TO OTHERS OF RECORDS ABOUT INDIVIDUALS

§ 9.80 Disclosure of record to persons other than the individual to whom it pertains.

(a) NRC Commissioners and NRC personnel shall not disclose any record which is contained in a system of records maintained by NRC by any means of communication to any person, or to another Government agency, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the record pertains, unless disclosure of the record is:

(1) To NRC Commissioners and NRC personnel who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties;

(2) Required under 5 U.S.C. 552;

(3) For a routine use published in the FEDERAL REGISTER;

(4) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity pursuant to the provisions of Title 13 of the United States Code;

(5) To a recipient who has provided the agency with advance adequate written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record and the record is transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable. The advance written statement of assurance shall (i) state the purpose for which the record is requested, and (ii) certify that the record will be used only for statistical purposes. Prior to release for statistical purposes in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph, the record shall be stripped of all personally identifying information and reviewed to ensure that the identity of any individual cannot reasonably be determined by combining two or more statistical records;

(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or to the Administrator of General Services or his designee for evaluation to determine whether the record has such value;

(7) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the NRC specifying the particular portion of the record desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought. A record may be disclosed to a law enforcement agency at the initiative of the NRC if criminal conduct is suspected, provided that such disclosure has been established as a routine use by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, and the instance of misconduct is directly related to the purpose for which the record is maintained;

(8) To any person upon a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of any individual;

(9) To either House of Congress or, to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, to any committee or subcommittee thereof or to any joint committee of the Congress or to any subcommittee of such joint committee;

(10) To the Comptroller General, or any of his authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office; or

(11) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

§ 9.81 Notices of subpoenas.

When records concerning an individual are subpoenaed or otherwise disclosed pursuant to court order, the NRC officer or employee served with the subpoena shall be responsible for assuring that the individual is notified of the disclosure within five days after such subpoena or other order becomes a matter of public record. The notice shall be mailed to the last known address of the individual and shall contain the following information: (1) The date the subpoena is returnable; (2) the court in which it is returnable; (3) the name and number of the case or proceeding; and (4) the nature of the information sought.

§ 9.82 Notices of emergency disclosures.

When information concerning an individual has been disclosed to any person under compelling circumstances affecting health or safety, the NRC officer or employee who made or authorized the disclosure shall notify the individual at his last known address within five days of the disclosure. The notice shall contain the following information: (a) The nature of the information disclosed; (b) the person or agency to whom the information was disclosed; (c) the date of the disclosure; and (d) the compelling circumstances justifying the disclosure.

§ 9.85 Fees.

(a) When charged. Fees shall not be charged for search for or review of records requested pursuant to this subpart or for making copies or extracts of records in order to grant access to records and make them available for review. Fees established pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 483a and 5 U.S.C. 552a(f)(5) shall be charged according to the schedule contained in paragraph (b) of this section for actual copies of records requested by individuals pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974, unless the Director, Office of Administration, or his designee, waives the fee because of the inability of the individual to pay. Fees shall not be charged where they would amount, in the aggregate, to less than $3.

(b) Schedule of fees. Fees may only be assessed for reproduction charges for actual copies of records requested by individuals pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974 in accordance with the following schedule:

(1) Record sizes up to 8½ x 14 inches made on office copying machines—$0.10 per page copy.

(2) Record sizes greater than 8½ x 14 inches—$0.10 for each 8½ x 14 inch unit of fraction thereof per page copy.

(3) Microfiche—8½ x 11 inches—$0.15 per page copy.

(4) The charge for reproducing records other than those specified above will be computed on the basis of NRC's direct costs.

(c) Notice of anticipated charges. When it is anticipated that fees chargeable under this section will amount to more than $3, and the requestor has not indicated in advance his willingness to pay fees as high as are anticipated, the requestor shall be notified of the amount of the anticipated cost before copies are made. The notification shall offer the requestor the opportunity to confer with NRC personnel with the object of reformulating the request to meet the requestor's needs at lower cost.

(d) Form and place of payment. Fee payments shall be by check, draft or money order payable to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission. No employee of NRC is authorized to accept payment of fees in cash.

(e) Advance deposit. Where the anticipated fee chargeable under this section excees $25, an advance deposit of 25% of the anticipated fee or $25, whichever is greater, may be required. Where a requestor has previously failed to pay a fee under this section, an advance deposit of the full amount of the anticipated fee may be required.

ENFORCEMENT

§ 9.90 Violations.

(a) An injunction or other court order may be obtained pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1-3) to compel NRC to permit an individual to review, amend or copy a record pertaining to him, or to be accompanied by someone of his own choosing when he reviews his record. A court order may be obtained for the payment of a civil penalty imposed pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(4) if NRC intentionally or willfully fails to maintain a record accurately, or fails to comply with any provision of 5 U.S.C. 552a, or any provision of this subpart, if such failure results in an adverse determination or has an adverse effect on an individual. Court costs and attorney's fees may be awarded in civil actions.

(b) Any officer or employee of NRC who willfully maintains a system of records without meeting the notice requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4), or who willfully discloses information knowing such disclosure to be prohibited by 5 U.S.C. 552a or by any rules or regulations issued thereunder, may be guilty of a criminal misdemeanor and upon conviction may be fined up to $5000. Any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from NRC under false pretenses may be convicted of a criminal misdemeanor and upon conviction may be fined up to $5000.

EXEMPTIONS

§ 9.95 Specific exemptions.

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k), portions of the following NRC systems of records are exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(3); (d); (e)(1); (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f) and are subject to the provisions of § 9.61 of this part:

AUTHORITY: The provisions of this subpart C of Part 1 issued under 5 U.S.C. 552a.

§ 1.20 Purpose and scope of regulations.

The regulations in this subpart are issued to implement the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, (5 U.S.C. 552a). The regulations relate to all records maintained by the Department of the Treasury which are identifiable by individual name or identifier and all systems of such records from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. They do not relate to those personnel records of Government employees, which are under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission, to the extent such records are subject to regulations issued by such Commission. The regulations apply to all constituent units of the Deparement of the Treasury. Any reference in this subpart to the Department or its officials, employees, or records shall be deemed to refer also to the constituent units or their officials, employees, or records. The regulations set forth the requirements applicable to Department of the Treasury employees maintaining, collecting, using or disseminating records pertaining to individuals. They also set forth the procedures by which individuals may request notification of whether the Department of the Treasury maintains or has disclosed a record pertaining to them or may seek access to such records maintained in any nonexempt system of records, request amendment of such records, and appeal any initial adverse determination of any such request. For the convenience of interested persons, the constituent units of the Department of the Treasury may reprint these regulations in their entirety (less any appendices not applicable to the unit in question) in those titles of the Code of Federal Regulations which normally contain regulations applicable to such constituent units. In connection with such republication and at other appropriate times, constituent units may issue supplementary regulations applicable only to the constituent unit in question, which are consistent with these regulations. In the event of any actual or apparent inconsistency, these Departmental regulations shall govern. Persons interested in the records of a particular constituent unit should therefore, also consult the Code of Federal Regulations for any rules or regulations promulgated specifically with respect to that constituent unit (see Appendices to this subpart for cross references). The head of each unit is hereby also authorized to substitute other appropriate officials for those designated and correct addresses specified in the appendix to this subpart applicable to his unit. The constituent units of the Department of the Treasury for the purposes of this subpart are:

(a) The Office of the Secretary of the Treasury, which includes the offices of:

(1) The Secretary, including immediate staff.

(2) The Deputy Secretary, including immediate staff.

(3) The Under Secretary for Monetary Affairs, including immediate staff;

(4) The Under Secretary, including immediate staff.

(5) The General Counsel and the Legal Division, except legal counsel to the officer and offices listed in paragraph (a) (6) of this section and the constituent units listed in paragraphs (b) through (e) and (h) through (k) of this section;

(6) The Assistant Secretary (Tax Policy), including immediate staff and all offices reporting to him;

(7) The Assistant Secretary (International Affairs) and all offices reporting to him, including immediate staff;

(8) The Assistant Secretary (Trade, Energy and Financial Resources Policy Coordination) and all offices reporting to him, including immediate staff.

(9) The Assistant Secretary (Economic Policy) and all other offices reporting to him, including immediate staff.

(10) The Fiscal Assistant Secretary, including immediate staff;

(11) The Assistant Secretary (Administration) and all offices reporting to him, including immediate staff;

(12) The Assistant Secretary (Legislative Affairs), including immediate staff;

(13) The Assistant Secretary (Enforcement, Operations and Tariff Affairs), including immediate staff, and the Offices of Law Enforcement, including Interpol (National Central Bureau), Operations, Tariff Affairs and Foreign Assets Control reporting to him.

(14) The Special Assistant to the Secretary (Public Affairs), including immediate staff.

(15) The Special Assistant to the Secretary (Debt Management) and the offices reporting to him, including immediate staff.

(16) The Special Assistant to the Secretary (National Security), including immediate staff.

(17) The Treasurer of the United States, including immediate staff;

(18) The Director of Practice, including immediate staff; and

(19) Persons concerned with the completion of actions under the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, as amended.

(b) The Internal Revenue Service;

(c) The United States Customs Service;

(d) The United States Secret Service;

(e) The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

(f) The Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

(g) The Bureau of Government Financial Operations;

(h) The Bureau of the Mint;

(i) The Bureau of the Public Debt;

(j) The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency;

(k) The United States Savings Bond Division; and

(l) The Consolidated Federal Law Enforcement Training Center.

For purposes of this subpart, the office of the legal counsel for the constituent units listed in Paragraphs (b), (c), (d), (e), (h), (i), (j), and (k) of this section are to be considered a part of such constituent unit. Any office, which is now in existence or may hereafter be established, which is not specifically listed or known to be a constituent of any of those listed above, shall be deemed a part of the Office of the Secretary for the purpose of these regulations.

§ 1.21 Definitions.

(a) The term "agency" means agency as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552(e);

(b) The term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence;

(c) The term "maintain" includes maintain, collect, use, or disseminate;

(d) The term "record" means any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by the Department of the Treasury or any constituent unit thereof, including, but not limited to, his education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains his name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph;

(e) The term "system of records" means a group of any records under the control of the Department of the Treasury or any constituent unit thereof from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual;

(f) The term "statistical record" means a record in a system of records maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only and not used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual, except as provided by 13 U.S.C. 8.

(g) The term "routine use" means with respect to the disclosure of a record, the use of such record for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which it was collected;

(h) The term "constituent unit" means a bureau or office of the Department of the Treasury as set forth in section 1.20 and in the appendices to these regulations. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)).

§ 1.22 Requirements relating to systems of records.

(a) In general. Subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) and section 1.23(c) of this subpart, each constituent unit shall in conformance with 5 U.S.C. 552a,—

(1) Maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by statute or by executive order of the President (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1)), and

(2) Collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's rights, benefits, and privileges under Federal programs (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(2)).

(b) Requests for information from individuals. Subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and section 1.23(c)(1) of this subpart, each constituent unit of the Treasury shall inform each individual whom it asks to supply information, on the form which it uses to collect the information or on a separate form that can be retained by the individual—

(1) The authority (whether granted by statute, or by executive order of the President) which authorizes the solicitation of the information and whether disclosure of such information is mandatory or voluntary;

(2) The principal purpose or purposes for which the information is intended to be used;

(3) The routine uses which may be made of the information, as published pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(D), and

(4) The effects on such individual, if any, of not providing all or any part of the requested information. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(3)).

(c) Report on new systems. Each constituent unit of the Treasury shall provide adequate advance notice to Congress and the Office of Management and Budget through the Legislation Section, Office of the General Counsel of any proposal to establish or alter any system of records in order to permit an evaluation of the probable or potential effect of such proposal on the privacy and other personal or property rights of individuals or the disclosure of information relating to such individuals, and its effect on the preservation of the constitutional principles of federalism and separation of powers. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(o)).

(d) Accurate and secure maintenance of records. Each constituent unit shall—

(1) Subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and section 1.23(c)(1) of this subpart, maintain all records which are used in making any determination about any individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination (see 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5));

(2) Prior to disseminating any record about an individual to any person other than an agency, unless the dissemination is made pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552 (see 31 CFR Part 1, Subpart A), make reasonable efforts to assure that such records are accurate, complete, timely, and relevant for Department of the Treasury purposes. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(6)), and

(3) Establish appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to insure the security and confidentiality of records and to protect against any anticipated threats or hazards to their security or integrity which could result in substantial harm, embarrassment, inconvenience, or unfairness to any individual on whom information is maintained. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(10)).

(i) System managers, with the approval of the head of their offices within a constituent unit, shall establish administrative and physical controls, consistent with Department regulations, to insure the protection of records systems from unauthorized access or disclosure and from physical damage or destruction. The controls instituted shall be proportional to the degree of sensitivity of the records but at a minimum must insure that records other than those available to the general public under the Freedom of Information Act, (5 U.S.C. 552), are protected from public view, that the area in which the records are stored is supervised during all business hours and physically secure during nonbusiness hours to prevent unauthorized personnel from obtaining access to the records. Automated systems shall comply with the security standards promulgated by the National Bureau of Standards.

(ii) System managers, with the approval of the head of their offices within a constituent unit, shall adopt access restrictions to insure that only those individuals within the agency who have a need to have access to the records for the performance of their duties have access to them. Procedures shall also be adopted to prevent accidental access to, or dissemination of, records.

(e) Prohibition against maintenance of records concerning First Amendment rights. No constituent unit shall maintain a record describing how any individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment, (e.g. speech), unless the maintenance of such record is—

(1) Expressly authorized by statute, or

(2) Expressly authorized by the individual about whom the record is maintained, or

(3) Pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(7)).

(f) Notification of disclosure under compulsory legal process. Subject to 5 U.S.C 552a(j) and section 1.23(c)(1) of this subpart, when records concerning an individual are subpoenaed by a Grand Jury, Court, or quasi-judicial agency, the official served with the subpoena shall make reasonable efforts to assure that notice of any disclosure is provided to the individual. Notice shall be provided within 5 working days of making the records available under compulsory legal process or, in the case of a Grand Jury subpoena, within five days of its becoming a matter of public record. Notice shall be mailed to the last known address of the individual and shall contain the following information: the date and authority to which the subpoena is, or was returnable, the name and number of the case or proceeding, and the nature of the information sought and provided. Notice of the issuance of a subpoena is not required if the system of records has been exempted from the notice requirement of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(8) and this section, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and § 1.23(c)(1), by a Notice of Exemption published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(8)).

(g) Emergency disclosure. If information concerning an individual has been disclosed to any person under compelling circumstances affecting health or safety, the individual shall be notified at his last known address within 5 days of the disclosure (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays). Notification shall include the following information: the nature of the information disclosed, the person or agency to whom it was disclosed, the date of disclosure, and the compelling circumstances justifying the disclosure. Notification shall be given by the officer who made or authorized the disclosure. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)(8)).

§ 1.23 Publication in the Federal Register—annual notices of systems of records, general exemptions, specific exemptions.

(a) Annual notices of systems of records to be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Each constituent unit shall publish in the FEDERAL REGISTER at least annually a notice of the existence and character of all systems of records it maintains. Such notices are set forth in the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration and referenced in Appendices A through L to this subpart. Subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) and subsection (c) of this section, each notice shall include—

(1) The name and location of the system;

(2) The categories of individuals on whom records are maintained in the system;

(3) The categories of records maintained in the system;

(4) Each routine use of the records contained in the system, including the categories of users and the purpose of such use;

(5) The policies and practices of the constituent unit regarding storage, retrievability, access controls, retention, and disposal of the records;

(6) The title and business address of the Treasury official who is responsible for the system of records;

(7) The procedures of the constituent unit whereby an individual can be notified at his or her request if the system of records contain a record pertaining to him or her, including reasonable times, places, and identification requirements;

(8) The procedures of the constituent unit whereby an individual can be notified at his or her request how he or she can gain access to any record pertaining to him or her contained in the system of records, and how he or she can contest its content; and

(9) The categories of sources of records in the system. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)).

(b) Notice of new or modified routine uses to be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. At least 30 days prior to a new use or modification of a routine use, as published under paragraph (a)(4) of this section, each constituent unit shall publish in the Federal Register notice of such new or modified use of the information in the system and provide an opportunity for interested persons to submit written data, views, or arguments to the constituent unit. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(11)).

(c) Promulgation of rules exempting systems from certain requirements.—(1) General exemptions. In accordance with existing procedures applicable to a Treasury constituent unit's issuance of regulations, the head of each such unit may adopt rules, in accordance with the requirements (including general notice) of 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(1), (2), and (3), (c) and (e), to exempt any system of records within the constituent unit from any part of 5 U.S.C. 552a and these regulations except subsections (b) (§ 1.24, conditions of disclosure), (c)(1) (§ 1.25, keep accurate accounting of disclosures), (c)(2) (§ 1.25, retain accounting for five years or life of record), (e)(4)(A) through (F) (paragraphs (a) of this section, publication of annual notice of systems of records), (e)(6) (§ 1.22(d), accuracy of records prior to dissemination), (e)(7) (§ 1.22(e), maintenance of records on First Amendment rights), (e)(9) (§ 1.28, establish rules of conduct), (e)(10) (§ 1.22(d)(3), establish safeguards for records), (e)(11) (paragraph (c) of this section, publish new intended use), and (i) (§ 1.28(c), criminal penalties) if the systems of records maintained by the constituent unit or component thereof which performs as its principal function any activity pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws, including police efforts to prevent, control, or reduce crime or to apprehend criminals, and the activities of prosecutors, courts, correctional, probation, pardon, or parole authorities, and which consists of (i) information compiled for the purpose of identifying individual criminal offenders and alleged offenders and consisting only of identifying data and notations of arrests, the nature and disposition of criminal charges, sentencing, confinement, release, and parole, and probation status; (ii) information compiled for the purpose of a criminal investigation, including reports of informants and investigators, and associated with an identifiable individual; or (iii) reports identifiable to an individual compiled at any stage of the process of enforcement of the criminal laws from arrest or indictment through release from supervision. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(j).)

(2) Specific exemptions. In accordance with existing procedures applicable to a Treasury constituent unit's issuance of regulations, the head of each such unit may adopt rules, in accordance with the requirements (including general notice) of 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(1), (2), and (3), (c), and (e), to exempt any system of records within the unit from 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) (§ 1.25(c)(2), accounting of certain disclosures available to the individual), (d) (§ 1.26(a), access to records), (e)(1) (§ 1.22(a)(1), maintenance of information to accomplish purposes authorized by statute or executive order only), (e)(4)(G) ((a)(7) of this section, publication of procedures for notification), (e)(4)(H) ((a)(8) of this section, publication of procedures for access and contest), (e)(4)(I) ((a)(9) of this section, publication of sources of records), and (f) (§ 1.26, promulgate rules for notification, access and contest), if the system of records is—

(i) Subject to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1);

(ii) Investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, other than material within the scope of subsection (j)(2) of 5 U.S.C. 552a and paragraph (a)(1) of this section. If any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit that he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law, or for which he would otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of such material, such material shall be provided to such individual, except to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence;

(iii) Maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or other individuals pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3056;

(iv) Required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records;

(v) Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence;

(vi) Testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process; or

(vii) Evaluation material used to determine potential for promotion in the armed services, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(3) At the time that rules under this subsection are adopted, the head of the constituent unit shall include in the statement required under 5 U.S.C. 553(c) the reasons why the system of records is to be exempted from a provision of 5 U.S.C. 552a and this part. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k)).

§ 1.24 Disclosure of record to person other than the individual to whom it pertains.

(a) Conditions of disclosure. No constituent unit of Treasury shall disclose any record which is contained in a system of records maintained by it by any means of communication to any person, or to another agency, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the record pertains, or the parent, if a minor, or legal guardian, if incompetent, of such individual, unless disclosure of the record would be—

(1) To those offices and employees of the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties;

(2) Required under 5 U.S.C. 552 (Subpart A of this Part);

(3) For a routine use as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(7) and § 1.21(g) and as described under 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(D) and § 1.23(a)(4);

(4) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity pursuant to the provisions of title 13 of the U.S. Code;

(5) To a recipient who has provided the constituent unit with advance adequate written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, and the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable;

(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his designee to determine whether the record has such value;

(7) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity,

(i) If the activity is authorized by law; and

(ii) If the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the Department of the Treasury specifying the particular portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought;

(8) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual, if upon such disclosure, notification is transmitted to the last known address of such individual;

(9) To either House of Congress, or, to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof, any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee of any such joint committee;

(10) To the Comptroller General, or any of his authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office; or

(11) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(b)).

§ 1.25 Accounting of disclosures.

(a) Accounting of certain disclosures. Each constituent unit, with respect to each system of records under its control, shall—

(1) Keep an accurate accounting of: (i) the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure of a record to any person or to an agency made under 5 U.S.C. 552a(b) and § 1.24; and (ii) the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made;

(2) Retain the accounting made under paragraph (a)(1) of this section for at least five years or the life of the record, whichever is longer, after the disclosure for which the accounting is made; and

(3) Inform any person or other agency about any correction or notation of dispute made by the constituent unit in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) and § 1.28 of any record that has been disclosed to the person or agency if an accounting of the disclosure was made. (see 5 U.S.C. 552(c))

(b Accounting systems. To permit the accounting required by paragraph (a) of this section, system managers, with the approval of the head of their offices within a constituent unit, shall establish or implement, as soon as possible, but not later than September 27, 1975, a system of accounting for all disclosures of records, either orally or in writing, made outside the Department of the Treasury. Accounting records shall—

(1) Be established in the least expensive and most convenient form that will permit the system manager to advise individuals, promptly upon request, of to whom or what agencies records concerning them have been disclosed;

(2) Provide, as a minimum, the identification of the particular record disclosed, the name and address of the person or agency to whom or to which disclosed, and the date, nature and purpose of the disclosure; and

(3) Be maintained for 5 years or until the record is destroyed or transferred to the National Archives and Records Service for storage in records centers, in which event, the accounting pertaining to those records, unless maintained separately, shall be transferred with the records themselves.

(c) Exemptions from accounting requirements. No accounting is required for disclosures of records—

(1) To those officers and employees of the Department of the Treasury who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties; or

(2) If disclosure would be required under 5 U.S.C. 552 and Subpart A of this part.

(d) Access to accounting by individual. (1) Subject to paragraphs (c) and (d)(2) of this section, each constituent unit shall establish and set forth in the appendix to this subpart applicable to the constituent unit, procedures for making the accounting required under paragraph (a) of this section available to the individual to whom the record pertains and shall thereafter make such accounting available in accordance therewith at the request of the individual. The procedures may require the requester to provide reasonable identification.

(2) Access accountings of disclosure may be withheld from the individual named in the record only if the disclosures were (i) made under 5 U.S.C. 552a (b)(7) and § 1.24(a)(7), or (ii) under a system of records exempted from the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(j) or (k) and § 1.23(c). (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)).

§ 1.26 Procedures for notification and access to records pertaining to individuals—format and fees for request for access.

(a) Procedures for notification and access. Each constituent unit shall establish, in accordance with the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553, and set forth in the appendix to this subpart applicable to such constituent unit procedures whereby an individual can be notified, in response to his request, if any system of records named by the individual contains a record pertaining to him. In addition, such procedures shall set forth the requirements for access by such individual to records which pertain to him. As a minimum such procedures shall specify the times during, and the places at, which access will be accorded, together with such identification as may be required of the individual before access. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(f)(1), (2) and (3)).

(b) Access. Each constituent unit, in accordance with the procedures prescribed under paragraph (a) of this section, shall upon request by any individual to gain access to his record or to any information pertaining to him which is contained in the system, permit him and upon his request, a person of his own choosing to accompany him, to review the record and have a copy made of all or any portion thereof in a form comprehensible to him, except that the agency may require the individual to furnish a written statement authorizing discussion of that individual's record in the accompanying person's presence. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1)).

(c) Exceptions. Neither the procedures prescribed under paragraph (a) of this section nor the requirements for access under paragraph (b) of this section shall be applicable to—(1) systems of records exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) and § 1.23(c); (2) information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(5)); or (3) information pertaining to an individual which is contained in, and inseparable from, another individual's record.

(d) Format of request. (1) A request for notification of whether a record exists shall—

(i) Be made in writing and signed by the person making the request, who must be the individual about whom the record is maintained, or his duly authorized representative (See § 1.34);

(ii) State that it is made pursuant to the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a or these regulations, have marked "Privacy Act Request" on the request and on the envelope;

(iii) Give the name of the system or subsystem or categories of records to which access is sought, as specified in the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration and referenced in the appendices to this subpart;

(iv) Describe the nature of the record(s) sought and the approximate dates covered by the record(s);

(v) Provide such identification of the requester as may be specified in the appropriate appendix to this subpart; and

(vi) Be addressed to delivered in person to the office or officer of the constituent unit indicated for the particular system or subsystem or categories of records the individual wishes access to, as specified in the "Notice of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration and referenced in the appendices to this subpart. Assistance in ascertaining the appropriate constituent unit or in preparing a request for notification may be obtained by a written request to that effect addressed as specified in Appendix A of this part, as the address for the Office of the Secretary for "Request for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures".

(2) A request for access to records shall, in addition to complying with paragraph (a)(1) (i) through (vi) of this section—

(i) State whether the requester wishes to inspect the records or desires to have a copy made and furnished without first inspecting them;

(ii) If the requester desires to have a copy made, state the firm agreement of the requester to pay the fees for duplication ultimately determined in accordance with [31 CFR] § 1.6, Subpart A of this title, unless such fees are waived pursuant to that section by the system manager or other appropriate official as indicated in the appropriate appendix to these regulations; and

(iii) Comply with any other requirement set forth in the applicable appendix to this subpart or the "Notice of Records Systems" applicable to the system in question.

Requesters are hereby advised that any request for access which does not comply with the foregoing requirements and those set forth elsewhere in this subpart C, will not be deemed subject to the time constraints of this section, unless and until amended so as to comply. However, constituent units shall advise the requester in what respect the request is deficient so that it may be processed. This section applies only to records in being which are contained in a system of records and which are in the possession or control of the constituent unit. (See 5.U.S.C. 552a(d) and (f)).

(e) Requests for records not in control of constituent unit. (1) Treasury employees shall make reasonable efforts to assist an oral requester to ascertain to which office or officer a written request should be sent. Where the request is for a record which is not in the possession or control of any constituent unit of the Department of the Treasury, the requester shall be so advised.

(2) Where the record requested was created by a Department or agency other than the Department of the Treasury or a constituent unit thereof and has been classified (e.g. National Defense or Intelligence Information) or otherwise restrictively endorsed (e.g. Civil Service Commission records or FBI reports) by such other Department or agency, and a copy thereof is in the possession of a constituent unit of the Department of the Treasury, that portion of the request shall be referred to the originating agency for determination as to all issues in accordance with the Privacy Act. In the case of a referral to another agency under this paragraph, the requester shall be notified that such portion of his request has been so referred and that he may expect to hear from that agency.

(3) When information sought from a system manager or other appropriate official in the Department of the Treasury includes information furnished by other federal agencies not classified or otherwise restrictively endorsed, the system manager or other appropriate official receiving the request shall consult with the appropriate agency prior to making a decision to disclose or not to disclose the record but the decision as to whether the record shall be disclosed shall be made, in the first instance by the system manager or other appropriate official maintaining the record. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f)).

(f) Date of receipt of request. A request for notification or access to records shall be considered to have been received for purposes of this subpart on the date on which the requirements of paragraph (d) of this section have been satisfied. Requests for notification or access to records and any separate agreement to pay shall be stamped or endorsed with the date of receipt by the receiving office. The latest of such stamped dates will be deemed for the purposes of this subpart to be the date of receipt of the request. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f)).

(g) Notification of determination—(1) In general. Notification of determinations as to notification of whether a record exists or as to whether to grant access to records requested will be made by the officers designated in the appendices to this subpart. The notification of the determination shall be mailed within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays) after the date of receipt of the request, as determined in accordance with paragraph (f) of this section. If it is not possible to respond within 30 days, the designated officer shall inform the requester, stating the reason for the delay (e.g. volume of records requested, scattered location of the records, need to consult other agencies, or the difficulty of the legal issues involved) and when a response will be dispatched. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f).

(2) Granting of access. When it has been determined that the request for access will be granted—(i) and a copy requested; such copy in a form comprehensible to him shall be furnished promptly, together with a statement of the applicable fees for duplication; and (ii) and the right to inspect has been requested, the requester shall be promptly notified in writing of the determination, and when and where the requested records may be inspected. An individual seeking to inspect records concerning himself may be accompanied by another individual of his own choosing. The individual seeking access shall be required to sign the required form indicating that the Department of the Treasury is authorized to discuss the contents of the subject record in the accompanying person's presence. If, after making the inspection, the individual making the request desires a copy of all or a portion of the requested records, such copy in a form comprehensible to him shall be furnished upon payment of the applicable fees for duplication. Fees to be charged are as prescribed by 31 CFR Part 1, Subpart A § 1.6. Fees shall not be charged where they would amount, in the aggregate, to less than $3.00. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f)).

(3) Requirements for access to medical records. When access is requested to medical records, including psychological records, the responsible official may determine that such release could have an adverse effect on the individual and that release will be made only to a physician authorized in writing to have access to such records by the individual making the request. Upon receipt of the authorization the physician will be permitted to review the records or to receive copies of the records by mail, upon proper verification of identity. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (f)(3)).

(4) Denial of request. When it is determined that the request for notification of whether a record exists or access to records will be denied (whether in whole or in part or subject to conditions or exceptions), the person making the request shall be so notified by mail in accordance with paragraph (g)(1) of this section. The letter of notification shall specify the city or other location where the requested records are situated (if known), contain a statement of the reasons for not granting the request as made, set forth the name and title or position of the responsible official and advise the individual making the request of the right to file suit in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1)(B).

(5) Prohibition against use of 5 U.S.C. 552(b) exemptions. Exemptions from disclosure under 5 U.S.C. 552(b), (31 CFR Part 1, Subpart A, § 1.2(c)) may not be invoked for the purpose of withholding from an individual any record which is otherwise accessible to such individual under the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a, and this subpart. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(q)).

(6) Records exempt in whole or in part. (i) When an individual requests notification as to whether a record exists or access to records concerning himself which have been exempted from individual access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) or which have been compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding in either a court or before an administrative tribunal and the assertion of the exemption is deemed necessary, the Department of the Treasury will neither confirm nor deny the existence of the record but shall advise the individual only that no record available to him pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974 has been identified.

(ii) Requests from individuals for access to records which have been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) shall be processed as follows:

(A) Requests for information classified pursuant to Executive Order 11652 require the responsible component of the Department to review the information to determine whether it continues to warrant classification under the criteria of sections 1 and 5 (B), (C), (D) and (E) of the Executive Order. Information which no longer warrants classification under these criteria shall be declassified and made available to the individual. If the information continues to warrant classification, the individual shall be advised that the information sought is classified, that it has been reviewed and continues to warrant classification, and that it has been exempted from access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(1) and 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(1). Information which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and which is also classified shall be reviewed as required by this subparagraph but the response to the individual shall be in the form prescribed by paragraph (g)(6)(i) of this section.

(B) Requests for information which has been exempted from disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) shall be responded to in the manner provided in paragraph (g)(6)(i) of this section unless the requester shows that the information has been used or is being used to deny the individual any right, privilege or benefit for which he is eligible or to which he would otherwise be entitled under federal law. In that event, the individual shall be advised of the existence of the information but such information as would identify a confidential source shall be extracted or summarized in a manner which protects the source to the maximum degree possible and the summary extract shall be provided to the requesting individual.

(C) Information compiled as part of an employee background investigation which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) shall be made available to an individual upon request except to the extent that it identifies the confidential source. Material identifying the confidential sources shall be extracted or summarized in a manner which protects the source to the maximum degree possible and the summary or extract shall be provided to the requesting individual.

(D) Testing or examination material which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) shall not be made available to an individual if disclosure would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process; but may be made available if no such compromise possibility exists. (See 5 U.S.C. 552 a(d)(5), (j) and (k)).

§ 1.27 Procedures for amendment of records pertaining to individuals—format, agency review and appeal from initial adverse agency determination.

(a) In general. Subject to the application of exemptions promulgated by the head of each constituent unit, in accordance with § 1.23(c), and subject to § 1.27(f), each constituent unit of the Department of the Treasury, shall in conformance with 5 U.S.C. 552 a(d)(2), permit an individual to request amendment of a record pertaining to him. Any request for amendment of records or any appeal from the initial denial of a request which does not fully comply with the requirements of this section and any additional specific requirements imposed by the constituent unit in the applicable appendix to this subpart will not be deemed subject to the time constraints of paragraph (e) of this section, unless and until amended so as to comply. However, constituent units shall, forthwith advise the requester in what respect the request or appeal is deficient so that it may be resubmitted or amended. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f).

(b) Form of request to amend records. In order to be subject to the provisions of this section, a request to amend records shall—

(1) Be made in writing and signed by the person making the request, who must be the individual about whom the record is maintained, or his duly authorized representative;

(2) State that it is made pursuant to the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a or these regulations, have marked "Privacy Act Amendment Request" on the request and on the envelope;

(3) Be addressed to the office or officer of the constituent unit specified for such purposes in the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration and referenced in the appendices to this subpart for that purpose; and

(4) Reasonably describe the records which the individual desires to have amended, including, to the best of the requester's knowledge, dates of letters requesting access to such records previously and dates of letters in which notification concerning access was made, if any, and the individual's documentation justifying the correction. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f)).

(c) Date of receipt of request. A request for amendment of records pertaining to an individual shall be deemed to have been received for purposes of this subpart when the requirements of paragraph (b) of this section have been satisfied. The receiving office or officer shall stamp or otherwise endorse the date of receipt of the request. (See 5 U.S.C. 552 a(d) and (f)).

(d) Review of requests to amend records. Officials responsible for review of requests to amend records pertaining to an individual, as specified in the appendices to this subpart, shall:

(1) Not later than 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the date of receipt of such request, acknowledge in writing such receipt; and

(2) Promptly, either—(i) Make any correction of any portion thereof which the individual believes and the official agrees is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete; or (ii) Inform the individual of the refusal to amend the record in accordance with his request, the reason for the refusal, and the name and business address of the officer designated in the applicable appendix to this subpart, as the person who is to review such refusal. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) and (f)).

(e) Administrative appeal—(1) In general. Each constituent unit shall permit individuals to request a review of initial decisions made under paragraph (d) of this section, when an individual disagrees with a refusal to amend this record. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(d), (f), and (g)(1)).

(2) Form of request for administrative review of refusal to amend record. At any time within 35 days after the date of the notification of the initial decision described in paragraph (d)(2)(ii) of this section, the requester may submit an administrative appeal from such refusal to the official specified in the notification of the initial decision and the appropriate appendix to this subpart. The appeal shall—

(i) Be made in writing stating any arguments in support thereof and be signed by the person to whom the record pertains, or his duly authorized representative;

(ii) Be addressed to and mailed or hand delivered, within 35 days of the date of the initial decision, to the office or officer specified in the appropriate appendix to this subpart and in the notification. (See the appendices to this subpart for the address to which appeals made by mail should be addressed);

(iii) Have clearly marked on the appeal and on the envelope, "Privacy Act Amendment Appeal";

(iv) Reasonably describe the records requested to be amended; and

(v) Specify the date of the initial request to amend records, and the date of the letter giving notification that the request was denied. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) and (f).)

(3) Date of receipt. Appeals shall be promptly stamped with the date of their receipt by the office to which addressed and such stamped date will be deemed to be the date of receipt for all purposes of this subpart. The receipt of the appeal shall be acknowledged within 10 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) from the date of receipt (unless the determination on appeal is dispatched in 10 days, in which case no acknowledgement is required) by the responsible official and the requester advised of the date of receipt established by the foregoing and when a response is due in accordance with this paragraph. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d) and (f).)

(4) Review of administrative appeals from denial of requests to amend records. Officials responsible for deciding administrative appeals from denials of requests to amend records pertaining to an individual, as specified in the appendices to this subpart shall: complete the review, and notify the requester of the final agency decision within 30 days (exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays) after the date of receipt of such appeal, unless the time is extended by the head of the agency or his delegate, for good cause shown. If such final agency decision is to refuse to amend the record, in whole or in part, the requester shall also be advised of his right—(i) to file a concise "Statement of Disagreement" setting forth the reasons for his disagreement with the decision which shall be filed within 35 days of the date of the notification of the final agency decision and (ii) to judicial review of the final agency decision under 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1)(A). (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d), (f) and (g)(1)).

(5) Notation on record and distribution of statements of disagreement. The system manager is responsible, in any disclosure containing information about which an individual has filed a "Statement of Disagreement", occurring after the filing of the statement under paragraph (e)(4) of this section, for clearly noting any portion of the record which is disputed and providing copies of the statement and, if deemed appropriate, a concise statement of the constituent unit's reasons for not making the amendments requested to persons or other agencies to whom the disputed record has been disclosed. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (d)(4)).

(f) Records not subject to correction under the Privacy Act. The following records are not subject to correction or amendment by individuals:

(1) Transcripts or written statements made under oath; and

(2) Transcripts of Grand Jury proceedings, judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings which form the official record of those proceedings; and

(3) Pre-sentence reports comprising the property of the courts but maintained in agency files; and

(4) Records pertaining to the determination, the collection and the payment of federal taxes; and

(5) Records duly exempted from correction by notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER; and

(6) Records compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

§ 1.28 Training, rules of conduct, penalties for non-compliance.

(a) Training. Subject to policy guidance and regulations issued by the Deputy Secretary, who has Department-wide responsibility therefor, each constituent unit shall institute a training program to instruct employees and employees of Government contractors covered by 5 U.S.C. 552a(m), who are involved in the design, development, operation or maintenance of any system of records, on a continuing basis with respect to the duties and responsibilities imposed on them and the rights conferred on individuals by the Privacy Act, the regulations in this subpart, including the appendices thereto, and any other related regulations. Such training shall provide suitable emphasis on the civil and criminal penalties imposed on the Department and the individual employees by the Privacy Act for non-compliance with specified requirements of the Act as implemented by the regulations in this subpart. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (e)(9).)

(b) Rules of conduct. In addition to the Standards of Conduct published in Part 0 of this Title, particularly 31 CFR 0.735–44, the following are applicable to employees of the Department of the Treasury (including, to the extent required by the contract or 5 U.S.C. 552a (m), Government contractors and employees of such contractors), who are involved in the design, development, operation or maintenance of any system of records, or in maintaining any records, for or on behalf of the Department, including any constituent unit thereof.

(1) The head of each component of a constituent unit of the Department shall be responsible for assuring that employees subject to his supervision are advised of the provisions of the Privacy Act, including the criminal penalties and civil liabilities provided therein, and the regulations in this subpart, and that such employees are made aware of their individual and collective responsibilities to protect the security of personal information, to assure its accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness, to avoid unauthorized disclosure either orally or in writing, and to insure that no information system concerning individuals, no matter how small or specialized is maintained without public notice.

(2) Employees of the Department of the Treasury involved in the design, development, operation, or maintenance of any system of records, or in maintaining any record shall:

(i) Collect no information of a personal nature from individuals unless authorized to collect it to achieve a function or carry out a responsibility of the Department;

(ii) Collect from individuals only that information which is necessary to Department functions or responsibilities, unless related to a system exempted under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) or (k);

(iii) Collect information, wherever possible, directly from the individual to whom it relates, unless related to a system exempted under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j);

(iv) Inform individuals from whom information is collected about themselves of the authority for collection, the purposes thereof, the use that will be made of the information, and the effects, both legal and practical, of not furnishing the information (While this provision does not explicitly require it, where feasible, third party sources should be informed of the purposes for which information which they are asked to provide will be used.);

(v) Neither collect, maintain, use nor disseminate information concerning an individual's religious or political beliefs or activities or his membership in associations or organizations, unless (A) the individual has volunteered such information for his own benefits; (B) the information is expressly authorized by statute to be collected, maintained, used or disseminated; or (C) the activities involved are pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized investigation, adjudication or correctional activity;

(vi) Advise their supervisors of the existence or contemplated development of any record system which is capable of retrieving information about individuals by individual identifier;

(vii) Disseminate no information concerning individuals outside the Department except when authorized by 5 U.S.C. 552a or pursuant to a routine use published in the FEDERAL REGISTER;

(viii) Assure that an accounting is kept in the prescribed form, of all dissemination of personal information outside the Department, whether made orally or in writing, unless disclosed under 5 U.S.C. 552 and Subpart A of this part;

(ix) Maintain and process information concerning individuals with care in order to insure that no inadvertent disclosure of the information is made either within or without the Department; and

(x) Assure that the proper Department authorities are aware of any information in a system maintained by the Department which is not authorized to be maintained under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, including information on First Amendment Activities, information that is inaccurate, irrelevant or so incomplete as to risk unfairness to the individual concerned.

(3) Heads of constituent units within the Department or their delegates shall, at least annually, review the record systems subject to their supervision to insure compliance with the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 and the regulations in this subpart. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a (e)(9), (l) and (m)).

(c) Criminal penalties. (1) The Privacy Act imposes criminal penalties on the conduct of Government officers and employees as follows: Any officer or employee of an agency [which term includes the Department of the Treasury]:

(i) Who by virtue of his employment or official position, has possession of, or access to, agency records which contain individually identifiable information the disclosure of which is prohibited by this section [5 U.S.C. 552a] or regulations established thereunder, and who knowing that disclosure of the specific material is so prohibited, willfully discloses the material in any manner to any person or agency not entitled to receive it, or

(ii) Who willfully maintains a system of records without meeting the notice requirements of subsection (e)(4) of this section [5 U.S.C. 552a]—shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000. (Bracketed material added.)

(2) The Act also imposes a collateral criminal penalty on the conduct of any person as follows:

> Any person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains any record concerning an individual from an agency under false pretenses shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

(3) For the purposes of 5 U.S.C. 552a (l), the provisions of paragraph (c) (1) of this section are applicable to Government contractors and employees of such contractors who by contract, entered into after September 27, 1975, operate by or on behalf of the Department of the Treasury a system of records to accomplish a Departmental function. Such contractor and employees are considered employees of the Department of the Treasury for the purposes of 5 U.S.C. 552a(l). (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(l) and (m)).

§ 1.29 Records transferred to Federal Records Center or National Archives of the United States.

(a) Records transferred to the Administrator of General Services for storage in the Federal Records Center. Records pertaining to an identifiable individual which are transferred to the Federal Records Center in accordance with 44 U.S.C. 3103 shall for the purposes of the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a, be considered to be maintained by the constituent unit which deposited the record and shall be subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act and this subpart. The Administrator of General Services shall not disclose such records except to the Department of the Treasury or to others under rules consistent with the Privacy Act which may be established by the Department of the Treasury or a constituent unit thereof. If such records are retrieved for the purpose of making a determination about an individual, they must be reviewed for accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness.

(b) Records transferred to the National Archives of the United States—(1) Records transferred to National Archives prior to September 27, 1975. Records pertaining to an identifiable individual transferred to the National Archives prior to September 27, 1975, as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government shall be considered to be maintained by the National Archives, and

(i) Shall not be subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a,

(ii) Except, that a statement describing such records (modeled after 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(A) through (G)) shall be published in the Federal Register.

(2) Records transferred to National Archives on or after September 27, 1975. Records pertaining to an identifiable individual transferred to the National Archives as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, on or after September 27, 1975, shall be considered to be maintained by the National Archives, and

(i) Shall not be subject to 5 U.S.C. 552a,

(ii) Except, that a statement describing such records in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) (A) through (G) shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER and rules of conduct and training in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(9) are to be established by the National Archives. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)).

§ 1.30 Application to Government contractors.

When a constitutent unit contracts for the operation of a system of records to accomplish a Departmental function, the provisions of the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a, and this subpart shall be applicable to such system. The constituent unit shall have responsibility for insuring that the contractor complies with the contract requirements relating to privacy. All such contracts entered into after September 27, 1975, shall contain the standard contract requirements promulgated by the General Services Administration to insure compliance with the Privacy Act of 1974. All such contracts entered into prior to September 27, 1975, shall be amended as soon as feasible to also include such standard requirements. No constituent unit of the Department shall contract or extend an existing contract after September 27, 1975, for the operation of a record system by or on behalf of the agency without the express approval of the Assistant Secretary for Administration. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(m)).

§ 1.31 Sale or rental of mailing list.

(a) In general. An individual's name and address shall not be sold or rented by a constituent unit unless such action is specifically authorized by law.

(b) Withholding of names and addresses. This section shall not be construed to require the withholding of names and addresses otherwise permitted to be made public (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(n)).

§ 1.32 Use and disclosure of social security numbers.

(a) In general. An individual shall not be denied any right, benefit, or privilege provided by law by a constituent unit because of such individual's refusal to disclose his social security number.

(b) Exceptions. The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section shall not apply with respect to—

(1) Any disclosure which is required by Federal statute, or

(2) The disclosure of a social security number to any Federal, State, or local agency maintaining a system of records in existence and operating before January 1, 1975, if such disclosure was required under statute or regulation adopted prior to such date to verify the identity of an individual.

(c) Requests for disclosure of social security number. Any constituent unit which requests an individual to disclose his social security account number shall inform that individual whether—

(1) Disclosure is mandatory or voluntary,

(2) By what statutory or other authority such number is solicited, and

(3) What uses will be made of it. (See section 7 of the Privacy Act of 1974 set forth at 5 U.S.C. 552a, note.)

§ 1.33 Cooperation with Privacy Protection Study Commission.

(a) Furnishing of information, reports and assistance to Commission. Each constituent unit is authorized to furnish to the Commission, upon request made by the Chairman, such information, data, reports and such other assistance as the Commission deems necessary to carry out its functions under 5 U.S.C. 552a. A copy of reports made by the constituent units to Congress and the Office of Management and Budget in accordance with § 1.22(c), shall be transmitted to the Commission.

(b) Confidentiality of information disclosed to the Commission. Any constituent unit providing information to the Commission shall obtain assurance from the Commission that the information is to be used only for the purpose for which it is provided, and upon completion of that purpose such information shall be destroyed or returned. (See section 5(e)(2)(A) of the Privacy Act of 1974 set forth at 5 U.S.C. 552a, note.)

§ 1.34 Guardianship.

The parent or guardian of a minor or a person judicially determined to be incompetent shall, in addition to establishing the identity of the minor or other person he represents, establish his own parentage or guardianship by furnishing a copy of a birth certificate showing parentage or a court order establishing the guardianship and may thereafter, act on behalf of such individual. (See 5 U.S.C. 552a(h)).

§ 1.35 Information forms.

(a) Review of forms. Except for forms developed and used by constituent units, the Assistant Secretary for Administration shall be responsible for reviewing all forms developed and used by the Department of the Treasury to collect information from and about individuals. The heads of constituent units shall each be responsible for the review of forms used by such unit to collect information from and about individuals.

(b) Scope of review. The responsible officers shall review each form for the purpose of eliminating any requirement for information that is not relevant and necessary to carry out an agency function and to accomplish the following objectives:

(1) To insure that no information concerning religion, political beliefs or activities, association memberships (other than those required for a professional license), or the exercise of First Amendment rights is required to be disclosed unless such requirement of disclosure is expressly authorized by statute or is pertinent to, and within the scope of, any authorized law enforcement activity;

(2) To insure that the form or a separate form that can be retained by the individual makes clear to the individual which information he is required by law to disclose and the authority for that requirement and which information is voluntary;

(3) To insure that the form or a separate form that can be retained by the individual states clearly the principal purpose or purposes for which the information is being collected, and summarizes concisely the routine uses that will be made of the information;

(4) To insure that the form or a separate form that can be retained by the individual clearly indicates to the individual the effect in terms of rights, benefits or privileges of not providing all or part of the requested information; and

(5) To insure that any form requesting disclosure of a Social Security Number, or a separate form that can be retained by the individual, clearly advises the individual of the statute or regulation requiring disclosure of the number or clearly advises the individual that disclosure is voluntary and that no consequence will flow from his refusal to disclose it and the uses that will be made of the number whether disclosed mandatorily or voluntarily.

(c) Revision of forms. Any form which does not meet the objectives specified in the Privacy Act and in this section, shall be revised to conform thereto. If revision, printing and distribution cannot be accomplished prior to September 27, 1975, a separate statement shall be prepared to accompany each form advising the individual that the form is not in compliance with the Privacy Act and specifying the portions thereof which are not in compliance. The statement shall include all the information necessary to accomplish the objectives specified in the Privacy Act and this section.

§ 1.36 Systems exempt in whole or in part from provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a and this part.

In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) and § 1.23(c), constituent units of the Department of the Treasury exempt the following systems of records from certain provisions of the Privacy Act for the reasons indicated:

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

OFFICE OF THE GENERAL COUNSEL

Notice exempting certain systems from requirements of the Privacy Act

(a) In general. The General Counsel of the Treasury hereby issues rules exempting the General Counsel's Civil Litigation Records System from the provisions of subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. This system of records contains information or documents related to litigation involving or concerning the Department or its officials, and includes pending, active, and closed files. The records consist of copies of pleadings, investigative reports, information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding, legal memoranda, and related correspondence. Pleadings which have been filed with a court or administrative tribunal are matters of public record, and no exemption is claimed as to them. The purpose of the proposed exemptions is to maintain the confidentiality of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes; information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding is exempt from access under subsection (d)(5) until the file is closed; thereafter subsection (k)(2) may apply in part to the information. Legal memoranda and related correspondence contain no personal information and are not subject to disclosure under section 552(a). Determinations concerning whether particular information contained in this system is exempt from disclosure will be made at the time a request is received from an individual to gain access to information pertaining to him

(b) Authority. These rules are promulgated pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(k), and pursuant to the authority vested in the General Counsel by paragraph 1.23(c) of Subpart C of Part 1 of Subtitle A of Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Name of system. Civil Litigation Records.

(d) Provisions from which exempted. This system contains records described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemption will be claimed for such records only where appropriate from the following provisions, subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(e) Reasons for claimed exemptions. Those sections would otherwise require the Department to notify an individual of investigatory materials maintained in a record pertaining to him, permit access to such record, permit requests for its correction (section 552a(d), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (f)); make available to him any required accounting of disclosures made of the record (section 552a(c)(3)), publish the sources of records in the system (section 552a(e)(4)(I)); and screen records to insure that there is maintained only such information about an individual as is relevant to accomplish a required purpose of the Department (section 552a(e)(1)). The records compiled for the prosecution or defense of civil litigation on behalf of the Department or its officials contain investigatory materials compiled for litigation purposes, together with memoranda concerning the applicable law, and related correspondence. The use of investigatory material in court proceedings is governed by due process and statutory procedural requirements. Informing individuals that they are on record in a particular system enables such individuals to learn the nature of the investigatory material and the evidentiary basis for prosecuting or defending legal proceedings to which they are a party; furthermore, the disclosure of certain investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes may disclose investigative techniques and procedures so that future law enforcement efforts would be hindered. Access to an accounting of disclosures of such records would have a similar detrimental effort upon the successful prosecution of legal claims. In addition, screening for relevancy to Department purposes, and correction or attempted correction of such materials could require excessive amounts of time and effort on the part of all concerned. Accordingly, the General Counsel finds that the public interest and public policy in maintaining an effective legal services program requires exemption from the stated sections of the Act to the extent that they are applicable to appropriate materials in this system.

DIRECTOR OF PRACTICE

Notice of rules exempting certain systems from requirements of the Privacy Act

(a) In general. The General Counsel of the Treasury hereby issues rules exempting certain systems of records of the Office of Director of Practice from the provisions of (c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) and (4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (f)(1), (2), (3), (4) and (5) of 5 U.S.C. 552a. The systems of records for which exemptions from the above provisions are claimed are the following:

(1) Treasury—OS—Applicant Appeal Files

(2) Treasury—OS—Closed Files Containing Derogatory Information about Individuals' Practice before the Internal Revenue Service and Files of Attorneys and Certified Public Accountants Formerly Enrolled to Practice

(3) Treasury—OS—Derogatory Information (No Action)

(4) Treasury—OS—Disbarments

(5) Treasury—OS—Inventory

(6) Treasury—OS—Resigned Enrolled Agents, and

(7) Treasury—OS—Present Suspensions from Practice before the Internal Revenue Service

The purpose of the proposed exemptions is to maintain the confidentiality of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes; information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding is exempt from access under subsection (d)(5) until the file is closed; thereafter subsection (k)(2) may apply in whole or in part to the information. Legal memoranda and related correspondence contain no personal information and are not subject to disclosure under section 552a. Determinations concerning whether particular information contained in this system is exempt from disclosure will be made at the time a request is received from an individual to gain access to information pertaining to him.

(b) Authority. These rules are promulgated pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by 5 U.S.C. 552a(k), and pursuant to the authority vested in the General Counsel by section 1.23(c) of Subpart C of Part 1 of Subtitle A of Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Names of systems. (1) Treasury—OS—Applicant Appeal Files

(2) Treasury—OS—Closed Files Containing Derogatory Information about Individuals' Practice before the Internal Revenue Service and Files of Attorneys and Certified Public Accountants Formerly Enrolled to Practice.

(3) Treasury—OS—Derogatory Information (No Action)

(4) Treasury—OS—Disbarments

(5) Treasury—OS—Inventory

(6) Treasury—OS—Resigned Enrolled Agents, and

(7) Treasury—OS—Present Suspensions from Practice before the Internal Revenue Service.

(d) Provisions from which exempted. These systems contain records described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemption will be claimed for such records only where appropriate from the following provisions, subsections (c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) and (4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) and (H), and (f)(1), (2), (3), (4) and (5) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(e) Reasons for claimed exemptions. (1) The Privacy Act of 1974 creates several methods by which individuals may learn of and obtain records containing information on such individuals and consisting of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. These methods are as follows: subsection (c)(3) allows individuals to discover if other agencies are investigating such individuals; subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(2), (3) and (5) establish the ability of individuals to gain access to investigatory material compiled on such individuals; subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(4) presuppose access and enable individuals to contest the contents of investigatory material compiled on these individuals; and subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1) allow individuals to determine whether or not they are under investigation. Because these subsections are variations upon the individuals' ability to ascertain whether their civil or criminal misconduct has been discovered, these subsections have been grouped together for purposes of this notice.

(2)(A) The General Counsel believes that imposition of the requirements of subsection (c)(3), which requires that accountings of disclosures be made available to individuals, would impair the ability of the Office of Director of Practice and other investigative entities to conduct investigations of alleged or suspected violations of the regulations governing practice before the Internal Revenue Service and of civil or criminal laws. Making the accountings of disclosures available to individuals enables such individuals to identify entities investigating them and thereby to determine the nature of the violations of which they are suspected. With such knowledge, individuals would be able to alter their illegal activities, destroy or alter evidence of such activities and seriously impair the successful completion of investigations. For these reasons, the General Counsel claims exemptions from the requirements of subsection (c)(3).

(2)(B) With respect to subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(2), (3) and (5), the General Counsel believes that access to investigatory material would prevent the successful completion of investigations. Individuals who gain access to investigatory material involving them discover the nature and extent of the violations of regulations, and of civil and criminal laws, of which they are suspected. By gaining access, such individuals also learn the facts developed during investigations. Knowledge of these matters enables these individuals to destroy or alter evidence which would otherwise have been used against them. In addition, knowledge of the facts and the suspected violations gives individuals, who are committing ongoing violations, or who are about to commit violations of regulations, or of civil or criminal laws, the opportunity to temporarily postpone the commission of the violations or to effectively disguise the commission of these violations. Material compiled on investigated individuals reveals investigative techniques and procedures, disclosure of which enables such individuals to structure their illegal activities so as to escape detection. Further, such material may contain, or by its very nature reveal the identity of confidential sources. When the identities of confidential sources are revealed, they may be subjected to various forms of reprisal. If confidential sources of information are subjected to actual reprisals or fear thereof, they may become reluctant to provide information necessary to identify or prove the guilt of persons who violate regulations, or civil or criminal laws. Further except in unusual circumstances, the Office of Director of Practice must bring facts or conduct evidencing violation of the regulations governing practice before the Internal Revenue Service to the attention of the suspected violator prior to instituting a proceeding for disciplinary action against him. In addition, the protections afforded by the above-referenced subsections are unnecessary because, unless a suspected violator offers his consent to a disciplinary action against him, no such action can be taken until a hearing before an administrative law judge, at which all applicable due process protections (i.e., notice and opportunity to be heard) are afforded, is held. For the reasons stated in this subparagraph, the General Counsel claims exemptions from the requirements of subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(2), (3) and (5).

(2)(C) With respect to subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(4), the General Counsel believes that the imposition of these requirements, which presuppose access and provide for amending records, would impair the ability to conduct investigations and would be unnecessary for the same reasons stated in the preceding subparagraph (2)(B). Those reasons herein are incorporated by reference. Therefore, the General Counsel claims exemptions from the requirements of subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(4).

(2)(D) With respect to subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1), the General Counsel believes that informing individuals that they are the subjects of a particular system or systems of records would impair the ability of the Office of Director of Practice and its agents to successfully complete investigations of suspected or alleged violators of the regulations governing practice before the Internal Revenue Service. Individuals who learn that they are suspected of violating such regulations are given the opportunity to destroy or alter evidence needed to prove the alleged violations. Such individuals may also be able to impair investigations by temporarily suspending or restructuring the activities which place them in violation of said regulations. Further, as noted in preceding subparagraph (2)(B) and incorporated by reference herein, the procedural requirements imposed on the Office of Director of Practice by the regulations governing practice before the Internal Revenue Service and by procedural due process safeguards make the protections afforded by subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1) unnecessary. For these reasons, the General Counsel claims exemptions from the requirements of subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1).

(2)(E) Subsection (e)(1) of the Privacy Act of 1974 requires that the Office of Director of Practice maintain in its records only information that is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the Office required to be accomplished by statute or by executive order of the President. The General Counsel believes that imposition of said requirement would seriously impair the ability of the Office of Director of Practice, its agents and other investigative entities to effectively investigate suspected or alleged violations of regulations and of civil and criminal laws. The Office of Director of Practice does not initiate inquiries into individuals' conduct unless it receives information evidencing violation by such individuals of the regulations governing practice before the Internal Revenue Service. Sources of such information may be unfamiliar with this Office's interpretations of the regulations governing practice before the Internal Revenue Service and, therefore, may not always provide only relevant and necessary information. Frequently, even this Office cannot make determinations of relevance and necessity without further investigation. The nature of investigations conducted for the Office of Director of Practice requires that a wide range of facts and data be provided its legal staff for analysis under applicable rules and regulations. Further, it is often impossible to determine whether or not information is relevant and necessary until an investigation is completed. For these reasons, the General Counsel claims an exemption from the requirement of subsection (e)(1).

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR ADMINISTRATION

The Assistant Secretary for Administration exempts under § (k) of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Department's Personnel Security Files and Personnel Security Files and Indices from sections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) through (e)(4)(I), and (f) of the Act. The records maintained in the exempt systems of records are of the type described in section (k)(5) of the Act:

Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of this section, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

Thus to the extent that the records in this system can be disclosed without revealing the identity of a confidential source, they are not within the scope of this exemption and are subject to all the requirements of the Privacy Act.

The sections of the Act from which this system of records are exempt are in general those providing for individual access to records. When such access would cause the identity of a confidential source to be revealed, it would impair the future ability of the Treasury Department to compile investigatory material for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts, or access to classified information.

In addition, the systems are exempt from § (e)(1) which requires that the agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a statutory or executively ordered purpose. The Director finds that to fulfill the requirements of § (e)(1) would unduly restrict the agency in its information gathering inasmuch as it is often not until well after the investigation that it is possible to determine the relevance and necessity of particular information.

If any investigations within the scope of § (k)(5) become involved with civil or criminal matters, exemptions from the Act could also be asserted under sections (k)(2) or (j)(2).

ASSISTANT SECRETARY (ENFORCEMENT, OPERATIONS, AND TARIFF AFFAIRS)

Notice of rules exempting certain systems from requirements of the Privacy Act

(a) In general. The Assistant Secretary (Enforcement, Operations, and Tariff Affairs) hereby issues rules exempting the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) criminal investigative records from the provisions of certain subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Privacy Act of 1974. The purpose of the exemption is to maintain the confidentiality of information compiled for law enforcement purposes.

(b) Authority. These rules are promulgated pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k) and pursuant to the authority vested in the Assistant Secretary (Enforcement, Operations, and Tariff Affairs) by paragraph 1.23(c) of Subpart C of Part 1 of Subtitle A of Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Name of System. International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) Criminal Investigative Records.

(d) Provisions from which exempted. This system contains records described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemptions will be claimed for such described records only where appropriate from the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974: subsections (c)(3) and (4); (d); (e)(1), (2) and (3); (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I); (e)(5) and (8); (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(e) Reasons for claimed exemptions. Those sections would otherwise require the Department to notify an individual of investigatory materials maintained in a record pertaining to him, permit access to such record, permit requests for its correction (section 552a(d), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (f)); make available to him any required accounting of disclosures made of the record (section 552a(c)(3)), publish the sources of records in the system (section 552a(e)(4)(I)); and screen records to insure that there is maintained only such information about an individual as is relevant to accomplish a required purpose of the Department (section 552a(e)(1)). Disclosure to an individual of investigatory materials pertaining to him would hamper law enforcement by prematurely disclosing the knowledge of illegal activities and the evidentiary bases for possible enforcement actions. Furthermore, the disclosure of certain investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes may disclose investigative techniques and procedures, so that future law enforcement efforts would be hindered. Access to an accounting of disclosures of such records would have a similar detrimental effect on law enforcement. In addition, screening for relevancy to Department purposes, and correction or attempted correction of such materials could require excessive amounts of time on the part of all concerned. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary (Enforcement, Operations, and Tariff Affairs) tentatively finds that the public interest and public policy in maintaining an effective law enforcement program requires exemption from the stated sections of the Act to the extent that they are applicable to appropriate materials in this system.

EXEMPTION OF FOREIGN ASSETS CONTROL ENFORCEMENT RECORDS FROM CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF THE PRIVACY ACT OF 1974 (P.L. 93-579, 5 U.S.C. 552a.)

The new regulations promulgated by the Office of Foreign Assets Control (as amendments to its Foreign Assets Control Regulations; Transaction Control Regulations; Cuban Assets Control Regulations; and, Rhodesian Sanction Regulations) read as follows:

Pursuant to subsection (k)(2) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Privacy Act of 1974, the Enforcement Records of the Office of Foreign Assets Control are hereby exempted from the requirements of subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G-I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, as materials which are compiled and maintained for the purpose of conducting and recording investigations of criminal violations of relevant statutes and regulations administered by the Office of Foreign Assets Control. These records contain, among other things, information and evidence which was furnished in confidence by individuals, corporations, partnerships and other entities, Federal, State and local agencies, and by foreign individuals, corporations, partnerships and other entities, and foreign government sources. If it should appear that the individual concerning whom a record is maintained has been or will be denied any right, privilege, or benefit to which he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law, or for which he would otherwise be eligible, except for the maintenance of such material, such material shall be disclosed to such individual, except: (1) to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence; or (2) to the extent that disclosure would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information prior to the effective date of the Privacy Act (September 27, 1975) under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

NOTICE OF EXEMPT SYSTEMS

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue finds that the orderly and efficient administration of the internal revenue laws necessitates that certain systems of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service be exempted from certain sections of the Privacy Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1986).

(a) Exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2). (1) This paragraph applies to the following systems of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, for which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2).

| Name of system: | No. |
|---|---|
| Strike Force | 42.009 |
| Open and Closed Narcotics Traffickers Files | 42.015 |
| Alphabetical Name File and Index | 46.001 |
| Case Management and Time Reporting System | 46.002 |
| Confidential Informants | 46.003 |
| Electronic Surveillance File | 46.005 |
| Information Gathering and Retrieval System | 46.006 |
| Information Indexing System | 46.007 |
| Information Items | 46.009 |

(2) Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2), the head of any agency may promulgate rules to exempt any system of records within the agency from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 if the agency or component thereof that maintains the system performs as its principal function any activities pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws. Certain components of the Internal Revenue Service have as their principal function activities pertaining to the enforcement of criminal laws.

(3) To the extent the exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) does not apply to any of the above-named systems, then exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), relating to investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, are hereby claimed for such systems.

(4) The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) are as follows:

5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (3) and (4)
5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1), (2), (3), and (4)
5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1), (2), and (3)
5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(G), (H), and (I)
5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5) and (8)
5 U.S.C. 552a(f)
5 U.S.C. 552a(g)

(5) See paragraph (c) for reasons for the exemptions.

(b) Exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(2). (1) This paragraph applies to the following systems of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, for which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2):

(2) Under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k) (2), the head of any agency may promulgate rules to exempt any system of records within the agency from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 if the system is investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. To the extent that information contained in the above-named systems has as its principal purpose the enforcement of criminal laws, exemption for such information under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) (2) is hereby claimed.

(3) The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) are as follows:

5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3)
5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1), (2), (3), and (4)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e)(1)
5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(G), (H), and (I)
5 U.S.C. 552a(f)

(4) See paragraph (c) for reasons for the exemptions.

(c) Reasons for exemptions. The following are the reasons for exempting systems of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) and (k)(2) of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(1) 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3). This provision of the Privacy Act provides for the release of the disclosure accounting required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(1) and (2) to the individual named in the record at his request. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The release of disclosure accounting would put the subject of an investigation on notice of the existence of an investigation and that such person is the subject of that investigation;

(ii) Such release would provide the subject of an investigation with an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. The release of such information to the subject of an investigation would provide the subject with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation and could result in the altering or destruction of documentary evidence, the improper influencing of witnesses, and other activities that could impede or compromise the investigation. In the case of a delinquent account, such release might enable the subject of the investigation to dissipate assets before levy;

(iii) Release to the individual of the disclosure accounting would alert the individual as to which agencies were investigating this person and the scope of the investigation, and could aid the individual in impeding or compromising investigations by those agencies.

(2) 5 U.S.C. 552a (c)(4), (d)(1), (2), (3), and (4), (e)(4) (G) and (H), (f), and (g). These provisions of the Privacy Act relate to an individual's right to notification of the existence of records pertaining to such individual; requirements for identifying an individual who requests access to records; the agency procedures relating to access to records and the contest of the information contained in such records; and the civil remedies available to the individual in the event of adverse determinations by an agency concerning access to or amendment of information contained in record systems. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provisions are as follows: To notify an individual at the individual's request of the existence of records in an investigative file pertaining to such individual or to grant access to an investigative file could interfere with investigative and enforcement proceedings; deprive co-defendants of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication; constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of others; disclose the identity of confidential sources and reveal confidential information supplied by such sources; and disclose investigative techniques and procedures.

(3) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I). This provision of the Privacy Act requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. In cases where an exemption from this provision has been claimed, the reasons are as follows:

(i) Revealing categories of sources of information could disclose investigative techniques and procedures;

(ii) Revealing categories of sources of information could cause sources who supply information to investigators to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality.

(4) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1). This provision of the Privacy Act requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by statute or executive order. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The Internal Revenue Service will limit its inquiries to information which is necessary for the enforcement and administration of tax laws. However, an exemption from the foregoing provision is needed because, particularly in the early stages of a tax audit or other investigation, it is not possible to determine the relevance or necessity of specific information.

(ii) Relevance and necessity are questions of judgment and timing. What appears relevant and necessary when collected may subsequently be determined to be irrelevant or unnecessary. It is only after the information is evaluated that the relevance and necessity of such information can be established with certainty.

(iii) When information is received by the Internal Revenue Service relating to violations of law within the jurisdiction of other agencies, the Service processes this information through Service systems in order to forward the material to the appropriate agencies.

(5) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(2). This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's rights, benefits, and privileges under Federal programs. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) In certain instances the subject of a criminal investigation can not be required to supply information to investigators. In those instances, information relating to a subject's criminal activities must be obtained from other sources;

(ii) In a criminal investigation it is necessary to obtain evidence from a variety of sources other than the subject of the investigation in order to accumulate and verify the evidence necessary for the successful prosecution of persons suspected of violating the criminal laws.

(6) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(3). This provision of the Privacy Act requires that an agency must inform the subject of an investigation who is asked to supply information of (A) the authority under which the information is sought and whether disclosure of the information is mandatory or voluntary, (B) the purposes for which the information is intended to be used, (C) the routine uses which may be made of the information, and (D) the effects on the subject, if any, of not providing the requested information. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The disclosure to the subject of an investigation of the purposes for which the requested information is intended to be used would provide the subject with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation and could result in impeding or compromising the investigation.

(ii) Informing the subject of an investigation of the matters required by this provision could seriously undermine the actions of undercover officers, requiring them to disclose their identity and impairing their safety, as well as impairing the successful conclusion of the investigation.

(iii) Individuals may be contacted during preliminary information gathering, surveys, or compliance projects concerning the administration of the internal revenue laws before any individual is identified as the subject of an investigation. Informing the individual of the matters required by this provision would impede or compromise subsequent investigations.

(7) 5 U.S.C. 522a(e)(5). This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to maintain all records which are used in making any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provision are as follows: Since the law defines "maintain" to include the collection of information, compliance with the foregoing provision would prohibit the initial collection of any data not shown to be accurate, relevant, timely, and complete at the moment of its collection. In gathering information during the course of a criminal investigation, it is not feasible or possible to determine completeness, accuracy, timeliness, or relevancy prior to collection of the information. Facts are first gathered and then placed into a cohesive order which objectively proves or disproves criminal behavior on the part of a suspect. Seemingly nonrelevant, untimely, or incomplete information when gathered may acquire new significance as an investigation progresses. The restrictions of the foregoing provision could impede investigators in the preparation of a complete investigative report.

(8) 5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (8). This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to make reasonable efforts to serve notice on an individual when any record on such individual is made available to any person under compulsory legal process when such process becomes a matter of public record. The reasons for exempting systems of records from the foregoing provision are as follows: The notice requirement of the foregoing provision could prematurely reveal the existence of criminal investigations to individuals who are the subject of such investigations.

(d) Exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k) (4). (1) This paragraph applies to the following system of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, for which exemption is claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k) (4): Statistics of Income—Individual Tax Returns 70.001.

(2) Under 5 U.S.C 552a (k) (4), the head of any agency may promulgate rules to exempt any system of records within the agency from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 if the system is required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

(3) The above-named system is maintained under section 6108 of the Internal Revenue Code, which provides that "the Secretary or his delegate shall prepare and publish annually statistics reasonably available with respect to the operation of the income tax laws, including classifications of taxpayers and of income, the amounts allowed as deductions, exemptions, and credits, and any other facts deemed pertinent and valuable".

(4) The reason for exempting the above-named system of records is that disclosure of statistical records (including release of accounting for disclosures) would in most instances be of no benefit to a particular individual since the records do not have a direct effect on a given individual.

(5) The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemption is claimed under 5 U.S.C. 522a(k)(4) are as follows:

5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3)
5 U.S.C. 522a(d) (1), (2), (3), and (4)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (1)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (4) (G), (H), and (I)
5 U.S.C. 552a (f)

(e) Exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k) (5). (1) This paragraph applies to the following systems of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, for which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k) (5):

| Name of system: | No. |
|---|---|
| Personnel Investigation Records | 36.006 |
| Recruiting, Examining and Placement Records | 36.008 |
| Security, Background and Character Investigations Files | 60.008 |
| Chief Counsel General Administrative Systems | 90.003 |
| Employee Recruiting Files Maintained by the Administrative Services Division | 90.011 |
| Management Files Maintained by Administrative Services Division and the Assistant Chief Counsel other than the Civil Service Commission's Official Personnel Files | 90.014 |

(2) Under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k) (5), the head of any agency may promulgate rules to exempt any system of records within the agency from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 if the system is investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, and qualifications for Federal civilian employment or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence. Thus, to the extent that records in the above-named systems can be disclosed without revealing the identity of a confidential source, they are not within the scope of this exemption and are subject to all the requirements of the Privacy Act.

(3) The provisions of the Act from which exemptions are claimed for the above-named systems of records are in general those providing for individual access to records. When such access would cause the identity of a confidential source to be revealed, it would impair the future ability of the Service to compile investigatory material for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts, or access to classified information. In addition, the systems are to be exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1), which requires that the agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a statutory or executively ordered purpose. The Service finds that to fulfill the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) would unduly restrict the agency in its information gathering inasmuch as it is often not until well after the investigation that it is possible to determine the relevance and necessity of particular information.

(4) If any investigatory material contained in the above-named systems becomes involved in criminal or civil matters, exemptions of such material under 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2) or (k)(2) is hereby claimed.

(5) The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) are as follows:

5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3)
5 U.S.C. 552a (d) (1), (2), (3), and (4)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (1)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (4) (G), (H), and (I)
5 U.S.C. 552a (f)

(f) Exemption under 5 U.S.C. 552a (k)(6). (1) This paragraph applies to the following system of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, for which exemption is claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6): Recruiting, Examining and Placement Records 36.008.

(2) Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6), the head of any agency may promulgate rules to exempt any system of records that is testing or examination material used solely to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in the Federal service the disclosure of which would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the testing or examination process.

(3) The reason for exempting the above-named system is that disclosure of the material in the system would compromise the objectivity or fairness of the examination process.

(4) The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 from which exemptions are claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(6) are as follows:

5 U.S.C. 552a (c) (3)
5 U.S.C. 552a (d) (1), (2), (3), and (4)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (1)
5 U.S.C. 552a (e) (4) (G), (H), and (I)
5 U.S.C. 552a (f)

(g) Exempt information included in another system. Any information from a system of records for which an exemption is claimed under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) or (k) which also is included in another system of records retains the same exempt status such information has in the system for which such exemption is claimed.

UNITED STATES CUSTOMS SERVICE

NOTICE OF EXEMPT SYSTEMS

In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and (k), general notice is hereby given of rulemaking pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974 by the Commissioner, United States Customs Service, under authority delegated to him by the Secretary of the Treasury The Commissioner, United States Customs Service, exempts the systems of records identified in the paragraphs below from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 as set forth in such paragraphs.

a. General exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2) Pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C 552a(j)(2), the Commissioner, United States Customs Service, hereby exempts certain systems of records, maintained by the United States Customs Service, from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) and (4), (d)(1), (2), (3) and (4), (e)(1), (2), (3), (4)(G), (H) and (I), (5) and (8), (f) and (g).

1. Exempt systems. The following systems of records which contain information of the type described in 5 U.S.C. 552a (j)(2), shall be exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a listed in paragraph a. above except as otherwise indicated below and in the general notice of the existence and character of systems of records which appears elsewhere in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

Aircraft Registers
Cargo Security File
CARNET Information System
Confidential Source Identification File
Currency and Monetary Instrument Reporting System (CMIR)
Customs Fugitive Program
Customs Licensing and Identification Program (Proposed) (exemptions applicable solely to the extent necessary to protect identity of confidential sources).
Investigations Record System
Private Aircraft Inspection Reporting System (PAIRS) (exemptions applicable solely to the extent necessary to protect identity of confidential sources).
Private Yacht Inspection Reporting System (exemptions applicable solely to the extent necessary to protect identity of confidential sources)
Search, Arrest and Seizure Reporting System
Seventy-two Hour Archives Search System
Telephone Analysis Program (TELAN)
Theft Information System (TIS)
Treasury Enforcement Communications System (TECS)
Vessel Violation Profile System
Violators File

2. Reasons for exemptions. (a). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(G) and (f)(1) enable individuals to be notified whether a system of records contains records pertaining to them. The Customs Service believes that application of these provisions to the above-listed systems of records would give individuals an opportunity to learn whether they are of record either as suspects or as subjects of a criminal investigation; this would compromise the ability of the Customs Service to complete investigations and to detect and apprehend violators of the Customs and related laws in that individuals would thus be able (1) to take steps to avoid detection, (2) to inform co-conspirators of the fact that an investigation is being conducted, (3) to learn the nature of the investigation to which they are being subjected, (4) to learn the type of surveillance being utilized, (5) to learn whether they are only suspects or identified law violators, (6) to continue or resume their illegal conduct without fear of detection upon learning that they are not in a particular system of records, and (7) to destroy evidence needed to prove the violation.

(b). 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f) (2), (3) and (5) enable individuals to gain access to records pertaining to them. The Customs Service believes that application of these provisions to the above-listed systems of records would compromise its ability to complete or continue criminal investigations and to detect and apprehend violators of the Customs and related criminal laws. Permitting access to records contained in the above-listed systems of records would provide individuals with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation, and this could enable them to avoid detection or apprehension in the following ways: (1) By discovering the collection of facts which would form the basis for their arrest, (2) by enabling them to destroy contraband or other evidence of criminal conduct which would form the basis for their arrest and, (3) by learning that the criminal investigators had reason to believe that a crime was about to be committed, they could delay the commission of the crime or change the scene of the crime to a location which might not be under surveillance. Granting access to on-going or closed investigative files would also reveal investigative techniques and procedures, the knowledge of which could enable individuals planning criminal activity to structure their future operations in such a way as to avoid detection or apprehension, thereby neutralizing law enforcement officers' established investigative tools and procedures. Further, granting access to investigative files and records could disclose the identity of confidential sources and other informers and the nature of the information which they supplied, thereby endangering the life or physical safety of those sources of information by exposing them to possible reprisals for having provided information relating to the criminal activities of those individuals who are the subjects of the investigative files and records; confidential sources and other informers might refuse to provide criminal investigators with valuable information if they could not be secure in the knowledge that their identities would not be revealed through disclosure of either their names or the nature of the information they supplied, and this would seriously impair the ability of the Customs Service to carry out its mandate to enforce the Customs criminal and related laws. Additionally, providing access to records contained in the above-listed systems of records could reveal the identities of undercover law enforcement officers who compiled information regarding individual's criminal activities, thereby endangering the life or physical safety of those undercover officers or their families by exposing them to possible reprisals.

(c). 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) (2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(4), which are dependent upon access having been granted to records pursuant to the provisions cited in subparagraph (b) above, enable individuals to contest (seek amendment to) the content of records contained in a system of records and require an agency to note an amended record and to provide a copy of an individual's statement (of disagreement with the agency's refusal to amend a record) to persons or other agencies to whom the record has been disclosed. The Customs Service believes that the reasons set forth in subparagraph (b) above are equally applicable to this subparagraph and, accordingly, those reasons are hereby incorporated herein by reference.

(d). 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) requires that an agency make accountings of disclosures of records available to individuals named in the records at their request; such accountings must state the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure of a record and the name and address of the recipient. The Customs Service believes that application of this provision to the above-listed systems of records would impair the ability of other law enforcement agencies to make effective use of information provided by the Customs Service in connection with the investigation, detection and apprehension of violators of the criminal laws enforced by those other law enforcement agencies. Making accountings of disclosure available to violators would alert those individuals to the fact that another agency is conducting an investigation into their criminal activities, and this could reveal the geographic location of the other agency's investigation, the nature and purpose of that investigation, and the dates on which that investigation was active. Violators possessing such knowledge would thereby be able to take appropriate measures to avoid detection or apprehension by altering their operations, by transferring their criminal activities to other geogrpahical areas or by destroying or concealing evidence which would form the basis for their arrest. In addition, providing violators with ac-countings of disclosure would alert those individuals to the fact that the Customs Service has information regarding their criminal activities and could inform those individuals of the general nature of that information; this, in turn, would afford those individuals a better opportunity to take appropriate steps to avoid detection or apprehension for violations of the Customs and related criminal laws.

(e). 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(4) requires that an agency inform any person or other agency about any correction or notation of dispute made by the agency in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) of any record that has been disclosed to the person or agency if an accounting of the disclosure was made. Since this provision is dependent on an individual's having been provided an opportunity to contest (seek amendment to) records pertaining to him, and since the above-listed systems of records are proposed to be exempted from those provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a relating to amendments of records as indicated in subparagraph (c) above, the Customs Service believes that this provision should not be applicable to the above-listed systems of records.

(f). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I) requires that an agency publish a public notice listing the categories of sources for information contained in a system of records. The Customs Service believes that application of this provision to the above-listed systems of records could compromise its ability to conduct investigations and to identify, detect and apprehend violators of the Customs and related criminal laws for the reasons that revealing sources for information could 1) disclose investigative techniques and procedures, 2) result in threatened or actual reprisal directed to informers by the subject under investigation, and 3) result in the refusal of informers to give information or to be candid with criminal investigators because of the knowledge that their identities as sources might be disclosed.

(g). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) requires that an agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by statute or executive order. The term "maintain" as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(3) includes "collect" and "disseminate." At the time that information is collected by the Customs Service, there is often insufficient time to determine whether the information is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the Customs Service; in many cases information collected may not be immediately susceptible to a determination of whether the information is relevant and necessary, particularly in the early stages of investigation, and in many cases information which initially appears to be irrelevant and unnecessary may, upon further evaluation or upon continuation of the investigation, prove to have particular relevance to an enforcement program of the Customs Service. Further, not all violations of law discovered during a Customs Service criminal investigation fall within the investigative jurisdiction of the Customs Service; in order to promote effective law enforcement, it often becomes necessary and desirable to disseminate information pertaining to such violations to other law enforcement agencies which have jurisdiction over the offense to which the information relates. The Customs Service should not be placed in a position of having to ignore information relating to violations of law not within its jurisdiction where that information comes to the attention of the Customs Service through the conduct of a lawful Customs Service investigation. The Customs Service therefore believes that it is appropriate to exempt the above-listed systems of records from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1).

(h) 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(2) requires that an agency collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's rights, benefits, and privileges under Federal programs. The Customs Service believes that application of this provision to the above-listed systems of records would impair the ability of the Customs Service to conduct investigations and to identify, detect and apprehend violators of the Customs and related criminal laws for the following reasons: 1) most information collected about an individual under criminal investigation is obtained from third parties such as witnesses and informers, and it is usually not feasible to rely upon the subject of the investigation as a source for information regarding his criminal activities, 2) an attempt to obtain information from the subject of a criminal investigation will often alert that individual to the existence of an investigation, thereby affording the individual an opportunity to attempt to conceal his criminal activities so as to avoid apprehension, 3) in certain instances the subject of a criminal investigation is not required to supply information to criminal investigators as a matter of legal duty, and 4) during criminal investigations it is often a matter of sound investigative procedure to obtain information from a variety of sources in order to verify information already obtained.

(i). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(3) requires that an agency inform each individual whom it asks to supply information, on the form which it uses to collect the information or on a separate form that can be retained by the individual: the authority which authorizes the solicitation of the information and whether disclosure of such information is mandatory or voluntary; the principal purposes for which the information is intended to be used; the routine uses which may be made of the information; and the effects on the individual of not providing all or part of the requested information. The Customs Service believes that the above-listed systems of records should be exempted from this provision in order to avoid adverse effects on its ability to identify, detect and apprehend violators of the Customs and related criminal laws. In many cases information is obtained by confidential sources or other informers or by undercover law enforcement officers under circumstances where it is necessary that the true purpose of their actions be kept secret so as to not let it be known by the subject of the investigation or his associates that a criminal investigation is in progress. Further, if it became known that the undercover officer was assisting in a criminal investigation, that officer's life or physical safety could be endangered through reprisal, and, further, under such circumstances it may not be possible to continue to utilize that officer in the investigation. In many cases individuals for personal reasons would feel inhibited in talking to a person representing a criminal law enforcement agency but would be willing to talk to a confidential source or undercover officer who they believed was not involved in law enforcement activities. In addition, providing a source of information with written evidence that he was a source, as required by this provision, could increase the likelihood that the source of information would be the subject of retaliatory action by the subject of the investigation. Further, application of this provision could result in an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of the subject of the criminal investigation, particularly where further investigation would result in a finding that the subject was not involved in any criminal activity.

(j). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5) requires that an agency maintain all records used by the agency in making any determination about any individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination. Since 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(3) defines "maintain" to include "collect" and "disseminate," application of this provision to the above-listed systems of records would hinder the initial collection of any information which could not, at the moment of collection, be determined to be accurate, relevant, timely and complete. Similarly, application of this provision would seriously restrict the necessary flow of information from the Customs Service to other law enforcement agencies where a Customs Service investigation revealed information pertaining to a violation of law which was under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. In collecting information during the course of a criminal investigation, it is not possible or feasible to determine accuracy, relevance, timeliness or completeness prior to collection of the information; in disseminating information to other law enforcement agencies it is often not possible to determine accuracy, relevance, timeliness or completeness prior to dissemination because the disseminating agency may not have the expertise with which to make such determinations. Further, information which may initially appear to be inaccurate, irrelevant, untimely or incomplete may, when gathered, grouped, and evaluated with other available information, become more pertinent as an investigation progresses. In addition, application of this provision could seriously impede criminal investigators and intelligence analysts in the exercise of their judgement in reporting on results obtained during criminal investigations. The Customs Service therefore believes that it is appropriate to exempt the above-listed systems of records from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5).

(k). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(8) requires that an agency make reasonable efforts to serve notice on an individual when any record on the individual is made available to any person under compulsory legal process when such process becomes a matter of public record. The Customs Service believes that the above-listed systems of records should be exempt from this provision in order to avoid revealing investigative techniques and procedures outlined in those records and in order to prevent revelation of the existence of an on-going investigation where there is a need to keep the existence of the investigation secret.

(l). 5 U.S.C. 552a(g) provides civil remedies to an individual for an agency refusal to amend a record or to make a review of a request for amendment, for an agency refusal to grant access to a record, for an agency failure to maintain accurate, relevant, timely and complete records which are used to make a determination which is adverse to the individual, and for an agency failure to comply with any other provision of 5 U.S.C. 552a in such a way as to have an adverse effect on an individual. The Customs Service believes that the above-listed systems of records should be exempted from this provision to the extent that the civil remedies provided therein may relate to provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which the above-listed systems of records are proposed to be exempt. Since the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a enumerated in subparagraphs (a) through (k) above are proposed to be inapplicable to the above-listed systems of records for the reasons stated therein, there should be no corresponding civil remedies for failure to comply with the requirements of those provisions to which the exemption is proposed to apply. Further, the Customs Service believes that application of this provision to the above-listed systems of records would adversely affect its ability to conduct criminal investigations by exposing to civil court action every stage of the criminal investigative process in which information is compiled or used in order to identify, detect, apprehend and otherwise investigate persons suspected or known to be engaged in criminal conduct in violation of the Customs and related laws.

b. Specific exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2)

Pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), the Commissioner, United States Customs Service, hereby exempts certain systems of records, maintained by the United States Customs Service, from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) and (4), (e)(1) and (4)(G), (H) and (I) and (f).

1. Exempt systems. The following systems of records, which contain information of the type described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), shall be exempt from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a listed in paragraph b. above except as otherwise indicated below and in the general notice of the existence and character of systems of records which appears elsewhere in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

2. Reasons for exemptions. (a). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(G) and (f)(1) enable individuals to be notified whether a system of records contains records pertaining to them. The Customs Service believes that application of these provisions (to those of the above-listed systems of records for which no notification procedures have been provided in the general notice of the existence and character of systems of records which appears elsewhere in the Federal Register) would impair the ability of the Customs Service to successfully complete investigations and inquiries of suspected violators of civil and criminal laws and regulations under its jurisdiction. In many cases investigations and inquiries into violations of civil and criminal laws and regulations involve complex and continuing patterns of behavior. Individuals, if informed that they have been identified as suspected violators of civil or criminal laws and regulations, would have an opportunity to take measures to prevent detection of illegal action so as to avoid prosecution or the imposition of civil sanctions. They would also be able to learn the nature and location of the investigation or inquiry and the type of surveillance being utilized, and they would be able to transmit this knowledge to co-conspirators. Finally, violators might be given the opportunity to destroy evidence needed to prove the violation under investigation or inquiry.

(b). 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(2), (3) and (5) enable individuals to gain access to records pertaining to them. The Customs Service believes that application of these provisions to the above-listed systems of records would impair its ability to complete or continue civil or criminal investigations and inquiries and to detect and apprehend violators of the Customs and related laws. Permitting access to records contained in the above-listed systems of records would provide violators with significant information concerning the nature of the civil or criminal investigation or inquiry. Knowledge of the facts developed during an investigation or inquiry would enable violators of criminal and civil laws and regulations to learn the extent to which the investigation or inquiry has progressed, and this could provide them with an opportunity to destroy evidence that would form the basis for prosecution or the imposition of civil sanctions. In addition, knowledge gained through access to investigatory material could alert a violator to the need to temporarily postpone commission of the violation or to change the intended point where the violation is to be committed so as to avoid detection or apprehension. Further, access to investigatory material would disclose investigative techniques and procedures which, if known, could enable violators to structure their future operations in such a way as to avoid detection or apprehension, thereby neutralizing investigators' established and effective investigative tools and procedures. In addition, investigatory material may contain the identity of a confidential source of information or other informer who would not want his identity to be disclosed for reasons of personal privacy or for fear of reprisal at the hands of the individual about whom he supplied information. In some cases mere disclosure of the information provided by an informer would reveal the identity of the informer either through the process of elimination or by virtue of the nature of the information supplied. If informers cannot be assured that their identities (as sources for information) will remain confidential, they would be very reluctant in the future to provide information pertaining to violations of criminal and civil laws and regulations, and this would seriously compromise the ability of the Customs Service to carry out its mission. Further, application of 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(2), (3) and (5) to the above-listed systems of records would make available attorney's work product and other documents which contain evaluations, recommendations, and discussions of ongoing civil and criminal legal proceedings; the availability of such documents could have a chilling effect on the free flow of information and ideas within the Customs Service which is vital to the agency's predecisional deliberative process, could seriously prejudice the agency's or the Government's position in a civil or criminal litigation, and could result in the disclosure of investigatory material which should not be disclosed for the reasons stated above. It is the belief of the Customs Service that, in both civil actions and criminal prosecutions, due process will assure that individuals have a reasonable opportunity to learn of the existence of, and to challenge, investigatory records and related materials which are to be used in legal proceedings.

(c). 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(2),(3) and (4), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(4), which are dependent upon access having been granted to records pursuant to the provisions cited in subparagraph (b) above, enable individuals to contest (seek amendment to) the content of records contained in a system of records and require an agency to note an amended record and to provide a copy of an individual's statement (of disagreement with the agency's refusal to amend a record) to persons or other agencies to whom the record has been disclosed. The Customs Service believes that the reasons set forth in subparagraph (b) above are equally applicable to this subparagraph, and, accordingly, those reasons are hereby incorporated herein by reference.

(d). 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3) requires that an agency make accountings of disclosures of records available to individuals named in the records at their request; such accountings must state the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure of a record and the name and address of the recipient. The Customs Service believes that application of this provision to the above-listed systems of records would impair the ability of the Customs Service and other law enforcement agencies to conduct investigations and inquiries into civil and criminal violations under their respective jurisdictions. Making accountings available to violators would alert those individuals to the fact that the Customs Service or another law enforcement authority is conducting an investigation or inquiry into their activities, and such accountings could reveal the geographic location of the investigation or inquiry, the nature and purpose of the investigation or inquiry and the nature of the information disclosed, and the dates on which that investigation or inquiry was active. Violators possessing such knowledge would thereby be able to take appropriate measures to avoid detection or apprehension by altering their operations, transferring their activities to other locations or destroying or concealing evidence which would form the basis for prosecution or the imposition of civil sanctions.

(e). 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) requires that an agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by statute or executive order. The term "maintain" as defined in 5 U.S.C. 552a(a)(3) includes "collect" and "disseminate." At the time that information is collected by the Customs Service there is often insufficient time to determine whether the information is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the Customs Service. In many cases information collected may not be immediately susceptible to a determination of whether the information is relevant and necessary, particularly in the early stages of investigation or inquiry, and in many cases information which initially appears to be irrelevant and unnecessary may, upon further evaluation or upon continuation of the investigation or inquiry, prove to have particular relevance to an enforcement program of the Customs Service. Further, not all violations of law uncovered during a Customs Service investigation or inquiry fall within the civil or criminal jurisdiction of the Customs Service. In order to promote effective law enforcement it often becomes necessary and desirable to disseminate information pertaining to such violations to other law enforcement agencies which have jurisdiction over the offense to which the information relates. The Customs Service should not be placed in a position of having to ignore information relating to violations of law not within its jurisdiction where that information comes to the attention of the Customs Service through the conduct of a lawful Customs Service civil or criminal investigation or inquiry. The Customs Service therefore believes that it is appropriate to exempt the above-listed systems of records from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1).

c. Specific exemptions under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5). Pursuant to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5), the Commissioner, United States Customs Service, hereby exempts the Internal Security Records System from the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) and (4), (e)(1) and (4)(G), (H) and (I) and (f). The records maintained in the exempt system of records are of the type described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5): "investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of this section, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence."

Thus to the extent that the records in this system can be disclosed without revealing the identity of a confidential source, they are not within the scope of this exemption and are subject to all the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a, except where those records contain other information which is exempt under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) for the reasons stated under paragraph b, above.

The sections of 5 U.S.C. 552a from which this system of records is exempt include in general those providing for individuals' access to or amendment of records. When such access or amendment would cause the identity of a confidential source to be revealed, it would impair the future ability of the Customs Service to compile investigatory material for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts, or access to classified information.

In addition, the systems shall be exempt from 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) which requires that an agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by statute or executive order. The Customs Service believes that to fulfill the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1) would unduly restrict the agency in its information gathering inasmuch as it is often not until well after the investigation that it is possible to determine the relevance and necessity of particular information.

If any investigations within the scope of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) become involved with civil or criminal matters, exemptions from 5 U.S.C. 552a could also be asserted under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) or (j)(2).

UNITED STATES SECRET SERVICE

Notice of rules exempting certain systems from requirements of the Privacy Act

(a) In general. The Director of the U.S. Secret Service hereby issues rules exempting the Criminal Investigation Information System of records, the Non-Criminal Investigation Information System of records, and the Protection Information System of records from the provisions of certain subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Privacy Act of 1974. The purpose of the exemptions is to maintain the confidentiality of information compiled for the purpose of criminal, non-criminal, and protective investigations.

(b) Authority. These rules are promulgated pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) and pursuant to the authority vested in the Director, U.S. Secret Service by paragraph 123(c) of Subpart C of Part 1 of Subtitle A of Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Exempted Systems. 1. U.S. Secret Service Criminal Investigation Information System. The Criminal Investigation Information System is further described in "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration.

(1) Provisions from which exempted. The Criminal Investigation Information System maintained by the Secret Service contains records described in 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemptions are claimed for such described records only where appropriate from the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 subsections (c) (3) and (4); (d) (1), (2), (3) & (4); (e) (1), (2) and (3); (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I); (e) (5) and (8); (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(2) Reasons for claimed exemptions. a. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3): This provision of the Privacy Act provides for the release of the disclosure accounting required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (1) and (2) to the individual named in the record at his request. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The release of accounting disclosures would put the subject of a criminal investigation on notice of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation;

(ii) It would provide the subject of a criminal investigation with an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. Obviously, the release of such information to the subject of a criminal investigation would provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation and could result in impeding or compromising the efforts of law enforcement personnel to detect and arrest persons suspected of criminal activity;

(iii) Disclosure to the individual of the disclosure accounting after the investigation is closed would alert the individual as to which agencies were investigating him and would put him on notice concerning the scope of his suspected criminal activities and could aid him in avoiding detection and apprehension.

b. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(4); (d); (e)(4) (G) and (H); (f) and (g): The foregoing provisions of the Privacy Act relate to an individual's right to notification of the existence of records pertaining to him and access to such records; the agency procedures relating to notification, access and contest of the information contained in such records; and the civil remedies available to the individual in the event of adverse determinations by an agency concerning access to or amendment of information contained in record systems. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) To notify an individual at his request of the existence of records pertaining to him in the Criminal Investigation Information System would inform the individual of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation. This would enable the individual to avoid detection and would further enable him to inform co-conspirators of the fact that an investigation is being conducted;

(ii) To permit access to the records contained in the Criminal Investigation Information System would not only inform an individual that he is or was the subject of a criminal investigation, but would also provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation which might enable him to avoid detection or apprehension;

(iii) To grant access to an on-going or closed criminal investigative file could interfere with Secret Service investigative and enforcement proceedings, deprive co-defendants of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication, constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of others, disclose the identity of confidential sources and reveal confidential information supplied by such sources, and disclose investigative techniques and procedures, or endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel, informants, witnesses, and other persons supplying information to investigators.

c. 5 U.S.C. a(e)(4)(I): This provision of the Privacy Act requires the publication of the categories of sources of records, in each system of records. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) Revealing sources of information could disclose investigative techniques and procedures;

(ii) Revealing sources of information could result in retaliation and threat of reprisal by the subject under investigation against such sources;

(iii) Revealing sources of information could cause witnesses, informants and others who supply information to criminal investigators to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or ear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality;

(iv) Revealing sources of information could result in the refusal of some sources to give full and complete information or to be candid with investigators because of the knowledge that the identity of such sources may be disclosed.

d. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1): This provision of the privacy Act requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) In a criminal investigation it is difficult to accurately determine the relevancy and necessity of information during the process of information gathering. Only after the information is evaluated can the relevancy and necessity of such information be ascertained;

(ii) In a criminal investigation, the Secret Service often obtains information concerning the violations of laws other than those within the scope of its criminal investigative jurisdiction. In the interest of effective law enforcement, the Secret Service should retain this information as it may aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity, and provide valuable leads for those law enforcement agencies charged with enforcing other segments of the criminal law;

(iii) In interviewing persons, or obtaining other forms of evidence during a criminal investigation, information will be supplied to the investigator which relates to matters which are ancillary to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information is not readily susceptible to segregation.

e. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(2): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's right, benefits and privileges under Federal programs. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System is exempted from from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) In certain instances, the subject of a criminal investigation is not required to supply information to investigators as a matter of legal right. In those instances, information relating to a subject's criminal activities must be obtained from other sources;

(ii) A requirement that information be collected from an individual who is the subject of a criminal investigation would put the individual on notice of the existence of the investigation and could enable him to avoid detection or apprehension;

(iii) In a criminal investigation it is necessary to obtain evidence from a variety of sources other than the subject of the investigation in order to accumulate and verify the evidence necessary for the successful prosecution of persons suspected of violating the criminal laws.

f. 5 U.S.C. a (e)(3): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to inform each individual whom it asks to supply information of the authority which authorizes the solicitation of the information and whether disclosure of such information is mandatory or voluntary; the principle purposes for which the information is intended to be used; the routine uses which may be made of the information; and the effect on the individual of not providing the requested information. The reasons why the Criminal Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) Informing each individual who is asked to supply information in a criminal investigation of the information required under the foregoing provision could inform the individual of the existence of a confidential investigation; reveal the identity of confidential sources of information; and endanger the life or physical safety of confidential informants;

(ii) Informing each individual who is asked to supply information in a criminal investigation of the information required under the foregoing provision could result in an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of individuals who may be the subject of a criminal investigation or who are suspected of engaging in criminal activity;

(iii) Informing each individual who is asked to supply information in a criminal investigation of the information required under the foregoing provision would inhibit such individuals from supplying the requested information and thereby present a serious impediment to the successful investigation and prosecution of violations of the criminal law.

g. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to maintain all records which are used in making any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) In gathering information during the course of a criminal investigation it is usually not possible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. Seemingly nonrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as an investigation progresses;

(ii) The restrictions on the maintenance of the records contained in the foregoing provision could impede investigators and intelligence analysts in the exercise of their judgment and discretion in reporting on criminal investigations;

(iii) Compliance with the records maintenance criteria listed in the foregoing provision could require the periodic up-dating of Secret Service criminal investigations to insure that the records maintained in the system remain timely and complete.

h. 5 U.S.C. a (e)(8): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to make reasonable efforts to serve notice to an individual when any record on such individual is made available to any person under compulsory legal process becomes a matter of public record. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The notice requirement of the foregoing provision could impede law enforcement by revealing investigative techniques and procedures;

(ii) The notice requirement of the foregoing provision could reveal the existence of confidential investigations to individuals who are the subjects of such investigations.

i. The foregoing exemptions are claimed for materials maintained in the Criminal Investigation Information System to the extent that such materials contain information and reports described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Further, records maintained in the Criminal Investigation Information System described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) are exempted from subsections (c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) & (4); (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (I) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a for the reasons previously stated.

II. U.S. Secret Service Non-Criminal Investigation Information System. The Non-Criminal Investigation Information System is further described in "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration.

(1) Provisions from which exempted: The Non-Criminal Investigation Information System maintained by the Secret Service contains records similar to those described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemptions are claimed for such described records where appropriate from the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974: subsections (c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) & (4), (e)(1); (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552(a).

(2) Reasons for claimed exemptions:

a. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3): This provision of the Privacy Act provides for the release of the disclosure accounting required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(1) and (2) to the individual named in the record at his request. The reasons why the Non-Criminal Investigation Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The release of accounting disclosures would put the subject of an investigation on notice of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation;

(ii) It would provide the subject of an investigation with an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. Obviously, the release of such information to the subject of an investigation would provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation and could result in impeding or compromising the efforts of law enforcement personnel to obtain information essential to the successful conclusion of the investigation;

(iii) Disclosure to the individual of the disclosure accounting after the investigation is closed would alert the individual as to which agencies were investigating him, put him on notice concerning the scope of his suspected activities and reveal investigatory techniques and the identity of confidential informants. It could result in an invasion of privacy of private citizens who provide information in connection with a particular investigation.

(3) 5 U.S.C. 552a: (d), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (f): The foregoing provisions of the Privacy Act relate to an individual's right to notification of the existence of records pertaining to him and access to such records and the agency procedures relating to notification, access and contest of the information contained in such records. The reasons why the Non-Criminal Investigation Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) To notify an individual at his request of the existence of records pertaining to him in the Non-Criminal Investigation Information System would inform the individual of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation. This could enable the individual to secrete or destroy evidence essential to the successful completion of the investigation;

(ii) To permit access to the records contained in the Non-Criminal Investigation System would not only inform an individual that he is or was the subject of an investigation, but would also provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation which might enable him to avoid detection or apprehension;

(iii) To grant access to an on-going or closed non-criminal investigative file would interfere with Secret Service investigative and enforcement proceedings; deprive other parties involved in the investigations of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication, constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of others, disclose the identity of confidential sources and reveal confidential information supplied by such sources; and disclose investigative techniques and procedures.

(3) 5 U.S.C a 3 (e) (4) (I). This provision of the Privacy Act requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. The reasons why the Non-Criminal Investigation Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) Revealing sources of information would disclose investigative techniques and procedures;

(ii) Revealing sources of information would result in retaliation and threat of reprisal by the subject under investigation against such sources;

(iii) Revealing sources of information could cause witnesses, informants and others who supply information to investigators to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality;

(iv) Revealing sources of information could result in the refusal of some sources to give full and complete information or to be candid with investigators because of the knowledge that the identity of such sources may be disclosed.

(4) 5 U.S.C 552a(e)(1): This provision of the Privacy Act requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency. The reasons why the Criminal Investigation Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) In a non-criminal investigation it is difficult to determine accurately the relevancy and necessity of information during the process of information gathering. It is only after the information is evaluated that the relevancy and necessity of such information can be ascertained;

(ii) In a non-criminal investigative case, the Secret Service often obtains information concerning the violation of laws other than those within the scope of its jurisdiction. In the interest of effective law enforcement, it is desirable that the Secret Service retain this information since it can aid in establishing patterns of unlawful activity and provide valuable leads for those law enforcement agencies that are charged with enforcing other segments of the criminal, regulatory and civil laws;

(iii) In interviewing persons, or obtaining other forms of evidence during an investigation, information will be supplied to the investigator which relates to matters which are ancillary to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information is not readily susceptible to segregation.

(5) The foregoing exemptions are claimed for records maintained in the Non-Criminal Investigation Information System only to the extent that such records contain materials described in subsection (k) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Privacy Act of 1974.

III. U.S. Secret Service Protection Information System. The Protection Information System is further described in "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration.

(1) Provisions from which exempted. The Protection Information System maintained by the Secret Service contains records similar to those described in 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k), the Privacy Act of 1974. The Protection Information System contains material relating to criminal investigations concerned with the enforcement of criminal statutes involving the security of persons and property. Further, this system contains records described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) including, but not limited to, classified materials and investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. There are maintained in the Protection Information System, in addition to the categories of records described above, records which are considered necessary to assuring the safety of individuals protected by the Secret Service pursuant to the provisions of 18 U.S.C. 3056 and Public Law 90-331, (5 U.S.C. 522a(k)(3)). Exemptions are claimed for the above described records only where appropriate from the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974: subsections (c)(3) and (d) (1), (2), (3) and (4); (e) (1), (2) and (3); (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I); (e)(5) and (8); (f) and (g) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(2) Reasons for claimed exemptions. a. 5 U.S.C. 552(c)(3): This provision of the Privacy Act provides for the release of the disclosure accounting required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (1) and (2) to the individual named in the record at his request. The reasons why the Protection Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The release of accounting disclosures would put the subject of a protective intelligence file on notice of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation;

(ii) It would provide the subject of a protective intelligence file with an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. Obviously, the release of such information to the subject of a protective intelligence file would provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation, and could result in impeding or compromising the efforts of Secret Service personnel to detect persons suspected of criminal activities or to collect information necessary for the proper evaluation of persons considered to be of protective interest;

(iii) Disclosures of the disclosure accounting after the protective intelligence file is closed would alert the individual as to which agencies were investigating him and would put him on notice concerning the scope of the protective intelligence investigation and could aid him in avoiding detection.

b. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(4); (d); (e)(4)(G) and (H); (f) and (g): The foregoing provisions of the Privacy Act relate to an individual's right to notification of the existence of records pertaining to him and access to such records; the agency procedures relating to notification, access and contest of the information contained in such records; and the civil remedies available to the individual in the event of adverse determinations by an agency concerning access to or amendment of information contained in record systems. The reasons why the Protection Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) To notify an individual at his request of the existence of records pertaining to him in the Protection Information System would be injurious to the protective intelligence activities of the Secret Service if the existence of files on the subject were even acknowledged. Granting access to the criminal and the unstable person would necessarily lead to knowledge of the sources of Secret Service information and could endanger other enforcement and intelligence operations and confidential sources including co-workers, friends and relatives of the subjects of such records;

(ii) Limitation on access to the materials contained in the Protection Information System is considered necessary to the preservation of the utility of intelligence files and in safeguarding those persons the Secret Service is authorized to protect. Without such denial of access the Protection Information System could adversely effect in the poor quality of information available; in compromised confidential sources; in the inability to keep track of persons of protective interest; and from interference with Secret Service protective intelligence activities by individuals gaining access to protective intelligence files. Many of the persons on whom records are maintained in the Protection Information System suffer from mental aberrations. Knowledge of their condition and progress comes from authorities, family members and witnesses. Many times this information comes to the Secret Service as a result of two party conversations where it would be impossible to hide the identity of informants. Sources of information must be developed, questions asked and answers recorded. Trust must be extended and guarantees of confidentiality and anonymity must be maintained. Allowing access of information of this kind to individuals who are the subjects of protective interest may well lead to violence directed against an informant by a mentally disturbed individual;

(iii) Permitting access to protective intelligence files would reveal techniques and procedures, not only of Secret Service protective investigations but could reveal the criteria by which protective intelligence subjects are evaluated;

(iv) To notify an individual at his request of the existence of records pertaining to him in the Protection Information System would inform the individual of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of protective interest. This would enable the individual to avoid detection and would further enable him to inform co-conspirators of the fact that an investigation is being conducted;

(v) To permit access to the records contained in the Protection Information System would not only inform an individual that he is or was the subject of protective interest, but would also provide him with significant information concerning the nature of any investigation concerning his activities;

(vi) To grant access to current or closed protective intelligence files would interfere with Secret Service investigative and enforcement proceedings; deprive co-defendants of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication; constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of others; disclose the identity of confidential sources; reveal confidential information supplied by such sources; and disclose investigative techniques and procedures, and endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel, informants, witnesses, and other persons suppling information to investigators.

c. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4)(I). This provision of the Privacy Act requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. The reasons why the Protection Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) Revealing sources of information would disclose investigative techniques and procedures;

(ii) Revealing sources of information would result in retaliation and threat of reprisal by the subject of a protective intelligence file;

(iii) Revealing sources of information would cause witnesses, informants and others who supply information to Secret Service investigators to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality;

(iv) Revealing sources of information would result in the refusal of some sources to give full and complete information or to be candid with investigators because of the knowledge that the identity of such sources may be disclosed.

d. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1): This provision of the Privacy Act requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency. The reasons why the Protection Information System of records is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) In gathering protective intelligence information it is difficult to determine accurately the relevancy and necessity of information during the process of information gathering. It is only after the information is evaluated that the relevancy and necessity of such information can be ascertained;

(ii) In carrying out protective intelligence responsibilities the Secret Service often obtains information concerning the violation of laws other than those within the scope of its protective intelligence jurisdiction. In the interest of effective law enforcement, it is desirable that the Secret Service retain this information since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and provide valuable leads for those law enforcement agencies that are charged with enforcing other segments of the criminal law;

(iii) During protective intelligence investigations, information will be supplied to the investigator which relates to matters which are ancillary to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information is not readily susceptible to segregation.

e. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(2): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual when the information may result in adverse determinations about an individual's right, benefits and privileges under Federal programs. The reasons why the Protection Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) In certain instances, where the protective intelligence subject is suspected of criminal activity, he is not required to supply information to investigators as a matter of legal right. In those instances, information relating to a subject's criminal activities must be obtained from other sources;

(ii) A requirement that information be collected from an individual who is of protective interest would put the individual on notice of the existence of the intelligence investigation and such knowledge would enable him to avoid detection in the event that the individual attempted to physically harm persons protected by the Secret Service;

(iii) In a protective intelligence investigation where the subject of the investigation is suspected of engaging in criminal activities it is necessary to obtain evidence from a variety of sources other than the subject of the investigation in order to accumulate and verify the evidence necessary for the successful prosecution of persons suspected of violating the criminal laws.

f. 5 U.S.C. 552a (e)(3): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to inform each individual whom it asks to supply information of the authority which authorizes the solicitation of the information and whether disclosure of such information is mandatory or voluntary; the principle purposes for which the information is intended to be used; the routine uses which may be made of the information; and the effect on the individual of not providing the requested information. The reasons why the Protection Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) Informing each individual who is asked to supply information in a protective intelligence investigation of the information required under the foregoing provision would inform the individual of the existence of a confidential investigation, reveal the identity of confidential sources of information, and endanger the life or physical safety of confidential informants;

(ii) Informing each individual who is asked to supply information in a protective intelligence investigation of the information required under the foregoing provision would result in an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of individuals who may be the subject of a criminal investigation or who are suspected of engaging in criminal activity;

(iii) Informing each individual who is asked to supply information in a protective intelligence investigation of the information required under the foregoing provision would inhibit such individuals from supplying the requested information and thereby present a serious impediment to the success of the Secret Service in carrying out its protective intelligence activities.

g. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to maintain all records which are used in making any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination. The reasons why the Protection Information System is exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) In gathering information during the course of a protective intelligence investigation it is usually not possible to determine in advance what information is accurate, relevant, timely, and complete. Seemingly nonrelevant or untimely information may acquire new significance as an investigation progresses;

(ii) The restrictions on the maintenance of the records contained in the foregoing provision would impede investigators and intelligence analysts in the exercise of their judgment and discretion in reporting on protective intelligence subjects;

(iii) Compliance with the records maintenance criteria listed in the foregoing provision would require the periodic up-dating of Secret Service protective intelligence files to insure that the records maintained in the system remain timely and complete.

h. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(8): This provision of the Privacy Act requires an agency to make reasonable efforts to serve notice to an individual when any record on such individual is made available to any person under compulsory legal process becomes a matter of public record. The reasons why the Protection Information System is exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The notice requirement of the foregoing provision could impede Secret

Service protective efforts by revealing techniques and procedures;

(ii) The notice requirements of the foregoing provision could reveal the existence of confidential investigations to individuals who are the subjects of such investigations.

1. The foregoing exemptions are claimed for materials maintained in the Protection Information System to the extent that such materials contain information and reports described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(j)(2). Further records maintained in the Protection Information System described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) are to be exempted from subsections (c)(3), (d)(1), (2), (3) & (4), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H) and (I) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a for the reasons previously stated.

BUREAU OF ALCOHOL, TOBACCO AND FIREARMS

NOTICE OF SYSTEMS EXEMPT FROM CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF THE PRIVACY ACT OF 1974

In accordance with 5 U.S.C. § 552a (j) and (k) general notice is hereby given of rulemaking under the Privacy Act of 1974 by the Director, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. The Director, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, exempts the systems of records identified in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section from certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 as set forth in such paragraphs.

EXEMPTIONS

(a) General exemptions. Under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(j), the Director, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, hereby determines that certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 shall not apply to the Treasury—ATF Criminal Investigation Report System.

(1) The Privacy Act of 1974 creates several methods by which individuals who are of record in this system of records may discover information collected about their criminal activities. These methods are as follows: subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1) allow individuals to ascertain whether their criminal activities have been recorded; subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H), and (f) (2), (3) and (5) establish the ability of individuals to gain access into the investigatory files maintained on their criminal activities; subsections (d) (2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(4) presuppose access and further enable individuals to contest the contents of their criminal files; subsection (c)(3) allows individuals to discover if other law enforcement agencies are investigating their criminal activities and subsection (e)(4)(I) discloses the categories of sources of records in the system. Since these subsections are variations upon the criminal subjects' ability to ascertain whether a Federal law enforcement agency has uncovered their criminal misdeeds, these subsections have been grouped together for purposes of this notice.

(A) With respect to subsections (e)(4) (G) and (f)(1), the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that imposition of these requirements would identify to individuals the fact that they are of record, and in so doing, compromise the ability of ATF to successfully complete an investigation into violations of law. Where individuals have the ability to discover the location and specific character of their investigative records in this system, they will be able to determine the nature of the investigation, the type of surveillance utilized and the precise stage of the investigation into their criminal activities. When individuals can determine that the investigation into their criminal activities has been closed, they are placed on notice that they may safely resume their illegal conduct. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1).

(B) With respect to subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(2), (3) and (5), the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that access into criminal investigative files poses present and future dangers on the ability of this agency to effectively enforce the criminal laws committed to its administration. Where individuals may break into an ongoing criminal investigative file they discover the collection of facts which will form the basis of their arrests. Knowledge of these facts enables them to destroy valuable contraband or other evidence of their activities prior to lawful seizure and thereby prevent enforcement proceedings. The ongoing investigative file may reveal that reasonable cause exists to believe that a crime is about to be committed. Disclosure of these facts enable individuals with criminal intent to either postpone the commission of their criminal acts or relocate the scene of the crime to an alternatively acceptable location where Federal agents will not be anticipated. After a criminal investigation has been closed, information in the file nevertheless reveals to the investigated subjects the techniques and procedures utilized by a law enforcement agency. Knowledge of these investigative techniques and procedures by individuals and groups devoted to crime enables them to structure their future operations in such a way as to place these activities beyond discovery until after the crime has been committed. Thus, the ability of Federal agents to prevent crime by apprehension of the criminals at the precise moment of commission of the criminal act is seriously jeopardized.

Disclosure of investigative techniques and procedures could further render the commission of the criminal act itself not susceptible to reconstruction and tracing to its originator. Armed with a knowledge of forensic science and the applied technology of criminal investigation contained in their own files, individuals and groups of individuals devoted to crime have the necessary information to develop counter-techniques which may effectively neutralize established investigative tools and procedures. Additionally, a closed criminal file reveals the identities of informers and undercover agents who have possibly risked their lives and the lives of their families by contributing information concerning the criminal activities of individuals and groups. Oftentimes, friends, family, neighbors and business associates of the subject under investigation, secure in the assured anonymity of a Federal criminal investigation, are not afraid to furnish valuable information relating to the criminal activities of the subjects of investigation. Where criminal subjects have access to the confidential information in their criminal files (with or without the identities of the sources) they can determine from the nature of the information and by process of elimination the identity of those individuals against whom to retaliate. This legitimate fear of reprisal exists in the minds of neighbors, relatives, and co-workers, especially with regard to individuals who are violence-prone or emotionally unstable. As a direct result of this fear of discovery through access to the investigative file, sources close to the criminal subject would decline to be interviewed or otherwise refrain from contact with the Bureau. This absence of information would render the Bureau unable to comply effectively with the mandates of the statutes committed to its administration. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(2), (3) and (5).

(C) With respect to subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(4), which presuppose access and provide for contest of the content of records contained in this system, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that the reasons set forth in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1) of this subsection are equally applicable to this subparagraph, and are hereby incorporated by reference. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(4).

(D) With respect to subsection (c)(3) which provides for making the accounting of disclosures available to the requester, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that access to this accounting by a subject under investigation would impair the ability of other law enforcement agencies to utilize information developed by ATF for their investigations into violations of criminal laws not enforced by ATF. Where the interstate criminal activities of individuals or groups span the jurisdictions of several law enforcement agencies, information will be shared by these agencies in their attempts to bring these violators to justice. Disclosure of the accounting will alert such individuals to which agencies are conducting investigations, the geographic locations of such investigations, the nature and purpose of the investigations, and the date during which the investigation received information maintained by ATF. Supplied with this information, individuals or groups may ascertain which of their criminal activities have been discovered and the law enforcement agencies which are in current pursuit. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (c)(3).

(E) With respect to subsection (e)(4)(I), which requires publication of the categories of sources for a record system, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that imposition of subsection (e)(4)(I) upon this system would reveal investigative techniques and procedures. For this reason, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (e)(4)(I).

(2) The Privacy Act of 1974 provides, at subsection (e)(1), that an agency may maintain only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency required to be accomplished by a statute or executive order of the President. The term "maintain" is defined in the Privacy Act to include the initial collection of information. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that exemption of this system from subsection (e)(1) is appropriate because not all violations uncovered in an investigation are capable of enforcement by ATF. Where individuals or groups are engaged in a multiplicity of criminal violations, this evidence should be recorded by ATF and transferred to the appropriate law enforcement agencies. This Bureau should not and cannot legally ignore violations of law uncovered in a lawful ATF investigation merely because ATF has no authority to bring the criminal to justice for these non-ATF violations. Where other agencies uncover evidence of ATF violations, this information must be susceptible to collection and preservation by that agency for subsequent use by ATF. Where an investigation by ATF uncovers only ATF violations, information may initially appear irrelevant and unnecessary when collected. However, a later stage of the investigation may uncover additional facts which when placed together with the initially collected irrelevant information, form the basis for reasonable cause to believe that additional suspects are involved or additional crimes have been or are being committed. Until all facts have been gathered and evaluated at the conclusion of the investigation it may not be possible to determine relevancy and necessity. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (e)(1).

(3) The Privacy Act of 1974 provides at subsection (e)(2) that an agency must collect information to the greatest extent practicable directly from the subject individual. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that this system should be exempted from subsection (e)(2) because most information gathered upon a subject under investigation is obtained from third parties and witnesses. There is a minimal degree of practicability in contacting a criminal subject for purposes of seeking information as to his criminal activities. Such contact alerts the individual that he is under investigation and affords him opportunity to conceal his criminal activities or otherwise avoid detection or apprehension. In certain instances, the subject of a criminal investigation is not required to supply information to investigators as a matter of legal right. Law violators seldom give self-incriminatory information about their involvement in criminal activities. In those instances, information relating to the subject's criminal activities must be obtained from other sources. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (e)(2).

(4) The Privacy Act of 1974 provides at subsection (e)(3) that each individual must be informed of the authority, principle purposes, and routine uses and effects on the individual when requested to provide information. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that this system should be exempted from subsection (e)(3). When information is obtained by undercover officers, conformity to (e)(3) discloses their identity as agents of a law enforcement authority and thereby impairs their physical safety as well as the successful conclusion of the investigation. When presented with a written statement complying with (e)(3) by special agents acting in undercover capacity, the individual may not thereafter be completely open with such agents. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (e)(3).

(5) The Privacy Act of 1974 provides at subsection (e)(5) that an agency maintain all records which are used in making any determination about an individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is reasonably necessary to assure fairness to the individual in the determination. Since the law defines "maintain" to include collection of information, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that this system should be exempt from subsection (e)(5) because it would prohibit the initial collection of any data not shown to be accurate, relevant, timely or complete at the moment of its collection. In gathering information during the course of a criminal investigation it is not feasible or possible to determine completeness, accuracy, timeliness or relevancy prior to collection of the information. Facts are first gathered then placed into a cohesive order which objectively proves or disproves criminal behavior on the part of a suspect. Seemingly irrelevant, untimely and incomplete information when gathered may acquire new significance as an investigation progresses. The restrictions of (e)(5) could impede special agents in the preparation of a complete investigative report. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (e)(5).

(6) The Privacy Act of 1974 provides, at subsection (e)(8), that an agency must make reasonable efforts to serve notice on an individual when his records are made available pursuant to compulsory legal process, when such process becomes a matter of public record. Such a requirement would impose unnecessary and unusual administrative demands on the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms by requiring a record system to follow up on legal process emanating from court proceedings to which ATF is not a party. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes the duty of serving notice in such a case properly rests with the moving party who seeks disclosure by utilization of the court's compulsory legal process. Further, in most cases where an individual's criminal records have been disclosed pursuant to compulsory legal process, the individual who is the subject of the records will be a party to the proceedings and will have actual notice of the disclosure. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (e)(8).

(7) The Privacy Act of 1974 provides, at subsection (g), civil remedies for agency failure to grant access, agency failure to amend records, agency failure to maintain accurate, relevant, timely and complete records and agency failure to comply with provisions of the Privacy Act which have an adverse effect on an individual. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that this system should be exempted from subsection (g) because the civil remedies provided in this subsection apply to provisions in the Privacy Act which have been exempted from application to this system by virtue of this notice. Since these provisions are not intended to apply to this system, there should be no corresponding civil penalty for failure to comply with the requirements of these sections due to exercise of the exemption authority. ATF believes that application of this subsection to this system of records would impair ATF's ability to conduct investigations into the criminal behavior of suspects because every step in the investigation process in which information is compiled for prosecution purposes would be susceptible to civil action under this subsection. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption of this system from subsection (g).

(b) Specific exemptions under § 552a (k)(2). Under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), the Director, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, hereby determines that certain provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 shall not apply to the Treasury—ATF—Regulatory Enforcement Record System, the Treasury—ATF—Technical and Scientific Services Record System, and that portion of the Treasury—ATF—Internal Security Record System relating to "conduct of employees" and "integrity of employees" records.

(1) The Privacy Act of 1974 creates several methods by which individuals may discover records containing information on such individuals and consisting of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes. These methods are as follows: subsection (c)(3) allows individuals to discover if other agencies are investigating such individuals; subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(2), (3) and (5) establish the ability of individuals to gain access to investigatory material compiled on such individuals; subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H) and (f)(4) presuppose access and enable individuals to contest the contents of investigatory material compiled on these individuals; and subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1) allow individuals to determine whether or not they are under investigation. Since these subsections are variations upon the individuals' ability to ascertain whether their civil or criminal misdeeds have been discovered, these subsections have been grouped together for purposes of this notice.

(A) The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that imposition of the requirements of subsection (c)(3), requiring accounting of disclosures be made available to individuals, would impair the ability of ATF and other investigative entities to conduct investigations of alleged or suspected violations of civil or criminal laws. Making the accounting of disclosures available identifies to individuals which investigative entities are investigating the individuals, the nature of the violations of which they are suspected, and the purpose for the exchange of information. Supplied with this information, the individuals concerned would be able to alter their ongoing and future illegal activities, conceal or destroy evidentiary materials and documents, and otherwise seriously impair the successful completion of investigations. Further, where individuals learn the geographic location and identity of the investigative entities which are interested in them, such individuals are able to move the site of their illegal activities or become secure in the knowledge that their illegal activities have not been detected in particular geographic locations. For these reasons, ATF seeks an exemption from the requirements of subsection (c)(3).

(B) With respect to subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(2), (3) and (5), the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that access into investigatory material would prevent the successful completion of ongoing investigations. Individuals who gain access to investigatory material compiled on them discover the nature and extent of the violations of civil or criminal laws which they are suspected or alleged to have committed. By gaining access, such individuals also learn the facts developed during an investigation. Knowledge of the facts and the nature and extent of the suspected or alleged violations enables these individuals to destroy materials or documents which would have been used as evidence against them. In addition, knowledge of the facts and the suspected violations gives individuals, who are committing ongoing violations or who are about to commit violations of civil or criminal laws, the opportunity to temporarily postpone the commission of the violations or to effectively disguise the commission of these violations. Access to material compiled on investigated individuals reveals investigative techniques and the procedures followed in conducting investigations. Disclosure of these techniques and procedures enables individuals who intend to violate civil or criminal laws to structure their future illegal activities in such a way that they escape detection. Investigative material may contain the identity of confidential sources of information. Individuals who gain access to investigatory material compiled on them learn the identity of these confidential sources. Even where the name of the source is not revealed, investigated individuals may learn the identity of confidential sources by the process of elimination or by the very nature of the information contained in the files. Where the identity of confidential sources has been revealed, they may be subject to various forms of reprisal. If confidential sources of information are subjected to reprisals or the fear of reprisals, they would become reluctant to provide information necessary to identify or prove the guilt of individuals who violate civil or criminal laws. Without the information that is often supplied by confidential sources, the ability of investigative entities would be seriously impaired. For the reasons stated in this subparagraph, ATF seeks exemption from the requirements of subsections (d)(1), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(2), (3) and (5).

(C) With respect to subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(4), the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that the imposition of these requirements, which presuppose access and provide for amending records, would impair ATF's ability to conduct investigations for the same reasons stated in the preceding subparagraph (b)(1)(B), and are incorporated by reference herein. Therefore, ATF seeks exemption from the requirements of subsections (d)(2), (3) and (4), (e)(4)(H), and (f)(4).

(D) With respect to subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1), the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that informing individuals that they are of record would impair the ability of ATF to successfully complete the investigations of suspected or alleged violators of civil or criminal laws. Individuals who are informed that they have been identified as suspected violators of civil or criminal laws, are given the opportunity to destroy evidence or other material needed to prove the alleged violations. Such individuals would also be able to impair investigations by temporarily suspending ongoing illegal activities or by restructuring intended illegal activities. Informing individuals that they are of record in a particular system of records enables such individuals to learn the nature of the investigation, the character of the investigatory material and the specific civil or criminal laws they are suspected of violating. For these reasons, ATF seeks exemption from the requirements of subsections (e)(4)(G) and (f)(1).

(2) Subsection (e)(1) of the Privacy Act of 1974 requires that ATF maintain in its records only information that is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of ATF required to be accomplished by statute or by executive order of the President. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms believes that imposition of such requirement would seriously impair the ability of ATF and other investigative entities to effectively investigate suspected or alleged violations of civil or criminal laws. Where individuals are engaged in a broad variety of violations, if ATF were only to collect information necessary and relevant to laws under ATF's jurisdiction, ATF would be unable to perform one of its functions, i.e., working with other governmental agencies which have similar jurisdictional concerns. Additionally, it is often impossible to determine whether or not information is relevant and necessary until the investigation is completed. When initially collected, information may appear irrelevant or immaterial. However, when this information is placed together with additional data gathered at a later stage of the investigation, the initially collected irrelevant information may form the basis for reasonable cause to believe additional violations of law are present or additional suspects are involved. Until all facts have been gathered and evaluated it may not be possible to determine relevancy and materiality. For these reasons, ATF seeks an exemption from the requirement of subsection (e)(1).

(c) Specific exemptions under § 552a (k)(5). The Director, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms exempts under § (k) of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a, that portion of the Treasury—ATF—Internal Security Record System relating to "security clearances for employees" records, and the Treasury—ATF—Personnel Record System from sections (c)(3), (d)(1) through (4), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) through (e)(4)(I), and (f) of the Act. The records maintained in the exempt systems of records are of the type described in section (k)(5) of the Act. Investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of this section, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

Thus to the extent that the records in this system can be disclosed without revealing the identity of a confidential source, they are not within the scope of this proposed exemption and are subject to all the requirements of the Privacy Act.

The sections of the Act from which this system of records are exempt are in general those providing for individual access to records. When such access would cause the identity of a confidential source to be revealed, it would impair the future ability of the Treasury Department to compile investigatory material for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts, or access to classified information.

In addition, the systems are exempt from § (e)(1) which requires that the agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a statutory or executively ordered purpose. The Director finds that to fulfill the requirements of § (e)(1) would unduly restrict the agency in its information gathering inasmuch as it is often not until well after the investigation that it is possible to determine the relevance and necessity of particular information.

If any investigations within the scope of § (k)(5) become involved with civil or criminal matters, exemptions from the Act could also be asserted under sections (k)(2) or (j)(2).

(d) Application of exemptions to records exempt in whole or in part. (1) When an individual requests records about himself which have been exempted from individual access pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) or which have been compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceding in either a court or before an administrative tribunal, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms will neither confirm nor deny the existence of the record but shall advise the individual only that no record available to him pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974 has been identified.

(2) When there is a request for information which has been classified by ATF pursuant to Executive Order 11652 and Treasury Order 160, ATF will review the information to determine whether it continues to warrant classification under the criteria of sections 1 and 5(B), (C), (D), and (E) of the Executive Order. Information which no longer warrants classification under these criteria shall be declassified. After declassification, the information shall be made available to the individual, unless an exemption is claimed. If the information continues to warrant classification, the provisions of EO 11652 shall apply.

(3) Requests for information which have been exempted from disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2) shall be responded to in the manner provided in paragraph (d)(1) of this section unless a review of the information indicates that the information has been used to deny the individual any right, privilege, or benefit for which he is eligible or to which he would otherwise be entitled under federal law. In that event, the individual shall be advised of the existence of the information and shall be provided the information except to the extent it would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(4) Information compiled as part of an employee background investigation which has been exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(5) shall be made available to an individual upon request except to the extent it would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to September 27, 1975, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

(5) Even though the exemptions described in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section may be fully applicable, the Bureau may, if not precluded by law, elect under the circumstances of a particular case not to apply the exemption; or to exempt only a part. The fact that the exemption is not applied by the Bureau in a particular case has no precedential significance as to the application of the exemption to such matter in other cases. It is merely an indication that in the particular case involved, the Bureau finds no compelling necessity for applying the exemption to such matter. Where the Bureau has elected not to apply an exemption in whole or in part, Appendix E of 31 CFR Part 1, Subpart C, relating to ATF's notice, access and amendment procedures shall apply to the records requested only to the extent that the exemption was not asserted.

BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Notice of rules exempting certain systems from requirements of the Privacy Act

(a) In general. The Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing exempts the Office of Security Investigative Files from the provisions of certain subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Privacy Act of 1974. The purpose of the exemptions is to maintain the confidentiality of information compiled for the purpose of criminal, non-criminal, employee suitability and security investigations.

(b) Authority. These rules are promulgated pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by 5 U.S.C. 552a(k) and pursuant to the authority vested in the Director, Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

(c) Exempted System. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Office of Security, Investigative Files.

(1) Provisions from which exempted. The Investigative Files maintained by the Office of Security contain records described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemptions will be claimed for such described records only where appropriate from the following provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974: Subsections (c)(3); (d) (1), (2), (3), (4); (e)(1); (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I); and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(2) Reasons for claimed exemptions. a. 5 U.S.C. 552a(c)(3): This provision of the Privacy Act provides for the release of the disclosure accounting required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c) (1) and (2) to the individual named in the Investigative Files. The reasons why these files are exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) The release of accounting disclosures would put the subject of a security investigation on notice of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation;

(ii) It would provide the subject of an investigation with an accurate accounting of the date, nature, and purpose of each disclosure and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. Obviously, the release of such information to the subject of a security investigation would provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation and could result in impeding or compromising the efforts of Bureau Security personnel to detect and report persons suspected of illegal, unlawful, or unauthorized activity;

(iii) Disclosure to the individual of the disclosure accounting after the investigation is closed would alert the individual as to which agencies were investigating him and would put him on notice concerning the scope of his suspected improper activities and could aid him in avoiding detection and apprehension.

b. 5 U.S.C. 552a(d) (1), (2), (3), (4); (e)(4) (G) and (H); and (f): The foregoing provisions of the Privacy Act relate to an individual's right to notification of the existence of records pertaining to him and access to such records; the agency procedures relating to notification, access and contest of the information continued in such records. The reasons why the Investigative Files are exempted from the foregoing provisions are as follows:

(i) To notify an individual at his request of the existence of records pertaining to him in the Investigative Files would inform the individual of the existence of an investigation and that he is the subject of that investigation. This would enable the individual to avoid detection and would further enable him to inform co-conspirators of the fact that an investigation is being conducted;

(ii) To permit access to the records contained in the Investigative Files would not only inform an individual that he is or was the subject of a security investigation, but would also provide him with significant information concerning the nature of the investigation which might enable him to avoid detection or apprehension;

(iii) To grant access to an on-going or closed investigative file could interfere with Office of Security investigative proceedings, disclose the identity of confidential sources and reveal confidential information supplied by such sources, and disclose investigative techniques and procedures, or endanger the life or physical safety of Office of Security personnel, informants, witnesses, and other persons supplying information to investigators.

c. 5 U.S.C. a(e)(4)(I). This provision of the Privacy Act requires the publication of the categories of sources of records in each system of records. The reasons why the Investigative Files are exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) Revealing sources of information could disclose investigative techniques and procedures;

(ii) Revealing sources of information could result in retaliation and threat of reprisal by the subject under investigation against such sources;

(iii) Revealing sources of information could cause witnesses, informants and others who supply information to Office of Security investigators to refrain from giving such information because of fear of reprisal, or fear of breach of promises of anonymity and confidentiality;

(iv) Revealing sources of information could result in the refusal of some sources to give full and complete information or to be candid with investigators because of the knowledge that the identity of such sources may be disclosed.

d. 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(1): This provision of the Privacy Act requires each agency to maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a purpose of the agency. The reasons why the Investigative Files are exempted from the foregoing provision are as follows:

(i) In a security investigation it is difficult to determine accurately the relevancy and necessity of information during the process of information gathering. It is only after the information is evaluated that the relevancy and necessity of such information can be ascertained;

(ii) In a security investigation, the Office of Security often obtains information concerning the violation of laws other than those within the scope of its responsibilities. In the interest of effective law enforcement, it is desirable that the Office of Security retain this information since it can aid in establishing patterns of criminal activity and provide valuable leads for those law enforcement agencies that are charged with enforcing other segments of the criminal law;

(iii) In interviewing persons, or obtaining other forms of evidence during a criminal investigation, information will be supplied to the investigator which relates to matters which are ancillary to the main purpose of the investigation but which may relate to matters under the investigative jurisdiction of another agency. Such information is not readily susceptible to segregation.

e. The foregoing exemptions are claimed for materials maintained in the Investigative Files to the extent that such materials contain information and reports described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2).

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing exempts under § (k) of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 USC 552a, the Bureau's Personnel Security Files and Personnel Security Files and Indices from sections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G) through (e)(4)(I), and (f) of the Act. The records maintained in the exempt systems of records are of the type described in section (k)(5) of the Act:

> investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, military service, Federal contracts, or access to classified information, but only to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished the information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of this section, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

Thus to the extent that the records in this system can be disclosed without revealing the identity of a confidential source, they are not within the scope of this exemption and are subject to all the requirements of the Privacy Act.

The sections of the Act from which this system of records are exempt are in general those providing for individual access to records. When such access would cause the identity of a confidential source to be revealed, it would impair the future ability of the Treasury Department to compile investigatory material for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment, Federal contracts, or access to classified information.

In addition, the systems are exempt from § (e)(1) which requires that the agency maintain in its records only such information about an individual as is relevant and necessary to accomplish a statutory or executively ordered purpose. The Director finds that to fulfill the requirements of § (e)(1) would unduly restrict the agency in its information gathering inasmuch as it is often not until well after the investigation that it is possible to determine the relevance and necessity of particular information.

If any investigations within the scope of § (k)(5) become involved with civil and criminal matters, exemptions from the Act should also be asserted under sections (k)(2) or (j)(2).

BUREAU OF THE MINT

Notice of rules exempting certain systems from requirements of the Privacy Act

(a) In general. The Director of the Mint exempts investigatory files on theft of Mint property and examination reports of coins forwarded to the Mint by the U.S. Secret Service from certain subsections of 5 U.S.C. 552a, the Privacy Act of 1974. The purpose of the exemption is to maintain the confidentiality of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes.

(b) Authority. These rules are promulgated pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(k)(2), and pursuant to the authority vested in the Director of the Mint by paragraph 1.23(c) of Subpart C of Part 1 of Subtitle A of Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) Name of systems. Examination Reports of Coins Forwarded to Mint from U.S. Secret Service and Investigatory Files on Theft of Mint Property.

(d) Provisions from which exempted. These two systems consist in large part of records generated by the U.S. Secret Service in connection with its responsibilities to enforce various criminal laws. Those records are described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(j) and are exempted from various provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 by the Director of the U.S. Secret Service. To a lesser extent, these two systems also contain records generated and compiled by the Bureau of the Mint in assisting the U.S. Secret Service in its law enforcement efforts. Those records are described in 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), the Privacy Act of 1974. Exemptions will be claimed for such records only where appropriate from the following provisions, subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I) and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a.

(e) Reasons for claimed exemptions. Those provisions of the Privacy Act would otherwise require the Bureau of the Mint to notify an individual of investigatory material maintained in a record pertaining to him, permit access to such record, permit request for its correction (section 552a(d), (e)(4)(G), (H) and (f)); make available to him any required accounting of disclosures made of the record (section 552a(c)(3)), publish the sources of records in the system (section 552a(e)(4)(I)); and screen records to insure that there is maintained only such information about an individual as is relevant to accomplish a required purpose of the Bureau (section 552a(e)(1)). Disclosure to an individual of investigatory material pertaining to him would hamper law enforcement by prematurely disclosing the knowledge of illegal activities and the evidentiary bases for possible enforcement actions. Furthermore, the disclosure of certain investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes may disclose investigative techniques and procedures, so that future law enforcement efforts would be hindered. Access to an accounting of disclosures of such records would have a similar detrimental effect on law enforcement. Accordingly, the Director of the Mint finds that the public interest and public policy in protecting the coinage and property of the United States require exemption from the stated sections of the Act to the extent that they are applicable to appropriate materials in these two systems.

COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY

Notice of rules exempting certain systems of records from the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974

In general. Notice is hereby given that the Comptroller of the Currency exempts certain systems of its records. They are the following: (1) Information file on individual and commercial entities known or suspected of being involved in fraudulent activities and (2) Federal Bureau of Investigation Reports relating to persons charged with or suspected of criminal activity concerning National Banks. The Department of Justice has exempted these systems of records from certain provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a (see Justice Department Exemptions). The purpose of these exemptions is to maintain the confidentiality of information compiled for the purpose of criminal investigation.

Authority. The authority to issue exemptions for this agency is vested in the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k) but has been delegated by the Secretary to the Comptroller 31 CFR 1.23(c).

The authority to rely upon the exemption promulgated by the Department of Justice for its records which are disseminated to our agency is set forth at 5 U.S.C. 552a, Section 6 and Office of Management and Budget Guidelines for the implementation of the Privacy Act (40 FR 28971-28974).

APPENDIX A—OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

1. In general. This appendix applies to the Office of the Secretary as defined in 31 CFR Part 1, Subpart C § 1.20. It sets forth specific notification and access procedures with respect to particular systems of records, identifies the officers designated to make the initial determinations with respect to notification and access to records, the officers designated to make the initial and appellate determinations with respect to requests for amendment of records, the officers designated to grant extensions of time on appeal, the officers with which "Statements of Disagreement" may be filed, the officer designated to receive service of process and the addresses for delivery of requests, appeals and service of process. In addition, it references the official annual notice of systems of records and notices of the intended uses of the information in the system required by 5 U.S.C. 552a (e)(4) and (11) and published by the General Services Administration as "Notices of Records Systems".

2. Requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures. Initial determinations under 31 CFR § 1.26, as to whether to grant requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures for the Office of the Secretary will be made by the head of the organizational unit having immediate custody of the records requested, or his delegate as indicated in the appropriate system notice in "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration. Requests for information and specific guidance on where to send requests for records should be addressed to:

Privacy Act Request, OS, Department of the Treasury, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20220.

Requests may be delivered personally to the Library, Room 5030, Main Treasury Building, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C.

3. Requests for amendments of records. Initial determinations under 31 CFR § 1.27(a) through (d) as to whether to grant requests to amend records for the Office of the Secretary will be made by the head of the organization or unit having immediate custody of the records or his delegate. Requests for amendment of records should be addressed as indicated in the appropriate system notice in "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration. Requests for information and specific guidance on where to send such requests should be addressed to:

Privacy Act Amendment Request, OS, Department of the Treasury, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20220.

4. Administrative appeal of initial determination refusing to amend record. Appellate determinations under 31 CFR § 1.27(e) with respect to records of the Office of the Secretary (including extensions of time on appeal) will be made by the Secretary, Deputy Secretary, Under Secretary, General Counsel or Assistant Secretary having jurisdiction over the organizational unit which has immediate custody of the records, or the delegate of such officer, as limited by 5 U.S.C. 552a (d)(2) and (3). Appeals made from initial determinations refusing to amend records made by mail should be addressed as indicated in the letter of initial decision or to:

Privacy Act Amendment Appeal, OS, Department of the Treasury, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20220.

Appeals may be delivered personally to the Library, Room 5030, Main Treasury Building, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C.

5. Statements of Disagreement. "Statements of Disagreement" pursuant to 31 CFR § 1.27(e)(4)(i) shall be filed with the official signing the notification of refusal to amend at the address indicated in the letter of notification within 35 days of the date of such notification and should be limited to one page.

6. Service of process. Service of process will be received by the General Counsel of the Department of the Treasury or his delegate and shall be delivered to such officer at the following location:

General Counsel, Department of the Treasury, Room 3000, Main Treasury Building, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20220.

7. Annual notice of systems of records. The annual notice of systems of records required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) with respect to records maintained by the Office of the Secretary is set forth in the General Services Administration publication entitled "Notices of Records Systems". Any specific requirements for access, including identification requirements, in addition to the requirements set forth in 31 CFR § 1.26 and § 1.27 and (8) below, and locations for access are indicated in the notice for the pertinent system.

(8) Verification of identity. An individual seeking notification or access to records, or seeking to amend a record, must satisfy one of the following identification requirements before action will be taken by the Office of the Secretary on any such request:

(i) An individual seeking notification or access to records in person, or seeking to amend a record in person, may establish identity by the presentation of a single document bearing a photograph (such as a passport or identification badge) or by the presentation of two items of identification which do not bear a photograph but do bear both a name and signature (such as a driver's license or credit card).

(ii) An andividual seeking notification or access to records by mail, or seeking to amend a record by mail, may establish identity by a signature, address, and one other identifier such as a photocopy of a driver's license or other document bearing the individual's signature.

(iii) Notwithstanding subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph, an individual seeking notification or access to records by mail or in person, or seeking to maend a record by mail or in person, who so desires, may establish identity by providing a notarized statement, swearing or affirming to such individual's identity and to the fact that the individual understands the penalties provided in 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3) for requesting or obtaining access to records under false pretenses.

Notwithstanding subdivision (i), (ii), or (iii) of this subparagraph, a designated official may require additional proof of an individual's identity before action will be taken on any request if such official determines that it is necessary to protect against unauthorized disclosure of information in a particular case. In addition, a parent of any minor or a legal guardian of any individual will be required to provide adequate proof of legal relationship before such person may act on behalf of such minor or such individual.

APPENDIX B—INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

(a) Purpose. The purpose of this section is to set forth the procedures which have been established by the Internal Revenue Service for individuals to exercise their rights under the Privacy Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 1896) with respect to systems of records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, including the Office of the Chief Counsel. The proposed procedures contained in this section are to be promulgated under the authority of 5 U.S.C. 552a (f). The procedures contained in this section relate to the following:

(1) The procedures whereby an individual can be notified in response to a request if a system of records named by the individual contains a record pertaining to such individual (5 U.S.C. 552a (f)(1)).

(2) The procedures governing reasonable times, places, and requirements for identifying an individual who requests a record of information pertaining to such individual before the Internal Revenue Service will make the record or information available to the individual (5 U.S.C. 552a (f)(2)).

(3) The procedures for the disclosure to an individual upon a request of a record of information pertaining to such individual, including special procedure for the disclosure to an individual of medical records, including psychological records (5 U.S.C. 552a (f)(3)).

(4) The procedures for reviewing a request from an individual concerning the amendment of any record or information pertaining to the individual, for making a determination on the request, for an appeal within the Internal Revenue Service of an initial adverse agency determination, and for whatever additional means may be necessary for individuals to be able to exercise fully their right under 5 U.S.C. 552a (5 U.S.C. 552a (f)(4)).

Any individual seeking to determine whether a system of records maintained by any office of the Internal Revenue Service contains a record or information pertaining to such individual, or seeking access to, or amendment of, such a record, must comply fully with the applicable procedure contained in paragraph (c) or (d) of this section before the Internal Revenue Service will act on the request. Neither the notification and access (or accounting of disclosures) procedures under paragraph (c) of this section nor the amendment procedures under paragraph (d) of this section are applicable to (i) systems of records exempted pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a (j) and (k), (ii) information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding (see 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(5)), or (iii) information pertaining to an individual which is contained in, and inseparable from, another individual's record.

(b) Access to and amendment of tax records. The provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 may not be availed of by an individual to amend or correct any tax record. The determination of liability for taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code, the collection of such taxes, and the payment (including credits or refunds of overpayments) of such taxes are governed by the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and by the procedural rules of the Internal Revenue Service. These provisions set forth the established procedures governing the determination of liability for tax, the collection of such taxes, and the payment (including credits or refunds of overpayments) of such taxes. In addition, these provisions set forth the procedures (including procedures for judicial review) for resolving disputes between taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service involving the amount of tax owed, or the payment or collection of such tax. These procedures are the exclusive means available to an individual to contest the amount of any liability for tax or the payment or collection thereof. See, for example, 26 CFR § 601.103 for summary of general tax procedures. Individuals are advised that Internal Revenue Service procedures permit the examination of certain tax records during the course of an investigation, audit, or collection activity. Accordingly, individuals should contact the Internal Revenue Service employee conducting an audit or effecting the collection of tax liabilities to gain access to such records, rather than seeking access under the provisions of the Privacy Act. Where, on the other hand, an individual desires information or records not in connection with an investigation, audit, or collection activity, the individual may follow these procedures.

(c) Procedures for access to records—(1) In general. This paragraph sets forth the procedure whereby an individual can be notified in response to a request if a system of records named by the individual which is maintained by the Internal Revenue Service contains a record pertaining to such individual. In addition, this paragraph sets forth the procedure for the disclosure to an individual upon a request of a record or information pertaining to such individual, including procedures for verifying the identity of the individual before the Internal Revenue Service will make a record available, and the procedure for requesting an accounting of disclosures of such records. An individual seeking to determine whether a particular system of records contains a record or records pertaining to such individual and seeking access to such records (or seeking an accounting of disclosures of such records) shall make a request for notification and access (or a request for an accounting of disclosures) in accordance with the rules provided in paragraph (c)(2) of this section.

(2) Form of request for notification and access or request for an accounting of disclosures. (i) A request for notification and access (or a request for an accounting of disclosures) shall be made in writing and shall be signed by the person making the request.

(ii) Such request shall be clearly marked "Request for notification and access", or "Request for accounting of disclosures".

(iii) Such request shall contain a statement that it is being made under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(iv) Such request shall contain the name and address of the individual making the request. In addition, if a particular system employs an individual's social security number as an essential means of accessing the system, the request must include the individual's social security number. In the case of a record maintained in the name of two or more individuals (e.g., husband and wife), the request shall contain the names, addresses, and social security numbers (if necessary) of both individuals.

(v) Such request shall specify the name and location of the particular system of records (as set forth in the Notice of Systems) for which the individual is seeking notification and access (or an accounting of disclosures), and the title and business address of the official designated in the access section for the particular system (as set forth in the Notice of Systems). In the case of two or more systems of records which are under the control of the same designated official at the same systems location, a single request may be made for such systems. In the case of two or more systems of records which are not in the control of the same designated official at the same systems location, a separate request must be made for each such system.

(vi) If an individual wishes to limit a request for notification and access to a particular record or records, the request should identify the particular record. In the absence of a statement to the contrary, a request for notification and access for a particular system of records shall be considered to be limited to records which are currently maintained by the designated official at the systems location specified in the request.

(vii) If such request is seeking notification and access to material maintained in a system of records which is exempt from disclosure and access under 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), the individual making the request must establish that such individual has been denied a right, privilege, or benefit that such individual would otherwise be entitled to under Federal law as a result of the maintenance of such material.

(viii) Such request shall state whether the individual wishes to inspect the record in person, or desires to have a copy made and furnished without first inspecting it. If the individual desires to have a copy made, the request must include an agreement to pay the fee for duplication ultimately determined to be due. If the individual does not wish to inspect a record, but merely wishes to be notified whether a particular system of records contains a record pertaining to such individual, the request should so state.

(3) Time and place for making request. A request for notification and access to records under the Privacy Act (or a request for accounting of disclosures) shall be addressed to or delivered in person to the office of the official designated in the access section for the particular system of records for which the individual is seeking notification and access (or an accounting of disclosures). The title and office address of such official is set forth for each system of records in the Notice of Systems of Records. A request delivered to an office in person must be delivered during the regular office hours of that office.

(4) Sample request for notification and access to records. The following are sample requests for notification and access to records which will satisfy the requirements of this paragraph:

REQUEST FOR NOTIFICATION AND ACCESS TO RECORDS BY MAIL

I, John Doe, of 100 Main Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02108 (soc. sec. num. 000-00-0000) request under the Privacy Act of 1974 that the following system of records be examined and that I be furnished with a copy of any record (or a specified record) contained therein pertaining to me. I agree that I will pay the fees ultimately determined to be due for duplication of such record. I have enclosed the necessary identification.

SYSTEM NAME:
SYSTEM LOCATION:
DESIGNATED OFFICIAL:

John Doe

REQUEST FOR NOTIFICATION AND ACCESS TO RECORDS IN PERSON

I, John Doe, of 100 Main Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02108 (soc. sec. num. 000-00-0000) request under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974, that the following system of records be examined and that I be granted access in person to inspect any record (or a specified record) contained therein pertaining to me. I have enclosed the necessary identification.

SYSTEM NAME:
SYSTEM LOCATION:

John Doe

(5) Processing a request for notification and access to records or a request for an accounting of disclosures. If a request for notification and access (or request for an accounting of disclosures) omits any information which is essential to processing the request, the request will not be acted upon and the individual making the request will be promptly advised of the additional information which must be submitted before the request can be processed.

(ii) Within 30 days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of a request for notification and access (or a request for an accounting of disclosures), to a particular system of records by the designated official for such system, a determination will be made as to whether the particular system of records is exempt from the notification and access provisions of the Privacy Act, and if such system is not exempt, whether it does or does not contain a record pertaining to the individual making the request. If a determination cannot be made within 30 days, the individual will be notified of the delay, the reasons therefor, and the approximate time required to make a determination. If it is determined by the designated official that the particular system of records is exempt from the notification and access provisions of the Privacy Act, the individual making the request will be notified of the provision of the Privacy Act under which the exemption is claimed. On the other hand, if it is determined by the designated official that the particular system of records is not exempt from the notification and access provisions of the Privacy Act and that such system contains a record pertaining to the individual making the request, the individual will be notified of the time and place where inspection may be made. If an individual has not requested that access be granted to inspect the record in person, but merely requests that a copy of the record be furnished, or if it is determined by the designated official that the granting of access to inspect a record in person is not feasible in a particular case, then the designated official will furnish a copy of the record with the notification, or if a copy cannot be furnished at such time, a statement indicating the approximate time such copy will be furnished. If the request is for an accounting of disclosures from a system of records which is not exempt from the accounting of disclosure provisions of the Privacy Act, the individual will be furnished with an accounting of such disclosures.

(6) Granting of access. Normally, an individual will be granted access to inspect a record in person within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of a request for notification and access by the designated official. If access cannot be granted within 30 days, the notification will state the reasons for the delay and the approximate time such access will be granted. An individual wishing to inspect a record may be accompanied by another person of his choosing. Both the individual seeking access and the individual accompanying him may be required to sign a form supplied by the Internal Revenue Service indicating that the Service is authorized to disclose or discuss the contents of the record in the presence of both individuals. See 26 CFR 601.502 for requirements to be met by taxpayer's representatives in order to be recognized for the purpose of discussing the contents of any tax records.

(7) Medical records. When access is requested to medical records (including psychological records), the designated official may determine that release of such records will be made only to a physician designated by the individual to have access to such records.

(8) Verification of identity. An individual seeking notification or access to records, or seeking to amend a record, must satisfy one of the following identification requirements before action will be taken by the Internal Revenue Service on any such request.

(i) An individual seeking notification or access to records in person, or seeking to amend a record in person, may establish identity by the presentation of a single document bearing a photograph (such as a passport or identification badge) or by the presentation of two items of identification which do not bear a photograph but do bear both a name and signature (such as a driver's license or credit card).

(ii) An individual seeking notification or access to records by mail, or seeking to amend a record by mail, may establish identity by a signature, address, and one other identifier such as a photocopy of a driver's license or other document bearing the individual's signature.

(iii) Notwithstanding subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph, an individual seeking notification or access to records by mail or in person, or seeking to amend a record by mail or in person, who so desires, may establish identity by providing a notarized statement, swearing or affirming to such individual's identity and to the fact that the individual understands the penalties provided in 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3) for requesting or obtaining access to records under false pretenses.

Notwithstanding subdivision (i), (ii), or (iii) of this subparagraph, a designated official may require additional proof of an individual's identity before action will be taken on any request if such official determines that it is necessary to protect against unauthorized disclosure of information in a particular case. In addition, a parent of any minor or a legal guardian of any individual will be required to provide adequate proof of legal relationship before such person may act on behalf of such minor or such individual.

(9) Fees. The fee for costs required of the Internal Revenue Service in copying records pursuant to this paragraph is $0.10 per page. However, no fee will be charged if the aggregate costs required of the Internal Revenue Service in copying records is less than $3.00. If an individual who has requested access to inspect a record in person is denied such access by the designated official because it would not be feasible in a particular case, copies of such record will be furnished to the individual without payment of the fees otherwise required under this subparagraph. If the Internal Revenue Service estimates that the total fees for costs incurred in complying with a request for copies of records will amount to $50 or more, the individual making the request may be required to enter into a contract for the payment of the actual fees with respect to the request before the Service will furnish the copies requested. Payment of fees for copies of records should be made by check or money order payable to the Internal Revenue Service.

(d) Procedures for amendment of records—(1) In general. This paragraph sets forth the procedures for reviewing a request from an individual concerning the amendment of any record or information pertaining to such individual, for making a determination on the request, for making an appeal within the Internal Revenue Service of an initial adverse determination, and for judicial review of a final determination.

(2) Amendment of record. Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(2), an individual who has been granted access to a record pertaining to such individual may, after inspecting the record, request that the record be amended to make any correction of any portion thereof which the individual believes is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. An individual seeking to amend a record shall make a request to amend a record in accordance with the rules provided in paragraph (d)(3) of this section. See paragraph (b) of this section for prohibition against amendment of tax records.

(3) Form of request for amendment of record. (i) A request for amendment of a record shall be in writing and shall be signed by the individual making the request.

(ii) Such request shall be clearly marked "Request for amendment of record."

(iii) Such request shall contain a statement that it is being made under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(iv) Such request shall contain the name and address of the individual making the request. In addition, if a particular system employs an individual's social security number as an essential means of accessing the system, the request must include the individual's social security number. In the case of a record maintained in the name of two or more individuals (e.g., husband and wife), the request shall contain the names, addresses, and social security numbers (if necessary) of both individuals.

(v) Such request shall specify the name and location of the system of records (as set forth in the Notice of Systems) in which such record is maintained, and the title and business address of the official designated in the access section for such system (as set forth in the Notice of Systems).

(vi) Such request shall specify the particular record in the system which the individual is seeking to amend.

(vii) Such request shall clearly state the specific changes which the individual wishes to make in the record and a concise explanation of the reasons for the changes. If the individual wishes to correct or add any information, the request shall contain specific language making the desired correction or addition.

(4) Time and place for making request. A request to amend a record under the Privacy Act shall be addressed to or delivered in person to the office of the official designated in the access section for the particular system of records. The title and office address of such official is set forth for each system of records in the Notice of Systems of Records. A request delivered to an office in person must be delivered during the regular office hours of that office.

(5) Processing a request for amendment of a record. (i) Within 10 days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of a request to amend a record by the designated official, the individual will be sent a written acknowledgement that the request has been received. The acknowledgement will state that the request has been received, that action is being taken thereon, and that the individual will be notified within 30 days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of the request whether the requested amendments will or will not be made. If a request for amendment of a record omits any information which is essential to processing the request, the request will not be acted upon and the individual making the request will be promptly advised of the additional information which must be submitted before the request can be processed.

(ii) Within 30 days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of a request to amend a record by the designated official, a determination will be made as to whether to grant the request in whole or in part. The individual will then be notified in writing of the determination. If a determination cannot be made within 30 days, the individual will be notified in writing within such time of the reasons for the delay and the approximate time required to make a determination. If it is determined by the designated official that the request will be granted, the requested changes will be made in the record and the individual will be notified of the changes. In addition, to the extent an accounting was maintained, all prior recipients of such record will be notified of the changes. Upon request, an individual will be furnished with a copy of the record as amended subject to the payment of the appropriate fees. On the other hand, if it is determined by the designated official that the request, or any portion thereof, will not be granted, the individual will be notified in writing of the adverse determination. The notification of an adverse determination will set forth the reasons for the refusal to amend the record. In addition, the notification will contain a statement informing the individual of such individual's right to request an independent review of the adverse determination by a reviewing officer in the national office of the Internal Revenue Service and the procedures for requesting such a review.

(6) Administrative review of adverse determination. Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(3), an individual who disagrees with the refusal of the agency to amend a record may, within 35 days of being notified of the adverse determination, request an independent review of such refusal by a reviewing officer in the national office of the Internal Revenue Service. The reviewing officer for the Internal Revenue Service is the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the Deputy Commissioner, or an Assistant Commissioner. In the case of an adverse determination relating to a system of records maintained by the Office of the Chief Counsel for the Internal Revenue Service, the reviewing officer is the Chief Counsel or his delegate. An individual seeking a review of an adverse determination shall make a request for review in accordance with the rules provided in paragraph (d)(7) of this section.

(7) Form of request for review. (i) A request for review of an adverse determination shall be in writing and shall be signed by the individual making the request.

(ii) Such request shall be clearly marked "Request for review of adverse determination".

(iii) Such request shall contain a statement that it is being made under the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974.

(iv) Such request shall contain the name and address of the individual making the request. In addition, if a particular system employs an individual's social security number as an essential means of accessing the system, the request must include the individual's social security number. In the case of a record maintained in the name of two or more individuals (e.g., husband and wife), the request shall contain the names, addresses, and social security numbers (if necessary) of both individuals.

(v) Such request shall specify the particular record which the individual is seeking to amend, the name and location of the system of records (as set forth in the Notice of Systems) in which such record is maintained, and the title and business address of the designated official for such system (as set forth in the Notice of Systems).

(vi) Such request shall include the date of the initial request for amendment of the record, and the date of the letter notifying the individual of the initial adverse determination with respect to such request.

(vii) Such request shall clearly state the specific changes which the individual wishes to make in the record and a concise explanation of the reasons for the changes. If the individual wishes to correct or add any information, the request shall contain specific language making the desired correction or addition.

(8) Time and place for making the request. A request for review of an adverse determination under the Privacy Act shall be addressed to or delivered in person to the Chief, Disclosure Staff, Attention: CP:D, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224. A request for review of an adverse determination will be promptly referred by the Chief, Disclosure Staff to the appropriate reviewing officer for his view and final determination.

(9) Processing a request for review of adverse determination. Within 30 days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of a request for review of an adverse determination by the appropriate reviewing officer, the reviewing officer will review the initial adverse determination, make a final determination whether to grant the request to amend the record in whole or in part, and notify the individual in writing of the final determination. If a final determination cannot be made within 30 days, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may extend such 30-day period, and the individual will be notified in writing within such time of the cause for the delay and the approximate time required to make a final determination. If it is determined by the reviewing officer that the request to amend the record will be granted, the reviewing officer will cause the requested changes to be made and the individual will be so notified. Upon request, an individual will be furnished with a copy of the record as amended subject to the payment of appropriate fees. On the other hand, if it is determined by the reviewing officer that the request to amend the record, or any portion thereof, will not be granted, the individual will be notified in writing of the final adverse determination. The notification of a final adverse determination will set forth the reasons for the refusal of the reviewing officer to amend the record. The notification shall include a statement informing the individual of the right to submit a concise statement for insertion in the record setting forth the reasons for the disagreement with the refusal of the reviewing officer to amend the record. In addition, the notification will contain a statement informing the individual of the right to seek judicial review by a United States district court of a final adverse determination.

(10) Statement of disagreement. Under 5 U.S.C. 552a(d)(3), an individual who disagrees with a final adverse determination not to amend a record subject to amendment under the Privacy Act may submit a concise statement for insertion in the record setting forth the reasons for disagreement with the refusal of the reviewing officer to amend the record. A statement of disagreement should be addressed to or delivered in person to the Chief, Disclosure Staff, Attention: CP:D, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224. The Chief, Disclosure Staff will forward the statement of disagreement to the appropriate designated official who will cause the statement to be inserted in the individual's record. Any such statement will be available to anyone to whom the record is subsequently disclosed and the prior recipients of the record will be provided with a copy of the statement of disagreement to the extent an accounting of disclosures was maintained.

(11) Judicial review. If, after a review and final determination on a request to amend a record by the appropriate reviewing officer, the individual is notified that the request will not be granted, or if, after the expiration of 30 days (not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) from the receipt of such request by the Chief, Disclosure Staff, action is not taken thereon in accordance with the requirements of paragraph (d)(9) of this section, an individual may commence an action within the time prescribed by law in a U.S. district court pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(g)(1). The statute authorizes an action only against the agency. With respect to records maintained by the Internal Revenue Service, the agency is the Internal Revenue Service, not an officer or employee thereof. Service of process in such an action shall be in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (28 U.S.C. App.) applicable to actions against an agency of the United States. Where provided in such Rules, delivery of process upon the Internal Revenue Service must be directed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: CC:GLS, 1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224. The district court will determine the matter de novo.

(e) Records transferred to Federal Records Centers. Records transferred to the Administrator of General Services for storage in a Federal Records Center are not used by the Internal Revenue Service in making any determination about any individual while stored at such location and therefore are not subject to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(5) during such time.

Appendix C—United States Customs Service

1. In general. This appendix applies to the United States Customs Service. It sets forth specific notification and access procedures with respect to particular systems of records and identifies the officers designated to make the initial determinations with respect to notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures of records, sets forth the specific procedures for requesting amendment of records and identifies the officers designated to make the initial and appellate determinations with respect to requests for amendment of records, identifies the officers designated to grant extensions of time on appeal, the officers with whom "Statements of Disagreement" may be filed and the officer designated to receive service of process, and sets forth the addresses for delivery of requests, appeals and service of process. In addition, it references the official annual notice of systems of records and notices of the intended uses of the information in the system required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) and (11) and published by the General Services Administration as "Notices of Records Systems."

2. Requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures. (a) For records which are not maintained at Customs Service Headquarters, initial requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures under 31 CFR 1.26 should be mailed or personally delivered in writing to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, United States Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229, or to the Regional Commissioner of Customs in whose region the records are located, and such officials shall have the authority to grant the request, and, in the case of a Regional Commissioner, to deny the request; any denial of a request directed to Customs Service Headquarters will be made by the Assistant Commissioner, Office of Regulations and Rulings. A request directed to a Regional Commissioner should be mailed to or personally delivered at the appropriate location specified in Customs Appendix A to the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration. It is suggested that requests pertaining to records not maintained at Customs Service Headquarters be directed to the appropriate Regional Commissioner in order to ensure expeditious handling of the request.

(b) For records which are maintained at Customs Service Headquarters, initial requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures under 31 CFR 1.26 should be mailed or personally delivered in writing to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, United States Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229, and such official shall have the authority to grant the request. Any denial of a request will be made by the Assistant Commissioner, Office of Regulations and Rulings.

(c) Each request shall comply with the identification and other requirements set forth in 31 CFR 1.26 and in the appropriate system notice in the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration, and each request should be conspicuously labeled on the face of the envelope "Privacy Act Request."

3. Requests for amendment of records. (a) For records which are not maintained at Customs Service Headquarters, initial requests for amendment of records under 31 CFR 1.27 (a) through (d) should be mailed or personally delivered in writing to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, United States Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229, or to the Regional Commissioner of Customs in whose region the records are located, and such officials shall have the authority to grant the request, and, in the case of a Regional Commissioner, to deny the request; any denial of a request directed to Customs Service Headquarters will be made by the Assistant Commissioner, Office of Regulations and Rulings. A request directed to a Regional Commissioner should be mailed to or personally delivered at the appropriate location specified in Customs Appendix A to the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration. It is suggested that requests pertaining to records not maintained at Customs Service Headquarters be directed to the appropriate Regional Commissioner in order to ensure expeditious handling of the request.

(b) For records which are maintained at Customs Service Headquarters, initial requests for amendment of records under 31 CFR 1.27 (a) through (d) should be mailed or personally delivered in writing to the Director, Entry Procedures and Penalties Division, Office of Regulations and Rulings, United States Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20229, and such official shall have the authority to grant the request. Any denial of a request will be made by the Assistant Commissioner, Office of Regulations and Rulings. (c) Each request shall comply with the identification and other requirements set forth in 31 CFR 1.27 and in the appropriate system notice in the "Notices of Records Systems" published by the General Services Administration, and each request should be conspicuously labeled on the face of the envelope "Privacy Act Amendment Request."

4. Administrative appeal of initial determination refusing to amend record. Appellate determinations (including extensions of time on appeal) under 31 CFR 1.27(e) with respect to all Customs Service records will be made by the Commissioner of Customs, and all such appeals should be mailed or personally delivered to the United States Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229. Each appeal should be conspicuously labeled on the face of the envelope "Privacy Act Amendment Appeal."

5. Statements of Disagreement. "Statements of Disagreement" pursuant to 31 CFR 1.27(e)(4)(i) shall be filed with the official signing the notification of refusal to amend at the address indicated in the letter of notification within 35 days of the date of such notification and should be limited to one page.

6. Service of process. Service of process will be received by the Chief Counsel, United States Customs Service, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229.

7. Annual notice of systems of records. The annual notice of systems of records required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) with respect to records maintained by the United States Customs Service is set forth in the General Services Administration publication entitled "Notices of Records Systems."

Appendix D—United States Secret Service

1. In general. This appendix applies to the United States Secret Service and its sub-components, the Executive Protective Service and the Treasury Security Force. It sets forth specific notification, access, and amendment procedures with respect to systems of records including identification requirements, and times and places where records may be reviewed, identifies the officers designated to make initial determinations with respect to notifications of and access to records; the officers designated to make the initial and appellate determinations with respect to requests for amendment of records; the officer designated to grant extensions of time on appeal; the officers with which "Statements of Disagreement" may be filed, the officer designated to receive service of process and the addresses for delivery of requests, appeals and service of process. In addition, it references the official annual notice of systems of records and notice of the intended use of the information contained in such systems required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(e) (4) and (11) and published by the General Services Administration as "Notices of Records Systems".

2. Requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures. Initial determinations under 31 CFR 1.26, as to whether to grant requests for notification and access to records and accountings of disclosures for the United States Secret Service will be made by the Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, Office of Administration, United States Secret Service. Requests for notification made by mail should be addressed to:

Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, Office of Administration, United States Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Room 908, Washington, D.C. 20223.

Requests may be delivered personally to the Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, United States Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Room 908, Washington, D.C. between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. of any day excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays.

Requests for access to records made by mail should be addressed to:

Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, Office of Administration, United States Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Room 908, Washington, D.C. 20223.

Requests may be delivered personally to the Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, U.S. Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Room 908, Washington, D.C. between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. of any day excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays.

a. Identification Requirements. In addition to the requirements specified in 31 CFR, 1.26 each request for notification, access or amendment of records made by mail shall contain the requesting individual's date and place of birth and a duly notarized statement signed by the requester asserting his or her identity and stipulating that the requesting individual understands that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretences is punishable by a fine of up to $5,000.

b. Individuals making requests in person. Individuals making requests in person will be required to exhibit acceptable identifying documents such as employee identification numbers, drivers licenses, medical cards or other documents sufficient to verify the identity of the requester.

c. Physical Inspection of records. Upon determining that a request for the physical inspection of records is to be granted, the requester shall be notified in writing of the determination, and when and where the requested records may be inspected. The inspection of records will be conducted at the Secret Service field office or other facility located nearest to the residence of the individual making the request. Such inspection shall be conducted during the regular business hours of the Secret Service Field Office or other facility where the disclosure is made. A person of his or her own choosing may accompany the individual making the request provided the individual furnishes a written statement authorizing the disclosure of that individual's record in the accompanying person's presence. Any disclosure of a record will be made in the presence of a representative of the U.S. Secret Service.

3. Requests for amendment of records. Initial determination under 31 CFR, 1 as to whether to grant requests to amend records will be made by the Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, Office of Administration, U.S. Secret Service, 1800 G Street, N.W., Room 908, Washington, D.C. Requests for amendments of records should be addressed to:

Staff Assistant, Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts, Office of Administration, U.S. Secret Service, 1800 G. Street, N.W., Room 908, Washington, D.C. 20223.
