I am writing you concerning the Microsoft Settlement and the law (officially called the Tunney Act) requires a public comment period between now and January 28th. I say it's high time that this ridiculous litigation nonsense by nine dissenting states be stopped. The settlement that was reached between the USDOJ and nine states clearly is fair to all parties concerned. I think it's high time to close these issues against Microsoft and move on.
If you need further information from me, please feel free to e-mail me.
Thank you,
Dean DeBois

MTC-00009718

From: Michael Kuncaitis Sr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:02am
Subject: microsoft settlement
I say hurray for free enterprise. Yes, there are problems—no matter what you do. It is time we considered also the good people and companies do, not just the bad.
I AM SO SICK OF JEALOUS, GET YOUR OWN COMPANY, PEOPLE WHO CANNOT STAND TO SEE OTHERS WIN AND SUCCEED.
BILL GATES IS VERY RICH AND I THINK HE DID GREAT (AND DID SOME WRONG MISTAKES). I WOULD VOTE FOR HIM NO MATTER WHAT OFFICE HE RAN FOR—BECAUSE HE CAN GET THE JOB DONE AND DONE!
GIVE HIM A PARADE AND LEAVE HIM ALONE. COMPETITION IS GREAT..
Thanks,
Mike K.

MTC-00009719

From: Charles Stout
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 8:10am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I hope that the nine renegade states are not able to unduly influence the Federal Settlement with Microsoft. Microsoft is a great company that tries to serve its customers. Microsoft should obey antitrust law where it is reasonably interpreted. I believe Microsoft helps its customers, including me, and gives them products that are a good value.

Thank You
 Charles Stout

MTC-00009720

From: Dane Vertefay
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 8:18am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Department of Justice Representative,
 The short opinion— Yes, I feel that the settlement is in the best interest of the American people and that it is fair. Please finalize this issue by the current terms. Further—I believe that bringing closure to this issue through reasonable terms is the right thing for the consumers and our economy, and I am happy to see an end to this dispute. It is understandable that some of the large corporate competitors will push their states to continue this issue, but I feel that finalizing this issue under the terms set forth is the best for the consumers and businesses as well.

I believe that the standardization of my computer desktop programs has helped my company communicate internally with our four offices and even more importantly with my customers and suppliers as well. The fact that a standard platform for the desktop happened through the 1980's & '90's and has significantly contributed to the growth of many industries is the primary benefit, the fact that that company is called "Microsoft" is by the consumers choice from the products available at the time those decisions were originally made.

Note—I have used computers since 1981(Apple) switched to IBM Compatible with Microsoft in the early '90's (24 Gateway PC's currently) and feel that I understand the issue very well, although I did not see all the case evidence presented by either side.

Thank you for taking the time to "hear" my opinion.

Sincerely,
 Dane Vertefeuille
 Raleigh, NC

MTC-00009721

From: Pybus, Keith
 To: "microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov"
 Date: 1/9/02 8:31am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

18 Brookside Lane
 Vernon Rockville, Connecticut 06066
 January 8, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

This letter is to express my opinion and to also go on record about the proposed settlement to the antitrust suit between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. I am pleased that a settlement has been reached, and I am glad that both sides made out well.

The settlement is fair and reasonable to all parties involved, even though some of the restrictions are too harsh on Microsoft. In fact, some restrictions have been applied to technologies and products that were not even an issue in the lawsuit.

However, the time has come to put this messy issue behind us and move on. In my profession I provide desktop instruction to employees at the world's largest casino, and Microsoft has made what I do much easier. The integration that Microsoft has provided makes everyone more efficient at what they do.

I am in favor of the settlement between Microsoft and the Department of Justice, and hope to see the conclusion of this saga soon.

Sincerely,
 Keith E. Pybus
 Mashantucket Pequot Academy
 Phone:ext. 21021 (860-312-1021)
 Fax:ext. 20133 (860-312-1033)

MTC-00009722

From: Ivan Ivanov
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 8:43am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear DOJ,
 This email is my modest attempt to support Microsoft in the case.

As an IT professional I would like to express bitter disappointment from the damage this case has caused the IT companies and the whole IT industry.

Hope DOJ will find reasonable settlement for the case which so far was only a backup for for Microsoft arrogant competitors.

Best Regards,
 Ivan Ivanov
 Software Engineer

MTC-00009723

From: Alex Hulse
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 8:44am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir/Madam
 I am a user of a wide variety of OSes on my PCs, which I use for business and pleasure. I have used the full range of Microsoft Windows OSes and several 'alternative' OSes including Linux distributions, BeOS 5 and QNX.

I have been informed that you seek out the views of people as to what they feel is important in the final settlement in the case against Microsoft. My feeling is that the field has to be levelled regarding dual booting. Microsoft forbids the option to boot any other OS other than Windows on their OEM's machines. This is unfair. Microsoft should allow their competitors equal rights to the machine, to allow OEMs to choose the OS that suits the machine best, or allow their customers to make that decision themselves. Even if Windows is still required, it allows the user to see that there is an option of another OS, and that in some ways they can be better at different jobs; BeOS's media skills jump immediately to mind.

I hope that you find my thoughts useful and that they can help towards making the OEM PC industry a fairer place for companies others than Microsoft.

Yours Faithfully
 Alexander Hulse

MTC-00009724

From: Bill Schmidt
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:14am
 Subject: Tunney Act proposed Microsoft settlement comment

Gentlemen:

Per the provisions of the Tunney Act of 1974, I'd like to register my dismay and strong disagreement to the proposed settlement of the Microsoft anti-trust case. It is a clear triumph of politics over law and makes a travesty of the legal process.

Microsoft was found guilty of abuse of its monopoly powers and that decision was affirmed on appeal. The proposed settlement is a slap on the wrist for a company whose predatory practices and continue to this day. Microsoft's defence appears to be based on the fact that to punish it would stifle innovation yet the bulk of its products, going back to the original MSDOS, were lifted from the work of others. If the Department of Justice were truly interested in upholding the law it would be seeking effective remedies such as the release of the Windows source code and/or the breakup of the company. For shame!

Bill Schmidt
 billsch@ix.netcom.com
 CC:attorney.general@po.state.ct.us@inetgw

MTC-00009725

From: Gary Pigg
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:24am
 Subject: End the attack on Microsoft.

MTC-00009726

From: Ed (038) Cathy Sweeney
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:25am
 Subject: Let go of the Microsoft debacle!

It is time to put this case to an end once and for all! In a country where Free Enterprise is a cornerstone to our history, and our current culture, why is the Justice Department continuing to pursue this ridiculous persecution of a company whose only crime is being the first to come up with the idea of contracting with computer manufacturers, and making a better product? If Microsoft does not have a better product the public will discover it and the better product will survive!

Edward Sweeney

MTC-00009727

From: Freddy (038) Dana Yates
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:30am
 Subject: Clinton-era anti-trust abuse

Drop the microsoft case and quit prosecuting Clinton era anti-trust cases. We have more important issues to prosecute. Corporations make jobs and we need this right now. Bill Clinton done more against the justice system than Microsoft ever did.

Thank you.
 Joseph F. Yates
 4411 Beechland Rd
 Springfield, Ky 40069

MTC-00009728

From: NaHess120@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:41am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the Microsoft Settlement should be upheld and that all should get on with work as usual ASAP. I do not understand the whole thing as this is the United States of America where free enterprise is supposed to be encouraged. If one has a superior product, his competitors must come up with something better. If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen—as the saying goes.

MTC-00009729

From: John P. Williams
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 10:11am
 Subject: Microsoft antitrust

I am an extremely busy person but I thought it sufficiently important to stop all my meetings this morning to allow myself time to comment on the task before the justice department.

Microsoft has since its inception co-opted, coerced and colluded with various manufacturers, both software and hardware, to not only dominate but decimate the marketplace. This is seen most clearly in the case of my operating system of choice, the Macintosh but applies equally well to Sun, Unix, Linux and others.

Without the Mac none of you today would use a mouse, a graphical user interface (GUI) or even be discussing this topic because it would not exist. Microsoft quite clearly stole the OS design from Apple and although their lawyers were better than Apple's in defending their case, nothing can change the fact that Windows in any flavor did NOT exist prior to the Macintosh. Since that time, Microsoft has gone on to co-opt every area that is available starting of course with business world. To be sure when this process started there was no a priori reason to believe that Microsoft would prevail and had they not procured the GUI, their market dominance would never be what it is today.

I must say that I find it interesting that we speak in this country of diversity and how each of us needs to look for and nourish diversity wherever and whenever we can find it. Indeed the very basis of this country is diversity, EXCEPT where it comes to computer OS's it seems. There we must cherish uniformity, mediocrity and domination. How does this jive with the constitutional basis of our nation? How does one justify basically telling me what system I will or will not use in my home? Oh, I am sure you will say that this does not happen but it does! Our school is a classic example. By using market dominance in business, Microsoft has coerced the University to become a Windows only shop. Now if I want to access certain information from home I must use a Windows computer or I cannot do my job. Is this what our country really wants? To be tied permanently and completely to one system? Especially if that system is riddled with security flaws and holes? I hope not. Why is this relevant to the current recommendation? As you can see, the ability of Microsoft to compel users to them is governed in a major way by how they can distribute their product. If you act to make that distribution easier, you doom all of us to a certain future in the hands of one, not so responsive, company. We as a nation would not tolerate one electric company, one public water company, one public sewer, trash, etc, why will we tolerate this?

Further, when do we decide that my decision to use Linux or Unix or the Mac is any different than my choice of religion. Oh I can hear you, this is ridiculous as an analogy, but it actually works quite well. Religions are faith based, certainly in this case you are putting your work, your life in a very real sense, in the hands of the computer company with which you do business. If that religion or OS fails you, that is probably the end of your relationship; unless of course there is no other religion to choose . . . Religions are also chosen, most commonly by prior association but also quite commonly by the individual making a conscious decision to select the religion that most closely matches their world view. We consider religion to be a sacrosanct virtue in this country and protect and guard it closely. Should it be any different for our OS choice? Is it really in our country's best interest to decrease the number of choices for religions? They tried that in Afghanistan . . .

One might well ask how the current proposal will effect these changes? By making it very easy for Microsoft to enter into an arena where they have not traditionally dominated, education, one knocks down the last barrier to choice left in this country. The Apple proposal is wholly more sensible. Allowing schools to use the money donated by Microsoft in any manner that they see fit, allows true choice to continue and preserves the multi-ethnic character of our computer world.

Indeed one could easily take the stand that to truly preserve the multi-ethnicity of our computer world we need affirmative action. That is we need to actually insist that some businesses be given special incentives to use OTHER computer OS's in order to cause this multi-ethnicity to flourish. How can it be that we seek to do good in one area of our country while doing harm in another?

In closing I would make one other analogy, this one quite close to home. There are many reasons why diversity is valued in a culture but it is also valued in nature. Indeed the very essence of nature is diversity. I do not think it is too much of a stretch to imagine what happens when one seeks to shrink the gene pool. There are numerous examples of how treacherous that coastline is...we need only think back on the 20th century to see what can happen when this type of thought process is allowed to roam free.

More importantly, what would happen to group of people that were closely related and interbred when a new disease enters that group. If the group is sensitive to the infective organism, their culture is decimated. Look at what happened to the native Americans or islanders soon after the arrival of Europeans. With no natural immunity to smallpox, they were eradicated just as surely as if that had been a conscious and willful act. Do we really wish to place ourselves in this same position with our computers, our knowledge, our lives . . .

I urge you to reject the current proposal for Microsoft at all costs. It is a dangerous and crumbling cornice on which we do not need to stand. Thank you so much for the opportunity to speak.

Sincerely yours
 John P Williams, MD
 Interim Chair
 UPP Dept. of Anesthesiology
 A-1305 Scaife Hall
 3550 Terrace St.
 Pittsburgh, PA 15261
 Voice 412-648-9624
 FAX412-648-1887

MTC-00009730

From: Mary Powell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 10:17am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is getting ridiculous. Will you please stop wasting the taxpayers money already? The public has always had a right to choose what they want. If I go to the store I have choices. They may not be a lot of choices but then again, I haven't seen any other products out there that are as efficient and user-friendly. All these companies need to stop complaining and come out with a good, reliable product that consumer would want. If they had worked as hard as they are fighting against Microsoft they would have a good product by now!

What kind of country have we become when we go after people that are only trying to improve our technology and benefit the world? Instead of wasting your time with this ludicrous pursuit you should all be looking for Bin Laden and his people and stop harassing valued and outstanding citizens like Mr. Gates and his employees.

Sincerely,
 Satisfied Microsoft Consumer

MTC-00009731

From: Rep.Jensen
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/9/02 10:22am
 Subject: Attn: Renata Hesse

MTC-00009732

From: David Brookes
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 10:32am
 Subject: USG vs. MSFT
 Dave Brookes
 2220 Montgomery Avenue
 Cardiff, CA 92007
 January 8, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

During this time of economic strain, it is sad to see the government holding back on issues that would obviously be beneficial to our economy. The recent Microsoft settlement was reached after three years of well thought out negotiations, and with the benefit of our entire IT sector in mind.

Well, now that it is ready to move forward and get things rolling, there still seems to be those who want to drag it through the mud. Not only has Microsoft agreed to reconfigure licensing and marketing terms, but also it has agreed to redesign various formats of Windows in order to facilitate easier use of non-Microsoft software. These concessions, along with many others have been agreed upon in order to get the IT sector to move forward in this global market. Now that all parties are ready to move, why can't we get back to business?

Please help support this settlement, and all of the well thought out concessions that have been made. Let us not be the ones to hold back our economy.

Is it not time for Washington to do something for the people? Have we not paid for all the mistake Washington makes? Why are we always fighting for ourselves? Why does Washington continue to harm it's tax paying, voting citizen?

Sincerely,
Dave Brookes

MTC-00009733

From: Cameron Purdy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 10:31am
Subject: Proposed Settlement

To: Renata Hesse, Trial Attorney I am submitting my comments as per the instructions in the Federal Register in regards to the pending case brought by states and the US Department of Justice against Microsoft.

1. I have read the findings of fact from the case, as penned by Judge Penfield Jackson, I have read the Final Judgment, as proposed by the United States and Microsoft, and I have read the proposed remedies from the nine states that rejected the United States/ Microsoft proposed Final Judgment.

2. I concur that the proposed Final Judgment could potentially limit certain actions that Microsoft has historically employed against computer OEMs.

3. I find no other relationship between the known and accepted transgressions of Microsoft against antitrust law as presented and proved at trial, and the proposed Final Judgment.

It is my opinion that the proposed Final Judgment does not address most of Microsoft's illegal behaviors that were clearly documented at trial: It does not submit that such behaviors have taken place; it does not attempt to correct the past wrongs; it does not include any punitive measures; and lastly it does not attempt to prevent future transgressions.

On the other hand, the nine states' proposals are based on the conclusion that Microsoft has transgressed, that there must be actions taken to correct those transgressions, that punitive measures may be appropriate for those transgressions, and that it is necessary to provide a means to prevent or address future transgressions. While arguably flawed, the proposals are at least based on the known and proven transgressions, and at least attempt to respond to those transgressions. How could it be that the proposed Final Judgment negotiated by the US Department of Justice does not take the same approach? One must question where the proposed Final Judgment originated, since it certainly cannot have originated from the findings of the trial known as the United States of America v. Microsoft Corporation that many of us have so closely watched.

I submit that it would be far better for the United States to altogether drop the proposed Final Judgment and request dismissal of the case than to enter such a flawed and pointless document as a final judgment. The proposed Final Judgment does not provide any sense or form of justice; rather it represents an absolute mockery of our government's will to enforce the law and lends credence to the growing chorus of voices that lament the influence of money and politics over those appointed to protect the interests of the people of the United States of America.

Respectfully submitted,
Cameron Purdy, President
Tangosol Inc.
402A Highland Ave
Somerville MA 02144 USA

MTC-00009734

From: Craig Madsen
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 10:32am
Subject: FW: Microsoft Antitrust Case
From: Craig Madsen
Sent: Monday, January 07, 2002 4:42 PM
To: 'attorney.general@po.state.ct.us'
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Case
Dear DOJ, etc.,

I am writing to put my 2 cents worth about the antitrust case against Microsoft Corp.

I feel like Microsoft is using their OS dominance to stifle every bit of competition possible. I totally agree with the 9 states that are fighting this thing to the bitter end. I also don't agree with the current settlement at all. For Microsoft to spend a bunch of money for the schools does absolutely nothing to stop them from continuing to do what they have been doing for years—except try to catch up with Apple, Inc. in the school battles!! I also don't mind spending my tax dollars to do whatever is necessary to make them pay for what they have already done.

We watched them 'give away' a browser and all but kill a competitor(s). Tomorrow they start giving away databases, and before long, who knows? If there was a competitor to the government, they would buy them, reduce the price on whatever they were selling to nothing and kill them off too. Once dead, they can raise the price back to whatever they need to.

Do I want Microsoft dead? Probably not, however, I want them to have to use the same playing field as the rest of the businesses in america that don't control 90% of the operating system business. Break them up. Make them give out their source code to anyone, so we could all make products as quickly as them!

p.s. I was trying to send this to: microsoft.atr@usdoj as well, but my e-mail package didn't like this. Do you know how I can get a copy of this to them?

Thanks,
Craig Madsen
(801)-961-3045
155 North 400 West
Salt Lake City, UT 84103-1111

MTC-00009735

From: Donald Bosshart
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 10:42am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have been using computers since 1966, have read the proposed settlement and think that it is very fair. MS has made computing simple and very very productive. I use MS products to operate my business.

While some would like to distroy MS, they are motivated by greed and anger. The punishment should fit the crime and the current settlement goes way beyond the crime. Let us move beyond this case and move forward to new innovations. Settle it now!

Donald A. Bosshart, Ed. D.
315 Elmwood Drive
Kent OH 44240

MTC-00009736

From: Richard Buckley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 10:52am
Subject: For cryin out loud.

The Clinton era bashed these For cryin out loud. The Clinton era bashed these people to no end. This has gone on long enough. I am from the old school "if you build a better mouse trap they will come." All these competitors and Attorney Generals who are crying over Microsoft's success is just sour grapes.

They have created more jobs and more entrepreneurs, (sic), in this country than any single company in existence. Why bash them about their success? I do not own any Microsoft stock nor have I ever owned any but I can tell when jealous come into play and that is all this is. If you want to beat them in the marketplace then make a better product. I will buy it. It is that simple.

MTC-00009737

From: steve parsons
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 10:54am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

There is no settlement of any kind that can be considered fair for Microsoft. All aspects of the DOJ case against Microsoft are so unjust that I could sit here and generate a book, rather than a simple email message (I'll save the book for a later time). Instead, I would rather express what I believe is one of the key reasons why any settlement of any kind is unjust for Microsoft Corp.

AOL, which has been a key Internet Service Provider (ISP) for years, has held the largest market share within the industry, more than any other ISP, including MSN (the Microsoft Network). Yet AOL went whining to the government that they were being monopolized by Microsoft, and now Microsoft is having unjust legalities imposed upon them, not because they are a monopoly, but because there is the ?potential? that one day they ?may become? a monopoly.

Several years ago, I was a CompuServe user. Then (before AOL ever went running to the government) I switched to AOL. I installed their product on my computer and used AOL as my ISP for just over a month. They frequently advertised about being the most user-friendly ISP around. A month is all I could stand. They were awful. Their software always blew up on my computer and their tech support service was nearly incompetent. For example, 3 of their techs said the problem was my computer, not their software. So I bought another computer and installed the AOL software again. The same problems. After trying NetZero and AT&T, I eventually found MSN to be superior to them all.

Microsoft is a serious company and a serious competitor. As the old saying goes, 'if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen'. But apparently, today's new saying is, 'if you can't stand the heat, go running to the government?'. AOL whining is what brought this situation to where it is today. Microsoft faces these settlements, not because it was being an unfair competitor, but because they are a competitor in the truest sense. Hopefully the government won't eventually 'break the back' of one of the greatest technology corporations this world has ever seen, cause if they do, then we might get stuck with crap like AOL.

MTC-00009738

From: Jason of Sedona
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a computer consultant I believe I have a fair understanding of the case and it's impact on the industry. I understand the role of Microsoft, the participating State A.G.s and the role that Netscape and the competition plays. Considering that the case has gone this far, it is my belief that the case needs to be settled as quickly and fairly as possible.

For eighteen years I have been working with Microsoft products. I have been hoping to build a successful company and create a niche in the market myself. If I were lead to believe that this travesty of justice could happen to me upon becoming successful then I would be less likely to even try. To have the Justice Department and the Attorney Generals be against me because my competition is jealous of my success and has lobbied to slow my success is appalling. There is no question in my mind. Microsoft has moved this industry and this great country into a computing era that allows ALL of us to succeed. Netscape, AOL, and Yahoo who, if NOT for Microsoft, would not be here to complain about how much is their share of the market. Please settle this in Microsoft's favor because that in turn will benefit me, and my business, and my customers, and my Country.

Thank you.
Jason Tamm
Jason Tamm Consulting
Sedona, AZ 86351

MTC-00009739

From: larsue2@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:16am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have followed this law suit for some time now and want to express my opinion on the matter. I would ask that the settlement with Microsoft be accepted and let's get on with the business of rebuilding our country's economy. This has gone on long enough and needs to be settled and placed behind us as we are attempting to accomplish more important things.

Lawrence L. Pomeroy

MTC-00009740

From: jem@hpesjem.fc.hp.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR,jem@fc.hp.com@inetgw
Date: 1/9/02 11:20am
Subject: Proposed Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern: I work in the tech industry designing CPU's. I have been extensively involved in the use and design of computer hardware and software for years. It is probably also worth noting that I do not work for a company that competes with Microsoft.

I would like to state my strong opposition to the proposed Microsoft settlement based on the following grounds:

(1) The proposed settlement does not forceably correct the problem of illegal anti-competitive behavior which the courts ruled Microsoft has engaged in.

(2) The proposed settlement does not even give Microsoft much of an incentive to correct the illegal anti-competitive behavior.

(3) This anti-competitive behavior has caused and continues to cause enormous harm to consumers and the economy.

The proposed settlement does not forceably correct the problem of illegal anti-competitive behavior which the courts ruled Microsoft has engaged in. The settlement only asks for some very limited behavior modification and does very little to ensure that even these limited behavior modifications can be enforced. Microsoft's history clearly demonstrates it's ability to be creative in it's anti-competitive behavior. Microsoft's history further demonstrates it's willingness to break laws and violate agreements if it thinks it can get away with it. This case, which is about violation of a previous consent decree and of our nations anti-trust laws, clearly demonstrates this. Any successful remedy must be enforceable and comprehensive.

The proposed settlement does not even give Microsoft much of an incentive to correct the illegal anti-competitive behavior. Take Microsoft's anti-competitive behavior in the browser market, for example. Microsoft behaved in an illegal, anti-competitive manner because it was concerned that the browser platform could threaten or replace it's business and consumer desktop software platform monopoly. It's behavior made sure that this threat was eliminated. The proposed settlement would slap Microsoft with a few minor unenforceable behavior restrictions. If you set aside ethics and morality, that looks like a pretty good return on investment. This is not lost on Microsoft.

The anti-competitive behavior has caused and continues to cause enormous harm to consumers and the economy. This is one of the least understood and most important aspects of this case. Clearly, the government wants to protect the economy. Protecting the economy is a noble goal, but they are misguided in trying to do so by protecting Microsoft. The fundamental driving force of capitalism is competition. Microsoft would argue that it is only being punished for being a ruthless competitor. However, throughout the history of our country, there have been many examples of monopolistic, anti-competitive behavior causing harm to the economy. Many times and in many ways, the government has stepped in with rules which provide a level competitive playing field on which competition may flourish. There are rules against cornering commodities markets. There are accounting rules. There are truth in advertising rules. There are rules against fraud. There are rules against selling defective products.—And, there are rules against leveraging a monopoly to eliminate competition. Breaking any of these rules could be portrayed as just being a ruthless competitor, but our economy will not function very well at all if these rules are not enforced. I could go on and on giving examples of how Microsoft's illegal anti-competitive behavior has harmed the competition, but any and all examples can be disputed (because we can't replay history) if one does not believe that leveraging a monopoly to thwart competition fundamentally harms consumers and the economy. If one does believe this, then examples are not hard to come by. (Although understanding the examples usually requires a fair amount of technical competence and understanding of the industry—always a difficult aspect of this case.)

Sincerely,
James McCormick
james_mccormick@yahoo.com
P.S. The opinions expressed in this letter are mine alone. They do not in any way represent any positions taken by my employer.

MTC-00009741

From: Mike Hall
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:22am
Subject: The let em oof free deal

I wish to express my concerns for the reported deal between Microsoft and States and Gov. It is the type of deal that lawyers such as those of microsoft hire can work around on a daily basis without even a hitch in their daily operations as they intended them to be anyway. This deal does nothing to remedy the fact they have stolen from the public in many ways including monetary and products that could have been, but were squashed by this unruly giant.

On the subject of fines, I certainly think a very large fine would make sense, considering their financial status which is also coming under eyes.

I certainly hope that the gov. would rejoin the nine states that have held out and put some controls on this runaway, unruly, money hungry, corporation.

Mike Hall

MTC-00009742

From: Trish Mercer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:22am
Subject: Please End This Travisty

I have been shocked at this lawsuit from the very beginning. It only continues to HURT out economy and citizens savings plans. PLEASE end this outrage! I have yet to see any good coming from this.

Trish Mercer
PO Box 8825
Columbus, GA 31908

MTC-00009743

From: Theodore Saari
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 11:24am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I received a mass-mailing email from Microsoft that requested we send our views on the proposed settlement to you "Whatever your view of the settlement." Just before this "unbiased" request for comments, Microsoft said: "Unfortunately, a few special interests are attempting to use this review period to derail the settlement and prolong this litigation even in the midst of uncertain economic times. The last thing the American economy needs is more litigation that benefits only a few wealthy competitors and stifles innovation. Don't let these special interests defeat the public interest."

I have received NO solicitations from any person or group in any form that asked me to voice my opinion on this settlement. It appears to me that Microsoft is the one waging a campaign to get public response to the proposed settlement. The wording of their request clearly suggests the type of response they desire.

Microsoft's claim that "only a few wealthy competitors" will benefit from prolonged litigation is amazing. Microsoft is one of the wealthiest companies in the world. Bill Gates is reported to be the wealthiest person in the world. Many of Microsoft's executives are extremely wealthy. Microsoft and its executives are the ones who will benefit most from a quick settlement, especially one where they have dictated the terms of it. The wealth acquired by Microsoft, Bill Gates, and the executives is the result of a monopolistic and coercive business environment. Microsoft's restrictions on competitors and their use of proprietary "undocumented features" of their operating systems has handicapped any competition for years. Their restrictions and bullying of OEMs has made the MS operating systems the de facto standard for many years. There are virtually no competitors to their operating systems.

Microsoft's proposal as part of the settlement to "donate" $1 billion in hardware and software to the poorest public schools is one of the best (and cheapest) advertising gimmicks they could get from this settlement. Not only will the schools be teaching and supporting MS products, Microsoft will be able to take a tax deduction on this advertising. They will reap extreme benefits from this punishment.

I support the nine states that have not accepted this proposed settlement and urge the US Government to reject it.

Theodore C Saari
 7917 Orchard Ave N
 Brooklyn Park, MN 55443-2414
 763-585-6578

MTC-00009744

From: MRaddie@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 11:26am
 Subject: Microsoft

Let us settle this matter as proposed and get it behind us. The case was originally tainted with the bias of the Clinton Administration and wealthy competitors who tried to profit from Microsoft's litigation LET US STOP THIS TYPE OF EXTORTION.

Microsoft has contributed mightily to the American economy and has suffered enough.
 M. Raddie

MTC-00009745

From: Connie Gipson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 11:26am
 Subject: STOP THE ABUSE

Leave Microsoft alone, they have helped millions of people.

Sincerely,
 Connie Gipson

MTC-00009746

From: Elvin Keiver
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 2:36pm
 Subject: MS

Do not let them get away with it!!!

MTC-00009747

From: Crumpdd@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 11:39am
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 Attn. DOJ:

Please accept this comment as a citizen request to let the Tunney Act become the final prosecution of Microsoft. I encourage you not to yield to special interests who would continue to bring lawsuit after lawsuit of Microsoft into the courts.

Dick Crump
 (crumpdd@aol.com)

MTC-00009748

From: Bill Thomson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 11:45am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I am writing in support of the current proposed settlement of the Microsoft antitrust law suite.

I have been involved with building computer based information systems since the early 1970's one of the most notable being the Lexis/Nexis information system used by Lawyers and Business professionals. I have been involved with personal computers since the introduction of the IBM PC in the early 1980's and have not always been in agreement with Microsoft's Windows based strategies in that in the early years they pushed the limits of the desktop hardware systems they ran on making the development of telecommunication applications more difficult. The introduction of Windows 95 with the integration of the TCP/IP protocol within the operating system changed that perspective completely.

It is clear to me as one who has experienced it—that Microsoft has been driven by a vision of what personal computers could be in terms of knowledge access and manipulation tools. The result of that vision is that my grandchildren can now routinely sit down at a $1,500 PC system equipped with a Word Processor that came with the system and perform activity that was not possible to do in any manner on a $12 million dollar computer in 1975. On that same computer with the Internet Explorer software suite that came with it and a $19.99 a month subscription to the internet my grandchildren in the United States and my grandchildren in Brussels Belgium routinely have video conferences to share what is going on their lives use a free service at the Microsoft Network web site.

Microsoft could have at many times during the past 20 years chosen to take an easier path to profits but instead it has consistently invested in innovations that have made the things I listed above a reality that almost all Americans can access if they choose to regardless of their economic status.

It is my sense that this entire law suite was based upon claims made by companies who wanted to take that easy route or bet on the fact that Microsoft would not be able to deliver their vision and lost. Everyone of them has had the opportunity to deliver the products they now criticize Microsoft for producing and chose a different path. Many in a sense had the monopoly and chose to use it rather than spend on the product development costs create what the market wanted.

I hope this matter can be settled as proposed in a timely manner.

Sincerely Yours,
 William K. Thomson
 4425 Lac Lamen Drive
 Centerville, OH 45458-5403
 wkthomson@att.net

MTC-00009749

From: trebor iksrazal
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 11:48am
 Subject: In short, why I am against the settlement

Competition is the key to open, productive markets. It has been ruled that Microsoft has used its monopoly in several sectors to wipe out competition in others. I have been a computer programmer for six years, my first four of which were exclusively on Microsoft operating systems. I have been programming in Java for the last two years on Windows, linux, and Sun Solaris. I think that the file formats to Office, Visual Studio, Windows Media Player, and numerous others should be submitted to standards committees such as ANSI.

The proposal suggested by California and eight other states to reveal the source code behind Microsoft Internet Explorer browser and include support for Sun Microsystems' Java in Windows is also good. As it stands, my professional livelihood is threatened by Microsoft, due to proprietary lock-in to its products. Simply put, Microsoft has tried to destroy Java and is in an open war with Linux.

I am constantly sent proprietary Microsoft files while I am programming on non-Microsoft products. How will the proposed settlement address these grievances? Clearly to me, they were not intended to. I would like Microsoft to win me over to their products, not eliminate the competition as it has largely done to Netscape.

It is clear that Microsoft is at war with end user self-determination.

Look now how Microsoft is using Windows Media Player to destroy Realplayer, look now how Internet Explorer insists on using Microsoft's proprietary Visual Basic Scripting engine while viewing web pages that do not use it.

Look now how Microsoft is manipulating this case to actually increase its dominance by getting itself into schools.

In short, Microsoft products only work with other Microsoft products. There is a need to open up their file formats to standards committees. There is a need to open the source code to Internet Explorer so it is possible to view the entire web without a Microsoft Operating System.

Thanks for your time.

Sincerely,
Robert Lazarski
8193 Centrebridge
Niwot, Colorado 80503

MTC-00009750

From: GRANPA71TX@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:51am
Subject: RE:MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
Seymour Beitscher
41 Cypress Point
Abilene, Texas 79606
915-692-1561 [Fax:915-692-1561]
January 9, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I take this opportunity to express my views regarding your wise decision to end the government's antitrust litigation against Microsoft. I, too, am a business owner and, as such, have always tried to stay ahead of my competition by utilizing new and unique methods. Some of those methods met with severe criticisms from my competitors, no matter how innocuous to fair and equitable business procedures they were. Competitors always cry 'foul' when they are surpassed by the competition. In essence, that is what I think occurred in this matter.

However, I do believe the giant [Microsoft] did flex its muscle a bit too much. Microsoft did not get out of this dilemma easy. Microsoft has agreed to make available information regarding its internal structure of Windows, which now allows its competitors to compete. I do not understand this reasoning since I would not supply my competitors with any procedure I deem proprietary and beneficial to me.

In conclusion, I think that if the government moves against Microsoft again it will be nothing more than harassment. Who is to say the severe decline in the "tech" section of the economy was not precipitated by the government's legal stance against Microsoft? Our economy now, more than ever, needs stability.

The economy, and the administration, needs to keep Microsoft out of the muck and mire it has been stuck in these past three years. Helping Microsoft weather this storm will be successful in stimulating the economy over a broad span in the future.

Sincerely,
Seymour Beitscher

MTC-00009751

From: Duane Tackett
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:49am
Subject: Opposition to the proposed

Microsoft Settlement

To Whom it may Concern:

I would like to take the opportunity to voice my opposition to the comparatively weak settlement offered by the DOJ against Microsoft. I feel that more should be done to prevent Microsoft from extending its monopoly, including opening up its software so that consummate professionals can review it and fix the numerous security flaws that are inherent in its code. If MS is allowed to proceed with "business as usual" then the result will be more bug ridden software with higher prices.

Please, help restore competition by making Microsoft more accountable to the people who use their software every day. Thank you in advance for considering this tract.

Duane Tackett Network Administrator
Linux Enthusiast

MTC-00009752

From: Bob Agnew
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 11:53am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

The vast majority of the national news media, let alone the American citizenry, has not understood the ramifications of the anti-trust case against Microsoft, let alone the "settlement" offered therefrom.

We are rapidly moving to a position, as a nation, where the vast majority of major large corporations as well as small businesses are becoming dependent on Microsoft and the Windows operating system and associated products (Office, Internet Explorer).

This is not merely the old "ta vs. VHS" argument, but the complete obviating of all corporate responsibility to Microsoft. Microsoft has shown complete contempt for the U.S. Government and people of the United States. Witness the latest changes to the cost of licensing Microsoft products. Once they've got all the operating system and desktop application business in their court, they'll be able to make any changes to the software and/or pricing they so desire—completely relieving corporate America of any fiduciary responsibility to shareholders, employees or customers.

Microsoft didn't "invent" Windows or the use of the mouse as a graphic-input device, yet it has a defacto monopoly of the desktop operating system. We've seen how, in the absence of innovation by Microsoft, they purchase companies that actually do innovate—then proceed to bastardize the acquired product/company until the end-user no longer remembers when a product used to be good. (The Windows XP operating system is a good example: it now includes a rudimentary raster image processing/editing tool for the digital photographer, which will naturally prevent the sales of better software by highly specialized companies—since XP is including the barely passable version for free.)

Inevitably, Microsoft will be able to monitor the desktops of corporate America and perhaps even use "push" technology to advance its own agenda. In other words, Microsoft will eventually control our economy and the majority of our lifestyle based on the whims of Mr. Gates & Co. I don't wish to sound alarmist, but even in its heyday, IBM couldn't be blamed for trying to control as much of the American economy and lifestyle as Microsoft eventually will.

The settlement of having Microsoft provide software and hardware to school districts actually plays right into the hands of Microsoft—at the expense of Apple, which has done a much better job of courting the school-age computer users. What better way to encourage the uninterrupted continuation of the Microsoft monopoly than by getting them "hooked" at a young age in the schools? I am neither a proponent nor an opponent of the PC or the Mac. I just wish someone, somewhere would realize what all the fuss was about in the first place: Microsoft stifles competition and innovation. That's the truth. And just 'cause Microsoft sells Windows, Word, Access, Internet Explorer—doesn't mean those are the best products. They're just the cheapest and the easiest for the vast majority of average Americans to operate. Henry Ford performed a similar "service" with the automobile in the early years of that industry—but he didn't stifle competition and buy out competitors just to put them out of business. The American Public wouldn't have stood for that.

Robert M. Agnew
Sr. GIS Analyst—Administrator
City of Las Vegas
(702) 229-6049

MTC-00009753

From: kouryab
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:56am
Subject: Anti-trust settlement

I think the so-called settlement with Microsoft will do nothing except insure that they will increase their monopoly. If they are allowed to give schools old computers and software to run them all this will do is make sure that these schools will have to update their systems with Microsoft software. Most old computers will not run anything new as far as current operating systems. What should be done is to make Microsoft pay the settlement amount in cash and then allow the schools to buy what they need and not be restricted to old and out dated equipment and operating systems.

Al Koury

MTC-00009754

From: Exers30x@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 12:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I want it be said I do not agree with prolonging this settlement. It is meant only to benefit a few and try to stop great innovation on Microsofts part. Microsoft is responsible for making home and office computer accessible to all and with out it we would be up a creek. I say enough is enough get off of Microsofts back and get on with improving our lives like Microsoft has done so well.

Nancy Simpson
Indianapolis

MTC-00009755

From: Dr. Arthur C. Sucsy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 12:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Case

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

More than a year and a half ago I wrote the following e-mail to Texas Federal Senators. It basically gives a layman's point-of-view on the Federal Antitrust Prosecution of Microsoft at that time. You may wish only to scan the contents at this time.

"Dear Senators,

My understanding of the Federal Anti-trust Laws is that they were intended to protect the general public from any economic or physical harm, which may be caused by collusion among individuals and companies on product price or product availability.

When Judge Thomas Jackson ruled last November that Microsoft violated Federal Antitrust Laws, he gave no indication that Microsoft had in any way harmed the public. This seems to me to have missed the first test on application of the law. In fact, there are many of us (public) who believe that Microsoft has made a tremendous contribution to the public through the process of establishing a workable system of communication through the Internet. There is no doubt that Microsoft has harmed its competitors through the competitors' inability to compete strongly. But this is a clear indication that the purpose of the Anti-trust Laws is functioning; i.e. fierce competition.

If Microsoft had driven its competitors out of business and then raised prices beyond reasonable limits or limited product availability, that would be a different matter. But, they have not done that. If I were a Microsoft competitor, I would be much tempted to be in court claiming "foul", because that is the easiest way to gain an advantage. I don't know what motivated Judge Jackson to his conclusion, but if he was influenced by competitors' claims of pain, he should have had one more reason to recognize that no anti-trust violation existed.

We might also consider the matter of "bundling", which has been a "red herring" in this whole situation. I recently bought a Cadillac Deville and wanted the Convenience Package. However, the "bundle" included a compass, which I didn't want. Was I hurt, when I took the "bundle"? Yes. Did I have an option to not take the "bundle"? Yes. Can I expect that the Federal Justice Department will soon be suing General Motors for infringement of Anti-trust Laws? You may want to answer that one.

Some have said that present Anti-trust Laws are out-moded and need to be brought up to date. I do not believe that is so. Violation of the present law is a serious matter. As in most categories of civil or criminal violation, a violation is committed by an individual or a group of individuals, who have seriously damaged the public. The retribution for such damage is jail time, with the ancillary advantage of discouraging future potential violators from similar action. Have Bill Gates and perhaps other members of Microsoft violated Federal Antitrust Laws? If so, they should get jail time. If jail time seems inappropriate, one should then re-ask whether there has been a violation.

Human beings tend to enjoy positions of power and authority, and Federal Prosecutors are no exception. What better way is there for a Federal Prosecutor to obtain recognition than to prosecute one of the largest corporations in the world? If we can't get Bill Gates directly, we'll get him indirectly, even if we can't prove our case to the extent to give him jail time.

Such action by the Justice Department is not prosecution. It is persecution and should not be permitted. We have already seen the difficulties caused by the Spanish Inquisition. The purpose of government is to establish and maintain a reasonably fair playing field. When there is a winner, it is not government's role to take away the prize because other contenders did not have the capability to compete. If government does that, it is meddling.

We now have 19 states and others, for a total of 28 organizations, also suing Microsoft for anti-trust violations. One must ask whether these are legitimate suits or whether because of our litigious society these appendages are using the previous good reputation of the Federal Government to obtain windfalls in damage settlements.

Dear Senators, I have earlier said that I believe the present Anti-trust Laws are satisfactory for today's society. However, with subsequent sociological changes in our society since the establishment of those laws, it is probably appropriate for Congress in general and the Senate in particular to more specifically define these laws in order to avoid persecution by aggressive career seekers in the Justice Department.

Through Justice Department persecution, Microsoft is being seriously hurt financially and in their ability to concentrate on continued innovation to further develop the Internet and related communication devices. This is a disadvantage to the general public, and you may want to consider some form of specific intervention to bring this matter to a quick conclusion. The law enforcement people are obviously confused, and I humbly suggest that it is up to Congress to show leadership.

Dr. Arthur C. Sucsy
4203 96th Street
Lubbock, TX 79423
Ph: 806-794-1381
4203 96th Street
Lubbock, Texas 79423"

I recently had a phone call from a Microsoft employee. He had a hazy knowledge concerning the above e-mail. While Microsoft was not copied, and I do not know how that e-mail came to his attention, it was not private. The Microsoft employee advised me that part of the recent agreement between Microsoft and the Federal Department of Justice required a time period for the public to comment. The Microsoft employee indirectly asked me to comment to you on their behalf. In fact, he had drafted a letter for my approval and signature, and which I chose not to use.

I am pleased that this case is being concluded. In retrospect, I believe a Justice Department investigation should have been initiated, but a case should not have been filed.

My experience with commercial matters has led me to conclude that Microsoft was aggressive in their business practices but not illegal and in no way damaged the public.

I have been advised that Microsoft will design future versions of Windows to provide a mechanism to make it easy for computer makers, consumers and software developers (competitors) to promote non-Microsoft software within Windows. The mechanism will make it easy to add or remove access to features built into Windows or into non-Microsoft software. Consumers will have the freedom to choose to change their configuration at any time.

Such concession on the part of Microsoft goes well beyond what I consider a reasonable settlement. Consumers have always had the option to use non-Microsoft software. They have used Microsoft, because it is better than competitive offerings.

Let's finish up the Agreement, close down the case, let Microsoft take its unjust penalties, and get on with our business of building a better country.

For those who may suspect that I have an ulterior motive in writing this e-mail, let me say that I receive no special benefit from Microsoft, have never worked for the Company, have no friends or family that have ever worked for the Company, and that less than 2% of my stock portfolio is in Microsoft stock.

Respectfully yours,
Arthur C. Sucsy
4203 96th Street
Lubbock, TX 79423
806-794-1381
CC:Sucsy D & P,Sucsy Dr. Robert

W.,Woodward Karen,Suc...

MTC-00009756

From: Greg Mader
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 12:04pm
Subject: I disagree with the proposed microsoft anti-trust settlement

Dear DOJ,

I respectfully disagree with the proposed settlement with Microsoft, as it allows them to continue to "embrace and extend" open protocols with their own proprietary extensions, and, eventually, stomp out competition. Notice the pattern of RTF for word processing, PPTP for Virtual Private Networks, and Kerberos for authentication. In all of these cases, Microsoft, while claiming to embrace an open standard, remove access and interoperability features, and refuse to release their changes. I recommend that they be allowed to continue as a company, but make mandatory disclosures, or "Open Source" their technology, supervised by a review board. Please do not punish users of other operating systems by allowing Microsoft to push them into oblivion. Instead, encourage Microsoft to release specifications or source code necessary to interoperate with their software.

Thank You,
Greg Mader
Chicago, IL

MTC-00009758

From: DICKROSS5@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 12:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Letter was sent to Attorney General
Ashcroft and Sen. Rick Santorum
Richard Ross

MTC-00009759

From: John Heuerman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 12:20pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 18419 79th Place West
 Edmonds, Washington 98026
 January 5, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I wanted to express my support for the settlement that was reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. I feel that this suit needs to come to an end and that this settlement is a fair way to do so. The three-year process was not only well thought out and well monitored, but it had all parties in mind.

This settlement will be good for the technology industry, as well as the U.S. economy, not to mention the American consumer. The IT sector has floundered without the innovative leadership of Microsoft for the last three years, we will not see a turn around in the field until we can put this litigation behind us.

I trust that you will strive to implement this settlement. It is imperative that this suit ends, and that we can move on and focus on more vitally important issues affecting our nation.

Sincerely,
 John Heuerman

MTC-00009760

From: Walter Dominguez
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 12:24pm
 Subject: Microsoft AntiTrust

Why can't you just leave successful business alone. This company has done more for consumers and the world in General than any of you bias'd self asserting politicians have in Centuries!!! Get over it, should they be punished for being successful and their competitors just could not handle getting beat in the market place?? come on!!

MTC-00009761

From: SupplyCJI@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 12:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Isn't it time we stopped this fruitless battle in which only the lawyers win and the consumers lose. We have far greater problems in our country than pursuing and trying to reduce one of the greatest companies ever established. Let's stop the whining by the prosecutors and settle this case once and for all. Allow Microsoft to innovate and implement the new technologies we as consumers are waiting for.

Enough is enough!
 C.J. Roum

MTC-00009762

From: James (038) Pearl Tank
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 1:03pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Justice Department:
 Communism is almost dead. One of its principles was that people had to have a lid on how much money and/or things they could possess; the excess had to be dispersed to the multitudes. This did not lead to much ambition on the part of the people.

Bill Gates has had an entrepreneurial spirit and worked hard to get his company going successfully. He has earned everything he has and our country has benefited in many ways from his work. Let us not put a cap on his or any else's ambition by taking away their just deserts. Let us not revive the communistic way, but let it die in disgrace. Let us end the wasteful spending being conducted in this case and get on with the business of America.

Thank you for all your work.

James Tank
 215 Mack Ct.
 Brillion, WI 54110-1330
 920-756-3474
 jptank@quixnet.net

MTC-00009763

From: Nick Maier
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 1:04pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Judge Kollar-Kotally:

Please allow me to comment on the proposed Microsoft Settlement. Microsoft has clearly and repeatedly demonstrated anti-competitive and criminal activity. They have both threatened and recriminated against competitors that have elected not to collude with them in anti-competitive activity.

The most effective way to prevent Microsoft's executives, its employees, and it's Board of Directors from behaving in this way is to levy a very large fine against the company. I would recommend a fine in the amount of $1.0 Billion dollars. A fine of this amount will serve as a major "wake-up call" to the company, it's attorney's, it's employees, it's shareholders and it's Board of Directors. This is the only way to change the anti-competitive philosophy that is deeply ingrained in the Company.

I urge you to act forcefully to change this behavior, now. There will be no second chances.

nm
 Nicholas Maier—President
 NewZing.com, Inc.
 2465 East Bayshore Drive, Suite 400
 Palo Alto, CA 94303
 nmaier@newzing.com
 (650) 255-7403
 CC:microsoftcomments@doj.ca.gov@inetgw

MTC-00009764

From: Les Brunswick
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 1:11pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to point out one way in which the settlement that the Department of Justice agreed to is deeply flawed. By breaking the anti-trust laws Microsoft made enormous illegal gains in terms of profits and market share. Yet under the agreement it is not forced to turn back any of these, but instead gets to keep them. The lesson that Microsoft learns from the agreement is that it is to its own advantage to break the law. The predictable consequence is that Microsoft will continue to break the law in the future, in old ways or new ones. It would not be hard to make Microsoft give up its near monopoly in the internet browser market. It gained it by forcing original equipment manufacturers to install Internet Explorer (which was subsidized by its monopoly-level profits from Windows) and not carry Netscape Navigator. The remedy could be for Internet Explorer to be unbundled from Windows, for OEM's to be forbidden for several years to install Internet Explorer and required to install another web browser, and for Microsoft to be required to distribute Internet Explorer only by selling it at a price that represents its cost of development. Do this for two or three years and we would have real competition restored to the browser market.

The first Microsoft anti-trust trial failed to halt the company from continuing after the trial to abuse and expand its monopolies, and the second trial will have the same outcome if the present agreement is upheld.

Sincerely,
 Les Brunswick

MTC-00009765

From: John Girt
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 1:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft

To whom it may concern:

I have been a significant user of Microsoft products for years. The existence of a single entity that can use unrestricted power to get its way is not in the best interest of our economy. I am a software developer myself, but couldn't even attempt to compete with Microsoft. I develop custom systems and use development tools from various vendors. My issue is my inability to convince many clients that non-Microsoft tools are better in many areas. Because of this, these innovative products do not get a chance in the market place. I truly believe that the best thing for consumers and Microsoft Shareholders, is it's immediate split-up. The original split-up suggestions are heard were way too soft. I recommend that it be split as follows.

- 1.. Operating System and Networking software (including internet tools such as Internet Explorer.)
- 2.. Development tools and databases (Visual Basic, compilers and SQL/Server)
- 3.. Workgroup Tools (Exchange, Application Servers(.NET), Schedule Plus)
- 4.. Desk-top applications (The Office Suite of productivity tools, games, etc.) Without fair competition innovation is stifled. As individual companies each would be able to flourish in their own realm. And after at least two years, they could be allowed to develop competing products. This would give them a better idea of the effort required to compete against one of their own existing products and would most likely result in better products for consumers.

I have seen the quality of Microsoft products deteriorate due to the lack of competition. You can't even get help anymore with out talking to a staple. XP was supposed to be the best operating system ever yet they had a security hole in it that you could drive a truck through.

AT&T share holders who held all of their original AT&T stock when it split have increased their portfolio several fold. I think the same would happen with Microsoft stock. My wife and I hold several hundred shares of Microsoft stock and believe that it would help its value.

Thank You
John Girt
John Girt & Associate
(206)399-4977
John@Girt.NET

MTC-00009766

From: REYES,RAFAEL (HP-PaloAlto,ex1)
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 1:43pm
Subject: MS settlement contrary to public interest

Hello,

I am a long time IT professional. I use Microsoft products very extensively and have done so through my career. I respect their products and feel they have done many things well.

However, Microsoft's monopolistic practices are blatant, longstanding, and highly damaging. I still recall the false bug MS introduced in Windows 3.1 to cripple the superior DR DOS. Microsoft's behavior has not changed. Their bundling of products into their Windows operating system, where they have near complete control in the market, marches on unabated—squashing products should have the choice to use. Internet Explorer's dominance in the market over Netscape is a very recent case where their practices are blatant and now with Windows XP they continue their monopoly exercise with the bundling of their multi-media software (attacking RealPlayer), Passport, and Hailstorm. An operating system is an infrastructure distinct from the applications and it is long standing good programming practice that such components be "loosely coupled" to reduce unwanted interdependencies (and MS practiced this despite the baldfaced lie that Internet Explorer could not be removed from Windows).

It is as if General Motors owned the highways and decided suddenly to change the lane size, and not coincidentally, they are the only ones that sell cars that fit.

The settlement does nothing to address these very serious issues. In fact all it does is incentivize the company to extend its monopoly into education - one of the few places which Microsoft has not yet taken over. As an IT professional and member of the general public I find the DOJ's settlement to be a grave disservice to the public.

Rafael K Reyes
Senior Systems Developer
Content & Knowledge Management
Hewlett-Packard
650-960-5133
CC:'attorney.general(a)po.state.ct.us'

MTC-00009767

From: Richard C. Wharton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 1:47pm
Subject: Proposed penalties

Hello,

I urge you to inflict severe penalties upon Microsoft for their past illegal activities. Merley stopping them from future crimes is insufficient. Criminals must not be allowed to keep their profits from past crimes.

Please keep us computer users in mind. It is we who have been saddled with a Microsoft "tax" for the past 10 years.

Respectfully,
Richard C. Wharton
Ibex Manufacturing, Inc.

MTC-00009768

From: David R. Freeman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 1:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Greetings:

The proposed settlement of the antitrust action against Microsoft is unacceptable. This settlement could be compared to citing Hitler for not having his apparatus for killing people up to the current safety code—no safety valves for the pilots on the oven burners.

David R. Freeman

MTC-00009769

From: Doug Bostrom
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 1:57pm
Subject: U.S. vs Microsoft

Greetings,

I'd like to respectfully register my opposition to the Justice Department's proposed settlement of the U.S. vs. Microsoft case now in Judge Kollar-Kotelly's court. Microsoft has been found guilty of abuse of monopoly privileges, and Microsoft has amply demonstrated in the past that it is organically incapable of properly absorbing and implementing external guidance from judicial authority. The proposed settlement does little to mitigate the former circumstance, and in the latter is insufficiently informed by the prior experience of the Courts and Justice Department in their dealings with Microsoft.

Microsoft will not look upon the settlement as a benchmark upon which to anchor their ethical roots. On the contrary, the settlement terms will be used as the sine qua non of ethics that can be expected of their company as identifiable under the terms of the settlement, which also fails to properly address compliance monitoring. Microsoft has a fundamentally different view of acceptable civic behavior, as evinced yet again by today's (Jan. 9, 2002) disclosure that the corporation appears to have been systematically rigging user preference polls in a major information technology journal (<http://news.zdnet.co.uk/story/0,,t269-s2102244,00.html>).

Having done a superlative job in the trials phase of this enormously expensive proceeding, it is imperative that the Department of Justice bring a firm and historically aware proposal for remedy to the table. The proposed settlement does not fulfill this mandate.

Respectfully yours,
Douglas K. Bostrom
CTO Amaroq Systems, Inc.
www.amaroqsystems.com

MTC-00009770

From: Ray Kraft
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:07pm

Subject: Opinion: microsoft settlement does not address problem sufficiently

I would like to voice my concern over the proposed settlement between Microsoft and the DOJ. Given that Microsoft has been found guilty of violating antitrust law and abusing its power in the computer operating system market, I feel that the measures outlined in the settlement will do little to redress this problem. In fact, I believe that some proposed "corrective" measures (i.e. those addressed at schools) will in fact have just the opposite effect, and will serve to strengthen Microsoft's monopoly position.

I would like to ask that more effective measures be proposed to bring about the changes required to prevent Microsoft from continuing to abuse its monopoly position.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Raymond H. Kraft, Ph.D.
Raymond Kraft, Ph.D. rkraft@api.com
Associate Technical Fellow 425-657-1348
Applied Precision, Inc.
Issaquah Washington, USA
GnuPG Public Key Available: <http://www.keyserver.net/en>

MTC-00009771

From: Chris
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:08pm
Subject: Wrestling the 800-pound gorilla from Redmond

Good Afternoon,

As a person working in the technology field, it is practically impossible to go a day without hearing something about the battle currently raging in DC. Before today I resigned myself to be a casual observer. That was until I felt the time was approaching when you would have to weigh in with a decision. I would like to commend you on a valiant effort. Microsoft, I'm sure, was a surprise. They didn't appear to be as cunning or underhanded as the Bells, but certainly held their own. Mostly because our government was not ready to deal with a monopoly in such a new industry. An industry which is still growing. Next, let me say that public opinion is not good right now. Had the 9 states not protested, there would certainly have been a backlash. Which brings me to my point. I cannot even begin to imagine the amount of information you have to sift through on a daily basis, so I thought I would summarize what the tech community sees as the issues, and what it ignores:

First, The Browser War is Dead!...and has been for some time. We have all moved on. I realize that it was at the core of the anti-trust suit, but it does not need to be part of the settlement. I, like many others have been running alternative browsers on Windows for years. In fact, this letter is being written in Opera, which easily matches if not surpasses IE in all respects.

Second, OEM is where we should be focusing. Microsoft has such a strangle hold on consumers because PC manufacturers are forced to build either Windows only machines, or Windows free machines. A move to curtail their OEM agreement would be a big step in the right direction.

Finally, Who has really been hurt? The public?...sure, but more than that, the competition. Why not repay them. Strip some cash from Microsoft and distribute it to the three major Linux Distributions, to Netscape, to Opera, to Apple, to anyone who can prove they have felt a negative impact in business. Provide money for advertising new, non-Microsoft technology. Whatever you do....DO NOT allow them to donate Windows PCs to schools. I'm sure you also see this as a win/win for Microsoft as well as we do. Cash, however, would be great. Keep in mind that most Linux users are running the OS on machines 5 years or older. The OS is free, and the machines to run it can be collected for pennies at local charities. A much better deal for all concerned.

All we want is a level playing field. As much as Microsoft threatens the stifling of innovation, you must stand firm. Everyone knows their products have flaws, major ones, in some cases. Yet they remain in power. Ask yourselves what measures can we put in place that would put Microsoft back under the control of the market rather than vice versa.

The public must regain it's will to choose. Treat this like the tobacco settlement. The public is certainly addicted to a product that causes harm.

I hope this helps.

Thanks for your time,

Chris Gregan
Portland, OR

MTC-00009772

From: Robin McMullen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This settlement does not address the pivotal issue, which is that Microsoft has routinely indulged in unfair competitive practices, and has clearly signaled its intention to continue doing so in the future. It is difficult not to conclude that the court is either afraid of Microsoft for some reason, or expects to benefit directly from its own vapid decision.

MTC-00009773

From: Jim Kostrava
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:22pm
Subject: Settlement of Microsoft Case
To: United States Department of Justice,
The purpose of this email is to encourage you to settle for once and for all the Microsoft Case.

The Foundation for Economic Education (FEE) is the oldest free-market educational organization in the world, founded by Leonard E. Read in 1946. FEEA is monthly magazine, Ideas on Liberty, is the longest continuously published magazine dedicated to individual liberty in the United States. FEE is a nonprofit organization dedicated to free markets, private property, self-reliance, limited government, and the rule of law.

Since 1946 our organization has been supported entirely by private voluntary contributions. We receive no money from the government, nor would we accept money if offered. On behalf of our 4,500 supporters and the tens of thousands of people who have supported us over the past 55 years that are passionate about individual liberty, I urge you to settle this particular case. I also encourage you to limit the intrusion of government in business in general. Barriers to initiative and endless litigation are the anchors on the economy and are the greatest threat to the prosperity of all U.S. citizens.

In liberty,
James E. Kostrava, CAE
Vice President for External Relations Foundation for Economic Education
30 South Broadway
Irvington-on-Hudson, New York 10533
(914) 591-7230, ext. 330
Email- jkostrava@fee.org
<mailto:jkostrava@fee.org>
Michigan: (989) 687-6367 Fax: (989) 687-9088

FEE Web sites:
www.fee.org <<http://www.fee.org>> www.cliches.org <<http://www.cliches.org>> www.freespeaker.org <<http://www.freespeaker.org>> www.feenationalconvention.org <<http://www.feenationalconvention.org>> www.laissezfairebooks.com <<http://www.laissezfairebooks.com>>

MTC-00009774

From: Resom1@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:32pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Please settle the Microsoft case without any further litigation. I believe this lawsuit has been harmful to consumers and the American economy. The very day it was announced the stock market went down and every time there is a negative statement about Microsoft it goes down again.

It is obvious that those wealthy competitors of Microsoft who oppose the settlement don't care about the economy and welfare of our country as they oppose Microsoft giving the poor schools and children computers so they have the same opportunity as children in more well do schools to learn and prepare themselves for their futures. Please put a stop to all litigations of this case.

Thank you,
Evelyn Moser

MTC-00009775

From: PETER CAPPOLA
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement !
Settle this Case!

I believe this case should never have gotten this far. It should be thrown out of court.

Let Microsoft Innovate and Grow this Industry. Consumers and the Our Country Benefit!

The software industry is probably the strongest industry in this country. Instead of promoting it, its being torn apart by jeleous compeditors of Microsoft. Microsoft is the leading cause of the gains in technology this industry has had. Its speculation to say other businesses or competition would have emerged if Microsoft wasn't aggressive in their innovative goals. The Industry could just as well be ten years behind if they didn't persue their innovative goals. Bundling is a good thing. I worked for 17+ years for a computer Mfg Co. and know the negative results of having to get different software products to work together and having to install software patches. This case is not in the CONSUMERS BEST INTEREST, its the compeditors who want to stop Microsoft from being succesful. What company every went in business to be Number Two!! Whats wrong with chairing for your own team to be the best!

Why is Microsoft to be expected to have to write software to its competitions advantage and product and not specific to their own, Apple Computer has been doing that for years.

Let Microsoft Innovate and Grow this Industry. Consumers and the Our Country Benifit!

MTC-00009776

From: Jim Smilanich
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:42pm
Subject: I oppose the current settlement deal Sirs;

I have worked for US Bank for 6 years in the Network department as a network architect. Before that, I worked for Merrill Corporation for 7 years as the lead network designer and network management specialist. During most of that period I have supported and used Microsoft products in a wide variety of ways. I have also had the opportunity to compare and contrast them to Microsoft's competition.

I regard myself as about as hardcore a free market advocate as there can be. I believe, however, that a free market works only when all involved in it do so from an ethical viewpoint that embraces fair play. It is my contention that Microsoft's management has no conception of anything that even remotely resembles an ethical viewpoint. During my entire career in IT, I've watched with dismay as Microsoft eliminated one competitor after another in one market segment after another. In my experience, the finding of fact barely scratched the surface of the damage that Microsoft has done to the computer industry over the years. They did not do this by the quality of their product or by competing head to head. As the trial demonstrated quite clearly, they did so by arm twisting PC vendors, buying up the competition, predatory pricing tactics, and on and on and on.

Microsoft has almost gleefully gone back to their old ways since the proposed settlement was announced. Brian Valentine's leaked emails (<http://www.theregister.co.uk/content/4/23518.html>) urging his sales force to spy on their customer base, their manipulation of a ZDNet Java vs. .Net poll (<http://news.zdnet.co.uk/story/0,,t269-s2102244,00.html>), Microsoft's announced pricing and licensing changes, and other stories all point to a monopolist company with absolutely no fear of the Federal government. None of the news that I have read since the original finding of fact shows any remorse over their actions. None of it even demonstrates an awareness that the company has been convicted of a crime!

Please, take the high road. Find a punishment that fits the crime. The wholesale destruction of dozens of companies and market segments deserves a harsh and swift response.

Thank you for your time,
Jim Smilanich

MTC-00009777

From: Kevin Bischoff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Company Settlement
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Ave, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001
Attorney General John Ashcroft

The Microsoft Company has been in battle with its competitors in the marketplace and unfortunately with the federal government for too long. It is good news to the industry and to the nation's economy to know we are on the cusp of closure to at least the federal lawsuit.

During this open public comment period I want to take the opportunity to support your Department in the fine job that you have done to find the compromise and reasonable end to this long drawn out million dollar experience. Please consider the settlement sufficient and close the federal government's role in this competitive war. I support your settlement proposal.

Sincerely,
Terry R. Spencer
Utah State Senator
District 22

MTC-00009778

From: PLewis521@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:43pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

The Microsoft settlement was reasonable, fair and good for the consumer. HOWEVER the special interests are attempting to derail this settlement and prolong the litigation simply to benefit the few wealthy competitors of Microsoft. This is political posturing by the few States Attorney Generals who refused to sign on to the settlement. The only beneficiaries are the attorneys involved. The continuance of this case is NOT in the interests of the consumers for whom this law was originally crafted. The current settlement IS in the public interest. Please close the case.

Margaret M. Lewis

MTC-00009779

From: Stephen Grossman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sirs:

The anti-trust laws are a Marxist, pseudo-scientific danger to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Their standard of competition is equality, an economically destructive situation in which the most productive people will be destroyed for the alleged sake of the least productive. It is a nihilist attack on production and human life. Inequality is an economic good. Economics should benefit the individual as an individual, not equality, society or power-lust.

Stephen Grossman

MTC-00009780

From: mjh48060

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:04pm
Subject: Regarding the Microsoft settlement

After reading the details of the settlement I reached the opinion that a lot more must be done in order to insure that Microsoft doesn't abuse it's monopoly on the desktop operating system market. I've made an opinion regarding Windows XP Home Edition to friends and family and after discovering the e-mail address to the Department of Justice, I thought the comments I made to friends and family might be relevant here as well.

If you're looking for a recommendation from me about Windows XP Home Edition, you won't see one from me. After playing around with it for a while I found a lot of issues....

1. Internet Explorer is as unstable in XP as it is in Me / 98.
2. Older DOS games either don't run well or don't run at all.
3. Some Windows games don't run well or at all. (Including both 32 bit and those older Win3.1 16 bit stuff)
4. Printing is slower if you're doing anything else besides.
5. Intermittant connection problems with the modem.
6. Losing modem settings (Big Issue!)
7. Recovery tools are either rudimentary or nonexistent. (Worse than Windows Millennium Edition)
8. Still crashes from time to time—Microsoft says 'Bad Hardware' I say "Software Bugs"
—* XP Home Edition still can't make it to a day. Linux has so far made it to 1 day, and 17 hours and is still going. Nothing wrong with the hardware I say. ;-)
9. It's claims of being the most secure operating system are a total lie! Network listening ports are open and unclosable—For example: Remote Procedure Call and Universal Plug and Play. Firewall is now mandatory for safety reasons I'm also noting the Universal Plug and Play security hole found just before Christmas. Interestingly it didn't show up on the Windows Update website until three weeks later.
10. XP complains about deleting files in use when they're clearly —not— in use! (Time to reboot.)
11. That 8 second shift lock accessory feature that totally messes up the CAPS LOCK function. (Enabled by default.)
12. XP sometimes refuses to read the CD-ROM (Time to reboot.)
13. Microsoft compressed folders are a joke. Doesn't open on some zip files. Complains about file corruption that just isn't true.
14. The new Windows look is nothing really special nor really customizable. Unix based operating systems were doing it better first.
15. Opening a pictures folder shows a link under Folder tasks called: Order Prints Online. (Bad, bad form, Microsoft! Unlike some people, I order — NOTHING— online if it involves a credit card. Surely online credit card theft still happens.)
16. Product Activation. My issue with it is having to call Microsoft to ask for an activation code everytime I upgrade or have to reinstall XP. I feel that I simply don't need to ask permission to use something that I've paid for.

17. Desktop screen disappears spontaneously and randomly when opening folders. ($80 billion dollars in their pocket and they still can't create a decent GUI shell since Windows 95? Whatever excuse it is I don't want to hear it! I want to drag and drop. Not cut, paste and pray! What's the problem with that?)

18. Plug and Play is still problematic.

19. That general stupid AOL feeling I get. However I like my face and name on top of the Start Menu. However the user interface is far too dumbed down for my taste. I can still use the classic interface and remove that AOL feeling but I lose my face, too.

20. XP Home Full version is overpriced. Upgrade version could be more reasonable, too.

21. Upgrading over 98 / Me causes lots and lots of problems with breaking programs already installed beforehand. Every program broken has to be reinstalled. Best idea for this problem is to repartition and install XP on a new partition and leave the old 98 / Me intact. (Dual booting gives a lot of flexibility with new and old stuff but it's also a hard drive hog not to mention a huge waste of time to set up!)

22. EZ CD Creator 4 screws up XP. Roxio's recommended upgrade is way overpriced! And you —still— have to download a patch! I was never even told about the issue nor was I able to find out about the issue with the Microsoft web site until after the damage was done. (Smells like a dirty marketing trick to me.)

23. Product support is given but on the condition that you have to sign up for a .NET Passport first. (Which is absolutely ridiculous! It —NEVER— said that on the packaging!)

24. The recovery console is useless in a real problem.

25. I cannot remove Internet Explorer, Outlook Express, Windows Messenger, Windows Media Player, and a lot of other Microsoft programs that are installed by default as well as the loss of hard disk space incurred from the use or lack of use of those programs.

26. I want to choose what kind of operating system I want on my computer when I buy a computer. So far the only way I can buy a computer and have a choice of operating system is to buy the components necessary to put together a computer from different sources so I don't have to purchase a Microsoft operating system. For example, I may want Linux or FreeBSD or BeOS or whatever may be available but if I buy components to assemble a computer from one source. I'm told that I need to purchase a Microsoft operating system. I simply do not have to accept that in my opinion. Simply put, I feel that as a customer I was misled, lied to, and ultimately swindled out of money when I installed XP Home Edition. I also feel that Microsoft's business practices are completely horrible and warrant punitive measures to keep the company in check up to and including splitting the company as necessary to bring real innovation to computer technology as a whole.

Sincerely yours,
Michael Hickey

MTC-00009781

From: Donna Ulrich
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:06pm
Subject: Get off the case

Dear Friends,

We've got more important things to do. I'm sure Microsoft is not perfect but then neither is the government. Let's build our families. Let's reduce poverty, feed the hungry—around the world.

Let's focus on more important things.

Donna Ulrich
10770 S. Voyles Road
Borden, IN 47106-7615

MTC-00009782

From: Mark Nielsen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:06pm
Subject: The current settlement with Microsoft is bad for competition and for the nation

Hello!

Microsoft is evil. That is a given. Given all the lies they have said in court over the years, you cannot trust anything they say. Thus, how can you trust the settlement?

Microsoft was probably going to give 1 billion dollars to schools anyways. Then the settlement says they have to, which doesn't make any sense, because they were probably going to do it anyways. Microsoft has always tried to grab the educational institutions, because when people graduate from high school or college, they will stick with the software they know.

Thus:

1. They were already going to do it anyways.
2. It interferes with Apple's ability to compete in the education market. Microsoft is entirely evil and I would prefer, be destroyed. I would like to see it get destroyed under a competitive market, rather than physical force. I like to win my battles fairly. Given the current republican administration, please do what makes the most sense for a competitive market, which you should understand since you are republican, and just don't do stuff that benefits the rich fat republicans/corporations who have no regard for our nation, just their pocketbook. I want business to thrive for those who deserve it, not those who are able to bribe/lie/cheat/steal their way into power because they have a lot of money.

Thanks!

Mark

MTC-00009783

From: JOHN T MUDGE
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 2:43pm
Subject: Comment re: Microsoft DOJ Settlement

Microsoft is clearly guilty of illegal conduct—that has been decided in court. I, personally, do not like either Windows or Explorer. Even so, their products define the standard. That battle is over (I use a Mac). Nonetheless, the Court should dismiss State objections. The State AG's are clearly protecting in-state businesses or, in at least one case, purely vindictive. I am amazed they even have standing! If the noose is tightened even more, it sets a poor precedent to harass even more businesses.

Unfortunately, this country is coming closer to getting all the government for which we are paying!

Glad to get this off my chest.

John T. Mudge
Chehalis, WA 98532

MTC-00009784

From: Brent Smith
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 2:10pm
Subject: Opposition of Settlement

Hello,

I am writing today to express my personal displeasure with the settlement terms between the Department of Justice and Microsoft corporation. I have been a user of Microsoft products since 1985 and I'm even have status of a Microsoft Certified Professional using Windows NT. Over the years as consultant and a long time user of these products I honestly have to admit that I make a living trying to find workarounds to make products work for my customers with the windows operating system. For this I thank Microsoft for having a product that isn't as stable as let say UNIX or the Mac OS9.

If we look at history—look at what happened after the DOJ split up IBM. IBM is still a very large company, but because of competition (thanks to the DOJ) much of our products are developed better today. I feel that there is continued motivation to compete and have a quality product when competition is present.

Thank you.
Brent Smith
Client Manager RMRS-ECHO
www.rmrs.com—website brent@rmrs.com—email

MTC-00009785

From: Bobporsh@a01.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:18pm
Subject: Fwd: Microsoft Settlement

I want to register my concurrence with the DOJ's recent Settlement action. Based on the information provided via the press the terms seem fair and reasonable. I think it is important to finalize the settlement to allow everyone involved to move forward with some predicability. Additionally, the software/internet service playing field is and has evolved so quickly and constantly, I am confident that with the system checks to be put in place, the free markets will allow businesses and consumers to choose the most appropriate technologies and providers for the future.

Furthermore, I think it is very important that Microsoft not be singled out as being anti-competitive. All its' competitors are likewise working to gain any and all advantages. To do so will risk constraining innovation here in the U.S., and might help a business, particularly a non-homegrown business gain a competitive advantage they did not deserve or earn.

Bob Nelson Geneva, IL

MTC-00009786

From: David Benander
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear DOJ:

I want you people to understand that you must LEAVE MICROSOFT ALONE!!! You must not punish companies and creators like Bill Gates for being more successful than their competitors. That's why it's called competition! Someone wins and someone loses. And in so winning, Gates and his team have helped make PC use so inexpensive that we, the consumers, can all use them. Microsoft is PRIVATE PROPERTY, it has a RIGHT to its profits, and you have NO right to confiscate them.

David Benander
194 Bay Lane
Centerville, MA 02632

MTC-00009787

From: jeremy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:22pm
Subject: public comment on Microsoft anti-trust case

Ms. Renata Hesse—

As a citizen of the United States I'm very disturbed by the settlement proposal of the Microsoft antitrust case. Given the verdicts of a federal judge and federal appeals court judges affirming the basic guilt of Microsoft as a monopoly, I think the proposed DOJ settlement does NOT go far enough to remedy the situation. As a consumer I believe my choices have been limited by the monopoly and am disappointed the settlement does little to change that fact. Moreover, I'm concerned by a weak enforcement mechanism to assure the enforcement of the provisions, ineffective as they are. Even rigidly enforced, I have grave doubts the provisions would accomplish anything positive.

I suspect the Bush administration is concerned about expending taxpayer money in litigation. At this point, if this settlement were approved, I would think it a bigger waste of money; to have come so far and proved so much only to opt for a weak settlement that does not prevent Microsoft from leveraging its monopoly in the future is futile and non-sensical. To make the investment worthwhile, as a US citizen, I think a new settlement should be put in play that is designed to prevent Microsoft from leveraging its monopoly to the detriment of competition. At this point, only a new, tougher remedy proposal would make the litigation worthwhile and useful to me as a citizen of the United States, a consumer, and personal computer user. Additionally, my concern is that given the present economic situation, the Bush administration is concerned that by pursuing a tough remedy that it would hurt a big, successful company and therefore do more damage to a fragile economy. Personally, I believe that by breaking up Microsoft it would unlock more shareholder value. The sum of all shares in the new companies would be worth more than the present value of one Microsoft. Additionally, I believe it would create more jobs in a hurting tech sector as more programming and administrative staff are hired by the new companies. I also think it would enervate the tech sector as more small companies find an atmosphere where they can compete and introduce new products and technologies that have a better chance at success. In short, please pursue a tougher remedy that will prevent Microsoft from leveraging its monopoly and create more competition and consumer choice. Please reconsider your position and advocate a stronger remedy that will truly bring the technology industry to a new level of innovation and competition.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Wilmarth

MTC-00009788

From: Tim Bryce
To: microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov
Date: 1/9/02 3:41pm
Subject: Not in Favor of Settling with Microsoft

Renata B. Hesse

I am a user of the OS/2 operating system from IBM. I have found this to be a technologically superior product over the operating systems offered by Microsoft, including their latest version, Windows XP. Unfortunately, OS/2 has been in decline for a number of years from what I believe to be unfair monopolistic marketing tactics of Microsoft. As a result, vendors of OS/2 related products have also diminished over the years. Contrary to arguments by Microsoft that their products encourage competition, I believe the opposite is true; that Microsoft's marketing practices actually discourages competition and stunts technological growth.

Consequently, I do not believe the Federal Government's proposed settlement with Microsoft, in its current form, is adequate and that stricter measures be imposed on the company to prohibit such tactics from being used in the future. In other words, I applaud the efforts of the various State Attorney Generals to seek stricter measures.

Sincerely,
Tim Bryce
Editor, OS/2 CONNECT <http://www.os2ss.com/connect/> timb001@attglobal.net
Palm Harbor, FL, USA

MTC-00009789

From: Richard M. DeLio
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 3:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

Re. the Microsoft settlement, please convey my views to the court as follows:

As an Information Systems Consultant and a heavy user of Microsoft and non-Microsoft PC products, as well as software on other platforms, I can honestly say that Microsoft has brought much more positive progress to the information systems user community than any other computer hardware or software company. With regard to many of the points brought out in trial, I would offer the following comments:

1. Monopoly is a matter of frame of reference. If you ask if Microsoft has a monopoly in the operating system business for Intel-based computers, they do. If you base the definition on the absolute number of computers, irrespective of size, Microsoft may still have a monopoly. I believe both of these definitions to be incorrect. I would propose that for a monopoly to exist, it should be based on total computing utilization throughout the US or the world. Yes, Microsoft has a large number of installed operating systems, and some are installed on computers with relatively high raw computing power. But many of these computers are used for a short period of time each day or few days and then often just to send e-mail or surf the Internet, clearly not "computing." If one were to compare the operating systems installed against the utilized computing power, I would doubt any monopoly exists. On PC's doing very little computing there are a very large number of Windows installations, but on much larger, heavily used machines you would find IBM, Sun and Hewlett-Packard installations. Simply put, Microsoft does not have a monopoly based on the total utilization of computing power. This is a very important difference.

2. Microsoft competitors have argued that Windows pricing is higher than it should be. I would counter that most people pay far less, through OEM installation of MS Windows, than the suggested retail price, or even the "street" retail upgrade price. However, on pricing, I believe we need to place things in perspective. For anywhere from $40-100, based on the version of Windows installed, the consumer receives a technically advanced product which will be used on average 4-5 years before a new computer is purchased. In comparison, a pair of brand-name sneakers cost more than Windows and will likely be wrecked within 1 year. There is not a single consumer product of any type on the market today that provides the functionality of Windows in comparison with its cost over the life of the product.

In addition, Microsoft, unlike any other computer industry company in the last year, increased its research and development budget to provide even greater benefit to the consumer in the future. The money spent by consumers on Microsoft products provided both immediate benefits to the consumers, greater in value than any other computer product, and an investment in future benefits.

3. Much has been said of Microsoft's supposedly predatory practices re. Netscape Communications. Nothing has been said of Netscape's actions during this period. Prior to Microsoft's release of Internet Explorer (MS IE), Netscape had been giving away its Navigator Internet browser. When it effectively had a monopoly in the browser arena, just prior to the release of MS IE, Netscape announced that they would be charging for this product in the future. Essentially, they created a monopoly and then attempted predatory pricing. And, the price they wanted to charge was approximately what most people were paying at that time for all of Microsoft Windows, a product with far great functionality, and therefore value, for the money. I should also add that the Netscape personnel did not develop their product from scratch. They had been working on an Internet browser in a college environment, and simply left, formed a company, made a few changes and released it under the Netscape name.

4. Microsoft did not initially try to compete with Netscape. In fact, Microsoft competes in a very small number of computer software product areas, choosing instead to offer Windows as an open base on which thousands of products can operate. Netscape personnel, however, announced at trade show after trade show that they would "destroy" Microsoft Windows as a platform. The Internet would be the new platform—actually a ridiculous idea, like saying if mass transit had great schedules we would all get rid of our cars. Microsoft attempted to work with Netscape and when that went nowhere, it decided to offer a better product and cut off the Netscape attempt at predatory pricing.

5. Microsoft competitors have argued that Internet Explorer was a standalone application and should never have been put into the Windows operating system. I believe this is wrong. I believe there is a very simple test for what is appropriate in an operating system and what is not. If a program creates or manipulates data, like a word processor or spreadsheet program it is an application and should not be added to an operating system. If a program simply displays information or manipulates data at the file level, e.g. copying or moving an entire file, it should be included in an operating system. In fact, the only times Microsoft has violated this approach was when they provided a very rudimentary word processor in Windows as a convenience to users, but not to replace a complete word processor, and a simple e-mail program (which still needed an Internet Service Provider (ISP) to be usable).

Regardless of this, anyone who wished to have Netscape Navigator as their default Internet browser could do so, simply by specifying that within the program of their Internet Service Provider or, even more simply, by placing the Navigator program on the Start-Programs list as he/she would do with any other program—word processor, spreadsheet, photo editing, etc.—and then having Navigator telephone the ISP.

6. But at the heart of this litigation from the beginning has been the hypocrisy and manipulation by Microsoft's competitors combined with a bluntly terrible defense by Microsoft. The competition has used the government to try to compete against Microsoft rather than relying on an open marketplace. And, the dissenting nine states are still being used by Microsoft's competitors. I would ask the current judge to ask one simple question regarding these nine states: Would they be suing Microsoft if Microsoft were based in their states. I strongly doubt that. They don't care one iota for their consumers; they only care about the MS competitors who are based in their states and exercise political influence.

Competitors like AOL, Oracle, Sun and IBM have long complained that Microsoft has produced mediocre products and did not deserve its success. Yet, with the exception of Oracle, Microsoft's products often exceeded the functionality and value of those provided by the competition. The consumer is not stupid. Offered a better product, with better pricing, the consumer will go with the better product. Often the consumer will go with the better product even without better pricing, since we are not talking about large sums of money for these products (tens of dollars to hundreds, not thousands).

Competitors have complained that Windows is a closed system and source code should be opened for all to see or modify. The truth is that Windows is the most open operating system ever produced. If it were not, there would not be literally thousands of non-Microsoft products operating very successfully under Windows today.

7. The bottom line of all of this, however, is that Microsoft has been successful because they have provided a good, reasonably priced product, which is an open environment on which thousands of computer programs are available. In addition, Microsoft has provided a platform with integration of subsystems which should be in an operating system, yet, not eliminating the ability of the user to run alternative products.

I urge the court to find in favor of Microsoft and the settlement with the Department of Justice, a settlement which, I believe, is even more burdensome on Microsoft than it should be.

Thank you.
Richard M. DeLio
31 Manor Drive
Ramsey, NJ 07446
201-825-8098

MTC-00009790

From: Scott Bicknell
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

There is much chatter about this case—most of it saying that the DOJ is caving-in to Microsoft. I have to agree. And while there should be a penalty, I also realize that this wish is a pipe dream.

This case is moving toward dismissal. I understand Microsoft has already been convicted, but it seems after the conviction was handed down that the court said, "Oops, that's not what we meant to do. Now you boys go out back and find a way to fix this mistake. We use too much Microsoft software around here to deal with breaking up a company we do so much business with."

And that is the crux of the matter, whether the courts, the DOJ, Microsoft, or anyone else wants to admit it. As long as major pieces of judicial infrastructure (the software used to administer the judicial system) comes from one company, Microsoft, then the courts will never have the guts to do their job honestly. They will continue to pretend to themselves and the world that they are immune to bias.

Scott Bicknell
815 Creek Dr.
San Jose, CA 95125
(408) 266-9692

MTC-00009791

From: Del Gardner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:49pm
Subject: end clinton's

Please end clinton's anti-trust law abuse. Microsoft has done more for computing than any other company—leave them alone. No more law suits against them.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Del W. Gardner
Medford NJ

MTC-00009792

From: AVCS
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:50pm
Subject: Anti-trust law abuse
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Let us end the Clinton-era Anti-trust law abuse.

MTC-00009793

From: tatro
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 3:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
End the Clinton-era Anti-trust Law abuse, please. It was a waste of time and money.
Elwood & Ellen Tetrault,
907 S 19 St.,
Grand Forks, N.D. 58201

MTC-00009794

From: Bryan W. Headley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 4:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Comments

Dear Sirs,
From what I understand, the bulk of the Microsoft punishment involves the donation of computers and software to school districts. As someone who lives in a school district that's teetering on consolidation (e.g., bankruptcy), let me tell you that giving school districts computers is not a beneficial act. With more computers, classrooms either have to be built or expanded to handle the extra equipment. More teachers have to be hired, and this is money we do not have. To be honest with you, we don't have the money to do extracurricular activities (e.g., football, basketball, etc.)

This is like other well-intentioned attempts to help schools: in Illinois, we have the state lottery benefitting schools by helping on infrastructure costs. The Americans with Disabilities act hurt, as the costs of making the existing plants accessible wasn't covered by this. And so, I ask you: what good are plants (buildings) when you cannot afford the headcount? When you cannot afford the materials? A lot of people do not understand how taxation works, in regards to municipal governments. Looking at my area, you'd assume there's a sufficient tax base. Not so: we have densely-populated residential, with little industry. So, where's the tax base for that school district? The base for students is evident.

So, the act of public service is not beneficial. Unless we're talking about schools that are well-financed, but for some reason do not have computer education. I cannot imagine schools operating in such a vacuum. Having mentioned industries, let's expound on the behaviour Microsoft has been accused (and found guilty of.) By engaging in predatory tactics, Microsoft weaken many of their competitors. Consider WordPerfect, once of Orem, UT. They used to have a successful product; their employees and they were in a position where they can contribute to the economic health of their neighborhoods. Now gone, who has stepped up to take their place in filling the tax coffers?

Now, let's go into what I'm certain a lot of writers have pointed out to you: allowing Microsoft to pay off their debt to society in Microsoft software. This is more effective in establishing brand identity with the next generation of software users than any advertising I know of. What's the cost of the software? Are they writing this software off at full retail cost? Do you know how much it costs to mass produce CDs in quantity? Pennies.

I'm trying to think of something as distasteful as this settlement. This is not an exact simile, but I have to think of a dope pusher being forced to give free illicit drugs to children. What? You think those children WON'T want more dope? And, heh! This pusher gets to write off the expense, having been directed to performing this community service by judge.

If you are of a mind to go for a financial settlement, do like you did with the tobacco companies: make the company settle in cash. How the states opt to use the cash is something we can work on ourselves. I might never see any of that money appear in my school district, but we might get better roads and be able to attract/retain industries. By the way, regards to these computers: where are they coming from? China, Taiwan, Indonesia? That hardly helps out American manufacturing firms who make computers. And you know, the healthier these industries are, the better able they are to contribute to our local economy. As it stands now, we'd be better served if you forced the Microsoft board of directors to personally take roadside cleaning responsibilities for a 1/2 mile off of an interstate in Seattle.

Thank you for your time and consideration,
Bryan W. Headley
bheadley@interaccess.com

MTC-00009795

From: gandamartin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 4:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As two tax-paying citizens, we believe that the resources of the Justice Dept can be put to better use than pursuing Microsoft.

Thank you,
Mr & Mrs Gene Martin

MTC-00009796

From: Ian Nowland
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 4:27pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Hello!
I am a computer programmer. I (and all my programming friends and coworkers) have to work several times harder to get anything done because Microsoft's products are usually much more shoddy than any other software out there, since they know they can run out such products because they have such a huge market domination. Please break up Microsoft so that they are forced to be competitive and thus try and meet competition standards.

Ian Nowland

MTC-00009797

From: Andrew Davis

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:27pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement with federal government
 6308 Woodcreek Trail
 Fort Worth, Texas 76179
 January 9, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to express my support of the recent settlement between the federal government and Microsoft. It is with sincere hope that there will be no further litigation at the federal level. Taking into account the terms of the agreement, Microsoft did not get off with a slap on the wrist. In fact, Microsoft is left to make several significant changes to the ways that they now handle business. For example, Microsoft has agreed to design future versions of Windows, beginning with an interim release of Windows XP, to provide a mechanism to make it easy for computer makers, consumers, and software developers to promote non-Microsoft software within Windows. The mechanism will make it easy to add or remove access to features built in to Windows or to non-Microsoft software. Consumers will have the freedom to choose to change their configuration at any time.

With the many terms of the agreement, it is time to put this case to rest. The settlement offers a strong resolution to this suit, and I look forward to seeing the settlement implemented.

Sincerely,
 Andrew Davis

MTC-00009798

From: pankavichjm
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the it is in the public interest to settle with the Microsoft litigation. Personally, I find it hard to see how they were in violation at all. As far as I am concerned I always had the choice of using them or not.

However, I do believe that AOL is in some kind of violation in this respect. Whenever I load a program that also offers AOL I refuse the AOL but no matter I still get their program on my screen and it does start to load. I also think that they are in violation when they include free programs in cereals, etc. and send them through the mail. They are bordering on being a nuisance.

Joan M. Pankavich

MTC-00009800

From: HUNOLD38@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:30pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

Ladies and Gentlemen,

It is time to go on with more important business than litigation in this case. The Dept. Of Justice proposed settlement is fair for consumers and the company. This case has been detrimental to Microsoft and its employees. The vagaries have caused many employees to quit and as shareholders we do not see the drive to innovate the company was famous for. If the various State Atty. who object the settlement proposed by DoJ like to see a second rate company survive I believe we should have recourse for such stupid behavior. I, a small consumer, am perfectly happy with the product developed by Microsoft.

Respectfully submitted
 Axel Hunold

MTC-00009801

From: Ruth Zdanowicz
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Department of Justice:

We think that the prolonged, ongoing litigation against Microsoft, by a few special interest groups with biased agendas to promote their own products, needs to come to an end.

The economy has suffered enough with stock market blows to the "tech" industry. Get on with business.

A settlement was offered; we think it is extremely generous. Get on with business and life! The states that will not compromise continue to mire the entire industry, which affects all of the U.S. economy and attitude.

Our capitalistic society depends upon survival of the best product (i.e. fittest) to increase competition and innovation. Fault sits in the laps of those who have not produced a good product—or at least one a consumer majority is motivated to purchase.

It is essential in a democratic/capitalistic society that we all work hard to succeed and be innovative. The continued "whining" by those who refuse to settle reminds us of a sport team that complains about everybody else when they lose. A team either makes the right number of baskets or leave the basketball court. Is our nation's justice department going to support a business welfare system where the stronger companies have to "pay" lackluster companies (or the states that house them) in order to subsidize them?

If Microsoft's competitors spent half as much time and money on innovation and subsequently better products, as they do hiring attorneys to whine for them, they might actually become successful. It is time to stop supporting the so-called "victims" who want easy buck$$.

PLEASE: Stop this muckraking!

Sincerely,

Consumers and small business owners who appreciate quality, manufacturing responsibility, and accountability,
 Jim & Ruth Zdanowicz

MTC-00009802

From: Bruce F McKenzie
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a Senior Vice President of a large financial institution, I am greatly concerned about the Proposed Final Settlement for Microsoft with the Dept. of Justice. My primary concern, as far as I understand the agreement, is that it does not end Microsoft's existing monopoly or punish sufficiently past violations of antitrust laws (as the courts have affirmed), does not adequately address anticompetitive behavior identified by the appeals court and does not have sufficient provisions for enforcement of the agreement. Overall, it's hard for me to see how this is in the public's interest.

Sincerely,
 Bruce F. McKenzie
 Northern Trust Company

MTC-00009803

From: Bob and Ruth Ferguson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:44pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a U. S. citizen, I am strongly opposed to a continuation of the lawsuit against Microsoft Corp., one of the finest Corporations in this Country.

I am particularly critical of our Justice system which permits a four year lawsuit to continue, particularly since the Federal Government seemed to arrive at a satisfactory settlement, which then permits the 'States' to continue this process.

The Federal Government and Microsoft agreed to permit oversight of their operations, and this should be sufficient. The cost to all parties must be astronomical, and to continue this suit is certainly detrimental and costly. The Federal Government should rein in the "States", and finalize this once and for all.

Robert A. Ferguson

MTC-00009804

From: rketover1@juno.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:44pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement is fair and equitable and in the best interests of the consumer. It is time for this litigation to be ended.

Richard Ketover
 Boca Raton, FL

MTC-00009805

From: Dennis Ertzbischoff
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 4:55pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dear Sirs:

For what's it's worth, here is my 2 cents about the proposed breakup. . .DON'T!!!

In the 1930's and 40's, the U.S. Government prohibited Motorola from entering the land-line based communications industry by connecting to it with its radio-based systems, thus protecting AT&T. Think, where would all of our technology be today if the government had not interfered and had let the Free Market work its magic?

Today, we have the most successful software provider in the world facing a government action. When will bureaucrats learn that they cannot make proper decisions when it comes to market forces—no matter if they, the bureaucrats, are pro-competition or pro-monopoly? Stay out of business and market decisions. . .LAISSEZ-FAIRE.

Technology, especially, moves extremely quickly and no one, repeat, no one can stop that from happening.

Let's get on with the business of ADVANCING civilization, not retarding it.

Hey, get out there and read WEALTH OF NATIONS, ATLAS SHRUGGED, and WIZARD: THE STORY OF NICHOLA TESLA.

Then, let your mind work and see how narrow the viewpoints of bureaucrats generally are and how those viewpoints have damaged mankind's creativity.

As for Mr. Gates. . .GO, BILL, GO!!!
Sincerely;
Dennis Ertzbischoff
Detroit

MTC-00009806

From: Tricia (038) Ambrose Treacy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 4:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stop the insanity. Microsoft has been open to a fair settlement in this case. The prolonged wranglings of a few special interest groups, and/or a few companies that are anti-Microsoft is costing the taxpayers too much money—AND IT ONLY STIFLES CREATIVITY, INNOVATION and COMPETITION. Please put an end to further litigation and get on with the resolution.

Tricia Treacy

MTC-00009807

From: lbaska@fabri-quilt.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:01pm

Please end this ridiculous lawsuit against Microsoft. Microsoft has made us better and we go after them.

Let's just stick with finding Osama Bin Ladan. He's only interested in making us worse.

Thanks, Lezlie Baska

MTC-00009808

From: Ed Harman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My letter is attached . . . thank you.

CC: fin@mobilizationoffice.com@inetgw,Ed HotMail

Edward Harman 14 Pinewood Avenue
Ephrata, PA 17522
January 8, 2002

Attorney General Mr. John Ashcroft
Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The recent lawsuit in the antitrust case between Microsoft and the U.S. Department of Justice, which finally came to an end in November, reflected personal vendettas from competitors and politicians alike. I strongly believe litigation never should have begun in the first place, but I am happy to see that Microsoft will not be broken up. It does, however, trouble me to see that this settlement is mired in procedural sludge. I ask you to enact this coherent and important settlement as soon as possible.

Microsoft has been a leader in innovation and technology in the industry and has set the standards for fast paced growth. Microsoft continually delivers new products and services that are unmatched by its peers. Being the hardest working and most creative company in the technology sector should not be a negative mark against the Microsoft name.

I look forward to no further litigation against Microsoft and urge the US Justice Department to convince the nine states withholding to discontinue their efforts against Microsoft.

Sincerely,
Edward Harman
CC: Sen. Rick Santorum

MTC-00009809

From: Derek Mason
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:05pm
Subject: Microsoft's Windows XP & privacy

Our state AG's office encouraged me to forward my complaints to you regarding MS Windows XP. my complaint isn't about the current issues with MS, but with their new Windows XP product. I believe their activation policy and procedure is an unwarranted intrusion into my privacy, and my right to control my own computer as I see fit. When XP is installed, it takes an inventory of your computer's hardware, and then sends this information to MS, which then activates your copy of XP.

They say no personally identifying information is sent.

That's troubling because if you register your copy with MS, they can easily match activation codes with personal information contained in a registration data base. Given MS's behavior over the last two decades, it is not unreasonable to be dubious that MS will not attempt to so. There is no assurance, except their word, that they will not do it.

Another problem comes when you change hardware in your computer. If I put in a new cpu, memory modules or motherboard, XP deactivates itself until you call MS and get a re-activation number.

My complaint is that once I've activated XP, MS doesn't have a right to know what I do with the hardware on my computer. Their attitude about it is incredible. About a month ago, I put in new memory chips, and had to re-activate XP. When I called MS, their agent said, "So what are we doing today?" Almost as if I need their permission to do something to my computer. It is extremely intrusive, and goes far beyond what's necessary to protect against software piracy.

I'm not the only one complaining about this. There are thousands across the country who voice concern and dissent over MS's procedure here, but must rely on the DOJ to advocate for their fundamental rights.

Obviously, the DOJ has misjudged MS. The current settlement that was reached with them has done nothing to cause the company to act with restraint. The proof of the inadequacy of the settlement is that with Windows XP they show a blatant disregard the right to privacy, believing that they are entitled to know what you do with your personal computer. Clearly, MS is showing us where it is they intend to take us: complete control over your personal computer. They have just purchased QWest's internet system, and will be able to leverage internet access as well. I guarantee that their next step will be to force people to buy MSN in order to use Windows, all the while claiming that MSN is part of the operating system.

It's a sad commentary federal and state governments are allowing MS to get away with such behavior. Big Brother has arrived, but it's not the government, it's Microsoft.

I appreciate your time.

Thank you,
Derek Mason
Smithfield, UT

MTC-00009810

From: Harvey I. Salwen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:11pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement
Harvey and Jean Salwen PO Box 363 817
Brushtown Road Gwynedd Valley, PA 19437
January 9, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice, 950
Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I have been a computer user since 1980 and clearly remember having 7 operating systems for my computer. There was one for each application. Microsoft eliminated the agony and chaos. Please honor the in-place agreement that will allow you, Microsoft, and the rest of the country get back to work.

There are more important things to do. cc: Senator Rick Santorum

Sincerely,
Harvey Salwen

MTC-00009811

From: charlie e guest
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs;

I believe the time has come to settle the Microsoft case. I have no earthly way of knowing all the facts in this. I do know that some of the states have agreed to settle and I think the Department should do just that. See to it that they all agree and you gentlemen and ladies get back to your business. This has gone on long enough. It has taken a toll on the taxpayer. I am not even sure they did anything wrong, but you are in a better position to determine that.

Thank you for your time. Have a good new year.

Charles Guest
guestfam1@juno.com

MTC-00009812

From: Joseph Heck
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Antitrust Division, US Department of Justice.

While I applaud the Department of Justice's efforts to settle the suit with Microsoft in a fashion that won't require eternal oversight by the courts, I am deeply concerned with some of the articles in the proposed final settlement.

In particular I believe there should be swifter and harsh penalties for Microsoft if there is any complaint from a member of the Technical Committee.

Microsoft has clearly shown in the past that it has little regard for the court's directives, which has directly led to this case, and that it's familiar with all legal standings to stall the courts of the United States in such a manner as to accomplish its desired effects, even at some later pain to itself. Because of its monopoly status, it can withstand significantly more derailing than many middle-ware application companies, and it could easily drive competitors in this space out of business before the courts could muster themselves to act.

It would be exceptionally worthwhile to define in the proposed remedies whether or not Internet Explorer was a part of the Operating system, simply for the purpose to defining if it is considered "microsoft middleware", and hence removable, or to have API's with which developers can communicate and interoperate.

In addition, I believe there should be some explicit mention of other middleware programs currently being subtly integrated into Microsoft's product offering: Microsoft Messenger, Windows Media Player—and which match past microsoft actions to integrate what I consider middleware technologies into the operating system. Again, the purpose would be to define whether or not these should be able to be explicitly removed or API's provided to developers for interaction.

Finally, there was some significant press regarding a punitive action against microsoft involving the court-ordered disbursement of software & hardware to support education in the United States. I believe firmly that if this action is deemed nessecary that the courts will modify the specifications of the demand such that Microsoft is required to fund the needs of educational institutions without any control over what technologies they may choose to utilize and/or deploy. I viewed the initial reports of this disbursement with significant trepidation, as it honestly appeared to be an action which would effectively be a government sanctioned extension of the Microsoft desktop monopoly.

Thank you for reviewing my comments and taking them into consideration.

Sincerely,
Joseph Heck
302 Garfield St.
Seattle, WA 98109
joe@mu.org

MTC-00009813

From: Griffis, Tom
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 5:17pm
Subject: Microsoft 'settlement'

Dear Sir or Madam,

Since the Supreme Court has affirmed the lower courts decision that found that Microsoft was guilty of violating our anti-trust laws, I feel that Microsoft should be punished in accordance with the laws and precedents concerning same.

The proposed 'settlement' currently before the court is a sham, that does little more than slap the wrist of Microsoft. Bill Gates and company are dancing in the halls with glee and visions of owning the world, as it relates to desktop computers and software.

Since the illegal practices utilized by Microsoft caused grievous damage to the Netscape corporation and others, any remedy should 'unfetter a market from anticompetitive conduct,' Ford Motor Co.,

405 U.S. at 577, and 'terminate the illegal monopoly, deny to the defendant the fruits of its statutory violation, and ensure that there remain no practices likely to result in monopolization in the future,' United States v. United Shoe Mach. Corp., 391 U.S. 244, 250 (1968).

The only way that this can be accomplished is to split Microsoft into multiple companies! One company that deals only in operating systems that, by definition, are vehicles upon which application software packages ride and do not provide direct application functionality. The rest of Microsoft could then be divided into software utilities, productivity suites, games, etc., company(s).

As a 30 year computer software engineer on IBM mainframes, military computers, and desktop computers, I do have knowledge in this area, which greatly exceeds the knowledge of the general populace. I already have a hard time finding desirable software that I can run on my personal and work computers that is not made by Microsoft. All of the really good stuff is already gone, swallowed by the behemoth of software, Microsoft. The few remaining companies tremble in fear that mighty MS may soon decide to cut them off from the information necessary to compete, if not actually force them out of business! And, all of this is killing my wallet! As long as Microsoft can continue to raise the price of their operating systems by integrating more and more application software, our economy will continue to suffer! The price of Personal Computers has dropped to one-third of their original price, while the price of Windows has increased in the same time period. And, as MS drives competition out of the market, the price on MS application software continues to rise.

The time to punish Microsoft is now, before it is too late!

Sincerely,
Thomas Griffis
SunGard AMS
104 Inverness Center Place
Suite 325
Birmingham, AL 35242
(205) 437-7622
Home office:
11535 McMeans Blvd.
Tanner, AL 35671
(256) 216-5683
Tom.Griffis@sungard.com
<mailto:Tom.Griffis@sungard.com>

MTC-00009814

From: Abigail Ochs
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,

After reading about the Microsoft antitrust case, I feel as though the Justice Department has ignored the majority of the court findings that Microsoft has aggressively abused its monopoly position for its own competitive advantage. Additionally, I feel that the final proposition to not penalize MS for its long-standing antitrust abuses is actually granting it a de-facto monopoly in the industry going forward. This failure on the part of the Justice Department could enable Microsoft's predatory patterns to eclipse emerging software companies or even dissuade the creation of new companies. For this reason, I would strongly urge that you reconsider the proposed final judgment.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Abigail Ochs

MTC-00009815

From: Lindeman, Andrew
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:19pm
Subject: Microsoft needs a bigger penalty

To whom it concerns,

I believe that the previous agreement that was made by Microsoft and a few of the states involved is a mere (or less than) a slap on the wrist. Microsoft has no viable competition (at the time) and because of this, they have already been determined to be an illegal monopoly.

Competition is a good thing. Competition provides good prices and quality products. Are Microsoft products low priced and good quality? NO! They are way overpriced—XP full version HOME EDITION is $200; 2000 Adv. Server can get in to the thousands and ten-thousands by the time all of the licenses are paid for. They are also not quality products either; There is a major Microsoft bug at least every 3-4 weeks, and many smaller to medium priority bugs almost every day! Microsoft would like to keep it this way, and they can't be allowed to be.

Microsoft needs something more than a slap on the wrist, they need to be punished for what they did, and they deserve more than what the current agreement allows.

Thank you,
Andrew Lindeman
118 Brookdel Drive
Madison, AL 35758

MTC-00009816

From: Mail
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree strongly with Richard Blumenthal regarding the remedies which should be imposed in any Microsoft settlement. These should include remedies (1) to prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future, (2) to spark competition in this industry; and (3) to deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains.

Please also consider the items listed in my previous correspondence as means to this end. As a computer professional, I am willing to help in this matter in any way I can.

Thank you.
Regards,
Michael Kitchen, CEO Front Row Computer

MTC-00009817

From: Salim Furth
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

To be quite brief, I urge you to reject the U.S. Justice Department's agreement with the Microsoft Corporation. As a computer-dependent student and webmaster, I experience firsthand the MS software and OS monopoly firsthand, and find it distinctly unAmerican. The inability of other operating systems and software providers to be competitive in the American market effectively outsources innovation overseas, which will catch up with the U.S. software industry in a few years if Microsoft is not stopped.

Thank you for entertaining input from citizens, as one such citizen I greatly appreciate this service.

Sincerely,
Salim Furth
Milton, Massachusetts
s2000chops@yahoo.com

MTC-00009818

From: Jeff Monks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Renata Hesse
U.S. Department of Justice
Antitrust Division
601 D Street NW, Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530

As an information technology professional, I consider myself someone who is heavily impacted by Microsoft's influence in the industry. I also believe I am well-informed of the issues involved, and have a clear understanding of the case. That is why I am extremely dismayed at the settlement proposed by the Department of Justice. While it provides a possible starting place for a fair settlement, it is almost worthless as regards protecting the industry from Microsoft's illegal monopolistic practices.

Judge Jackson's findings that Microsoft's past actions constituted illegal maintenance of a monopoly are nearly unaddressed: where is Microsoft being punished under the proposed settlement? The settlement merely outlines a few guidelines for future business practices, without levying any sort of punitive action for past actions. It is important to remember that we are talking about a corporation that has been found guilty of breaking United States law, and under the proposed settlement will not even be subject to a fine.

I would propose at least two additional requirements for the settlement:

1. Require Microsoft to publish complete documentation of all interfaces between software components, all communications protocols, and all file formats. One of the most powerful tools for Microsoft to maintain its monopoly influence and control competitors is the use of its market share to force users to use Microsoft software in order to interoperate with other users. Open file formats and communications protocols would enable competitors to enter the market with substantially reduced barriers to acceptance, allowing them to compete with Microsoft on a "level playing field".

2. Require Microsoft to use its software patents for defense only (patents in other fields are not necessarily relevant here, and can be exempted). It does little good to force publication of specification to an interface, if elements of that interface are patented and Microsoft refuses to license the patent to competitors. Requiring Microsoft to offer open licensing for any patents that would interfere with the requirement for open specifications is a must.

Further, I must stress that I feel it is a grave disservice to the people who have been hurt by Microsoft's practices to allow Microsoft to enter into any settlement without paying some sort of appropriate penalty for its past actions. To do any less would deprive the American public of any real justice in this case.

Yours sincerely,
Jeffrey L. Monks
7103 Rock Springs Cove
Austin, TX 78729

MTC-00009819

From: bredeweg@wt6.usdoj.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:35pm
Subject: A comment

I am sorry, but I do not see how a slap on the wrist is going to improve things in the future. If the anti-trust case is anything more than a joke then the penalty MUST be commensurate with the massive amount of damage that they have illegally (Microsoft was found guilty of anti competitive business practices) wrecked upon other computer technology companies probably since the beginning. An inconsequential penalty will not give pause to the continuation of these unethical and, in my humble opinion un-American business practices. If Microsoft is allowed to continue unchecked the result will likely be the decline of the American tech sector as a whole with possibly unpleasant repercussions to our entire economy. Thank you.

MTC-00009820

From: Arthur McIntyre
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think that Microsoft should not be punished for the Windows product. The Apple computer only has 1 OS allowed on it and that is a monopoly for Apple Computers in that respect. If I wanted Linux, BeOs or Unix I would have it. None of these OS's offer what I need or want. I do not run a network system at home only a desk top system. I am not looking to be a hacker or such that I need these systems. If I wanted them I would use them. These are the company's that are pressuring everyone to do something about Microsoft. If they want to be on my desk top maybe they should offer something I want. But they do not. If I wanted to use Netscape as my browser I could. At one time I used Netscape as my only browser then I started to use both of them depending on what web site I was going to use. I stopped using Netscape because they did not keep up with IE in innovation and offering what I wanted. If they came up with a new browser I would use it. It is all about what have you done for me lately and they have done nothing. I think AOL is trying to become a monopoly in its own way. They bought Netscape but still offer IE and the browser that is AOL's is terrible. If you have AOL you have to use all of what they want. I do not see any other internet provider doing that. I have used at least 6 different Internet providers for the time I have been on the net but the only one I have not tried and used is AOL and I would not ever. It is like be a mindless slave.

They only thing that should be required of Microsoft is that they allow computer manufacturers to set-up Windows how they want but if they do then that manufacture has to have help support or pay for the support from Microsoft for their systems if they change the set-up. They should also be allowed to add other company's stuff to Window's. But the consumer has to be thought about here.

If I buy someone's computer instead of building my own I should not have to be forced to have what that company says should be on it just because they have signed a marketing contract with them. If they are going to offer only AOL for me to sign on to the internet with then that is wrong is does not allow me freedom of choice. I think all computers should have the same windows on them then a extra disc is used and the consumer gets to pick what they want after that. All providers could put their stuff on this disc and then the consumer can choose what they want to install and it should work without a problem. Why should Microsoft be punished for something that everyone wants. For the people who bash Microsoft it goes to the same thing as TV and Radio, If you don't like the channel change it. Nobody is making you listen to them. It is all about freedom and this is now being walked on since other company's do not have something I want.

Thank You,
Arthur & Viva McIntyre

MTC-00009821

From: Jim Brents
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stop the harassment of Bill gates and let him get on with doing what he does better than all his competitors; supplying the American consumer with the best products money can buy.

Jim Brents
Bay City, TX

MTC-00009822

From: Robert Talbott
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 5:56pm
Subject: Microsoft

This case has drug on too long. They have paid the publicity price and Clinton doesn't need it any more.

Let's finish and be done with it.
Bob Talbott

MTC-00009823

From: Jeremy Brown
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 6:01pm
Subject: US vs Microsoft Jeremy Brown
January 9, 2002 The Honorable Sen.
Edward M. Kennedy 315 Russell Senate
Office Building Washington, DC 20510
Dear Sen. Kennedy:

I am writing you in regards to the proposed settlement in the case of US vs. Microsoft. I am a professional in the IT field and have to deal with Microsoft products on a regular basis. In my opinion, this settlement is not good for the people of the United States or its competitors. Microsoft has bullied its way to the top, and continues to use its considerable clout to keep its position.

In my every day dealings with Microsoft products, I have seen examples of limited choice, poor functionality and inferior workmanship. Some examples:

* In Windows Millennium Edition and Windows XP, many programs cannot be uninstalled or disabled, wasting space and resources. Examples include Microsoft Passport registration, Windows Media Player, Windows Movie Maker and Windows System Restore. Even if I wished to install another piece of software that would perform the same task more efficiently or with more features, these programs remain.

* The newest version of the Microsoft Corporate License Program requires any corporate subscriber to upgrade their software on Microsoft's timetable instead of their own. Microsoft states that the cost of software will be lower, but fails to mention that the Total cost of ownership will be higher. The demands that newer Microsoft's software puts on equipment rises in each iteration of the software. Corporations will have to invest in more powerful computers, staff training, and IT management. Reference: www.idg.net <<http://www.idg.net/ic-784747-1794-9-10000.html>>

* Microsoft has taken deliberate steps in order to force companies to upgrade to its newer software products. They have announced that it will discontinue support of all previous versions of Windows before Windows 2000 and XP as of the end of 2002. Windows 98 and NT 4.0 are still viable solutions in many companies, and will continue to be for several years to come and without regular updates to these programs from MS, many companies will have to spend more time and effort in maintaining corporate systems. MS has also pulled functionality updates, specifically Windows NT 4.0 service pack 7, which would have allowed companies to maintain their existing servers with newer Windows 2000 based servers and its newer network directory format. When MS introduced Office 97, they changed the format that files were saved making them unreadable for earlier versions of Office. All of these issues relate back to my second point.

* Time after time, MS has released products that are full of security holes that can endanger the safety of corporate networks, information and business. The latest Internet Explorer 6 security hole alarmed the FBI to the point that the agency issued a press release aimed at the general public and corporations that pointed out the severe danger level the error posed to computers and networks. In a study recently released by the National Academy of Sciences has called for legislation regulating this issue. Reference: www.theinquirer.net <<http://www.theinquirer.net/22120101.htm>>

* Microsoft has been proven to take international recognized standards and alter them so that they will work more efficiently with its own products and poorly or not at all with other companies' products. The most famous and egregious is the now-famous Sun Java fiasco, but others have included changes to the Kerberos security protocol and Quality of Service (QoS) protocols.

* In a recently leaked memo MS is said that it will intend to launch a full-fledged Fear, Uncertainty & Doubt (FUD) against Linux, its most capable opponent in the server field. Reference: www.theinquirer.net <<http://www.theinquirer.net/>>

* Microsoft grossly inflates the price for various versions of its operating systems based on how many processors it can use in a computer, while Linux and most other server operating systems do not. This has led to issues with Intel's newest Pentium chip, which uses a technology called Hyper-Threading and will appear as multiple CPUs to the operating system. To properly use this function at home, minimally you would have to purchase Windows XP or 2000 Professional, at a 33% increase in price over Windows XP Home. The cost for server versions of Windows 2000 would more than double between each version. EG, Windows 2000 Server with 5 licenses costs approximately $850+ $50 for each additional license and supports up to four processors, but to properly use a four processor equipped server with the Intel Pentium 4 Xeon processor that supports Hyper-Threading, you would have to purchase Windows 2000 Advanced Server with 25 licenses (minimum amount of licenses available for this product) that would cost approximately $3400. Reference: www.theinquirer.net <<http://www.theinquirer.net/30120102.htm>> , www.pcmall.com <<http://www.pcmall.com/>> .

* As seen in the previous point, Microsoft charges you to access their server products that are installed on a server. If you have a small company that only needs 5 Client Access Licenses, you are set. But if you were to hire a temporary employee, you are required to purchase a new license for the temp. Failing to do so could bring about litigation that could cost thousands. No other server operating system does this.

I have listed just eight points that just begin to scratch the surface of the abuse Microsoft commits, and there are hundreds if not thousands of issues that I do not deal with on a regular basis thus cannot address. I hope that you and other members of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary will address these points in regards to the poor settlement worked out by the Department of Justice with Microsoft.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Brown
Network Systems Engineer
4 Montgomery Dr,
Framingham, Ma, 01701-3962
Phone: 508-877-2307
Fax: 508-877-0131

MTC-00009825

From: Barclay Thomas M
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/9/02 6:11pm
Subject: Real penalties and permanent oversight for Microsoft, please
222 Park Avenue
Long Beach,
CA 90803
9 January 2002
Ms. Renata Hesse, Esq. Trial Attorney

Suite 1200
Antitrust Division
Department of Justice
601 D Street NW,
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Ms. Hesse;

I am a citizen of the United States. I work in the information technology industry. I believe that it would be disastrous for me should all the tools of my livelihood be owned by a single corporate entity, no matter how well intentioned. This is what Microsoft intends. The evidence revealed in court which led to their antitrust conviction indicates that Microsoft is not well intentioned. I am profoundly concerned that, in the matter of US vs. Microsoft, the penalty phase of the trial is being managed by the convicted defendant in such ways as to increase their monopoly over today's information technology and, even more importantly, that of tomorrow. The far-reaching consequences of this de facto reversal of the anti-trust trial verdict would be difficult to overestimate. It is no exaggeration to say that this is a matter that will impact every life on this planet for many lifetimes to come.

Because of the importance of this issue (in my view), I will also fax this letter to you at 202/616-9937.

It is critically important that real, far-reaching and controlling penalties be assessed against Microsoft. Their very settlement proposal shows that the corporation's unbridled ambitions include actual control of every possible future application of information technology. The tendrils of this plan reach deeply into matters of the defense of this country and its economic health, in ways so insidious that they can be nothing but another Microsoft plan for market dominance.

This time, Microsoft is clearly thinking of the big picture. They are thinking of the entire nation and its governance. They are thinking of the entire global economy. They want it all. Their proposed settlement is another covert, gift-wrapped mechanism to achieve ambitious and self-serving ends.

Microsoft is not sorry that it has performed monopolistically. They are ceaselessly, incurably, rapaciously ambitious. They have been found guilty; the punishment you help to assign must somehow enforce a curb upon their avarice and ability to infiltrate the fabric of our entire lives. Serious penalties are called for. Constant oversight is called for. The proposed settlement includes neither of these elements.

I could synthesize my own arguments for your consideration, but others, better informed and more knowledgeable, have already done so. I will quote them extensively, and hope you will consider the wisdom of their words.

From Dennis E. Powell of LinuxPlanet:

"The ... proposed settlement ... would grant Microsoft its operating system monopoly—indeed, contains wording such that it would no longer be illegal for Microsoft to maintain that monopoly—while saying that if Microsoft wants to, it can make it easier for people to write Windows applications, but it's by no means required to do so. In short, the settlement is a travesty, an ill-advised embarrassment that flings down and dances upon the law and upon all but the most twisted notion of justice.

"I cannot see how the settlement that is proposed even pretends to remedy the antitrust violations for which Microsoft has been found culpable* The company has, I remind the judge, already been found in violation, and this is the penalty phase of the case, but the settlement contains no penalties and actually advances Microsoft's operating system monopoly. A just penalty ... would at barest minimum include three additional features:

* Any remedy seeking to prevent an extension of Microsoft's monopoly must place Microsoft products as extra-cost options in the purchase of new computers, so that the user who does not wish to purchase them is not forced to do so. This means that for the price differential between a new computer with Microsoft software and one without, a computer seller must offer the software without the computer (which would prevent computer makers from saying that the difference in price is only a few dollars). Only then could competition come to exist in a meaningful way.

* The specifications of Microsoft's present and future document file formats must be made public, so that documents created in Microsoft applications may be read by programs from other makers, on Microsoft's or other operating systems* This is in addition to opening the Windows application program interface (API, the set of "hooks" that allow other parties to write applications for Windows operating systems), which is already part of the proposed settlement.

* Any Microsoft networking protocols must be published in full and approved by an independent network protocol body. This would prevent Microsoft from seizing de facto control of the Internet.

"I ... point out that if the national interest is at issue ... and as the judge has suggested... it is crucial that Microsoft's operating system monopoly not be extended ... I quote the study released a year ago by the highly respected Center for Strategic and International Studies, which pointed out that the use of Microsoft software actually poses a national security risk. In closing, I say that all are surely in agreement that the resolution of this case is of great importance, not just now but for many years to come. This suggests a careful and deliberate penalty is far more important to the health of the nation than is a hasty one."

"A settlement more along the lines of the one I propose above would greatly benefit Windows users as well, because competition would force Microsoft to improve the quality of its products in areas including but not limited to reliability and security. The settlement before the judge would benefit only Microsoft; a sterner settlement would benefit everybody. I ask the judge to consider that the proposed settlement hurts each and every one of us in this nation in real, tangible ways. The proposed settlement should be rejected as ineffectual and again a tool of monopoly for Microsoft.

Here are the words of a California system administrator, with which I whole-heartedly agree: "As the Network Administrator ... it is my responsibility oversee the deployment of new technologies to our company. My position gives me ample freedom to implement whatever software or hardware I see necessary to keep the company network running smoothly and to satisfy user requests. Unfortunately, though my position may give me that freedom, the current software economy cannot....

"I would dearly love to replace all Microsoft technology in my office with Open Source software, and if the software economy give me as much freedom as my job did, I would do just that. However, the most defeating problem is what Microsoft chooses to keep secret—it's network protocols, the layout of its Office files, and the precise technology needed to migrate from their email server.... I am asking the court to force Microsoft to publish these protocols in detail. "I am also urging to court to act on future technologies as well. Microsoft is now planning to add vast pieces of the Internet to its web of interdependencies. With its initiative .Net, whole portions of the web would be cut off from non-Microsoft technologies. We have seen a glimpse of the monopolist's vision of the future with the UK and MSN portal, designed by Microsoft and accessible only with Microsoft technology. . . ."

From a Canadian university (a nation whose economic fortunes are inextricably tied to those of the United States) comes a very specific analysis with which there can be no cogent argument, because it raises the issue of the user's right to his or her own data: "Because the most successful competitors in recent years in product markets in which Microsoft holds a true or de facto monopoly (e.g. personal computer operating systems, Internet browsers, and office productivity software) have arisen from the open source software community, I believe it is of extreme importance that any settlement protect and enhance this community's ability to produce products that provide end-users with viable choices.

"In my reading of the proposed settlement, such protection is not provided. On the contrary, the settlement will serve to allow Microsoft to continue to hinder the open source software community's efforts.

"The proposed settlement speaks of disclosure of APIs and licensing of intellectual property. I fear that any information disclosed by Microsoft will only be licensed to vendors or developers under conditions of a non-disclosure agreement, thus preventing the implementation of such protocols in an open source project or product.

"This settlement, if implemented as proposed, will serve to entrench Microsoft's monopolies further, by allowing it to exclude the open source software community from any future technologies and APIs it develops. As this community is currently one of Microsoft's most serious competitors, it seems unbelievable that the proposed settlement will aid Microsoft in eliminating this 'threat' to their monopolies.

"As an example of the current problem' of Microsoft's monopoly in the OS and office productivity software markets, I point to the ubiquitous '.doc' file. This one proprietary file format I believe is one of the cornerstones of Microsoft's OS/productivity suite monopoly. Many people I know in the academic and business communities regularly purchase updated versions of Microsoft Windows and Microsoft Office for the sole reason that their correspondents send them .doc files as e-mail attachments. The options for importing these files into 3rd party applications are many; however, having personally tried a large number of such programs, both free and commercial,

I can safely say that many work well some of the time, none work well all of the time. The continuing cycle of forced upgrades to maintain compatibility with correspondents lies at the heart of Microsoft's monopoly.

"As a solution to this kind of problem, I believe that Microsoft should be compelled to disclose the specifications of the file formats used by its products to anyone who sends or receives files in such formats and requests the information.

"Left unsolved, this problem is bound to be more severe in the future. It has been widely reported recently that Microsoft is considering moving to a yearly licensing-fee system for its OS and Office software. In this case, files created with licensed software and saved in proprietary formats may be permanently unavailable to the creator or owner of the data in the file if a user or company chooses to terminate its license. I may own the copyright of the work I create, but that is of little value if the only copy of the work in existence is one saved in a format to which I do not have access.

"Of course the .doc file format is not the only proprietary file format Microsoft products use, and the arguments above apply equally well to other products and file formats. The .doc format is likely the most important however, because text-based documents appear to be the most commonly shared and transmitted.

"A second cornerstone of Microsoft's monopoly is the fact that many computer manufacturers will not sell computer hardware without a Microsoft OS. I understand that the proposed settlement will prevent Microsoft from entering into exclusive arrangements with vendors, but I believe that stronger protections are required.

"If Microsoft's agreements with computer vendors forced the vendor to disclose to the computer purchaser the price of the Microsoft products included, it would help consumers choose products and vendors that were appropriate to their needs. As an example, I point to Dell which will, as far as I can tell, not sell a computer without a Microsoft OS and office productivity suite. If purchasers knew that without these products they could save some number of dollars, that now often amounts to a sizable percentage of the computer package purchase price, they could apply pressure to the vendor to provide alternative (likely less expensive) products. Microsoft has stated concerns that selling computers without operating systems equates to software piracy. This assertion is absurd, and has become irrelevant with Microsoft's newest release of Windows XP, which requires license activation.

"Having consumers and end-users with more information is clearly in the public interest. All of what is suggested here concerns supplying information that enables computer users to make informed decisions, and to access their own work on their own computer.

"In summary, I believe the proposed settlement is seriously lacking, and will, if implemented as proposed, aid Microsoft in its efforts to hinder its most viable competitors. Any successful settlement must protect the rights of computer users to choose the products they desire to access their data."

If much of the legal profession is about finding loopholes (it is), then accountability is about closing them. So it's not surprising that a certified public accountant found a glaring and terrible loophole in the proposed settlement and argued that it should be eliminated:

"Another issue I have with the proposed settlement is the restrictions that are placed on the entities with which Microsoft must share their API's. In the explanations I have seen of the proposed settlement these entities are restricted to 'commercial' ventures, implying for-profit status. This is simply wrong and way too restrictive. I believe that to be truly effective the parties with whom Microsoft should share their API's and the like should be broadly defined, maybe something like 'any party or entity that could potentially benefit from such information' In other words this information should essentially be in the public domain."

Many of us are simply and plainly harmed by Microsoft's business practices. From Microsoft's own back yard, Seattle, a commentator considers the specifics of the proposed settlement. She provides a compelling illustration of how she is personally damaged by the Microsoft monopoly: "Microsoft has been determined guilty of violating anti-trust laws and the penalty phase just seems to miss the mark. I am hearing comments on the street that the U.S. Government is now a wholly owned subsidiary of Microsoft. I will admit that I find the 'penalties' somewhat perplexing in that they certainly seem to miss the mark rather completely.

"I personally think that is probably a little radical, but then I see demo copies of Microsoft's XP operating system on all the workbenches of my local post offices and I do wonder what is going on here. I do not see any other vendors' product demos available there. (Doesn't) this seem to indicate implicit approval of Microsoft products and no other by a government entity?"

"The following are the flaws that I see in the 'penalties' that essentially seem to leave Microsoft better off than they were before the trial.

"... there is no separation of integrated software that harms and stifles competition to the Microsoft operating system. Further I see no provisions for computer manufacturers to be able to offer other and more viable operating systems in a fair and price competitive atmosphere— essentially nothing has changed (under the terms of the proposed settlement). "I do not see that the proprietary protocols for the operating system, networking and other elements are to be made public in order that others may have equal opportunity to develop applications in a spirit of healthy competition and to encourage innovation. Microsoft appears to be allowed to maintain the closed, proprietary and monopolistic systems that started this process. Again it appears that nothing has changed and it will be business as usual for Microsoft. "In Washington State, Microsoft continues with its obnoxious and heavy handed practices, only now in a new area. Their handling of their Internet Service Provider (ISP) business seems to be following the same basic marketing strategy that they used with their operating systems. This has even been noted in the Seattle Times newspaper, in a city where normally Microsoft can do no wrong: <http://seattletimes.nwsource.com/html/localnews/134378212—qwest14m0.html> "Again, it appears to be business as usual for Microsoft.

"Thus I am perplexed at the current 'penalties' being 'imposed' on Microsoft. They seem to be more of an encouragement for Microsoft to continue in the same ways it has been and those are the very same ones that brought this issue to the DOJ in the first place. If these are implemented as currently stated, then fair business practices, innovation and competition are DEAD in the computer field.

"I do use Microsoft products; a very few are reasonably decent but I am forced to use others because the only option I have for them is other Microsoft products. Because of this, my time is considerably less efficiently used in repairing and working to keep the systems going rather than accomplishing work that I need to do. If one does not expect much from the computers running Microsoft products then they are not the absolute worst products on the planet. If you expect much from them and / or use them heavily then you are going to rather constantly ... have them fail (with resulting) loss of time, effort and money. On days when I am working hard it is common to have to reboot my machine to recover my working ability at least several times. As time goes on from the initial (or subsequent complete re-install of the operating system) the situation grows steadily worse. The overall cost of running Microsoft products is incredibly high and far higher than it ever should be were Microsoft concerned with more than creating a market for the next version of its products. Bluntly, quality is not job one.

"In order that Microsoft be brought into line and with any hope of curbing their horrid business practices, it will take REAL penalties and serious oversight. With the obscene amounts of money that Microsoft has managed to accumulate through its less-than-fair business practices ... there is some doubt as to whether that can actually be accomplished. It has become quite obvious to anyone working in the field that there is no honor or integrity in Microsoft, only the search for more money in complete disregard for the good of the industry, the users ... at this point in time it becomes rather blatantly obvious that national security is at risk due to the poor quality and serious lack of attention to security that is (an) epidemic in their products. That alternatives are few is a direct result of the issues that DOJ is supposed to be addressing in this matter.

"I've been told that I am wasting my time here, in that Microsoft can pay people to submit positive comments for this business enhancing solution that has been proposed as a 'punishment'.

They have done the same things in the past; that is pretty much common knowledge. I can only hope that DOJ will prove wise, not be bought out by Microsoft and free the industry for the good of the consumer and the country."

A computer professional who has a long list of certifications—including some from Microsoft— makes the point that competition is the only assurance of high quality:

"Microsoft products, by virtue of being (created by) a monopoly, have been designed without concern for security or reliability. I can prove that the design of Microsoft products leads to the spread of countless viri in the computer industry. They (Microsoft products) are the perfect products to use to send damaging virus from many groups like the terrorists from Afghanistan, Israel, Palestine, Egypt And do not imagine that these places have not already done damage. "And it is not only because Microsoft products are in such wide use, but the real problem is that the products have been very poorly designed. It seems Microsoft has enough money to do the job right, so the remaining reasons why the products are so poorly written is that there is currently no need to be 'best of breed' when you are the only option.

"It will not be long till they (the terrorists) discover that they can inflict hundreds of billions of dollars in damage. All this because Microsoft has a virtual monopoly, and instead of actually writing well-designed programs, they spend all the energy they have to simply maintain that monopoly.

"Often I give speeches to information technology groups that state, 'Without Microsoft in the industry, we would be at least 10 years ahead of where we are today'. But because of the constrictive designs and monopolizing practices of Microsoft, no possible competitive products have been able to get a start.

"As just one example: IBM wrote a fine operating system called OS/2 in 1992. Only today, some 9 years later, is Windows XP beginning to catch up to the technical capability of OS/2. In fact it still has a long way to go to catch up to OS/2 in security and reliability. What happened? IBM could not get any hardware vendors to carry the software because Microsoft had tied up all manufacturers of computers to include with each and every computer, a copy of Windows. This in spite of the fact that many wanted to use OS/2 instead of Windows. What happened to anyone who decided to use OS/2 was (that) they also paid (for) and received a copy of Windows that they did not desire.

"The only way to get the marketplace back in order is to separate the computer hardware from the operating system. When you go to a store to buy a computer, you should be able to buy any computer available without having to also purchase an operating system. That choice should be made at the time of purchase rather than (be forced through software) included in the cost of the computer

“(This situation) is much akin to buying a car, and with that car purchase also comes a coupon for gasoline from the Microsoft Gasoline Company. We agree that the car uses gasoline, and we all buy gasoline, but what if we prefer to buy gasoline from Shell rather than prepay for gasoline from the Microsoft Gasoline Company? Should we not have the option of not prepaying for fuel from the Microsoft Gas Company? ...”

From Rick Hohensee of the cLeNux distribution comes a substitute remedy proposal: “(It would be best if) the Court declares Microsoft operating system products ‘criminally compromised intellectual property’. This is a special state of copyright protection vacancy, under which Microsoft operating system products lose their patent and copyright protections exactly five years after their release dates “First off, it has (the) one essential characteristic of anything that will be effective upon Microsoft, simplicity. They feed on loopholes. There are none in the above. There’s nothing they can do about the Fed not protecting the copyrights their existence depends upon.

“There is nothing for them to cooperate with.

“This doesn’t require any cooperation or good faith from Microsoft, which is also crucial. (They may actually favor this remedy, however.)

“It does actually partially break their monopoly. The AOLs and Oracles and Rick Hohensees of the world can produce their own alternatives to Windows, based on older versions of Windows. (I personally have to be very well paid to look at a Windows desktop, but distastes vary. I use Linux.)

The focus is on the software others are dependent on, (the) operating systems. This leaves Microsoft untouched as to application products such as Office....

“What goes in an OS, where they expend their energies, all product design decisions and so on remain with Microsoft. Federal micromanagement of Microsoft is avoided, to everyone’s benefit “

Another correspondent, from England, makes comments that must be seen in the Federal Register. They neatly address further Microsoft plans to manage national and world trade through monopolistic practices identical to those for which Microsoft was convicted. “MS is desperate to stop Linux from competing in the client /server market by enforcing an MS client/MS server strategy. An example of this is the recent non-standard extensions to Kerberos so that if companies have MS clients they will find the encryption protocols may only work properly when they’re talking to MS servers. This is to be expected from the company that continuously muddied the waters on SMB.

“.NET is really an extension of the same principle, though the spinmeisters at Redmond make sickening paeans to Open Standards with their ‘XML Foundations’ nonsense. “Let me give you an example of Microsoft’s commitment to XML as an open standard for data exchange—taken from the December 2001 issue of Linux User in an interview with OperaSoft’s Haakon Lie:

“MS office claims to support XML but it writes the XML tags inside HTML comments so that they can not be found (by non-MS software). Even if the software then knew how to find the XML tags it would not know how to interpret them as the format used for the tags is proprietary! “I think this tells you all you need to know about Microsoft’s conversion to XML.

“What about those of us who do not live in the US? Microsoft’s policies affect the entire world— how do the rest of us try and have a say in this? I speak as someone who lives in a country whose government has decided to hive off the public sector IT infrastructure lock, stock and barrel to Microsoft, and whose leader, Tony Blair, goes weak-kneed in the presence of Bill Gates. Britain is about to become the first reference site in the world for .Net, if Gates gets approval from the government to roll out a multi-billion dollar 100% MS solution for the tax authorities. In the last month it has been announced that the National Health Service and the Ministry of Defence have signed deals to put all of their desktops under one MS licensing contract. In three years time, if they want to carry on using the software, they will have to pay whatever amount MS demands (the joys of software rental). The lion’s share of government contracts (in pound sterling terms) have gone to EDS, a company which makes no secret of the fact that it is little more than a value added reseller for Microsoft (all of EDS’s costly ‘solutions’ are 100% MS).”

Please consider that the U.S. government has made much of globalization. It is a good idea for the government to understand that in cases such as this one, which have a global impact, this means responsibility for corporate behavior within the boundaries of the United States. Additionally, parties injured by the actions of American companies, which actions took place in the U.S., have standing by every standard I can find.

Finally, I will quote another wise man, a Floridian with more intensive software industry experience than mine, who speaks to the point of freedom of choice for the consumer: “I am a Software Developer who has worked in the industry for almost 10 years. I have used many Microsoft products, and have enjoyed the increasing abilities of software systems developed by Microsoft. I also enjoy using other operating systems, but as a software developer, I have to follow market trends to keep myself fed—regardless of the market trends. “However, it is apparent to any casual software user that Microsoft has attempted to maintain a monopoly on the Internet Web Browser market. It is more apparent to a software developer who works within Microsoft operating systems. The technical aspects involved in the operating system itself (specifically, development with the Microsoft Foundation Classes and use of ‘.Net’ technology) marries the software developer (happily or unhappily so) to Internet Explorer, and the operating system.

“Furthermore, specific training programs such as MCSE (Microsoft Certified Software Engineer) and MCS D (Microsoft Certified Solution Developer) are geared towards maintaining the Internet Browser market by way of gearing Microsoft Certified individuals (who pay for courses and tests! to use only Microsoft Products.

“Operating Systems. “Software. “Software Development. “In an Internet enabled world, these are the tools for maintaining a monopoly on the Internet Browser Market.

“One could argue that nobody else has attempted these things on the level that Microsoft Inc. has. Yet that is my point. Nobody should. Freedom of Choice. “The newer versions of Windows have the Internet technologies wrapped in them. This IS an obvious attempt to maintain a monopoly on the Internet Browser market. They may be able to prove that they did not do it ‘on purpose’, but they have done it. If I run over a man with my car, and I broke a traffic law while doing so, the offense is manslaughter. If I planned to do it (premeditated), it’s Murder 1. The fact remains that a man would be dead.

“Odds are that when this is read, it will be read on a Windows NT 4.0 machine. Why? Because the U.S. Government has certified Windows NT 4.0 as a secure operating system. Furthermore, this mail message will probably be read through another one of Microsoft’s applications. “The U.S. Government, for lack of any other ‘secure’ operating system, has gone with the highest bidder. Neil Armstrong quipped about going to the moon on everything built by the lowest bidder, and here the United States states that we’ll go with the ONLY software manufacturer that creates an operating system. This seems counterintuitive. Freedom of Choice. If you need more proof than the software that the reader of this document is using, and my ability to predict that, I’m at a loss.

“These two points highlight the fact that the average American consumer is paying more than once for the same software—first as consumers, then as taxpayers. When banks charge twice for ATM withdrawals, we cringe and say that it may be legal, but it is obviously immoral. Given, the hardware manufacturer is hiding the price of the operating system on new computer systems, the fact remains the same.

“This is a sticky situation, but legal recourse in the interest of the people of the United States (and the rest of the world!) should contain the following items:

“(1) Microsoft products—or products of any software manufacturer—must be sold as separate items by computer vendors. Users can then make a CONSCIOUS choice. Other software manufacturers then also have a chance to compete. Installation of the USER SELECTED software can remain free.

“(2) Any Microsoft networking protocols must be published in full and approved by an independent network protocol body. This would prevent Microsoft from seizing de facto control of the Internet.

“(3) The specifications of Microsoft’s past, present and future document and network formats must be made public, so that documents created in Microsoft applications may be read by programs from other makers, on Microsoft’s AND other operating systems. This is in addition to opening the Windows Application Program Interface (‘Windows API’, the set of “hooks” that allow other parties to write applications for Windows operating systems), which is already part of the proposed settlement.

“(4) The level Microsoft is certified by the Software Engineering Institute must be made public to the consumer, as well as insight into their development process for Operating Systems. SEI level 3 is required by the United States Government for software companies that supply software to it (or that was coming in 1999). This certification was created to protect the government from software manufacturers that had no software development process. This same certification should protect the average consumer, AND insight into the Software Development Process for creation of their operating systems would give software manufacturers a chance to keep up with Microsoft.

“(5) Device Driver information for new operating systems MUST be made public prior to the release of the operating system by a minimum of 6 months. This is VERY important when dealing with future web enabled embedded devices. This is also very important to the average consumer—they get a better product!

“This judgment is not only of import to the United States, where it is a national issue. It is in fact an INTERNATIONAL issue, since the monopoly itself extends to all corners of the world. Judgment in this case MUST be fair to the consumer, because future cases along these lines will look toward this precedent. And, in future, it may not be as domestic an issue. “Furthermore, if Microsoft Inc. were a foreign company, this would be seen as a security issue. It should be seen this way despite the fact that Microsoft is a domestic software manufacturer, (and) for the SAME reasons.

“Please realize that the implications in an Internet based society reach further than the next few years. They affect society ad infinitum.”

Please do not allow this travesty of a negotiated settlement to warp this nation's future. Please do not allow the tools of production to remain in a single pair of grasping corporate hands. Thank you for your consideration. Please help the judge to make careful and considered choices. The task before you now is to rein in this corporate megalith and constrain its future behavior into conformity with the letter and spirit of the law. The richest must not be allowed to legislate for all of us, with no end other than their further enrichment. That isn't justice.

Thomas M. Barclay

MTC-00009826

From: Steve Oualline
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 6:15pm
Subject: Problems with the Microsoft Settlement

I am extremely concerned about the proposed settlement with Microsoft.

Microsoft for a long time has been able to use their monopoly power to keep other products off the market. This has allowed them to overcharge for both their operating system and office suite.

The settlement does nothing to punish this past behavior. Instead it rewards Microsoft by letting it keep all the money it stole from consumers through overcharging.

The other problem is that it does not prohibit future problems. There is nothing to prevent Microsoft from using its monopoly in operating systems from using that monopoly to leverage itself into the E-commerce market. Microsoft has long wanted to place a “Microsoft Tax” on every web based transaction and this settlement will let them go ahead. If the settlement stands I can easily see a day when Microsoft forces everyone who uses Windows to use Microsoft Passport (or some other Microsoft technology) when buying on line.

Finally, the settlement forces Microsoft to expose it's API's so that other people can write applications for the Microsoft Operating system. However, Microsoft has added a clause that excludes Open Source Projects. Since these are the principal competition for Microsoft's products I find that provision extremely troubling.

What Microsoft has done is said it will let anyone who wants to get a copy of the API's except for anyone who might be really able to use it. Is that a settlement or a gift to Microsoft?

In short this settlement gives almost everything to Microsoft that Microsoft wanted. What we need is a settlement that contains real penalties and provides for solutions that foster real competition.

Steve Oualline
11259 Paul Barwick Ct.
San Diego, CA 92126
858-695-2637

MTC-00009827

From: Derek Su
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 6:14pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

As a taxpayer and citizen, I want to express my strongest displeasure and disappointment of State government efforts in trying to destroy the MOST SUCCESSFUL company in the world. Microsoft is the envy of the high-tech industry, especially in the software area, worldwide. The existence of Microsoft in the last 26 years is the reason that USA is able to maintain its superior competitive age in the high-tech industry of world market.

In any country, a company like Microsoft would be treated as national symbol that every citizen can be proud of. According to the public polls, majority of citizens like me, opposes the government action which is abusing the public trust and wasting the taxpayer money. I am very disturbed and puzzled by the actions taken by some State Attorney Generals. The only conclusion I can make is either those Attorney Generals are very naive and don't understand the latest fast-moving new technology at all, or they are simply pursuing a political solution for special interest groups. However, they should be reminded that their actions may be AGAINST OUR NATIONAL INTERESTS and only benefiting the special interest groups.

Please also pay a special attention to any potentially adverse impact to our overall national economy if their ill-advised plans are ever taken place. Thanks for your time.

Sincerely yours,
Derek Su
id5olutions
512.342.0500 x14

MTC-00009828

From: Matthew Dunn

To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/9/02 6:27pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft needs to be punished for their crimes. Punish them in a way that will help the IT industry. Make them share their API's. As far as the making them give schools software...thanks now they can take over a new market that they are not in.

Matt Dunn

Tech Manager

Microsoft product user

MTC-00009829

From: Jim Brents
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 6:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it was totally unfair to persecute Bill Gates for doing a superb job of supplying the consumer with computer services. If the settlement will end the persecution & let he and his company get back to business, it should be accepted ASAP.

Sincerely,
Sandi Brents,
Bay City, TX

MTC-00009830

From: Randy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 6:35pm
Subject: hands off

The government should keep their hands off Microsoft! This intrusion is a threat to ALL businesses in this country! How dare they think they can just come in and take over! Are we still living in the United States, or what?!

Jennifer Davidson
Petaluma, CA

MTC-00009831

From: Francie521@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 6:49pm
Subject: (no subject)

I support the Microsoft settlement

MTC-00009833

From: Frapazoid 1.4
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:23pm
Subject: My opinion of the Microsoft settlement

Microsoft's proposed settlement of buying their own software for schools is absolutely insane, for many reasons.

1) If Microsoft buys their own software with the money, at full price, how are they being punished? Let's say they "spend" 100k dollars on WindowsXP. At 200$ per copy, they are really only paying for the 3$ manufactur cost, and the rest just goes back to them. So they are really only spening a 1.5% fraction of it. This applies to just about all of their software.

2) Buying Microsoft's own software only strengthens their monopoly by training millions of kids at schools in the use of Microsoft software. So when they someday decide to buy their own computers, they will get what they are used to; Microsoft software.

3) The simple fact that it's Microsoft who suggested this settlement should be very suspicious. Obviously a company will try to come up with a punishment that doesn't really work but seems bad.

4) A well known tactic of Microsoft is to pay people to send supportive E-mails and mock flame-mails from fake Linux users. Anyone who claims to use Linux and is sending really moronic messages to this address is probably really a Microsoft supporter. Check their Email headers and you will see they are using Windows.

Here is my preposed solution. Microsoft should spend 1$ dollars on installing and support of competitor's software.

That means Linux, StarOffice, possibly Macintosh, etc. The rule should be that whoever they buy software from must not be an ally; They must be a competitor.

Also, Netscape is a must, in place of Internet Explorer. This would work better for the following reasons:

1) The money doesn't just go back to Microsoft. They actually have to do some spending, instead of just faking it.

2) It hurts the monopoly buy training people to use competitor's software and hardware rather than their own.

3) WindowsXP has high system requirements, so a good portion of the money will be spent on hardware. As a result, a smaller number of machines will be able to be updated, because of the higher cost. However, if something like Linux is used, hardware will not require as much improvement. Less upgrade cost means more computers to be upgraded.

4) Linux is far cheaper than Windows XP, which also means more systems will be upgraded. Even with support, RedHat Linux would only cost 60$ per copy, where WindowsXP would be significantly more. Without the support, it would be about 5$ per school for OS software.

5) This would be very supportive of Microsoft's competitors, thus causing much damage to their monopoly. Also, if Microsoft opposes this type of settlement, that means it will work as a punishment. After all, if the criminal is okay with the punishment, it's not a good one.

6) Most of Microsoft's competitors may be willing to give price cuts to help their reputation, which would allow even more systems to be updated with the billion dollars.

If you read this, please reply. You don't even need to say anything, just hit reply and send without typing anything. I would just like to be aware of whether these messages are being read or not.

MTC-00009834

From: Barry Tucker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Good Sir: I am glad that the DOJ and numerous states have reached a settlement with Microsoft.

It is my sincerest hope that the remainder of the states be brought "into line" with the settlement, so that the entire computer industry, including Microsoft, can get back to what it does best.

Thank you,
Barry Tucker
PowerPro Systems Group, Inc.

Microsoft Certified Solution Developer
(programmer)
Microsoft Certified Solution Provider
CPA
www.ppsg.com barryt@ppsg.com
520 742-9929

MTC-00009835

From: Ricevuto
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:28pm
Subject: Web page not being updated...

To whom it may concern,
Will the web page (<http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/ms—index.htm>) be updated with any of the recent court activities (e.g. Microsoft not being able to extend the deadline for the hearing)? It seems that there has been no activity on it for a while.

Please let me know.
Thanks for your time.
Sincerely,
Pat Ricevuto
email: cmprice@gte.net

MTC-00009836

From: Elmer Laudinsky
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen: It is time to get on with business. The settlement agreement, while still unfair to Microsoft, is most agreeable to all those it affects. It is time for forget those special interests, those that are complaining because they cannot compete at a fair price with a good product. Microsoft has made available to the public programs that are the best on the market at a price that anyone can afford.

Let's get on with it and finalize this settlement.

—Elmer Laudinsky
—designtwo@earthlink.net

MTC-00009837

From: Will Pearson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 12:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Proposed Settlement

Rebuttal
Hello,

I'm writing to help inform those who are deciding the fate of the known world. The settlement with Microsoft as it currently stands is little more than a pat-on-the-back for a proven Monopoly.

When Standard Oil was accused of being a monopoly Rockefeller believed that the government didn't have the authority to dismantle his monopoly. When the government threatened to send in the military, Rockefeller backed down, thus we have the several oil companies we have today.

Today we have Microsoft, a company with a reprehensible past. A company which has not innovated a single thing in its history, and yet Microsoft gets rewarded for its carpetbagging.

I work in the Education business. I take care of Networks and computers for a School District. For proof of Microsoft's monopoly just walk down to your local school and look at the software that is being taught. I'd bet my computer certifications that 90% of them say "Microsoft" upon start up.

Here we are, teaching our children that it's good to play unfair. That it's right to break the law because you'll be rewarded for it. Just look at how the proposed settlement will effect other companies. For instance, it gives Microsoft the authority as to who can use their protocols. Now in the computer world, things work good if protocols are standardized. Just look at the Internet running TCP/IP, it works only because of that free and public standardization.

Now look at Linux, the free operating system originally created by Linus Torvalds, in the words of Microsoft Officer Brian Valentine, "It is the longterm threat." Lets look at that sentence, notice he said 'the' not 'a' or even 'possibly', he left straight to the big 'ol 'THE'. Microsoft believes that there isn't a single operating system in the world that possibly poses a threat to it's monopoly, except Linux. And here we have under the proposed settlement authority given to Microsoft to say who it can share it's protocols with. How, because it gives Microsoft the ability to discern what it believes is a legitimate business. Since Linux is free, it is non-profit. And therefore, not a legitimate business. Nobody has made any money selling it.

Furthermore, the settlement will have a devastating effect on the outcome of the various state lawsuits with Microsoft. Also the lawsuits involving the European Union. Why, it sets a precedent.

You have a job to do, you have a job of punishing the bully in the playground for not playing nice and breaking other kids legs. Do your job and do the right thing.

William Pearson
Desk# 505-954-2583
Pager# 505-820-8488

Technology Resource Center

"The tree of liberty must be refreshed Santa Fe Public Schools from time to time with the blood of Patriots & Tyrants"—Thomas Jefferson "They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety."—Benjamin Franklin "I know not with what weapons World War III will be fought, but World War IV will be fought with sticks and stones."—Albert Einstein "The purpose of war is to decide who has justice on his side, the looser is the guilty one"—Lucan

MTC-00009838

From: Doug Spittler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:52pm
Subject: Justice???

To Whom It May Concern:

It seems difficult to believe that the U.S. Government is STILL persecuting the company and the man who have brought about a revolution at least as great as the Industrial Revolution.

This same government would be INOPERABLE if Bill Gates and Microsoft didn't exist.

If another operating system of superior value were "out there," the market place would surely have discovered it by now. Frankly, if I were Mr. Gates, I'd simply shut down Microsoft and let you folks stew in your own juice.

Sincerely,

Doug Spittler
Kalama, WA

MTC-00009839

From: Dorothy St. Onge
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe it is time to settle this anti trust case in favor of Microsoft who should be free to innovate so that we can move into the future. I don't believe Microsoft has hurt anyone who purchased software to use for business or pleasure. A computer today is considered old at 3 years and this case has gone on far longer than that and is costing the public a great deal of money. Money is what it is all about as far as the states and Microsoft competitors are concerned. They not only want Microsoft's money they want the tax payers to pay the court costs for as long as possible. Wrap up this case and let us get on with our lives and the right to innovate.

Dorothy St. Onge
e-mail: stonge@waypt.com

MTC-00009840

From: robert begley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 7:55pm
Subject: Drop to Case Against Microsoft To Whom This Concerns,

I am writing to say that Bill Gates, not Bill Clinton, is responsible for the boom in the economy we enjoyed during the 1990s. If you follow the NASDAQ since the AntiTrust trial against Microsoft heightened, you will see that it has spiralled downward dramatically. The Anti Trust laws are non objective and should be repealed immediately.

Sincerely,
Robert Begley

MTC-00009841

From: Deborah Levinger
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I just wanted to write to tell you I hope you well do everything to settle this case quickly and once and for all and do everything in to get the last states to agree to the settlement that was agreed by the government and Microsoft. It is time to move forward from this case and move forward with our economy and letting Microsoft build great products.

Thank you.
D Levinger

MTC-00009842

From: Keith Frederick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a supporter of BeOS, an operating system that has recently—more or less—died with the sale of its parent company, Be, Inc. to Palm. I have noticed that many BeOS users are lobbying to extract gains from Microsoft or to increase punitive damages. However, unlike other BeOS supporters I do NOT support the anti-trust case against Microsoft and hope that the Department of Justice does not seek to come up with new penalties or excessive penalties against Microsoft as it would be counter-productive.

The truth about BeOS is that it failed due to poor management. Originally, BeOS was provided for a PARTICULAR COMPUTER SYSTEM—just like the Macintosh Operating system is provided for a particular computer system. Originally, BeOS was NOT DESIGNED to work on multi-boot systems. That is, BeOS was designed for computers that COULD NOT run MS-Windows just like the Macintosh Operating system is on computer systems that can not run MS-Windows.

The Be product was designed to compete for media developers who were currently using the Macintosh—so, originally Be's competition was the Macintosh. In fact, Be, Inc., at one time had hoped that Apple would purchase Be — instead Apple purchased NeXT and based their future operating system on NeXT's technology rather than Be's technology.

When Be failed to make headway with its own proprietary computer system; and when Be failed to win against NeXT; Be, Inc. then decided to compete in the general operating system market—against Linux, FreeBSD and Microsoft—all systems that run on low-cost Intel hardware. Be CHANGED their operating system to run on these new Intel systems. There was very little software for BeOS compared to Windows and Linux—that's why BeOS failed.

Unlike Linux which gained headway and had tens of thousands of developers; the constant failures of Be turned-off developers and little software was every produced for BeOS systems. Microsoft's tactics had little to do with the failure of BeOS. BeOS was competing in the same market as the Macintosh originally (proprietary non-Intel systems) and failed; then BeOS went for the low-cost Intel market and failed; and then Be, Inc. once again tried a new strategy of forgetting about the desktop and concentrating on devices with their BeIA—then they ran out of money and sold themselves. Be had more ideas than money in the bank to support their goals.

The history of Be is one of poor management. Be did not take the time to slowly build market share. Be, Inc. could NOT even erode Apple's market share when it competed against Apple. To think they had a good chance in the even more competitive Intel market is a laugh—Be was selling a proprietary closed operating system with little software—and virtually ZERO marketing. That combination against Linux (free with LOTS of publicity) and Windows (costly but with LOTS of software) was doomed to initial failure— however, if Be had the money they might have carved out a niche — they didn't have the money and thus no time to build a niche. That's not Microsoft's fault.

Please end the whole Microsoft affair quickly and please don't allow people to put their failures at MS's doorstep. The story of Be has to do with poor management. Be lasted 10 years trying to be the next APPLE—only in the last few years did they compete in the Microsoft realm—their failure has nothing to do with Microsoft.

Sincerely,

Keith Frederick,
Seattle, WA
CC:msfin@microsoft.com@inetgw

MTC-00009843

From: Alan Hensel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:26pm
Subject: think about the future

People tend to forget this Law of Nature: Nature does not favor the mundane, nor does it favor the fantastic. Nature favors that which is probable.

Keeping this in mind, consider these 4 facts:

- 1) E-commerce is already a big thing, and will be even bigger in the future.
- 2) Microsoft has a history of pulling the rug out from under competitors' feet.
- 3) Microsoft wants to be the sole platform of future e-commerce.
- 4) Microsoft wants to be able to helpfully auto-update their software instantly over your broadband connection.

Alan Hensel
108-G Shadewood Dr.
Chapel Hill, NC 27514
alanh@mindspring.com

MTC-00009844

From: Jim Poulton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:38pm
Subject: Retired USAF SWBell union memeber & MS Stockholder

Is our government stupid?
Quit screwing with the brightest light in our economy.

If any other nation in the world had Microsoft in their country they would back them to the limit. Only because our country allows foreign lobbyists and because we have so many other multi-national companies bribing our officials do we have this problem. Support the USA and our workers and KNOCK IT OFF!

James Poulton
USAF (retired) MSgt
214-902-8996

MTC-00009845

From: Richard Wray
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:40pm
Subject: Microsoft

We love Microsoft hardware, but if their competitors come up with something better, we'll try it. We don't think the Government should force the market. Microsoft hasn't used force; they have used contracts that both sides have agreed to.

Leave Microsoft and the high-tech market alone. You'll only destroy the market by interjecting government force.

Dick and Vivi Wray
Palo Alto, CA

MTC-00009846

From: Kelly
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 9:00pm
Subject: Proposed settlement ICO U.S. v. Microsoft

Dear Sir or Ma'am,
The proposed settlement, in my view, does not punish Microsoft. Indeed it strengthens them. Please allow me to illustrate this:

(a) The proposed settlement provides Microsoft with the sole legal license to determine who shall be considered a business. This does not at all bode well for organizations who write programs under the Gnu public license. As no actual financial instrument changes hands, Microsoft could state that a business/organization which operates under the Gnu public license is, according to Microsoft, not a business at all. As such, Microsoft is not required to provide technical details of their middle ware, etc.

(b) As the settlement is to, at least purportedly, punish Microsoft for their—proven—monopolistic practices, nowhere in the proposed settlement is the requirement to, if you will, force the consumer during installation of the operating system to make certain choices. Choices pertaining to which web browser to have installed. Which e-mail program to have installed and on and on. And, even if there were, there is no requirement that there be no default settings. That would be counter to the intent and purpose of the settlement.

(c) Since there is very little competition against Microsoft, how can there be as Microsoft has a proven monopoly, the products which Microsoft ships are by any reasonable standard quite poor. Security holes and patches that don't work are just two examples of many. This traditional shipping of poor products has cost consumers and businesses alike—billions—of dollars annually. Without competition there is no reason to improve a company's product line. Yet I can not find within the proposed settlement any protection for consumers or businesses which are using Microsoft products. There is no change to the current "End User License Agreement" which would provide businesses and consumers alike with a legal remedy (standing) should their system(s) be attacked by a virus, worm, cracker, etc. Furthermore, there is no legal remedy (standing) should a Microsoft product—cause—a business or consumer injury to their computer or files.

An example of this is upgrading from Windows 98 to Windows 98SE and Windows 98SE fails to shut down properly due to Microsoft's willful—failure—to maintain device driver databases from previous editions of Windows. Consequently, a business or consumer either has to upgrade hardware or have their computer(s) crash on a daily basis. In short, there needs to be remedy for the consumer and business users of Microsoft products.

(d) Consumers should have the—choice—of operating systems when purchasing a new computer. Consumers should not be stuck with "comes with Windows [pick a flavor]." Hence, Microsoft should be forced to pull their operating systems from manufacturers. This would give consumers a choice in the matter.

Thank you for your time.
/s/Mr. Kelly Prince

MTC-00009847

From: Eric MacKnight
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 8:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To whom it may concern:

I am appalled at the Justice Department's proposed settlement with Microsoft, which is nothing more than a disguised capitulation. Microsoft's business practices are unrepentingly rapacious. Bill Gates will do anything to win, and his ambition to control is insatiable. Just today I found another small "incident" illustrating Microsoft's lack of ethics, in this story of how Microsoft employees attempted to rig the results of a website poll in Microsoft's favour: <http://news.zdnet.co.uk/story/0,,t269-s2102244,00.html> Clearly, half-measures will have no effect whatsoever in restraining Microsoft's illegal and unethical business practices. I urge you to take the strongest possible measures against this company. My own preference would be to require that the corporation be split in two, with the operating system business in one company, and the application software in another. This solution would remove the incentive to monopolize, remove most of the company's means to bully competitors, and promote innovation by allowing smaller companies a chance to compete in the marketplace.

Sincerely,
Eric MacKnight
ericmacknight@shaw.ca
CANADA
Don't do Windows, and don't let Windows do you.
Boycott Microsoft!
<http://www.procompetition.org/>
<http://www.breakupmicrosoft.org/>

MTC-00009848

From: M. Andrews
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 9:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hello—

I'd just like to express my opinion regarding the Microsoft Settlement.

About the 1 Billion in refurbished equipment and software. I really don't think that this is a punitive move. My reasons are as follows.

1) While Microsoft is the default standard in nearly every market it is less a leader in the educational market. This now dictates that Microsoft has a federally mandated responsibility to pursue market dominance in education and in fact cannot be refused.

2) Apple Computer, while a healthy company, is not the giant that Microsoft is and to have the Federal government instruct Microsoft to aggressively pursue market dominance will place undue and unnecessary strain on Apple Computer's abilities to effectively market products to this segment of Apple Computer's business.

3) While the donation idea seems to be a decent and thoughtful move on the surface it in no way accomplishes the goals of the court case as I understand them, "...the remedial goals set by the U.S. Court of Appeals:

(1) to prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future,
(2) to spark competition in this industry;
and

(3) to deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains." I have owned stock in both companies. I have sold my stake in Microsoft this year. I have read the issues with Microsoft's corporate behavior and have decided not to be associated with a company that appears to have no ethical or moral underpinnings regarding their corporate methods. The latest developments with Microsoft's browser only underscore the fact that even though the company has judgments against it, it has failed to amend it's business practices to conform to generally accepted methods.

Please pursue a better solution to the Microsoft Anti-Trust case, one that enforces the U.S. Court of Appeals goals.

Thank you for your time,
Mark Andrews
109 Chestnut St.
Branford, CT 06405

MTC-00009849

From: GAMatthews03@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 9:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I, along with the vast majority of the masses, are getting sick and tired of the Dept of (Justice?) continuing to spend taxpayers money to punish Microsoft because some of it's competitors want a "level playing field" so that they can gain on Microsoft without any development on their own. Why should a company (MS) give out all its source code (that took years to develop) to the world? This whole thing started with some silly browser (hah!) AOL now has both IE and netscape, so now where is the argument? The government has no business in this suit that it will never comprehend the damage they are doing to the country and to the many consumers. If you want to attack someone, go get AOL...who continues to push and push a BAD product after they have locked in millions of customers. They are MUCH more monopolistic than MS. If the government would leave this area up to the industry, they would resolve it by themselves. The DOH HAS NO IDEA of the many agreements and the damage this is doing to the millions of consumers and customers...it is not just punishing Microsoft.

These last states attorney generals are just blowing smoke for some special competitors....this is not about abuse of the public and MS customers.

MTC-00009850

From: john l denny
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 9:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that further litigation in the Microsoft case is undesirable.

John L Denny
4445 Catalina Place
Tucson AZ 85718
Prof. of Mathematics, Prof. of Radiology,
Emeritus, University of Arizona

MTC-00009851

From: web blank
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 9:26pm
Subject: ELIOT SPITZER AND DOJ NY NY
WADC

YOU HAVE TO HAVE THE LETTER AS IT IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN YOU ME AND THE WWW GOPHER. REPLY O.K.
SIGNED RICHARD JOHN FRANK 1-9-2002

MTC-00009852

From: Erwin Brown
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the justice department should notify the renegade states that a settlement has been agreed upon and either join in or go home and sulk. Those States I refer to are backing companies in competition with Microsoft. The market is open to all who want to compete for it, if they are not competitive, they have only themselves to blame.

Please put this issue to bed now.
 Erwin D. Brown

MTC-00009853

From: Jean (038) Gene Millsaps
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:45pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Honorable Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 D Street NW
 Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

To the Honorable Court:

As an interested software user and occasional application developer (novice), I write to protest the proposed settlement in United States Department of Justice vs. Microsoft.

Microsoft's monopolistic practices have apparently crippled software publishers Corel (office suite) and Netscape (web browser), and perhaps others of which I am not aware, yet no remedy is proposed to compensate the damage to their stockholders or successors. In my opinion, a true remedy would restore these damaged firm's products to a market-equal position and let the firms duel fairly in the marketplace.

Thank you for your consideration.

Gene Millsaps
 131 Sport Court
 Mooresville, NC 28117-5506

MTC-00009854

From: Don Granston
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 9:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it's past time for us to get this behind us.

We have reviewed the settlement and think that it would be in the best interest of all parties to settle this NOW!!! Don't we have more important thing to do then to find unreasonable fault with one of our countries for thinkers?

You are always going to find a small minority that is out for their best interest, and not for the betterment of everyone. Microsoft has helped us little people get connected, and without their work for many people today wouldn't be on the internet. It's our choice who we use and Microsoft doesn't dictate as many people think.

Let's settle now!!!
 Don Granston

MTC-00009855

From: Jason R Lee
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/9/02 10:14pm
 Subject: I oppose the Microsoft settlement as it currently stands

Hello, I am a computer professional that works out of San Francisco. I would just like to say that when Microsoft was found to be a monopoly, I was very happy. I grew up using Microsoft and Apple products—starting when I was 12 years old. From that time though, I have seen Microsoft transform from just just “another” software vendor, to a company that rolls over anyone they see fit.

I was there when were being investigated by the government during the DOS times. I was there during the “Office wars”—which Microsoft clearly came out ahead (I mean, if you owned the code to the operating system, how can't you come out ahead). It didn't suprise me to hear that other Office developers were getting API (Application Programming Interface) documentation (and not getting undocumented APIs at all—unlike the Microsoft teams) late. And the list goes on and on and on.

So, naturally, even though I grew up with Microsoft in the computer industry, I was naturally happy to hear they were finally ruled a monopoly. They are. Plain and simple. I cannot buy a big vendor computer without having to pay the 'Microsoft tax'—every machine comes bundled with some sort of Windows Operating System.

This year, instead of buying a PC, I bought a Mac, in direct response to the Microsoft tax. Unfortunately, my Mac does not do the same things as my PC does, so I'm finding certain hard to accomplish, so I have to work on my work machines that do have a Microsoft OS on them.

For me, a computer professional, I can handle other Operating Systems and computers. But for someone like my sister or mother and father, that's a different story. They have no choice. They have no recourse. They have to take what's given to them to communicate and participate in the 'digital age'. If they had a choice, I would feel much better.

WindowsXP: B-A-D! Another area that really raises flags that the ruling does not cover is Microsoft's push into digital media. If they get their way, just like in the computer industry, then I'm sure I'll see more “Microsoft Powered” devices on the horizon. Limiting my choice of audio and video codecs; image compression algorithms; services that support these. Plus, Microsoft requires that in order to use XP, I have to have a Passport account. This is really scary. 2001 has been such a debacle from Microsoft in the security arena. Yet, very few seem to be raising the issue of one company owning a database (and their track record shows that they are lousy at security—even their own servers) of my information. If I buy XP, then I should own it. I should not be required to register for an online ID to activate it.

For me, a computer professional, I can get around many Microsoft issues. Over the past few years, I've watched the web start as a platform independent medium, to a heavily Microsoft controlled one. Another way for them to own the desktop. It is sad because if you ask anyone who has used the web from the beginning, they will acknowledge just how dependent it is on Microsoft Internet Explorer. There used to be a choice, however.

Now the justice department has set, in my opinion, the wheels in motion to let Microsoft continue on their path of, basically, domination of the PC and media industries. There are judges that are not qualified to make decisions on behalf of the American public regarding this matter. They do not understand the implications of this ruling nor the technologies involved. I for one feel that I must voice my opinion, as a computer professional and someone who has used countless Microsoft products over the years, and say that this ruling is inadequate and does not do what it was intended to do.

Microsoft has been ruled as a monopoly. This is fact and cannot be changed. They should be now dealt with accordingly just like other landmark cases—AT&T, Standard Oil—were. This will NOT hurt the industry. In fact, competition is what drives our great economy. Let's have more of it. The American people deserve it. We demand it!

Thank you.

Jason Lee
 Associate Senior Software Engineer
 Novo Interactive
 San Francisco, CA
 CC: jrlee@novcorp.com@inetgw

MTC-00009856

From: wayne tynes
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 10:18pm
 Subject: Dear Sirs,

Dear Sirs,

I'm writing to you as a concerned citizen. The Microsoft trial has been going on too long. As a taxpayer, I'm pained to see the government used as tool of Microsoft's competitors. How can you honestly tell people that there is a software monopoly?

Will we run out of software? Can't people write their own software? Aren't there other operating systems to choose from that are free? Give us a break.

Please stop spending my money this way.

Regards,

Wayne Tynes
 email: waynetynes@hotmail.com

MTC-00009857

From: Jahorlick@cs.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/9/02 10:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern.

I generally do not write E-mails on the behalf of big business. But I find this whole Microsoft saga disturbing. I do not agree with the idea that Microsoft should be punished or broken up. I think that Microsoft is an industry leader, in part because of its aggressive and forward thinking business practices, vital for competition in a very competitive market. I for one am thankful for what Microsoft has done. I think that the tremendous advances in computer technology can be attributed to Microsoft.

I can assure you that if another company comes out with a product that I read about or try and find it that I like it better than Microsoft's version, I would certainly buy the product that I liked.

If Microsoft feels that this latest judgment is fair, then I would have to agree.

Thank you for your time.

John Horlick

MTC-00009858

From: Chris
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 10:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Decision

Please realize that allowing Microsoft to continue its business practices (current and past) is extremely dangerous and unfair. I have been involved with computers for over 18 years, and I have observed Microsoft's business practices. Although it may seem that Microsoft's innovation is the main reason for their dominance, but there is little that Microsoft has innovated. The company has used its size and deep pockets to overpower smaller companies. By protecting Microsoft, there is a risk that the industry will become stagnant. The prospect of putting all the eggs in one basket in the computer industry is extremely dangerous, especially with the security track record that Microsoft has. Even the use of a single OS in an organization can spell disaster should there be a major casualty. Due to the advances in cross platform compatibility, heterogeneous systems should be used to exploit each platform's strengths.

Please consider the consequences of your actions by letting Microsoft off the hook. The computer industry understands real well the dangers of giving too much leeway to Microsoft. The full impact should be considered before Microsoft is allowed to continue unchecked.

Sincerely,
Christopher R Susalis
Yorktown Virginia

MTC-00009859

From: Steve Sparrow
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 10:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is high time this case be settled. The government, as well as Microsoft, continue to pay legal fees, which are ultimately paid for by consumers. Cut the costs and get the case settled.

By the way, I don't believe consumers are complaining about monopolistic practices of Microsoft. The complaints are coming from businesses. I thought legal remedies for monopolies only applied, when the public sector screams for action. Don't kill the goose that lays the golden eggs. Microsoft is a great business that contributes favorably to the balance of trade and is a great tax paying corporation. Also, Microsoft's innovations have contributed heavily to the productivity of everyone in the world.

I look forward to a prompt settlement that allows Microsoft to stay in tack and continue to offer innovation that produces greater productivity. Certainly, Microsoft should be required to treat corporations and individuals fairly. As for the past, I am all for a smack on the wrist, and let's get going. The economy could use a shot in the arm, and I am sure Microsoft could help more, if they were involved in this long drawn out case.

Sincerely,
Steve Sparrow
3408 Forestway Court
Arlington, TX 76001-4849

Family Phone: 817-561-1277
Personal Phone: 817-561-1323
Fax: 817-561-1339

MTC-00009860

From: Whittington, Tim
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear United States Dept. of Justice,
Under the Tunney Act, I would like to provide my comments regarding the Microsoft settlement.

As a US citizen and a tax payer, I'm very concerned and quite frankly disappointed about the continued efforts of my government to pursue a company that continues to innovate. Here is a company that started with nothing, developed quality software at very competitive prices, became successful and now the government wants to punish them. Microsoft's software continues to deliver more features, integrate additional applications, increase performance, all at lower prices. As a consumer, I'm not sure how I'm harmed.

I disagree with the appeals court ruling against Microsoft, but respect their decision. I feel the recent settlement reached is tough, but reasonable and fair to all parties involved. I, along with many others consumers overwhelmingly agree that settlement is good for them, the industry and the American economy. I hope you reach the same conclusion.

Sincerely,
Tim Whittington
VP, Premier Call Center Accounts
Intecom, an EADS Telecom Company
Bus: 972-855-8012
Fax: 972-855-8006
Pager: 800-421-8870
E mail : TWhittington@Intecom.com
Web : www.Intecom.com

MTC-00009861

From: Robert E. Brode
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:19pm
Subject: Public comment

To whom it may concern,

While I believe the Justice Department has done a heroic job in the legal struggle against Microsoft, it would appear to me that, once again, money talks and Corporate America will have succeeded in screwing the little person again.

Only a brain dead person who has no clue as to the reality of life would think that innocent little Microsoft has been put upon by the big bad Justice Department.

Over the years, Microsoft has made every effort possible to destroy the competition, maximize profits and force consumers to accept faulty, less than adequate operating systems and bloated and overpriced software. Microsoft has made very effort to become a monopoly and has finally succeeded. There is no competitor anywhere close to Microsoft's market share except possibly Apple (a far better and more efficient operating system and computer) but they're so busy looking in the mirror admiring themselves, that they have lost the marketing advantage they had years ago. They simply pissed it away.

If Microsoft walks away with this we can look forward to another 20 years of non productive software, operating systems that crash at drop of a hat and no real innovative thinking. As I recall, Bill Gates didn't actually design the DOS operating system. He bought it for $50,000. No innovation there. Windows is a 'not as well done' copy of the Apple graphic users interface. No innovation there. In fact, wasn't it Bill Gates who told people that 'command line processing' was here to stay and no body would really use a mouse? No innovation there.

Robert Brode

MTC-00009862

From: Patrick Auth
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/9/02 11:37pm
Subject: Drop the Microsoft case.

Bill Clinton's administration was good for nothing other than slowing big business down. I believe it's call communism !! I think the justice department needs to find who killed Vince Foster. they should'nt have to go far, just ask Bill. I bet he knows !

MTC-00009863

From: drummond@bethe.physics.
uq.edu.au@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:47am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Department of Justice, Washington,
USA.

RE: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sir/Madam,

I would like to make a submission with regard to the Microsoft settlement.

First of all, this settlement has international and global repercussions, and I hope that you can accept a submission from someone who is not a US citizen—from the viewpoint that monopoly is a global problem.

When there is a monopoly in software—as already ruled by the courts—the international nature of the software market means that the monopoly is far more extensive than the US, and causes damage internationally.

From my point of view as a consumer, I have never had a software product sold by Microsoft work acceptably. In every case, there were bugs that caused data loss or worse, which Microsoft did not fix.

So, these products do not suit me, yet I find myself continually being forced to purchase them because of the monopolistic types of business methods used by Microsoft in Australia and elsewhere.

These methods include especially the bundling of software with PC's, which I find highly objectionable. Why should I have to pay for an OS and software that I never use? Yet I have no choice in this!

The use of proprietary and nonstandard file formats is another weapon used by Microsoft, which forces email and internet users to adopt Microsoft software. This is objectionable, and surely illegal. To settle with Microsoft, I suggest that Microsoft at least should be forced to refund the cost of unwanted software to consumers—both for past and future purchases—in order to discourage this monopolistic practice.

In addition I suggest that file formats be published, and MS be enjoined to support at least one internationally approved format—preferably standardised through the W3C—in each of its high market share programs.

The idea of Microsoft donating software in settlement is out of the question. How can a legal settlement that tends to increase the impact of illegal activity be accepted? As a consumer, I prefer a cash refund!

Peter Drummond. —

Physics Department, University of Queensland, St Lucia 4072, Queensland, Australia. Tel:+61-7-3365-3404 Fax:+61-7-3365-1242 drummond@physics.uq.edu.au;

www.physics.uq.edu.au/people/drummond

MTC-00009864

From: Janemanni@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 1:46am

Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

I THINK THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD LET THE PEOPLE DECIDE WHAT THEY WANT TO BUY AFTER ALL WE THE PEOPLE; BUY WHAT WE WANT AND THAT IS MICROSOFT, AFTER ALL THEY HAVE THE BEST PRODUCTS AND THE GREATER HELP NETWORK. I FEEL THAT YOU SHOULD LEAVE THEM ALONE TO DO WHAT THEY DO FOR ALL OF US.

MTC-00009865

From: Harald—Jensas@Dell.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 2:05am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am part of a worldwide network that is working on getting the BeOS or equivalent back into the market place, but there is no hope of success if the following issues aren't addressed: examples: open Office file formats, Win32 APIs, make dual-boot options mandatory. Especially this dual boot options must be addressed. You can find more info here: <http://www.byte.com/documents/s=1115/byt20010824s0001/0827—hacker.html>.

Mvh

Harals Jens's

MTC-00009866

From: Graeme Gott

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 4:00am

Subject: The proposed settlement is the worst thing yet

I am forced to deal with Microsoft and their monopolistic ways on a daily basis. I cheered when it appeared that the DOJ would finally do something about the monopoly. And then you sold out to Microsoft. Make no mistake, if you go through with this settlement, the computer industry will get even worse... and the economy with tank even more. Please reconsider your settlement. It gives Microsoft even more loopholes without doing anything about their anti-competitive practices.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Graeme Gott

MTC-00009867

From: mercury@crossroadz.com.au@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 4:10am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement of the M$ anti trust action represents a complete failure of the current laws to protect consumers & ensure a level playing field for competition.

Microsoft failed to abide by the original judgement against them, has clearly continued their anti competitive behaviour and has now taken that behaviour to even higher levels with the release of Windows XP.

The issues with XP are far wider & more serious than any previous behaviour & this behaviour is apparently now being condoned by this settlement which provides M$ with a platform to further promote their products over any alternatives.

Within Australia the pricing issues alone are beyond belief. US Court evidence indicated 50% overcharging of consumers, with exchange rates taken into account the overcharging in Australia has been 200% and now with XP, the removal of Domain login from the basic/home version of the operating system, small business will be forced to move from a $A400 operating system to an $A660 operating system. Some 80% of small business is affected & the cost worldwide will run into $USBillions. The pricing of the M$ component of any PC price has risen in a market of dramatically increasing volumes, the opposite of normal market behaviour where shipment volumes increase.

This has been possible due to the monopoly position. In some cases the M$ component is now 50% of PC manufacturing Price.

There is also an element of using US PC manufacturers to engage in product dumping into the international market to the detriment of international PC assemblers. The court evidence indicates some US manufacturers purchased NT4 Operating System at $US20 where local manufacturers in Australia were being charged $A320 ($US160)

The schools concerned could utilise free open source software rather than waste money on M$ software & thus free up resources for additional hardware or teaching resources.

Throughout the current case M$ has been clearly in contempt of the courts in their actions which have been designed to ensure that it was not possible to recall or change products in the field with the browser (as distinct from the HTML rendering engine & communications utilities) embedded in the Operating Systems. The W98SE & Windows ME releases along with various Browser updates have been dubbed "The DOJ releases" with good reason.

This case has been a classic example of how a Corporation can use delaying tactics in the courts to their advantage & profit from those tactics. This proposal for settlement should be withdrawn and a regime which ensures an open standards interface approach is adopted with full disclosure of all API's for application services & network services put in it's place. Penalties which reflect the magnitude of the crime and recover the revenue improperly gained by M$ during the case should also be put in place

In addition to the above a public list of areas in which people believe M$ has/is acting improperly should be initiated. There are numerous areas in which this has been the case & the current case has only brushed the surface. A public list/discussion board is the only way in which the technical details of how M$ has acted anticompetitively will ever be fully disclosed or determined.

Competition law will not be treated with any respect by Corporations unless this settlement is revised

Wayne Carruthers

MTC-00009868

From: Thomas Fuller

To: Microsoft ATR, attorney.general@po.state.ct.us@inet...

Date: 1/10/02 5:52am

Subject: Concerning the Microsoft Antitrust Case

To whom it may concern,

The antitrust case against Microsoft is of huge importance to the public, and I believe that the public should be made aware of the findings against Microsoft, along with the details of the case.

I believe that Microsoft's consistent and aggressive business tactics have hurt the competitors and consumers in many ways.

I'd be happy to expand on my statement, however I am certain you receive many emails, and probably know much more than I do in this area anyways.

Thanks for your time,

Thomas P. Fuller Jr.

3425 West 83rd Street

Chicago, IL

USA

MTC-00009869

From: Double 'S'

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 6:39am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am part of the Spanish Speaking BeOS Community.

I have been promoting BeOS among friends and small companies for 2 years now, and are now helping to bring BeOS (now from PALM) back again to the community.

But to get people really using BeOS or to get more people or small companies trying out BeOS, some changes are needed in Microsoft policies.

One drawback for novice computer users to try out BeOS or any other OS is the lack of easy of coexistence with Microsoft Operating Systems, aggravated in the new releases which deliberately kick out of the computer during install any bootmanager other than Microsoft. In Windows Me the BeOS Windows Compatible Loader does strangely "not work anymore".

The other main problem is the license policy of Microsoft Proprietary File Formats. Since MS Office Suite has a huge market share, it's almost impossible for Small Offices to work in team with other companies if they are not able to open (and save to) Microsoft file formats. This is also the case for the many Microsoft Proprietary Media File Formats used on the Internet.

While Microsoft often license their File Formats or Technology to companies that endorse MS Windows, they deliberately do not to companies that endorse other Operating Systems.

It will be almost impossible under these Microsoft practices for BeOS to gain market again if:

- Microsoft does not use a more flexible Licensing of their File Formats (Office and Media / Internet)

- Microsoft don't stop bringing competing new file formats and implementing them by brute force to compete with already good multiplatform file formats of other companies

- Microsoft Windows Installer and Bootmanagers keep deleting other Bootmanagers and Loaders.

I do respect the effort and market gain of Microsoft, but many tactics have forced better solutions of competing companies out of the market, and they seem not to endorse any Technology that improves quality of computing for all users worldwide if this technology is not in their very best economical interest.

Double 'S' a.k.a. Mr. Sanchez ssdouble@hotmail.com
619370538@correo.movistar.net
MSN Messenger ssdouble@hotmail.com
ICQ—95140266

MTC-00009870

From: belonlord@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:22am
Subject: Microsoft penalty

Dear Sirs,

It is ludicrous to believe for one moment that allowing Microsoft (MS) to donate its old stockpiles of outdated computer hardware and software to "underprivileged schools" is an appropriate penalty for a decade long multi billion dollar monopoly that to this very minute is still exercising its dominating influence around the world in every arena of the computer field. From component manufacturers to OEM's to distributors the computer industry is wrapped around microsoft's little finger. The latest release of windows xp is excellent example of the continuing violations of its unethical and unfair behavior. Windows XP purposely was designed so that AOL's internet browser would not function or even appear on the windows startup screen. AOL was forced to create a new revision that would work with WinXP and then had to try to bargain with OEM's to include it as a option on their preloaded retail computers. Please look beyond the short sightedness of the nine states agreeing to this paltry "fine" and take action to enforce a real penalty that removes MS ability to continue in such a dominating manner. Ten to fifteen year old computers and softwares will do nothing to increase the education of disadvantaged children primarily because none of it is compatible with anything that MS current produces. Such an education in nothing is a waste of childrens valuable learning time and an insult to intelligent parents everywhere.

Benjamin R Buhanan
Police Officer Surprise, Az

MTC-00009871

From: BOBNVI@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:40am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi,
Both Fax's sent as requested.

Bob

MTC-00009872

From: JGlenn1518@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:03am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a long time consumer of Microsoft product software who thinks that your DOJ settlement of the antitrust case was fair and proper. I do not feel that I have paid excessively for Microsoft's products, and have always had sufficient choice in tailoring my software to my own needs. I do not understand the 9 states, including my own, Florida, who want to punish Microsoft further for its past successes. None of those power-hungry attorney generals really has the end-user's interests in mind. Enough is enough.

One fact is sure. Microsoft will include the lawyer fees they have paid in this law suit in pricing their future products. Please just stop all of this lawyer-profiteering at the expense of consumers like me—NOW! Tell the 9 states to cease and desist. By doing so, you are looking after MY interests!

James Glenn
Daily Home Computer User

MTC-00009873

From: John.Styles@med.va.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:13am
Subject: Public coverage of M$ trail

Please fight for the right for the American people to observe the testimony of any and all phases of the Microsoft trials. The people deserve the right to see how this monopolistic behemoth has abused them. I personally want to hear what Sun Microsystems has to say at this hearing. Thank you for protecting the American Citizens rights in this matter.

MTC-00009874

From: Mariekraem@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:19am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

We firmly believe that this settlement as proposed is good for the company, for the country, and especially good for those of us who have come to depend on Microsoft as a leader and innovator. No company should be punished for being heads and shoulders above its competitors. This country was founded on free enterprise and competition. If Microsoft is able to give us wonderful new tools with which to communicate, then they should be allowed to do that without obstruction. If their competitors want a piece of the action, they should get smarter, not look for handouts from the Government. We buy Microsoft products because they are the best, and we have never been disadvantaged by Microsoft's marketing or management.

Please leave them alone to create new and even better products for us.

Marie and Fred Kraemer mariekraem@aol.com

MTC-00009875

From: DR(u)Ammer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:19am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

1263 Monticello Avenue
Hermitage, PA 16148
January 8, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

After three years of litigation, I am pleased that Microsoft and the government have finally decided to settle the antitrust suit. It will benefit the entire IT industry in the long run, and will give a great breath of fresh air to the economic doldrums we are currently experiencing.

Tort reform is needed in all areas of our legal system. It is becoming impossible to function from medicine, dentistry and even in non profit situations. It's the money not the (joke) statement.

Under the agreement, computer manufacturers are granted new opportunities to configure systems with access to various Windows features, such as those accessed by Windows Messenger and Windows Media Player. These programs can now be easily replaced with competing products.

Also, Microsoft is allowing computer makers to make it easier to install non-Microsoft software, and to disclose information about certain internal interfaces in Windows. Finally, a "Technical Committee" will guarantee that all this actually happens.

This agreement is both fair and reasonable. My tax dollars should be used to tackle the more important issues affecting the country. I trust that the Justice Department will not seek another round of action against Microsoft on the federal level.

Sincerely,
Raymond Ammer
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00009876

From: Rich King
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/10/02 8:21am
Subject: Microsoft settlement
why do you what to brake up the one true American success of the last twenty five years!

MTC-00009877

From: Kevin McCormick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:20am
Subject: microsoft anti-trust settlement
I am writing to register my opposition to the proposed settlement. I object most strongly to the continuation of the "Microsoft Tax" or the fees to Microsoft that are part of the purchase price of many, if not all, personal computer systems sold in the United States. Basically, the "settlement" is a sham since it does not absolutely prohibit the "percentage of sales" licensing schemes that Microsoft has used to force its software onto the public. PC hardware vendors such as Compaq, Dell, and Gateway should be required to offer a "no pre-installed software" option which completely avoids any costs for Microsoft licenses. However, I believe the (In)Justice Department currently is little more than an arm of giant corporations and right-wing extremists, so, in a way, it is fittingly ironic that the corruption of Justice results in the imposition of inferior software at inflated costs. In politics you get what you pay for, but in PC's you pay for what you get.

Thank you,
Kevin McCormick

MTC-00009878

From: James Urie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:52am
Subject: Antitrust settlement.

You guys and girls should be ashamed of yourselves. The best analogy that I can give to what Microsoft is doing to the marketplace and the consumer is: what their lawyers have done to you. You couldn't win and neither can we.

Funny thing is that by all respects you could have done the right thing in this case, we have no choice.

MTC-00009879

From: William R. Cwynar
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:57am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

The time has come to move forward and settle this matter. If we were to take a serious look, as to when our economy began to falter, it would probably fall very close to the time when the government initiated these actions against Microsoft. And, because of it the entire technology field has suffered. Please settle this case once and for all. Everyone likes to criticize and attack winners, and the majority of them are followers not leaders (as is Microsoft).

I stand with Microsoft and its Chairman Bill Gates and urge the government to put and end to this unjustified act.

Respectfully,
William R. Cwynar

MTC-00009880

FROM: Ken Sherman
TO: MS ATR
DATE: 1/10/02 9:21am
SUBJECT: MS Settlement
Guy Carpenter
Guy Carpenter & Company of Pennsylvania
Two Logan Square Telephone (215)864-3600
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103
Facsimile (215)636-9929
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing concerning the settlement negotiated between Microsoft and the Justice Department. After three long years of litigation, this settlement represents an opportunity to move forward. The entire IT sector is ready to move on and get back to business, but it seems that there are those who still want to hold up the process.

This settlement is very strong and requires Microsoft to make many changes. For example, Microsoft will be required to disclose information concerning certain internal interfaces in Windows. Microsoft's competitors will also be free to sue Microsoft if they feel the company is not complying with the agreement. Beyond that, Microsoft has agreed to be monitored throughout the entire process to ensure that they are following proper procedure.

The concessions that Microsoft has made speak volumes to the fact that they want to help the IT sector get back to business. Let us help support the agreement by letting the terms speak for themselves. Let us help not only our technology industry, but all industries which utilize technology such as insurance and finance, move forward and help get our economy back on track.

Sincerely,
Kenneth Sherman, CPCU, ARE Senior Vice President
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00009881

From: someonedead@gods-heaven.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:24am
Subject: My thoughts regarding the Microsoft Settlement

the anti-trust campagne of microsoft is a damn shit.it is unbelivelabel why microsoft think the people would trust a company whose company-politic is only spying, lying and changing results of studies. with their anti-trust campagne they make it only more worst.

ps: what the fuck do u think should mean: "americans for technology leadership"!? the usa-flag is not the symbol for every country on america! the people who live in mexiko, kanada, peru, brasil, etc. are also americans!

MTC-00009882

From: Tim(038)Sharon Daniels
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:28am
Subject: response to tunney act

To whom this may concern, my comment is simple.microsoft has been declared a monopoly.With out adequate competition the consumer has been harmed in at least two distinct ways.

1: lack of choice. 2: lack of robust, quality, products that do not have flaws that can cause loss of data and productivity.When I was a child, I was never given the right to negotiate my punishment when found out. why is this happening with microsoft. At your heart you are the last voice of justice, if you dont stand who will?Please restore proper competition to the market place.Do the right thing.

MTC-00009883

From: James Mitchell Ullman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:39am
Subject: Public interest

Greetings,

I am a concerned citizen who has been following the Federal Antitrust case against Microsoft and have, as is my civil duty, some things I would like to be made known to the judge.

I am a technologist of several years experience and have noticed many trends in the industry which, to me, seemed less than right, much less legal. Microsoft is not the only company in this industry which has created, using underhanded tactics and most certainly illegal procedures, a monopoly of sorts. But, as has been the case in the past, Microsoft has been found guilty of not only breaking the law, but also damaging the economy in such a way that it may take decades for us to recover. I do not think that the government should have anything to do with the internal proceedings of the company as that would be fascism. I do, however, think that just as a war criminal who has committed crimes against all of humanity should make reparations to their enemies, that Microsoft Corporation should be punished.

They have been let off of the hook before for the same reasons, yet when they are brought to court again, they are tried yet again instead of punished. Now, here we are at a major turning point in the case and they are asking that the public, which they harmed directly, should not be allowed to see nor hear the testimony against them. What ends are they trying to meet with this tactic? Possibly to shield themselves against the public outcry if they were to be let off again(as in the case of the over-lenient settlement between one-half of the prosecuting states and the Federal government)? I can testify plainly that Microsoft is an illegal monopoly on several industrial fronts, as I am forced daily to fix their problems which they force on the people of the United States of America who wish to use technology to get their jobs done in a timely, efficient manner. I have previously written mentioning an open letter written by Ralph Nader about the evanescent settlement in this case, but now I am petitioning that there be public access to the witness questioning. I am taken aback by the arrogance of Microsoft Corporation's demand, not request, that the Publicity in Taking Evidence Act of 1913 is deemed nonapplicable to their current status in court whereas it was previously found that it was under nearly the same circumstances. The public must know what is going on. They deserve to know, they have the right to know.

Thank you very much for your time,
James Mitchell Ullman
Technical Specialist I
Zach S. Henderson Library
Georgia Southern University
<http://www2.gasou.edu/facstaff/jmullman>
Office: 912-681-0161

MTC-00009884

From: judhug
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:48am
Subject: End Anti- Initiative Prosecution

The case against Microsoft should immediately be concluded.

It gives the nation an idea that initiative and success is going to be punished.

Hugh W Pagett
681 Hawkins School Hs Rd
Xenia, Ohio 45385

MTC-00009885

From: Aaron Alberg
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:53am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division

U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001

"The Proposed Final Judgment will provide a prompt, certain and effective remedy for consumers...." To Whom It May Concern:

I fully support the settlement that Microsoft has agreed to. Prompt, certain and effective remedy for consumers will only be the direct result of a final judgement to which Microsoft agrees or that is in Microsoft's favor. Please finish this lawsuit quickly so that Microsoft can go on satisfying their customers, like me, by producing top quality software. Microsoft should not have to waste money on frivolous lawsuits like these. Having thoroughly studied the economics of competitive advantage, it is clear that the case against Microsoft is based on shoddy economics at best. Stop prosecuting successful corporations and get tough on criminals.

Sincerely,
Aaron Alberg
9027 W. Shorewood Dr.
Apt. 603
Mercer Island, WA 98040

MTC-00009886

From: Louis Ferreira
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:52am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Though the majority of Linux lovers are posting this E-mail address in order to stop Microsoft's Settlement, I am all for it. Many people do not understand how important Microsoft is to today's high-tech world. Though I do not agree with there practices it is due to your poor judgment that the problem has become this big. If something was done years ago when apple had a good share of the market then maybe some good would have come from it, but as of today no good can come of punishing Microsoft. The reason I believe this is because Microsoft has established the standard and that is what is needed for computers to grow. The reason why other OS' can't compete against them now is because of this issue. Microsoft was never the best software and neither is Linux or Mac OS, but it is all that we have now. The hopes of other OS' like BEOS are nothing more then a dream now. Companies like this that seek to innovate must maintain reverse compatibility and yet they can not because any emulation of Windows that they try usually ends up much slower then windows. Probably the best thing you can do to Microsoft is make them release the code needed for other OS' to use windows applications, that way the best OS will win no matter what Microsoft does about it.

Just My 2 Cents
Louis W Ferreira III

MTC-00009887

From: Frank D'Angeli
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:00am
Subject: Microsft public deposition

Your Honor,
Since MS declares that they are so important to the US and the economy and that they are such innovators, blah, blah, blah, I would like my right as a US citizen and computer user enforced which allows me to hear the depositions of MS executives.

It was Bill Gates deposition which allowed the public to see the depth of Microsoft's soul and we should be allowed to see what the company that wants to control every aspect of our life is trying to hide from us. Please allow every fact about MS' predatory, monopolistic behavior be known to all that were hurt by them.

Respectfully,
Frank D'Angeli
57 Pinkert Street
Medford, MA 02155
781.396.5815

MTC-00009888

From: TJimKay@cs.com@ inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

James J. Trageser
181 Sheldon Avenue
Pittsburgh, PA 15220
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,
The intention of this letter is so that I may go on record as being a supporter of the proposed settlement that the Microsoft Corporation and the Department of Justice arrived at last November. The settlement brings an end to the three-year-old antitrust dispute that was costing both Microsoft and the federal government millions of dollars in court costs. I'm sure that Microsoft actually had to concede more than they would have liked in the settlement. In fact, the settlement places restrictions and obligations on technologies and products of Microsoft that were not even mentioned in the lawsuit at the beginning. I wouldn't be surprised if some of the technology mentioned in the settlement hadn't even existed when the lawsuit was started! However, the IT industry will benefit from this settlement and so will the economy. It will generate competition by letting Microsoft's competitors in on trade secrets such as software codes that help programs run better on Windows, making their software run more effectively. I am pleased to see that the federal government and Microsoft could agree to terms, and I support the settlement that was reached.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
James J. Trageser
CC: Senator Rick Santorum
Guy Carpenter & Company of Pennsylvania
Two Logan Square
Telephone (215) 864-3600
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103
Facsimile (215) 636-9929
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Mr. Ashcroft:
I am writing concerning the settlement negotiated between Microsoft and the Justice Department. After three long years of litigation, this settlement represents an opportunity to move forward.

The entire IT sector is ready to move on and get back to business, but it seems that there are those who still want to hold up the process.

This settlement is very strong and requires Microsoft to make many changes. For example, Microsoft will be required to disclose information concerning certain internal interfaces in Windows. Microsoft's competitors will also be free to sue Microsoft if they feel the company is not complying with the agreement. Beyond that, Microsoft has agreed to be monitored throughout the entire process to ensure that they are following proper procedure. The concessions that Microsoft has made speak volumes to the fact that they want to help the IT sector get back to business. Let us help support the agreement by letting the terms speak for themselves.

Let us help not only our technology industry, but all industries which utilize technology such as insurance and finance, move forward and help get our economy back on track.

Sincerely,
Kenneth Sherman, CPCU, ARe Senior Vice President
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00009889

From: shaun arral
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:17am
Subject: They are making fools of you
Lied in court.
falsify evidence.
bought your opinion (the settlement papers).

"The sun, the moon, the stars
Is that what you're thinking that you are
As I'll disintegrate over time
If I expect my body to try and keep up with my mind
Today everything's mine", Blind Melon

MTC-00009890

From: Jack L. Levy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:19am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jack L. Levy
972 Cypress Drive
Delray Beach, Florida 33483
(561) 279-9099 jacklevy@telocity.com
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to voice my thoughts on the proposed settlement between Microsoft and the Justice Department. I believe that this litigation should not have been brought forth by the Justice Department, in the first place. There are many Americans who seriously question whether Microsoft has in fact broken any laws that would warrant a suit that has lasted for three years, all the while causing substantial financial hardship to the corporation and its many investors. The federal government should leave Microsoft alone, and pursue more important matters that are affecting our nation currently. Although this company may have made mistakes during its rapid growth, no one can question the substantial contribution that Microsoft has made to the computer industry. There are many people who believe that the operating systems created by Microsoft may very well be the chief reason for the viability of one of our largest and most successful industries.

I believe that the settlement that has been reached is both fair and reasonable to everyone involved. Microsoft will be making numerous changes with its software and business practices. For example, some of the changes include but are not limited to the following: better relations with computer makers and software developers, internal interface disclosure, and a three-person technical committee to oversee Microsoft's compliance with the settlement. The recession has had a devastating effect on both government and industry. Many private investors have suffered non-recoverable losses, especially those who have invested in the technology sector. It is extremely important that the technology industry be allowed to concentrate on improving business, and not defending what many feel to be frivolous lawsuits. It is in the best interests of everyone involved to see this settlement enacted as soon as possible.

Sincerely,
Jack L. Levy

MTC-00009891

From: Heins, Jill
To: 'Microsoft.atr (a) usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/10/02 10:20am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please end the Clinton-era Anti-trust legal abuse. The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and was a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. Consumers would rather see competition encouraged. The investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Consumers overwhelmingly agree that settlement is good for them, the industry, and the American economy. I support the Microsoft settlement.

Sincerely,
Jill M. Heins
7833 Garnett
Lenexa, KS 66214
jill.heins@vetmedpub.com

MTC-00009892

From: Joe Amoroso
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:26am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

As a citizen, I find it very disheartening that so many states seem to see this suit as a means of generating revenue. The facade of protecting the "public interest" when really acting to put $$ in the State's Treasury is in itself a fraud against the public interest.

This is not the only instance of such behavior by the several states and I would ask the Justice system to recognize this transparent money-grab and deal fairly, openly and honestly with the issue at hand—i.e. what damage has been caused to the citizens—this is the essence of "public" interest; State Treasuries and their viability, although, are a "public interest" issue, robbery of private corporations to maintain such Treasuries is not.

joseph amoroso
pobox 22421
baltimore, md 21203
410-659-0097

MTC-00009893

From: David W. Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:03am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
I am a student at Boston University, and I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ).

First, the PFJ does nothing to stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly through the use of its operating system. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. It would be a terrible standard to set by letting Microsoft get away with its retaliation tactics, bolting schemes, and attacks on Java. All these tactics lower competition in a supposedly free market and also limit software standards. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

To sum up, I'm deeply concerned the recent settlement does not regulate Microsoft enough in the future allowing Microsoft to continue its monopolistic tactics. In addition, Microsoft is not even being punished for laws it clearly broke in the past. This sets a terrible standard. I would request that you do your best to overturn this settlement.

Sincerely,
David W. Hill
Brighton, Massachusetts

MTC-00009894

From: Delmonte, Tom
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:18am

First of all thank you for allowing us to voice our concerns.

My main focus is the pattern that Microsoft has exhibited over the 15 years that I have been involved in the IT arena.

The first negative experience was one which happened with a company called Stacker, in which it was proved that Microsoft had illegally used their file compression scheme, by the time the issue was settled the company no longer was viable and in fact is no longer in existence.

The next example is the competition between Microsoft and Netscape and how in a variety of actions which I am sure you are familiar made the company loose most of its relevance in the PC arena, it still has a presence in the Linux arena, but that may change as well depending on how Microsoft handles that or is allowed to handle that arena in the future.

The main problem I see is one of ethical behavior, they do push the limits and go beyond as in the Stacker case in every area that they see is important, and one may think that this is how business is done, the stronger survive. But when it is at the cost of innovation by individuals or small concerns, which Microsoft is eliminating more and more due to its size and influence, I think that the American public and entrepreneurs have lost incredible opportunities due to what I consider predatory behavior.

The level of excitement due to opportunities available to individuals in the 1980's was palpable across the whole Silicon Valley in which I worked at the time, as the 1990's approached this level of entrepreneurship decreased steadily.

Some of it is due to the maturing of the industry, some of it due to standardization all of which are good. But much of it has to do with Microsoft getting involved in so many areas of the personal computer arena that it left less and less space for the smaller less financially endowed institutions to contribute to the progress of a field that still has wonderful opportunities if this level of entrepreneurship is allowed to flourish again.

Unfortunately much of this has been squelched in the US, but with the arrival of Linux and what it can contribute and has contributed from many areas across the globe there is some activity in this entrepreneur-friendly environment that has received a lot of focus in the last couple of years.

I would suggest that the American technologists would be much more interested in putting an effort again into the IT arena if a more favorable environment was fostered by curtailing some of the more obvious actions that Microsoft has taken, and I am sure that that venture capitalists would support this effort since the rewards are still very high.

What I would suggest is to split the company into separate entities in all senses, applications and operating systems are two of the ones that have been suggested.

And if Microsoft wants to enter a new arena in the computer industry (and that has to be based on a well-defined criteria) then the amount of money they can put in that concern cannot be more than the best financed institution that is already present in that arena. If none are in existence a criteria for that has to be established as well, so that other can compete on equal footing.

Once that concern is established Microsoft cannot contribute any further funds, otherwise it would perpetually be competing in an arena even its efforts were not successful, creating an artificial concern and hampering competitiveness.

If the company failed they should not be permitted to enter that arena for a pre-specified amount of time, to allow those who had good ideas to flourish without the annoyance of having another company artificially affecting the competitive environment to that specific arena.

I understand that this may have a short-term (1-2 years) effect on the economy, but the long-term effects would be a healthy, creative, growing and dominating industry for the US.

Tom Delmonte
WorldCom—Revenue & Segment Reporting
E-mail: tom.delmonte@wcom.com
Voice: (719) 535-1562
vnet: 622-1562

MTC-00009895

From: Olie Echevarria

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:26am
 Subject: Microsoft pre-trial hearing motion
 To whom it may concern,

In light of the Microsoft motion to bar the public from pre-trial hearings, I humbly ask that court deny the motion. Here is why I believe that the motion should be denied.

In my opinion, as a citizen of the United States of America, obedient and tax paying citizen, it is my right to know what is going in the American judicial system. We are a society of information that is readily available to anyone. Microsoft wants to deny the citizens of this nation information that it would deem a public relations nightmare because of the current anti-trust proceedings that are occurring against it. This information, the pre-trial hearings, is not a privilege but a right to all citizens of this country since this will show their American tax dollars at work.

The Attorney Generals and judge doing their job. I urge you deny this motion without question. Thank you,

Your obedient citizen,
 Orlando Echevarria
 Orlando Echevarria
 Webmaster
 E-Mail: echevarr@snet.net

MTC-00009896

From: Doris Lippincott
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:29am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to you regarding the proposed settlement of the Microsoft case. I am writing to you from a Windows platform and through Hotmail. Although I do not consider myself a computer expert I think that it is a long stretch to consider me a victim of Microsoft. I appreciate what I have gotten from Microsoft and wish that you would settle this case. In my mind, since you have the extraordinary power of the federal government behind you, it is incumbent on you to be extraordinarily careful not to misuse this power for personal aggrandizement or to back those who feel the heat from Microsoft's innovation.

Robert H. Lippincott, Jr.

MTC-00009897

From: pobox.com
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:52am
 Subject: Civil Action No. 98-1232 (CKK)

The proposed settlement in this case is a good beginning but it does not go far enough. While providing greater freedom to the resellers of Microsoft Windows and systems that run Microsoft Windows, it does nothing to insure future abuses do not occur. Due to this, I strongly encourage the court to amend this agreement with more stringent requirements.

Best Regards,
 Tim Malloroy

MTC-00009898

From: Joshua Adam Ginsberg
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:56am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Greetings—

I'm sending you a copy of an email that I send to the Attorneys General of the states that did not agree to the proposed settlement with Microsoft. Richard Blumenthal, Attorney General of Connecticut, who in my opinion is serving his constituents in the finest of fashions, suggested that I copy you on that email. It is below. Thank you for your time, and best of luck to you.

Sincerely,
 Joshua Adam Ginsberg
 Attorneys General—

First I would like to commend you and your respective states to refusing to back down to Microsoft in light of its blatant violation of consumer rights and anti-trust laws. You do your constituents a great service.

As a member of the technology community, I'd like to provide you with some input regarding your proposals to the court that might help you better understand some of the interests of those most affected by your proposals.

I think it's a safe thing to say that it would be counterproductive towards punishing monopolistic practices by extending a monopoly. The rumors that you will propose that Microsoft be required to continue developing MS Office for the MacOS seem to suggest you agree.

In this light, let me point you to <http://www.redhat.com/about/presscenter/2001/press-usschools.html>

To summarize this article's contents, RedHat Linux Systems has proposed an alternative to the settlement the DOJ and other states have accepted. Instead of extending the Microsoft monopoly by letting them install more copies of Windows across our nation's poorest schools, RedHat proposes that the money that would have been spent on purchasing more copies of Windows and more support for them be used to purchase more hardware, and RedHat will donate copies of Linux and provide support at no cost. Students would be exposed to a cutting edge desktop operating system and be enlightened to the software world outside the Microsoft monopoly.

And even requiring MS to develop Office for Linux (as it's been reported you seek) would be fruitless, because Linux users have available to them complete Office suites for free with as much functionality as the Microsoft suites. Examples are the GNOME Office Suite (<http://www.gnome.org/gnome-office>) the KOffice Suite (<http://www.koffice.org>) and most notably Sun's StarOffice (<http://www.sun.com/staroffice>).

Again I commend your resolve to find the right solution as opposed to the easy solution. I appreciate your openness to suggestion. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
 Joshua Ginsberg

MTC-00009899

From: DR Basso
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:14pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement proposal
 The proposed Microsoft settlement is a fraud on the consumers of this country. It does not adequately address the practices the company undertook to draw public scrutiny in the first place and it rewards the monopoly with a backdoor entrance into one of the major areas of technology where it lags behind its competitors? the education market. Far from reigning in a conglomerate that used its market position to terrorize competitors, this settlement gives Microsoft an even larger market share in education.

The software proposed is almost entirely for Windows computers. The offer provides only a very limited selection for competing operating systems such as Mac OS.

Public school officials, under the gun to get the most "stuff" they can get for as little money, will have little choice but to take up this offer? thereby expanding the company's reach and dealing a severe blow to firms such as Apple.

Besides Apple, however, there are other firms that make software that compete with the items Microsoft proposes to offer schools. Why should those firms be injured in the form of fewer sales by a settlement that is meant to punish Microsoft? It makes no sense to try and increase competition by injuring the competitors you seek to aid.

Also, why should schools have to settle for refurbished and outdated computers. If Microsoft really plans to offer computers to schools, it should be ordered to purchase new machines that will have a long shelf life (in the relative world of computers). Refurbished machines probably already are near the end of their useful life in regards to what new programs they may be able to run.

Finally, I believe the total value of the settlement is far below the actual damage done to competitors. The value should be increased, perhaps even doubled.

Daniel R. Basso

MTC-00009900

From: Kayler
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:15pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I am in favor of the settlement. I would like to see the litigation ended. I think it's been bad for the economy. I wish the whole thing had never been started in the first place.

Kayler
 "A proper concept of government is a voluntary one."

"The only true revolution is Capitalism—the Liberal Revolution."—Andrew J. Galambos

Join the discussion of Freedom at <http://groups.yahoo.com/group/volitional-science>
 Check out true freedom at:
<http://www.bridgetofreedom.com>
 The importance of gratitude:
<http://www.e-gratitude.com/home/index.cfm?sourceid=100100129>

MTC-00009901

From: marty (038) janet
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:25pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Didn't the Government also cause us to have all these "Baby Bell Telephone Company's" by breaking up AT&T. The Quality of services went down and prices went up. My mail now takes two to three times longer to get to me than when a stamp cost .10 cents. And it never got lost back then either. Now they want another price increase for slower, incompetent service. The Government needs butt out of Microsoft's pocket, and business and allow business to flourish. It's good for our economy.

Marty Turner

MTC-00009902

From: F P
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:32pm
Subject: Final Judgment

I do not believe that the proposed Final Judgement (<http://www.microsoft.com/presspass/trial/nov01/11-02settlement.asp>) serves the public interest. Section J.1. is of particular concern, since it could be used to limit the usefulness of non-Microsoft middleware, applications, or even other computers trying to interact with these sections of API or Communications Protocols, and help ensure that Microsoft can continue to extend its monopoly on such products by keeping this information secret. Since none of the listed items benefit significantly from secrecy (good security is difficult to break even with full disclosure), I believe that these should be made available to allow fair competition in the future, with the single exception of individual keys for Microsoft Middleware for the purpose of protecting their identity.

I also note a distinct lack of any penalty for Microsoft's past actions that made them an illegal monopoly.

I believe that some form of remedy should be used, to reduce the chance that Microsoft or another corporation attempts to use similar practices in the future. As a split of the company has been rejected, I'd recommend a monetary remedy.

Frederick H. Page
1305 Kathy Drive
Yardley, PA 19067

MTC-00009903

From: Glen DeGarmo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

First, a personal comment from a long-time computer user: I think the proposed settlement is little more than political window dressing given Microsoft's well documented illegal activities as the 9,000 pound gorilla monopoly of computer operating systems. Microsoft's practice of bundling applications with its Windows OSs has as its ultimate goal eliminating competitors and establishing Microsoft as the sole provider of software for desktop computers. Microsoft's use of the term "innovations" to justify this practice is sheer nonsense...there is no innovation worthy of the term. The proposed settlement does nothing to correct Microsoft's illegal operations which effect tens of millions of consumers.

Second, proposed additional remedies:

(1) Require Microsoft market and make readily available to all consumers "clean" versions of its desktop operating systems with NO bundled applications. By "clean" I mean OSs that have been completely stripped of all non-OS applications (e.g., browser, cd burner, multimedia applications, etc., etc.). Do not permit, under the definition of the term "clean," any application not absolutely required for the core OS to operate properly or any application that later can be removed without effecting the core operation of the OS if the consumer chooses. Microsoft's attorneys will find loopholes if the definition is not explicit. By clean, I mean CLEAN.

(2) Require Microsoft to make public all the "hooks" to all its currently supported, and future, OSs to permit other software developers to design applications that work seamlessly with all currently supported and future Microsoft, desktop OSs. That requirement should mandate information about "hooks" be made readily available to all non Microsoft designers of applications during the earliest design of beta versions of any new desktop OS, and mandate that updates be made immediately available as a new OS proceeds through development and testing. The requirement must include information about ALL the hooks that Microsoft's designers of applications use to make Microsoft's own, or sponsored, applications work seamlessly with its desktop OSs...NO EXCEPTIONS!!

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.
Glen DeGarmo, Ph.D.
732 Madison St. NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110
(505) 266-6472

MTC-00009904

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

AG Ashcroft,

It is time that this dog is laid to rest, it will just not hunt anymore. Microsoft has been an innovator in technology and it is not required that they be punished. Let this competitor driven attempt die, it is time to move on.

Please let it be heard that I am one of many Americans whom support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit

Respectfully,
Bruce Mann
CANAC
(281) 588-3160 (phone)
(281) 588-3041 (fax)
bruce.mann@us.sasol.com bmann@canac.com
<http://www.canac.com>

"Leadership is the art of accomplishing more than the science of managements says is possible."

General Colin Powell

MTC-00009905

From: H. Leslie Friday
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:35pm
Subject: I want to end Clinton-era Anti-trust

I want to end Clinton-era Anti-trust law abuse

MTC-00009906

From: Ralph crosswhite
To: Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov
Date: 1/10/02 12:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the Federal Government can be more responsive to the claimants in this "Settlement", and void the "Settlement" as it is at this time. Microsoft needs to be made aware of how serious their Anti-Trust actions have affected their competitors, and the Voting Public.

The penalties imposed are not severe enough, nor do they change the business practices of Microsoft to a more ethical standard.

Breaking up the company may be too severe, however large monetary fines, and the restriction from engaging in any outside enterprise that is now competitive, should be included.

Ralph Crosswhite

MTC-00009907

From: Ben /Joyce Loving
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge you to stop persecuting Bill Gates and Microsoft for being smart and able, and doing things to help all the world. It is ridiculous to spend taxpayer money to prosecute this company for antitrust activities. I use their software and also use software of competing companies which is fully compatible with Microsoft products.

Stop the mindset of punishing the smart people who do good. They do not owe anything to the less smart and less energetic. Everyone has choices—it is up to each one of us to exercise these choices in the best and most productive manner for us.

Make a choice NOW!
joyce@doublegum.com

MTC-00009908

From: Mike Lindley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 12:47pm
Subject: Do they own you, too?

HI,

If this gets read, I appreciate your time. Microsoft Corporation has been abusing its position for years and years, this case just happen to be brought forth.

They were found guilty in the Apple-threat part of the original case and that alone is evidence of their monopolistic practices.

Compaq, Dell, Gateway, e-Machines, Hewlett-Packard, etc. All must do the bidding of Microsoft because without the OS, they can't sell their computers.

PLEASE PLEASE PLEASE do not let this company live by their own rules simply because they were clever enough to figure out how to control the market.

The fact that they have managed to eak Apple out of the school market and the graphics market is evidence enough NOT of the quality they put out but because of the THEIR ABILITY TO THREATEN THE MARKETPLACE. They were even found guilty of libel when they put an ad campaign out against Novell when Novell took over Cambridge Technology Partners.

It should be obvious enough: They have 96.4% of the WORLD MARKET SHARE in operating systems. Even AT&T never had it that good.

STOP THEM OR THEY WILL OWN US ALL. They only want to rule the world and if not stopped, they will.

Thanks,
Mike Lindley

MTC-00009909

From: dlantz@armorholdings.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:53pm
 Subject: settlement

Hello, this email is to share my opinion that the proposed settlement with microsoft is NOT in the public interest. The settlement does very little to detour microsoft from further illegal operations, and does not adequately punish microsoft for it's past actions.

Thank you,
 David Lantz
 CAD/CAM/MIS
 Protech Armored Products
 158 Hubbard Ave
 Pittsfield, MA, 01201
 413.684.3104 (phone)
 413.684.4166

MTC-00009910

From: LOIS AMACHER
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:53pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 1-10-2002

As a consumer, I would like to express my hopes that this antitrust lawsuit be settled as soon as possible.

President Bush and Microsoft will settle if not interfered with.

I support this settlement.
 Lois Amacher
 Carmichael, CA

MTC-00009911

From: Roger Bowser
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:54pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 sir—

i have been heavily involved in computers since 1983. i like the windws operating system much more than any other system.

please stop this worthless prosecution started by a president with other things on his mind. we need windows.

MTC-00009912

From: Robert G Kraatz
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:54pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Mr. Ashcroft:

Get the government (State and Federal) off the back of Microsoft! Bill Gates and Microsoft have done more positive things for this country than all of posturing people in our Senate combined.

We need to tell our power hungry politicians to get out of the way since only President Bush and Mr. Rumsfeld seem to be both willing and able to lead in a positive direction. You have great promise but it is time to get out front and lead.

Robert G. Kraatz
 24321 Dry Canyon Cold Creek Road
 Calabasas, CA 91302

MTC-00009913

From: Kopecki, Ron
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:55pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Clearly this settlement should be accomplished. Enough already of the competitive "whiners" trying to weaken Microsoft. In a free market the fit find a way to survive and prosper. The Microsoft technology has done more good than bad for this country. Tradeoffs exist in all facets of the business environment. Darwinism occurs. Microsoft should be viewed for their positive contributions to our country and society and should not be "punished" excessively because they did not always in the best interest of their competition.

Ronald J. Kopecki
 Corporate Vice President, Sales
 Intecom, an EADS Telecom Company
 972.855.8340 (O)
 email: rkopecki@intecom.com

MTC-00009915

From: Sam Heath
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 12:58pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is definitely time to put a stop to this nonsense about Microsoft!

Sam Heath
 dheath@lightspeed.net

MTC-00009916

From: thomas l easton
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:01pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement:

Please end this ridiculous persecution of a company just because it is successful. We have funded this prosecution long enough. The only thing Microsoft is guilty of is making smart business decisions.

Thank You.
 Thomas L. Easton
 835w. lusher ave.
 Elkhart, In. 4617
 219-293-2495

MTC-00009917

From: Tony Dalton
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:06pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

I request you to settle the lawsuit with MS because they are NOT a monopoly. I am a consumer and have the option of NOT using windows if I chose.

Please stop this unnecessary case and use the money to prosecute real criminals.

Sincerely,
 Tony Dalton

MTC-00009918

From: Duke Gersema
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:02pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

To whom it may concern:

Re: Acceptance of the Microsoft settlement.
 First, let me say that I am not particularly a fan of Microsoft. They charge too much for their products, they are restrictive and arrogant. That said, I think the whole suit against Microsoft should never have happened and should be dismissed outright, immediately. The current proposed settlement goes too far but should be agreed to if it is the best resolution that can be made at this late date.

Here are my reasons:

The Justice Department has far better things to do,

This lawsuit has drained too much time and money from the taxpayers,

Microsoft is already systematically "shooting itself in the foot" and will not retain its market dominance.

Though arrogant, Microsoft has increased the productivity of businesses exponentially and brought capabilities to people that they did not even dream of two decades ago.

This lawsuit is supposed to "protect the consumers" but the existence of Microsoft has benefited the consumer and this lawsuit will add no protection to the American consumer.

Please accept this settlement and move on to something productive.

Thank you for allowing my comments.

Douglas W. Gersema
 dgersema@employersresource.com

MTC-00009919

From: John Mcdonald
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:06pm
 Subject: ms case

The sooner the trial is over the better for everyone. At the same time I really don't see any problem with breaking MS into different parts. If their code is so good and developed the way they like to claim that it is, then there shouldn't be any problem with a separate company developing Office to run on Windows for example. That is unless they have something to hide, and I personally suspect they have plenty. Why is it that everything has to be incorporated into the system. Why can't they simply develop Windows and then programs and or applications can then be installed separately at a later time. MS could certainly sell these other products, people could purchase them if they want and install them at their leisure. I'll tell you why I think they are doing it the way they are: they are greedy bastards that only care about the bottom line.

They haven't innovated anything they've only incorporated ideas they either borrowed or bought from someone else.

They crank out one OS after another all the while adding things that somehow cut the competition.

Their software is so full of holes it's laughable. Patch after patch after patch. Things that could have been prevented had they taken the time to do it right instead of forcing it sooner to make more money. They already have most of the PC market right? Why push out the new stuff so fast? It's all about getting our money, why else would they be now trying to tell us that we should pay them monthly or whatever for a service. What exactly are they going to offer that doesn't already exist. Nothing, they'll resole an old shoe and push it as something new. What a joke. That said thing is I really liked 95 when it came out, but that's all changed.

MTC-00009920

From: John Townsend
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:09pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

If the Government is so against you (and us), have them remove all Microsoft products from all of their computers. See how they like that!

MTC-00009921

From: mavis caracostas
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft

To continue this vindictive assault on Microsoft is insane! The case is against superiority of one company over others, and has led to the recession we are now suffering. It was ill-advised from the inception, and I would like to see it ended ASAP.

Mavis M. Caracostas
Colorado Springs, Co.
80904

MTC-00009922

From: Joseph G. Grochowski
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Ashcroft:

Stop the government action against Microsoft immediately. This has done nothing but hurt the consumer. Continuing this action begun by a disreputable administration only further erodes the public confidence. And stop State Attorneys General from continuing their harmful actions.

Joseph Grochowski
724 Ardmore Ave
Redlands CA 92374
(909)793-3495

MTC-00009923

From: Hart Slater
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:14pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

If the purpose of the legal assault against Microsoft is protection of the consumer, please explain how this "consumer"/taxpayer is protected? I lost much of my retirement nest egg because of the stockmarket response to the DOJ action; and, further, I would like to know how much this suit has cost the taxpayers, both in government costs as well as legal costs. Microsoft has had to pass on to consumers. Very costly "protection" !!!!

Hart Slater,
835 Shenandoah Road, Lexington, Virginia
hart.slater<hartbon@rockbridge.net>

MTC-00009924

From: Paul Greatbatch
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:14pm
Subject: ...and it just keeps going on until YOU do something about it!!

Microsoft apparently tried to rig a ZDNet UK online poll, according to the news outlet: "By 21 December, more than two-thirds of the respondents (69.5 percent), said they planned to deliver some applications by Web services by the end of 2002, with a large majority of those (nearly half the total sample) planning to use Java. Only 21.5 percent said they planned to use Microsoft .Net— less than the figure (23.5 percent) planning to use neither.

But by the time the poll closed, on 5 January, the position had dramatically changed, with three quarters of voters claiming to be implementing .Net. This apparent sudden change of heart over the Christmas period appears to be the result of a concerted campaign within Microsoft.

ZDNet UK logs reveal rather obvious vote rigging, and prove that it originated from within Microsoft [...]"

Best Regards,
Paul

MTC-00009925

From: Oropeza, Jenny
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/10/02 1:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
JENNY OROPEZA (D)
Assemblymember, 55th District
Long Beach, California
916/319-2055
916/319-2155 (fax)

MTC-00009925 0001

STATE CAPITOL
P.O. BOX 942849
SACRAMENTO. CA 94249-0055
(916) 319-2055
FAX (916) 319.2155
DISTRICT OFFICE
ONE CIVIC PLAZA, SUITE 320
CARSON. CA 90745
(310) 518-3324
FAX (310) 518-35,08
COMMITTEES: AGRICULTURE BUDGET
ELECTIONS. REAPPORTIONMENT AND CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS JOBS, ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND THE ECONOMY
TRANSPORTATION SUBCOMMITTEES:
CHAIR. INTERNATIONAL TRADE BUDGET SUB 5, TRANSPORTATION AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY
SELECT COMMITTEES:
CHAIR, LOS ANGELES METROPOLITAN TRANSPORTATION AUTHORITY AGRICULTURAL IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

CALIFORNIA. MEXICO AFFAIRS
CALIFORNIA PORTS

January 10, 2002
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200

Washington, DC 20530-0001
Re: Comments on the Microsoft Proposed Settlement Agreement

Dear Ms. Hesse:

Microsoft is a company that has long provided good products to consumers and businesses, as well as providing opportunities for other software companies to develop programs for the Windows platform. The provisions of the proposed settlement, worked out with one of the nation's top mediators, will be good for consumers, businesses, the tech sector and the economy as a whole.

The proposed settlement is fair. It proposes significant changes in the way Microsoft handles its software, in addition to preventing Microsoft from abusing the strength that it derives from its operating system. However, the proposed settlement also allows the company to continue innovating in all areas of software development. I fully support the Department of Justice and the nine Attorney Generals for their efforts to finally put an end to this case and agree to a settlement that is in our nation's best interest.

Sincerely,
JENNY OROPEZA
Assemblymember 55th District (D—Long Beach, California)

MTC-00009925-0002MTC-00009926

From: Mary Silva
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General Ashcroft,
Department of Justice:

I am sending this email to urge you to settle the Microsoft case. The government has ostensibly pursued this case on behalf of consumers; however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy.

This case should never have been brought by the DOJ during the Clinton administration. I have always believed that Microsoft is a very fierce competitor in a rapidly changing technology world, and that Microsoft has done far more good than harm to consumers. In fact, it appears that the only ones whining and crying are those that lost a share of the computer business due to their own ineffectiveness, and not because Microsoft took it from them. There is no monopoly on progressive thinking as Microsoft has done and continues to do, and it certainly should not be a crime. Those that cannot compete should get out of the business.

Respectfully,
Mary J. Silva
3429 Maywood Drive
Richmond, CA 94803
CC:BillGates@microsoft.com@inetgw

MTC-00009927

From: Matthew Jones
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Sir,

I am writing to ask that the Microsoft Antitrust battle be put to an end as soon as possible. In my opinion (as well as the majority of the public), this suit has been a witch hunt driven by Microsoft's industry competitors from the start. Illegal monopolistic action can not be assumed simply because of a high market share. There was no proof of anti-competitive action, unless you believe striving to be #1 in an industry is necessarily anti-competitive. The only organization in this country that has been thwarting competition is the federal government. Please take action to discontinue this charade immediately.

Sincerely,
Matt Jones

MTC-00009928

From: Bret Nelson

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:22pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement Glacier
 Atty Gen Ashcroft,

I want to thank you for your hard work for our nation under difficult circumstances and unwarranted scrutiny.

I am writing in support to some sort of end to this expensive ringer that Microsoft is being put through. I would say that if, indeed, Microsoft is guilty of a crime that I would be happy to see the perpetrators brought to justice, even if the process is costly. However, it also seems to me that in-as-much as Microsoft has competitors, the overall case is unjustifiable on the surface. It appears to me that the case is a remnant of the Clinton administration that needs to be brought to a close (we all need closure from that administration).

I wonder how those bend on Microsoft's demise would feel if the government had decided that rather than spending $1,000,000 on litigation they would award $500,000 to Microsoft's number one competitor to develop a more competitive operating system to assure that Microsoft hadn't such an advantage in the market place. This of course would cut tax-payers expenditures in half. Of course, this notion is cockeyed, but it would have shown more responsibility with the taxpayer's purse than Janet Reno was want to do when this whole thing started.

Once again, thank you for all your efforts. I'm glad that you were confirmed and I feel confident that you bring a positive chord to the new Bush chorus which is serving the country well in this time of crisis.

As a final note, I pray that your office is concerned with expediting the process of finding and punishing our citizen, two-bit, homegrown terrorists. I feel very confident that we can handle every foreign threat if only we can eliminate the threats from the Timothy McVie's of our homeland. I'm much more concerned about threats from within from Uni-bombers than from long-range bombers and I fear the wrongs committed by power-hungry politicians elected at home than from foreign regimes who exercise authority over cactus and rocks. Most of all I fear the judgments of God more than man and I hope that your office can hand back to the people the right to worship God according to the dictates of their conscience wherever they be—home, class, court or elsewhere. I believe the less we fear man, the more apt we become to fear God again, an guiding light this country needs—personal responsibility based on Judeo-Christian values so that strict laws and punishments become less needed and hence, considerably less costly to enforce.

Sincerely
 NAI Capital Commercial Real Estate Bret
 Bret D. Nelson
 Vice President
 1712 19th Street, Suite 220
 Bakersfield, California 93301
 661-864-1000—phone
 661-864-1011—fax
 661-201-9855—mobile
 bnelson@naicapital.com www.naicapital.com www.naidirect.com

MTC-00009929

From: john r. emra
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:23pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Enough is enough. Stop this constant bickering and settle this case.

John R.Emra
 3529 SE Doubleton Drive
 Stuart Fl.34997-5627

MTC-00009930

From: Jane Smith
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:23pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Attorney General Ashcroft,
 I urge you to support the proposed settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft along with the 9 states who have reached agreement.

Enough taxpayer money has been spent to harass Microsoft and this gives us the opportunity to end it.

Sincerely,
 Jane M. Smith
 2104 Chestnut Hill Drive
 Cinnaminson, NJ. 08077

MTC-00009931

From: Bryan Fandrigh
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:27pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement.
 Re: Microsoft Settlement.

The U.S. Government lawsuit didn't solve a problem.

The U.S. Government is the problem. The Sherman Act is a relic and should be repealed posthaste. The whole procedure was a costly waste of time except for the lawyers involved.

Settle it as leniently and expeditiously as possible to discourage future pointless government interference.

Sincerely,
 B.Fandrigh.

MTC-00009932

From: Stan Dickison
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 With all due respect, it's time to move on. The settlement reached by the Justice Department is perfectly fine. There are many more important issues in which the Justice Department needs to be involved.
 Stan Dickison

MTC-00009933

From: Palmarin Merges
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/10/02 1:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Dear US Dept. of Justice,
 Leave Microsoft alone.
 Stop penalizing commercial success.
 If I want to buy Microsoft products, let me decide. If other competitors want to compete they can create a better product. FREE ENTERPRISE. LET THE CONSUMER DRIVE THE MARKET NOT THE GOVERNMENT or whiny competitors. Stop wasting my money on this decade-long competitor-driven persecution of Microsoft.

"The government has ostensibly pursued this case on behalf of consumers; however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy." (from an ACU article)

Do not divert any more government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies. Leave Microsoft alone.

"The proposed settlement encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public." (from an ACU article) DO NOT continue this litigation.

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.
 Sincerely,
 Palmarin P. Merges

MTC-00009934

From: Kevin Kahley
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:27pm
 Subject: Reasons for Change
 Hello,

I would like to discuss my concerns for Microsoft's continuing monopoly and the effects upon the education of computer experts in the future. I have a bachelors degree in computer engineering and am currently working on a masters in computer science. During my junior high and high school years the only machines that I used ran Microsoft Windows. Having only used Windows until college placed a rather large learning curve in front of me as I entered the serious computer science arena. I am not saying that Windows is useless, my parents happily and productively use it. However, choices in computer operating systems need to be widely available to our younger children so their education will not be sheltered until they reach college. Having more choices in operating systems will widen the schools of thought in computer science and lead to a better world for all.

Thank you.

MTC-00009935

From: evanness@rice.edu@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:30pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

The federal government should back off the case against Microsoft. Microsoft has successfully standardized the industry for operating systems which has allowed the unparalleled growth in technology.

I remember when Macintosh was competing with Windows. Though Macintosh was a better product (and I'm a 10 share Microsoft shareholder), Windows won. That was probably the best thing to happen to the computer industry.

Microsoft may have made some minor mistakes, but nothing that would justify a large settlement of such a magnitude.

Evan Van Ness

MTC-00009936

From: James Wobser
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:30pm
 Subject: US Government vs. Microsoft Corp.

Dear Sirs-
 Please end all legal action against the Microsoft Corp and let the market determine the outcome.

Thank you,
 James Wobser

MTC-00009937

From: Thomas E. Strickland
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:30pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Putting this Reno farce behind us is long overdue.

MTC-00009938

From: Merle J VanDyke
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Senator Ashcroft Please settle (curtail) this legal action of the last 9 states now.
 Merle VanDyke

MTC-00009939

From: kanninen@juno.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Mr. Attorney General:
 I believe that it is a vital interest for our country that when the Justice Department settles a case with a litigant, in Antitrust or any other part of the department, that it ensures that it has settled the case. It is unconscionable that the economic security of our country be endangered by the political desires of any one of the 50 state Attorneys General. Please do your best to ensure that the judiciary accepts the terms of your department's settlement of the Microsoft case, and see that it is applied nationwide.

Thank you for all of your good work in this dangerous time for our country.

Cordially,
 William R. Kanninen
 457 Spring Lane
 Ocala, FL 34472
 352-687-0123
 352-895-7528 (cell)
 801-409-6494 (Fax)
 bill@kanninen.com

MTC-00009940

From: Steven M. Stallings
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Mr. Attorney General,
 Please stop spending taxpayer money on the competitor-driven suit against Microsoft. I have been a professional software developer for over thirty years and have used many software products from many different vendors in addition to Microsoft. The Information Industry is now at a difficult point where we cannot afford to hamper its ability to contribute to the economy and to enhance every aspect of government, business and personal life. Microsoft's competitors are trying to take advantage of a few misdeeds of this corporate giant and those competitors are no less guilty of such misdeeds themselves. The current settlement is fair and sufficiently addresses the past problems and provides a just path for the future of Microsoft, its competitors and the public.

It's time that the U.S. Department of Justice and the States Departments of Justice to move forward to other more pressing matters.

Thanks for the service that the DOJ has provided in this lengthy matter.

Sincerely,
 Steven M Stallings

MTC-00009941

From: Jud Cox
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:37pm
 Subject: settlement

I support the proposed settlement between Microsoft and the Gov. I urge you to support it, and encourage you to pass these sentiments along to the Federal judge. Thank you, and keep up the good work you have been doing. You have the trust of the American people. Keep in mind that we often are the silent majority.

Jud Cox
 152 Hilltop Way
 Blowing Rock, NC 28605
 conservativejud@yahoo.com

MTC-00009942

From: Joel Carlson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:38pm
 Subject: Microsoft antitrust must be enforced

Dear US Department of Justice:
 If we don't stop Microsoft now, we will have no choice or innovation in the future. Microsoft has apparently bought off the Bush Administration but we must not let that happen. Microsoft, like robbers barons of the past, will stop at nothing to eliminate the competition if given the chance. For example, see <http://vb.channelsupersearch.com/news/crn/32424.asp>

Sincerely,
 Joel Carlson,
 622 6th Ave,
 Fox Island, WA 98333

MTC-00009943

From: Willard Bass
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:39pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern;
 As a life-long professional in the field of computers, I wish to register my support for the proposed settlement with Microsoft. I believe that it encourages consumer product-choice, allows for continued product innovation by Microsoft and other software companies, and provides adequate safeguards to give software manufacturers other-than-Microsoft confidence in marketing their own products. Further, a settlement at this time is definitely in the public interest, in that it will free Department of Justice resources to pursue other anti-trust issues.

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their stated desire to settle this lawsuit.

Sincerely,

Willard C. Bass

MTC-00009944

From: Alexander Martinez
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:42pm
 Subject: against proposed settlement vs. Microsoft

Dear Sirs,
 As you may have noticed: I'm no US citizen, but I'm concerned about the proposed settlement involving that Microsoft is going to supply US schools with software and equipment to settle some court cases against them. I'm against this because Microsoft will be able to further spread their software and, by this, gain greater market share than it already has. This is one step further towards a Microsoft software monopoly and this is definitely the worst thing that I can imagine for IT firms and home users. Some competition is good for Microsoft (and the entire software industry) because then they are forced to produce better software.

Yours sincerely,
 Alexander Martinez
 Student of Computer Science
 Independent programmer
 78120 Furtwangen
 Germany

MTC-00009945

From: T. Aaron Metz
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 1:12pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern: I am a 26-year-old college student at West Virginia University. I'm an active member of the community in Morgantown, WV and I believe that I represent a good majority of people my age with my student's lifestyle. I ask you to please end this persecution of Microsoft. There is absolutely no wrong in being the leader of an industry because you are the smartest and the fastest. But, for some reason, the individuals who are fighting against Microsoft believe that success and leadership is breaking the law. It's not Microsoft's fault that their competitors cannot keep up.

Because of this lawsuit, the public as a whole has suffered. Look at the good Microsoft has done for society-Windows, easier access to information, and better hardware to work with, to name a few. You're probably reading this message on a Windows-run machine. Does that mean that Microsoft has a Monopoly or just the best product? I choose the latter and I believe that society has chosen the latter, as well. Microsoft has the capability to drive us through the 21st century with a fury, but this lawsuit has given them a Model T to drive us there. LET THEM BE!

Need I mention the millions of taxpayers' dollars that have been wasted on this lawsuit? We need to end this mess and let Microsoft go on being successful, making money, and bettering society.

Thank you for listening to my opinion.
 Sincerely,

T. Aaron Metz

MTC-00009946

From: JOHN F BRISENDINE

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the settlement arrangement negotiated by the Bush Administration and Microsoft. Please make every effort to end this litigation immediately. We have much more important priorities for our legal system to handle.

John Frederick Brisendine
Charlotte, North Carolina
jfbrendine@prodigy.net

MTC-00009947

From: scott gould
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I just wanted to comment on the proposed Microsoft Settlement. I think that we/the United States and Local Governments should settle this lawsuit ASAP and let Microsoft go back to doing what they do best. In my opinion the high-tech industry and the nation in general would certainly be better off expending their energy, time and money on new software products rather than dragging out this legal action.

Sincerely,
Scott Gould

MTC-00009948

From: robert sirignano
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:46pm
Subject: Microsoft

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I support the position that the US courts are wasting much money in there attempt to prosecute Microsoft. I do not believe it is a good use of tax payer monies. I further believe it has a negative effect on the computer software industry, and the US economy. I think that competition could create, and has the ability to create alternative software and platforms, and are not bound to Microsoft in any way. With the growing popularity of other platforms such as Linux, I believe that this lawsuit is a mute cause.

Please help end this wasteful use of tax monies any way you are able. Thank you and your staff for your time and concern in reading my opinion.

I am very happy to have you in DC, and know you are the best choice Our President could have made.

Sincerely,
Robert Sirignano

MTC-00009949

From: Morgan Philpot
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:50pm
Subject: Attorney General Ashcroft,

Attorney General Ashcroft,

The last few years have been most difficult for the technology industry. The Microsoft lawsuit that the Department of Justice has been engaged in has cost the industry and has taken millions of dollars away from matters of urgency that would make this country better. The original suit was persuaded by Microsoft competitors and unfortunately they used taxpayer dollars to push their competitive edge in the market.

The settlement agreed upon by the Department of Justice and the Microsoft Company is at this time reasonable. It allows the entire technology industry to move forward and start the innovations rolling again. Our economy is ready for a new idea. Please accept the settlement and close the books on the matter.

Sincerely,
Rep. J. Morgan Philpot
Utah House of Representatives

MTC-00009950

From: Brock N. Cordeiro
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

It's time to stop penalizing commercial success. It's time for the states to stop persecuting Microsoft. The proposed settlement is in the public's interest. I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

The government has ostensibly pursued this case on behalf of consumers; however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy.

Furthermore, America's taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution, diverting government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies. The proposed settlement encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public.

Sincerely,
Brock N. Cordeiro
15 Sagamore Drive
Dartmouth, MA USA
02748-1261
508-979-8930—Phone
508-996-4622—Fax
BNCordeiro@Mediaone.net

MTC-00009952

From: Sanford Kenyon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:54pm
Subject: Trials

PLEASE STOP DAMAGING OUR ECONOMY WITH THE LAWSUITS AGAINST MICROSOFT.

ALSO STOP WASTING OUR TAX DOLLARS

SANFORD KENYON
P.O. BOX 212
WEST POINT, CA. 95255
email skyk@volcano.net

MTC-00009953

From: David.M.Talmadge@mail.
sprint.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support this proposed settlement.
Thank you.
David Talmadge
6708 East 132nd St.
Grandview, MO 64030

David.M.Talmadge@mail.sprint.com

MTC-00009954

From: Harland W Cashman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 1:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this suit and go forward with real needed litigation.

Thank you
H.W. Cashman Plainview, NY

MTC-00009955

From: Ed or Anna McNeill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stop the anti-trust suit. In today's environment, the customers have spoken by an overwhelming preference for purchasing Microsoft products. This is not because Microsoft products are the only ones available. It is because the customers prefer them.

Harole E. McNeill
201 Calle Del Juego
San Clemente, CA 92672

MTC-00009956

From: Connie D. Husley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is to advise that I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in the settlement of this lawsuit.

Let me add a few of my own thoughts and comments: A former partner of mine walked out on our business a year and a half ago and started her own business.

She proceeded to call and send letters to our clients leading many of them to believe that she would be "taking over" their cases when no such agreement had been made. She continuously smears our reputations with clients as she has done to her previous employers in the past. We lost more than 1/2 of our client base to these unethical actions. She attempted (and is still doing so) to take all of them in any way she could.

Fortunately, my reputation in the field is good enough and her slander is not with the other 1/2. This, along with many other actions she practiced and continues to practice, is a violation of anti-trust laws; not what Microsoft has done.

I am tired of the government constantly attempting to divert the money and success that honest, hardworking individuals have obtained to 'provide to the less fortunate' individuals. I do not make much money; in fact, I am a single parent of two teenagers and make less than $50,000 a year. There have been times that I have made $15,000 a year and I have never felt that the so called rich people owe me something. Because of my intent to provide for myself and my family, I have done whatever I could to make sure my success was a priority. I have admired the ambition of people such as Bill Gates who have built themselves an "empire" on their own intelligence and abilities. It is ironic to me that the ones that feel that the "poor" people need to get more of the government's (American's) money than the ones that have actually paid the taxes into the government are Hollywood elite who make millions of dollars a year and wouldn't give a penny up without plenty of media coverage to make sure they become noted for their alleged wonderful contributions. If the "poor" people would quit laying on the legs of honest, hardworking Americans, they may be able to actually make it on their own. President Bush's tax cut and the refunds was the best thing in the world and I think if the majority of it went to the "richest of the rich", then they were deserving of it since they were the main contributors. While I don't agree with salaries paid to CEO's, etc. that are non-owners of businesses, I cannot agree with penalizing them because they may have been diligent enough to get where they are.

I could continue with my point of view but feel that this should get my point across in regard to the Microsoft case.

Thank you for your consideration of my interest in this matter.

Sincerely,
 Connie D. Husley
 6911 Rosebank Dr.
 Metairie, LA 70003
 504-456-0905

MTC-00009957

From: mail.televar.com
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 2:09pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Let this matter get settled and stop the hold up on new products Microsoft has been penalized far too long for being too good at what they are good at doing. This is supposed to be a free market country. If the other manufactures can't swim with the big fish too BAD.

Richard H. Baumann

MTC-00009958

From: Francis Johnson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 2:11pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I have tried to follow the Microsoft case as much as possible and I am appalled with the DOJ for settling that easily. The law states that Microsoft broke the law, why does the punishment not fit the crime. As an individual on the street I start drawing my own conclusions. Did Microsoft pay off somebody etc? When IBM was found guilty of monopoly, they were dealt with accordingly and they could not profit from their business.

When Southwestern Bell (I forget what it was called) was a monopoly, it was dealt with too Why is the DOJ afraid of dealing with Microsoft. Wrong is wrong.

The proposed settlement is an insult to the "poor under privileged schools." I could understand if Microsoft offered to make all these schools top of the art with new technology/hardware etc. But to offer outdated hardware/software!, all they are doing is using the schools as trash cans, because they have nowhere to put their junk. "give it to them under privileged schools, they should be grateful", and the worst part the DOJ accepted this. This is the United States for pete's sake. We are supposed to offer justice for all. Stop this atrocious settlement.

I use Windows software on my pc and I appreciate the software, it is good and to most extent reliable and easy to use (if you know what you are doing). But I do not think that should get Microsoft special favors/treatment. DoJ act like a department of Justice and not like somebody's lacky.

You read almost everyday that Microsoft is doing something bad here or there. This will continue until someone says "The Buck Stops Here Microsoft, enough is enough". A good example is a simple poll. They tried to rig a poll so that it looks like people want Microsoft, having people voting multiple times, how low can a company go to wipe out competition. Microsoft cannot stand that people like something else other than Microsoft, they are now like dictator governments "Its our way or noones".

DoJ clean up your act and do the right thing.

THANK YOU FRANCIS

MTC-00009959

From: evilpaul13
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 2:13pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Honorable Members of the US Senate Judiciary Committee,

I have been following the Microsoft case reasonably closely. Based on what I've read from the testimony before the committee, I do not believe that the proposed punishment is fitting or effective. Because Microsoft has acted unfairly against competition, and price gouged consumers I believe the proposed remedy should reciprocate. Microsoft's competition should receive an indirect boon, and consumers should be repaid in some way.

So, I propose that Microsoft pay 20 billion back to consumers split two ways. First, 8 billion should be put into Social Security. Many of the consumers Microsoft gouged will one day hope to collect SS, and every little bit helps. 12 billion should be put into education and schools. I propose that it be distributed by state according to population. In the individual states, 80% of the money should be given to the bottom 33% of schools and 20% to the 17% above the bottom third. With the condition, that not a penny of that money be spent on Microsoft products.

This is how Microsoft will compensate its competitor's for its unfair business practices. By not using Microsoft products, schools will use its competitors. I attended public schools, and based on my experience with their systems, there is little to nothing that is done on their computers that a competing product does not do just as well as its more expensive Microsoft version.

Linux is an operating system that could easily replace Windows on school servers. And on desktops too. Contrary to what Microsoft might have you believe there is no shortage of quality software available FREE OF CHARGE. Two of the most popular and easy to use are Redhat Linux (their CEO testified if I recall correctly) and Mandrake Linux. Mandrake is as easy to install as Windows 98.

Sun Microsystem's Star Office is a FREE full featured office software suite, with nearly identical menus and identical functionality to Microsoft Office. Netscape has a web browser that works as well as Internet Explorer. All Linux distributions have several to choose from including Mozilla (what Netscape is based on), the KDE project's Konqueror, and Galeon. All three are high performance and stable web browsers.

There is a graphics manipulation and creation program called "The Gimp" also available free of charge with most Linux distributions. Adobe Software also offers world class graphics software used by professionals everyday. This is also a place where schools could consider Apple iMacs which are known for their strength in graphics.

It is very important to remember that while Microsoft's proponents will claim that while free Linux has a higher total cost of ownership, this is simply a falsehood. Schools will need a "computer guy" no matter what type of systems they run. Additionally, "Windows was built for the Internet" while UNIX-like operating systems such as Linux "Built the Internet." So, networking is very much a part of Linux systems and they are more easily (and without expensive addons) administered to remotely.

A default installation of Linux is also far more secure than a default installation of Windows. Having used Windows in school, I can attest to the amount of downtime computers had caused by their frequent infection by Windows viruses and by malicious hacker-wannabes. Under Linux, a person logged on cannot delete critical files which would crash the computer or change settings that would crash the computer. Windows viruses like Code Red, Sircam, Nimda, and every other of the dozens of Windows viruses that make the headlines every year simply will not work on Linux.

I hope the committee will read and consider my proposal, as I whole heartedly believe it will be a more effective punishment for past transgressions, and send the message that future abuse will not be tolerated.

Sincerely,
 Paul Dougherty IV
 Resident of Media, Pennsylvania
 Computer Science Student

MTC-00009960

From: kherzog
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 2:14pm
 Subject: Microsoft Message Attorney General
 Ashcroft:

Please consider the fact that Microsoft has become successful because it has developed and marketed the software most users of computers want to and are willing to buy. Those who are attacking Microsoft can only be described as losers. They can't compete in the game so they want to change the rules.

Please use your authority stop the penalization of success and restore the competitive software market.

That is the American way to do business.
 Keith Herzog
 kherzog@msn.com

MTC-00009961

From: Phil Cunningham
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:18pm
Subject: Microsoft

Why does the Government punish success? Look at Ma Bell and see the chaos the government produced, higher rates for all. (not to mention the competitive resistant Post office)

MTC-00009962

From: kadojohnson@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attorney General Ashcroft Department of Justice Dear Sir: We support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

Sincerely,
Mr. & Mrs. Donald Johnson
2154 East Dallas Drive Terre Haute,
Indiana 47802-5133

MTC-00009963

From: BJ Trahan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir,
Please settle this now. This is hurting the ultimate people it was suppose to help. It is hurting the economy and wasting a lot of time and money.

Mr. B. J. Trahan
324 Orgeron Drive
Lafayette, La. 70506-6846
Email: bjtpop@netzero.net

MTC-00009964

From: Susan Whitaker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:35pm
Subject: MICROSOFT LAW SUITE OVERALL

I have no idea what Clinton's motivation was in initiating a law suit against Microsoft and really do not care. But, you judges, government lawyers, and other bureaucrats involved should be ashamed of yourselves! Gates was not born with a silver spoon and privileged, he had an idea and kept after it until today we see Microsoft. It is too bad that others either cannot or will not spend the time to do what Gates did, some "real" competition would be okay too. But, Microsoft is not a monopoly. There are hundreds of domestic and foreign companies competing but none who apparently want to take the time, and borrow or spend the money to do what Microsoft has done.

Shame on the lot of you!! Gates actually did what people, Americans are told, who have the ingenuity and drive can do in this Country. But apparently there is a P.S. at the bottom of the American dream—and that is, if you achieve it and are successful without the Government, you will be punished by that Government.

Shame on the lot of you!!!
This NEVER should have happened and there should be NO judgment. The government sues a private individual, with taxpayers money using a judge and court full of government people, and guess what—the government won. Isn't that a surprise.

This entire matter is disgusting and so are those involved, beginning with the most immoral and treacherous president this Country has ever had. I suppose this will be deleted and never see the light of day but unlike the antitrust suit against Southwestern Bell a number of years ago when there simply were no competitors at all, this law suit was not about antitrust, this was about something else, something far more scary—Federal Government power.

Thank you for your time.
Susan Whitaker
Kansas City MO

MTC-00009965

From: Wendy Bolding
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Wendy Bolding
258 Freeport Road
North East, PA 16428
January 9, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,
It has come to my attention that there may be further delays in the recent settlement between Microsoft and the Justice Department. I really don't think this is necessary. Considering the fact that Microsoft has gone above and beyond the call of duty to help our IT sector move forward, it is ridiculous to further delay the process.

It is beyond me as to why some parties feel they need to delay this matter any further. Not only has Microsoft has agreed to reconfigure marketing and licensing agreements, but has agreed to design future versions of Windows to promote installation of non-Microsoft software. Beyond this, they have agreed to be reviewed by a committee that will make sure that they follow procedure. All of this was done in the interest of our entire technology industry. Microsoft, as well as most other IT companies, wants to move forward and get back to business.

The settlement is very fair and should be finalized as soon as possible. Microsoft's opponents should not be allowed to derail it; it is my sincere hope that you will not do anything to hang it up.

Sincerely,
Wendy Bolding
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00009966

From: Frank Haman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:31pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Stop penalizing US businesses for doing their job. Stop the prosecution of MICROSOFT and get on with more important things that the government should care about, like the economy !!

Sincerely,
Frank Haman, a concerned citizen.

MTC-00009967

From: Chuck Hall
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:29pm

Subject: microsoft settlement

It is time to let the free market do what it does best. Produce men like Bill Gates. Stop tyranny now, reward the businessmen who can help our economy. Stop the lawyers from taking what isn't theirs. Tort reform is needed.

Gen Hall
Orinda, CA

MTC-00009968

From: Don Babo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:32pm
Subject: MSFT settlement

I urge you, the DOJ to settle and be done the this Microsoft litigation case. It has been going on for four years now and two presidents. I think the government and the DOJ has more important things to do. With the way things are in the world today I think your resources could be put to better use for the american peapole. Do not let a minority stand in the way of what the majority wants. Put the case to rest!

MTC-00009969

From: Bazil Ghani
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please let the market forces decide the fate of Microsoft and the competitors. I assure you, us consumers don't purchase software because Microsoft places it in front of our face. We make educated decisions. If Sun and the rest of the industry want to use the government to sell their software, it is indeed a sad situation for them. I don't think we as consumers are harmed with Microsoft. The best case one can make is that Microsoft is guilty of annoying some consumers. But their competitors are often far more annoying. (example: Real Networks, Netscape, AOL, and Sun's Office)

I hope you'll decide to settle and let the us, the consumers decide whether we'll let Microsoft tell us what software to use.

Regards,
Bazil Ghani
Vice President of Business Development
Italia Bella Inc.
8647 Hayden Place.
Culver City, CA 90232
310 204 0200

MTC-00009971

From: Becky Bardon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,
I would like to let the Federal District Court know that I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. I believe that the proposed settlement is in the public's interest. Please do not continue this litigation any longer.

Sincerely,
Rebekah Bardon
3926 S. 2500 E.
Vernal, UT 84078

MTC-00009972

From: Joshua Barney
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 2:36pm

Subject: Microsoft needs competition!

I felt compelled to write in because of the current state and possible future of the internet and computing in general.

If Microsoft continues to have its way, no data on the internet will be safe, and our economy will likewise suffer. Microsoft's policy of "If it's broke, why fix it?" is startling to say the least, but understandable when they are in such a position of power. They don't have to worry so much about people fleeing from their services. For those that would wish to flee, there are licensing restrictions or bosses that are entirely focused on using nothing but Microsoft products to help keep them in the fold.

Microsoft thinks they are helping companies by making the computing world a Microsoft one. They are wrong. Truth is they're hurting companies by taking such a lax stance on security and quality. When there's no competition around there is no reason to improve.

They aren't quite king of the server arena yet, but even now they act like they own that market. They do not use the quality of technology to coerce companies into using their products, but very carefully orchestrated marketing and trickery. They mislead consumers into thinking that Windows is the fastest, most reliable and most secure OS. They try to make consumers think that "everybody else is doing it", the most recent evidence being a rigged ZDNet poll asking whether consumers would use Microsoft's .NET or Java-based web services.

While I do acknowledge that Microsoft has made some marginal strides in useability and stability in their operating systems, their security is still bar-none the worst in the industry.

They don't care about other companies. They only care about themselves. Now in today's cutthroat business world that doesn't mean much, and I wouldn't expect anything less from a capitalistic society, but you would think that a company as ubiquitous as Microsoft would at least take pride in its work, and at least consider other's problems of stability and security into account. If those servers aren't running, from any reason from instability to security breaches, companies are losing a very large amount of money. I'm no economy expert but I can only assume that does hurt the economy visibly. The current state of our economy isn't too great either, so do we really need any additional danger to it by poorly-engineered software?

Microsoft /needs/ competition in order to get better. Not only to help companies and to help Microsoft, but to help the end user as well. So far I have been focusing on the server market, but the home user market is also affected by these decisions. Microsoft leaves open very serious security holes in even its software meant for home users (oddly enough, they call some of these holes "features"). When using a Microsoft OS at home, you can never be completely sure that your data is completely safe.

So there needs to be competition in the home desktop user market, as well. A variety of operating systems can easily take over what average Joe User wants to do at home, but Microsoft, intent on securing its perch, has made certain that support for the latest hardware and software is a Windows-only deal. This is the ONLY reason I see that operating systems like BeOS and Linux aren't more prevalent in the user's home.

If support was there from hardware and software vendors, even an operating system as "difficult" to use as Linux would be a piece of cake to use, and in fact to a large degree it already is easy to use thanks to the huge strides and hard work of millions of collaborating programmers across the globe, and companies that have decided to be sympathetic to those that want something other than Windows. Hell, I'm just an animator. I have no interest in my computer beyond getting the best hardware and the best software, and in getting the job done. Linux does this for me nearly flawlessly. I can do almost everything a home Windows user can do, save being able to play a few games and use some hardware. I've based my entire studio under Linux, using freely available software to craft artwork and animation.

Despite this I still have to be careful about what hardware I get because Linux support is still a bit spotty. I shouldn't have to worry about that as a home user, though. Companies, likewise, shouldn't have to worry about having Microsoft breathing down their necks when they want to support an alternative platform.

I think I've said enough for now, and I hope my words, along with the words of everyone else, are heard. Swifter and stricter action must be taken against Microsoft to ensure that tomorrow's world will be a good one for everybody. Even Microsoft.

Joshua Barney
Founder and Lead Animator, Arctic Winds Animation
"You can't have bread and loaf."

MTC-00009973

From: Randy (038) Shirlee Wadlow
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,
Please forward my comments to the Federal Judge in the Microsoft antitrust matter. I am IN FAVOR of the settlement agreement that has been reached among Microsoft, the D.O.J., and the 18 states on the suit.

(1) I, for one, am just the ordinary consumer who is, as I see it, going to pay double for this litigation. My belief is that it is our tax money funding the litigation, and afterwards my money that pays for the additional software costs as brought about by any settlement reached. (i.e. tobacco though I'm a non-smoker) Therefore, any further litigation would just be a detriment to me, and millions like me, as the so called "benefits" are negligible from my perspective.

(2) I am not a computer "guru" and I put the Microsoft program packaging in the same category as buying a car. I don't want to purchase a basic car and then have to go somewhere else to purchase all the options I want. Not only would that be too time consuming, but it would also be cost prohibitive.

Thank you for the opportunity to express my views in this matter.

Sincerely,
Randy L. Wadlow
5318 Glenwood Ln.
Lakeside, Arizona 85929-5135
928-532-0470

MTC-00009974

From: tancerf2@webtv.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:47pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I support the speedy settlement of this case. Our tax money can be spent more wisely than continuing this lawsuit.

MTC-00009975

From: Ovenbirds@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Hesse:
We are concerned about the proposed settlement with Microsoft. We feel that they will eventually become such a monopoly that we will have NO choices when we buy software.

Please stop this company from limiting our choices by taking a strong position against them.

Sincerely,
Gerald & Judith Arnold
418 Aiken Road
Shelbyville, KY 40065

MTC-00009976

From: Mark Virkler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:50pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Attorney General Ashcroft
Please bring to an end the governments attack against Microsoft.

Blessings,
Mark Virkler
President of Christian Leadership University
1-800-466-6961 or Mark@cluonline.com www.cluonline.com

MTC-00009977

From: Ronald Tognetti
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 2:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General John Ashcroft

Dear Sir,
I'm writing you a quick note to support you and the Bush Administration as it seeks to end the litigation against Microsoft. Pursuing this action any further will further justify a bad precedent—the notion that the Federal government can enclose itself in the pursuit of 'Consumer Protection' when in fact it yields the opposite effect—creating uncertainty for businesses which produce goods in a competitive environment, which itself yields stagnation, fewer competitors and less innovation. Microsoft appears to have acknowledged wrong doing, and if the penalties outlined in the settlement are enforced to the letter, that will be a fair outcome.

I appreciate the opportunity to comment directly to you, and wish you well in the pursuit of truer justice for consumers.

Sincerely,
R. Tognetti
Littleton, CO

MTC-00009978

From: Moore, Kevin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear DOJ,
As a technology professional I use all types of computer software daily. I support the tempting to make gain Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. I feel that further prosecution is based solely on competitors or politicians attempting to gain points or a tax payer funded advantage.

I hope that this settlement goes further in stopping States from wasting taxpayer money on frivolous suits.

Kevin Moore

MTC-00009979

From: RocksaltandNails@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

PLEASE; Let's settle this matter now and get on with other important matters!
Thanking you in advance,
Allie Simpson

MTC-00009980

From: Mike Donovan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Mr. Ashcroft, It is time to move toward as much financial stability as possible. End the Microsoft litigation. Perhaps Microsoft took advantage of their proprietary system by providing the users with more value for their money. So, what else is new. If IBM hadn't foolishly allowed Microsoft to keep the rights to DOS it would be IBM who would be under the gun. If Apple had grown to #1 with their proprietary system, they would be under fire. It has already cost Microsoft, stockholders, related industries and the American people more than is deserved.

Mike Donovan,
11038 N. River Lane,
Cornell, MI. 49818

MTC-00009981

From: John Zehnder
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear AG John Ashcroft,
This fiasco of a suit against Microsoft initiated by the Clinton Justice Department has had a very detrimental effect on the high tech portion of our economy. I urge you to cease and desist any and all actions against Microsoft and use the taxpayers' money to pursue the actual criminals in our country.

Sincerely,
John Zehnder
—John Zehnder
—jzehnder33@earthlink.net

MTC-00009982

From: EVAN LEE
To: microsoft.atr
Date: 1/10/02 3:13pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement
DOJ Anti-Trust Division:

I am deeply troubled by the recent DOJ decision to settle the anti-trust case against Microsoft. Guilty or not, Microsoft is the most dominating presence in the operating system and the software market today. For years they have bought out or pushed out competition not by superiority of the software, but by money and lawyers. Microsoft does not promote fair competition, their goal seem to be eliminate all competition. Every new technology or company comes up with new and cheaper ways that benefits customers have been targeted by Microsoft as enemies. I do not believe behaviors such as this will be curbed by this settlement, if anything else this gives Microsoft more confidence to destroy their competitors, because what's the worst that will happen? a slap on the hand to microsoft.

what will this settlement accomplish? by making microsoft providing computers to poor schools in the country? How will this punish microsoft? All they have to do is buy in mass quantity refurbished computers which manufactures are gladly to get rid of. The software of course will be windows. This will not punish microsoft, instead it helps them breaking in to previously Mac dominated education market share. This settlement is not punishing Microsoft, it is helping them gaining publicity and market share.

It is amazing to me that this case started hard and heavy in the late 90s when microsoft had no presence in washington. but it ended with less of a whimper after microsoft dumped millions if not billions of dollars in to washington's political arena. I believe this is the wrong decision by the DOJ to settle with Microsoft, and their monopoly will only get worse. . . I fear the day that Microsoft conquers all.

Evan Lee Disturbed Computer User

MTC-00009983

From: Alfred M Selgas
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Affect on

Americans with Disability Renata B. Hesse Antitrust Division U.S. Department of Justice 601 D Street NW Suite 1200 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Madam,
Richard Blumenthal replied today to correspondence which I recently sent to him: "Dear Mr. Selgas:

Thank you for your recent thoughtful correspondence concerning the Microsoft antitrust case."

"You may also express your opinion to the judge of the federal trial court considering this settlement by filing written comments with the United States Department of Justice by January 28, 2002.

Please keep me informed of your opinions on the case.

Thank you again for contacting me.
Sincerely,
Richard Blumenthal
Attorney General"

Thus, I am providing you with opinions that may help you obtain an equitable settlement for all Americans, especially those who are not always included.

My email to Richard Blumenthal, Attorney General, follows:

Subject: Accessibility and Unbundled Version of Windows

Date: Fri, 07 Dec 2001 18:38:03 -0500
From: Alfred M Selgas <selgasa@erols.com>
To: attorney.general@po.state.ct.us CC: mail@oag.state.va.us, askdoj@usdoj.gov

Dear Sir:
I have just read the below referenced article in today's NYTimes:
"States Ask Judge for Unbundled Version of Windows
By REUTERS Copyright 2001 Reuters Ltd December 7, 2001"

In your efforts to secure an open marketplace, please consider the circumstances of Americans with Disabilities in particular

Accessibility has varied definitions:
1: providing access
2 a: capable of being reached ; also : being within reach b : easy to speak or deal with 3: capable of being influenced : OPEN
4: capable of being used or seen :

AVAILABLE

5: capable of being understood or appreciated

All of these definitions are pertinent to the able bodied and even more so to those of us who need all of the capabilities of personal computing, internet, world wide web, e-mail and more to not just exist but to function effectively in the current and evolving world. These capabilities are not truly accessible if we are locked into one company's version of accessibility.

I see Microsoft embracing "accessibility" only if one uses their version. The concept of Open Systems is not that of one company's version of the appropriate pieces of computer resources and their architecture. It is the concept of all widely available commercial computer resources being able to be selected and used as required by the consumer in an architecture of his or her choosing. This is especially true to provide equitable treatment of those with disability.

I applaud your efforts; and I appreciate your attention.

Yours truly,
Alfred M. Selgas
4606 Herend Place
Fairfax, VA 22032-1714
703-425-1519

selgasa@erols.com
Please satisfy these concerns in any federal settlement with Microsoft.

Thank you for your efforts and attention.

Yours truly,
Alfred M. Selgas
4606 Herend Place
Fairfax, VA 22032-1714
703-425-1519
selgasa@erols.com
CC:attorney.general@po.state.ct.us@inetgw

MTC-00009984

From: RLB
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:28pm
Subject: the trial

It would be in the public interest to keep the proceedings open to the public, including the pre-hearing questioning of witnesses.

Richard L. Berger
1223 Amherst Ave.,
Los Angeles 90025

MTC-00009985

From: Spike Forbes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:33pm
Subject: Microsoft antitrust settlement proposal

Dear Sirs: The proposed remedies in the settlement of your antitrust suit against Microsoft are an absolute and complete travesty. You are totally denying justice to the millions upon millions of citizens and computer users you supposedly represent. Microsoft has continually, repeatedly and flagrantly used improper and illegal techniques not only to maintain its monopoly status but far more seriously, to deny computer users access to far better technologies. It has created an environment where no competitor has had even a remote chance of successfully competing in the marketplace, independent of both quality issues and pricing issues. Your settlement would effectively allow Microsoft to continue its abhorrent practices without material modification.

One can go back to significant antitrust cases in the past, with IBM and AT & T recently coming immediately to mind. Before them, most monopolistic practices were of the price-fixing variety. But no company in the U.S. of the last sixty years has ever operated to such material detriment of the public interest as Microsoft. Sadly, most consumers are not even aware of what they have lost out on because few have seriously investigated (or, thanks to Microsoft, even been able to investigate) alternatives.

IBM was predatory in its pricing and packaging, and maintained its monopoly for years because of the service and comfort it offered. With all its flaws, it remains to this day a research-oriented company which has brought to the market incredible innovation. The marketplace eventually removed it from monopoly status, in about the same time frame as the antitrust case, if continued, would have done. While IBM's practices were contemptible and slowed the introduction of such things as personal computers for close to a decade, it never operated to force an environment where competitors simply could not survive (as Microsoft has overtly and illegally done).

At & T was never predatory in either its pricing or its packaging, probably because it always operated as a monopoly with government blessing, for the most part in quite a "benevolent" manner. The break-up probably served to actually hurt most customers for quite a long time since competition was not created in the one market that matters most to most consumers, local telephone service. Certain of the "Baby Bells" (Qwest is the one I am most familiar with) have been quite successful in maintaining their monopoly status, to the on-going detriment of consumers. Eventually, after many years of absolute turmoil in the long-distance market, consumers have clearly realized the benefits of a competitive market. The greatest loss to consumers has probably been from the effective demise of what was by far the highest quality research branch in the world, Bell Labs.

Microsoft has done no research of its own; it has created no quality products; it is not an innovator under any definition of the word; and it has implemented standards which have kept computers error-prone and horrendous to use for at least a dozen years longer than would have happened absent its monopoly. And it has done all of this, not by technology or by packaging or by pricing but by the totally abusive power of controlling the marketplace through illegal agreements, intimidation and outright fraud. Yes, it has also taken advantage of its established monopoly to apply predatory pricing and packaging, but that is not the damage it has done to the industry and to the consumer.

It is true that eventually the marketplace will remove Microsoft from its perch, but the DOJ would do consumers a huge favor, and would speed up the process by perhaps ten years, if it would adopt effective measures making Microsoft cease and desist. Placing billions of dollars in penalties on the company for a failure to amend its ways, not to mention breaking it into at least three pieces, is the only conceivable way to give any justice for the billions of dollars in both profit and in lost opportunities that it has bilked from consumers over the years. It is far too late to salvage the lost years, but positive change can still happen at a far greater rate than it otherwise will.

I have been one of the few who has insisted on using some of the alternative products which have existed over the last twenty years, just as, back in the 1970's I was one who insisted on using some of the alternatives to IBM products. I have also continually used Microsoft products, just as I also continually used IBM products at that time. So I feel very qualified to speak to the quality and the usability of a wide variety of alternatives. Microsoft has done computer users absolutely no favors, ever since the very early days of its operating system control. It has held the entire computer industry hostage for far too long.

It is not just the browser, but rather a whole range of practices; I could have gone through software product after product to show specifically how Microsoft implemented changes both to make that product no longer work (if it was clearly a better product) and to make it impossible for the developers of the product to keep up. In a nutshell, there are two primary practices (both on-going as far as I can tell): as the designer of the operating system, it provided the rules to others, while its own developers have been continually allowed to use capabilities known only to itself. And second, if its own products violated its own rules (which they frequently did and still do), it either changed the rules for the future or, more likely, it created new de facto standards outside the rules which other developers would have to modify their own products to meet. The headaches created by these two practices have meant two things: if a developer, sell your product to Microsoft if it is any good; you won't be able to issue new releases fast enough to keep up, and they'll actually target you if you really have a quality product that competes with one of their own. If a consumer, buy Microsoft because they're the only ones who can keep their products working on their operating systems (in other words, even though another's product followed all the rules, if it worked anything less than perfectly, Microsoft uniformly said that the fault lay in the product; in fact, the fault most often lay in either the operating system itself or in the public version of what Microsoft said the operating system rules were).

Please do us all a favor, in a case you have already won, by coming up with truly rational and effective remedies, not the absurdities you are currently proposing.

Waldo E. Forbes
37 Beckton Drive
Sheridan, WY 82801
307-674-6095

CC:attorney.general@po.state.ct.us@inetgw

MTC-00009986

From: David Carson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Firstly, I do not believe that Microsoft would have ever lost if the trial had been conducted by a truly impartial judge or by a jury. However, given what the current state of the case is, I believe that the proposed settlement by Microsoft and the DOJ is acceptable. Of course, I think that the states that have decided to go out on their own case is absolute folly and they should be strongly encouraged by the DOJ to drop their suits and let Microsoft get on with competing in the markets in which they choose to participate.

I know that Clinton's pursuit of Microsoft has caused me great personal losses in my Microsoft and related investments for which I will never forgive him. This stalling economy needs closure to this ridiculous case and let the high-tech sector get on with the business of making products that satisfy consumer and business needs. It's time for everyone to move on from the nightmare of the Clinton Administration which includes the pathetic pursuit of one of America's truly great enterprises (Microsoft).

Thanks very much for taking the time to consider input from public.

David Carson (former Microsoft employee and current shareholder)
16318 NE 50th Way
Redmond, Washington
425-869-2279

MTC-00009987

From: Jean Pickett
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:40pm
Subject: Microsoft

I have followed this suit over the years and am thoroughly disappointed that the DOJ could take its precious time and the taxpayers' money to continue this farse. We live in a land of freedom, freedom to create and to innovate. Of course, some who haven't taken the time or made the effort could become jealous of a terrific product. How can you 'limit' a product because a competitor is jealous of it? It seems unconstitutional at best! The consumer will suffer, not Microsoft or its jealous competitors. Where do you think the money comes from to pay the claim? From the consumers! Who do you think suffers from the less than optimum software? The consumers! It's amazing to me that a company can be held accountable because they are presenting a product to the public. Nobody forces the consumer to make the purchase! So why make the rest of us suffer because a few want to disrupt and destroy? And, in the name of justice? Why don't you people spend your time with the electric monopolies, or the oil monopolies, or the American Medical Association monopolies. These people legally force their products on the innocent! And, when have they been taken into question for it? Leave Microsoft alone so the people who choose to purchase its products can have the best combination possible without all of the added inconveniences you people claim to provide as 'benefits'.

MTC-00009988

From: DON BLASINGAME
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to stop this farce of a lawsuit that ostensibly was "in the best interest of the public", when I fact it was driven by the best interest of Microsoft competitors. Stop the harassment, let Bill Gates get on with producing the worlds best computer operating system. He produced a better mouse trap, stop standing in the way of the pathway to his door.

Don Blasingame
Tyler, Texas
<donblas@tyler.net>

MTC-00009989

From: KT/MT
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:39pm
Subject: To all at the Justice Department
To all at the Justice Department

Leave Microsoft alone—the company has done so much for the world with their computer programs, creating jobs and putting people to work and keeping them employed, it is just a shame what the Clinton era has done with it's abuse of the law, the things this past administration has done is appalling—and the two biggest offenders of the law are still out running loose and now charging the American people for the rent of their house that houses the secret service, that is guarding them, and isn't it ironic it just happens to be the mortgage payment for their Million dollar home they live in—both of the Clintons should be ashamed of there past and some day they will finally get what they deserve, some jail time.

Thank you for your time,
Keith Tuma
Brainerd Mn. 56401

MTC-00009990

From: dawn grey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:45pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I find it hypocritical to allow one world banking takeovers by the bank, electric, phone and water and then give microsoft trouble for helping the people out. Microsoft should never have been taken to court in the first place so I do not think they should suffer in any way. Stop the other destructive take overs of individuals and business by government mandates etc. Leave Microsoft alone!!!!

Diana Rey in care of Dawn Grey' s email address of heandme3@yahoo.com

MTC-00009991

From: Alexandre
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:45pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I don't know how helpful this E-mail will be but I wanted to be sure that you knew an open source company has proposed to offer free software (much like windows and office, but from another company) for the hardware (the computers) Microsoft would provide to the poorer schools of the country. That means that Microsoft will really help, and won't extend its monopoly by supplying its own software to the schools it wants to help. Also, if another company takes care of the software, maybe Microsoft can offer more Hardware. The company is Red Hat. You can get their press release here and maybe write to them for more info.

<http://biz.yahoo.com/bw/011120/202744-1.html>

I feel its wrong for a company that was found guilty of abusing of its monopoly to extend its monopoly by providing old, free computers and its own software to kids who are eager to learn. They dishonestly steal marketplaces for other companies, namely Apple, their biggest competitor in the education market, who is leader in that market, and eventually trying to be paid by saying that in 5 years their contract will be over and the schools will have to pay for upgrades.

Open source software is completely free, and just as useful and easy to use. It is as easy for children to learn a computer system not used as wide as windows because they haven't yet had contact with windows, and it is better for them to get a wide grasp at what computers are, and not just the Microsoft point of view.

If Red Hat doesn't suit the education market, you should consider other alternatives, like Linux, Apple, and other competitors. Microsoft should just provide money and hardware, not their software. —

I was advised by Richard Blumenthal, Attorney General to send you this E-mail I had sent to him earlier.

Thank you.
Alexandre Ackermans
Kythorn@mac.com

MTC-00009992

From: David Fisher
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:48pm
Subject: Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,
Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

I want to first thank you most sincerely for bringing Christian dignity and honor to your held post for you have thus brought blessing to this nation. I also wish to support your efforts to end the Microsoft attack. Clinton's elitist government set out hell bent to destroy American private, free enterprise and did so in one account by attacking Microsoft. His attack resulted in the collapse of the stock market causing me to loose all my retirement and investment savings, complete 100% loss. I know many others who lost severely as well. It is high time to stop elitist government, anti-American government policies and actions and to return America to free enterprise, return sovereignty to states and Constitutional rights to United States citizens. End the Microsoft fiasco now!

Respectfully,
Dr. David C. Fisher, OD, MPH
12921 Dale Street, #82
Garden Grove, CA. 92841

MTC-00009993

From: Virginia Jensen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am in favor of moving ahead with the proposed settlement as outlined by the Bush Administration. Enough is enough!

Virginia R. Jensen
1111 W. Placita Alvina
Green Valley, AZ. 85614

MTC-00009994

From: Dr. David A. Zatz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:47pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Microsoft has been found to have broken the law. If I broke that many laws, I'd be penalized for it, not politely requested to stop breaking laws.

What amazes me is how flagrantly Microsoft is still abusing their monopoly status. The latest appears to be a change to their file system to prevent open source software from interfacing with Microsoft networks. No surprise if all the punishment is an advisory board.

I strongly recommend that you attempt to provide some restitution to the companies damaged by Microsoft's illegal activities, and try to even out the playing field. I like the idea of making Windows APIs open. . .of requiring versions of Office—FULL versions, including Access and VisualBasic—for other leading platforms, and of having a REAL oversight panel with actual power.

We've already learned that agreements with Microsoft are meaningless. Once fooled, your fault; twice fooled, my fault. We've already been fooled once.

MTC-00009995

From: H. Jack (038) Carin Morgan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:50pm
Subject: FREEDOM
DEAR SIRS,

AS A CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES, I IMPLOR YOU TO CEASE AND DESIST, RE: THE ATTACK ON MICROSOFT. PUNISHING SUCCESS IS THE ROAD SIGN DIRECTING OUR COUNTRY TO RUIN. THE TRANSPARENT MOTIVE OF THIS LEGAL ATTACK ON MICROSOFT BY GREEDY POLITICIANS AND SLEAZY COMPETITORS MUST BE DEFEATED, AND FOREVER PUT TO REST IF OUR FREE SOCIETY IS TO SURVIVE.

IT IS NO COINCIDENCE THAT THE PRESENT RECESSION COMMENCED WITH

THE EMERGENCE OF THIS ASSAULT ON MICROSOFT. I URGE YOU TO IMMEDIATELY TAKE ANY AND ALL NECESSARY STEPS TO REMEDY THIS WRONG AGAINST THIS VERY IMPORTANT COMPANY.

SINCERELY,
H. JACK MORGAN

MTC-00009996

From: jba@auditorymodels.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.
TO: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200

Washington, DC 20530-0001 FROM: Jont Allen

It is critical, in my view, that MS be dealt with severely. They have broken the law. This is not the right time to "get soft" on them with a lame excuse that it is good for the US economy. What would be good for the economy is to open up the software industry to competition. Having a single source for all PC software is like having a virus. We need competition in the software industry. MS is a double monopoly. They own the desktop OS AND the applications. Breaking them up may create two single monopolies, but this improvement would lead to a much stronger software industry over the next few years. The US economy would be one of the big winners in such a breakup.

The above is my personal view. I use Linux software. I have never had a computer virus. I would like others to see the advantages of Linux. If MS has its way, Linux will be squashed like a bug. If MS is broken in two, the applications half will start producing Office for Linux, in short order. If not, they wont. This would greatly increase competition in the computer industry. I am guessing that Judge Jackson saw this clearly, and that is why he decided they should be broken up. In my view, this is the only rational solution to a very serious problem. It is hard to abandon the feeling that the unfamiliar is absurd and illogical."

—G.A. Miller, p. 5 of his book 'Language and communication'

Jont B. Allen,
973/360-8545 voice,
775/796-9844 (fax),
908/789-9575 (home fax)
Technology Leader Speech Processing
Software and Technology Research
<http://www.research.att.com/jba>; <http://auditorymodels.org/jba>
Room E161, AT&T Labs-Research,
Shannon Laboratory
180 Park Ave., Florham Park NJ, 07932-0971
CC:Richard Blumenthal

MTC-00009997

From: matt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Mr. Attorney General,
As a technician in a large data center outside Washington DC I have an opportunity to work with a variety of software other than Microsoft's. Most of the servers we house use some form of Linux or Apache or FreeBSD or Solaris. Granted, our internal network uses NT 4.0 on the desktop and NT Server 4 on the netserv I do believe that choice was more a function of the Administrator's skillset other than lack of variety in the marketplace. Point is, I don't see where Microsoft has ANY monopoly on ANYTHING. Their product just works pretty good and so far no one has come up with anything better, competitors' marketing hype aside.

While perhaps out of the mainstream I have 8 versions of Netscape and InternetExplorer on my home system—EACH—in addition to a selection of lesser known browsers also. No better way to test how your webpages load than on the browser in question. I know browsers. Aint one better than the other at the primary task of going and getting webpages and since they are all pretty much FREE, qualify as something less than a commodity. Like dirt.

I am deeply disappointed in the amount of time and money spent on this suit and hope the judge sees fit to end it very, very soon.

Sincerely,
Matt Tracey
908 Grant Street
Herndon, VA 20170

MTC-00009998

From: Rick Wintheiser
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 3:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Trial

I am an American citizen living in Europe. It is my opinion, and that of many others that Microsoft has been given a "pass" on the issue of Monopoly. I cannot comment on legal grounds but as a user, maker and creator of software I find their current status stifling in the market. When they ID an area they can simply buy their way in (see XBOX) or using FUD stop development. It was clearly documented in the trial, it is clearly documented in emails and letters, it is clearly documented in the way they behave. Please stand up to them and make sure that Microsoft is broken up or at least strictly controlled.

Best Regards,
Rick D. Wintheiser
R. Prof. Mota Pinto, 247 ? 1 Esq
4100-356 Porto Portugal

MTC-00009999

From: Mark Beecroft
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:00pm
Subject: Please break Microsoft into competitive parts

Dear sir/madam,
My personal view is that the only way to ensure an effective climate for competition is to break Microsoft into parts based on product groups. For years I, as many others, have had to endure poor quality software simply because no other company has had a real opportunity to convince the market of the benefits of its corresponding product(s). A prime example of Microsoft's poor software is the Windows operating system(s). Not only is this product more costly and far less stable than many of its competitors, it is full of security defects which make it an easy target for hackers. In addition, it is a poorly designed and less powerful than other operating systems. Every one knows there are better products (such as Red Hat's Linux) which deserve to be able to compete on equal terms. Lack of competition is holding back progress.

Yours faithfully,
Mark Beecroft

MTC-00010000

From: Paul Benson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:23pm
Subject: U.S. vs. MICROSOFT:
Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

I recently received an email concerning U.S. vs. MICROSOFT. It was entitled FIVE FUNDAMENTAL FLAWS IN THE PROPOSED AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE AND MICROSOFT— AND WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT.

As it urged me to email your office and join in the chorus of lament against Microsoft, I felt the need to voice an opinion that is contrary to theirs. I am not saying that I support all of Microsoft actions and don't think that safe guards should not be in place, I just question as to what would be appropriate action and what would simply "whiny little children" getting their way!!

The biggest problem the industry faces from Microsoft is also the the greatest benefit that Microsoft has brought to the software industry. That is its success in marketing its DOS and now its Windows platforms. It has made it difficult for other operating system platforms to get established , yet compete. At the same success has brought stability to the software marketplace. A software applictaion development company does not have to worry about having to write for a multitude of platforms. It can simply put out a good product for Windows that fills a need, and be assured that he has a large marketplace. The only risk here is that Microsoft could develop a competing product, after it has seen the financial success of the pioneering company, and leverage its marketing skill, deep pockect, and built in user list to out compete the pioneer. Yet Microsoft's past experience has shown that what is usually done is that Microsoft will offer the original company an offer that they cannot refuse (i.e., lots of money, a position within the company, and unlimited ability to develop new products).

Over the past years it seems to me that those that scream the loudest are those who have made poor business decisions, lost market share, and would rather blame Microsoft than accept their own mistakes! Many of the claims within the email that was forwarded to me are conflicting and to cross purposes. The would be backers of this document want Microsoft to not compete with them and to include items that they deem to be useful. How would the industry be if every one could dictate to every one else what they could and could not do.

I may not agree with many of Microsoft's business practices (its bundling agreements for instance) but find that documents such as this are why nothing practical gets done. They whine so loudly about Microsoft being a successful business, that the real problems go on solved. It sort of like one sibling yelling about his/her sibling so loudly that they become the problem and the sibling gets ignored.

Considering the inherent problems with Java, it is perhaps best if it is not included with Windows, after all Microsoft would be prohibited from fixing it and making it work with windows. Or perhaps Microsoft should be forced to include Visual Basic, Visual C++, Tcl, Python, Eiffel, Pike, Perl, Ruby, and the other languages which are ubiquitous and omnipresent within the development and internet community as part of the Windows distribution. Perhaps they should be forced to make "asp" and ".net" technologies available for Linux, Sun, and Mac platforms. A colleague wrote and had the following observations:

My experience with Anti-Trust and Nintendo certainly influence my feelings about Microsoft's situation. I am sure that Sun or Oracle, in Microsoft's position would act in exactly the same manner. I don't want Microsoft to be replaced by Sun or Oracle as the reigning monopoly. I like Microsoft products and work with people who absolutely "hate" Microsoft.

At our firm, we were always panicked that Microsoft would eliminate the need for our software by baking it's capabilities into the operating system. We were very cautious with Microsoft "evangelists" and tried to keep low key.

I personally would like to see Microsoft punished more severely than what seems to be happening but I do not want them destroyed.

The foremost concern from software developers is being squashed by the Microsoft the behemoth. The possibility of Microsoft replicating a proven proprietary software application or trade secret and including it as a "feature" of it's Windows operating system or as a Microsoft application. This practice goes on in most industries and is the foremost reason for the demise of small, inovating manufactures. They develop a proprietary product, which may be a trade secret but is not patented. A larger more established company in the field duplicates the product, introduces it into it's established distribution system, and locks the smaller company out of the market by its sheer presence. Often distributors will not buy initially from the smaller firm because they are new and the distributor is not sure of its stability, after all they don't want to invest in the development of a market for a new product if they may not be able to get the prpduct in enough quantity to statisfy the demand. Yet when the more established company duplicates the product, they immediately pick it up from them. Denying the original, innovative company the market, growth profit, and assuring the failure of the smller company. Sort of a self fulling prophecy.

However, as can be seen by the numerous suggestions as to how Microsoft should be punished. No one has a clear idea of how to solve this problem. It does not seem to lie within the "evil" nature of microsoft, but to be more a symptom of a "systemic" problem with the innovtive process and the established, entrenched, monied market place. It would appear that the Eighteenth Century concept of patent does not serve its original intention of protecting the developer of an idea very well. The original mission of a patent was to encourage the development of new ideas by protecting them for a period of time. Now the costs of acquiring and protecting a patent are so high that many small innovators are frozen out of the process. And in an area where change is so rapid, several months to a couple of years, the patent review time which may be several years negates any effective protection which may be afforded. By the time a patent is awarded it may already have been superceded.

The real solution may be legislative in nature, leading to the adoption of an interim patent that prevents duplication of an existing product for a short period of time, (2-3 years max). That would allow the developers of the product sufficient time to establish the product and be granted a patent, and yet prevent vulture firms from stealing their ideas. With out this, innovation will be stifled, and research will be left to institutions and large corporations.

The PC and software industry owes its success history and growth to the fact that at its inception the giants of the computing industry had no faith in the establishment of a "Personal Computer" industry. Otherwise IBM, Rand, DEC and other Giants would have owned the industry and it would have been Microsoft crying about IBM's dominance that you would be reviewing (after all the first monopoly suit in the computer industry was against IBM).

I would like to thank you for taking the time to read this email and would hope that you would find it informative and useful. This is a complicated issue. My sympathies go out to you

Sincerely

Paul A. Benson

CC:richardf@clickaction.com@inetgw

MTC-00010001

From: Kevin Smith
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:05pm
Subject: Settlement?

Dear Sirs,

I am writing this letter today on a Macintosh computer, manufactured by Apple Computer Inc. I have used the Apple brand for many years now and have found it to be a superior product to the compatible PC's on the market today. Having said that, To settle with Microsoft Corporation would be an injustice. They have ran over competitors for many years now in an attempt to monopolize the tech industry. The company was allowed to "borrow" GUI technology from company such as Apple. The steam-roller attitude was formed in those days and now they are so rich and so powerful that they feel as if they can do as they please, rules, ethics, or no. These people should be punished and with the full extent of the law!

Ask companies such as Apple, Netscape, or any other up and coming company that should cross the path of Mr. Gates Inc. Ask yourself a few hard questions:

A. How did this company get to be so rich and powerful? Was it that they produced a superior product? Compared to whom?

B. Why do they control over 95% of the desktop systems in the U.S.? Ford and GM both build automobiles but neither has ever enjoyed that type of market share. If GM or Ford couldn't do it how did Microsoft?

C. Has Microsoft evolved into another AT&T, capable of domination through high prices and limits on choice?

D. Would the market be served to allow increased competition in the technology sector?

E. Isn't it somewhat dangerous to allow mega-corporations to dictate policy to the people?

Do not settle with these people, they would not settle with you.

Respectfully,
Kevin Smith
386 Store Road
Easley, S.C. 29640
864-859-8191
Republican

MTC-00010002

From: Byron Major
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:08pm
Subject: Microsoft

Attorney General John Ashcroft,
I support the settlement of the Microsoft Suit. As a person who works in the computer industry, I would encourage this settlement.
V/R Byron K. Major

MTC-00010003

From: Phoenix Silver
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:09pm
Subject: Fwd: FW: Attn: attorney general's Microsoft case

Hello there

My name is Tushar Patel and I'm only 26 years old but I've been using computers for a very long time and have been exposed to Microsoft for years and years. I know you're busy so I'll make this as short as possible.

Licensing Office will NOT help out consumers, this fight that you've been fight for so hard should not go to waste. Office is a great product but it won't help out there monopoly. There isn't much of a market for office products compared to what can be developed on a platform. As long as Microsoft has control of the platform doesn't matter what products you license of theirs.

Window's should be the product that is licensed, just as linux is. This way other companies can integrate any products of there's into a base OS, and competition will really begin. Microsoft will of course be allowed royalties and have control over the kernel.

Take a look at the Linux model there is a lot of versions out there controlled by one guy, "Linus Torvalds" and each company that produces a version packages and bundles alot of their own software and services within their version. If windows was made to follow this model then companies such as Netscape, Corel would be able to create their own version of Windows and bundle everything from Browser's to application servers to office products if they wanted. This would also allow for a more advancement in the windows technology.

All these points are strengthening other companies chance of competition more so than that of a licensed Office would. PC makers will also get a choice of who to purchase their OS from and be able to create deals. This in mine and alot of other consumers is a solution that helps US OUT. The only remedy that you would have to do would be to license windows, nothing else would need to be done. If no other companies want to develop or create an integrated OS at least the source-code is available to create applications for the OS.

If you would like a more detailed report or any further clarification please let me know. I will do anything that you request. On another up side this could also kick start the tech industry with alot of start-ups. I love Microsoft and I like some of there products but as consumers this is the best solution for us and other companies to compete.

MTC-00010005

From: Randy Keith
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,
Enough already. Get off of Bill Gates' and Microsoft's case. Let's get back to supply and demand. Quit punishing success. Let the consumer decide. If a computer company gets too much out of hand Americans will quit buying. We don't need a Big Brother holding our hand as we navigate the Internet etc.

I feel like you have punished me as much as Microsoft and Bill Gates. He has done more to advance the use of computers in the home than anyone else in the world. It's time to free up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public.

Randy Keith
1146 Millers Mill Road
Stockbridge, Georgia 30281

MTC-00010006

From: Susan Findley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Suit Attorney General John Ashcroft—

I wish to express my support of the settlement of the Microsoft suit. The settlement offer is fair for competitors, fair for the American taxpayer, fair for the industry and fair for Microsoft. I know you are very busy and I appreciate your attention to this matter.

Spencer Stokes
Stokes Strategies

MTC-00010007

From: Frank Frable
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:14pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Stop this irrational harassment of Microsoft. Let the free marketplace reign untethered by government intervention or unfair marketplace tactics, monopoly etc. Those that pursue the present course of undermining Microsoft's innovations and aggressive marketing are not leveling the playing field but merely tilting it in their favor at the expense of the consumer. Let those that are the best rise to the top so that this country will maintain its vaunted position as the industrial power of the world. Let those that fall behind develop their niche' and their drive to be more competitive by hard work and innovation. The states that refuse to settle merely want a cut of the pie to cover their budgetary short fall. Profit is not a bad word. Neither is success, innovation or hard work.

Bottom line, Microsoft has not distorted the system. The consumer has benefited while the naysayers are merely suffering from self righteous astigmatism.

Frank L. Frable

MTC-00010008

From: Jane Pehl
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:22pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Stop punishing company and personal success!!! It is time for liberals to get over the fact that ALL the money people make is not for THEM or their POLITICAL PROGRAMS! It belongs to those who earn it. GO GET THE CRIMINALS IN THE U.S. and leave working people alone!

Jane Pehl
San Antonio, Texas

MTC-00010009

From: auralia cimenski
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:19pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Settle this case now and let the attorney General get on to more important matters. Quit picking on a productive company.

MTC-00010010

From: James Keane
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:18pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs,
Below please find the text of a letter that I recently sent to the Att'y Gen of Connecticut. Please know that I am not the only tech. oriented professional who feels this way. Those of us who have watched the evolution of the computer for the last two decades have been alarmed & disgusted by the conduct of this corporation & the stifling effect it has had on innovation in the computer world.

James Keane, YALE LAPAROSCOPY

MTC-00010010-0001

?? piece of software they produce, they have the nerve to talk about "Innovation" !In a hundred ways daily, despite lawsuits civil & crimmminal, they sabotage rivals, deny access or produce obstacles to su

Thank You,
James Keane Yale Laparoscopy
James Keane, YALE LAPAROSCOPY J.

MTC-00010010-0002

MTC-00010011

From: Christopher Joseph Kurecka
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a college student and starter of a small computer consulting business. I have in many ways more knowledge of computers than most adults, and in all my experience with Microsoft, they have only done what is needed to sell a product.

Their technical support, though better than some other computer companies, is still simply horrid. They even charge for technical support on products that they sell at virtually 100% profit. I know that they put great amounts of research into some of their technical developments, but in many cases their alleged efforts don't result in gains for the consumer.

Microsoft makes bloated, slow software, simply because faster computers are out and they need a circular system of slowing down the CPU to demand faster CPUs to keep the market going. The cost of Microsoft products is far too high—especially when one considers that Windows itself, along with Office and other applications, are quite unstable and error-prone. If Windows cost $30, then I might not care. But they have been steadily raising the price of Windows over the years, and I believe that if left unchecked they will continue to raise prices indefinitely.

Microsoft's plan for subscription service for Windows also frightens me. Their strategy of charging by the month or year for Windows is outrageous—it will increase the cost of Windows even more, because you pay for it whether you want to upgrade to new features or not. It will also lessen the motivation on Microsoft's part to innovate, once they have a more reliable, consistent money flow. As things stand today, people could all switch to Linux, and Microsoft would go bankrupt (not that such a thing would likely happen, but it's possible). In the subscription service, Microsoft is ensured a greater sum of money in a more consistent fashion that could cause me—or anyone else—to pay money even if they don't want Windows anymore. A good example: I like my computer to be in a dual-boot setup. I can use Linux for fun, and Windows when I need to use Office or something that I couldn't otherwise run in Linux. However, with this plan, I can keep updating Linux for free, and never upgrade Windows. With the subscription model, I would have to pay for Windows, even if it is only used as a secondary operating system.

I think that Microsoft should be forced to produce Office and their other flagship products for other platforms, such as Linux and Unix. I also think that they should be forced to restrict their pricing system, and be forbidden to ever go to a subscription payment model. Making Windows open source or something to that effect would definitely be a significant boon to the tech industry, but it would also be a crushing blow to Microsoft that I think at present their actions do not warrant (though they may at some time in the future). Thank you very much for your time to read this message, and for pursuing this antitrust investigation. Microsoft's anticompetitive behavior is definitely hurting the industry, and they don't innovate nearly as much as they like to make people think they do.

Christopher J. Kurecka

MTC-00010012

From: Bobby Hill
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 4:30pm
 Subject: Fair Justice for Microsoft

Nothing in the agreement with the justice department and microsoft terminate the illegal monopoly and denies microsoft the fruits of its statutory violation as is required under the Tunney Act. Microsoft has done more damage to the computer industry more over the last 20 years than any company has hurt any market in the history of the world. Their greed knows know bounds and they will do anything to maintain the monopoly they got by illegal means. They lied to the Justice department before which was the reason for the antitrust case in the first place. Microsoft doesn't have enough billions of illegal gotten profits, they intend to convert all they're customers whether the customer likes it or not to a rental model of software which will only work if microsoft has an illegal monopoly. This will allow profits skyrocket and allow a reduction in research and improvement of their software. Microsoft idea of security is for their customers is to stop information about security holes in its software to be shared. I'm surprise that they haven't claim a copyright violation whenever someone finds a security problem, but given time I think they will claim this. Microsoft has never been about the customer. They have been about milking the consumer for all the money from they're now adjudged illegal monopoly for all they can and maintaining they're monopoly at all costs.

Bobby E Hill Jr.

MTC-00010013

From: Robert L. Matthews
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 4:32pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
 Attorney General Aschroft,

The proposed Microsoft settlement should be adopted immediately and the litigation closed.

I am a small business owner. Information systems and Microsoft software are essential business tools. The integration of the Microsoft operating system and the suite of applications is a major factor in the financial health of my business. I cannot afford the time, expense and business risk of integration of various products from an array of vendors to run my business. Therefore, in my view the cessation of the litigation is strongly in the public interest.

Sincerely,
 Robert L. Matthews, CEO
 Elm Hill Enterprises, Inc.
 Elm Hill Box 303
 Far Hills, NJ 07931

MTC-00010014

From: Thomas Wills
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/10/02 3:45am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Thomas Wills
 6925 East Kingston Drive
 Tucson, AZ 85710-2214
 January 10, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Microsoft Settlement:

I know you've been swamped with messages telling you to support the Microsoft settlement. I disagree!

I have to spend tens of thousands of taxpayer dollars to buy software, generally by Microsoft that shouldn't have to be spent. The reasons are:

- 1) There is no real competition and if there is, Microsoft buys them out.
- 2) Because there is no competition, we are forced to buy things like Microsoft Office at obscene prices ($12000 just to buy 100 Exchange licenses!).

Being a monopoly, Microsoft can exploit its position in the marketplace, and it does.

Don't settle for this slap on the wrist settlement. Give the consumer some real relief from the Microsoft monopoly!

Sincerely,
 Thomas A. Wills
 Information Systems Coordinator
 Pima County Wastewater Management Treatment Division
 Tucson, AZ 85743

MTC-00010015

From: Vince Bowler
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 4:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To Whom it May Concern,

I believe this grossly misdirected persecution/prosecution of Microsoft is a very large waste of taxpayers money. For each ounce of good there has been a pound of BAD. It was a bad idea when it was started and has only become worse each day since. It has caused much uncertainty in the market and is responsible the loss of many billions of stockholder value. Had MSFT's competitors been successful it would have caused us consumers many billions of dollars and fragmented the desktop operating systems market and cast the whole software industry into spending, greatly unnecessary billions of dollars. What an insult to the whole country.

Vincent F. Bowler,
 Farmington Hills, MI
 vfb@wwnet.net

MTC-00010016

From: Judy Hurd
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/9/02 4:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Judy Hurd
 334 Primrose
 Kyle, TX 78640
 January 9, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Judy Hurd

MTC-00010017

From: Lannie Abernathy
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/10/02 8:31am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Lannie Abernathy
 883 Hawthorne St.
 Memphis, TN 38107-4510
 January 10, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Lannie Abernathy

MTC-00010018

From: Ulice Macias
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/9/02 9:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ulice Macias
10112 Brandywine Dr.
Huntsville, AL 35803-1628
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ulice J. Macias

MTC-00010019

From: Debra Habbel
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 2:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Debra Habbel
8426 E. LaJunta
Scottsdale, AZ 85255
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Debra Habbel

MTC-00010020

From: John Bixler
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 2:04am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Bixler
12700 7thAve.
Victorville, CA 92392-9577
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John Bixler

MTC-00010021

From: Alex Vert
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 11:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Alex Vert
1104 Minneapolis St.
Sault Ste. Marie, MI 49783-3124
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Alex R. Vert

MTC-00010022

From: Theodore Howard
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 12:16am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Theodore Howard
25 Coles Ave
Cherry Hill, NJ 08002
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Theodore Howard

MTC-00010023

From: LJ Bishop
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/9/02 7:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 LJ Bishop
 703 Desnoyer Street
 Kaukauna, WI 54130
 January 9, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Linda Bishop

MTC-00010024

From: Richard Crum
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/9/02 6:13pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Richard Crum
 15518 Cobre Valley
 Houston, TX 77062
 January 9, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Richard Crum

MTC-00010025

From: Marcia Sparks
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/10/02 10:03am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Marcia Sparks
 4593 Main St.
 Hemlock, NY 14466
 January 10, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Mrs. Marcia Sparks

MTC-00010026

From: David W. Kralik
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/10/02 2:56pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 David W. Kralik
 1920 L. Street, NW Suite 200
 Washington, DC 20036
 January 10, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 David W. Kralik

MTC-00010027

From: Edmund Tanner
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/9/02 5:34pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Edmund Tanner
 1209 Sims Bridge Rd.
 Kittrell, NC 27544-9125
 January 9, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Edmund Tanner

MTC-00010028

From: Gloria Solomon
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 1:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gloria Solomon
1910 NE 49th St.
Kansas City, MO 64118
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gloria Solomon

MTC-00010029

From: Jeffery Berg
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 6:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jeffery Berg
400 Crisfield Drive
Abingdon, MD 21009
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jeff Berg

MTC-00010030

From: Makinzi Mock
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 10:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Makinzi Mock
44 Buck Point Road
Bluffton, SC 29910
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Makinzi Mock

MTC-00010031

From: Greg Proch
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 8:20am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Greg Proch

16081 SW 156 Ave
Miami, FL 33187
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Greg Proch

MTC-00010032

From: Alphild Setzer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 1:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Alphild Setzer
15565 St. Therese Blv.
Brookfield, WI 53005
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Alphild Setzer

MTC-00010033

From: Wayne Capurro
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 7:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Wayne Capurro
10451 Gateway Dr.
City, NV 89511
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Wayne Capurro

MTC-00010034

From: Becky Elliott
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 10:38am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Becky Elliott
Rt 3 hwy 946
Coldspring, tx 77331
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Becky Elliott

MTC-00010035

From: Kerry Pfeifer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 10:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Kerry Pfeifer
500 VZ CR 4601
Ben Wheeler, TX 75754
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kerry Pfeifer

MTC-00010036

From: Lou Chavez
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 7:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lou Chavez
15150 W. Ajo #2
Tucson, AZ 85735-2029
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Lou R. Chavez

MTC-00010037

From: kim fiocco
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 12:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Kim Fiocco
7203 st johns way university park, fl 34201
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
kim fiocco

MTC-00010038

From: Don Brigham, Jr.
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 11:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Don Brigham, Jr.
1002 E. Gallatin Ave.
Belgrade, MT 59714
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Don and Ann Brigham

MTC-00010039

From: Mark Maughan
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 10:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Mark Maughan
4266 James Madison Parkway
King George, VA 22485
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mark Maughan

MTC-00010040

From: Ella Rinaldi
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 10:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ella Rinaldi
1565 S. Meadow Lane
Bolivar, MO 15613
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ella Rinaldi

MTC-00010041

From: Raymond Ravert
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 9:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Raymond Ravert
329 Hepburn St.
Milton, Pa 17847-2413
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Raymond R.Ravert

MTC-00010042

From: George Paradela
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 8:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
George Paradela
723 Second Street
Rodeo, Ca 94572-1206
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
George Paradela

MTC-00010043

From: Albion W. Frazier
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 7:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Albion W. Frazier
12227 Brompton Rd.
Carmel, In 46033-3366
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Albion W. Frazier

MTC-00010044

From: Kathryn Hrusovsky
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 7:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kathryn Hrusovsky

33850 Gilbert Ct.
North Ridgeville, OH 44039
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kathryn Hrusovsky

MTC-00010045

From: Jasper Fortenberry
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 10:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jasper Fortenberry
4507 Silver Wing Court
Castle Rock, CO 80104
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jasper Fortenberry

MTC-00010046

From: W.Lawrence Kimber
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 5:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
W. Lawrence Kimber
106 Elmwood Ave.
East Aurora, NY 14052-2612
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
W. Lawrence Kimber

MTC-00010047

From: Ray Fleet and Mrs. Ruby Fleet
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 12:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ray Fleet and Mrs. Ruby Fleet
3606 Bon Park Ct
Dallas, TX 75228-1936
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Ray and Ruby Fleet

MTC-00010048

From: Ann Porter
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/9/02 5:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ann Porter
100 Sunset Dr.
Monroeville, PA 15146
January 9, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. The Microsoft suit can be blamed for a large part of the stock market avalanche since July of 2000.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ann K. Porter

MTC-00010049

From: Linda Boone
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 8:45am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Linda Boone
721 Taylor Ave.
Godfrey, IL 62035-2530
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

We also feel that what has been done to Microsoft could be viewed as a punishment for being innovative and creative in using one's talents to create something that can benefit many people.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Enoch and Linda Boone, Godfrey, Illinois

MTC-00010050

From: David Anthony
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Dr. Ashcroft:

Although I don't really know the detailed particulars of this case, I do know that it is questionable that David Boies was the attorney for Al Gore and for this Settlement case. There is a common suspicion among us conspiracy theorists....

To me I understood that Clinton-Gore were somehow part owners of CBS, CNN, ViaCom and Time-Warner. If that is true, it seems like the much-publicized merge of AOL & Time-Warner might mean that the hidden agenda is to bring Microsoft down so that AOL&Time-Warner would be the Internet's major contender!!!! This would then be GREED as the motive for this lawsuit. I am hoping and praying that the truth here is revealed, and that true justice is served. I am so proud of you and all the work you have done, and this is just one more positive in this new administration. Thank you!

Sincerely

Patty Anthony
7311 Glen Haven Drive
San Antonio, TX 78239
email care of: danthony@satx.rr.com

MTC-00010051

From: KKJones2@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam:

I was a very early user of personal computers before Microsoft developed (took over from another company) an operating system. It was chaos with multiple, competing operating systems in those first years. It was far more expensive in two ways: (1) when a new computer was purchased, it either had to be the same brand or it required the purchase of a different operating system and (2) individual programs were more expensive and often not available for your brand of computer. The standardization of an operating system accepted by most users has led to reduced costs and ease of using programs, which range from technical through taxes to games. When monopolies lead to higher costs or less accessibility, then we, the public, need to be protected. In this case, we do not need to be protected. In fact, the effort against Microsoft has left us in jeopardy. Before retiring, I owned a small computerized accounting firm. I did not expect the government to break up Arthur Anderson and others in order to make it easier for me to compete. In a similar way, I do not expect the government to be a "partner" with firms trying to compete with Microsoft. I urge you to settle the Microsoft case, leaving the standards that Microsoft has created, which are a benefit to almost the entire public. Other systems are available, if one chooses them. All most of us want is to have left untouched the order from chaos that Microsoft has brought to the computing world.

Thank you for your consideration.

King K. Jones

MTC-00010052

From: Thom (038) Adele Donnelly
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:52pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Gentlemen:

It is time to let go of Microsoft. It was an ill-advised suit in the first instance, initiated by a group of Anti Big Business Haters in the Clinton Administration. Also call off the dogs in the States that are looking to extort from microsoft in the same manner that was employed in the Tobacco Case—an abuse of Federal Power that is unlike anything this country has ever seen, and I hope we never see again!

Thank You.

Thom Donnelly
Ft. Valley, VA

MTC-00010053

From: Rex Stubblefield

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In my opinion, we have spend more than enough tax dollars trying to prove that our capitalistic system of government doesn't work. I live in a rural South Western Missouri community and have been working with our computer system since before UNIVAC. Thanks to our competitive business our planet and our USA is far ahead of our forefathers of only fifty years ago!

Thanks for listening.
Rex D. Stubblefield
205 S. College Ave
Marionville, MO 65705
417-258-2967
<http://www.gbgm-umc.org/1umc-marionville/>

MTC-00010054

From: s-com
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Breaking up Micro$oft will not stop any of their practises. Forcing them to give software to schools and organizations just furthers the anti-competition, since any software given prevents the purchase of any thing else and encourages the use of only that software. This is what they want now. Why help them. In my opinion, faulty software is "profitable". That is, if the product does not work as advertised, the consumer is encouraged to replace the product. This requires the spending of more money for the "fix". If the so-called "Lemon Laws" applied to software then the faulty product could be recalled. This would remove the "profitability" factor and force the release of good products in the first place.

Thanks for letting me give my opinion.

MTC-00010055

From: jamie.jansen@pfp.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:04pm
Subject: Why Microsoft must be punished.

First of all I am a MCSE in NT 4.0. This means I have passed enough of the Microsoft exams to become a Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer. I am now required 2 years later to become a MCSE in 2000 which I have to study hard for, pay for, and ultimately loose more hair for because 2 years from now I will be doing it again. Anyway here is my issues:

(1) Security is terrible. Microsoft continually releases products which they claim is more secure then ever. I haven't seen proof of that at all yet. In the hacker community Microsoft is the target for practice. Just about any idiot can break into there default load (this is where their argument kicks in). They will tell you that their system is secure just not by default. That's like selling a security door and claiming it is secure but yet it doesn't have a lock and there is a big hole in the middle that you might have to fix first.

Administrators in the IT industry are pretty fed up with the fact that almost every week we are working longer and longer hours to keep our systems patched (can only be done on nights and weekends away from our families). Then on top of it all we have our own government letting in foreigners on a H1B visa take away our jobs and driving down our wages (we work as many hours as just about any Lawyer, we cancel vacations, are paged in the middle of the night and make $65000 annually without over time says salary studies (I personally make 20,000 less then that). We the IT industry are fed up with our companies telling us we can't afford new server hardware cause it is going to cost us a small fortune to upgrade our desktop hardware to support the next release of Windows (Somehow I think Intel is involved in this whole crime as well). I shouldn't even tell you this but did you know you can use your screen saver to get Domain Admin permission on a NT box? Sorry went off on a right angle with that one.

(2) Not Stable. Explain to me why our number one answer given on our helpdesk is reboot. Then tell me why that normally fixes just about every problem. I have a Linux machine running at home that I haven't rebooted in months. The NT servers at my site gets rebooted quarterly. The other day our DHCP service stopped on one of our machines which prevented the first floor from getting on the Network. I bet if I asked Microsoft what we should do to prevent this from happening again there answer would be "upgrade to Windows 2000" (cha-ching). I can here the money moving towards them now. Personally I never really complained that much about Microsoft. If everything was always 100 percent stable I wouldn't have a reason to be employed where I work. However they imply time and time again that there Operating System gets better and better with every release.

(3) They will not change. Did you know as I write this email they are putting plans together to crush Linux. 1 year ago they were saying that Linux wasn't a threat. Guess what? They were wrong. Linux is rapidly catching up to them in the Server market but they are training sales people to find the Linux machines within companies and supply a lot of bogus facts about how windows is superior to Linux (most of which not true). I wish a judge could walk into the court room and have a Windows NT (2000) server sitting there on a network with a Linux machine. Get ourselves a good (doesn't need to be great) hacker and prove to the judge that the quality of the software is terrible. Did you know that at one time NT used to claim that they were C2 certified. It's true. NT is C2 certified as long as it is not on a network (what good is it if it isn't on a network?).

Well I guess these are some of my biggest beefs.

Please don't settle with them supplying free software to education. This will only make things worse.

Good luck
Jamie Jansen, MCSE
Sr. LAN Administrator
(952) 703-1779
CC:rep.jim.abeler@house.leg.state.mn.us@inetgw.rep.ro...

MTC-00010056

From: DavidBowlin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:11pm

Subject: Opinion on how to handle Microsoft Proposed Settlement Gentlemen,

I suggest that the Justice Department suggest to California and the other 9 states that elected to not settle—to not carry Microsoft products within their states. Maybe if California and the others realize that if Microsoft were not available, their economies would severely suffer, there would be some room for compromise.

David Bowlin
Sammamish, WA

MTC-00010057

From: Thomas J. Klinect
To: Microsoft ATR, fin@mobilizationoffice.com@inetgw

Date: 1/10/02 5:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attached is the letter we have drafted for you based on your comments. Please review it and make changes to anything that does not represent what you think. If you received this letter by fax, you can photocopy it onto your business letterhead; if the letter was emailed, just print it out on your letterhead. Then sign and fax it to the Attorney General. We believe that it is essential to let our Attorney General know how important this issue is to their constituents, important this issue is to their constituents.

When you send out the letter, please do one of the following:
—Fax a signed copy of your letter to us at 1-800-641-2255;
—Email us at fin@mobilizationoffice.com to confirm that you took action.

If you have any questions, please give us a call at 1-800-965-4376. Thank you for your help in this matter.

The Attorney General's fax and email are noted below.

Fax: 1-202-307-1454 or 1-202-616-9937
Email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov

In the Subject line of the e-mail, type Microsoft Settlement.

For more information, please visit these websites:

www.microsoft.com/freedomtoinnovate/www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/ms-settle.htm
Thomas J. Klinect

TPI Inc.
619-303-3292
TPI, INCORPORATED
2650 JAMACHA ROAD # 147, PMB 13
EL CAJON, CA 92019
FAX: 619-670-6157
January 7, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft, U.S.

Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,
I am writing to express my concerns regarding the Justice Department lawsuit against Microsoft. If this lawsuit had succeeded to the extent envisioned by government lawyers, Microsoft's competitors, and some on the federal bench, the real penalty would have devolved to the entire IT industry, and thus to the American economy and people.

Just because Microsoft's competitors have been unable to develop products that are comparable with Microsoft's products in value to the consumer, it does not follow that the government should step in and, in effect, "dumb down" Microsoft in an effort to make those less innovative companies more competitive with Microsoft. We have seen this principle tried with regard to our national educational policies, and it simply does not work.

It is good for a company like Microsoft to stand on a principle of unapologetic excellence. If its products and innovations are better than anyone else's, then that is its reward for its work ethic, perseverance, and technical excellence. No laws are violated when a company develops superior products.

Similarly, if Microsoft's products and innovations slip into second, or third place then that is where Microsoft deserves to be. That is the essence of the competitive marketplace. To have the government attempt to subvert the role of these competitive forces can serve only to upset the natural dynamic of the marketplace.

The settlement now in place, one in which Microsoft has agreed to an equal pricing structure for licensing preinstalled software to hardware makers, provides a reasonable basis for closure of this matter, and I urge the Department of Justice to seek acceptance by all parties. I believe that this will best serve the interests of all of the parties, but more important, it will best serve the interests of the American people.

Sincerely,

MTC-00010058

From: RTPaeschke@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I don't believe the public is served when judicial oversight or legislation is made to stifle companies that create technology to the degree that Microsoft has. The main reason we have this predicament in my opinion, is that "weakened" competitors like AOL, SUN Micro, et.al., and their legal teams purposely sought remedy through the courts as a viable competitive marketing tactic. Unfortunately for the consumer, these "do-gooders" have influenced the justice system to prosecute Microsoft for being successful. The band-wagon effect in this is huge with lobbyists, lawyers and those "weakened" competitors all reaping employment and huge sums of money. And then there is Microsoft, trying to exist by selling what we all agree are a great series of products addressing consumer preferences and providing what the market demands, and being punished for being successful at it. RTP.

MTC-00010059

From: Bryan A. Woodruff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

This email is to express our opinion on the Microsoft settlement. My wife and I approve of the settlement with Microsoft and believe that it is in the public's best interest to complete the process and avoid continued litigation. We also encourage the remaining 9 states to join the Federal government and the other states to agree to these settlement terms.

Bryan and Lisa Woodruff,
Redmond, WA

MTC-00010060

From: Jim Miller
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement is a giveaway that will barely hurt Microsoft. The terms are a disgrace. I hope that the abstaining Attorneys General hang in there and get what's right.

James G. Miller
1100 Irvine Blvd # 491
Tustin, CA 92780-3534

MTC-00010061

From: CAD/Pacific
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs,

I truly wish that the federal government would simply just drop this whole case against Microsoft. To be sure Microsoft probably does not have entirely clean hands. But let the free-market kill Microsoft. Linux is an up & coming operating system. Apple Computer is making a come-back. Let Microsoft kill themselves. If the government continues its involvement, then all those persons supporting Microsoft will forever blame the government for Microsoft's failures. But if the government drops its case and allows the free-market to regulate Microsoft, then Microsoft will either change its ways or drown itself and have no one to blame but them selves.

Bill Goode
Small Business Owner in Los Angeles

MTC-00010062

From: John Wagner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attorney General Ashcroft,

I would like to see an end to the Microsoft suit. I think this issue is hurting not only Microsoft, but the whole computer industry. We need to put it behind us. It does not help the economy to continue this case any longer. I also feel that Microsoft is being persecuted because of the fact that they are big. They make better products than most of their competition.

John L. Wagner
780 Norfolk Drive
Carson City, NV 89703

MTC-00010063

From: ward j. burkholder
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case and move on to more important cases.

Ward J. Burkholder
230 Pleasant View Dr.
Kerrville, Texas 78028
wjaybee@ktc.com

MTC-00010064

From: K (038) J Butler
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 5:28pm
Subject: Proposed settlement is fair

Dear Justice Department,

I believe that the proposed settlement between the US and Microsoft is fair and should be implemented. Further, I think the nine States should stop their independent efforts to seek further remedies, and join with the US to settle.

It is interesting that most of the opposition to settlement comes from Microsoft's competitors and their employees. Our laws were designed to make sure consumers are treated fairly, not to permit companies to gang up on a company they don't like.

Yours sincerely,

Jeremy Butler
57 Wildwood Lane, Friday Harbor, WA
98250
(360) 378-7969

MTC-00010065

From: Jim Tate
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Its time to stop wasting our tax payers money on this type litigation. This country was built on FREE ENTERPRISE! If someone builds a "better mouse trap" let us be the judge out here in the market place.

JP Tate
Chairman of the Board
Culligan of Charlotte

MTC-00010066

From: Robert C. Phillips
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs: The government has ostensibly pursued Microsoft case on behalf of consumers, however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy. The proposed settlement, agreed to in 9 states, encourages consumer product choice, promotes product innovation & provides non-Microsoft related computer & software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up the Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public.

We think the State Attorneys General should discontinue this litigation!!

Sincerely,
Bob & Carolyn Phillips
122 Raintree Blvd.
Niceville, FL 32578-3908

MTC-00010067

From: David Ure
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:38pm
Subject: Microsoft lawsuit

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

Congratulations on achieving the long awaited settlement on the Microsoft anti-trust lawsuit. Your efforts and desire to find the compromise and balance for the technology industry is greatly appreciated. The lawsuit should never have happened and the economy and innovations can now begin to progress again.

As a legislator I am always concerned with economic opportunities. Utah is a technology state and we need to start generating interest again in creating new products and ideas. Resolution of concerns for the Microsoft competitors is needed. It appears that AOL, Oracle and Apple have all had their concerns addressed. I highly support the settlement and hope that you will bring this issue to a close.

Sincerely,
David Ure

MTC-00010068

From: Chris Williams
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:40pm
Subject: Re: PLEASE DO NOT SETTLE (fwd)

Thank you for your thoughtful correspondence concerning the Microsoft antitrust case. We value hearing from citizens on matters of public interest and appreciate your taking the time to express your concerns. As you know, on November 6, 2001, the United States Department of Justice and Microsoft filed a proposed settlement. California did not join in that settlement because the settlement would not accomplish the goals we set when we initially filed the case. Nor would it accomplish the remedial goals set by the U.S. Court of Appeals: (1) to prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future; (2) to spark competition; and (3) to deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains. The judge of the federal trial court currently is considering the settlement. You may express your opinion to the court by filing written comments with the U.S. Department of Justice by January 28, 2002, at the following email address: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov Please type "Microsoft Comments" in the subject line. You may also fax comments to 202-307-1454, or mail comments to Renata B. Hesse, Antitrust Division, U.S. Department of Justice, 601 D Street, NW, Suite 1200, Washington, DC 20530-0001.

Again, thank you for sharing your views in this case.

Chris Williams
<maxphunk@ecst.csuchico.edu>

I am a concerned citizen, student, and IT worker. Under the currently proposed settlement, Microsoft will loose nothing and it's monopoly will remain intact. They have promised $1.1 billion to school, $900 million of which is Microsoft software, "at cost." Tis means Microsoft pays $0.14 to burn the cds and writes the cost down as $300, or whatever the wholesale price is for the specific product. DO NOT SETTLE FOR ANYTHING ELSE THAN A BREAKUP OF THE COMPANY! Period.

MTC-00010069

From: Phillip David Mosher
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:41pm
Subject: Microsoft case

Sirs:

Since DOS ver. 3, I have used products produced by Microsoft. They have been quality products, designed to make our lives easier. Microsoft has beaten their competition in the market place. I now use Windows 2000 and Office XP. I am very pleased with these products.

I do not feel that the Justice Dept. has been fair in their pursuit of Microsoft. I do not feel that the Justice Dept. and the states involved have the best interest of me, the end user, in view in this case. This case has communicated one thing quite clearly—If you have good products, can beat your competitions and produce exceptional growth, the government will surely treat you very badly. Microsoft has helped our nation. Microsoft has changed the way we do things, making life easier. Why are we punishing a good thing?

I remember when the government took Kodak to task over film patents because Kodak had done too well in building good products. Kodak was forced to release some of those patents. Today Japan controls the film market. Is that what the Justice Dept. wants to do to Microsoft?

Sincerely,
Phillip D. Mosher
706—84th ST NW
Bradenton, FL 34209
prmosher@tampabay.rr.com

MTC-00010070

From: Robert H. Hacke
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir,

Please stop wasting our money on the prosecution of Microsoft!!! Our markets and the entire economy are being affected in a negative way by this ongoing farce. It would seem that when a person or a company succeeds in this country, the government interferes to put a stop to that success. This is harming our country more than helping it.

The proposed settlement should be immediately accepted and the litigation completed!

Sincerely,
Robert & Joanne Hacke
10215 White Mt. Rd.
Sun City, AZ 85351

MTC-00010071

From: Louise Kennedy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:46pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs-

I support the Bush administration's position on the Microsoft settlement.

Sincerely,
Louise Kennedy

MTC-00010072

From: carol williamson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:50pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

I SUPPORT THIS SETTLEMENT AND THINK WE NEED TO BE DONE WITH IT ALREADY..DON'T WE HAVE ENOUGH BIGGER THINGS TO WORRY ABOUT....SUPPORT PRESIDENT BUSH AND BE DONE WITH THIS ALREADY!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

MTC-00010073

From: Kathy Mohnkern
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:50pm
Subject: my complaint

The only thing I want to say is I bought a computer three years ago. It got damaged and when I went to buy another one I had to buy it with the same microsoft programs I already had. So I had to spend my hard earned money one the same thing. I think microsoft should have to pay all customers back for their forced double purchases.

Thanks
Kathy Mohnkern

MTC-00010075

From: tiger2
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:54pm
Subject: MICROSOFT

I believe it is time to move along and let the American spirit of free enterprise continue. I support the Microsoft Corp. and believe the Federal and State & Local Governments should cease and desist from any further persecution of Microsoft.

Ed Hart
84-35 64th Road
Middle Village, NY 11379

MTC-00010076

From: J.C. Bowman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 5:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
1808 West End Avenue Suite 1214
Post Office Box 23348
Nashville, TN 37202-3348
(615) 327-3120 Voice
(615) 327-3126 Fax
Email: TIPP@TNPolicy.org
January 10, 2002
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 "D" Street, NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC, 20530
Attn: Renata B. Hesse
Subject: Comment on Proposed Final Judgment

Dear Ms. Hesse

The Tennessee Institute for Public Policy joins with our fellow members of the State Policy Network, and encourages you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. We are a state-based, non-partisan policy research group dedicated to promoting free markets and open competition.

This settlement reflects a triumph of the rule of law. It is a perfect map of remedies laid alongside the areas where the Appeals Court found against Microsoft. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition on what they call "product tying" to a breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In our view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

As leaders in advancing free market competition in our respective states we believe this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration. Please include in official records and court transcripts.

Signed,
John C. Bowman
Director of Education Policy

(Electronic Signature)

MTC-00010077

From: Barbara Seels
To: Microsoft ATR,shir@pitt.edu@inetgw
Date: 1/10/02 5:59pm
Subject: microsoft proposal

As a professional educator, I want to speak against the microsoft proposal to give equipment to schools. This is another marketing ploy without the potential to cause substantive change except to drive other vendors out of the market. Microsoft will probably do this irregardless of this decree. Equipment without a context or constraints on what is given is probably going to make little difference. The schools are best when they represent the diversity in the market also.

MTC-00010079

From: Sue Fuessel
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 4:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sue Fuessel
4077 Commissioners Lane
San Angelo, Tx 76905-7557
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Odis and Sue Fuessel

MTC-00010080

From: Jonathan Wright
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 5:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jonathan Wright
576 Shady Grove Drive
Montgomery, AL 36109
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Wright

MTC-00010081

From: Don Wilkinson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 5:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Don Wilkinson 6631 Apache Run
Theodore, AL 36582
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
don wilkinson

MTC-00010082

From: Robert Adams
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 5:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert Adams
10512 School House Ln.
Austin, TX 78750
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert Adams

MTC-00010083

From: Debbie G Turner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like my voice to be heard where the Microsoft Settlement is concerned. I believe the agreement reached between Microsoft, the nine states and the federal government is very reasonable and fair to all parties involved! I do not wish to have the litigation prolonged.

The last thing the American economy needs is more litigation that benefits only a few and stifles innovation.

I say, SIGN THE SETTLEMENT "as is" and move on to more important things.

Concerned US Citizen
Debbie Turner
2690 Throatlatch Lane
Marietta, Georgia 30064

MTC-00010084

From: The Shaws
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am 63 years old. I use my computer a lot in community and church related volunteer activities. I am pleased with my Microsoft software. I believe it is time to get this litigation settled once and for all.

Robert H. Shaw, Jr.

MTC-00010085

From: John Baitinger, Sr.
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 5:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

John Baitinger, Sr.
P.O.Box 171
Alloway, NJ 08001-0171
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John S. Baitinger, Sr.

MTC-00010086

From: Bill (038) Ann Hauckes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leave Microsoft alone! They are the reason why so many people have computers in the first place. Can you imagine if everybody's computer ran a different operating system and different software? It's bad enough that we have the "Microsoft people" and the "MAC people" (and the 3 people who use Linux) not being able to communicate! So what if Bill Gates is the richest man in the world? He deserves it. More power to him! Why don't you do something about AOL/

Time-Warner or the drug companies or the insurance companies or the tobacco companies???

MTC-00010087

From: Hoffman (038) Hoffman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attorney General Ashcroft,
Please complete the settlement of the Microsoft case and let the market place determine the winners and losers, not government.

Marcus Hoffman
P.S. I am not a Microsoft employee.

MTC-00010088

From: Sharon Herron
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:17am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please accept the current proposed settlement!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

MTC-00010089

From: Tom Stephenson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Litigation

Enough already. Any further litigation is not in the consumers interest. This is about bashing success AND money. Letting Time-Warner-AOL, Sun Microsystems and Oracle use the Justice Department to fight their market battles is ridiculous. State AG's in particular are doing a consumers a disservice. All they want is money and political recognition. Let the free market work. If MS fails the consumer they will fail without this total waste of time and resources.

Thanks,
Tom Stephenson Surprise, Arizona

MTC-00010090

From: Joe Goodson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:25pm
Subject: Litigation

Personally, I think that the states are just trying to pull a Bill Clinton and try to snooker Microsoft out of money like they did the cigarette makers. They need to STOP litigation NOW!!

MTC-00010091

From: Aaron Johnson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:27pm
Subject: stop attacking Microsoft

The Clinton Administration started attacking Microsoft which led to the current bear market we are currently struggling to get out of. It's a crock of ca-ca that the Reno Justice Department used Microsoft products as a tool to attack Microsoft. Why, because Microsoft is a leading innovator. Lead, follow or get out of the way as Lee Iacocca said of Chrysler. I have personally enjoyed and profitted from Microsoft products and I stand behind the company all the way. Microsoft is what the American dream is all about. Make a product people need/want, market it, and advance an industry, a nation. Bill Gates did for computers what Henry Ford did for the car. Innovation must be allowed to reign free.

Release Microsoft from the anti-trust suit and let free competition rule!

Aaron B. Johnson
9824 Manor
Allen Park, MI 48101

MTC-00010092

From: Larry Woldt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:28pm
Subject: Private Depositions

That is my court room and my prosecutors and, one of the remaining nine states suing Microsoft is Minnesota where I live.

I do not believe in "sealed" settlements that allow companies to hide what they did by paying off someone and I certainly don't believe that a publicly traded company in a federal court has the right to hid sworn testimony.

There are a few million Americans out here who pay for two-thirds of the people involved (the judge and the prosecutor) and we pay for the courts themselves. I want to know what Microsoft is "swearing" to and believe that I have every right to have access to that testimony.

Thank You,
Larry Woldt
lwoldt@mediaone.net

MTC-00010093

From: ALWMSN528@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:28pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I am a computer user who always felt I was able to purchase any software program I wanted. I have not felt that Microsoft has prevented me from doing this in any way. In my opinion the lawsuits are just screwing up the consumer by doling out multi dollars to the States. They are not interested in the consumer, they are looking for all the cash-cows they can find so the politions and the lawyers can benefit. Don' hurt us consumers any more by awarding any more funds that Microsoft has to pay to the States. Enough is enough.

A. E. Williamson

MTC-00010094

From: gary blunt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:32pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Please do not allow consumers to be hurt anymore. There has been a waste of tax payers money on this and a waste of time for the department of justice. Please do the right thing.

Gary

MTC-00010095

From: Dave Jones
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:40pm

Renata Hesse
Trial Attorney
Antitrust Division
Department of Justice

I have written today to comment on the settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft Corporation. While I understand the honorable intentions of the judge and court in settling the case in order to prompt the economic recovery of the nation's largest company and thereby, in theory, to prompt economic recovery of the nation, I deplore the toothless settlement that has been accepted by the Department of Justice prosecutors.

There are three things I feel must be included in a settlement that would enact real change in the operating system market and allow for true competition:

1. Any remedy seeking to prevent an extension of Microsoft's monopoly must place Microsoft products as extra-cost options in the purchase of new computers, so that the user who does not wish to purchase them is not forced to do so. This means that for the price differential between a new computer with Microsoft software and one without, a computer seller must offer the software without the computer (which would prevent computer makers from saying that the difference in price is only a few dollars). Only then could competition come to exist in a meaningful way.

2. The specifications of Microsoft's present and future document file formats must be made public, so that documents created in Microsoft applications may be read by programs from other makers, on Microsoft's or other operating systems. This is in addition to opening the Windows application program interface (API, the set of "hooks" that allow other parties to write applications for Windows operating systems), which is already part of the proposed settlement.

3. Microsoft's success, while due in some part to internal innovation, relies heavily on technologies developed by the public sector. The Internet and much of the networking and software technology essential for Microsoft Windows have been fostered by federal grants and Department of Defense research money. As such, any Microsoft networking protocols which build or modify these publicly developed standards must be published in full and approved by an independent network protocol body. This will prevent Microsoft from using their market position to seize de facto control of the Internet.

I trust that you will attempt to enact real and meaningful change in the operating system market. This is a true national security issue. Microsoft may be important to the nation's economy in the short term, but long term economic security can only come from a free and efficient market for operating systems and networking technologies.

I care about these issues and I vote.

David M. Jones
1142 Key St.
Houston, Texas 77009
713-880-4233
CC: Senator Gramm, Senator Hutchison

MTC-00010096

From: VBoomer1@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sir

It is my opinion that much too much time, money, and resources are being spent pursuing a company that has every right to conduct its business as it sees fit. The robust economy we have had for the last ten years is a direct result of this company, a company some anti-capitolists would like to see destroyed to feed their socialist egos. Business is what made this country of mine great, and ruining businesses is what will destroy it. I urge you to dismiss the suit against this great company and use my money, time, and resources on cases worthy of prosecution.

Sincerely,
Ronald Vandenboom
524 124th St
Franksville, WI 53126
CC: VBoomer1@cs.com@inetgw.acu—list@capwiz.mailmanager...

MTC-00010097

From: Sherry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:51pm
Subject: stop wasting taxpayers' money on the persecution of Microsoft.

Stop wasting taxpayers' money on the decade-long competitor-driven persecution of Microsoft. America's taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution, diverting government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies.

The proposed settlement encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public.

Some of the State Attorneys General want to continue this litigation: Don't let them! I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

Sherry A Jones
9021 N Swan Rd Unit B
Milwaukee Wi 53224
414.371.2305

MTC-00010098

From: Jan (038) Dick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

We feel that enough tax money has been spent trying to ruin Microsoft. The competitors who initiated the action are jealous of Microsoft's ability to produce software which is good for the consumer and have tried to get "a piece of the action." The Clinton DOJ was more than willing to pursue a successful company in order to cater to the contributors to their party.

We feel that Microsoft should never have been prosecuted in the first place and thus should be left alone now. The sooner, the better.

Thank you for your consideration.

Jan & Dick Rees
816 Woodbine St.
Willard, OH 44890

P.S. Keep up the good work. We support you all the way. God Bless you and God Bless America.

MTC-00010099

From: james jenkins
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 6:59pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement is a transparent sellout of the public interest and a travesty of justice. It sends the message that crime is OK, as long as the perpetrator is big enough.

The settlement has so many loopholes designed to allow the perpetrator to continue the activity that the case was all about, that it is a legal nullity.

Indeed, the perpetrator right now is, in full public view, continuing this activity, while daring the States that are continuing to pursue the case to encompass its current activity, to exploit such pursuit as a ground for further delay.

Microsoft has to date almost successfully demonstrated that infinite delay is a valid legal strategy, and that bribery of King George's DOJ is an accomplished fact.

Yours Truly,

Dr James L Jenkins

MTC-00010100

From: Paul M League
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

January 10, 2002
Attorney General Ashcroft
Department of Justice
Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,
The proposed Justice Department settlement with Microsoft encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently do actually harm the public, as well as the more pressing anti-terror efforts.

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit, and ask that you, the various State Attorneys, and the Court of Jurisdiction also do the same.

Sincerely,
Paul M. League
PO Box 7007
Beverly Hills, CA 90212
1.310.277.3244

MTC-00010101

From: Chad Bennion
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Lawsuit

Attorney General John Ashcroft;
I am sending you this email in support of the Microsoft/Department of Justice settlement offer. The Lawsuit should never have been pursued by our federal government and should have been left to the Microsoft competitors to resolve. This mired issue should be brought to an end. I strongly urge your acceptance of the settlement.

Sincerely;
Chad E. Bennion
Utah House of Representatives
District 44

MTC-00010102

From: THOMAS PHILLIPS
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:15pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Microsoft is being punished for being successful. This is not the American way. Let Microsoft again lead the way. We will all gain and grow with thier success.

Thomas Phillips
2525 Ocean Blvd. # H5
Corona del Mar, CA 92625

MTC-00010103

From: Minda Stillion
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have personally felt my family very affected by this long process, both in our pursuit of the American Dream, and finacially. I long for settlement to take place, so we can see the positive effect in the stock market and job markets, so that eventually confidence in innovative freedom will heal and return.

Sincerely,
Mirinda Stillion

MTC-00010104

From: Ruth Silveira
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:24pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Its time to knock off the witch hunt for and against Microsoft and Bill Gates!! Can't the Federal Gov't. find someone else to harass? This whole thing has been very costly and try as you might you didn't succeed at driving Microsoft out of business and breaking up the company that has made computers accessible to all of us. LEAVE them alone. Go after the people in our government that have shady dealings.

Ruth Silveira

MTC-00010105

From: David Tucker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Sirs:
I completely support the settlement with Microsoft, Inc.; but would have liked to see Microsoft completely exonerated without having to pay out one cent in the settlement. Market forces, not the Judicial System should be the sole determiner of what products are put on the market place; and the Democrats' consistent attempts to compromise this system is as Communistic as Marx or Lenin themselves. If ever another entrepreneur can make a better product than Microsoft then let that product come to the forefront, and we will purchase it.

Thank You,
David Tucker
Tellico Plains, TN

MTC-00010106

From: Ron
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a computer consumer, I believe that the action brought against Microsoft is an abomination. I use many of their products because they are the best for my use, not because I was forced.

When I got my first modem, my provider gave me Netscape software as a default when I installed the program. They are not being sued for anti-trust.

There are several products and systems that do the same thing. Is it okay for them but not Microsoft.

My installation disk for Microsoft Windows 98, also has a folderful of other internet providers that I can opt for if I so desire. Is that anti-trust? I equate this action with those who want to take our language away and create chaos by having more than one official language.

I use Microsoft products because I like them and consider them best for my needs. I have never felt obligated or forced to use any of their products. If a computer manufacturer feels that Microsoft is being unfair in any way, they should choose a different OS for their product, and let us choose our own. Better yet, have them install the OS that the customer wants at the time of purchase.

MTC-00010107

From: Jeff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

Just a quick comment on the Microsoft case-I am glad it is over. Considering the fact that the DOJ failed to provide any evidence that MS is a monopoly or restricted competition. All the case did was to further prove that any successful company can have its jealous competitors have the government do to it that they could not do in an open marketplace.

It is a good thing that the MS case will be settled at the federal level. I just hope that all of the state attorneys-general stop this extortion as well.

Sincerely,
Jeff Mills
jmills3596@mindspring.com
CC: Jeff Mills

MTC-00010108

From: Kelly Casaday
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm a former aide to former Congressman Merrill Cook and support the proposed settlement with Microsft.

Kelly Casaday

MTC-00010109

From: Spencer Stokes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General John Ashcroft

I am writing to urge you to settle the Microsoft law suit. I believe that the federal government should not be involved in free enterprise system. As a conservative I believe that the markets should dictate commerce and not the federal government.

Please do your duty and work for the settlement.

Spencer Stokes
Former Executive Director of the Utah Republican Party.

MTC-00010110

From: Jason Frankenfield

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:41pm
Subject: Dear Judge:

Dear Judge:
I urge you to end the trial against Microsoft without taking an adverse action against Microsoft or imposing any form of sanctions on it. As a consumer, I do not believe that Microsoft's conduct has been harmful. In fact, Microsoft has brought incredible products to consumers at reasonable prices. Microsoft should be allowed the liberty to design and market its products as it likes, and to conduct its business operation without government interference.

Please dismiss the actions against Microsoft with prejudice. Please do not impose sanctions against Microsoft.

Respectfully,
Jason Frankenfield

MTC-00010111

From: Gerald E Vinella Jr
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the Busch Administration and Microsoft to settle this lawsuit. It is not healthy for this country to allow this to continue.

Sincerely,
Gerald E. Vinella Jr.

MTC-00010112

From: Mr. SJB
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Greetings!
I fully and unequivocally support the DOJ's attempt to settle the lawsuit against Bill Gate's Microsoft Corp. I am aware, like other Americans, that 9 states have chosen not to sign onto this plan, but I believe that, truly, "enough is enough" and its time to move on, and leave this sordid affair in the past, where it belongs.

High technology, as exemplified by companies like Microsoft, Oracle, Intel, & many, many others, cannot have its ideas, innovations, and such be stifled by "red tape", bureaucracy, lawsuits, and other wasteful government intrusions such as what was begun by the Clinton Administration. Please use this golden opportunity to end this charade once and for all, and while Microsoft does not escape unscathed, their punishment has already been delivered, and unfortunately, the national economy, the technology industry, and the consumer have all suffered along with them, both directly and indirectly.

Thank you for your time & attention to this note.

God Bless America
9.11.01

MTC-00010113

From: GARY PORTER
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 7:53pm

It is my hope that the court will accept the settlement agreed to by the DOJ and some of the states. It seems a fair and reasonable response to the anti-trust case.

MTC-00010114

From: Dale Langford
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 7:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dale Langford
2001 Christine
Pampa, TX 79065
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dale Langford

MTC-00010115

From: kingsland
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have used Microsoft Products for years and have been very satisfied in most cases. I use Netscape and do not feel that Microsoft has ruined Netscape. In fact, competition has probably made their (both) browsers more user friendly and reliable.

P.G. King, Electrical Engineer (Retired)

MTC-00010116

From: Steve Berryman
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 7:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Steve Berryman
101 Mohican Trail
Lake Kiowa, TX 76240
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Steve Berryman

MTC-00010117

From: JobeSims@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir,
I have followed the developments of the Microsoft settlement for the past couple of years, and I am still amazed that this corporation has been dragged through so much persecution.

I am a middle school teacher in Denver, Colorado and not a computer whiz, but I feel that Microsoft has done nothing but help me. Three years ago when I purchased my first computer, I purchased a Hewlett Packard that came with the Microsoft operating system and browser. If I had had to buy all these things separately I wouldn't have know what to buy and, too, it probably would have cost me more. I was very grateful that Mr. Gates had had the foresight to guide me in this process. Since that time I have become quite proficient with the computer. I'm on the Internet now(AOL), and I'm accomplishing great things. Not only am I buying and selling stocks on line just last week a light switch went out in my kitchen and I logged on to "Ask Jeeves" and found out how to replace it myself.

If you restrict Microsoft's ability to create and innovate then you restrict the genius of mankind. They have done good things for the consumer and good things for our country. If the Department of Justice had spent the time and money pursuing terrorism and Bin Laden, the tragedy in New York could have been averted. Instead you have been pursuing Bill Gates who has contributes a lot money to better the world and help people.

The majority of people unhappy about Microsoft are his competitors. They are distraught because they could not do what Microsoft has already done.

A Colorado Consumer,
Judy J. Simmons

MTC-00010118

From: lucy zarate
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:06pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:
For the last four years I have been following the debate over the freedom to innovate. During this time my only hope has been that this Microsoft case should be settled as soon as possible. This settlement will certainly help our economy, especially in these difficult times, and it will benefit us the consumers and the software industry.

Thank you in advance for helping expedite this case.

Lucy Z. Breton

MTC-00010119

From: SCOT WOODROOF
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:09pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I would like to take this opportunity to state emphatically about how I feel about the settlement with Microsoft. This was another case of blatant assault on private industry by a so called president, and Justice Department that only served to spend more tax payer money. I applaud the manner in which John Ashcroft and the current Justice Department handled this situation to restore the tech industry and the confidence of it's investors. The down turn in the Nasdaq, and specifically the tech industry can be traced to the beginnings of this ridiculous lawsuit. Please keep this settlement in place, or we can only look forward to more of the same in the capital markets. I would like to take this opportunity to also tell you what a wonderful job our real Justice Department is doing for this great United States!! Thank You!

Scot Woodroof

MTC-00010120

From: Rev. Samuel M. Smith
To: Microsoft ATR,acu—list@capwiz.mailmanager.net@inet...
Date: 1/10/02 8:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Although I am a staunch Constitutional Conservative, I STRENUOUSLY disagree with the ACU on this point. Please DO NOT settle with Microsoft. They have done everything they could to stomp anyone and everyone who stands in their way. I would like to see Bill Gates even imprisoned for his callous and unbending attitudes.

Rev. Samuel M. Smith
Travel Advisor
Affordable World Travel & Tours
Editor, Publisher Up Way Publications
Bible Instructor Followers of Jesus Christ Fellowship

MTC-00010121

From: dvraun@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:11pm
Subject: Government Waste

It's time to drop the suit against Microsoft , stop wasting taxpayer money, and let them get on with their legitimate business of making money. Sometimes it seems that we tend to punish success and reward failure.

David Raun,
Westerville, OH

MTC-00010122

From: Brent Lattin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To Whom It May Concern:

I want to voice my support for the Microsoft settlement. The issues involved grow older and less relevant by the hour and the shape of the competitive landscape and economic conditions as a whole make it imperative that this case end sooner rather than later.

Sincerely,
Brent Lattin

MTC-00010123

From: CCaweaver@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think this case should be settled. I have found it ridiculous in the first place. Had it not been for Microsoft most people would never have learned how to use a computer. They were innovative in getting a good program out there for the lay person. One that could be used by everyone. I have worked on DOS platforms, Windows and UNIX and know that Windows is the best. I know lots of senior citizens (I am 59) have gone online because of the ease through windows.

I have never had a problem using any Internet access I wanted through Windows. In fact I do not use Microsoft's Internet access I am on CompuServe. I find this whole legal action silly and a waste of taxpayers money and government time. We have more important things to worry about in the economy to not settle this case and get it done with.

I have been using Windows since 1988.
Yours,
Carolyn Weaver

MTC-00010124

From: zebidiah(a)attbi.com
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:22pm
Subject: Microsoft

Please end this foolishness. Microsoft is not the enemy.

Thank you,
Gary P. Beck

MTC-00010125

From: Howard H. Hatton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Drop all litigation against Micrtosoft. This company is doing a good job in the market and is much more valuable to the, economy, balance of payments, competition world wide and the people of the US than all their competetors combined. This litigation is only benefiting the trial lawyers and other special interest groups that stand to gain from this futhermore the judges in this case are not have the expertise to properly judge this. Remember that Microsoft is not only in competition with American companies but are in competition world wide.

Howard Hatton
hatton@mcsi.net

MTC-00010126

From: Tom Hemmer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:30pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Dave Wilson of The LA Times writes about Apple's pre-show hype and the associated let-down at the keynote, concluding "But the company has no real model for growth. Microsoft's monopoly power precludes any massive shift away from Windows, so how can Apple sell more boxes? The best thing Apple can do is to make computers that seamlessly integrate into a Windows network." See, even brain challenged reporters know about microsoft. And you want to give them, what amounts to a subsidy in education? I bet that between all of you, you would be hard pressed to come up with two gonads.

MTC-00010127

From: Martin C. Ritter
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please do not let Microsoft off the hook. A slap on the wrist will only embolden them. Competition as we have traditionally known it in America has already been dealt a body blow by this company which has turned lying, cheating, and stealing into "business as usual."

MTC-00010128

From: Vicki Corona
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:38pm
Subject: Microsoft suit

Dear Attorney Ashcroft: First, thank you for being the wonderful AG you are! We're so thrilled you were confirmed! We love the entire Bush administration. I think most citizens knew that God couldn't possibly allow any more slime in the White House. Second, I just received an email concerning the Microsoft "trials" and would like to add my voice to the others. Without Microsoft, I don't think any of us "ordinary folk" would EVER have been able to learn how to manipulate a computer. If anything, Bill Gates should be thanked, not sued. Jealousy always raises it's ugly, evil head when any entrepreneur is successful. He created something fabulous, useful, and easy for the masses . . . Gates should be rewarded, not penalized! Let's stop wasting taxpayer money and leave him alone to create something else we can all enjoy. Thank you and God bless you richly.

Vicki Corona

MTC-00010129

From: John Sturrock
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:38pm
Subject: Microsoft

I am a washington state resident. antitrust action against microsoft should cease because it is the only comany that can compete with time warner-aol which was allowed to go thru.

John Sturrock
2308 E 9th st

Vancouver, WA 98661

MTC-00010130

From: OSCAR WENTZEL
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Mr. Ashcroft,

I simply can't understand why the government continues to spend thousands of dollars to get Bill Gates. This country is supposed to be free enterprise. You work extra hard building a company, make a lot of money and then you are penalized for being greedy. Let the other software companies work as hard as Bill Gates has and they will do just fine. Just because he has instituted smart business practices, he shouldn't be penalized. If these other companies had a better product, they would be in the driver's seats.

Tough luck if they aren't as smart as Gates. Stop wasting our money. Thank you.
Mrs. Kathy Wentzel age 67
Bedford, Tx.

MTC-00010131

From: Scott Rarden
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Comments

I would like to respectfully give my comments on the settlement process in the Microsoft monopoly decision.

Microsoft is trying to turn this decision from something that is a punishment into something that is a gift. With as large as the cash reserves of this company are, especially in these troubled economic times, it would have no problem paying the complete fine in cash. Instead it has offered to provide free software to the educational system.

This accomplishes three things for Microsoft. The first is that it, even if the product was only valued at cost rather than full retail, allows the company to avoid the full cost of the settlement. Given the choice between parting with cash or offering to provide copies of something they have already produced—they would have to be insane to pick the cash. The second thing is that it allows them to grasp more of the education desktop market...the only remaining desktop market that they do not have monopoly power in. This settlement would 'punish' their abuse of monopoly power by giving them the opportunity to increase their monopoly. The third thing is that it allows them to look noble for offering to 'help' the poorer schools in the nation—when it obviously is a cynical attempt to avoid taking responsibility for breaking the law while at the same time expanding the very power that led them to break the law in the first place.

I plead with you to not approve the settlement plan that Microsoft has offered. It would be against reason and justice, and would only encourage them to maintain the same practices that they have been found guilty of.

Thank you for your time, and the IT community awaits your decision for good or ill.

MTC-00010132

From: Congdon, Brad

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/10/02 8:52pm
Subject: Please accept the proposed settle in the Microsoft case
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Antitrust Division,
Please accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft.

I am a US citizen living in Washington State, and I work in the high-tech industry (not at Microsoft). The opportunity to settle this case with Microsoft is an opportunity to respect the rule of law, to restore citizen's confidence in their justice system, and to begin the process of allowing the high-tech sector of the US economy to recover and prosper once again. In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal that the rule of law prevails, not the rule of special interests; that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the rule of law that protects them. For business to thrive in America, it must know that our government uses its power to enforce the law, not to randomly punish successful companies.

This settlement serves the best interests of American business and the American public. It fairly resolves a burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond Microsoft, a case that is acting as a drag on an entire sector of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to innovate and create, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit the entire economy.

Thank you for your consideration.
Brad Congdon
8242 61st Ave NE
Olympia, WA 98516

MTC-00010133

From: Bruce Truax
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hon. Renata B. Hesse,

I am very disappointed in the Federal Government's remedy for the Microsoft Antitrust suit. Although I am a conservative and I normally do not like to see the government interfering in private business, this is one case where I think intervention is justified and necessary. I am a long time Apple Macintosh user and as the world slowly migrates to almost 100% Microsoft I find that I have less choice with regards to software and hardware options for my computer. Much of the problem is related to the method which Microsoft has used to increase the integration of their software. I must admit that this increased integration has improved the ease of use and functionality of the personal computer for users of Windows but the method by which this is done slowly but steadily forces competitors out of the market. From my vantage point it appears that when Microsoft wants to add functionality to their operating system they tend to chose a proprietary solution rather than an already existing standard. This has happened numerous times with Java as a prime example. As these functions become proprietary, users of other operating systems suffer. For example, there are now numerous web sites which cannot be viewed by users of Linux or Macintosh computers because the site designer has chosen a Microsoft Proprietary technology for certain web site functions. As it becomes more difficult for other operating systems to obtain access to internet content, hardware and software, even the last few holdouts will be forced to migrate to Microsoft windows until they have 100% of the market.

An additional problem is related to the security of our internet infrastructure. As the operating systems on the internet become more homogenous, the opportunity for a well written, malicious virus to seriously affect the infrastructure of the internet is increasing. A more diverse population of computers and operating systems on the internet would make it less vulnerable to malicious attack.

Although I do not know what the proper remedy is for this problem, it is obvious to me that the Federal settlement is not sufficient.

Sincerely,
Bruce E. Truax
Optical Engineering Consultant
Diffraction Limited Design LLC
388 Wedgewood Road
Southington, CT 06489
<http://www.dld-llc.com> email: btruax@dld-llc.com
voice: 860-276-0450
fax: 860-620-9026

MTC-00010134

From: Bonnie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 8:55pm
Subject: Justice?

Stop persecuting success! We need many, many more people like Bill Gates. Please stop taking away the incentive for people to work hard and succeed. The government's interfering with Microsoft has not helped the people, Microsoft or the government. Microsoft has been doing a fantastic job for its customers. Stop trying to "fix it" when in fact you are really trying to break it.

Sincerely,
Bonnie J. Brown
1503 Reaves St.
West Plains, MO 65775

MTC-00010135

From: Ingrid Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:15pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

To Judge Colleen Kollar Kotelly:
I am writing to ask you to overturn the Proposed Final Judgment which, I believe is the term for the current settlement in the Microsoft case. Though not a lawyer or a computer expert, it seems to me that the anti-trust laws of our country have been violated, and yet no significant penalty has been given nor future deterrent set in place. As a home-schooling mother, I have studied along with the children, the emergence of the anti-trust laws in our nation, and see them as important safeguards of the freedom of enterprise and opportunity that we are blessed with as Americans. At this point in history, the smaller software and computer companies need the protection of these already established laws. I am hoping you will overturn the settlement and break up the Microsoft monopoly.

Thank you for your time and attention.
Ingrid A. Hill
Brighton, MA
CC:stopmicrosoft@yahoo.com@inetgw

MTC-00010136

From: Price Rose
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please get this suit settled without further delay and litigation, if possible! From the beginning I have been against the government's suit against Microsoft. It is a sad commentary that a successful business in this country has to defend itself against our own government, in addition to meeting the competition. It is also insane! There are plenty of greedy lawyers out here to file suit to "protect us consumers", if there is any reason— check the number of rich lawyers resulting from "Class Action Law Suits" that got the "consumers" little or nothing, and quite often put a company out of business.

The Justice Department suit has hurt me, a consumer, not helped me. The suit has hurt me, an investor, not helped me! The suit has hurt me, a taxpayer, not helped me! And, the suit has hurt me, a voter, not helped me. The suit has hurt employees, not just of Microsoft, but many other companies as well. The suit had the unexpected result that it hurt the competitors who were pushing for the government to sue. (I wouldn't feel bad about that, except it also hurt our entire economy!).

I am really mad that we consumers/investors/taxpayers/voters/employees/competitors, who have been hurt, also have to pay the bill for all this litigation. As usual, it is only the lawyers/law firms (and maybe some politicians) that benefit.

Those who thought this suit was a good idea to start with, and those that want to continue the ligation probably think they are very smart. I think they prove themselves either greedy, or ignorant— maybe both!

By all means, SETTLE!

Price Rose
Route 2, Box 1758,
Eastland, TX 76448
(254) 647-1473
pdrose@eastland.net
CC:acu—list@capwiz.mailmanager.
net@inetgw,ADF,david—k...

MTC-00010137

From: Rosanne Cox
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am writing to tell you that I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. It has gone on way too long, isn't legitimate anyway, and is diverting Federal funds and wasting time as well as harming the technology market and consumers as well.

Sincerely,
Rosanne Partee
California

MTC-00010138

From: jerome kavaney
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:38pm
Subject: The Micro-Soft litigation.
Nuf Already;

I support the President and Micro Softs desire to end this Lawsuit As a conservative taxpayer I want it ended.

Jerome Kavaney

MTC-00010139

From: Thomas Weir
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:41pm
Subject: tunney act

Please support the Tunney Act. Nobody but the last administration wanted to sue Microsoft, the average person could care less. Out economy started going down hill when Microsoft was sued.!!

Thomas Weir
weirsaved@earthlink.net

MTC-00010140

From: Barbara Smith
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:40pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Enough is enough! I support the Bush administration & Microsoft in finally settling the ridiculous claims that have been put upon Bill Gates. What a waste of taxpayers money, to go after a law abiding, charity giving, altruistic, all American success story, who has EARNED every dollar he has made & given away.

Since when do we live in a country where entrepreneurship is punished?

Let's call the competitors "cry babies" & move on to the Federal Courts spending their time & money on someone or something that is truly harmful (rather than helpful) to this country!

MTC-00010141

From: Sara Scheele
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is to state that I wholeheartedly support the Bush Administration' efforts, along with Microsoft's efforts, to go ahead and settle this long-stretched out, expensive court case. Let's stop spending anymore of the taxpayers' (my) money, and settle this! The very people that are supposed to be protected by this case are now the ones being hurt due to the falling markets and bad press re. Microsoft. Thanks.

Sara Scheele

MTC-00010142

From: gary miller
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Dear Dept of Justice:

Even though I am a Microsoft shareholder, I would like to express my alarm at the weakness of the proposed antitrust settlement the Dept of Justice has reached with Microsoft. The proposed settlement does nothing to prevent further monopolistic practices by Microsoft, has a glaring gap that will allow Microsoft to deny access to Windows APIs to open source software developers (e.g., Linux), and does nothing to curb monopolistic expansion into newer technologies by Microsoft, just as it did in the browser marketplace.

Microsoft's continued march to subsume new technologies (instant messaging, media players, e-commerce, etc) into Windows XP, its retention of the right to revert all OEM alternative desktop settings to Microsoft's own 14 days after purchase, and its continued refusal to admit any past misbehavior whatsoever all demonstrate that much stronger remedies are needed, and sooner rather than later.

I am particularly concerned over the provision in the federal government's settlement agreement that requires Microsoft to divulge Windows APIs only to competitors that Microsoft determines have a "valid business plan". Whether intended or not, one effect of this provision is to handicap the "open source" movement in ever inventing a rival technology that could work well enough with Windows to threaten Microsoft's own monopoly. Open source has hatched such technologies as the Linux OS and the latest incarnations of Netscape. Yet in their earliest stages, open source technologies rarely have a profitable business plan, so the settlement would not require Microsoft to share the APIs that would tell them how to make their applications run to best advantage on a Windows machine. Small wonder future Netscapes will appear clumsier than Explorer. Without API disclosure, Microsoft's technologies, whether inferior or not, come out of the gate with a prejudicial ability to integrate more smoothly with the Windows OS, and users will be discouraged from even trying alternative technologies. This element in the federal settlement nips any open source future rival in the bud.

At the very minimum, a settlement should require that:

(1) Microsoft sell an "unbundled" or bare-bones version of Windows, without bundled applications not essential to the operation of the computer, as requested by the nine states' attorneys general in their ongoing settlement hearing;

(2) Microsoft reveal ALL Windows API so that competing developers can interact with the operation system efficiently, so that third parties could write an analog to, for example, the Passport technology that could work as well with Windows as Microsoft's version;

(3) Internet Explorer source code should be made public;

(4) Barring (3), Internet Explorer should conform to public standards in HTML, XML, Java, etc. Currently Microsoft has attempted to effectively proprietize public standards by incorporating its own nonstandard extension of them into the Windows OS and Internet Explorer, in effect mandating use of Internet Explorer to, e.g., decipher Microsoft nonstandard Java pages on the Web. If Microsoft wishes to add its own extensions to public standards, it should do so as a browser plug-in only, and its extensions should also be provided as a plug-in for Netscape and other browsers as well, or else published.

Even though I personally own Microsoft stock, I personally find Microsoft's past behavior so egregious—and so much unchanged even after the upheld findings of monopoly practices—that I am ashamed. I hope you will join the other state attorneys general in pursuing substantial damages, and, especially, injunctions NOW against any future such behavior by Microsoft. Surely without suitable injunctions, while the settlement process drags on, Microsoft will only further entrench its current monopoly.

I only regret that Microsoft carries such influence in my own state (Washington) that my own attorney general has not joined the other states' case.

Sincerely,
Gary Miller
1707 W 9th Ave
Spokane WA 99204

P.S. I would normally write a "real" letter in hopes of carrying more weight, but understand that public safety concerns make email more reliable.

"The greatest obstacle to communication is the presumption it has already occurred."

MTC-00010143

From: Bernard R. Blais MD
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:42pm
Subject: microsoft Settlement

I strongly recommend that the settlement be accepted. To much time and money has been spent in this legal battle which was not in the best interest of the public.

Dr Bernard R Blais

MTC-00010144

From: Jason Rainbows
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Renata B. Hess,

Please reconsider the Microsoft settlement. I believe that the current settlement is actually IN FAVOR of Microsoft, and will encourage that company to continue their monopolistic practices by handing them yet another market niche held by their competitors and it will irreversibly affect the education industry and other computer software developers.

It will cost Microsoft a small percent of the settlement figure to supply their second-rate products to schools. And then, in six months the schools will have to PAY for the upgrades from Microsoft, and again every time a new upgrade is developed. It's money in the bank for them, to coin a phrase.

This will place a huge monetary burden on our already destitute education industry. Not to mention the millions that schools will have to pay for support and repairs—a staple of all Microsoft programs. And it will essentially take away a market niche just barely held onto by their competitors due to Microsoft's brutal competitive habits.

Microsoft develops poorly written programs that are easy for ANY 12 year old computer user to hack into, and cause trouble in the form of Virus, Worms, Trojan Horses, etc. The Windows program is the most bug filled, virus infected program ever written. Costs to avoid or fix these problems will cost schools millions, and force our children to use software that simply doesn't do what it is made for, even in its most ideal configurations. The only ones to benefit from this is Microsoft. This trial has been used by Microsoft's lawyers to further its monopolistic positions. I don't know how they managed to turn this into their reward, but it seems that they've done it. If this settlement is allowed to happen in its current form, there will be no stopping Microsoft's monopoly and it will actually encourage their ominous business practices in the future.

Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter.

Jason Rainbows
jasonrainbows@mind spring.com http://www.mind spring.com/
jasonrainbows
"littera scripta manet—non omnis moriar"

MTC-00010145

From: karsten koepcke
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This was a complete sell out. How could let them get away with their blatantly illegal behavior. Any you wonder why the people are cynical

Karsten Koepcke

MTC-00010146

From: trish murray
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 9:55pm
Subject: Dear Judge,

Dear Judge,

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft to settle this case as soon as possible; it is in public's best interest as we will be far better served by settlement than ongoing litigation at a much higher cost. The consumer is always the one who suffers and in this case it is a double whammy; we must pay through taxes for the governments work then we pay more for the product because the company passes the cost on to the consumer by raising their prices to cover the litigation and it discourages other business ventures because they don't want the risk, maybe that's a triple whammy. Please settle it. Thank you.

Tricia Murray

MTC-00010147

From: Carole Staebler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

Howard & Carole Staebler 915 Park Rim Cir.
Anaheim, CA 92807

MTC-00010148

From: Frances Ellison
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:24pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Dear Sir:

I support President Bush and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

Sincerely,
Fran Ellison
178 Palisades Dr
Four Seasons, Mo 65049

MTC-00010149

From: Craig Riley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:28pm
Subject: Accept Ruling

As a Washington State citizen and as a small business owner I request that you accept the ruling on the Microsoft case. This case has done irreparable harm to our economy both here in Washington and nation wide. The anti trust attack upon this innovative industry and against this innovative company is inappropriate. The target is moving so fast in the technology sector that old views and perspectives regarding antitrust do not apply.

Please accept this ruling compromise so that we as a state and a nation can get back to business.

Thank you,
Craig Riley

MTC-00010150

From: Leonard (038) Agnes Tillerson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

This is to inform you that we are in total agreement with the settlement reached regarding the Microsoft litigation. In our opinion, this litigation should have never occurred! Our economy has suffered as a result of this litigation and our technology market has been negatively impacted. In addition to the latter, we, the taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution diverting funds from investigating truly harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies. We ask and plead that the Federal District Court determine that the proposed settlement is in our, the public's, best interest. We applaud and support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

We respectfully request that you consider our remarks when making a final decision on this lawsuit.

Sincerely,
Agnes and Leonard Tillerson
244 Osprey Circle
St. Marys, Ga. 31558

MTC-00010151

From: John Olthoff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 10:33pm
Subject: Microsoft

I feel that I should have some voice. I think that the settlement with Microsoft is useless and needs to be much stricter. In some ways, as it is, it actually benefits the company.

The company itself should be broken up and have restrictions placed on its monopoly. They inhibit progress and competition in technology.

MTC-00010152

From: Anne Ball
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/10/02 10:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement
 To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. Please get the foot of government off the neck of private business so they can focus on moving this economy forward.

Thank you,
 Anne Ball

MTC-00010153

From: BISHOPS558@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 10:38pm
 Subject: Bill Gates

I don't fully understand why the antitrust suit was served to begin with. I've worked with computers for 20 years. Bill Gates is just a genius. Just because he and his company can create the BEST systems and software in the world, does not mean he has to be punished. I agree that it would help competition for software if the Windows Operating System was not limited to what can run on it. Also, I agree that he should not have "forced" those outside entities to only do business with Microsoft products. However, I have seen what running different software packages on a Windows OS can do to the system. It can limit functionability of the entire system and can cause system errors and shutdowns. I believe some changes need to be made in the market, but putting all the blame on Bill Gates for being the genius he is is not the answer.

Thank you,
 Sheryl Bishop
 Louisiana

MTC-00010154

From: Jan Marler
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 10:52pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 January 5, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I want to take a moment to express my support for the settlement reached in November between Microsoft and the Justice Department. I believe this settlement is in the public interest and will allow everyone to move forward. In my opinion, this case should have never been started in the first place. But since that is water under the bridge, this settlement is the best result that can occur at this time. It requires significant changes and concessions from Microsoft, including changes in how the company designs future versions of its Windows operating system. And an oversight committee will be formed to assure compliance. Microsoft has been a good company for personal consumers like myself who have used their products for years. After this entire affair is finally completed, Microsoft will be able to focus all their resources to producing the products that consumers and businesses have come to expect for years. Thank you for this opportunity to give my opinion and I hope that no further action will be taken at the federal level on this matter.

Sincerely,
 Jan Nolte Marler
 jmarler@cfi.net
 2806 Hogan Lane
 Crestview, Florida 32539
 cc: Representative Joe Scarborough

MTC-00010155

From: John Malin
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 10:45pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

It's time to stop penalizing commercial success. The government has ostensibly pursued this case on behalf of consumers; however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy.

Furthermore, America's taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution, diverting government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies. The proposed settlement encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public. Some of the State Attorneys General want to continue this litigation: Don't let them! Let the case be settled as proposed and accepted by 9 of the 18 State Attorneys General. I chose to only use some of the Microsoft products available plus products by other manufacturers and did it all without a court hearing or judgement. I'm sure there are more pressing things to be handled by the court system, especially since we have so many vacancies on the Federal Benches.

Sincerely,
 John Malin
 2242 Arabian Ln
 York, SC 29745
 803-684-9909
 bootskofcagent@earthlink.net

MTC-00010156

From: Frank J. Martin
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 10:59pm

Accept this settlement and let this great corporation get back to what they do best.

Frank Martin
 Allentown, PA

MTC-00010157

From: George von Wurmb
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:02pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I like to state that I support the proposed settlement. It is time to settle this and move on.

George von Wurmb,
 Tampa

MTC-00010158

From: TUPAI35@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:02pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement.

All companys should have the FREEDOM TO INNOVATE. And that includes Microsoft. I really appreciate innovation regardless of who has the intelligence or the ability to do it.

Karen E. Small.
 tupai35@aol.com

MTC-00010159

From: Bob McDermott
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:09pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

Please get the government off Microsoft's back, & go catch the terrorists instead

MTC-00010160

From: Jacob J Barkman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:10pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Greetings from Elkhart, Kansas. We are much in Prayer for you DAILY, that you will continually know how to deal with the multitude of decisions that continually come before you.

Regarding the Microsoft Settlement issue, I support the current proposed settlement of the consumer product choice that promotes product innovation.

May you and your staff have the Wisdom, Discernment, and Insight to make the best, ultimate decision.

Sincerely,
 Jacob J. Barkman
 P. O. Box 193
 Elkhart, Kansas 67950

MTC-00010161

From: Bruce Molay
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/10/02 11:21pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To: Judge for Microsoft Case
 From: Bruce Molay, US Citizen

Re: Regarding Microsoft Settlement/Case
 My Background: I am writing as a user of computer systems, a professional programmer, and an instructor in computer science. I began writing computer programs in 1968, I began writing programs professionally in 1983, and have been teaching computer science since 1976. I have seen the changes in computer technology and in the computer industry for three decades. I have also experienced firsthand Microsoft's deceptive business practices.

Regarding a Settlement: Microsoft walked all over the intention of the earlier consent decree, Microsoft has stomped on competitors and stabbed 'partners' in the back. Evidence at the trial showed many times a blatant disregard for truth. The doctored video tape had to be a form of perjury. Given the company's history, there is reason to believe Microsoft would ever follow the terms of another agreement.

In fact, as professional coders, they would take as a challenge the project of figuring out a clever way to work within the letter of the agreement while utterly violating the spirit of the agreement. Clever programmers take binary codes designed to do one thing and play with the rules to get computers to do something else. Legal agreements are just another game for Bill Gates to hack.

Finally, a settlement saves the company from having to accept or admit guilt. A settlement ignores the fact that a federal judge and the appeals court were unanimous, in detailed, unambiguous, direct rulings, about the clear violations of anti-trust law. A settlement allows Microsoft to pretend it was all a misunderstanding, something that can be settled amicably between parties trying to compromise.

Convicted Criminals Deserve Punishment: Microsoft has demonstrably damaged competition and free enterprise. Microsoft has benefitted enormously from lack of competition. In short, they killed the competition and stole money from consumers. Even if they promise never to kill competition and never to steal again, they ought not to keep of their ill-gotten gains.

I am not a lawyer, but it seems to me that if a bank robber is convicted of a robbery, and then promises to stop robbing banks, and gets no jail time, we at least expect him to give the money back. Or maybe pay out as a fine.

Convicted Criminals and Weapons: I think we require background checks when people try to buy guns. People convicted of using guns to hurt people and property should not be trusted to carry them around, or at least deserve some real supervision.

Microsoft used their desktop monopoly and their proprietary file formats and APIs to prevent and destroy competition in many areas. As we speak, they are adding APIs and changing file formats and using the desktop monopoly to attack Real Networks, Kodak, and even universal email protocols that make the Internet so useful to millions. Microsoft still possesses these weapons and is still using them.

Take away their weapons. Force MS to publish all file formats and windows APIs. They do not have to publish their source code; most of us in the industry do not want to look at Microsoft's 'crown jewels', there is too large a risk of intellectual property lawsuits. Impose hefty fines and the threat of a break up if they violate the rules. Arrange to pay bounties to people who find undocumented or incorrectly formats and APIs. Pay those bounties, upon review by a truly independent board, directly from MS to that coder. Doing so will make MS think twice about the cost of each violation. Doing so will create a staff of highly skilled inspectors, something the federal government can ill afford to fund in these economic times. Offering rewards for information about a crime is has a long tradition in our legal system.

Summary: No Settlement They have broken laws, hurt people, businesses, and stayed the invisible hand of the market. Fine them, don't trust them, and please take away their guns.

MTC-00010162

From: Frank Martin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:06pm
Subject: Settlement with Microsoft

I think the agreement that the Department of Justice, several states, and Microsoft is in the public interest and that the matter should be settled.

Frank Martin

P.O. Box 8586
Horseshoe Bay, TX 78657
830-598-6823

MTC-00010163

From: rlm357@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:26pm
Subject: OBJECTION TO THE PERSECUTION OF BILL GATES DROP THE PERSECUTION NOW.

MTC-00010164

From: Shawn Jarrett
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe key aspects of the government's case are wrong.

In my opinion Microsoft does not hold an "illegal" monopoly over desktop operating systems. That ignores the resurgent of Apple Macintosh and the emergence of powerful Unix-based competitors, like Linux. Consumers can purchase any operating system they want, but they choose Microsoft because it is a better product.

There is no evidence of consumer harm and none was provide in the trial and Microsoft, according to the law, is not a Monopoly. Instead we, the consumer, had a judge that made up laws as he pleased.

After reading into the definition of a Monopoly, this is my understanding what it is: A monopoly is a firm that's restricts output in order to raise profits and prices, which harm consumers. Microsoft stands accused of doing the exact opposite; it lowers its price to zero and tries to expand its market.

The more one knows about this industry, the more one will realize it was the disgruntled competitors bringing the charge that Microsoft is a monopoly.

All this, is a legal sideshow. Sun, IBM, AOL, and Oracle are touting it as the central issue, but they don't give a damn about the consumers. With Windows 2000/XP Microsoft is invading their turf on the corporate side with better products at lower prices. They want the government to make the software design decisions for Microsoft, knowing that will stop Microsoft from innovating. This will be bad for consumers, the economy and the national security if we fall behind in computer technology due to government meddling.

There is no possible way any action against Microsoft by the Justice Department and more importantly the unsettled states will help consumers. The competition and innovation in the computer and software industries are the most intense in the history of the world.

Overall, the message being sent by the trial is "If you are a dominant producer in your market, be careful how aggressively you compete. Be mindful that your rivals can haul you into court if your product is better than theirs".

To be perfectly clear, the DOJ and the Attorney Generals of the suing states do not represent my interest and the interest of millions of consumers who have and will continue to benefit from Microsoft products.

Sincerely from a concerned consumer,

T. Shawn Jarrett
704-393-9828
cltsjarrett@carolina.rr.com

MTC-00010165

From: Mino
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:40pm
Subject: Law Suits Against Microsoft:
Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

The Department of Justice, Microsoft and nine of eighteen states have reached an agreement that will stop wasting taxpayers' money on the decade-long competitor-driven persecution of Microsoft. The government has ostensibly pursued this case on behalf of consumers; however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy.

Furthermore, America's taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution, diverting government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies.

The proposed settlement encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public.

Some of the State Attorneys General want to continue this litigation:

Don't let them!

The Federal District Court must determine that the proposed settlement is in the public's interest. Let the Court know that you support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

Thank You for taking the time to read my email to you. May God Almighty Bless You with Wisdom and Discernment in all that you deal with as

Attorney General.
Sincerely Yours,
Ronald Shimono
Issaquah, WA 98027

MTC-00010166

From: Lucille Patrick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit now.

Thank You
(Mrs.) Lucille C. Patrick

MTC-00010167

From: Eric Knirk
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:55pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

leave microsoft alone. go after eron, or better yet loral aerospace for transferring protected technology to china.

MTC-00010168

From: Eric Knirk
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 11:57pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

leave microsoft alone. go after ERON or better yet LORAL for transferring technology to CHINA.

MTC-00010169

From: Carol Radford
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/10/02 10:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Carol Radford
PO Box 471
Blomington, CA 92316
January 10, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Carol Radford

MTC-00010170

From: Ron C Gunn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:01am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My little company has been harmed by Microsoft, but I can only imagine one entity that can make a worse mess of the delicate job of providing software necessary for our best chance of technological and social progress, and that is any of the arms of the U.S. Federal Government.

Microsoft is by far the least harmful entity in this fight over Governmental or Business control of this sensitive area, and attempts to make this situation better through governmental control, because of its dynamic nature, is doomed to be the most dismal failure.

Ron Gunn;
Ron Gunn Enterprises;
358 Albatross Ave;
Livermore CA 94550

MTC-00010171

From: Dave C. Hill
To: Microsoft
ATR.antitrust@usdoj.gov,senator—leahy@le...

Date: 1/11/02 12:05am
Subject: Isn't this "Extra Special" ????

How much more are you going to allow/ "Look-The-Other-Way" before you deal with Microsoft like Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson correctly wanted to and order to split up of Microsoft ?? This company continues to make a mockery of the Justice system and anti-trust laws of this country!

Every time they get a chance, they're taking unfair advantage or "Muscling" some company or the Justice Department itself !!!

Prosecute these clowns and quit screwing around with them !!!

Microsoft failed to disclose meetings with lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) ? Microsoft communicated with members of Congress and their aides about its antitrust case and did not disclose the contacts to the trial judge who requested information about the company's lobbying in the case. Microsoft said this week it decided to disclose only contacts with executive branch officials in the required court filings, following the example of AT&T when it settled its landmark antitrust case in the 1980s.

The company reported to the court that its lone contacts with federal employees included Justice lawyers and two federal mediators hired to help assist settlement talks.

Legal experts, however, questioned whether the omission of congressional contacts violated federal law.

"If you specifically talk about the proposed settlement, that would seem to fall under the requirements of the plain language of the statute," said lawyer Dana Hayter with the firm of Howard Rice in San Francisco.

Both Microsoft and a congressional aide who witnessed the contacts acknowledge Microsoft officials briefed aides of the Senate Judiciary Committee on terms of the settlement just before a December congressional hearing on the case.

The Tunney Act requires defendants in antitrust cases such as Microsoft's to disclose "any and all written or oral communications" with "any officer or employee of the United States" related to the settlement.

In other cases not involving antitrust, judges have ruled that a legislator or congressional staff member counts as a U.S. employee.

Before the law named after him was passed, former Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., said its requirements "apply equally to contact with any branch of government, including the Congress."

In its twice-a-year reports to Congress on lobbying activities, Microsoft reported spending $300,000 on lobbying in the first half of 2001 related to the antitrust case.

Several aides of lawmakers acknowledged discussing the settlement negotiations with Microsoft representatives.

An aide to Rep. Jennifer Dunn, R-Wash., talked with Microsoft officials in September, as settlement discussions renewed.

During the same month, Dunn organized over a hundred lawmakers to sign a letter to the Justice Department and Microsoft Chief Executive Officer Steve Ballmer urging a settlement.

The lawmaker's staff called company executives for advice about appearing on a television show focusing on the case. "We just had to call Microsoft so we could understand better what the issue was," spokeswoman Jen Burita said.

Also in September, after federal prosecutors decided to abandon their effort to break Microsoft into two companies, Dunn talked to Attorney General John Ashcroft and urged an "expedient resolution that will benefit consumers."

Microsoft lobbyist Jack Quinn last year wrote to Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., seeking to persuade him to scuttle the December hearing because the company was concerned that they would "promote the biases" of Microsoft competitors.

Legal experts said congressional contacts about the settlement should have been mentioned in Microsoft's disclosure and that Microsoft could risk its credibility by interpreting the law too narrowly.

"Once a side loses credibility, then you start to question everything they say," said Bob Lande, a law professor at the University of Baltimore.

Lande said the trial judge could force Microsoft to resubmit its disclosure if she doesn't believe it is complete.

Other experts said the law was designed to widely include contacts so the public could best decide whether companies tried to improperly exert influence to win an antitrust settlement.

"The reason to have the broad language is making sure the disclosure errs on the side of inclusiveness," said Andy Gavil, an antitrust expert at Howard University. "It's for the court and the public to decide whether there was improper influence, and not for Microsoft."

In its disclosure to the court, Microsoft acknowledged speaking only with U.S. government lawyers, lawyers for the states suing the company, and two court-appointed mediators.

Microsoft spokesman Vivek Varma said the company's disclosure was modeled on AT&T's antitrust suit that resulted in a 1984 breakup of the telephone giant.

"That filing was limited to communications with the executive branch," Varma said.

The Justice Department and 18 states sued Microsoft four years ago, alleging it violated antitrust laws and illegally thwarted competition.

The original trial judge ruled Microsoft did, in fact, operate as an illegal monopoly and should be broken into two companies as punishment.

Microsoft appealed.

A federal appeals court upheld most of the findings but reversed the breakup and ordered that a new judge impose a new penalty.

Microsoft late last year reached a settlement with the Justice Department and nine of the states. Nine other states are proceeding with the case and plan to go to trial on the penalty issue.

"Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty.”

...John Fitzgerald Kennedy—1/20/61
Dave Hill <dchill1@qwest.net> :-)

MTC-00010172

From: METALIZE@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:09am
Subject: microsoft

To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call “product tying” to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson’s original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft’s anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for “tying” would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court “drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft’s liability.”

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft’s behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,
Mahlon and Doreen Wixson
PO Box 3098
Silverdale, WA 98383

MTC-00010173

From: Schmidt, Jeff
To: ‘microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov’
Date: 1/11/02 12:10am
Subject: Sentencing of Microsoft

To Whom It May Concern,

I would like to make a few comments regarding the possible sentence being brought about against Microsoft. This possible sentence is letting Microsoft off with barely a slap on the wrist. In doing so, you are sending a signal to Microsoft that monopolies are fine as long as you’re big enough. This is enabling them to keep their strangle-hold on the computer users of the world and stifling the competition in the computer operating system market. This lack of competition has yielded low quality, over priced products on the part of Microsoft. Their Windows operating system has deteriorated over the years to being a poorly “slapped together” product.

The number of security leaks has increased dramatically. This is making the lives of people more vulnerable to criminals. How are we to feel safe shopping online. What about our personal information, and the safety of our families. I don’t know who may be seeing my personal information. I don’t know who may be talking to my family members. All of this is because of Microsoft’s “get it out there, and we’ll fix the problems when they arise” attitude. And where does this attitude come from? From the fact that they know that they don’t have to worry about the competition of other operating systems. I realize that Linux has grasped a decent, although still less respectable, peice of the server market, but that still doesn’t cover the home user and their information. If Microsoft is let off with a light sentence, they will continue to release poorly put together, unsecure operating systems. And because of their current market share, they are able to drag the public down any road, safe or unsafe, they want. Please, do not let Microsoft continue to be incontrol of the lives of computer users. They seem to have proven they are not trust worthy to make a quality, secure product. Thank you.

Jeff Schmidt

Former Windows user, recently switched to Linux.

MTC-00010174

From: Vincent Adeszko
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:16am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It’s time to stop wasting taxpayer money and inhibiting successful entrepreneurs. If it wasn’t for Microsoft, I and thousands of others would still be frightened of computers. When will the government and the courts recognize the huge benefits to worker productivity and consumer satisfaction that Microsoft has given to the world and to its stockholders. It has been one of the best, if not the best, innovator in technology. Settle these ridiculous lawsuits and allow business to continue to expand worker opportunities in this country and all over the world.

Vincent Adeszko
144 Canyon Rlm Drive
Folsom, CA 95630

MTC-00010175

From: Jim Kneuper
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:41am
Subject: Concerned Linux user

Hello! I’m writing to you because I believe the proposed settlement is a slap on the wrist for Microsoft and a kick in the face to everyone else. Even now, they are still doing the things there were dragged into court for. Notice MSN Messenger in Windows XP? Or the Passport buggings?

I use Linux as my primary operating system. I actually do have a small (3 gigs of a 60 gig hard drive) Windows partition for the game EverQuest, which refuses to support Linux. That’s the only problem... no companies have any compelling reason to support any operating system other than Windows. Untill support comes around, nobody is going to move to Linux or any other operating system.

Microsoft is doing everything it can to stop that. Take for instance the lack of Java support in Windows XP. They want web pages to use their own language, “ActiveX”, because they are the only ones who are able to write support for it. No browser can interperate ActiveX other than Internet Explorer. And Internet Explorer only happens on Windows (and maybe Mac, not sure). If web pages want to work with Windows XP, they have no choice but to break compatibility with other OSs.

Microsoft has contened to show that it cannot be trusted, again and again. It gives this great nation a bad name, and that is the truly sad part. Please, do not let the war on Terrorism be Microsoft’s “get out of jail free” card... because, arguably, the war on Terrorism should include Microsoft.

Thank you for your time
Jim Kneuper

MTC-00010176

From: Charlie
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:20am
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

It is time to settle this thing once and for all. I think the taxpayer has spent enough on this somewhat frivolous lawsuit. Everyone has been kept in suspense long enough, and it is not good for the country at this point in time.

Sincerely,
 Charles W. Powers
 Cape Girardeau, Mo 63703
 charlee@ldd.net.

MTC-00010177

From: Dave Winchell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:42am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
 I believe Microsoft has been persecuted enough by the anti-trust prosecution of recent years. The settlement agreement reached by Microsoft, the U.S. Department of Justice, and 9 of the 18 states participating on the suit seems to be in the public interest, and should be approved by the court. The prosecution of Microsoft was driven by competitors envious of Microsoft's commercial success, and by overzealous U.S. attorneys. It has been a waste of taxpayers' money and has diverted DOJ resources away from other important issues. The case should be closed to stop the waste of public and commercial money and resources. The nine participating states that have not yet agreed to the settlement should not be allowed to impede the settlement and thus perpetuate the wasteful activity to the detriment of Microsoft's continuing commercial achievements and the public good. Please pass my support of the proposed settlement of the lawsuit to the court for its consideration.

Very truly yours,
 David G. Winchell
 8871 W. Etcheverry Drive
 Tracy, California 95304

MTC-00010178

From: John Bowen
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:42am
 Subject: Bunch of Crooks

This has gone far enough! This is nothing but a bunch of Pirates who knew about computers before the government did and used their advantage to take the money and stifle software development!

They sell buggy software and provide no refund if it will not work and no customer service! I have their Millennium Edition and it has never worked. I'm sure I could spend about 20 hours and get it to work but why should I have to work on something I bought on good faith that it would work. If you want to understand how this company operates Look into Millennium edition. They put this OS out just for a payday to keep the stock from crashing and to hell with whoever bought it!!!!

MTC-00010179

From: Paul Geohegan
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 12:52am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Enough already!

MTC-00010180

From: Stephen Langford
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:52am
 Subject: Microsoft Judgement

I am writing to express my opinion that the proposed federal penalties against the Microsoft corporation are too lenient and set a bad precedent.

I find it incredible that the court, the prosecution, and the guilty party must negotiate as equals to define a settlement agreeable to all parties in this case. Microsoft was found guilty of breaking an important law. They have significantly hurt millions of Americans. How many other guilty parties get to negotiate their punishment? It sure seems like Microsoft is not being treated equally under the law. Some aspects of the penalty are not penalties at all. Forcing Microsoft to buy software and computers for schools gives them an advantage in the educational market, where competitors (e.g., Apple Computer and the suppliers of compatible software) have long had a substantial fraction of the market. The one market where Microsoft has faced significant competition is being made less competitive. Is this a penalty for anti-competitive behavior?

Microsoft has a well-earned reputation for lying, including orchestrating public support for its products in dishonest ways. A ZDNET pole over Christmas is only the most recent example. <http://news.zdnet.co.uk/story/0,,t269-s2102244,00.html> Microsoft consistently engages in questionable behavior and is not entitled to leniency on the ground of any honorable track record. If they are not punished, we will have to endure years more of the same or worse. The worst they have to fear is another long trial, with minor penalties even if they are found guilty!

Stephen C. Langford
 160 NW Stadium Way, Apt. 4
 Pullman, WA 99163-2461
 Phone: (509) 332-5844
 e-mail: langford@wsu.edu

MTC-00010181

From: Rich
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 1:14am
 Subject: microsoftsettlement
 please support the settlement for the sake of all concerned

MTC-00010183

From: Bradley Curtis
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 1:31am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Settle it and get off the stick
 B. L. Curtis

MTC-00010184

From: Tom and Karin Thomas
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 1:53am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Here we are dealing with a recession that started in 2000, and the government tortures a company that has created industry, jobs, wealth, and progress. And they have done it because they have good ideas and know how to make them into products. Now does it make any sense at all to punish them for being successful? Stop wasting our time and money on this vendetta and end this case. Do not fall victim to the anti-business forces that drag success to the ground.

Tom and Karin Thomas
 12711 Via Perfecto
 San Antonio, TX 78233
 (210)655-6855

MTC-00010185

From: Diane Kirk
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/11/02 1:38am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Diane Kirk
 2350 Pinon Rd.
 Rescue, CA 95672-9651
 January 11, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Diane Kirk

MTC-00010186

From: Steve
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 2:09am
 Subject: Why should MS get a slap on the wrist???

Thank you for reading this.

Please do not let MS off the hook, we need to force them to better their product by promoting competition. The have an unfair and in my opinion an illegal monopoly.

Wasn't the phone company dismantled because of unfair business practice due to it's monopoly? Of course it was.

The other thing that has really changed my views on MS was when I purchased WinXP... I had some trouble installing this software to "MY" satisfaction. I did not realize that each time I installed the software (which I paid for) I had to send off to MS an electronic registration with an electronic profile of "MY" machine. Well fine I did it (reluctantly), but what else am I going to use... So I install this OS, and registered it 3 times. I was still unhappy with something about the install, and after much work decided I would erase my system one last time, and reinstall this OS. So after I am done I try to register to Mr. Bill, and I get a message telling me that the software I paid for has been installed too many times. To make a long story short, I had to call MS to ask permission to use it and get a special code to activate something I paid for!!! Keep in mind I had done the activation prior, but that wasn't good enough.

Now correct my if I am out of line here, but if you bought software... Do you think that you should have to ask the companies permission, and further have to supply them with a reason as to why I am installing it so many times? Didn't I buy it for my personal use? It was from the same machine because they had my hard profile...

Please sanction this company in a way that will make it hurt. PLEASE!! don't give in to these thugs. They are no worse than the Mafia.

Thank you,
Steve DeDominic

MTC-00010187

From: lscross
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:59am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Justice Department: Stop wasting taxpayers' money on the decade-long competitor-driven persecution of Microsoft.

This settlement is not in the public interest.

The government has ostensibly pursued this case on behalf of consumers; however, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy.

Furthermore, America's taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution, diverting government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies.

The proposed settlement encourages consumer product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public. Stop this litigation!

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.

Luci Cross
Olympia, WA 98513

MTC-00010188

From: Dave Jacobs
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:03am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Greetings:

In reading over the final settlement with Microsoft, maybe I am not seeing something, but what I see allows for something that I find happening to allow Microsoft to continue with an almost akin to an absolute control of the internet. Ever since Microsoft lost their battle in Court, they have been making some changes which tend to further their path to discouraging people enough that they gain more control and thereby a monopoly by a type of intimidation. I have watched them in their influence over the net by any users who are not using their products when on the web. An example of this is that every site they own or control or every company or OEM with which they have some previous agreement can't be simply accessed by one who is not using their product. I see nothing in the final judgement which prohibits them from intimidation by making it almost impossible for anyone who does not use their IE to easily access mail or sites. Since there is not and since they have acquired more online, they have now been able to exercise much more in the way of 'convincing' people to use only them. This effectively shuts out most of the stipulations of the final judgement. The giving up of fighting with a system which is so restrictive and demanding without violating any of the provisions of the judgement will merely cause the individuals to chose to not fight it and add much more to a total control monopoly on the internet.

One only has to understand that the Microsoft Windows OS is the one in use in the majority of all OS systems used in the world to realize that the internet is being used to force a control so that a true free choice is not given to the individual users. The complaints which caused this suit were not from individual users. They were from competitors in the business. No where is the issue addressed which prevents Microsoft from using the widespread use of their OS along with their own internet sites and agreements with others to cause considerable pressure to continue with a forced monopoly. With what I see in the judgement, even more a path is allowed for them to continue to accomplish an almost total internet controlled monopoly with their OS and products.

The users of an Operating System do not always run out and pay such an expense just to buy new systems when they are introduced. Many will continue to use what they have until they find a real need due to some obsolescence. With all the Windows programs since Windows 95 to date, there is no way to avoid the requirement of wasting space on the system by keeping the Microsoft Internet Explorer (IE). It must be in the system and will always be doing something itself and including popping up at times when you are not wanting to use it.

In any site owned, controlled or where there exists an agreement for the use of their products, a user of any other system or browser has difficulty in accessing the site. In mail that is sent which has been set up by Microsoft for many companies, that mail may not even open in any browser other than IE. I have had many such examples here recently which did not exist before your suit. This would tend to indicate a path Microsoft has found to allow for a continuation of what the suit was charging, only from a different perspective; the use.

Where I prefer the Windows system, I do not prefer all that Microsoft has for use and see no need to have it waste space on my hard drive when I have other products which I would chose to use. I do not think that Microsoft should be allowed to have the type of control worldwide they have over the internet to force this situation and I do not think that they should be allowed to provide their IE as a component of the Windows OS. This should be kept out of the system and a user then has the free choice of which they wish to download or purchase and use. Any online company or site, network or ISP should be additionally required to fully support any of the available browser systems available to the individual user by the choice of the user.

Take a look back at how the Windows sysetem was prior to Windows 95. You will find a system which did allow free choice. The IE could be used or eliminated at the discretion of the user. Now, the Windows Operating System is so embedded with instructions and directions so as to disallow any free choice in any product which Microsoft owns or controls. You must keep all of theirs and then have to fight with sites and anything which on the web is under the direction, control or ownership of Microsoft if you are not using their products. It has become common now for people to even state that if you aren't using IE or Microsoft that you aren't going to be able to enter the site, gain access to some mail or view anything produced on the internet by Microsoft. This is quite a bad sign.

I know that is is rather a far fetched idea, but I feel the urge to remind all of a movie that was shown on television a couple years back and can now be found in video stores. It is fiction. It isn't real. But, I see a tremendous similarity to it and what I see happening now. A bit more advanced and overboard situation in the movie, but is it? "Net Force" Watch it and you be the judge.

Sincerely,
Dave Jacobs

MTC-00010189

From: bill mccauley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:12am
Subject: microsoft settlement

I Thought the feds covered interstate commerce.

tell them money grubing states to back off
Bill McCauley
Plano, Texas

MTC-00010190

From: Ira
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:27am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a user of the Windows Operating System I want to support Microsoft(MS) for the products they have developed. I have no interest in the marketing aspects or the policies of any company but rather the benefits of the software. If politicians who are not even aware of the real benefits of the software are allowed to continue to disrupt the development of such software future development will cease. How can people who are not technically aware of the real technical problems that are involved in development be allowed to decide to dictate the future of the industry. The government "Experts" are bureaucrats with a vested interest in controlling private industry and not really capable of making true technical contributions to software products. Why don't the courts look to individuals like myself—not employees of MS or the government but users of the products. The industry would not have grown and flourished if not for MS so stop trying to stifle it. Poodle.25722@home.com "Your living proof that God works in strange and wondrous ways" SuzieQ.Little Bit and Ira

MTC-00010191

From: Wayne Petersen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:48am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement January 10, 2002 Attorney General John Ashcroft 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW US Department of Justice Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I would like to take a moment to give my views on the settlement reached between Microsoft and the Justice Department in November. At this point, the settlement agreement is the best development and would be good for all litigants and consumers in general.

I, like countless others, have Microsoft stock as a significant part of my retirement savings. The impact of the suit on me personally has been dramatic. The impact on the entire economy is noteworthy, too. In fact, I think one can trace the Clinton recession almost directly to the date of the original judgment.

Despite my belief that this whole case should have never been brought in the first place, I understand Microsoft's desire to wrap this suit up. Now I am hoping that with the federal government's lead and continued support for the settlement, the states that have not joined the settlement (such as Minnesota) will reconsider their position. It would be extremely important for all this legal uncertainty to be put to rest for good. The settlement justly leaves Microsoft intact, while obligating the company to change its anticompetitive practices of software bundling and the way it licensed Windows.

I commend your office and the entire administration on the push to settle this case. It is good for the economy and for the government, who can now utilize scarce resources to programs that are more important in our current political environment.

Sincerely,
Wayne Petersen

MTC-00010192

From: bernita colthorp
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:01am
Subject: Litigation with microsoft.

Sirs:

It is in the best interest of the United States economy to close this case against Microsoft, and allow them and the rest of the country to get on with business, and stop wasting money and time on making life miserable for producers of the means to keep our country strong—the courts could better use their time and money on other matters—online porn, money laundering by fringe groups.

Sincerely,
Bernita Colthorp

MTC-00010193

From: Jerry (038) Mary Fields
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:30am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I believe that the government should settle with Microsoft quickly and then leave it alone. Please don't cripple the industry or spend any more of our tax money by prolonging this suit, nor by starting other similar ones. Many people in this field are out of jobs. The computer/technological industry needs stimulation and tax breaks to put Americans back to work.

Thank you for considering my opinion.
Mary Fields
820 Carter Rd
Mineral Wells, TX 76067

MTC-00010194

From: root@cycling.stures.iastate.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:32am
Subject: Please listen to the public

I am going to try and keep this as short as I can, it may be hard because this is a issue that I am very passionate about.

I am a computer science student at Iowa State University, I have developed software for many years now on a variety of platforms including, Windows and many different types of Unix and Linux operating systems. I have also had the pleasure of maintaining these systems. My knowledge and experience is nothing special, I am just like hundreds of thousands of people that work on keeping our systems as secure as we can.

I could write you many pages about problems with the current state of the computer industry and how that relates to the Microsoft Corporation. But I am not going to do that. I am going to tell you about some of the issues that I think are prevalent to not only system administrators but to every computer user.

With the increasing amount of sensitive information that is on computers today security is a major issue. Some people, including some of my closest friends, are unable to see this. This is probably one of the biggest problems that we face as a computer dependent society. They are uneducated about the risks they take every time they use a computer. Most people would probably just try and say that I am paranoid, however the truth is that my education and experiences is what makes me look paranoid but the risks I talk about are real.

So what does this have to do with Microsoft. The answer to that question is very long, there are more security holes in Microsoft's software than I can keep track of, which is why I will only focus on those that affect the most users.

I know of these holes not because I am a hacker of any kind but because I have to fix them in order to maintain the least bit of security.

This nation spends millions of dollars every year on Microsoft's software, to then turn around and spend millions more to fix the damage incurred because of a virus that it spread. Everyone is familiar with email viruses, most people have received one and have been infected by it, if they haven't just keep using Outlook and wait a while. This method of putting viruses in emails costs this nation more every year than anyone wants to think about. I don't know the numbers and I don't think anyone truly does know them, because fixing the problem costs a lot of time and money but so does trying to prevent the problem.

In how many other industries can a company get away with selling a product that puts the buyer in danger without informing them about it. When you purchase Microsoft software do they tell you about all the security holes in it and how what damage they can do? Of course they can't predict what tools a hacker will use but once a problem is found a solution needs to be found. This is something that Microsoft is not very diligent at doing. But who can blame them for not wanting to publish this information, after all if they did how many people do you think would spend $300 for the upgrade version of there next software, which fixed some problems but made just as many new ones. Well I will tell you who can blame them, everyone, starting with yourself. If I had a car and the manufacture knew that it could explode if someone kicked and they didn't tell me about it, they would be sued to no end. Many people say that this comparison is outrageous, but it is not, this is just how unsafe there software is. The reason people believe this is because that is what Microsoft wants you to believe and what they sell you in every ad that they have. Really, a company that big can sell the general public anything it wants.

But now for some proof.

The computer industry had its ways of making standards just like every other industry. Most of the time those standards are set by a non-profit organization, like IEEE. But because Microsoft is so huge and controls most of the market they don't feel like they have to follow the rules. Right now they can create whatever standard they want and because they sell so many systems it becomes a standard. But the problem is that there is nothing standard about it. Standards are published and available to the public, something that Microsoft also does not do. Take the HTML standard, or HyperText Markup Language. There browser, Internet Explorer has its own standards that it follows, sure it follows all of the real standards but it has included other things are are not standard, I do not know what they are because they will not tell me. But what I do know is that the computer I am currently sitting at right now has a problem with it. I am using a Silicon Graphics Indigo 2 R10000 machine running a version of Unix and using Netscape Navigator as my browser. When trying to view pages on Microsoft's own web site it will not display the content. But when I go to my Windows machine it does not have a problem at all. But the problem is not me, the problem is the site, I am convinced that it will not display the content when using Netscape.

Microsoft will call this a coincidence or a problem with Netscape, but the problem is with Microsoft and that they have enough power to make it the truth!

This is a situation that needs to stop and this is the time to do it. We have an opportunity here to stop something that should have been stooped long ago. I don't care what Microsoft says is best for our nation. It boils down to what is best for Microsoft, if you think they care about what is best for this nation you should consider yourself one of these victims. A company does not get as large as they are by caring about anyone but themselves.

Freedom of information is a wonderful thing, and that is what makes the internet one of the most powerful tools today. I should not have to remind you of what freedom is, but I will say this, the longer Microsoft pushes on its current path the less free the internet will become. A judge would say that is speculation but I don't care, I want it to me motivation, motivation to do the right thing and just think about where we will be in ten years. Microsoft will never own the internet, at least I hope not, but if we are not careful they will control it.

Think of it as a kind of conspiracy, the amount of information you have is almost nothing when you know the truth. I can not prove that is the case here but there are millions of us out here that can feel it. I thank you very much for your time, I did not accomplish my goal of a short letter and if you have made it this far I know that you will do the right thing and put and end to this situation and open up a new and better door to the future.

I leave you with this. Microsoft is huge but programers around the world is much bigger. The progress of open source software has grown so much in the last few years and I believe me that it is just the tip of the iceberg. The future of computing lies in our hands and not Microsoft, but if we are not careful that can change.

Thanks again,
Ryan Grimm 1232 Hawthron Court
Iowa State University
Ames IA, 50010

MTC-00010195

From: ANDERSON,MIKE (HP-USA,ex1)
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 6:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I strongly support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. Close this case and get the states off Microsoft's back.

I believe that the Govt has totally missed their target in this case. By having a standard Operating System, innovation as been significantly increased and software costs decreased. E.G. if every auto manufacturer's vehicles ran on a different fuel source, the cost of fuel would be much higher. Same principal for software. Without Microsofts innovations, our countries technological lead would not exist...in my opinion.

Regards :-)

Mike Anderson / IT Technical Staff
Field Support Tools/Integration & Development
HP Services North America Information Technology

Phone: 770/T-795-6488 (urgent voice msg pages)

After 3 rings, home office & cell phone ring simultaneously.

Email: Mike-Anderson@hp.com

The doorstep of the temple of wisdom is the knowledge of your own ignorance.

MTC-00010196

From: Jeff Clayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:40am
Subject: Against Proposed Anti-Trust Settlement with Microsoft

To Whom It May Concern:

Regarding the proposal to settle the Microsoft anti-trust action through donations to the public schools: this "solution" scandalously rewards and abets the anti-competitive practices it pretends to penalize.

It is true that there would be significant benefit to the schools. However, the big winner in this affair would be Microsoft itself. Consumers, competitors, and the industry that Microsoft has so damaged by abusing its monopoly position, are in no way compensated.

* Microsoft escapes an overwhelming finding of fault with the least of penalties—it gives away product, at small cost to itself, to a market in which sales are hard-won.

* This is tantamount to a marketing seed program. The tobacco industry must wonder how it failed to be directed to make amends to injured smokers by donating tobacco products to schools.

There has not been a penalty proposed which would fail its purpose so utterly, since Brer Rabbit was consigned to the briar patch in the Uncle Remus fable.

I urge any party to this proposal, who has the will and the ability to resist it, to refuse such an ineffective, cynical and outrageous settlement.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey T. Clayton
143 Kathryn Drive
Pleasant Hill, California 94523 swivet@earthlink.net

MTC-00010197

From: Raymond Mercier
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:53am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice, Antitrust Division,

I do not believe the proposed settlement with Microsoft will remedy the harm already caused by Microsoft's past restriction of trade practices. Further, I do not see in the settlement any protection for "Open Source" software providers, specifically Linux and Apache which make up a large part of the Internet's infrastructure. Far from protecting the public from Microsoft's predatory behavior, this agreement seems to simply spell out the rules under which Microsoft may continue to dominate markets and exclude competitors. The Microsoft Antitrust Settlement fails to protect and serve the American people, who deserve better.

Sincerely,
Raymond Mercier, Jr.
3 Bear Hill Road, Apartment 7

Hillsboro, NH 03244
Phone # 603-464-4934
E-mail mercier@gsinet.net

MTC-00010198

From: Wesley Watters
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:58am
Subject: What I think.

Hello,

I think that as long as Microsoft continues in it's present form that there is NO competition in any software market that Microsoft enters. This is against all of our values as Americans. I think it is your duty to save us from this convicted criminal enterprise, and restore competitive balance. I also think an investigation should be started into Ashcrofts blatent selling out of America's interests in this case.

Do as Judge Jackson said. BREAK UP MICROSOFT!!!!

Thank You,
Wesley Watters
wesinpgh@nb.net

MTC-00010199

From: John J. Urbaniak
To: Microsoft
ATR,jjurban@attglobal.net@inetgw
Date: 1/11/02 8:18am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: U.S. Department of Justice

(I wish to have your Department submit this letter to Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly regarding the proposed Microsoft Antitrust Trial settlement. I have sent a similar letter to the State's Attorneys General who are in opposition to the settlement. Thank you.)

I am the President and founder of Aviar, Inc., a software development company specializing in Computerized Maintenance Management Systems (CMMS). I have been in the computer field since 1966.

Aviar was founded in September, 1983. We developed and marketed a DOS CMMS program called "Ounce of Prevention System." This system was very successful: We had more than 550 users worldwide, and in 1990 we were judged "Best Overall" in a user-satisfaction survey sponsored by A. T. Kearney Associates. The survey results were published in "Industry Week" Magazine, February 5, 1990.

Personally, I have written several articles on CMMS techniques and requirements which were published in major magazines such as "Maintenance Technology." I have also been invited to speak at Maintenance-oriented trade shows and meetings.

As of 1994, our company had 13 employees and annual revenues approaching $500,000. Our growth rate was approximately 22% per year.

At that time, the PC industry was changing from the DOS character-based mode of operating to the Graphical User Interface mode, based on the mouse and graphical screens. Aviar decided to develop a new version of our successful DOS program.

We did extensive research to evaluate software platforms. We studied Microsoft Windows and IBM's OS/2 Operating Systems. It was my professional judgement at that time that OS/2 was a far superior operating platform than Windows for the specific requirements of a CMMS product. OS/2 was more stable; less prone to system crashes and loss of data; more resistant to viruses; more efficient and made better use of system resources.

It is my judgement, as of the present time, that OS/2 is still a superior operating environment for the needs of Maintenance Management software. OS/2 is still more stable, less prone to crashes and loss of data, more resistant to viruses and more efficient than any version of Windows.

So, based on this judgement, my company developed a new version of our CMMS product, called "Oz of Prevention System" for the OS/2 platform. Little did I know that while we were working hard to produce an excellent advanced version of our well-received DOS system, Microsoft was acting illegally to prevent our product from ever reaching our potential customers.

We didn't realize that Microsoft was threatening companies such as Hewlett-Packard to prevent them from offering PC's with OS/2 pre-loaded. We didn't realize that Microsoft threatened even IBM to prevent them from offering and supporting computers loaded with their own OS/2! But these activities came out in the trial.

As of this writing, Aviar has shrunk to two full-time employees and one part-timer. Our revenues have dropped by 80%. I personally have not received any meaningful salary in several years.

It was NOT a simple mis-judgement on my part which caused this. It was Microsoft's illegal maintenance of its monopoly, combined with IBM's [forced?] retreat from the PC Operating System market.

In order for us to sell our OS/2-based system, we must also supply computers along with the software. This is because it is impossible to obtain PCs with OS/2 pre-loaded on the open market. We have to assemble machines and package them along with our software. This adds significantly to our costs, and puts us at a competitive disadvantage, even though we believe our product is superior. If we buy a machine, say from IBM, we still have to pay them for Windows, which we don't want and which we immediately remove. This is not right, not in the America which I thought I lived in.

I believe the following:

1. My company has a right to exist, to succeed or fail on our own, without being prevented access to our market by Microsoft.
2. We have the right to innovate on our own, without being forced to develop software on Microsoft's terms and conditions.
3. We have the right to grow our own markets without being prevented and hindered by the Microsoft monopoly.
4. We have the responsibility to offer our customers the very best product we can.

In my judgement, the very best product for a CMMS application will not be based on Windows, it will be based on a superior Operating System such the OS/2 platform for the reasons stated above. It is simply wrong either to

1. Force us out of business, or
2. Force us to develop for Windows, which we believe is inferior.

I believe, therefore, that the DoJ proposed settlement with Microsoft does absolutely

NOTHING to prevent Microsoft from using its monopoly to continue to restrict our customers from acquiring OS/2 computers, and thus to restrict us from competing in a free and open market. In fact, the proposed settlement actually strengthens Microsoft's stranglehold on the PC Operating System market, in spite of their illegally judged behavior.

My company will continue to suffer and my customers will continue to be denied access to what I believe is a superior product on a superior operating environment.

All we want is a chance to innovate and compete fairly. The proposed settlement does not facilitate this. I ask that the settlement be rejected and stronger remedies be enacted which allow my small company to compete honestly without being forced out of existence by the illegal actions of Microsoft.

I assume that there is enormous lobbying pressure and media hype generated by powerful pro-Microsoft entities. I am just a small businessperson trying to be moderately successful offering a superior product to my customers. I haven't done anything illegal as Microsoft has done. I pray that American Justice applies to my small business just as well as it applies to giant corporations.

Sincerely,
John J. Urbaniak, Ph.D.
President
Aviar, Inc.
Ounce of Prevention Software
1120 Perry Highway
Pittsburgh, PA 15237
(412) 488-9730 Fax
(412) 488-0190 Fax
jjurban@attglobal.net

MTC-00010200

From: john@research.att.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:42am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001
Ms. Hesse,

I have been working in the software and technology sector for over twenty years. I experienced programming before there was a Microsoft, I experienced e-mail, the internet and web browsing before Microsoft entered the arena, I experienced Java (TM) technology before Microsoft took interest in it. In all these cases, I can assure you that there was more competition, both intellectual and economic, before Microsoft lumbered into the picture. I also experienced AT&T when it was a monopoly and afterwards. As a monopoly, it was undeniably a better place to work because of all the non-work related comforts available and the job security, but the productivity of AT&T improved and its creativity did not suffer after its monopoly was ended.

Too many excellent technologies are struggling or have struggled (and lost) against Microsoft while Microsoft continues to produce buggy, bloated, insecure products that lack creativity. Most of the Microsoft "innovations"—if examined closely—are inferior variations of the creations of its struggling competitors. For example, while Apple worked hard to merge the best operating system (UNIX and its variants) with a creative re-working of the best OS user interface (Apple's own) to produce OS X, Microsoft follows a year later with XP, which took the high resolution, large-icon look and feel of the Apple product (and even stole the "X" from the name) and grafted it onto its old, buggy NT operating system . . . the result, not surprisingly was a buggy OS with major security flaws. Yet, XP will crush OS X not because it is better or more innovative, but because Microsoft has such an enormous installed base and because—to paraphrase the old expression regarding IBM—nobody ever got fired for choosing Microsoft.

In addition to the installed base, the greatest factor that assures the continuance of the Microsoft monopoly is their adherence to closed, proprietary data formats that constantly change in minor, unimportant ways so as to frustrate competitors that attempt to interface with them. The Office Suite, with its Word, Excel, PowerPoint and other data formats, maintains its control of the office productivity tool market by making sure it is difficult for other tools to read those formats and almost impossible to write them. If a split of Microsoft along OS and application lines is completely off the table, then any other remedy should, at a minimum, require Microsoft to openly and freely publish up-to-date specifications of its data formats. Without the ability of competitors—and especially innovative, small-operation competitors—to easily read AND write Microsoft formats, real competition can never occur. Microsoft Office document formats are the lingua franca of the business world and any tools that plan to compete MUST speak that language fluently. Naturally, the views expressed here are entirely my own and should not in any way be construed to reflect the opinions of AT&T, its management, its employees or its shareholders.

Best of luck with your endeavors in pursuit of Justice in this matter,
John Mocenigo, PhD
John MocenigoE-Mail:
john@research.att.com
Research @ AT&T LabsVoice: 1-973-360-8639
180 Park Av / Bldg 103 / Rm D-225Fax:
1-973-360-8055
Florham Park, NJ 07932-0971

MTC-00010201

From: Ken Cobler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:49am
Subject: Microsoft Anti-trust settlement

MTC-00010202

From: Anthony W. Youngman
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 8:57am
Subject: Comments on the antitrust suit

Please find attached a document with my comments on the suit, as per the Tunney act. You may notice I'm a UK citizen, but as this case has international repercussions and my competition authorities are likely to get involved when the DoJ decides it's closed the case, I trust my input may have some merit.

Yours,
 Anthony Youngman
 CC: 'dennispowell(a)earthlink.net'

Critique on the Microsoft Settlement

Reading the Proposed Final Judgment and the Competitive Impact Statement, I am somewhat disturbed at what appears to be contained therein in places.

CIS II (Overview of Relief) looks pretty impressive. However, on reading the Judgement, those "strong enforcement provisions" boil down to the one line in IV.A.4 of "The Plaintiffs shall have the authority to seek such orders as are necessary from the Court to enforce this Final Judgement . . .". Given the problems enforcing the 1995 Consent Decree I expect that these strong provisions will prove very weak. Don't forget, again with the 1995 decree, that Judge Sporkin refused to sign the decree, and it was signed by Judge Jackson instead. Judge Jackson's obvious frustration at Microsoft during the current case probably stems at least in part from the realisation of how easily Microsoft skated round and bypassed the 1995 decree. Isn't the current case dealing with exactly the consequences that the 1995 case was intended to prevent?

It also concerns me that Microsoft has been convicted of breaking the law. Yet there is no attempt whatsoever at punishment. It is wealth that gives Microsoft its power. That wealth has been gained at least in part illegally. That wealth can be used to ensure that Microsoft survives the five years of the judgement reasonably intact, at which point it can resume all the destructive tactics it has employed in the past. This fear of Microsoft surviving the remedy phase moderately unscathed will be more than sufficient to permit Microsoft to threaten OEMs during the remedy phase—"When it's all over we'll come back and get you!". And while I can't offhand think of any examples, I have come across many examples of Microsoft continuing to behave in a reprehensible and probably illegal manner even during and after the trial. I am sure others will have provided you with examples. It is all a matter of trust and many, myself included, believe that Microsoft is a psychopathic corporation constitutionally incapable of behaving itself.

However, let's tackle my concerns over the remedy.

III. Prohibited Conduct.

A.

"Microsoft shall have no obligation to provide such a termination notice . . . that has received two or more such notices . . .". Justified, unjustified, questionable notices? On a simplistic reading, Microsoft is likely to make a point of quibbling at every possible opportunity. Past performance leads me to expect Microsoft to pick fights with any OEM it expects to have difficulty with, specifically to get itself in a position where it can invoke this clause. This needs to be tightened up severely.

B.

I fail to see how this protects the consumer and prevents the illegal practice of "per processor" licensing. One of most telling and effective ways that the IBM monopoly was broken was when they were forced to price hardware and software separately. Given that Windows is now supplied for the most part as a "recovery disk" which restores the hard disk to "factory fresh" condition, it should be a condition that OEMs are charged only for copies of Windows supplied to consenting customers. How hard is it for a consumer to switch on a bare pc, put the recovery CD in the CD drive, and watch the computer "recover" itself to a "factory fresh install state"? I have no problems with Microsoft obliging OEMs to ship their PCs with an Operating System included as part of the package, just as long as this includes the obligation to offer a non-Microsoft alternative. After all, what is marginal cost of throwing in a Debian CD?

C.

"Microsoft shall not restrict by agreement any OEM licensee . . .". Why is this section so much weaker than the wording at IJIA.? You need to add wording forbidding technical or other measures as well! Bear in mind Microsoft has already used technical measures to destroy the ability of PCs to dual-boot, any repetition of this needs to be nipped in the bud. When you install NT4, it nags you to be allowed to write a "signature" to the start of the disk. If you let it, this will destroy older versions of lilo, the default linux boot manager. The cynical amongst us might assume that this was deliberate . . . It is thought Microsoft is planning similar tactics for when PCs migrate to the IA64 architecture (Intel's x86 replacement), and with its current recovery disk practice it has already implemented something similar. If you are forced to reinstall Windows (a not uncommon occurrence) a "recovery" will wipe any changes you have made to your system, including any third-party Operating System you may have installed. The sheer hassle of reinstalling linux every time Windows breaks is enough to put a lot of people off. And Microsoft has already introduced a new disk format which (intentionally?) prevents any other Operating System from sharing the disk. It is suspected that this will be the only format acceptable with the new IA64 generation of CPUs.

If Microsoft does that, the provisions granted to OEMs in section 4 will be worthless, because it will be technically impossible despite the fact that it is contractually possible. You need to add wording similar to the following:

"Both when being installed/restored and in normal/abnormal usage, Windows must restrict itself to the portion of disk allocated to it by the user. It may not assume that that portion is the entire disk unless it has positively detected the absence of any third-party boot loader or Operating System. It must also provide a mechanism whereby any third party can invoke the Windows loader similar to the existing boot mechanism where a loader loads and executes the first 512 bytes at the start of the disk or partition."

E.

"Microsoft shall make available . . . for the sole purpose of interoperating with a Windows Operating System Product, on reasonable and non-discriminatory terms . . .". In other words, Microsoft are free to discriminate against their sole surviving real competition, Open Source. By definition, any "for cost" licencing scheme discriminates against Open Source.

This section should be rewritten to say something along the lines of "Microsoft shall publish and make freely available a formal description of any protocol used by a Windows Client to communicate with a Windows server. Microsoft are free to forbid the use of their Intellectual Property to be used to enable two non-Windows systems to communicate, or to forbid the use of their Intellectual Property without the appropriate CAL (Client Access Licence). Any such CAL must be Operating System agnostic, and be supplied and charged separately from the Windows Client."

After all, to permit otherwise is surely the equivalent of allowing the English Language to be patented? And isn't it, actually, also illegal under US Federal law? I thought it was illegal to word "requests for procurement" in such a manner as only one company's goods fitted the bill. Without a clause such as thin, any requirement of Microsoft compatibility would effectively require the use of Microsoft software and as such would be illegal.

As I've worded it, there is no restriction on competitors making their software speak the same "language" (as indeed there should not be), but it is perfectly possible for Microsoft to charge a fair fee for the use of any of their Intellectual Property. Very similar, in fact, to Hewlett-Packard's Open Source printer drivers which declare prominently "For use with HP printers only. Usage with any other make of printer may infringe third-party Copyright and/or Licence agreements". By placing the obligation on the user to have a valid usage licence (eg a CAL) we can sidestep any argument over what is "reasonable and non-discriminatory".

I notice also that the Competitive Impact Statement mentions Kerberos in this section. Interestingly enough, Microsoft has already attempted to subvert Kerberos once yet this section would have minimal effect on the tactic used. Windows 2000 client authenticated perfectly to a Unix Kerberos server, yet when the Windows 2000 client was granted authorisation, it threw it away because the server wasn't a Windows 2000 server. And again, if developers are licenced, who is going to pay for a licence to distribute MS-Kerberos for linux? More reason to say the specification must be openly published and the licence fee charged to the user. Interestingly enough, Microsoft didn't use the patent/copyright trick to attempt to prevent reverse-engineering of their extensions. They wrapped the document with a licence agreement that said "if you wish to read the spec, you must agree not to implement a non-Microsoft implementation". If enforced, it would have had the effect of making non-MS servers incompatible because the client would refuse to use them, and there would have been nothing the server software authors could have done about it.

H.

1. "Enable or remove access to each Microsoft Middleware Product". Taken in conjunction with the (implied) requirements of section D, that Microsoft Middleware should not have an unfair advantage, these two requirements are mutually incompatible!

Large chunks of Microsoft Middleware are implemented as part of the OS for a reason—they are loaded in RAM when the computer starts up, and they stay there. This means that, for example, Internet Explorer will always appear to load faster than Netscape Navigator, because large chunks of it are already loaded.

Microsoft are also permitted to use their own middleware to launch, for example as mentioned by the Competitive Impact Statement, ActiveX (should the user's chosen alternative not include that capability). But what if I the user chose that alternative precisely because it did not include the capability? Should Microsoft have the right to demand that I have the capability to execute ActiveX, even if I wish to delete it on security grounds?

This section should demand that users are allowed to de-install and delete Microsoft Middleware. It may not be advisable, and it may result in large chunks of functionality disappearing, but if the user does not want that functionality they should be allowed to get rid of it. Completely. Totally. Utterly. To allow otherwise is to allow Microsoft to continue its current practice of forcing unwanted software onto non-consenting consumers, and if that software has major security holes (like ActiveX, for example) then this is a serious issue.

And as has been suggested in various places by other people, it should be possible to get and install a "Windows Lite" which is cheaper and comes without middleware.

J. No provision of this final Judgement shall:

THIS SECTION IS EXTREMELY WORRISOME!!!

Firstly, secrecy and security are mutually exclusive. If Microsoft needs to invoke this section then it is a pretty sure-fire conclusion that the "security" implemented by the relevant APIs is shoddy and easy to break. In which case, this section should not cover it.

Given Microsoft's extremely shoddy security in the past, it should in fact be a requirement that all security protocols, interfaces and APIs are published and disseminated widely almost from the moment Microsoft start developing them.

One only needs to look at the current DMCA/FBI/ElcomSoft case to see how secrecy is incompatible with security. Some unknown Adobe programmer took a well-known security algorithm. It had several traits in common with Enigma which could easily have defeated "kiddie" cryptographers. And don't forget, Enigma was strong enough to frustrate the most powerful computers available in the early 1940s—they typically broke only 75% of messages. Okay, Adobe's method wasn't quite as strong as Enigma . . .

But this unknown programmer thought he'd be clever and add a few tweaks . . ., and succeeded in converting this technique into a Caesar cipher. This is so weak a kid can break it using pen and paper alone in half an hour—I should know—I've done exactly that and I wasn't even a teenager at the time.

This section should not permit Microsoft to use security as a pretence for secrecy in any shape or form whatsoever.

To my mind, this judgement is almost too prescriptive, allowing too much interference in Microsoft's internal affairs. It also does little to assist competition on its merits. I personally would like to see a simple remedy along the following lines:

To restore competition generally:

Microsoft is forbidden from entering into any OEM contracts whatsoever. It must publish a price list and stick to it, but that price list may include reasonable volume discounts to take into account the economies of volume where an OEM buys a lot of copies. The price of bundled middleware and applications should also be reasonably comparable with the price of the same software as a stand-alone or upgrade purchase.

The problem with having "Covered OEMs" is that Microsoft can to some extent control who is in which group. By having a noticeable differential between the two covered groups and "the small guys" Microsoft can make it very difficult for any individual OEM to move into a more favourable category. This way, if a small OEM makes good PCs, they can grow and at the same time provide the OS of the customer's choice without fear that the system is susceptible to being rigged. If customers want Windows, they can buy it from the OEM, or as seems more and more to be the case, they can enter into a direct licencing agreement with Microsoft themselves. We need a means whereby small OEMs with no affinity to Microsoft can seriously threaten the Dells and Compaqs. Without this, the fear of future retaliation keeps the big OEMs in line, while preferential treatment of large OEMs by Microsoft keeps the small boys from getting bigger. And at the end of the decree, we will still have the problem where OEMs say "how high" when asked by Microsoft to jump.

Microsoft may establish OEM programs where entry is open at reasonable and nondiscriminatory terms to anyone who wishes to ensure their hardware works successfully with Windows Operating Systems. Such programs may not require any degree of control by Microsoft over the hardware vendor's Intellectual Property, and in particular may not seek to hide hardware specifications by way of Non-Disclosure-Agreements.

At the moment, linux in particular is hamstrung by the difficulty of getting information from manufacturers. Hewlett-Packard is a case in point, where it has been (officially?) quoted that for certain HP printers, HP was contractually prevented from telling customers how they worked. So if something changed on your computer and the printer stopped working, all you were suddenly left with was an expensive doorstep despite the fact there was no problem with the printer itself. Microsoft Operating Systems must not assume or demand sole control of the computer systems on which they run, or interfere with third-party software installed elsewhere on the system. As mentioned above. If Microsoft software assumes sole ownership of the computer it is free wilfully to destroy anything else the user may have installed. This is just plain unacceptable.

Microsoft must publish all APIs, protocols, interfaces and file formats that they provide or use in other words, the "language" of Microsoft computing. By definition, writing an alternative implementation is not a breach of copyright. By definition, if it is encumbered by patents it cannot be an Open Standard suitable for implementation by Government. And if there are any intellectual property issues, these should be addressed by the sale of user licences, which must be priced independently of the operating system on which the software runs. Bearing in mind I thought Federal Procurement Regulations required open standards, I would have thought Microsoft should already be complying with this requirement if they wish their software to be used for Federal Government Business.

It should be a mandatory requirement that all protocols used by Microsoft Software to communicate between computers must be clearly and publically documented such that a competitor can implement a compatible equivalent. Please note that it says by implication "all software" so that communication between databases, between mail client and server, etc is all caught.

It should also be a mandatory requirement that all file formats used for transferring information between users must be clearly and publically documented such that a competitor can implement a compatible equivalent. Here we may have a patent problem, but I would have thought any attempt to obstruct compatibility was a clear breach of competition law, and possibly a breach of the constitutional justification for patents.

I'm less sure of requiring Microsoft to document internal formats such as the NTFS file system, the internal layout of their SQL-Server database, or their Exchange database. There are very good technical reasons to say they should, but I'm not sure that there are good competitive anti-trust reasons to do so.

Any such documentation must be released at least six months before the Software in question is Released To Manufacturing (RTM), and also no later than the date Microsoft start shipping the software to testers outside of Microsoft or OEM employees. RTM is defined as no later than the date Microsoft permit OEMs to ship the software to customers, or the date on which Microsoft implement a pricing regime that covers more than the cost of pressing and shipping the distribution media. The documentation must be included with the software without NDAs or restrictive licences.

Enforcement should be open to anyone. If Microsoft releases software in contravention of the decree, then anybody can act as plaintiff and seek a Federal restraining order barring distribution of the software. Upon production of sufficiently compelling evidence, then the Federal court will grant the order.

This remedy is actually pretty similar to the one applied to IBM. Effectively, it requires products to be unbundled, and specifications to be produced to enable competitors to have a level(ler) playing field. It should be a requirement that competition is restored before the order is lifted. At present all Microsoft need do is bide their time, and they have plenty of cash in the bank with which to do so.

These comments have been submitted by Anthony Youngman, a Programmer/Analyst and Database Administrator/Programmer based in London, England. Contact details:

Anthony Youngman
9 Shaw House
Victoria Street
Upper Belvedere
Kent DA17 5NA
United Kingdom
Office tel: +44 20 7351 5000
Office fax: +44 20 7351 9396

MTC-00010203

From: iiel@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:59am

Dear D.O.J.:

If it is in the public interest that you hold these hearings then the public should know. The public has a need to know.

Please televise and broadcast in every way possible the proceedings of this and other public interest cases.

Very truly yours,
Solomon Katz

Who art thou that thou should be considered above a grain of sand?

MTC-00010204

From: Johanna Stephens
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. I also feel that the harassment of Microsoft has gone on too long.

Sincerely,
J.M.Stephens
Tucson, AZ

MTC-00010206

From: ANTHONY SHUMBER
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:13am
Subject: Microsoft Case

To Whom it may Concern

Get off the back of Microsoft and go chase ERON they actually hurt people.

Tony

MTC-00010207

From: Ivan Prado
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:16am
Subject: Hello

HI, Just to say:

I have been using computer for many years now. I want to tell to that this past's years I have never seen a bigger monopoly than Microsoft is in the coputer world. Their domain is far reaching than just the operating system, for with that they can decide the technology for video cards, sound, digital cameras, and many other multimedia applications (no wonder they keep adding multimedia 'features') because their software other than allowing other programs to work (like a OS used to be) now adds many standars (direct X) that eliminate the possibility of independent improvements, for that and many other practices Microsoft and thier softwares are very dangerous, and they can in fact continue to expand their power and continue to force the computer industry at their will (more or less) because the costumer base is so huge.

Their sheer strength of the number of computers running on their programs is enough reason itself to do something, for it is too dangerous, anything considered above the law that MS did, thats just a bonus and a good excuse to use against them; this dangerous corporation.

A good decision would be one that defines whats an OS, and so make that OS what it originaly was: just a program that turned on the computer and put is together, the other software companies can run their software, and every program should be a single application apart from the rest, the OS apart from all applications even if they are from MS. Device standars (like video card drivers and api) should be decided by the card manufacturer (two big players right now) and so software companies decide what products to support, or to support both. Some compatibility would be lost, but that a very little price to pay for the freedom of the computer industry. Im sure once the industry is free we would see much more improvements in multiple directions, not just a few like it is right now (like direct X)

Could you please tell me what happens to this e-mail?

MTC-00010208

From: Burton Cohen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:18am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Hearings

U.S. District Court Judge J. Frederick Motz I implore you to rule that the settlement proposed by Microsoft's lawyers does not impose the remedy that would address their misdeeds. They are giving away product that will cost them less than $400 Million dollars but not give the schools the $1 Billion they claim is the settlement.

Two previous courts have ruled that Microsoft has broken the antitrust laws. Their proposed settlement does not hold them accountable in any meaningful way and actually advances their illegal gains. Schools will receive product that will further Microsoft products at the expense of Apple Computer and free choice. The nine remaining states are right to reject this settlement and you should send the message that monopolists must but brought to justice just as any other convicted felon.

Here in Connecticut, our attorney general, has been one of the lead attorneys in the case against Microsoft and for free choice in the marketplace. I trust his judgment in rejecting the proposed Microsoft settlement. He has steadfastly stood up and spoken out on my behalf to ensure that individuals, companies and governments are given the right to chose the solution that best suits their needs and not one dictated by a convicted monopolist.

Your decision will affect lives for many years to come. It is a heavy burden. You must decide and demonstrate that laws and the judiciary decide on a just penalty, not a self serving industrial bully.

I look forward to seeing how you decide.

Sincerely,
Burton Cohen
TBI Computer, LLC
bcohen@tbicomputer.com

(203) 222-1878 Telephone
(203) 858-4728 Cell Phone

MTC-00010209

From: lsmith
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:24am
Subject: Microsoft Case

Dear Sir,

Attached please find my concerns and suggestions regarding Microsoft. Regards,
Larry Smith
LAWRENCE G. SMITH, JR.
179 Old Orchard Lane Wayside NJ 07712
(732) 493-3299

January 10, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing you to urge you and your Department and the federal government to end the political squabbling and endorse the proposed settlement in the Microsoft case. This settlement will essentially force Microsoft not only to abandon its former so-called anticompetitive practices, but will also obligate the company to share its systems and its technology with its competitors. Windows will be designed now to accept non-Microsoft software. Microsoft has agreed to license its Windows systems products to other computer makers for uniform terms and conditions. Microsoft cannot retaliate against its competitors. Most importantly this settlement will allow Microsoft to continue to exist as a corporate entity in the form that has made it a national and international technological giant. We need this company solid, solvent and at work. I hope to see the settlement in place soon.

Sincerely,

Lawrence G. Smith, Jr.

MTC-00010210

From: BLDDonW@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:30am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Donald and Elizabeth Wanderer
1033 Tilghman Court
Wayne, PA 19087-5879

January 10, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

After a three-year long court battle, I was pleased to hear that a settlement was finally reached between the Department of Justice and Microsoft. I sincerely hope that this is the end of this nonsense and that no further legal action is being taken at the federal level.

Taking into account the terms of the agreement, Microsoft did not get off lightly. In fact, Microsoft has to now make several substantial changes to the way that they handle their business. For example, Microsoft has agreed to grant computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows to promote non-Microsoft software programs that compete with programs included within Windows. Computer makers will now be free to remove the means by which consumers access various features of Windows. Computer makers can replace access to those features with access to non-Microsoft software. This is more than fair.

With the many terms of the agreement, there should be no reason for the government to pursue further litigation on any level. Not only would it be redundant, but a serious waste of time and money all over again.

Sincerely,
Donald and Elizabeth Wanderer
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00010211

From: RUFUS WILSON
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:40am
Subject: Stop Created a problem where none exist!!! microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov. I support The Bush and Mirosoft settlement, Stop weasting tax payer Money and creating problems where none exist.
Rufus John Wilson mrkeyman@flash.net 1-11-2002

MTC-00010212

From: Cheryl Dively
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:42am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
This email is to let you know I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. I believe the proposed settlement is in the public's best interest.
Cheryl Dively
MacKenzie Commercial/ONCOR International Direct Dial: 410-494-6659
cdively@mackenziecommercial.com or visit our web site at: <http://www.mackenziecommercial.com>

MTC-00010214

From: Seamus J. Wilson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:50am
Subject: microsoft
A great American success story. Leave them alone.
Seamus J. Wilson

MTC-00010215

From: Ronald Snyder
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:56am
Subject: microsoft
leave it go.....
If it was not for Microsoft and windows ,I would not have a computer .I thank Gates for his products
Why don't they go after AOL

MTC-00010216

From: John M. Sours
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:03am
Subject: An Appeal for Microsoft.
Renata B. Hesse
Anti Trust Division
Department of Justice
I would like to encourage the acceptance of the proposed settlement of this lengthy action against Microsoft. I firmly believe that the economy needs the reassurance that the government is now free of this sort of damaging mentality. The state of Washington desperately needs all the economic boost it can possible get, and Microsoft is the best hope we have for a turn around. We are one of the leading states in unemployment, and a new wave of pink slips are in the mill for several of our other major employers.

There is no doubt that Microsoft is an aggressive innovative company. It's history is an outline of the American dream, and a role model for all those other high technology startup businesses that hope to also flourish. I have heard Mr. Gates say that he is constantly looking back over his shoulder to see which one of them is going to be the one that closes in on him. This should be the function of a free and open market, not micro management review by big government. This action needs to be terminated once and for all for the good of the entire economy.

Please bring us some good news.
Thank you.
John M. Sours
Spokane, WA

MTC-00010217

From: Alayo, Sandra
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 10:06am
Subject: Microsoft settlement
I would like to offer my opinion that the settlement be accepted. It is time to let the company devote it's resources to innovate instead of litigate.
Sandra
Phone: 212-852-6567
Fax: 212-852-6510
email: <<mailto:salayo@girlscouts.org>>

MTC-00010218

From: Mary. Wollenhaupt@ago.state.ma.us@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:05am
Microsoft settlement

MTC-00010219

From: peter woods
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:07am
Subject: microsoft settlement
Really, enough is enough. I am disgusted that my money, taxpayer money, was used to fund this frontal assault on a company whose only sin was that it was more successful than its competitors. That last time I checked, it was legal for competitors to try to destroy each other in the marketplace (see Coca Cola vs. Pepsi; Hertz vs. Avis, etc.). This, in case Janet Reno wasn't aware, is called capitalism; it benefits consumers.

If the Injustice Dept under Bill Clinton were truly interested in dismantling monopolies that injure consumers, they might have gone after the recording industry cartel that has colluded for years to keep the prices of records and cds artificially high. But no, the entertainment industry new how to play the Washington game and so has never felt the brunt of our do-gooders. It's bad enough that Micosoft must settle at all; but, for God's sake, let's end this idiocy and move on.

Peter Woods
peterwoods35@yahoo.com

MTC-00010220

From: Lynn Withrow

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:05am
Subject: To whom it may concern:
To whom it may concern:

Regarding the Microsoft request to keep the content of any future depositions from being released to the news media: This is a bad idea, and would only let Microsoft continue to get away with lying and evasion.

Since this case has ramifications for the entire computer and software industry, and for the millions of us who use computers each and every day both at work and at home, I truly believe that we, the general public, have a right to be informed of what both sides in this case are saying.

Thank you.
Respectfully,
Lynn Withrow
Belpre, OH
Computer Systems Specialist for Bosley Rental & Supply, Inc. (Parkersburg, WV)

MTC-00010221

From: ralyea
To: Microsoft
ATR.fin@mobilizationoffice.com@inetgw
Date: 1/11/02 10:10am
MTC-00010221 0001
Freehold, NJ 07728-1630
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice, 950
Pennsylvania Avenue,
Washington, DC 20530-0001
Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The purpose of this letter is so that i may go on record as being a staunch supporter of the settlement which was reached between Microsoft, the Department of Justice, and nine states, with the assistance of a mediator. The settlement, reached in ear November, 2001, after extensive negotiations among all parties, extends to terms beyond the issues in the original lawsuit.

Microsoft agreed to many terms that will help the entire Information Technology industry, Microsoft will disclose the intellectual property of the various internal interface used in Windows operating system products. Microsoft will grant computer makers broa?? new rights to configure Windows to promote even non-Microsoft softly e programs tha?? compete with programs included within Windows. Beginning with Windows XP, Microsoft will make it easy to choose and promote non-Microsoft software within Windows itself.

The Department of Justice and Microsoft have spent millions of dollars baffling each other in the antitrust suit. Any additional money that may be spent will be a comple waste. The government has too many other issues to worry about right now, and cannot afford to pour money down the drain. Our nation's economy is in trouble. A healthy Microsoft will help provide the shot in the arm that it needs.

Thank you for allowing me m express my views m support of the Microsoft settlement.
Sincerely, ??

MTC-00010221-0002

MTC-00010222

From: Joe Meldrich
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 10:11am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 8314 Cricket Lake Drive Charlotte, NC
 28277-9842 Phone (704)541-8062
 Fax (704)541-5895
 Softex, Inc.

Friday, January 11, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

Special interests may try to undo the recent settlement reached in the Microsoft antitrust case with the Justice Department. The reason I am contacting you is to show my firm support for this settlement.

Microsoft and the Justice Department reached a settlement after three long and expensive years in court. Both Microsoft and the DOJ spent millions on this case, and thankfully a settlement would bring an end to this flow of resources. If the special interests prevail Microsoft and the Justice Department will end up in court for another three years and spend even more resources on this case. The settlement is reasonable; there is no reason for a renewal of this case. Under the settlement Microsoft will share more information with competitors than any software company has ever shared before. A revival of this case would simply waste time and money, and benefit only special interests and those with animosity toward Microsoft.

The settlement that was reached is more than fair, and I stand behind it.

Sincerely,

Joseph Meldrich
 President

Your Converting Software Solution

MTC-00010223

From: BFSTK@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:12am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Tunney Legislation should be allowed to stand, it is a fair settlement. Let the special interest groups that oppose it compete in the market place instead of in court.

MTC-00010224

From: Chuck Greene
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:34am
 Subject: Microsoft

I find it rather amusing that Microsoft wants to block the public from knowing what their executives or whomever testifies for them. I believe most likely their motion will be denied. Microsoft with their track record with distorting the truth is probably well known, so I will assume the judge is aware of this.

Secondly, if Microsoft believes they did nothing wrong, that they are the true innovators of the industry, the same people who allowed "the open source movement to exist," what are they afraid of? Why enter a motion to deny the public to information they're entitled to?

Remember Bill Gates' deposition? That was a joke! The guy was lying through his teeth the whole time and when the public viewed his deposition, it was a joke!

I'm surprised they haven't found Bill Gates with contempt of court.

Again, this shows if it were you (John Q. Citizen) or me, we would have had the book (the law) thrown at us and the judge would have had a field day with us.

MTC-00010225

From: Tim Carlson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:36am
 Subject: DOJ VS Microsoft

To Whom it may concern,

The action against Microsoft needs to be settled immediately. In these uncertain economic times it is irresponsible to be trying to damage one of the companies that is fueling our economy to such a great extent.

As a tax payer I am outraged by this. It is obvious that there is more interest by some Government officials in enhancing their careers or catering to their constituents than there is in doing the country a service.

Sincerely Yours

Tim R. Carlson
 Snohomish, WA
 360-668-4047

MTC-00010226

From: Dick Uguccioni
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:37am
 Subject: microsoft case

end it—this country is weird—never heard of a government, except this one, that would penalize a world leading enterprise in its own country did i hear right— 41 states have signed off ??

MTC-00010227

From: Wes Mitchell
 To: 'microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/11/02 10:38am
 Subject: Microsoft Anti-trust case
 Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530
 email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
 Fax: (202) 307-1454 —OR— (202) 616-9937

To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft.

This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration,

J. Wesley Mitchell
 L & M Services, Inc.
 1600 132nd Ave. NE
 Bellevue, WA 98005
 425-637-9770
 425-637-9769 FAX
 CC: 'effwa@effwa.org'

MTC-00010228

From: Melody Berkheiser
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:53am
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 Go with the Bush and Microsoft settlement. It is reasonable. It is in the best interest of the public. It is best for every one all around, including, but not limited to our economy.
 Melody Berkheiser

MTC-00010229

From: Robert Cornell
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/11/02 10:00am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Robert Cornell
 307 Joe Cornell Rd.
 Oneonta, NY 13820
 January 11, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Robert Cornell

MTC-00010230

From: Mark Williams
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/11/02 10:49am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Mark Williams
 3957 Shadowhill Drive
 Santa Rosa, Ca 95404
 January 11, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech

industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Mark A. Williams

MTC-00010231

From: Jack Ensley
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 11:14am
 Subject: Microsoft
 1/11/02
 Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530
 To Whom it May Concern,
 As a citizen of Washington State, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft.

I won't go into detail, but I think the proposed settlement is fair and it is time to put this quagmire behind us. In the effort to protect us, the government sometimes does more harm than good. I think this has been a case of that kind. It certainly is time to bring it to a close and this settlement seems to be a way to do it.

Thank you for letting me say my piece.
 Jack Ensley
 624 Shawnee Rd.
 Colfax, WA. 99111
 509 397 3327

MTC-00010232

From: Joe Alonzi
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 11:33am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Department of Justice
 re: Microsoft settlement

Over the last several years the on going suit against the Microsoft Corporation has cost us the taxpayers many, many dollars. I can see no further reason to delay this ongoing issue any longer. The agreed settlement sometime ago seems too have been accepted by both parties and now its ugly head has reared up again and I would like to see this end and get on with making our economy run and become strong again.

Free enterprise has built this nation and it will continue to grow without the courts telling them how to run their business.

Respectfully,
 Joseph A. Alonzi
 Concerned Citizen

MTC-00010233

From: Lynda Newell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 11:49am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Having been an active consumer of Microsoft as well as competitive products for many years, I feel strongly that the case should be settled according to the agreement reached. Having discussed this case with others, who like me, are either users at home or at their business, not one person has expressed any thought or feeling that they have been taken advantage of by Microsoft, or have paid too much for the benefits and services Microsoft has provided. While I do not agree with the governments findings, and believe the states not agreeing to the settlement are simply pursuing additional funding for their state budgets, it would certainly be best for all—the consumer, the PC and software industry, and the economy, for this settlement to be concluded, and for the remaining states to join the settlement.
 Lynda Newell

MTC-00010234

From: Gregory Slayton
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 11:55am
 Subject: stop MS

Judge KK;
 the proposed settlement doesn't even begin to address the predatory practices of Microsoft...and will not reign them in going forward. please use your good efforts to make them play by the rules.

thanks.
 Gregory Winston
 CC:microsoftsettlemnt@yahoo.com@inetgw

MTC-00010235

From: BillMiglino@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:03pm
 Subject: (no subject)

To Whom it May Concern:
 As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft.

This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,

William G. Miglino

MTC-00010236

From: Jean Gumm
To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/11/02 11:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jean Gumm
1122 Ross Avenue
Hamilton, Oh 45013
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jean Gumm

MTC-00010237

From: David Carlson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:06pm
Subject: Tax settlement

I support the microsoft tax settlement, and want the government to lay off and quit harrasing microsoft.

Thank you.
David & Janice Carlson,
Liberty, Mo.

MTC-00010238

From: Peter Kulda
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement January 11, 2002

Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice

I think the proposed Microsoft settlement fails to achieve the necessary goals of a proper remedy: halting the illegal conduct, promoting competition in this industry, and depriving Microsoft of its illegal gains.

The United States can only maintain its competitive edge in the global software industry if open and fair competition is promoted in our country, which won't occur until Microsoft is stopped from stifling its competition. I agree with the concern that if they are not dealt a very sever penalty that is stringently enforced, Microsoft will continue with its monopolistic practices. And if it does, I fear that the USA will eventually fall behind in software innovations which will lead to foreign nations taking much of the market share, similar to how Japan took much of the auto industry market in the 1970's.

Thank you for hearing my opinion, and thank you for your work on this important case.

Peter Kulda
Salt Lake City, Utah

MTC-00010239

From: Tom Swan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's time to stop penalizing commercial success. Let's get the high technology sector back into the economic engine. I agree with President Bush. Settle the Bill Gates Microsoft lawsuit and quit wasting taxpayer money.

MTC-00010240

From: John Horvatic
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:14pm
Subject: PUNISH MICROSOFT DON'T GIVE THEM MORE BUSINESS!

To whom it may concern,
Microsoft needs to be punished, and from what I have read so far is that has not happened yet! There should be a huge fine and I'm not talking millions I'm talking BILLIONS!!! Put them down for the count not just for the round. What you have agreed to do is give them a slap on the hand and tell Microsoft to go ahead and do it all over again and we promise not to bother you anymore. What kind of punishment is this? Why don't you throw some of the executive team in prison. I thought that's what you do with criminals isn't it?

Please be more aggressive with this case and don't let them get away with what they have done and continue to do. I find the settlement very unfair to Apple Computers Inc. To let Microsoft put there own products in schools and force all schools to change out there equipment will not help anyone except Microsoft spread more of there crap out into the world.

Who profits from this? MICROSOFT!

Sincerely,
John Horvatic

MTC-00010241

From: walter roubik
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:23pm
Subject: DOJ—Microsoft settlement

I want to email DOJ on the settlement, but on DOJ@usdoj.gov I can't find any opening for comments. Fo you have any suggestion?

MTC-00010242

From: DONALD L STEELE
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 12:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Get off Microsofts back. This action was only taken because competitors were upset.
Donald L. Steele

MTC-00010243

From: dmath
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:24pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 ENOUGH IS ENOUGH!

We are at war as a country why do we have to have war within against an ali and a contributor to our country. Microsoft is a great company that provided we the consumer with an excellent product. Due to a few whiners/ competitors you the government took up a law suit that has benefited none. Settle this case and stop the stupidity!

Lynette Matheson

MTC-00010244

From: Phil Bassett
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/11/02 12:31 pm
 Subject: Settle Microsoft case <<January11.doc>> Philip H. Bassett January 11, 2002 Renata B. Hesse Antitrust Division U.S. Department of Justice 601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200 Washington, DC 20530

Dear MS. Hesse:

As a citizen of Washington State, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the antitrust case involving Microsoft.

This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court. In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business would be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Philip H. Bassett

MTC-00010245

From: George Wagner
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 12:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please proceed carefully with regard to the Microsoft settlement. The past has shown that Microsoft will not follow guidelines that have no enforcement, and will also exploit any limitations or loopholes that are present. Please ensure that competition is restored to the computer industry. Consumers need to be able to choose the best product for their needs, not the only product available.

Our country has been based upon fair play and equal opportunity. Let's not give up those values now.

Thank you for your time,
 George Wagner
 Computers, Support, & Consulting 6015 Glenbeigh Drive
 Sylvania, OH 43560
 (419) 882-0472
 FAX (419) 882-0253

MTC-00010246

From: Jeffrey Doyle
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/11/02 12:52pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General,
 I strongly oppose Massachusetts' involvement in trying to alter the proposed Microsoft settlement.

Stop listening to competitors who are avoiding the truth.

Jeff Doyle
 Sonexis
 70 Franklin Street
 Boston, MA 02110
 (p) 617.531.8072
 (f) 617.897.7898
 jdoyle@sonexis.com
 www.sonexis.com

MTC-00010247

From: VictorWBolie@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 1:02pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Honorable Renata B. Hesse,
 Antitrust Division, U.S. Department of Justice,

601 D Street NW, Suite 1200,
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

The Attorney General of the State of Iowa, Thomas Miller, JD, has suggested that I forward to your office my thoughts on the above case with respect to the DOJ objective (2), i.e. "to spark competition in this industry".

I am a recently retired engineering professor, with earlier experience in computers & electronics at Collins Radio Company, Cedar Rapids, IA and as Chairman of the Electrical & Computer Engineering Department at the University of New Mexico—and listed in Who's Who in America. With respect to the pending Microsoft antitrust case, I would like to offer my support for long-needed competition in the design of better and more open computer operating systems.

Forty-five years ago with the help of a well qualified engineering team I developed, with approval and cooperation from the Cedar Rapids IBM office, a computer operating system specialized to handle the mathematical equations routinely used by scientists and engineers like those at Collins. The key to its long string of successes was IBM's permission to study the detailed "innards" of their business machine processor & storage hardware, to enable the development of an optimized (and easy to use) set of simple links to the outside world. In all of the years elapsed since then, I have not seen an operating system of comparable capability and simplicity—even with the subsequent major improvements in hardware speed, memory, printers, telelinks, and mouse-controlled displays. A few software companies, under Microsoft Windows restrictions, have tried to produce mathematically adequate programs for equation computations, graphical plotting, and scientific text composition—but in my view they all lack user flexibility and are clumsy to use.

For example, for years in Windows, to even shut OFF the machine you have to press START, press SHUT DOWN, press OK. And you cannot even delete the "MSN Internet Access" icon advertising Microsoft. I have been unable to find any mathematical capability above the level of simple (and clumsy) arithmetic. The add-on called Visual Basic is totally inadequate in my judgment. Also, real privacy and security on the internet are fictional. Cookies and unapproved sales of your interest profile should be outlawed—no one should be able to load anything into your machine without your specific approval of the text in advance every time. Almost any software specialist could quickly remedy these and other defects if he or she could have open access to the programming code at the fundamental chip level.

In order to foster the commercial competition necessary for the evolution of new ideas in operating system software, I believe that any settlement with Microsoft should require a COMPLETELY stripped down operating system that makes it easy for anyone to develop his or her own way of handling equations, data, text, graphs, pictures, sound, and interfaces to lab bench equipment. This would quickly clear out the impediments to the development of new economic growth in the computer hardware and software markets. For example, if linked to a simplified "open book" Windows operating system, an improved-and-flexibilized version of the True Basic compute & plot system developed years ago at Dartmouth would in my opinion result in rapidly expanding markets in science, engineering, and education.

Thank you for considering my rather elementary contribution. After all these years I am still hoping for a remedy that does more than simply resolving the current internet-access problem.

Victor W. Bolie, PhD
4440 Morris Street NE # 334
Albuquerque NM 87111

MTC-00010248

From: Golden, Steve
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 1:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement 7026 Via Ostones Carlsbad, CA 92009-6614 January 11, 2002 Attorney General John Ashcroft US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The antitrust lawsuit leveled against Microsoft by the Federal Government was completely unfounded and totally unjustified. However, since a settlement was reached between the parties, it should be accepted and finalized by the courts as soon as the public comment period ends.

I personally feel the main tenets of the settlement go too far, are not fair to Microsoft and hurt the ideals of free enterprise and capitalism. Microsoft could easily go on fighting this thing out in the courts for years. However, Microsoft has very nobly agreed to accept and abide by the terms of the settlement instead of wasting millions of taxpayer dollars in round after round of court battle with the Federal Government.

For all intents and purposes the Federal Government won this case and should be very pleased with the outcome. The fact that Microsoft will now be forced to grant computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows so as to promote non-

Microsoft software programs that compete with programs included in Windows is proof that the Federal Government has met its objective. Additionally, Microsoft will be forced to document and disclose its various interfaces that are internal to Windows' operating system products—a first in an antitrust settlement.

Furthermore, Microsoft must make available to its competitors any protocols implemented in Windows' operating system products that are used to interoperate natively with any Microsoft server operating system. Finally, Microsoft has agreed to a three-person Technical Committee that will monitor Microsoft's compliance with the settlement and assist with dispute resolution. The government did the same thing to Bell Telephone Company back in the late 1970%. The results were tragic and I fear that the government did not take into account the future impact and this too will have a tragic effect on technology and the entire world. It appears that the Federal Government, at taxpayer's expense, won't stand for progress and will do everything it can to penalize or destroy the guy "out front," such is the case with Microsoft. Microsoft has transformed the face of the planet for the better and should be left alone once and for all. Please finalize this settlement as soon as possible. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Steven Golden

MTC-00010249

From: Rich and Bonnie DiBlasi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:07pm
Subject: abuse
stop the foolishness already . . . leave micro.alone to go about the business of making the econ. strong again. . . .
rich d.

MTC-00010250

From: randy ellis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:17pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement
To whom it concerns
I feel as a consumer that I May be able to purchase a product such as a computer, that I should be able to have certain choices of what is loaded onto my computer, application or operating system. It's bad business when I Buy a car, that I do not have a choice of interior or exterior colors, Options like A/C, P/W, P/L, sunroof, etc. I do have a choice to goto another manufacturer. but when there is shadey dealings going on that a manufacturer cannot offer dual boot operating systems or a choice, that the consumers get left out, as well hurt small business such as (Be inc.) Which I think was greatly harmed by microsoft, and Be's Operating System being a breakthrough before Microsoft's and Apple's recent released Operating Systems. I currently use it now, and have been using it for a couple of years. I think it is absolutely the best Operating System available and will never stop using it. However I do have to use my Windows98SE for somethings due to limited drivers, largely due to Microsoft's monopoly, (because the company's fail to write the driver's because they know Microsoft rules the market). I would like to see the BeOS or equivalent back into the market place, but there is no hope of success if the following issues aren't addressed: examples: open Office file formats, Win32 APIs, make dual-boot options mandatory, etc . . ."

Thankyou
Randy

MTC-00010251

From: gclen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Approval of the Microsoft Settlement will clear the way for continued growth in an industry that has completely stalled out over the past 3 years. It should be obvious to you by now that Microsoft's innovations in software drive the rest of the industry to produce more and better hardware and software products. Without that drive, the entire industry languishes for lack of direction, which is where we have all been lately.

The release of Windows XP is a good start toward recovery. I am using the product and have to say that Microsoft has some work to do to get it into the mainstream market. Nevertheless, any new operating system creates opportunities for other innovative products which either address the new problems caused by the new Microsoft product or take advantage of the new capabilities offered by the new Microsoft product. In all cases, the release will spur competitors to develop new products. Notice that while the case was ongoing and no great innovative MS products hit the market, no other competitors emerged from the background to take the lead. The entire industry just sat on the sidelines.

I say Lets Get On With It! Approve the Settlement and let the market do what it is going to do. There are plenty of discerning software users who will give Microsoft a hard time about their products without the government involved.

Margaret Felts

MTC-00010252

From: imagsmi@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please drop this case and let this company continue to serve the people. It has a good business record, and just because it is a rich company should not be prosecuted according to the desires of others. Let them make their millions, and serve the computer age.

Wilda I. Dixon
Rockledge, Florida 32955

MTC-00010253

From: Laurence Lewitt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Attorney General John Ashcroft US Department of Justice 950 Pennsylvania Ave. NW Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing to urge you and your office to allow the recent court settlement with Microsoft to stand on its own merits. I strongly believe that the original antitrust litigation was a total farce and completely unnecessary. It appears that the government is persecuting successful corporations at the behest of the company's competitors. That is WRONG.

The settlement is a fair one and was reasonably negotiated over an over extended period of time. The agreement contains provisions that maintain Microsoft's accountability to the industry and, unfortunately, the to government as well. Microsoft will share information about the internal interfaces of Windows with its competitors, enabling them to more easily place their own software on the operating system.

In addition to the state support for the settlement, there are too many important national priorities that need your attention, beyond the continued review of a successful business entity. With the ongoing war, a destabilized national economy and a faltering international political environment, I would hope you would allow this settlement to move forward and concentrate on the bigger more important picture.

Very truly yours,
Laurence G. Lewitt,
69 The Circle,
Glen Head, N.Y. 11545

MTC-00010254

From: Dave Hedger
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:31pm
Subject: Microsoft antitrust case

I, like most people who use computers, feel like the antitrust lawsuit against Microsoft was not well-founded from the start. Consumers have in fact benefited greatly from Microsoft and their Windows software. The lawsuit was initiated by disgruntled and jealous competitors, and joined by states who, like sharks, smelled blood in the water. The whole fiasco was a great perturbation in the economy, and contributed significantly to the bursting of the technology bubble and bear market that followed. Now it's time to admit the mistake and move on. Continuing the lawsuit is only prolonging the recovery, as investors nationwide await the result. My advice is to consummate the negotiated settlement hammered out between Microsoft and the DOJ. Do the USA a favor: let's move on.

Dave Hedger

MTC-00010255

From: Rob Steinbach
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:37pm
Subject: About the proposed barring deposition disclosure for Microsoft

Dear Sirs:

If Microsoft was to get their way, allowing pretrial depositions to be prevented from public disclosure, then I think it would be a disservice to the entire justice system.

I was taught in childhood that nearly the entire American justice process was supposed to be open, with some notable exceptions, not secret courts that effectively prevent defense, or prosecution, of the defendant.

I don't believe that Microsoft's pretrial depositions fall into one of these exceptions.

Since very little of the depositions will deal with actual trade secrets, then I don't see how Microsoft could reasonably expect the judge to uphold their requests.

I urge that the judge consider the nature of the request and keep in mind the need for the most open trial she can have, as permitted by law and common sense.

Sincerely,
Rob Steinbach
Programmer/Analyst
Ideal Chemical and Supply, Co.
4025 Air Park Street
Memphis, TN 38118

MTC-00010256

From: Paul Nendick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hello,

I'm a computer software engineering professional and am concerned by Microsoft's monopoly in my field of business. Their business practices, corporate ethos and products all threaten the Freedom of Speech.

The lynchpin for this is the popular Microsoft Word file format. Word (and other Microsoft Office) files trap each and every thought expressed in them by storing them in a proprietary, binary file format.

Only Microsoft products can correctly and consistently decipher these and no other software products can or ever will be able to do this. Microsoft has gone to great lengths to obscure and incorrectly document these file formats. Each word and thought expressed in these formats is a prisoner to Microsoft's future whimsy. Today these file formats cost no money to view, but will they in the future? Can we take this sort of risk?

I have personally investigated these issues as have hundreds of other programmers and we have all come to the same conclusion—Microsoft Office is and always will be the only software that can use these files.

There is a good discussion of this matter found here: <http://www.newsforge.com/article.pl>

To illustrate the importance of open standard formats for information exchange in binary formats such as these, one need look no further than the Internet for a shining example. I can use a Macintosh to view a webpage servered on a Sun server written by a Linux user. All this communication occurs flawlessly over a myriad different vendors' hardware. If Microsoft had understood the Internet better in it's formative stages, I'm certain we would not enjoy the remarkable open forum for ideas that the Internet is today.

A possible solution to this matter is to require Microsoft to fully support open, standard file formats for each of it's products. These formats can readily be designed in the same environment that forged the standards that hold the Internet together (IEEE) or the formats designed by the open source OpenOffice using the open XML specifications could be chosen: <http://xml.openoffice.org/>

In addition to making Microsoft support such a format(s), I believe it would be beneficial for the Justice department to recommend that the version of file format decided upon be the standard format used by the US government for its electronic document publishing.

If you like me to elaborate on these or any related issues, please contact me at this email address or at my home:

Paul Nendick
1420 West Fulton #2
Chicago, IL 60607
Sincerely,
Paul Nendick

MTC-00010257

From: Jeffrey Liang
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I applaud you for your settlement with Microsoft. The settlement is fair and in the consumers' best interests.

Microsoft may dominate the desktop market, but the PC is no longer the paradigm for computing. Thus, the anti-trust case has become almost a moot point. Government intervention would have undoubtedly shaken the software industry. In a time of economic uncertainty, drastic remedies may not be the best medicine.

As a software engineer, I may not like Microsoft. But I approve of your settlement nonetheless. Thank you for your efforts.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey Liang
203 E 31st St Apt 306
Austin, TX 78705

MTC-00010258

From: Myles J. Swift
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:45pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear DOJ,

I want to put in my two cents on the Microsoft case. We are a small software developer. Never has any company other than Microsoft provided so much help to an industry. When CD players were new and very expensive, Microsoft sold thousands of them to developers at a loss to start the CD market. When voice systems started to come in they did the same thing. They practically gave away what were $500 to $600 boards to get people started on voice programming.

Before Microsoft every computer manufacturer had a unique format. Floppy disks would only play in one brand of machine. Differing operating systems meant that we had to customize the program for each brand of hardware. Our software retailed for $3,995 in 1982. A better product sells today for $1,000.

With the cost of living changes the price differential is at least 8 to 1. Microsoft enabled the average end user of our products to save $7,000 on the price of a program compared to what it would cost without standards. This makes a case for how much Microsoft has helped consumers.

If Microsoft made computers and did the complete bundle I could see the merits of the case.

Right now Sun, Apple and IBM produce and sell these items direct: operating systems, hardware, networking components and applications. Microsoft sells operating systems and applications. Microsoft products are less expensive after distributor and retailer markup than the products sold direct by the other companies.

If their products did not have a good price/performance ratio, they would not succeed. I can see some merits in the case for how they worked with large hardware manufacturers. I cannot see any case for the public having been harmed. Please contact me if you have any questions.

Sincerely,
Myles J. Swift
Computer Assistance Inc.
Creswell, OR 97426
auto/truck repair management software since 1977
voice 541-895-3347

MTC-00010259

From: John R. Munn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 1:55pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sir/Madam;

I strongly oppose the DoJ proposed settlement with MicroSoft as it does not address the core issues of marketing misconduct and anti competitiveness. It will not result in a more competitive industry nor even in a better product from MicroSoft.

As a 30+ year programmer and a user of MicroSoft products for 13+ years I know what I am talking about technically. MicroSoft products are pretty and incorporate many innovative ideas (some great in practice and some disastrous). However, the performance and stability is such that if I had produced them and did not correct the problems in short order I would, justifiably, be replaced. With no significant market share competition, MicroSoft has no compelling reason to improve their products beyond keeping them pretty for the sales department with a new looking version periodically (without ever fixing the underlying problems).

If I as a private citizen continually violated agreements with the Justice Department (or any government agency) I would be jailed. If there were a small business which violated the laws to the extent that MicroSoft has it would be shut down and possibly have its principals jailed. What would not happen is having an agreement drawn up based on "what can you say that you will do that will sound like some action has been taken?"

While I do not advocate the destruction of MicroSoft and am ambivalent on it's breakup. I do know that effective (underlined) action must be taken to 1) restrict future unlawful action on MicroSoft's part, 2) some punitive steps for past misdeeds, and 3) provide a competitive environment for the entire industry. The current proposal addresses none of the foregoing effectively, if at all.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,
John R. Munn
Miami, FL 33157

MTC-00010260

From: Bud Levinger
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I understand that the Justice Dept. is taking public comments regarding the proposed settlement of the Microsoft monopoly case.

It is my opinion that the proposed settlement is probably about as fair as it is going to get. I further feel it is in the interest of our Country and of the consumers of Microsoft products to have this controversy settled now—rather than to drag on for an indefinite period.

So I am in favor of the Justice Dept. accepting the settlement as it now stands.

Thank you for carefully considering my opinion.

Harold Levinger
1235 Yale Place
Minneapolis, MN 55403

MTC-00010261

From: Raymond Pettitt
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 1:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Raymond Pettitt
808 Kennedy Ave.
Va. Beach, Va 23451-1142
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Raymond C. Pettitt

MTC-00010262

From: Alan Bargmeyer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We are a retired couple and use our computer daily. We don't know of anyone that feels they have been harmed or cheated by Microsoft. Their products are fairly priced and extremely well designed. We were not brought up using a computer and are thankful to Microsoft for making things so simple for us to learn and use. Their customer service is provided without charge and is available 24/7 to swiftly help us with any problems that may occur. We are not interested in having the DOJ support Microsoft competitors so they can provide "innovations" that the market doesn't want or need. Please support the current settlement and let Microsoft get on with producing the fine products we need.

While we do not believe Microsoft is cheating consumers, we do feel the oil companies are using their power to keep prices unreasonable high and the DOJ could help consumers by investigating their practices.

Sincerely,
Alan & Janet Bargmeyer

MTC-00010263

From: Steve Miller
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement 9199 S. Fox
Fire Way Highlands Ranch, Colorado
80126 January 11, 2002 Attorney General
John Ashcroft US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing first to congratulate you on reaching a settlement in the Microsoft anti-trust case. I would like to see you make sure this settlement is completed.

The settlement that was reached will create more competitiveness in the IT industry. This settlement requires Microsoft to share both internal interfaces and formerly secret code with competing software firms. This means that the competitors will have unprecedented access to Microsoft code and be able to compete as never before. Those that claim this settlement is weak are simply wrong.

Full implementation of this settlement should be a priority for your people.

I appreciate you taking time to consider my views on this issue.

Sincerely,
Steve Miller

MTC-00010264

From: Cottrill, Carole
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 2:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Case January 11,
2002 Attorney General John Ashcroft US
Department of Justice 950 Pennsylvania
Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am a great believer in the American dream—working hard, believing in yourself, pursuing something that is yours alone—and the rewards that will result from these principles. Bill Gates, through Microsoft, followed his dream and achieved more than anyone, even probably him, believed possible. He has since been punished for this by having to spend more than three years in court. Your office too has faced hardship and expense in this case.

The Department of Justice brought an antitrust case against Microsoft three years ago, charging monopolistic practices; i.e. his products were too good; hence, people bought too many, ignoring other firms' products. The case was eventually settled, with Microsoft acquiescing to the Department of Justice's demands, and satisfying many of Microsoft's competitors' desires.

Microsoft will, for example, share software information with its competitors and allow them to place their software on the Windows operating system. Microsoft and the Department of Justice have made an equitable settlement. The American people want to move on. I want to see an end to federal action in this case, and the settlement is the best option to end it.

Sincerely,
C. Cottrill

MTC-00010265

From: Terry Cornelisse
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough! Take this settlement and move on!!!

Jim & Terry cornelisse

MTC-00010266

From: ComdoreGeo@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In the name of Justice, U.S. principals, and to stop wasting our tax dollars please accept the settlement now,

George J. Deutsch,
5060 Key Largo Circle,
Punta Gorda, FL, 33955
Dennis Whittaker 34
Jeweff Hill, Berkshire, NY 13736
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft,

Department of Justice
950 Penna. Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing in support of the settlement with Microsoft. The changes it requires will restore fair competition and prevent future antitrust violations.

Microsoft has agreed to release the interfaces that make Windows work with software applications to competitors, meaning that other companies can figure out how to better write programs for Windows. Naturally, Microsoft has agreed not to retaliate against software or hardware developers who develop or promote software that take advantage of this new information. Plus, Microsoft has agreed not to enter into any agreements that force third parties to distribute any Windows technology exclusively. Clearly, these restrictions will benefit the consumers as well as the technology sector as a whole.

This settlement is in the best interests of the State of New York, The U.S., and the economy because it will stop any anticompetitive behavior before it starts. Continued litigation against Microsoft will put millions of dollars into a case that has already seen a fair and reasonable end.

Let the IT industry concentrate on business as soon as possible.

Sincerely,
Dennis Whittaker

MTC-00010267

From: Adam Shostack
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Department of Justice:
Doubtless you will get a large number of long, complex comments regarding this case. I'll keep this to the point.

I have read through the many documents in the US vs Microsoft case, and I am disappointed and concerned about the weakness of the proposed remedies. Microsoft has violated the spirit and the letter of the law. The proposed settlement does not sufficiently penalize them, control or limit their behavior, or deter them from future anti-competitive acts. Please ensure that the case results in a substantive penalty, and imposes strong controls on Microsoft's future activity.

Yours,
Adam Shostack

MTC-00010268

From: JonKai@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:55pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

this article below shows that MSFT has peddled for favors from President Bush on down to congressmen, and Attorney General Ashcroft..... if you approve this settlement, you will be flying in the face of the Tunney ACT..... please consider what you are doing, this settlement does nothing to keep MSFT from violating the law.... it doesn't even address all eight of the findings of the appeals court..... please use your power to stop this blight on justice.....

Microsoft Fails To Disclose Congressional Lobbying

By Robyn Weisman, www.NewsFactor.com
According to several legal experts mentioned in news reports, Microsoft (Nasdaq: MSFT—news) failed to inform federal judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly that it lobbied members of Congress in relation to its ongoing antitrust case. Court filings reveal only that Microsoft contacted members of the executive branch of the federal government, not anyone in Congress, despite reports to Congress that the company spent US$300,000 on lobbying in the first half of 2001 alone.

AT&T Didn't; Why Should We?

Defending itself against the allegations, Microsoft contended that AT&T, when it was embroiled in its own antitrust case in the early 1980s, also failed to inform its federal judge of its lobbying actions toward Congress, despite a 1974 statute that requires companies to do so.

That statute, known as the Tunney Act, was designed to prevent companies like Microsoft and the old AT&T from peddling favors to government employees in exchange for more leniency.
jon.

MTC-00010269

From: Billie Love
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Justices:
The people of the United States have had to fund this prosecution against Microsoft. I think the settlement that has been reached is in the best interest of the people. Please don't let any of the State Attorney Generals continue this litigation. I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this litigation.

Billie Love
8665 Springhill School Rd.
Belgrade, Mt. 59714

MTC-00010270

From: Allen Wiesen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 2:56pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

The settlement between Microsoft and the Justice Department and nine states reflects a reasoned approach to remediation of market inequities. We fully support the settlement, and are disappointed that the remaining nine states have not yet seen the obvious merits of the agreement.

Dr. and Mrs. Allen E. Wiesen,
Sarasota, FL

MTC-00010271

From: Rodger Sorenson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The purpose of this message is to let you know that I support an immediate settlement of the Microsoft case without any further delays and/or litigation. This issue has dragged out too long to the benefit of nobody except the lawyers and it needs to be closed as soon as possible. This is America-lets treat our innovative companies like Microsoft like we appreciate what they have done for our country.

Thank you,
Rodger D. Sorenson,
5370 W. Flying Circle,
Tucson, AZ 85713.

MTC-00010272

From: Dwight A. Ernest
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:02pm
Subject: Comments in Microsoft v. US Gov

To whom it may concern,
Here are my comments in the matter of Microsoft v. US Government:

The proposed settlement does not sufficiently penalize Microsoft, nor does it sufficiently control or limit their behavior, nor deter them from future anti-competitive acts. Please ensure that the case results in a substantive penalty, and imposes strong controls on Microsoft's future activity.

Yours most sincerely,
—Dwight A. Ernest
Internet Engineering Manager
551 Main Street
Boylston MA 01505-1313 dwight@significant.com
Phone: 508.826.7335

MTC-00010273

From: William G. Wizner
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 2:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

William G. Wizner
8544 Stone Harbor Ave.
Las Vegas, NV 89145-5707
January 11, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

William G. Wizner

January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to voice my concern on the recent events behind the Microsoft Antitrust case. I am against any further government action. What I do not understand is the punishing of Microsoft for producing a quality product. Under our system of free enterprise, we are free to purchase and use any computer products we wish. It just so happens that Microsoft has created far better products than other competing companies have been able to.

Can you imagine that use of the Internet by ordinary citizens would have been possible without a common platform for communications? In addition to the superior software Microsoft has created, the company has created a niche in the marketplace that in the past decade has brought a huge amount of growth to our economy, not to mention the standardization of computer software programs that have allowed computerization to become part of everyday life.

As an investment portfolio manager, I represent clients who have invested hard-earned savings into American companies like Microsoft whose financial success benefited ordinary Americans willing to invest in these companies. The additional litigation risk to shareholders has risen dramatically in this country as tort lawyers, including state Attorneys General, seek deep corporate pockets. It is no coincidence that the peak in our financial markets coincided with the Justice Department's announcement in March 3000 that it would seek to break up Microsoft.

Microsoft has agreed to grant computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows to promote non-Microsoft software programs. Microsoft has agreed to design future versions of Windows to make it easier for non-Microsoft software to be installed within Windows, and Microsoft has even agreed to a technical committee to monitor future compliance. I doubt if other firms would do as much. It is shameful that companies like Microsoft should be punished for their success—whatever happened to the American dream? I urge you to support this settlement.

Sincerely,

Renee Smith

MTC-00010274

From: Donald Phillippi
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 2:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Donald Phillippi
4 Sand Island Acc. Road #40
Honolulu, HI 96819-4355
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Donald L. Phillippi

MTC-00010275

From: bdouglas@hamakua.
Central.Sun.COM@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:02pm
Subject: Paragraph 24 -27

To whom it may concern,

Reference paragraphs 24—27 I would like to comment. Three years ago I tried to buy a PC from Dell and did not want windows. I went to their web site and found what I wanted. So I called up Dell and asked if I could buy the PC without Windows and at first they said no but then agreed to. I then inquired about the price without Windows and it was the same as with Windows. It was explained to me by one of the sales persons that Dell was forced by Microsoft to sell a Windows license with every PC, regardless if the OS was every installed or used. So not only do they tie I.E. and other applications to the PC but the OS as well.

Bob Douglas 303 475-2769

MTC-00010276

From: peter@matrix.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR,peter@matrix.net@inetgw
Date: 1/11/02 3:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ms Hesse:

I would like to express my opposition to the proposed settlement in the Microsoft Antitrust case. I believe that the offense against the American version of doing business and against the American people is far to great for the DOJ to treat it in this fashion. I believe that the points raised by the Attorneys General of the various dissenting states are far more pertinent than those of the DOJ. While the Court of Appeals vacated a portion of the original judgment, they retained all the conclusions relating to Microsoft's exclusionary and anti-competitive acts. I believe the proposed settlement treats these acts too lightly.

Sincerely,

Peter H. Salus, Ph.D.

MTC-00010277

From: Marla Araki
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:08pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530
email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
<mailto:microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov>
Fax: (202) 307-1454 —OR— (202) 616-9937

To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends. Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Marla Araki
John Priebe

MTC-00010278

From: jordan pollack
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:14pm

Subject: ms settlement

I am opposed to the settlement. Your agreement helps Dell, Compaq, IBM, HP, Gateway, etc, the sellers of computers who have had to deal with Microsoft's favoritism and capriciousness in pricing over the years, and it perhaps helps application vendors who want to preserve interoperability across Microsoft's upgrades (like wordperfect (dead), Lotus (dead) Netscape (dead) Real (almost dead) Palm (almost dead)).

But I believe that as long as Microsoft can dictate when and how much an upgrade costs for what has become a public standard like the electric or telephone socket, the nation will continue to be fleeced. Your settlement does nothing here.

If it were simply made illegal for the vendor or a proven monopoly product to charge for an upgrade, the vendor could not profit from bundle in clones of competitive products like outlook, explorer, mediaplayer etc, expecting to get their fee from forced upgrades and market capture. They would have to compete more fairly against unbundled goods. And, instead of monopoly in every area of software through competitive upgrades, secret formats for files, we would arrive through evolution of competition at public standards for file formats (like word and html and poperpoint) and oligarchies on user interface (like wordstar, wordperfect, and word, all working on the same files, or Powerpoint, Freelance, and Persuasion, working on the same presentation format!) Finally, the old licenses on junked computers (with appropriate certification) would become valuable in trade instead of worthless.

If you do fail to close this agreement, please read <http://jordanpollack.com/softwaremarket> for a free market solution.

Professor Jordan B. Pollack
Dynamic & Evolution Machine Org
Computer Science Department
FaxPhone/Lab: 781-736-2713/3366
MS018, Brandeis University
<http://www.demo.cs.brandeis.edu>
Waltham Massachusetts 02454
e-mail: pollack@cs.brandeis.edu

MTC-00010279

From: John.Borger@sun.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:21pm
Subject: A monopoly by any other name...

Hello,

I'd like to voice my dissatisfaction over the United States v. Microsoft Settlement. I do not feel that the proposed actions will do anything to stop Microsoft from wielding their monopoly power. Every time there is a new release of the product, you see companies crushed.

Unless Microsoft is broken into separate companies (OS, Browser, Word Processing, Spreadsheet) they will continue use Company A's technology in one release, stifle them, and then do what they wish in the next release (like the Kodak issue going on in XP).

I think what was agreed upon is less than a slap on their wrist and more of a slap in the face of the consumer. Through monopoly power and extortion (which is still against the law, isn't it?) , they nearly crushed Netscape. Have you ever wondered what happened to the Lotus Suite? It wasn't an inferior product that succumbed to superior product.

Furthermore, why should I be FORCED to pay an additional $99 for a computer that has MS Windows loaded on it? I want to run Linux. I should not be forced into paying for something that I do not want.

Thank you,
John Borger

MTC-00010280

From: Roger Rush
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General

Please see my comments regarding the Microsoft Settlement

Sincerely,
Roger Rush
Network Source One

January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am very glad about Microsoft not being split up by the federal government. As president of a network service provider company that depends on standardization, continuity, and reliability, I believe if Microsoft had been broken up requiring me to utilize 3 to 5 different companies for my needs, doing business would be very difficult. This is because things would no longer be one hundred percent compatible.

Microsoft's operating system is a seamless product and is very easy to work with, which allows my company to operate smoothly. To suddenly be forced by the government to alter this system would, quite simply, be extremely strenuous.

I understand some of Microsoft's original adversaries are against the settlement and are trying very hard to disrupt it before the court can finalize it. I suppose this is due to the fact that the government did not break up Microsoft. These entities will not be satisfied and probably will not give up their relentless pursuit until it is. This is unfortunate, because the settlement is totally fair. For example, Microsoft will change its licensing agreements with companies, and redesign Windows operating systems to make non-Microsoft features more accessible. I only hope it is finalized as soon as possible and that you do everything within your power to see that it is. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Roger Rush
President

MTC-00010281

From: Geudner, Michael A (Michael)
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:34pm
Subject: WAY TO GO- MICROSOFT IS A MONOPOLY THAT SHOULD BE BROKEN UP!

MTC-00010282

From: Harry Bardal
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Madam

I have watched the Microsoft antitrust trial with great interest. As a Canadian citizen I have been somewhat frustrated at my governments reluctance to act on what I believe to be Microsoft's anticompetitive practices. The ball seems to be in the court of the American justice system and my hope is that a fair remedy is found. I have used Microsoft's products and continue to, many are useful business tools. I do feel however that their business practices have been predatory and unfair to smaller businesses trying to compete in an already cutthroat industry. Although Microsoft succeeds in establishing standards that channel and consolidate computer usage and facilitate communication, the standards always proprietary and always seem to be vertically integrated with other Microsoft products. Perhaps more regrettably, these standards are often substandard. A phrase heard often in my area of business is "Microsoft Lock-in" It refers to the inability to use third party software in concert with Microsoft products. This combined with real virus problems and rather egregious security flaws makes many Microsoft products a necessary evil for many people even in the face of superior competing products.

I have seen some intelligent, well designed software try to compete with the Microsoft dominance and fail. Microsoft has expressed it needs to be allowed to innovate. Few Microsoft are truly innovative or remarkable and yet Microsoft's practices have quelled or absorbed other companies that have innovated. The technology sector has been a driving force in the American economy and by extension the Canadian economy and it deserves some scrutiny.

I believe that personal computers are the single most important tool of our age. They are the first example of true multi-use and not single-use technology. Many companies will have something to offer as the industry matures. I hope these companies might dare to innovate, compete and contribute to the Microsoft line of operating systems as well as Linux, Mac OS, Unix and dozens of other variants. I hope that this is allowed to flourish in a atmosphere of fair competition.

Regards
Harry Bardal
Vancouver, BC

MTC-00010283

From: Bill York
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,

Upon hearing about the solutions for the settlement in the Microsoft case I was appalled to hear that a company that has committed so many grievous acts against other smaller corporations would be handed so light a sentence.

Perhaps the one part of the settlement that disturbs me the most is the fact that Microsoft donate $1 billion in refurbished computers and software to schools to use. While at first glance this may seem like a very noble cause in truth this settlement enables Microsoft to leverage their monopoly even more.

What will happen is that the refurbished computers will consist of PC's and the software will be Microsoft based software.

Now being a software engineer myself I'm very well acquainted with the business model when it comes to producing software. There is an initial large cost up front for the design, development, and testing of the software. But once this cost has been fulfilled and the software developed the costs associated with mass producing the software, often involving copying the software code to a CD, printing of any manuals, and then the boxing and shipping of the product are relatively inexpensive. Using this cycle it is fairly easy for Microsoft to refurbish the cost of the initial investment. But because of this methodology they can easily produce a billion dollars worth of software and yet barely have their bottom line impacted because of the cheap costs associated with producing the CD, manuals, and packaging.

If you truly want to penalize Microsoft then make them pay $1 billion dollars to be distributed to the school systems so they can spend the money how they see fit. These individual school districts can then go out and purchase a non-PC devices and software produced by other companies than Microsoft. This is in turn will help foster competition and will come much closer to realizing the goals of this antitrust lawsuit in the first place.

Thank you for reading,
William York

P.S. The comments sent to the Dept of Justice does NOT reflect my employer's opinion and is solely my own opinion.

William York
1254 Bluebird St.
Brighton, CO 80601

MTC-00010284

From: mmikowsk@demai05.mw.mediaone.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 3:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom it May Concern:

As I have not received a validation from my prior posting, I again respectfully submit this proposal:

I am currently an owner of an Information Systems and software development firm. Based on my firm's experience in this field, I propose the following adjustments to the Microsoft settlement:

1. PROPOSAL A
- a. OVERVIEW

The US Government (and other governments) should embrace open standards for file formats for commodity applications such as Word Processing, Spreadsheets, Database, Graphics, and Mail.

- b. PROPOSED ACTIONS

* A national or international standards committee be formed to oversee commodity file formats, much like the W3C.

* Formats be developed for Word processing, Spreadsheets, Database, Graphics, and Mail.

* These formats should be based on open, published standards that can only be extended through the committee.

* The US government adopt these standards as required for governmental correspondence.

* Software producers must show their tools are compatible with these standards before government agencies employ them.

* Software producers should be encouraged to publish their compliance to these standards.

c. REASONING

Microsoft's monopoly on the business desktop is not derived from its innate value of its operating systems, but by its anti-competative use of its monopoly to control proprietary formats used in commodity applications.

Microsoft Word, Excel, Outlook, and others employ proprietary formats controlled, and changed at will, by the company. Any attempt to use other tools to access or edit this data are hamstrung Microsofts propensity to change these formats at its whim. This is the core of its anti-competative practices.

Microsoft has shown a pattern of first embracing competing formats (such as WordPerfect, and Lotus 1-2-3) and, once market dominance has been ensured, have emphasized their own proprietary formats. This is a trend they have continued to this day. One only need to look at how their "extensions" of HTML standards are currently being used to block access from any other platform besides their own. In the past, we wrote on paper. There are hundreds of producers of pens and paper. Today, we often write in word processors and spreadsheets. Should only one company in the world control the access to the intellectual property we create? d.

IMPLEMENTATION The technology and software already exists to move this proposal to a reality in a very short time period. The US Government could change to open file formats with little pain by employing Star Office while saving untold millions in licensing costs. It can require all html document meet the W3C guidelines for HTML. The government would provide the impetus from moving its data, and that of the people, out from under the control of a private interest, and into open formats where we the people can access our own data without being required to purchase a Microsoft product to do so. e. REFERENCES

Open File Formats: <http://www.computerworld.com/cwi/community/story/0,3201,NAV65-1797-STO64689,00.html> Star Office, which employs open, XML formats with excellent capabilities: http://www.sun.com/staroffice/6.0beta/;sessionid\$ROHKZK4E1MJ0RAMTA1FU3NQ The W3C group has provided standards which has allowed dozens of competing web browsers to be successfully developed:

<http://www.w3.org>

Anyware Office, which employs XML-like file formats in a product which works extremely well

Anyware Office: <http://www.vistasource.com/products/anyware/office/>

f. DISCLAIMER We own Microsoft Office Professional. We manage dozens of Microsoft OS's and Office products. We have tested (and are impressed) with Star Office. We also use Anywhere Office in an office of 5 individuals. We have no other connection with the companies or software presented above.

2. PROPOSAL B

a. OVERVIEW

The proposed settlement for providing Microsoft access to our children's and educators' minds is counter-productive to the good of the people and the government.

b. PROPOSED ACTIONS

* Require any software provided to US schools to be compliant with the requirements as set forth in Proposal A of this comment.

* Adjust the settlement so that Microsoft is responsible for providing hardware and funding only.

* Provide an independent body for determining the software and training employed by the schools.

c. REASONING

The proposed settlement to provide Microsoft software and training only further benefits the company, while displacing other firms such as Apple and RedHat. By taking the proposed value and applying it to hardware and funding only, the public is ensured to receive the value offered by Microsoft.

d. IMPLEMENTATION

I have no additional recommendations for implementation of this remedy at this time.

e. REFERENCES

The RedHat Counter Offer:
<http://www.redhat.com/about/presscenter/2001/press—usschools.html>

f. DISCLOSURE

We own Microsoft Windows 2000 and Mandrake Linux. We use RedHat Linux as our OS for web service development.

These are fair adjustments to the proposed settlement. They will provide innovative competition the like of which the industry has never seen.

I am available for discussion of these remedies at any time.

Respectfully Submitted

26 November 2001

Michael S. Mikowski

Managing Director, Uniphied Thought LLC

Dearborn, MI 48126

Tel 313-441-2579

Mobile 313-550-8406

CC:mdlug@radiusnet.net

MTC-00010285

From: MCMICHAEL, Ron (AAS)

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/11/02 3:42pm

Subject: LET THE SCHOOLS HAVE THEIR COMPUTERS

MTC-00010286

From: carrol townsend

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 3:58pm

Subject: MY OPINION

IT'S UNFORTUNATE THAT THE US GOVERNMENT THINKS THAT THE PRICE OF PRODUCT SUCH AS DELIVERED BY MICROSOFT WOULD BE LESS EXPENSIVE IF BETTER

CONTROLLED BY THE FEDS. IT SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN THE SAME ARGUMENT WITH THE BREAKUP OF THE BELL SYSTEM.

THE US GOVERNMENT NEEDS TO PICK A BETTER FIGHT, ONE THAT COULD HELP RATHER THAN HINDER.

MTC-00010287

From: Ulstad, Gary

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/11/02 3:59pm

Subject: Stop beating them up.

It is nice to have them providing jobs and paying income tax in the United States. I do not know about you but, I like US companies leading the world.

Gary Ulstad

MTC-00010288

From: thejokis@juno.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 3:58pm

Subject: Microsoft and the State of Washington

To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law.

Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case. These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends. Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Mr. & Mrs. Thomas A. Joki,
Mill Creek, WA

MTC-00010289

From: Chuck Burr

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/11/02 3:55pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

I think that this entire law suit is only because a few companies did not want competition and got in bed with the last administration. That aside, the Justice Department worked out a settlement that would help many children in this country. To give millions of people a few dollars is not an impact and by the time that money would get to the same poor schools it would be ten cents on the dollar. We need to move forward in this country and it is things like this Judge's ruling that will put this country into a real depression. I say move forward. This decision disappoints me, I know the Justice spent millions of our tax money to get here and now will spend even more if it has to go forward in a different direction....

Chuck Burr

Franchise Principal

Accountants Inc. Reno, NV

"Focused on Accounting and Financial Talent"

www.accountantsinc.com

MTC-00010290

From: Joseph Gregory

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/11/02 3:46pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Joseph Gregory

11 Valley, Lane

Wilkes-Barre, PA 18707-1735
 January 11, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Joseph Gregory

MTC-00010291

From: Justin Long
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 4:07pm

Personally, I think that all of this bullshit against Microsoft is ridiculously absurd. The only reason that the company is getting sued is because other incompetent people or businesses can't compete with the best in the business. Fuck all of you, jealousy is a sin, Bill Gates started Microsoft with no believers and now he's on top of the world and everyone wants a slice of his pie...yea, more money, more problems for Mr. Gates. Leave the man and his company alone, they have done wonders for the world of technology and just because he has what everyone else doesn't assholes wanna take it away from him....Pardon the swearing, but it's just another thing that is corrupted in this whole fucked up world that isn't run by leaders, or the people, but by the necessary evil called money. It's also good that all of the matters are being handled by the ongoing joke called the justice system...you won't beat Bill Gates, he's just gonna laugh at all of you stupid fucks from his position that, no matter how much you sue him, you will never attain. Have a great day.

MTC-00010292

From: hord, george
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/11/02 4:10pm
 Subject: Microsoft the Giant with the Battle Axe

To Whom it Concerns;
 My primary thoughts are:
 1) Microsoft has some allies because Microsoft helped them become rich by proving coat tails for the loyal or obedient.
 2) Microsoft has CRUSHED or rendered non existent any will to compete because of their marketing practices.
 3) There has never been a question about ability to innovate—Microsoft has never been or wanted to be the innovator, just the crusher. Let someone else lead and then CRUSH. Microsoft has ALWAYS copied technology or bought it, never innovated.
 4) Microsoft should be given absolute guidelines/mandate on what is operating system software what is internet software and what is application software. If USDOJ cannot do that then set up an independent panel that makes the decisions.

George Hord

MTC-00010293

From: Wesley Harrell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 4:13pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

To whom it may concern,

I wish to register my opinion regarding the proposed Microsoft settlement. In short, I disagree with the provisions of the settlement, and I believe the current proposal lacks any real punishment to a company that has been found guilty in the past, as well as in the present case, and if unchecked will act in a similar manner in the future. A just settlement would include, but are not limited to, some of the items I list below.

1. Any remedy seeking to prevent an extension of Microsoft's monopoly must place Microsoft products as extra-cost options in the purchase of new computers, so that the user who does not wish to purchase them is not forced to do so. This means that for the price differential between a new computer with Microsoft software and one without, a computer seller must offer the software without the computer. Only then could competition come to exist in a meaningful way.

2. The specifications of Microsoft's present and future document file formats must be made public, so that documents created in Microsoft applications may be read by programs from other makers, on Microsoft's or other operating systems. This is in addition to opening the Windows application program interface, which is already part of the proposed settlement.

3. Any Microsoft networking protocols must be published in full and approved by an independent network protocol body. This would prevent Microsoft from seizing de facto control of the Internet.

4. No settlement should include free Microsoft software to schools, or other needy organizations. This does nothing to decrease Microsoft's control over the computer market, and in fact increases their market share.

Regards,
 Wesley Harrell
 232 NW 4th Ave
 Gainesville, FL 32601

MTC-00010294

From: Peter Lewandowski

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 4:16pm
 Subject: I thought this was a monopoly investigation?

If Microsoft is a monopoly the main task should be to stop Microsoft from being a monopoly, if they are not then just leave them alone. If you go to McDonalds are they not allowed to sell Pepsi products, or Taco Bell sell Coke? Even if it's a franchise most are required by the agreement to sell one or the other product not both. Now I'm not a big Microsoft fan nor do I like Bill Gates, but if Bill made America believe that they have the only operating system good for him. I personally need to use it in business and it's a corporate directive. I would rather use something like LINUX but unfortunately there is little useful business software for it and we do not have the staff to support both LINUX and Microsoft.

I have an idea that the Justice Department seemed to overlook. Don't break Microsoft up but rather make them liable for security violations that "known issues" and the cost related to businesses that have a violation. Have a "Lemon Law" for bad software. Currently if a software company has a known bug that disrupts business, or forces a business to pay a fine, they don't get charged for that. Think about it this way, if you bought a car and the brakes didn't work wouldn't you sue the manufacturer for a defective product? Why don't software companies get held to that level of liability? If Microsoft had to reimburse companies for each worker's hours who had to restart their computer because Microsoft's software was written so badly they would be a very, very small software company fast and have a very small user installed base.

My two cents,
 Pete
 Atlanta, GA

MTC-00010295

From: Rush, Brad
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/11/02 4:17pm
 Subject: Settle Now

Get it over with. Your actions are giving them justification to charge even more for their software. Let free enterprise work.

Brad Rush, CMA, CFM, CBM—
 CNL Retirement Corp.
 Office: (407) 650-1010
 Fax: (407) 650-1022
 Cell: (407) 421-1003
 E-Mail: Office

<mailto:brush@cnlonline.com>
 Personal <mailto:brad@bradrush.com>

MTC-00010296

From: Ania Lewkowicz
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 4:18pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement.
 To:

Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice

I was very saddened by the Microsoft settlement and how it seemed that all the evidence in the world could not break through that steel wall of a monopoly. I cringe to liken this case to the O.J. Simpson trial, where the evidence was overwhelmingly in favor of his guilt, yet it seems as though the jury was somehow "jaded" to believe his story when the rest of the world thought of it as an open and shut case of spousal murder. In a way, this MS case is no different. How is it possible to see the plethora of proven instances of monopolistic behavior, yet to let them go with no more than a slap on the hand? I truly believe that Microsoft got off VERY easy, and as a consumer, I am frustrated by my inability to determine for myself the design and configuration of the initial screens displayed on the PC's being sold today. My choice is limited to either Windows or virtually nothing. And if that's not a monopoly, then I'm interested to hear another definition explaining what exactly that is.

Sincerely,
Ania Lewkowicz

MTC-00010297

From: Pouya Yadegar
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 4:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Case.

The premise that a company that makes money did it by cheating, lying and stealing and did it at the detriment of "people" is exactly the opposite of what happens. Anybody that makes money is HELPING and more importantly has the right to pursue their goals.

Your counter to that is that "what if they do it by cheating"? The answer is that the people get to vote with their $$, not the government by some chaotic mystical measurement that changes from day to day. If you want further clarification of this concept please review the results of communism/socialism countries like Russia and their results vs. (for the most part) democratic countries like the U.S.

The only "monopoly" that exists anywhere is one started by the government, subsidized by the government (See Fannie Mae, Freddie Mac and the USPS.) Microsoft had no government help and they need to be honored for their contribution to society. The entire country and even the WORLD needs to have a yearly celebration thanking Microsoft instead of Breaking their balls. If everybody pursued and achieved what Microsoft has done the world would be such a utopian place that is not even imaginable compared to our society today.

MTC-00010298

From: Kris Brinkerhoff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:28pm
Subject: DOJ vs Microsoft anti-trust case
To whom it may concern:

I believe that Microsoft needs to be punished just like any other company found guilty of practicing a monopoly. The industry usually has to conform to what they say they are going to support or not support in their operating system. To have your hardware item listed as being "made for Windows" gives you an edge over the competition.

As for their trying to appease the government by providing PCs to lower income students and schools, they should actually provide Macintosh computers or cash otherwise they are again undercutting competition and widening their customer base and dependence/influence upon them once again.

Also if they have a piece of software on CD they can just duplicate the software on the CD. It is pretty much like being able to print their own money. They can copy as many as they want and call it 500 million in software because they are selling the license to use the software.

The damages should be paid in monetary figures not in software which can be produced once and published an infinite number of times.

Thank you for your time.
Kris
California: microsoftcomments@doj.ca.gov
Connecticut:
attorney.general@po.state.ct.us
Florida: ag@oag.state.fl.us
Iowa: webteam@ag.state.ia.us
Kansas: GENERAL@ksag.org
Massachusetts: tom.reilly@ago.state.ma.us
Minnesota: attorney.general@state.mn.us
Utah: uag@att.state.ut.us
West Virginia: consumer@mail.wvnet.edu
US Dept of Justice-Microsoft anti-trust comments:
Microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
US Dept of Justice-other sites worldwide:
<http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/contact/otheratr.htm>
Kris Brinkerhoff
—ITS Help Desk Analyst
—California State University, Fresno

MTC-00010299

From: Fritzly
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

In my opinion it is time to close this unfortunate episode that only brought to the surface the many contradictions of our system. First we had a Judge so anti MS oriented that the trial reminded me the ones in Beria's time. In spite of that I still don't see what damage was caused to the consumers by MS behavior. I am a customer, I bought in 1995 Netscape Navigator and I paid it more or less $35 when IE by MS was already free, why? Because it was a better product! After that Netscape failed to improve their software and I switch to IE because it became a better product. The most serious issue here is that tax payer money has been and it is being used to satisfy the request of MS competitors, who unable to create a better product are lobbying to harm the competition with me paying the bill to do this! This is a real scandal and must stop. Do you really believe that people are so stupid to believe that when MS competitors speak out they do it to protect consumers? Nobody who is awakens and active in our society believe it. The same fact that the only way to bring MS in court was to use a law more than eighty years old, a law created specifically to hit a certain company, a law involving the right to use natural resources and not, as MS case, to commercialize intellectual properties. Be very careful targeting the same idea of success, being smarter is not a sin as it is not being a mediocrity, the real sin is pretend that as you are a mediocrity everybody else must stick at your same level. History books are full of examples of what I mean.

Best regards
Stefano Colasanti

MTC-00010300

From: Jon Thompson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:37pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Hello,
My name is Jon Thompson, and I am a resident of Iowa (706 South Main, Woodward.)

I've recently read that the National Department of Justice has settled with Microsoft on a punishment. In my opinion, this settlement is much too light, and it will not restrict Microsoft's existing illegal practices.

The remedy should require Microsoft to:

1. Use open standards.

Microsoft has shown that they repeatedly use a technique of "embracing and extinguishing." Microsoft will embrace an open technology, then make changes that only Microsoft products can understand. The web is an example of this. Microsoft has implemented new, subtle, additions to HTML (the web's language) that only Microsoft browsers can read.

2. Make all applications available to alternate Operating Systems. Microsoft has kept other systems (Linux and Mac OS) out of businesses by limiting the available Microsoft software for those platforms. If MS was required to make—all—software available to at least two operating systems besides Windows, it would minimize that lock of their Monopoly.

Also, this would limit the pressure that Microsoft could impose on other companies. It is well known that Microsoft threatened to drop Mac OS support for Office unless Apple used Internet Explorer as the default browser. If MS was required to support two other operating systems for all applications, they wouldn't have this power.

I hope that Iowa is not one of the states that supports the current settlement, as it is not nearly hard enough.

Jon Thompson
706 South Main
Woodward, Iowa 50276

"They that give up essential liberty to obtain temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."—Benjamin Franklin

MTC-00010301

From: Jeff Powell
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:36pm
Subject: microsoft settlement case

Its to bad that the judge of the microsoft settlement case regards capitalism as more important than education. What is this world coming to?

Aaron

MTC-00010302

From: Curt Johnson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement.

I support the settlement proposed by the Bush administration.

AL GORE may have invented the internet, but Bill Gates is the one who made it possible for all of us to use it.

Quit spending tax payer moneys on the pursuit of more litigation.

Curtis Johnson
2511 M-140
Niles, MI
49120 curtis.johnson@mindspring.com

MTC-00010303

From: Robert C. Marshall
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:41pm
Subject: The Microsoft Ruling

Thank goodness—the judge that ruled against the Microsoft settlement can see the some of the anticompetitive effects that would result.

The original ruling is right: MS should be split up.

When IBM was in trouble in the 1960s and 1970s, they were not treated the same way MS would be treated should they be allowed to distribute PCs to schools. In those days, the law seemed aware enough to realize that capturing dominant market share at the level of the public schools would strengthen a company's competitive stranglehold on the computer industry considerably. It would also enable them to influence the market mindset of future generations in their favor. Why would it be any different, now?

Also, what about Apple? Shouldn't they be allowed to exist and to attempt to compete?

You should take a look at a number of MS's practices. Netscape has suffered. Clearly, MS's next targets are Sun Microsystems (Java), and any commercial Linux offering that might threaten their market share in the future.

MTC-00010304

From: Biondo, Ted HS-SNS
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 4:42pm
Subject: Microsoft case comments

US Department of Justice,
A far greater threat to our country's free enterprise system, than any adjudicated monopolistic tendencies of Microsoft, is the precedent being set by members of Congress and State Attorneys General who have placed the financial goals of Microsoft's competitors, residing in their respective states, ahead of the American consumers! These "defenders" of competition are using the powers of their office, and the courts to intimidate and dictate restrictions on businesses in order to level what should remain a competitive playing field.

Microsoft created standard operating systems and application software that has decreased the price of consumer hardware and software, not increased it. Microsoft developed software processes that have brought computers to the masses using visual format, while creating millions of jobs in associated peripheral hardware equipment by simplifying those peripheral interfaces for nontechnical users. This is bad for the consumer?

Finally, in the global arena, foreign nations have created government financed monopolies, and now a common currency, to compete with American corporations. To remain competitive, our manufacturing industries have been consolidating and outsourcing processes for years to those very same nations, resulting in the loss of American jobs and purchasing power. One of the few remaining successfully competitive businesses the USA holds in world commerce is the software service industry. Since this software monopoly "witch hunt" was begun by those who cannot compete in our free market without using their government officials to stifle competition, our overall ability to compete in the global market will be reduced and will inevitably drive the software service industry down the same road as its manufacturing counterparts.

Investors will not risk their capital in a marketplace controlled by political whim versus business scrutiny!

Terrorists from without will never damage our free enterprise system as much as the self-serving powers from within under the guise consumer protection! The Justice Department settlement of restrictions, the ban on exclusive contracts and disclosure of APIs goes far enough. Please end this charade. Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this most important case,

Ted Biondo
(815) 226-5958

MTC-00010305

From: Joe Vislocky
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:46pm
Subject: Microsoft's rejected settlement

I believe the judge was acting in a well considered manner. It seems to me that to punish a company whose practices have been deemed anti-competitive by giving them the means by which to further their monopolistic strategies was ill conceived in the first place. I know in my mind and many of my colleague's, it appeared that certain parties in the government had switched sides and were in fact in collusion with Microsoft.

Joseph S. Vislocky
IT Director
Wilmar Corporation
jvislocky@mcwil.com

MTC-00010306

From: Roger Lathrop
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:43pm
Subject: Microsoft suit

Yet another Federal Judge has misunderstood the Microsoft situation. I have owned apples and IBM compatibles. I've worked with dos, Windows, & Linux. Microsoft simply has a superior product. I was very happy to have a free browser included. In point of fact, I prefer Netscape, so I downloaded that with Microsoft's free browser and was in business in a few minutes.

My state (Iowa) has made a bad decision based on politics and not on fact. The settlement should be approved because the suit is ill founded and harmful to our economy. If anyone cares what this one individual thinks, there it is.

Roger Lathrop
Davenport, Iowa

MTC-00010307

From: GDingioan4972035@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:51pm
Subject: WHEN WILL QUIT WASTE TAXPAYERS MONEY AND END THIS GAME

i do not own any stock in microsoft but i feel this legal drag on microsoft has gone enough with no one benefiting at all only remedy is money so why not agree to number and wrap this hell we are sick and tired of it and i will still use microsoft so what is gained from something old like this case microsoft has agreeded to admit some fault and will pay for it what else can you get nothing but waste alot of tax payers money you can't brake it up for appeal court said this already i just find it strange that we are a real bad recession and you are going after the engine in the car without microsoft there is no recovery and you will see real defects we can not afford another 2001 but unless this is not settled and quickly then we will

mr. bush has already said he wanted closed quickly now please end this game we have enough problems then the ego game by 9 district attorneys who are only looking for policial gains only
thank you
george g. dingioan
gdingioan4972035@aol.com

MTC-00010308

From: Bob and/or Jan Thune
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:53pm
Subject: Microsoft

Get off of Microsoft' case. Once again government is wrecking a vibrant US industry, just like they did the Automobile Industry (where I made my living).

This is NOT about protecting the consumer. Even the DUMBEST person knows that you are not abusing the customer by giving something away something for free. It just can't happen.

This case is about "wanna be's" spreading money around Washington, and Washington sucking it up just like they always do.

Somewhere this has to end..... End It !!!!!!!!!!!!!

I hope Gates moves his business to Canada just to show you idiots !!!!!!!!!!!!!

Robert and Jan Thune, Lecanto, Fl.

MTC-00010309

From: Dan Jerry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:52pm
Subject: Recently, a friend of mine asked what I thought of the Microsoft case. Recently, a friend of mine asked what I thought of the Microsoft case.

Me: "Do you think the mafia is profitable?"

Him: "Sure".

Me: "If you could invest in stock in the mafia, that would pay dividends, might you do it?"

Him: "Sure!!"

Me: "Suppose you did that; you put most of your investment cash into mafia stock; and it paid handsomely."

Him: "Yeah!"

Me: "The mafia is reputed to give a lot of money to churches, little old widows, and help neighborhood families in need. That's a good thing, right?"

Him: "Right".

Me: "Do you think the maffia, -over all, is a good thing for society?"

Him: "Well, no..."

Me: "Well, considering you invested a lot of money in the maffia stock, where now do your loyalties lie? Do you think the Justice Department should leave the maffia alone, because they give a lot of money to churches, etc., and pay you a healthy dividend? Or should the Justice Department do what is necessary to prevent the maffia from doing harm?"

In case you don't understand my alegory:

Sure, Microsoft gives away millions to schools; -for a fantastic tax deduction no doubt. Microsoft, it has finally been officially determined, also stifles competition, strong-arms vendors, and generally, -acts like the maffia! Break them up!

Dan Jerry

Actively involved with the "micro computer" since 1978, and an avid industry historian and intentional observer.

553 Beartown Road
West Chazy, NY 12992

MTC-00010311

From: Daniel A. Myerson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 4:55pm
Subject: Settlement

The attack by the justice department was unjust. How could any settlement be called unjust in those circumstances? Dan Myerson

MTC-00010312

From: Mark Overholser
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:01pm
Subject: Get off their case!

I'm sick of you jack-booted courtroom thugs at the Department of Justice pursuing this poppycock at a time when there should be PLENTY of legitimate bad guys out there for you to spend OUR money chasing.

Get off Microsoft's case. That company may not be the friendliest "neighbor" in the corporate 'hood, but they put many thousands of people to work and pay their corporate taxes on time...and if people don't like the company, they don't have to buy its products.

Clinton's gone now, it's okay for you to stop wasting OUR money on YOUR ideologically-driven left wing witch hunts again.

MTC-00010313

From: Rglandiel@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:02pm
Subject: Microsoft

I am a supporter of Microsoft. This alligation has gone on too long. Microsoft has made sufficient changes to there software and operating procedures. Do you want the last ounce of blood?

Robert

MTC-00010314

From: Andrew Warren
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 4:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Andrew Warren
POB 476
New Tripoli, Pa 18066
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
A J Warren

MTC-00010315

From: Richard L. Joslin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:04pm
Subject: Short sighted vision relative to Microsoft fiasco

It appears to me that the United States Justice Department has been very short sighted in what the Microsoft Corporation has done for the "home user" and to the overall balance of payments to the US Treasury. Go ahead and kill them off and create a reason for them to leave the U. S. and you will be responsible for more of a problem than settling the case now. The Clinton administration created the mess to cover up for the presidents wrong doings and get the "heat off" him and now you are just proliferating a non problem. Where else could a small time user like me get a desk top software setup so cheaply and made in the USA? You guys are not solving the problem, just adding to it in my opinion.

You are all alike. Kill any one who makes a dollar and at the same time take away the little guys software while pretending to represent him.

Richard L. Joslin
18416 SE 280th St.
Kent Washington,
98042
Registered Republican voter

MTC-00010316

From: Thomas Hill

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:05pm
Subject: settlement

I believe that a dollar amount from Microsoft should be reached for the schools and let the teachers decide which computer systems (Microsoft or Apple) to use. It is imperative that money be provided to the "poor schools". These kids from low income families are falling further and further behind the rest of the nation relative to technology knowledge and many of these kids are intelligent and deserve an opportunity to compete at a higher level.

Although I am not an owner of Microsoft stock, I am the CEO of a company that spends over $100,000 annually on software (most of which are Microsoft products) and hardware. I would not approve the purchase of any other office software other than Microsoft's. I believe the current settlement with the Justice department is satisfactory while nine (I think) States are trying to hinder Microsoft so that competitive companies in each State will have a better chance at survival. I think the Justice department should ban these States from further litigation against Microsoft. Let software companies compete against each other and the best products will win. This is the way our economy is setup to work!

Thomas W. Hill
<twhill@ugaalum.uga.edu>

MTC-00010317

From: Kent, Mike
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 5:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a computer professional and computer software and hardware professor, I am concerned that the proposed settlement will amount to little more than a slap on the wrist to Microsoft. In fact, the proposed settlement may well allow Microsoft to strengthen its hold in the education market. Microsoft is a monopoly. It has used its dominate position to stop its completion.

The remedy must be to break up the company or destroy its ability to crush its competition in illegal and monopolistic ways. There is fledgling and growing competition to Microsoft. In the past Microsoft has been able to crush its completion by intimidation or illegal ways.

Please act. The future of innovation and diversity in the computer industry may well depend on it.

Thank you for your consideration in these matters.

Mike Kent
Department Chair
Computer Information Systems
San Jacinto College, Central Campus
mkent@sjcd.cc.tx.us

MTC-00010318

From: Carl Friedberg
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:15pm
Subject: Proposed settlement
Renata Hesse
Trial Attorney
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street, NW, Suite 1200

Washington, DC 20530
 Facsimile: (202)616-9937 or (202) 307-1454

Email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov

Dear Renata Hesse,

I am a physicist who has worked with computers, computer operating systems, and applications, since 1961. I am not a legal specialist. I have read carefully the proposed settlement between some of the states and the US, and Microsoft.

I am astounded that, although found guilty of violating the Anti-Trust statutes, there is no direct provision for any punishment of Microsoft.

The only recourse I have is to initiate civil litigation against Microsoft in the hope of recovering treble damages. Because of the difficulty and expense of such litigation, this recourse is of little use or value to any user who has suffer damage from Microsoft's Windows monopoly, and the resulting lack of choice in the desktop marketplace.

We, the users of desktop computer operating systems, deserve better from our government. Where is Microsoft being punished for willful, illegal actions? Forcing them to open up certain Windows and Middleware APIs is not punishment; it is merely an attempt to slow them down from increasing their 95% dominance in the marketplace to 100% dominance.

I hope the Honorable Judge of the US Court will take into account the concerns of those states which are not parties to the proposed settlement, and punish the guilty party here. Microsoft deserves significant punishment; there is none, that I can see, in the proposed settlement.

Restraining future monopolistic activities is essential, because Microsoft is a huge force in this marketplace, and has reaped enormous improper gains.

Just look at the amount of cash Microsoft has accumulated, which can be used at will to thwart legitimate competitors. Even a casual reading of the US tax code suggests that the amount of cash amassed by Microsoft exceeds a reasonable number, and should instead be distributed as dividends to shareholders (and taxed). This solution, while perhaps a bit stretched in legal terms, could certainly be held over Microsoft's head as a stick—and they could agree to declare some dividend (perhaps only $10 or 20 billion dollars per year) as a token of punishment for their illegal behavior. What a punishment!

I hope you will consider some appropriate form of punishment, in addition to the proposed restraints.

Thank you.

Carl E. Friedberg, PhD
 President & CEO
 Comet & Company
 New York NY
 www.comets.com

MTC-00010319

From: FDissen@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:15pm

Subject: Microsoft Decision

I agree with the Court's decision.

Period!

Fred H. Dissen

6208 Clearbrook Drive
 Flowery Branch, GA 30542

MTC-00010320

From: Mary Salaja

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:23pm

Subject: microsoft case

What are you thinking. Since when does the criminal get to decide and possibly profit from committing a crime. You need to look past the fact that MS is a corporation and focus on the fact that it has been convicted of a crime. Therefore, the PUNISHMENT should make certain that it is not in a position to continue its CRIMINAL activities. Besides, isn't competition suppose to be the American way.

J. Salaja

MTC-00010321

From: Jim (038) Widget Webert

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:24pm

Subject: MSFT settlement

Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530
 email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
 Fax: (202) 307-1454 —OR— (202) 616-9937

To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft.

This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly. I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,

James Webert

POB 2776

Friday Harbor, WA 98250

MTC-00010322

From: dorothy smith

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:29pm

Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

A SWIFT SETTLEMENT IS IN THE BEST INTEREST OF OUR COUNTRY.

MICROSOFT CUSTOMERS AND THE AMERICAN TAXPAYER. PLEASE END IT. KINDEST REGARDS.

God Bless You!

Dorothy C. Smith

dorothysmith—2000@yahoo.com

MTC-00010323

From: Gene Williams

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:35pm

Subject: My experience with Microsoft

11 January, 2002

Ref: My experience with Microsoft

Dear Justice Department,

I use Microsoft's word, excel and access software programs and Microsoft's OUTLOOK 2000 email program. I use these every working day and also at home. My job is to support agents in 75 countries.

I urge you to take a strong hand with Microsoft and force them to be more compatible with competing software companies and to cease the practice of forcing upgrades to their software products. Their marketing practice of designing their products so that upgrades are forced on their customers is, very often, unnecessary, expensive, causes delay and increases the cost of doing business.

A specific example is Internet Explorer 98 which I have on my home computer. It will not access secure websites (I cannot use it to order goods and services online). I have to use NETSCAPE to place orders online. I cannot upgrade Explorer 98—Microsoft will not let me. Two computer repair services have advised me that I must wipe my computer clean and then reinstall Explorer 98 or install a later version.

Another example is the practice of upgrading Microsoft word in such a way that attachments to email sent to recipients who have a lower version of Word cannot open the attachment; they must purchase a word attachment for their computer in order to open the documents in your new version of word. These practices are petty, demeaning and are low level marketing tactics unbecoming of a major US company.

Best Regards,

Gene Williams

Marketing Director

GLOBALTEL

1801 North Military Trail, Suite 203

Boca Raton, Florida 33431-1811 USA

Tel: (561) 999-9116, Extension 112

Tel: (800) 219-9545, Extension 112

Fax: (561) 999-0518

E-mail: Gene@GlobalTel.com

Website: www.GlobalTel.com

MTC-00010324

From: james arnstein

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:43pm

Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Settlement

Dear Sir,

I think the DOJ and the 9 states entered into the anti trust settlement is obsessed to see how far they can carry out this case. Microsoft has had sufficient penalties levied against it. It seems to me that we all need to get on with our "business at hand,". Everything that continues to go on now, seems like a "cheap shot" at Microsoft as long as it is forced to "tippy toe" around until the settlement is completed.

James Arnstein

MTC-00010325

From: Majkmushrm@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm

Subject: Microsoft's punishment

Gentlemen.

I find it remarkable that the government thinks that an appropriate punishment for a convicted monopolist is to effectively increase their sales by a billion dollars and give them free access to markets they had previously been unable to force their way into. If the government isn't going to break the company up and is considering a $1B fine, I would offer the following suggestion.

1. The $1B has to be all cash, not one single microsoft product. The money should all be spent buying Apples, Suns, and tech support for non-Microsoft operating systems (getting rid of those microsoft worm, virus, and crash prone IIS machines would probably do the net a world of good). This would give Apple (where microsoft stole most of their really good ideas) a boost. Getting the schools out of the cost cycle associated with microsoft's monopoly inflated prices and into Linux would give them a more virus resistant system and help them in the long run (Linux is about $75, Windows about $400—go figure).

2. Microsoft should be required to make a version of all their software (i.e. MS Office, etc) for all operating systems i.e. Apple, Linux, Unix, Sun OS etc. Most application providers provide versions of their products for various different operating systems but not microsoft. This would force them to make less tightly interlinked software (and would actually improve it's performance) as well as help break the vertical monopoly they currently enjoy.

3. The government is a major purchaser of microsoft operating systems and software. Under normal circumstances, the government will not purchase things that do not conform to standards (IEEE, ANSI, ISO, etc). I cannot think of a single microsoft product that does not violate one standard or another. Indeed, one of their monopolistic strategies has been to make extentions, i.e. modifications to standards, to make them unique to microsoft and, therefore, incompatible with products that do meet the standards. This was the basis of a lawsuit from Sun over Java. Microsoft's response was to eliminate Java from their latest operating application, doubtless figuring that they had adequate muscle to ignore all the applications that use Java. When it comes to microsoft, the government is ignoring their own rules regarding standards compliance. The government should stop doing this. They should tell microsoft that they will not purchase a single MS product that violates a widely accepted standard. I doubt that microsoft could afford to lose the government's business and it would break that monopolistic practice.

Jeffrey P. Harrison

900 South Third St.

St. Charles, Mo. 63301-2402

MTC-00010326

From: hawk eye

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:50pm

comw on get it over msn gives away services to the talking about giving away comptures to education, seems like the government neds to worrie about what is not working with inside its self I know i work for the government fix what is not working right ,clean it up, the ppl of the US are tired of the government going after something that is working right,did u all think that msn might just laying off ppl if u hit them hard come on go after real crime, what about polution from big companys ,wish the government spend as much time going after that than msn get real ppl let msn give education free comtures and tell then what not to do

MTC-00010327

From: Rich Faltisco

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:50pm

Subject: Keep Going After Microsoft

Dear Friends,

The latest version of Microsoft Windows—XP—points out all that is wrong with Microsoft.

First, the price keeps going up and up for the operating system. Now literally priced fixed at one hundred dollars, what real alternative does the home user have to XP? And certainly privacy has been thrown out the proverbial window. I really don't like big brother Bill Gates ready to gather all kinds of information on my computer if i load up XP. Thirdly, Windows is a programming nighmare. I don't believe anyone but Microsoft knows all the hooks to the code.

Stability—IBM's OS/2 was a stable operating years ago. I believe Microsoft could have done this with Windows years ago, and not now with XP. Several years ago i loaded up IBM's Os/2 Warp in parallel to Windows. As i did so, I got a message from Microsoft asking if i really wanted to do this. Pretty bizarre and pretty small, i would say. And i think that is the attitude still indicative to Microsoft today.

Thank you for your time,

Rich Faltisco

MTC-00010328

From: hydet@hotmail.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:46pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have spent some time looking at the Settlement between the DOJ/State AGs and Microsoft. While i have serious doubts about the wisdom of bringing this lawsuit in the first place and whereas i have some reservations about the strength and precedent of the remedies I certainly want this whole nightmare behind us. It s time for those of us in the high-tech industry to get back to work. Thanks. I know it took a lot of sweat and long hours to produce. Americans are grateful for that. Tim

MTC-00010330

From: ricardo—wenger@hotmail.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:46pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the Microsoft/Justice Department settlement is a great things for consumers worldwide. I congratulate both Microsoft and the DOJ for finally being flexible enough to get there. It is important that the balance of innovation and customer benefit as well as openness of Windows is there. Congratulations again on the settlement.

MTC-00010331

From: arlanbarber@juno.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please let the ruling between Microsoft and the settlement of November 2001 be the end of all litigation proceedings.

MTC-00010332

From: jdunik@simplexgroup.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel that the entire antitrust suit should be dropped. However as this is obviously not going to happen I fully support the quick resolution of this case and the proposed settlement. Any additional punishment of Microsoft would be a crime in my view simply because I feel that they did no wrong. Additionally I feel that this entire antitrust fiasco was an entirely anti-competitive move by both the DOJ and Microsofts comptitors such as AOL and Sun. Additionally I feel that this case was one of the primary causes of the current economic downturn. Thank you for your time.

MTC-00010333

From: signerector@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

THIS SETTLEMENT SHOULD BE ACCEPTED BY ALL PARTIES INCLUDING THE VARIOUS STATES. THE SETTLEMENT IS MORE THAN FAIR TO COMSUMERS AND MICROSOFT S COMPETITION.

MTC-00010334

From: ray@rcjsoftware.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leave Microsoft and our free enterprise system alone! This case should have never been in the first place. Let the consumers decide in the marketplace which companies are the winners and which ones are the losers. I resent government interference in thinking they know better than us who have been in the information technology business for years. We are talking about a $99 operating system that nobody is forced to buy if they don't want it (the IRS takes much more than that away from us by the use of force and coercion and we don't get anything back in return). Consumers can always use the free operating system called Linux along with its free web browser. Any new features Microsoft puts into their operating system is purely for their own survival. Live and let live! I thank Microsoft for driving down prices so that the common person can understand and afford technology. If you punish them then our government is no better than a communist dictatorship which desires to own and control all business! The shame of it all is that Microsoft's competitors refused to offer better products at lower prices and instead resorted to government coercion and force. What a sad day for American liberty! If government is truly looking out for the consumers as they say they are then leave Microsoft alone! Answer this question—how many complaints have you heard from the consumers themselves (the very persons government claims to be protecting)?

MTC-00010335

From: starflt@sat.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft's competitors seek more litigation for obvious reasons. Their products simply don't stack up to those of Microsoft. So they use this method to attempt to weaken one of the best of United States companies. Consumers around the world are better off because of Microsoft. The settlement is fair and equitable. Let's end this ridiculous and costly litigation.

MTC-00010336

From: dhughes@admin1.umaryland.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

A fair and reasonable settlement.

MTC-00010337

From: gtotoday@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

it is in my belief that Microsoft is being as fair as possible. I DO NOT THINK IT'S RIGHT THAT OTHER BUSINESS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF MICROSOFT'S HARD EARN'T ADVANCEMENT IN TECHNOLOGIES. IF THESE OTHER COMPANYS WANT TO HAVE SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS THEN LET THEM ESTABLISH THERE OWN TEAM OF TECHNICIANS AND CREATE THERE OWN TECHNOLOGIES INSTEAD OF CRYING FOUL AND WANTING SOMEONE ELSE'S ALREADY FORMED TECHNOLOGIES. YES IT'S TRUE MICROSOFT HAS MANY ADVANCEMENTS BUT THEY EARN'T THEM THE HARD WAY THEY WORKED FOR THEM. I THINK IT'S WRONG FOR THE GOVERNMENT TO WANT TO BREAK A BUSINESS UP BECAUSE A CERTAIN INDIVIDUAL HAS A PERSONNEL AGENDA AGAINST MICROSOFT. I WATCHED AT&T BROKE UP BY GOVERNMENT AND LOOK ITS COSTING EVERYONE MORE MONEY. WHICH I BELIEVE IS WHAT THIS IS ALL ABOUT. OTHER BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT WANTING A PIECE OF SOMEONES HARD EARN'T MONIES. Is it Bill Gates fault that he is successful? yes it is!! he and his company worked hard for there achievements. so that's my story and let it be said that if other business and people want to make microsofts profits then let them earn them the old fashion way! work for them themselves and not try to have government step in when it is really not of concern to government unless they too found a way to make free money from others .

respectible
Robert A Werner

MTC-00010338

From: alneffsr@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We don't want to go backwards with technology. Leave Microsoft alone and let them go ahead with new software technology. It's not Microsoft's fault that they have better programs. If I wanted to go backwards I could go with the other programs anytime. Thank You Al Neff Sr.

MTC-00010339

From: chris—crabtree@shoneys.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern: The times and the technology have moved on. You should too. Let's stop listening to those companies who have trouble competing on an even playing field and have done with this. Thanks!

MTC-00010340

From: bobschor@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to voice my support for the Microsoft-Department of Justice settlement. I believe the settlement is fair and provides a reasonable end to curbing antitrust behavior of Microsoft while allowing them to continue to innovate in a very competitive and sometimes cutthroat arena of the computer software business. I applaud the DOJ's willingness to settle this case during our current economic recession and move on. It is clear that the dissenting states have prevented the previous attempt to settle this case out of court. I feel the settlement is fair. Thank you for your consideration. Robert A. Schor M.D.

MTC-00010341

From: bradley—bobbs@xontech.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please put an end to the ridiculous harassment of Microsoft already and go bother someone instead who is actually doing something wrong! Thank you.

MTC-00010342

From: dolores@freunds.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stop trying to CRIPPLE Microsoft. The software innovations by this incredible company have added fuel to our economy creating jobs and allowing workers to be more productive. Workers like myself who use Microsoft software everyday and appreciate the beauty with which its applications work together. Sincerely Dolores Freund

MTC-00010343

From: rsd@electronink.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement is too easy for Microsoft to disregard and continue monopolizing our lives. Microsoft needs to be punished for destroying the consumers right to freedom. Make Microsoft feel some of the pain they have leveraged on others for so many years.

MTC-00010344

From: rudzinsk@innercite.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Bring this case to an end and don't permit state DAs to go off on their own anti-Microsoft crusade.

MTC-00010345

From: bemlmorrow@erols.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement is fair if anything it is unfair to Microsoft. I think it is a darn shame when a young boy can make the American dream come true and the vulchers of other companies (competitors) can use our legal system to try to eliminate the competition. As a matter of fact the legal system should penalize the competitors and the lawyers that are bringing the suit against Microsoft however I realize that Judges are lawyers so we know that the fair thing will never be done. The only way it will ever be fair is to get the money grubbing lawyers out of it and let a non-lawyer good American citizen make the ruling.

MTC-00010346

From: david@amazonherb.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

America is the land of opportunity in which your future lays in your hands. Granted Microsoft has engaged in vary tough marketing practices in a vary cut throat business. Welcome to America where the best are the best and second place is second place. The competitors of Microsoft are trying to use the Justice Department to restrict the leader to gain marketshare. If the actions that Microsoft's competitors are taken then a precedent will be set that will lead to other outrageous lawsuits clogging the courts and harming the free market. There is nothing stopping anyone from developing and deploying a better software than Microsoft. It is just no one has developed a better software. When that is done and history leads us to believe it will be done then America will have a new #1 software company. Stick to what Microsoft has done wrong and apply constraints to Microsoft to prevent just those areas of operation are not repeated.

MTC-00010347

From: ctgreg1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

please for the sake of fairness and economics settle this suit now cg.

MTC-00010348

From: fwcourington@foxinternet.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The plaintiffs clearly have no concept of ethics they are not interested in fairness justice or the well being of their fellow citizens or of the economy. They are crude gold-diggers out for a quick buck. Surely the buck stops here.

MTC-00010349

From: pasqualini@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the settlement with Microsoft and hope this matter can be brought to an end without Microsoft's competitors being able to sabotage the proceedings as they have been doing. For the good of our country and technological innovation let's move ahead and put this behind us.

MTC-00010350

From: bob@arnoldsmithins.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it is in the best interest of this country to get this case settled with all parties concerned and move on. The case never should have been brought.

MTC-00010351

From: Monfieth@rushmore.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:54pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs, I am opposed to any settlement with MS that does not allow full access by the customer to software of his choice, this would be like telling a person what brand of trailer he could tow on the end of his truck, and what kind of hitch he had to use. I also use plug in drives for different accounts, and do not want to have to repeatedly contact MS for reactivation. Also the open software movement, would be where Alexander Graham Bell, Thomas Edison, and Benjamin Franklin would be today.

Respectfully Lee Dambrosky
Rapid City, SD

MTC-00010352

From: scott@chiefindustries.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In our opinion this whole charade has been an enormous waste of taxpayers capital deployed in a misguided effort to protect a few companies like Sun Microsystems AOL-Time Warner and Oracle Corp.

Please end this waste. Thank you Scott Cuddihy

MTC-00010353

From: marc@africagems.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settle-this thing has gone on long enough and it offends me that my taxpayer money is going to support this ridiculous case

MTC-00010354

From: cshank5585@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Get off Microsoft's back. Settle now. Settlement is fair.

MTC-00010355

From: grlatham@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel any more litigation against Microsoft should be dropped totally and forever. We now know that Janet Reno was more interested in going after MSFT than bin Laden. The whiners in Silicon Valley need to be told to build a better mousetrap if they want to compete. The consumer (me) is the only one who will be harmed by any further litigation. Meanwhile the attorneys are the only people who win.

MTC-00010356

From: drwhom@valleyalley.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please let Microsoft alone. Together we can fight political corruption throughout our government.

Thank you

MTC-00010357

From: clfhif@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

11 Jan 2002 The settlement agreements are fair and equitable. Now let's approve them and get back to business.

MTC-00010358

From: davidlsiegel@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle the Microsoft antitrust litigation as soon as possible. The drain on your resources and the world economy is immeasurable. Let's get it over with and move on.

MTC-00010359

From: fighterpilot1@home.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In my opinion it is time to drop all complaints against Microsoft. The Microsoft Company has done more to increase productivity and efficiency in the American workforce than any other single entity in the entire history of the United States. The entire case against Microsoft by a group of misguided Attorneys General and competitors who lacked quality products signifies one very important fact to me: if you can't beat the competition find a lawyer who will do his darndest to sue. I don't think that is the American way. Our world dominance in computer software is due to the excellent foresight and long term strategic planning of Microsoft. Any and all legal action against the Microsoft Corp. should be immediately terminated.

MTC-00010360

From: concetta2882@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I AM WRITING THIS AS I BELIEVE IN WHAT EVERYONE CALLS THE AMERICAN WAY . WE HAVE ALWAYS BEEN THE PROMOTERS OF FREE ENTERPRISE AND INITIATIVE. MICROSOFT AND BILL GATES TOOK THIS ENTREPRENEURIAL TACT AND

HAVE NOW BEEN PUNISHED FOR IT. I DO UNDERSTAND THE ANTI-TRUST LAWS BUT FEEL THAT THESE LAWS WERE MADE AT A TIME THEY WERE NEEDED. A LOT OF LAWS BECOME OUTDATED. I BELIEVE SOME OF THESE ANTI-TRUST LAWS HAVE DONE JUST THAT. THE LAW IS THE LAW HOWEVER SO JUSTICE WAS SERVED AND SENTENCE PRONOUNCED. LET THIS REST. THE COMPETITORS ARE JUST SORRY THAT THEY WERE NOT THE ONES WITH THE IDEAS. ALL THESE ANTI-TRUST LAWSUITS HAVE DONE NOTHING BUT HURT THE CONSUMER AND THE ECONOMY. THE DEREGULATION DUE TO ANTI-TRUST LAWS HAS COST THE CONSUMER AND COUNTRY TREMENDOUSLY IN GAS ELECTRIC COMMUNICATIONS AND NOW TECHNOLOGY. WHEN WILL IT END. I PERSONALLY THINK ONLY WHEN THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT OF OUR COUNTRY DEEMS THESE ANTIQUATED ANTI-TRUST LAWS NULL AND VOID AND WHEN THE LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT OF OUR COUNTRY MAKES LAWS THAT PREVENT FRIVOLOUS LAWSUITS. THANK YOU FOR ASKING FOR THE EVERYDAY CONSUMER S OPINION.

MTC-00010361

From: w—baron@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I wholeheartedly support the settlement as currently negotiated with the DOJ. I believe that both parties have made concessions and the settlement appropriately reflects the substantially narrowed ruling as handed down by the unanimous Appeals Court. It is time to move on. The hold-out states are simply acting in the interests of Microsoft competitors based in their states and are not acting on the behalf of the consumer. It is in the interest of consumers to have this case settled and behind us all. Let innovation and competition flourish again in the tech industry without the heavy hand of government interference. Werner Baron

MTC-00010362

From: ronsp@gte.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the settlement approved by the Department of Justice and 9 state attorneys general should be approved. While I think the settlement is burdensome and harsh on Microsoft I think it is best to close this case and concentrate our regulation efforts on things that REALLY matter to consumers—such as home energy prices gasoline prices in the northwest United States monopolies in the cable television industry etc.—rather than trying to punish a successful company for being successful. I would sincerely hope that in the future federal anti-trust statutes are used to protect consumers rather than to help failed competitors compete.

MTC-00010363

From: jason.langdon@haverstick consulting.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Thank you for taking the time to hear my opinion. Let me begin by mentioning that I have worked in the online design industry for over five years. In my opinion Microsoft has been an extremely productive and dynamic company determined to deliver solutions to the largest and smallest problems alike. I know the value of their innovations firsthand. That is why I feel it is important that the case against Microsoft be closed as soon as possible. We are at a point as a country and a global community that we need the innovations that companies like Microsoft offer now more than ever. The agreement addresses all of the valid concerns that initiated the action against Microsoft. Let's please move on and let Microsoft get back to strengthening the economy.

MTC-00010364

From: JAMES GRAVIS
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the Microsoft settlement that was reached. Thank you.

James C. Gravis, 15707 Echo Canyon Dr.
Houston, Tx., 77084-3116

MTC-00010365

From: George
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:02pm
Subject: MS

I agree with U.S. District Judge J. Frederick Motz statements—and he is absolutely correct when he states Microsoft overcharges for its products. It is gross anti-competitive behavior. There are many excellent software companies who are unable to compete until the playing field is level.

George Cochrane
Tooele, Utah

MTC-00010366

From: George S. Forde, Jr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please see attached letter
CC: Microsoft's Freedom To Innovate Network

8401 Seminole Street
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19118-3725
[215] 242-8332 (voice)
georgetorde@HOME.com
[215] 242-1475 (facsimile) PA Atty. ID # 02820
[215] 284-1739 (cellular)
Sunday, 27 January, 2002
FACSIMILIE & E-Mail 1

Honorable John Ashcroft
Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear General Ashcroft,
Public opinion regarding the settlement of the antitrust case between Microsoft and the US Department of Justice has been solicited. I offer this opinion as one who has been an interested user of computers for personal and business purposes since 1978 (before there was a Microsoft). This has made me a bit of a student of industry and, eventually, an investor in technology. So, I must admit to significant [for me] holding in MSFT—as well as in companies that might be considered to be its antagonists in this matter. Still, I am not an apologist for Microsoft and believe that, on balance, I must agree with the presentation of this settlement made to the Judiciary Committee by Mr. James of your office on 12 December.

Microsoft is a monopoly. Paradoxically, I believe it got there, in part, with the help of competitors like Apple, 2 IBM 3 and others who just failed to properly market sometimes superior product. Contrary to its claims, 4 the company is not particularly innovative, and its first offerings of its [E.g., MultiPlan, DOS, Windows, Excel, Explorer, and so on] have been acquired and, at first, poorly implemented compared to others [Such as VisiCalc, Lotus, or Resolve; CP/M and MacOS; Netscape...].

However, Microsoft rather than being anti-competitive is hyper-competitive. It learns from its mistakes and is increasingly better at execution of the ideas, whatever the source, and it continually improves on them. It delivers what the consumer demands [eventually] at a [hopefully] reasonable cost. For its own good, Microsoft cannot afford to have the rivals all go away, though many have. Neither the Department nor the defendant got all the marbles at end of this case. That's the nature of a legal settlement. What has been crafted seems, to me, to serve the best interests of the public and the industry.

* Note: Due to the Excite@Home bankruptcy, this address will be inoperative after 2/28/02; from 3/1/02 forward (possibly earlier), please use georgeforde@Comcast.NET.

1 Signed original available on request

2 Which bundled the MS spreadsheet "MultiPlan" with the first Macs.

3 Which opened the PC Jr to DOS.

4 But do really like Mr. Gates, based on a couple of brief encounters at a local users' group and more distant observation over the years. He and Microsoft have done a great deal for all computer users.

One thing to remember is that, while the focus of the case has been the "Wintel World," and allegations of maintenance of the OS monopoly; however, the market is much larger than that. For example, while I use both Widows and MacOS, I very much prefer the latter, but I use the same Microsoft applications [I.E. and Office] on both platforms.

I am concerned, therefore, that a separate settlement by the non-joining states—if it follows the path offered to them by Microsoft—would actually weaken the effect of this settlement by making those states accomplices in plan to cannibalize the Apple [and other] share of the education market. No need to spell out the obvious here, but, if the states want compensation, it should be paid outright or in the form of grants to technological projects and spending not defined by the defendant. If possible, those states should not be allowed to make a separate peace that would undermine this one.

Sincerely,
George S. Forde, Jr.
cc: Senator Rick Santorum
(facsimile only)
Microsoft's Freedom to Innovate Network
(facsimile only)

MTC-00010367

From: berlinmc@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge you to approve the settlement. I believe this lawsuit was more about milking political support than about protecting the consumer. GET IT DONE for the sake of us all!!

MTC-00010369

From: lotojarich@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is my strong belief that this settlement is in the best interest of everyone—the technology industry the economy and especially consumers. Since the settlement newspaper editorials from across the nation and across the ideological spectrum have endorsed the settlement. Please don't let a few special interest groups prevent this settlement from going through. Sincerely Rich Otterstrom

MTC-00010370

From: jeffat@carolina.rr.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Government's settlement is fair and no further action should be taken. It seems everyone wants to make a name for themselves as a giant killer. Its sad. I believe in our Justice System and the ruling should stand and no further actions should be taken. Thank you for reading my opinion.

MTC-00010371

From: the—immortal—cthulhu@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I whole heartedly support this settlement. I do not believe that Microsoft illegally leveraged its dominance in the software industry to harm competitors but I steadfastly believe that the education system could use the one billion. If they want to invest in the future of America yet again I'm behind it.

Don

MTC-00010372

From: knstreck@pionet.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to end this lawsuit with Microsoft and let them get back to providing jobs and opportunities for its workers. Without companies like Microsoft we wouldn't have good jobs for people. Let the free enterprise system work. Thank you.

MTC-00010373

From: mefoley@in-touch.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have followed this case fairly closely and I am still unable to determine just who was damaged! From the beginning it has appeared that Microsoft's competitors have used the courts to provide a competitive advantage for themselves. My earliest involvement with microcomputers was with an Imsi 8080 which I built from a kit back in 1977. The very best software available for that machine was Microsoft Basic. The name Microsoft has always provided me with quality products at what I considered very reasonable prices. In fact I believe that it was Microsoft's vision of Windows that enabled the microcomputer revolution in this country and the rest of the world. It was a point and click interface that could be made to run on just about any IBM generic computer. Apple had a similar (some may say superior) interface but it was only available on Apple's pricy equipment. Microsoft's hard work brought computing to the masses by putting Windows on the desktop. I am a happy consumer. I have always used Microsoft Internet Explorer and I have never been overcharged by Microsoft or damaged by using it. That's the point!! Who has been damaged? Microsoft's competitors? If that is the case will the Federal Courts go to bat for me when I have to bid against one of the Big Five accounting firms for auditing work? I doubt it and I would not expect it. This whole case appears to be another case of the state pigs feeding at the trough of private profits. It sickens me!

MTC-00010374

From: jkwasassociates@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the Microsoft settlement as published on the web. The settlement is fair and adequately addresses plaintiffs original complaints.

MTC-00010375

From: mainseq@thevine.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The government's case against Microsoft has never had more than marginal merit. The case has now been brought to a reasonable and fair conclusion and should not be pursued further except as specifically dictated by the settlement.

MTC-00010376

From: bill.reilly3@gte.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's get government out of our economies greatest opportunity for growth and advancement so that capitalism can thrive.

MTC-00010377

From: ddanh2000@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The only thing this lawsuit is doing is impeding the progress of the technology sector it is only a matter of time before other countrys are leading the way and dominating what we are taking for granted. We should always go forward and never go back.

MTC-00010378

From: benrwhick@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It seems to me that this litigation has been going on long enough and been a great detriment to our economy. It is time to bring it to a close.

MTC-00010379

From: jmd@cybermesa.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I absolutely believe that Microsoft has been a positive contributor to the American economy and certainly affected my work in a most positive way. I am getting tired of Microsoft competitors drawing out settlement of a case that never should have been brought in the first place. The objections of Microsoft's competitors are completely self-serving and never related to the matter at hand.

MTC-00010380

From: tom.moore@iname.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The US economy has been on hold too long already. Please approve the settlement so everyone can move on to more important things.

MTC-00010381

From: guyc@concentric.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement is more than fair. Settle this thing NOW!

MTC-00010382

From: bpeterson@hopconsulting.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree with the settlement the Justice Department negotiated with Microsoft. The computer industry business community and consumers need this issue settled today. Please do what you can to lay this matter to rest. Thank you Bedford Peterson
HOPCONSULTING.COM

MTC-00010383

From: edaveforeman@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am strongly supportive of the settlement the government and Microsoft reached. It is time to bring an end to this litigation.

MTC-00010384

From: paul sidler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:06pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Sirs: We support the proposed settlement of the Microsoft case. Please stop wasting taxpayers' money and stop penalizing success. Thank you,

Paul & Mary Sidler

MTC-00010385

From: kevinmcd@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft has proven to be a great innovator. A settlement has been reached. Go with it. The sooner that the cloud hanging over this great company is handled the sooner our national economy can start moving again. The economy of the country has been downhill ever since the Clinton/Reno Injustice Dept. began its attack against Microsoft. It's time to put that abuse of power to rest.

MTC-00010386

From: hn94306@sbcglobal.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As consumer I benefit greatly from the cheaper and cheaper PC and software prices from Microsoft. Let the competition take care of itself in the market place. Microsoft competitors should compete on merit and not use political influence to prop them up. I am so sick and tired of seeing a great company being damaged by the misguided previous Justice Department.

Sincerely,

MTC-00010387

From: rrshouse@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I favor the Microsoft Settlement. Please proceed.

MTC-00010388

From: moonlitstars@prodigy.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a consumer I believe it is time to end the litigation against Microsoft. I believe that the settlement currently agreed upon is enough. The marketplace is changing and I believe it's time for Microsoft's competitors to compete instead of litigating against them.
Thank You

MTC-00010389

From: kentbraun@home.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Quit wasting tax payer funds fighting about ways to impede business and start working together on ways to improve it.

MTC-00010390

From: joseph@errico-associates.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is an odd time that we live in where companies that fall short in innovation and marketing skills attempt and often succeed by having the DOJ do their dirty work. I feel that any delays in this action and/or further punitive action towards Microsoft will have a harmful effect on me the consumer. Microsoft has always in my opinion offered me affordable and good quality products. And the marketplace is always the best judge. If in fact consumers did not believe this OS/2 WordPerfect AmiPro Lotus etc. would all be the market leaders. Linux may in time actually succeed at this.

MTC-00010391

From: mikeziegler@arrowfastener.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I applaud the long overdue settlement and completely agree with it. The suit has hurt the economy in many ways and should have been settled years ago.

MTC-00010392

From: pmills@mc3inc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the current settlement proposal is more than reasonable. It has never been shown that the consumer was in any way harmed by Microsoft's actions. Certainly they are a tough competitor but it is clear to me that the consumer has been enormously well served by Microsoft.

MTC-00010393

From: R.Austin@computer.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I strongly believe that the settlement agreement reached in the antitrust case against Microsoft is both a reasonable and fair solution to the matter and urge you to support it rather than continuing the litigation process.

Best regards.

MTC-00010394

From: rotruck@electronicpartsco.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

A settlement that is very tough on Microsoft has been reached but the competition of Microsoft will not stop. The only reason for all of this was brought by Competitors of Microsoft who could not overtake Microsoft in regular business methods so they got the government to cost Microsoft a lot of money and to stop them from doing research and development. They had to stop regular business and just defend themselves from the government who is acting on behalf of Microsoft competitors. Enough is enough. Put a stop to this and let one of our major resources go back to developing and manufacturing.

Thanks.

MTC-00010395

From: intcon@harbornet.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft law suits should all be settled basis the Nov. 4 2001 settlement proposal or the actions of the nine remaining states be thrown out of court as they actually represent the efforts of competitors to harm Microsoft.

MTC-00010396

From: Yochanon@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear sirs and ma ams I m not a high educated man. I m not a rich man. I don t begrudge any of this against anyone. I m happy where I am and don t need anything more but the decision brought against M$ is in my opinion far too lenient almost to the point of it being ludicrous. I just can t see any punishment being done to a company who KNEW it is/was doing wrong by letting them advertise their software OS in millions of schools. And this is exactly what I see it to be. A slap on the wrist and a way for them to take over even more areas so that if this problem was to pop up again down the road it would be even harder for the DOJ to fight. Why is it that an honest working man if he were found doing what M$ has done and because he doesn't have anything near the money to protect himself like M$ does would be darn near burned at the stake and ruined for the rest of his life? I see the government falling to its knees in just plain weariment and letting M$ just go about its business as long as they behave themselves from now on . This scares me and it should scare all peoples of this country. Why not just make more new laws saying they can't do that and if they do it again we'll slap em on the wrist again (this was some of my sarcasm). I know my word don't mean much but this is my country I have to live with the ridiculousness of the decision so far and have to suffer for it all because someone with a lot of money can get away with whatever they want. I'm sorry if this seemed like a rant...maybe it was a little but I didn't mean for it to offend no one. I just wanted to be heard and for the average Joe to be heard once again since it is us Joes who make up the majority of this country. Thank you for hearing me out. Take care and be well. John Berger

MTC-00010397

From: lake@mediaone.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Before Microsoft made my life easy with its fine products I would be tearing my hair out with competing products that never worked. I get great support and service from Microsoft and am happy as can be with the company the way it is. I understand the case and the government's reasons for prosecuting it but I hope with all my heart that brave little Microsoft will not be broken up. It will be no favor to me and my small business to have more confusion in the marketplace. Regards Peter Lake

MTC-00010398

From: csina@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the gov't settled the controversy and with the economy as it is I believe it will be more beneficial for the country to proceed with other pressing issues. thank you

MTC-00010399

From: jleffelaar@guate.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
100% in favour of the settlement

MTC-00010400

From: leatherneckdi@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

One administration goes after Microsoft with a zeal. The next one comes in and says NO we don't have enough. Why would the Gov't be interested in a private corporation in the first place. Screw Clinton and his legal team of Janet and thier zeal to attack Microsoft. And to the Attorney General of California wait till election and see how loud I scream over your actions against Microsoft.....

MTC-00010401

From: greeko@capital.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Envy and greed although basic to ceratain human beings should not be the determining factor for MICRSOFT by tring to stymie it s creativity. Time for government regulators to use common sense as we go head on with international competition that would certainly be jumping for joy if they landed MSFT to bolster their economy and work force. By the downsizing of industry with its job creating opportunities we are witnessing layoffs that will be impacting our tax base which sustains all the services that everyone thinks they are entitled to. Paying lawyers to practice their trade is what is compounding our problems with their skillful tactics manipulating the system and adding their costs to companies that pass the costs on to us consumers and taxpayers

MTC-00010402

From: Mary Crockett
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:07pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I am oposed to the government doing any more to prevent Microsoft from continuing to provide superior products to us the consumers. The government has spent more than enough money harrassing Microsoft. It is time for them to leave Microsoft alone.

Thank you
Chuck Crockett

MTC-00010403

From: LLHubbard@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Since when is it against the law for a company to make money? Please leave Microsoft alone as it was doing just fine. Example of a problem incurred by the above settlement: I just recently purchased a new computer with XP Home edition and it is missing some of the utilities that Microsoft included in their other editions and is still in XP Pro. This utility is not on the market by other suppliers and therefore I am unable to purchase and install it on my XP Home edition computer.

Thank you

MTC-00010404

From: SIMONE MALONEY
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The arguments that I've heard on this case, that Microsoft prevents competition, seem unfounded to me. When I purchased my computer about 4 years ago, I was asked what system I wanted. Having experienced Microsoft windows on the original Apple computer, I could not refuse to have windows installed on my computer. I don't know much about other systems except for DOS but I know I wanted the system that I was most familiar with. Had I learned about other systems, my selection might have been different but it's rather unlikely. I believe Microsoft built "a better mouse trap". Let the competition deal with Microsoft. Save my tax dollars.

Simone Maloney
171 Russell St.
Manchester, NH 03104

MTC-00010405

From: KV1030
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 5:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001

To the judge of the federal trial court hearing the Microsoft Corp. case, I am writing to express my views on the proposed settlement with Microsoft Corp. The current settlement which is being pursued by the U.S. Department of Justice and some of the participating states does not in my opinion offer the protections required of such a settlement for either consumers or competing companies. I believe much stronger remedies are called for to prevent further abuses by Microsoft Corp., correct ongoing anti-competitive behavior by this company, and deprive Microsoft Corp. of its illegal gains. I believe the states which are dissenting from the current settlement have reasonable concerns regarding the current proposal. I am in favor of more stringent remedies to control Microsoft Corp.

Sincerely,
Mark Hartelt
Cedar Rapids, Iowa

MTC-00010406

From: Jacques Dupuis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:16pm
Subject: Microsoft case

To Whom It May Concern:

As a consumer I am curious to know just how many consumers have you had testified at the Microsoft trial. Speaking for myself, I remember having to pay $500 to $700 dollars for DOS software like Word Perfect or Word Star. With Microsoft you can buy an entire suite of software for much less than that, Microsoft Office. Where did the consumer is getting hurt here? Please do me a favor and resolve your Wars on Drug and go after "real" Criminals to really protect your taxpayers (consumers). Some States don't even have enough money to have all the prosecutors needed to prosecute our criminals and now you are looking to make criminals of anyone that is successful and who is keeping its customers (consumers) happy. I just wish our own government could do as good of a job as Microsoft does. By the way, why don't you turn all of your attorneys and prosecute government violations of our Great Constitution that have been violated by agencies of the government. The free marketplace has always and always will do a much better job than any Government can ever hope to achieve. Give it up!!!

Jacques Dupuis "I would rather have a mind opened by fact than one closed by belief.

MTC-00010407

From: James M. Tarpley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:16pm
Subject: Microsoft

I agree whole heartedly with your recent decision regarding Microsoft's absurdly self serving settlement offer.

James M. Tarpley
216 Sea Isle Point
Atlantic Beach NC 28512-5936
voice: (252) 247-7813
eFax: (425) 984-8843

MTC-00010408

From: Craig Juel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001
Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I believe the whole antitrust case against Microsoft over the last three years has been a colossal waste of time and money. The central issues of the case are no longer of consequence. I do not support the breakup of Microsoft am in support of the settlement because this needs to end as soon as possible for our IT sector to return to normal. Under the terms of the settlement I am glad to see that Microsoft will be increasing its relations with computer makers and software developers for the sake of stopping the "muscling out" strategy, which might have occurred in the past. I am also happy to see that a three person technical committee will be formed to monitor Microsoft's compliance with the settlement and assist with dispute resolution. The nine states that still oppose should be urged to drop the suit. The best interest of the public will be served when free enterprise is allowed to be on its way and jumpstart our economy out of recession. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Craig Juel

MTC-00010409

From: Massoud Javadi
To: Microsoft ATR, Senator Gramm, Senator

Hutchison,Rep...
 Date: 1/11/02 6:23pm
 Subject: Oppose Microsoft Settlement
 Renata Hesse
 Trial Attorney
 Antitrust Division
 Department of Justice

I have written today to comment on the settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft Corporation. While I understand the honorable intentions of the judge and court in settling the case in order to prompt the economic recovery of the nation's largest company and thereby, in theory, to prompt economic recovery of the nation, I deplore the toothless settlement that has been accepted by the Department of Justice prosecutors. There are three things I feel must be included in a settlement that would enact real change in the operating system market and allow for true competition:

1. Any remedy seeking to prevent an extension of Microsoft's monopoly must place Microsoft products as extra-cost options in the purchase of new computers, so that the user who does not wish to purchase them is not forced to do so. This means that for the price differential between a new computer with Microsoft software and one without, a computer seller must offer the software without the computer (which would prevent computer makers from saying that the difference in price is only a few dollars). Only then could competition come to exist in a meaningful way.

2. The specifications of Microsoft's present and future document file formats must be made public, so that documents created in Microsoft applications may be read by programs from other makers, on Microsoft's or other operating systems. This is in addition to opening the Windows application program interface (API, the set of "hooks" that allow other parties to write applications for Windows operating systems), which is already part of the proposed settlement.

3. Microsoft's success, while due in some part to internal innovation, relies heavily on technologies developed by the public sector. The Internet and much of the networking and software technology essential for Microsoft Windows have been fostered by federal grants and Department of Defense research money. As such, any Microsoft networking protocols which build or modify these publicly developed standards must be published in full and approved by an independent network protocol body. This will prevent Microsoft from using their market position to seize de facto control of the Internet.

I trust that you will attempt to enact real and meaningful change in the operating system market. This is a true national security issue. Microsoft may be important to the nation's economy in the short term, but long term economic security can only come from a free and efficient market for operating systems and networking technologies.

I care about these issues and I vote.
 Massoud Javadi
 806 Oakley
 Houston, TX 77006
 CC:president@whitehouse.gov@inetgw

MTC-00010410

From: Fernando Cerda
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:24pm
 Subject: Microsoft
 Please, leave Microsoft alone!!!! You have been too harsh on them already. Bill Gates has changed how the world works!!! Are you punishing him because he has built an empire on his brain power?
 Lorian Cerda-Donoso

MTC-00010412

From: PMoraff@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: (no subject)

Dear Sirs:
 I am contacting you to express my desire that the action against Microsoft go no further. Besides the fact that it is unfair to Microsoft and it's shareholders, it cannot be the best thing for the US economy. Enough already!

Best regards,
 Paul Moraff
 4 haynes Avenue
 West Islip, NY 11795

MTC-00010413

From: nemesis enforcer
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:32pm
 Isn't it obvious what's going on? They aren't trying to monopolize, they are conquering the world. While this anti trust suit goes to shambles, its a distraction as the big 'M' buys up other companies to gain world domination in the computer industry. I cant believe my tax dollars actually pay some of your salaries. Look at the headaches from the at@t break up, the dereg of CATV etc. Is it really creating competition? Didn't you read the article about a $250 a month cable TV bill from aol? Penalize the company...they should be forced to refund every registered windows product to its owner in full. Did you know that not only Microsoft Csr really sucks, the phone call is paid for by the consumer, and they keep you on hold for an hour before they say hello.

MTC-00010414

From: pierce@westernfinancialgroup.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Enough is enough. The Microsoft settlement is fair and will help the nation s technology and economy to move forward. The government s legal action against Microsoft has been dragging on for years and at last a fair settlement is at hand. Please stop the endless cycle of litigation now.

Respectfully submitted
 Lawrence W. Pierce

MTC-00010416

From: charles@reinstatler.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Please end this legal assault on Microsoft as the Justice Department and most of the States want to do. Do not allow a handful of MS competitors to use their intrastate political influence to undermine the best interests of the rest of American consumers.

MTC-00010418

From: fredlawyer@prodigy.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement reached is eminently better than ongoing litigation and uncertainty. Judge Posner correctly realized that resolution of this dispute is far more important than undue condescension to the collateral demands of bit players and special interests. Please approve and adopt the settlement achieved.

MTC-00010419

From: sue@peeco.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like the Microsoft suit completed. Microsoft has done a great deal for this country and the pending agreement should be accepted. thank you

MTC-00010420

From: mgb—bas@mediaone.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Cut out the nonsense and allow this settlement to go to finality. Yjr settlement should be approved totally and completely.

MTC-00010421

From: casamarina@juno.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settle this issue & let us move on.

MTC-00010422

From: mrappel@cwnet.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to get this matter settled. Consumers have been helped by Microsoft technology not hurt. I write a column on computer technology for a legal newspaper and have seen the tremendous advantages of Microsoft software for lawyers as well as all consumers. The lawsuit is based on a faulty premise that consumers have been injured. We should put this whole matter to rest and let the computer world get on with producing better and better products.

MTC-00010423

From: dac@magiccablepc.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please let our courts put this case to closure. Only the companies that are not as advanced as Microsoft want to keep it open and active. It is at the stage it is a sheer waste of the courts time and the taxpayers money.

Cordially
 Dick A. Campbell

MTC-00010424

From: dalehanks@juno.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is another example of Microsoft's illegal and unethical tactics. The justice department really fell down on their job in this case. Microsoft has gotten away with murder and has been hindering innovation unless it is done Microsoft's way and fills Microsoft's pockets. Now is the time to stop this monopoly; find a way to let the innovation and technical leadership of others be successful.

MTC-00010425

From: karen1108@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Unlike a company such as Enron, Microsoft contributes to the quality of living of individuals around the globe. They are a company whose very existence pivots on constantly evolving technology. Leave them alone. Unless obvious blatant violations of monopoly laws take place, allow them to explore new fields without interference from jealous competitors.

MTC-00010426

From: Scoobedo13@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Consumer choices, not government management of innovation, are the best marketplace regulators. New regulations and unnecessary lawsuits against technology companies will stifle innovation and result in consumers paying higher prices. I am in favor of ending the Microsoft matter as soon as possible and getting on with business.

MTC-00010427

From: aldel@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Tell the cry babies to go home and create something. Enough is Enough!

MTC-00010428

From: fj568@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I THINK THE GOVERNMENT IS JUST TRYING TO GET SOME OF THE MONEY FROM MICRO-SOFT. THE GOVERNMENT IS LOOKING FOR A GOLDEN CALF.

MTC-00010429

From: jgolden28@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stop wasting money and causing consumers problems. Drop your hounding of Microsoft. Start investigating Emromgate.

MTC-00010430

From: aub-barb@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

please go ahead with the agreed settlement. Further action is not needed.

MTC-00010431

From: arnobob@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let a fair impartial court make a fair judgment on this big problem without any outside influence.

MTC-00010432

From: lona50@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it is time this suit against Microsoft is settled so that they can get on with the good work they have done so long. It seems to me that if their competitors build a better mouse trap, then they won't have to worry about what Microsoft does. Whatever happened to free enterprise?

MTC-00010433

From: cortath@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the settlement with Microsoft is more than fair. If a company invents and develops a product, I do not think that the competition should have the right to capitalize on someone else's hard work. I think that Microsoft should now be left alone by those jealous want-to-be competitors and government agencies.

MTC-00010434

From: darccc@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

A decision of the court has been rendered....MOVE ON! Why is it that the vocal minority do not accept rulings that do not favor their agendas? If our government continues to involve itself to the extent of involvement in the Microsoft case, we can expect to see bright minds discouraged from creating the future. Is this what our government wants? I'm tired of listening to the government and the power hungry who continue this fight. To them, I say: Get a life!

MTC-00010435

From: Weltonhouse@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the settlement that has been offered. As a former teacher who had to use Macintosh products, I know that the advent of Windows-based software was a financial boon to the classroom. The same products in the Mac format were many times higher priced. Windows brought software to the teacher and consumer in varieties which were affordable. At home, we were lucky to have word processing and a spreadsheet. The array of affordable products brought with the coming of Windows gives lie to the charge that Microsoft has hurt the consumer. The states that have not settled have business interests that hope to flourish by hurting Microsoft rather than by competing through the marketplace.

MTC-00010436

From: AlitoRAF@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement was more than fair. It is unfortunate that because Microsoft and Gates did not make the required contributions to Clinton and Company's campaign coffers, that the Justice Department initiated this action in the first place. It is time to stop this nonsense now. Enough is enough.

MTC-00010437

From: cbstaz@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Accept the settlement in the Microsoft case to allow the country to continue to recover from slow recession.

MTC-00010438

From: bobruss@airmail.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough taxpayer money has been spent already to benefit the opponents of Microsoft. The proposed settlement is more than fair in support of a flawed judgement. The California AG should be prosecuted for his irresponsible pursuit of this judgement while being paid off by MS competitors.

Bob Russell

MTC-00010439

From: blayman3@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the Microsoft settlement is fair as it is. Please keep it from being changed.

MTC-00010440

From: JWebb71561@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

End this case now! America's strength is free enterprise. Competition! Winners and losers! The government (bureaucrat) can't tolerate competition!!!!

MTC-00010441

From: boblemon@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Proceed with the settlement. This seems to be the best for every one concerned.

MTC-00010442

From: llwurst1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let the decision stand!

MTC-00010443

From: vandewater@infowest.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Having no personal risk in this case, I do have some considerable interest. I have been using computers for years. When the PC started to become popular the biggest complaint was cost limited software availability and compatibility. When Windows was introduced the average user embraced it because it opened away to eliminate many of the above concerns. I recently purchased my 3rd Pentium Series Machine. The first was a 100Mhz Pentium with all of the major available bells and whistles. Six years ago that machine cost over $3 000. This November I bought a 1.9Ghz Pentium 4 with bells and whistles that would reduce my original Pentium to nothing more than a bad door stop. The cost was in the low $2000 range. 19+ times the computing power 6 times the memory 80 sized the hard drive capacity 16 times more video storage and the list goes on and a state of the art Microsoft Operating System XP. The point of the story is that as a consumer I have not been hurt at all quite the contrary. I have a choice of software that staggers the imagination and all of it is cheaper faster and better than what was available even 6 years ago. I have no doubt that Microsoft took advantage of its position of prominence and power. Does everyone at some time. Usually! Let s check out the White House for some recent examples. To me the settlement on the table should be approved and we should all move on to more interesting innovations and concerns. Justice will be and has been served. It is time to get out of the media s glare and just move on!

MTC-00010444

From: bbeckman@gdinet.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this soon. The agreement seems to have been hashed out and is merely waiting for the final nod. Microsoft has been an asset to the industrial world. Let s get on with it please. I am very happy this did not happen when the automobile was first invented. Th threat to the buggy whip manufacturers would have had all of the caves in Kentucky full of buggy whips because of the unfair competition to their industry.

Thank you.

MTC-00010445

From: Buddy578@Juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the Justice Dept is wrong and Microsoft should be broken up.

MTC-00010447

From: patmackne@erols.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I strongly support Microsoft in its negotiations with the government and think far too much time money and effort has been spent on this case to the detriment to the consumer.

MTC-00010448

From: lottza—wivez@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough is enough. Microsoft will have to live under terms that are equalbe and just. Don t let competition taint the judicial process. Finalize the settlement.

MTC-00010449

From: Stephen T. Spray
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:41pm
Subject: Hats off to Judge Motz

Congratulations to Judge Motz for stepping up to the plate and stiking a blow for business competition. When the guilty party is allowed to be the architect of their own punishment, then you get the kind of deal that Microsoft was going to use to increase their control of the market and stifle the competition.

Any user of Microsoft products, as I have been for years, knows how they have built in to their operating system programming to preclude or greatly limit users who wish to use any competitive product, such as the Netscape browser. The frustration to any intelligent user can lead to out and out anger, at the ways they constantly tout and build in methods to make their own products easier to use, and limit or deny ordinary users the ability to effectively procure and use competitive products.

Microsoft contends that they have been good for competition, but that would be exactly like contending John D. Rockefeller was good for competitive pricing in the oil industry. Baloney is baloney any way it is packaged.

Stephen T. Spray
Huntsville, Alabama

MTC-00010450

From: Debbie Tropiano
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Debbie Tropiano
1305 Brianna Court
Cedar Park, TX 78613
January 11, 2002
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001

To the United States Department of Justice:
I too am opposed to the settlement as I feel that it inadequately punishes Microsoft for their behavior, has too many loopholes for Microsoft to use to continue the same behavior and insufficient penalties if they don't abide by the settlement.

Sincerely,
Debbie Tropiano

MTC-00010451

From: rima
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:49pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I fail to see how settling a court case without punishing the offender, or even stopping the criminal behavior, is anywhere close to being in the good of the country. It makes one wonder how much microsoft money changed hands, to make the settlement happen.

Jon Rima

MTC-00010452

From: Ken Woodmansee
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:54pm
Subject: comments

Alternates to Microsoft Windows, such as Mac and Linux, will never be successful until standard Microsoft applications like Microsoft Office work equally well for all operating systems. When the same company owns the operating system and the applications, there is no incentive to create compatible versions for your competition. Microsoft's applications have become the defacto standard for most businesses. Even though Microsoft Windows is greatly inferior to other available operating systems, there is no choice for the consumer because the applications needed for performing the most common tasks are not available for other environments.

Ken Woodmansee
Director of Engineering
Cordell, Inc.—“Network Solution Experts”
<http://www.cordell.com>
Email: kenw@cordell.net
Phone: (626) 966-4402
FAX: (626) 339-2582

MTC-00010453

From: Holmes, Loren T
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 6:55pm
Subject: Microsoft Treatment

Why are you being so soft on these Microsoft liars and crocks? They need to be split up so that can't keep others from being inovative.

MTC-00010454

From: djt@netfocus.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let Microsoft continue to do the job that they have been doing. They have earned everything that they have (Bill Gates risked his future to build the company so he deserves the profit). If his competitors cannot keep up or pass him—tough. That is called smart business and he has earned it.

MTC-00010455

From: hwithera@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

After reading all the Microsoft competition gobbledegook parroted by the Justice Department in their case against Microsoft I think the settlement reached between Microsoft the Justice Department and 9 of the 18 states arrayed against Microsoft is a more than adequate punishment for a company which literally outcompeted its competitors. I don t know what is going through the minds of Justice Department officials when they take the word of failing competitors against one of if not the most successful company in the United States Microsoft and attempt to impose penalties which handicap Microsoft and provide Microsoft s intellectual property to their competitors so that those competitors can MAYBE compete successfully against Microsoft. The 9 states which did not accept the settlement are those states in which Microsoft's main failing competitors have their home offices and those states are bowing to pressure from those companies to eliminate their competition for them. Microsoft has always provided some of the best most innovative software at reasonable prices to their users. Those that say otherwise obviously have an axe to grind. The settlement reached between the Government 9 states and Microsoft is MORE THAN FAIR to the prosecution will benefit educational institutions and will be beneficial to those crybaby corporations who were unable to compete fairly with Microsoft.

MTC-00010456

From: ldwplw@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leave as is I believe it is more than fair.

MTC-00010457

From: joelmassey@attbi.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's time to settle this case. It is not the role of government to penalize successful companies so that competitors can succeed with inferior products or marketing. The remaining opposition to the settlement are still in it for the purpose of rescuing the competing companies in their states. The only outcome of continuing the suit is detrimental to the consumer. The role of government is to protect consumers not to punish them. I strongly recommend that the agreed upon settlement be implemented as soon as possible so as to prevent ever-escalating cost to the taxpayer as well as the technology consumer.

MTC-00010458

From: bobskopek@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a retired person who has used the Microsoft programs on my former business and now home computer. Those groups who oppose the settlement agreement should thank Microsoft for the development of computer software and thus gave them the opportunity to participate in software development. Now they want to destroy the company that made this technology possible. I support the agreements reached in the settlement agreement put forward by Microsoft. Thanks for registering my support.

MTC-00010459

From: jimwelsh@bellsouth.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge you to stop needless expense and give a kick start to our economy by accepting the agreements reached between many of the States and Microsoft.

MTC-00010460

From: cardude5@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Get on with the settlement!!

MTC-00010461

From: mtdorainfo@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement agreement is fair and adequate. Going on and on hurts technology advancement and impedes research in the interest of the public. Enough is enough—lets call it quits and standardize the settlement for all parties based upon the federal agreement

MTC-00010462

From: rjy@mcsi.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Accept the proposed settlement and put an end to this stupid law suit by competitors against a successful company.

MTC-00010463

From: wilbertg@home.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Without Microsoft there would be not be a hi-tech industry. The IBM like companies wants to see to big business like Banks Insurance companies and other Government sponsored contractors because the non-value added in these contract can Bankrupt the public. Microsoft is the heart and sole of the HOME Hi Tech market and has been the only serious investor in this market. I do not own one share of Microsoft stock but I have always recognized their leadership in promoting the sale of every high tech company's hardware. Through their evolution of the software the Hard Disk drive technology exceeded expectations the video card market now sell cards for more than some computers the 19 inch monitor sound card makers motherboard and memory chip makers all sell for less than 5-30% of their 1992 prices. ZEROX UNIX V OS2 Mac OS and many other Windows competitive operating systems can only blame their R&D investments and management. Let Microsoft continue to help our country grow and spend more energy on ENRON Terrorist and many other subjects that are trying to destroy our way of life. Microsoft has made America proud and unless you believe that they are also hiring A. Anderson to do their accounting we should leave them along without enforcing any consent decree. This Eugene Crew wants to steal money from the the Microsoft company. California does not want computers for their students they want money that they will distribute. Sound familiar? Sounds like the energy crisis that they regulate!!! Well sorry that this comment arrived too late.

MTC-00010464

From: dfa42@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

There has been too much money and time spent on this so-called case in the first place. The problem with the Microsoft competitors is nothing but sour grapes and jealousy that they couldn't break up a fine company and make a profit out of it for themselves. What they really want to see is the collapse of Microsoft so they can grab for themselves what is left over and this is the only way they can see of doing it. Settle this now because it these other companies get their way the cost of this technology will go through the roof if they get their hands on it.

MTC-00010465

From: bob3n8r1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Re: Microsoft Settlement This settlement is a tough fair and reasonable compromise and is in the best interest of everyone.

MTC-00010466

From: mistymeadow82@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough already! I am a retired Marine having served 26 1/2 years. I fought for this country because above all else it was a country that rewarded those who were willing to step into the arena and give their all for the benefit of others. No greater example of this exist than Bill Gates and Steve Jobs. It is beyond comprehension that Microsoft is being penalized for being innovative. Not only have they made it possible for virtually EVERYONE to be able to use a computer but have done it without the greed we see in the companies and politicians who are attacking them. Please use some common sense and end this unjustified attack—not for Microsoft but for the good of this country I hope we both love.

Thank you Kindly Joe and Sandy Sucha

MTC-00010467

From: fultonswe@rcia.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

All people/parties who have pursued this case against Microsoft are guilty of FRAUD WASTE and ABUSE of Tax Payers Money. They should all be made to reimburse (with triple damages) the American tax payers and Microsoft.

MTC-00010468

From: spider@arachnplex.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have worked with Microsoft products for years—I have also worked with products from Sun and Netscape among others. I find the Microsoft suite of servers and OSs far more valuable and innovative than Sun products and their browser blows Netscape's away. This isn't because Microsoft is some monopoly (It's not—you're free to write your own OS right now break out the assembler books and have at it) but because the products serve a wider audience BETTER than their competitors. Why is Microsoft's browser BETTER than Netscape's (oops I mean AOL's of course) if Microsoft is this slothful behemoth that isn't good for consumers as their detractors say? Because those attacking Microsoft can't win in the marketplace so they want to use the court system like a bunch of stooges. Don't let this happen. Any action by the government against Microsoft will follow in Judge Jackson's path of bias and be HURTFUL to innovation not helpful. Leave competition to the marketplace instead of letting a bunch of lack-luster whiners insult competition in the courtroom.

MTC-00010469

From: ewadding@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the settlement agreed upon between the DOJ and Microsoft is fair and it is time we all move on.

MTC-00010470

From: duanebat@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I strongly favor the settlement. Long drawn out litigation in a dynamic fast changing industry such as software obviously hurts the public by diverting management attention away from innovation to serve the public and diverting monies to lawyers that should be spent on innovation. The best minds of Microsoft the Justice Department and responsible state attorney generals have now agreed. The only disagreement comes from some attorney generals such as the AG in my state of Massachusetts who are subject to powerful political pressures from Microsoft competitors whose interests do not necessarily concur with the public interest.

MTC-00010471

From: carolshukle@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The waste of time and money caused by litigation over Microsoft needs to come to an end. The settlement seems like a fair solution. What Microsoft has done for the last 10 or so years is make personal computing accessible and affordable for the average consumer as well as creating a standardized platform for almost everyone who uses a PC. Microsoft has in no way hurt consumers. It is to the benefit of the national economy to get this thing over with.

Sincerely
Carol Shukle

MTC-00010472

From: thomask@iland.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

How can it be that Microsoft's business practices are illegal? Sure they are heavy-handed yes they could be toned down I'll agree with that. Yes they are tough yet that is good for the industry as a whole. Their competition should stop complaining and start competing. If a software company wants to beat Microsoft do it on the store shelves not the courts. The competition simply needs to (in simple terms) out program and improve upon the available technology. Develop new and better ways of doing things and stick to it. Unlike in the past when a software company would develop a great program then their support would vanish and the product would stagnate up until now Microsoft would step in and basically finish the job that others left by the wayside. Take for instance Netscape it took over 4 years for them to finally improve upon the program meanwhile Microsoft kept driving the platform forward with their Internet Explorer. Simply put the competition needs to stop whining and hire better programmers come up with new and exciting products. Microsoft's business practices don't affect me as a consumer as a matter of fact I simply prefer Microsoft products because they are quality products and should troubles exist the support is second to none always has been

K. Thomas

MTC-00010473

From: dotjim50@earthlink.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement is correct. It is time we stopped bashing successful companies in this country when there is in truth competition.

MTC-00010474

From: Patsy.Sampson@worldnet.att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have reviewed the proposed settlement of the Microsoft case. I believe it is a fair settlement for all parties. In the interests of the public & the technology industry I hope it will be accepted soon so this case will be ended.

MTC-00010475

From: chet—rizzuto@maxxconnect.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Ms. Hesse: I honestly believe that Microsoft has gone through enough trying to prove that they are not pirates dishonest or trying to break up other companies. They have been unable to compete and by now should recognize that declaring a truce would be the best way out. The ENRON debacle is one that should be pushed to the front. Many politicians and other government officials are involved and undoubtedly are going to be excused for their actions. The average American is disgusted with what is going on in the country today. Stop the Microsoft debacle and get to more important things.

Respectfully
C. R. Rizzuto

MTC-00010476

From: llefort36@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Simply: Leave Microsoft alone. No user to my knowledge complained about its business practices. I seem to recall that Netscape did therefore the govt took action. It's a bunch of sour grapes. I applaud Microsoft for all of its products.

MTC-00010477

From: camfam99@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the Microsoft settlement is fair. Please finalize the settlement.

MTC-00010478

From: TateMT@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think Microsoft should be left alone. The Government really messed up our telephone system when they messed with Ma Bell.

MTC-00010479

From: cjarsenault@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Word on the street is Microsoft did not donate enough money to the Polititions and the Clinton Group. That is the only reason this Company was envolved. As a Sales Person and see the Federal Government going after any Company Me and many people in my sales terretory are loolng at a Big Brother Type of Government. Now that the Dirt bags are out of the White House The Federal Government should let all people do Business and let the Market handle competition not federal Government

MTC-00010482

From: Bill Pratt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 6:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Honorable Federal District Court Judge,

Please find for Microsoft and their proposed settlement. I believe to do so is in the best interest of the public. As a taxpayer, I have watched and waited too long as our tax dollars are misspent on this case. It is my strong belief that these additional States which refuse to settle are doing so only for their own selfish monetary purposes and not in the best interest of their people or the United States. I believe it is time to close the book on this. I strongly support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. Please make the correct decision on behalf of the American public and settle this case.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
R. William Pratt
7020 Roundelay Rd. N.
Reynoldsburg, OH 43068

MTC-00010483

From: Wendy Viramontes
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 6:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Wendy Viramontes
1520 Jody Avenue
Lebanon, PA 17046
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Wendy S. Viramontes

MTC-00010484

From: Fred H. Greenwood

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/11/02 6:26pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Fred H. Greenwood

7 Kirkwood Road

West Hartford, CT 06117-2830

January 11, 2002

Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers.

With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Fred H. Greenwood

MTC-00010485

From: Nancy Marie Regets

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/11/02 6:27pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Nancy Marie Regets

167 Millrace Circle

Aiken, SC 29805-9381

January 11, 2002

Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Nancy Marie Regets

MTC-00010486

From: advanzio@netscape.net@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 7:06pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

I agree with the judge that Microsoft does not deserve the ability to increase their marketshare by giving away their product. Giving away their product is like letting little kids have a taste of free drugs. You know Microsoft will benefit by upgrades. Let Microsoft compete in the market, just as everyone else does.

Regards,

Rick Redfern

714.894.0407

MTC-00010487

From: Les Lohmann

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 7:15pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Renata B. Hesse:

As a U.S. citizen living abroad, I am very concerned that the proposed settlement with Microsoft does not begin to address the harm done to the software industry nor does it create an environment where anticompetitive behaviors will be stopped.

In order for the software industry to recover, the retail software (especially the word processing, spreadsheet and browser software) must be separated from the operating system. No paper wall will achieve this -the company must be split in two (at least).

Interestingly, the stockholders of MS will benefit far more under this scenario based on the results of significant breakups of the past. The economy of the U.S. will benefit and the market for software and related services will grow.

During this period of recession, permitting recessionary forces, such as anticompetitive monopolistic behavior, can only hurt us all.

Leslie John Lohmann mailto:llohmann@tkc.att.ne.jp

fon/fax: 81-3/5987-0723

2-26-6 Nukui

Nerima-ku, Tokyo 176-0021

MTC-00010488

From: Judy Sarris

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/11/02 7:24pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm tired of the antitrust politicians wasting our money on suits that have no value and are meaningless in a free market economy anyway. The only place there can be a real monopoly is if the government intervenes and restricts competition. As long as there is a free market, the best/highest value/most desirable product will ultimately win. Only government can give a monopoly to a company or companies and keep this from happening. The government should not be in the business of siding with or bailing out companies that could not compete in the marketplace so are looking for the courts to do for them what they couldn't do for themselves.

Microsoft has done more for the average technology consumer than any company in the history of the industry. They have built better software, provided better service, and done it for less than any competitor. They have increased the quality and reduced the cost of desktop software faster than any other product of any sort has ever done. THAT is why Microsoft is the giant it is—because its products and service are better than the alternatives.

The government wasted billions of our dollars pursuing IBM for naught. By the time anything happened, IBM was no longer a dominant player. The same could happen to Microsoft if they let the competition get ahead of them. As long as they know that (and they live and breathe it every day), they will continue to build more value for the consumer. Leave them alone and let them do it.

The anti trust cops who claim to have the consumer's interest at heart are hurting those same consumers more than Microsoft ever will.

1. The drain on Microsoft's time and resources detract from their ability to build the software we all want and can't get from lesser rivals.

2. The drain on Microsoft's finances reduces the value of their stock which is one of the most widely held in the nation.

3. The government is wasting billions of our tax dollars to support this boondoggle and to effectively subsidize competitors who can't compete on the merits. DROP THIS SUIT!!!

Judy

MTC-00010489

From: KCREASON88@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:23pm
Subject: Microsoft School System Donation/Settlement

DOJ:

It is important to maintain a level playing field and I'm sure that MSFT pushed the envelope...but: try to keep in mind that no other platform, system, inter-connectivity is as productive as MSFT, whether student, business or military, its not even close! To even point students in the direction of Apple, Linux to some degree, is stagnating the analytical growing mind.

I started 35 yrs ago with a sliderule & punch cards, I know whereof I speak!

Dirk Tucker
Naples, Fl

MTC-00010490

From: Dennis Matthias
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:29pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

To whom it may concern:

I strongly support the Justice Department settlement with Microsoft. We both use Microsoft Windows at home and at work. It seems a fair settlement and I believe it is time to move on and let U.S. companies continue to lead the world in technology.

Yours Truly,
Dennis and Virginia Matthias
4105 Heritage Hill Lane
Ellicott City, MD 21042

MTC-00010491

From: michael_31475@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

If Clinton worried more about the terrorists instead of picking on Microsoft we would not be in the War that we are now in. Enough of picking on a wonderful company—let s end this unfair treatment...mwc

MTC-00010492

From: dorisprc2@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Accept the settlement and let Him get on with his life. He was smart enough to give all this before others even thought about it. Let Bill gates alone Now.

MTC-00010493

From: Bob.Typo.ITU@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it s time to let Microsoft alone and accept the Judges decision. They have done wonders with Dos and Windows.

MTC-00010494

From: Bob Wiley
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/11/02 7:41pm
Subject: Please settle the case with Microsoft!
To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court. In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,
Robert L. Wiley III
Managing Director
Sound Capital Partners
701 Fifth Avenue
Seattle, WA 98104
(206) 264-2110

MTC-00010495

From: COakley@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:42pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Personally, as one who has been in the computer industry since the days of the Apple II, I feel that Microsoft has done far more to aid the computer industry and this economy than it has ever done to harm it. I remember all too well the days of the "tower of babel" because of this or that small company attempting to develop some form of proprietary software... Apple, in many ways, still is a closed system. But, as there was a finding of monopolistic practices, let the federal case stand.

From where I sit, it appears as though the states are simply looking for a revenue source for their own uses and have less interest in "justice" than in seeing how deep Microsoft's pockets can be... IF there were monopolistic practices engaged in, it is the consumer and private business who took the hits... and I don't hear anybody talking about helping out the actual injured parties (assuming that there really are any) in this case.

Furthermore, while Apple makes a decent product, I find it fascinating that, in the imaginary name of "competition", our students are being taught using computers that hold a relatively small place in the overall population of desktop systems installed in home, government and workplace environments. The states apparently desire to believe that allowing Microsoft to actually put state of the art systems in the schools would further displace Apple... so, rather than focus on what is actually the right thing to do for the education system and the citizenry served by it, they would prefer to keep us safe from Microsoft and pocket the money instead (... kinda' reminds me of all the states who legalized lotteries and "riverboat" gambling under the pretext of it helping the education system and then failed to inform that, while the funds may actually be applied to schools, the existing school budgets would be offset by all or a portion of those proceeds raised by "legal gambling"....

Further, I find two great ironies in the whole Microsoft case: 1:) Microsoft became a monopoly because of government contacting and purchasing practices (I worked as a contractor and had some familiarity with the procedures) in the first place, while the government was not the sole reason for this, their demand for the interconnectivity of the Microsoft products and the standards provided were key to the demand made for the product... 2:) The original impetus for the case was brought by AOL and Netscape... two who have become one and a veritable monopoly in their own right... So... needless to say... my opinion is, make the original federal settlement binding on all states.

Thank you for your time...

James Winkler
Metamora, Illinois

MTC-00010496

From: Scott Grant
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:47pm
Subject: microsoft monopoly

I agree strongly with not allowing Microsoft to donate computers for compensation in the lawsuit against it's anticompetitive tactics. The windows operating system is an inferior system which is maintained by Microsoft's monopoly power. The company consistently misuses its power and needs to be controlled.

Scott Grant

MTC-00010497

From: David Balts
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:57pm
Subject: my opinion

Dear Justice Department,

I just heard of the denial of acceptance of the proposed Microsoft settlement. While I can understand the concerns put forth by the companies that object to it, I feel it was a settlement that helped most concerned.

While no one, me included, wants to see any company get away with overcharging customers, I also see a lot of good in the settlement. It would benefit the neediest of schools while still leaving Microsoft a viable intact company.

Unfortunately there are, and always will be, people that won't be happy until Microsoft is broken down and crushed into the dirt. And then I wonder if they would still even be happy. They seem to be only looking for someone to tear apart their competition so they can thrive. A view I'm sure they wouldn't have had they become the software of choice. While competition is good, I believe these companies and individuals only want to gain ground at Microsoft's expense.

Believe me, as someone who was around using computers through times when there was no major player or standards I can remember that it was no fun. No one's software, or even information, could be shared with anyone else without great pains and lots of problems. We all cried out for some kind of standard. I, for one, was glad to finally see a standard spread through the industry. Unfortunately for those whose standard wasn't chosen, it was Microsoft that rose to the top.

While most Microsoft products are hardly perfect, (and who's are?) they do allow many different people running many different programs to communicate and share data together. I would NEVER want to go back to the days of everyone doing their own thing with no standards available.

This has become a case of the best product available becoming the most widely used. But to some it has just become a 'tear down and rip apart Microsoft at any cost' situation. And its funny how those that weren't chosen as the majority standard tend to be yelling the loudest. It was just a clear case of the public choosing the best that was available at the time and using it. Now instead of developing something that can compete or even win out over any Microsoft product, all the competition wants to do is yell foul and hope the justice department eliminates or severely restricts their competition.

Believe me, the American people are smart. If they see something else developed that will do what they want done better than they are able to do it now, they will choose that product and use it. No matter what Microsoft or anyone else tries to do. Don't diminish the peoples ability.

This situation reminds me of the break-up of the telephone system. While looking good on paper, trying to give other companies a chance and the consumer more choices and thus lower costs, it has done nothing but the opposite. We are all paying more and most people throw their hand up in disgust when it comes to figuring out what's best. And some companies don't even wait for the consumer to decide. They just grab all the new customers they can any way possible and the consumer usually ends up frustrated and paying in the end. Plus the system has never worked together as well as it used to.

I realize these situations can be very different. But in some ways they can be very similar.

Please keep the consumer in mind when you make your decisions, and not the desires and demands of those too involved to decide effectively. Most of Microsoft's competitors now feel that if they complain loud enough someone will finally listen and rule in their favor. While I'm not advocating letting Microsoft off Scott-free, I do feel both the good Microsoft has brought the consumer must be considered along with the bad.

I use Microsoft products, along with other brands, and chose each because I felt they did what I needed to have done the most effectively. And I did this ONLY after looking at everything available. Some companies don't like it because Microsoft still offers some of the best products available. If other companies develop better software I, and the American public, are smart enough to choose what's best for our needs. That's the way this great country works.

We don't need someone to make our decisions for us, especially the Microsoft competitors that seem to be complaining the loudest.

Thank-You.
David E. Balts

224 S 16th St, #2
La Crosse, WI 54601
608-784-6703
Age: 43
dbalts@centurytel.net

MTC-00010498

From: ILWalls@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 7:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My vote is to put an end to this problem and let us get on with life.

Sincerely,
Louise Walls # 519
10-10 So. Rockwood Blvd
Spokane, WA 99202

MTC-00010499

From: john.w.schroeder@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:02pm
Subject: Good Microsoft Decision Today

Judge Motz, c/o Robert Wolinsky,
Thank you for your courage in the Microsoft opinion released today. Although I'm a Microsoft shareholder, I don't believe Microsoft should be allowed to undermine Apple by turning an antitrust penalty into a marketing triumph and give away Microsoft products to schools. A more appropriate penalty might be an award of $$ for those same schools to buy Apple products, or a mandatory rebate of some amount to all Microsoft customers. Having seen the press reports of today's decision, I have faith that you'll do justice.

MTC-00010500

From: Elizabeth Pearson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 7:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Elizabeth Pearson
638 Hawthorne Av
Elmhurst, IL 60126
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Pearson

MTC-00010501

From: joseph brumm
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:03pm
Subject: To Whom It May Concern:
To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my opposition to the proposed antitrust settlement with Microsoft. Microsoft needs competition. Without competition Microsoft will have no reason to ever improve its products. Microsoft's products, in my opinion have steadily degraded as the company grew. After all, if there is no steady, present, competition, why would they need to improve their products.

Microsoft has, over the years destroyed any competition that has ever come against them. The reasoning, it's good business. But our nation was founded on a set of ethical values. By this ruthless practice, Microsoft abides by none. They consistently make what I consider to be libelous, slanderous statements about any competition that ever points their way. For technology to advance, competition is a necessity. Else the tech industry will be like George Orwell's Animal Farm. The pigs (no harsh implications toward microsoft intended) will keep telling us how much better our life is.

And we will be forced to believe them. Because we have no basis for comparison any longer.

I cannot make suggestions as for their penalties, as I do not know all the matters of fact or law, but the penalties should be severe. At least enough so Microsoft cannot merely shake them off and continue with a monopoly. Thank you for your time, consideration, and willingness to listen, I submit Very Respectfully, Joseph Brumm

MTC-00010502

From: Michelle Haynes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attached please find a letter in support of the settlement reached in November.

Thank you.
Michelle R. Haynes
Tel. 407-539-2702
mrivehaynes@cfl.rr.com

Michelle Haynes
400 N. Phelps Avenue
Winter Park
FL 32789

January 7, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing you today to express my support of the Microsoft anti-trust settlement that was reached back in early November, and I am relieved to see this old dispute finally come to an end. Microsoft has pledged to share more information with other companies and give consumers more choices. Microsoft will design future versions of Windows to make it easier to install non-Microsoft software, and Microsoft cannot strike back against companies that take advantage of that. If fact, the settlement stipulates that licensing agreements for the top 20 hardware firms must be on equal terms, except for volume discounts.

This settlement will not only make it easier to conduct business for Microsoft competitors, but it will also allow this company to move forward. This settlement will benefit all. Thank you for settling with Microsoft, and I urge you to use your influence to appeal to the states that have not yet settled as well, including Florida.

Sincerely,
Michelle Haynes
CC: Representative Ric Keller

MTC-00010503

From: RRP52@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:12pm
Subject: MICROSOFT CASE

WHY ARE YOU WASTING OUR MONEY
. . . COULD BE USED FOR OTHER THINGS
MORE IMPORTANT . . . JUST A BIG WASTE AND YOU WONDER WHY PEOPLE DON'T HAVE ANY TRUST IN THE GOVERNMENT? WHY DON'T YOU LET
THE PEOPLE DECIDE . . . NOT A BUNCH OF LAWYERS WHO STANDS TO MAKE A LOT OF MONEY
RUFUS RICHEY

MTC-00010504

From: Darek Czechowicz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:14pm
Subject: Microsoft

Microsoft is great Company. All we should be proud that Microsoft was created and exist in America. All people in the world wants one operation system—Windows. I used for so many years Lotus, Paradox, I switch to Microsoft because these products are better than competitors products.

Regards,
Darek

MTC-00010505

From: Kenneth Owen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:13pm
Subject: MICROSOFT—NO MORE PROSECUTING

Stop spending money on the PROSECUTION of MICROSOFT. They are in the marketplace and they deserve to reap the benefits of their labors....

Thanks,
Kenneth E. Owen
6705 Jameson Road
Amarillo, Tx 79106

MTC-00010506

From: vwlee
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:32pm
Subject: Viewpoint on Microsoft AntiTrust Case

I think the negotiated settlement is fair and the litigation should not be dragged on to benefit a few influential competitors. This antitrust case has taught Microsoft a lesson and Microsoft's conduct will be different. It's in public interest to not waste tax dollars on cases that do not benefit the public. A case in point—the class action suit against Microsoft took a wrong turn and denied underprivileged children from getting billion dollars worth of free computers and only to benefit a few powerful lawyers.

A concerned citizen,
Ven Lee
10728 Riviera Pl N.E.
Seattle, WA 98125

MTC-00010507

From: Hal Schmidt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:44pm
Subject: The Microsoft and Enron Deal

It seems that both Microsoft and Enron, because of their might, done whatever they wished to do to the general public and other sectors. I am glad the ruling today was against the Microsoft giant. Yes! The preliminary suggestion of providing software to school would erode Apple Co. longstanding help to school and their share of the computer dollar. Thank God for this ruling today.

Hal Schmidt

MTC-00010508

From: Steve Bodis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attached is a letter concerning my support of the settlement reached between the Department of Justice and Microsoft.

3987 S 900 E
Apt. 123
Salt Lake City, UT 84124-1175
January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

Microsoft and the Department of Justice have finally reached a settlement to the antitrust case brought against Microsoft several years ago. This was reached after a long, litigious battle, costing both sides enormous amounts of money and time. I support this agreement. Microsoft has agreed to a wish list drawn up by its competitors, basically: Free intellectual property in the Windows internal interfaces, nondiscriminatory licensing, no retaliation for using non-Microsoft software within Windows, and a committee to ride herd on Microsoft's living up to the agreement.

This country has been through some very difficult times, but we have rebounded and with the new year, I think everyone is ready to move on. Settling this antitrust case is one way to move on, allowing us to concentrate on more important things such as the economy. And regardless of what you may think of Microsoft, the company is the engine that propels this economy. When Microsoft was served with the antitrust lawsuit, the NASDAQ plummeted. The economy has yet to recover. Microsoft, from what I know of the settlement, has more than acceded to the demands of the Department of Justice. Any further litigation would be very damaging. I personally think competitors of Microsoft held too much sway over the indictment against the company and I would hate to think these same people would impede us from moving forward and putting this case to rest.

I support this settlement. I ask that you do also.

Sincerely,
Istvan Zoltan Bodis

MTC-00010509

From: FRANKLIN D MATSON
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:50pm
Subject: Get Tough on Evil Microsoft

USA.Today has a link saying a person could sent their thought on the Microsoft case to the DOJ. I personally think that this big business evil company is just getting it hands spanked. They have been found guilty and should be punished accordingly. The government spent millions of dollars on the case and thus should extract billions and lots of them from Microsoft including extracting lots of money from the management at MS.

MTC-00010510

From: Gerard Terpening
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 8:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
21161 Greenboro Lane
Huntington Beach, CA 92646-7020
January 10, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to you today to state my support of the recent settlement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice in regards to the antitrust dispute. Microsoft is a leader in the technology industry. Over the past decade, Microsoft has consistently provided consumers with innovative, user-friendly products. Their success in the technology industry is proof of their excellence in the field.

While I do not agree with the litigation to begin with, I am pleased that the issue is finally resolved. After three years of litigation, the technology industry is definitely worse off, not to mention the taxpayer! It is time for the government to put the issue at bay and focus on rebuilding the economy.

Microsoft competitors have received much under this settlement. There should be no room for complaints on their part. It is time to focus on the needs of our American economy.

Sincerely,
Gerard Terpening
CC:fin@mobilizationoffice.com@inetgw

MTC-00010511

From: Tori Heath
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:05pm
Subject: my opinion

I have been using computer (s) since 1980. I need them because I am a CPA, but also wish I had more time to "play, explore." Bill Gates has done incredibly wonderful things for computer technology. HOWEVER, I think his success has gone to his head, and somehow he thinks he ought to control the market.

Just one example...I have always liked WordPerfect because of it's "reveal codes" feature. But, every version through #8 has caused me nothing but problems. I finally reached the point where I was simply wasting my time with it. If you can't beat them join them. So, I went with MS Word and its accompanying Excel. Neither of these programs measure up to what Corel (or whoever owns them now.) Furthermore, I have to have the entire "Office" package which I have absolutely no need for. I spent over $200 over a year ago to buy "Word" and "Excel." Then I learn that there are no bug fixes, updates, etc for these programs alone. I had to have the entire "Office" package itself. I resent Microsoft's power and control over such situations.

It's not that my computer system is inadequate (far from it). I do not like being forced to have programs which I neither need, nor want. They muddy up the registry, mess with my "start" menu . . . in general take up space, including memory, which I want to use the way I want to use it. I believe that is my right. It's one thing to have "Windows," but that's as far as it should go as far as I am concerned.

I have recently upgraded my 2 computer systems. One has "XP" on it (which I love)....but I have downloaded Sun Microsystems spreadsheet and wordprocessor which is getting glowing reviews. On my other system I have "Windows 98 SE," and use Lotus "SmartSuite." I like it, far and above "Office."

I don't know how to curtail Mr. Gates. To give him license to donate computers to as many schools as he wants to is a tax gimmick designed to make you and everyone else happy. I raised 5 children, none of whom had computers in school. They learned just fine. At the Jr. High level I can see where they can be of great use, and provide more learning opportunities. But nothing beats a good teacher who is well versed in his/her subject.

I firmly believe that Mr. Gates should be FORCED (under knowledgeable government supervision) to provide his source codes for all his operating systems. How else can other companies write competitive programs which can run under these operating systems. Microsoft is not the only company which has excellent programmers, and other companies can offer different products.

Don't let this guy get away with what he has done, and probably still doing, because he can afford such a team of lawyers. You need good advice from people who know computers and programming. Please listen to him. Gates has no right to "buy" his way out of his monopolies, etc.

Thank you for your time and the opportunity to voice my opinion.

Very sincerely,
Victoria Heath
theath@triad.rr.com
336-454-3121

MTC-00010512

From: John Lancaster

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:13pm
Subject: opinion

I think Bill Gates and Microsoft are arrogant, interested only in themselves and to hell with the public. I hope you do what is proper in this case—Break up the monopoly.

MTC-00010513

From: John Yunker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I must protest the terms of the Microsoft Settlement. The current wording of the settlement codifies the right of Microsoft to control access to information by private individuals. The settlement must be changed to specifically grant the right to interface with the microsoft platform to authorize, get, and put information. Certain specifications, such as the root file system, cannot be subject to license because this would restrict access to a basic public infrastructure. The information infrastructure is just as important to society as the energy, water, and communications infrastructure.

The standards for hooking together basic public infrastructure MUST be available to society at large for the effective evolution of our society. No one can dispute that access to information is a basic part of modern public infrastructure. The ability to build an interface to my information store is a basic public right.

As long as they have an effective monopoly on private information platform (non-commercial) they cannot use that position to exclude any class of society from being able to build components of the information infrastructure, e.g. they must make key interface specifications public and not subject to license. They can make specific technology used in providing a service subject to license, but not the service itself, nor the specification of interfaces to those services.

Thank you,
John Yunker
1901 45th Ave SW
Seattle, WA 98116
(206) 935-6251
john.yunker@bleuciel.org

MTC-00010514

From: John Luongo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern,

The Court has established that Microsoft has a monopoly position. As such, its conduct is to be scrutinized to protect consumers. In the light of Microsoft's past behavior, we can expect minimal cooperation from Microsoft at best, and more likely, continued abuse. Microsoft's lack of candor at the trial was offensive, and I believe that it bodes poorly for their future conduct. As consumers, we need a remedy that is much stronger than that which was reached in the recent settlement. One needs to look no further than Intel and AMD to see the effects of competition in the personal computer marketplace. The battle for consumers between these two competitors has two obvious benefits. First, lower prices. And second, more innovation.

Business and personal consumers need the same type of competition in software. I would like to choose to purchase my operating system from another vendor without having to switch to Linux or Apple. And I would like to have a greater choice of office productivity software as well. Microsoft can market software that is bloated with features that I don't want or need, and it can force me to upgrade my licenses for Windows or Office when they decide it is no longer profitable for them to support. For example, if I decide to keep upgrading my computer indefinitely, at some point they can refuse to "activate" my software licenses. In effect, this forces me into a subscription mode. If I choose to use Office XP Professional ten years from now, I should not need Microsoft's "permission."

Microsoft's tactics bully both consumers, and other entrants to the marketplace. I wish market forces could remedy this imbalance. Because this is unlikely, we need a settlement or judgment that will protect end users from Microsoft's greed. We need your help.

While it may seem extreme, I believe that Microsoft should be forced to license the code for Windows and for office productivity software to competitors who are willing to pay an equitable fee. This will compensate Microsoft for their intellectual property, while allowing competitors to market products that appeal to segmented markets. One size does not fit all in the computer software marketplace.

There is a great irony in all this. Microsoft is an enormously talented competitor who, in the long term, would benefit more from healthy competition than from its present dominance.

MTC-00010516

From: J Oyer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:33pm
Subject: the case

Since when does the government have any right to say what the value of a product is. Overcharge the public? The public has gotten a good deal. maybe we forget where we were just a few short years ago. Computers were a mess to operate. They could not even talk to another computer, until Microsoft came along. GOVERNMENT: leave us alone.

MTC-00010517

From: Art Mayer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:31pm
Subject: Power

Microsoft has used its financial, legal and monopoly power for too long, and in too many ways, to allow it to continue to destroy competition and stifle better products.

Anyone with more than a rudimentary knowledge of computers, and who has been involved with computers for a long period of time, knows the following: Microsoft's total addiction to "the bottom line" has turned them into a company that determines a time when it wants to release a new product, with unlimited advertising and promotion, and then releases the product at that time without regard to the product's readiness or quality. The term, "sloppy programming" is used by the Microsoft programmers themselves to identify this problem.

And, secondly, the fact that Microsoft tries to undermine, purchase and destroy, or simply destroy, companies producing better product has led to the sad situation of today, in which other, and (real or potentially) better operating systems and applications are held back and eliminated. This country, or the world, would not let one pharmaceutical, medical, oil or energy entity control the sales, supply and use to the world, of necessary products or knowledge. Today, information and the internet is becoming as important as medicine and energy. It needs to be controlled for the good of the world, not one, selfish organization.

Art Mayer,
Bellevue, WA

MTC-00010518

From: Robert Williams
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Litigation

By way of introduction, I'm a retired engineer and, although I have owned numerous personal computers over the last twenty years, I still consider myself just an average computer user. I hope you'll forgive my fervor in the matter of litigation against Microsoft, but like the VAST MAJORITY of computer owners, I (as well as the stock market) was appalled at the Department of Justice attack on Microsoft. Actually, the innovation and COMPATIBILITY of Microsoft's products have greatly improved life for the average computer owner. In addition, Microsoft is a most respected company, who has played a MAJOR roll in making the United States the world's undisputed technology leader (so seldom has it been that our US companies have not played second fiddle to the Japanese).

Under the guise of somehow protecting computer users, the DOJ forged ahead with this legal action as though they somehow knew more about what we wanted than we did ourselves (which, I feel, smacks a bit of "Big Brother-ism"). In part, I feel that the DOJ was overly swayed by the rantings of Microsoft's competitors (like Sun Microsystems) who had a vested interest in crippling the company. If one really wanted to do what is right for the computer market, they would get off Microsoft's back and let them continue giving us more innovative and reasonably priced products. Judge Penfield Jackson has, of course, been revealed for what he actually was and the Department of Justice concluded the case with logical remedial actions. However, some nine states seem to have rationalized that the DOJ, along with the other 40 states (and most assuredly, we consumers) are all wrong and that they have a sacred obligation to set it all straight. Anytime something is held up to the scrutiny of a blood letting such as this has been, there are always some who will never let go (not unlike vultures who have been waiting in the wings to glean whatever benefits that might be realized from a lynching). Pardon the comparison, but we consumers view their action as classic ambulance chasing.

And, just when is enough, enough. Has anyone ever stopped to consider what this three year long ordeal, against one of the countries most admired companies, has already cost our country? I realize that this action by the dissenting states isn't costing them anything (I believe that Microsoft has to pick up their legal bills). It makes me wonder if they would be as compelled to carry on their "crusade" if it were on their nickel. I really hope that I'm wrong, but I get the strange feeling that somewhere in this pursuit, these nine states will actually be seeking a monetary settlements for their state's coffers.

Please don't take offence at these concerns. They are truly meant as constructive suggestions.

Bob Williams
rtwill33@earthlink.net
828-926-9593

MTC-00010519

From: John L. Varner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

John Varner
7503 E County Road 625 N
Grandview, IN 47615-9558
Ph. (812) 362-8045
January 12, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

At age 73, and a long-time admirer of Microsoft, I write you with concern over the recent settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft. Not only was this negotiation process rational and fair, but also it was well monitored and in the interest of all parties involved. This is why it is ridiculous for it to go under any further scrutiny. After three frustrating years of court battles, it is time to move forward.

The greed of professional lawyers and the states objecting to this settlement has become ludicrous.

My experience is limited but I have owned 3 computers and taken about 6 computer courses from Ivy Tech. Microsoft is certainly the leader in development and innovation of records for business.

WHERE would industry and our economy be today with the without the technology that for the most part has been pioneered and developed by Microsoft?

The terms that Microsoft and the D.O.J. have agreed upon are productive, detailed and in the interest of the entire IT sector. Microsoft has agreed to design versions of Windows that will allow easier installation of non-Microsoft software. Along with this, they are willing to be monitored by a committee that will make sure that they follow procedure. The IT sector is ready to move forward and get back to business. Can't we help support our technology industry, and stop any further litigation against this settlement?

Let us allow our software companies to work together in order to maintain our place in the global market.

Please help to support the agreement as it is, and let the terms speak for themselves.

Please don't shackle and penalize Microsoft further because of its initiative and hard work to become the leader. The world desperately needs Microsoft's expertise.

Sincerely,
John Varner

MTC-00010521

From: Charles Jones
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
12112 Olive Trail
Plymouth, IN 46563-9385
January 11, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing to express my opinion that litigation against Microsoft should have never occurred in the first place. Our government has dragged this thing out long enough while it should be focusing on far more important issues.

One of the first items of the settlement I would like to address has to do with contractual restrictions. Under terms of the settlement, Microsoft has agreed to not enter into any third party agreements, which require distributors to exclusively deliver their items, or at a fixed percentage. This is how most companies maintain market share such as Pepsi and Coca-Cola. I believe this concession is detrimental to Microsoft and inhibits their ability to compete in a free market.

Secondly, in regards to the disclosure of interfaces that Microsoft is being forced to do, I think that it is ludicrous. Microsoft has been the leading innovator of technology and services over the last decade. They should be rewarded for their innovation and be allowed to keep their technological secrets that have propelled them to where they are today.

The best interests of the American public will be served when the nine states drop their lawsuits. The government must stop interfering with private enterprise.

Sincerely,
Charles E. Jones

MTC-00010522

From: Alex Amies
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I wish to comment on the proposed United States v. Microsoft Settlement.

I do not believe that the settlement is strong enough to create a level playing field between Microsoft and its competitors. In particular, it will have the following impact on me as a computer programmer: (1) Force me to invest my time learning proprietary Microsoft technologies rather than industry standards.

Microsoft in many cases stubbornly refuses to follow open industry standards and since they create the most commonly used platforms everybody else has to learn to use Microsoft's own versions of API's, protocols, and formats. Therefore, I get to spend less time learning technologies that can be applied to other operating systems. A monopoly company should be required to follow open industry standards.

(2) Force me to use Windows as my desktop operating system when I would prefer to use something else. I would prefer to use Linux and that would be an option for me at work if the Netscape mail client on Linux (which follows the IMAP and POP3 standards) is not compatible with the Microsoft Exchange Mail server that my company operates for its staff. I am very dependent on email communication and, in fact, cannot work without it. A monopoly company should be required to produce network software that is compatible with products from other vendors.

Alex Amies (US Citizen)
192 Woodbury
Irvine, CA 92620
949/255 3302

MTC-00010523

From: tom@wt6.usdoj.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 9:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As an independent software engineer, I hope you reign in Microsoft and curtail its evil practices. Any company who has a monopoly on the OS should not be able to sell applications for that OS. Any programmer just knows this is right.

Thanks,
Tom Gordon
Stratosoft Inc.

MTC-00010524

From: Daniel A. Myerson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:11pm
Subject: Settlement

The attack by the justice department was unjust. How could any settlement be called unjust in those circumstances?

Dan Myerson

MTC-00010525

From: Tee Freddy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
P.O. Box 503

Clinton, Louisiana 70722
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I support the settlement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. Although I believe that antitrust litigation in this case was unwarranted, Microsoft should be able to move on with its business under the terms stipulated in the settlement. Microsoft has made concessions like increased information sharing and non-retaliation clauses in the settlement.

Microsoft has done worlds of good for the technology industry. In the past decade, Microsoft has provided consumers with high-quality, user-friendly software. Their products are the frameworks for the technology industry. As such, this antitrust dispute has served only to curb the productivity previously seen in the IT industry. Hence, this settlement is in the best interests of the state and the economy.

At this time of recession, it is critical that Microsoft be allowed to concentrate on business now.

Sincerely,
Fred Alsup
CC:fin@mobilizationoffice.com@inetgw

MTC-00010526

From: John Edge
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:16pm
Subject: microsoft

I am an Australian and it worried me that Microsoft seem to be dictating the law rather than being judged.

It really does give the impression that big money is exempt from penalties.

John Edge
Australia

MTC-00010527

From: Karen Mazza
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern at the Justice Department:

Enough already with trying to punish Microsoft. As a consumer, I am happy with their products, and think they do a better job than anyone else. All this trial did was waste taxpayer money, and punish investors. It is time for the government to get out of trying to regulate industries, and let the market do its own work. The market is far better at regulating competition than lawyers and bureaucrats!!! Let the market and consumers decide which products are the best!! Untie corporations' hands and let them do their work of producing superior products WITHOUT government interference! In this economy, we need to let our companies produce new and innovative products and technologies to help create new jobs. It is time to end Clinton's era of anti-trust law abuse. The settlement is enough. Stop now.

Sincerely,
Karen Mazza

MTC-00010528

From: Robert Dollins
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 10:47pm
Subject: Microsoft deserves harsh judgement

Having been an often unwilling customer of Microsoft's since it's early days of being only a computer languages supplier, I can attest to negative effects of their predatory and unfair practices toward both customers and competitors. Many new startups and innovative companies now lie in the dustbin of computing history because of Microsoft's practices, very often to the detriment of the consumer.

In my opinion, there is no judgement too harsh to place and enforce against Microsoft to minimize the practices in which they have habitually engaged. The arrogance of Bill Gates and the entire corporate structure of Microsoft deserves the most rigid of punishment and restriction from competing unfairly. The consumer and innovative new products and capabilities will benefit.

Robert Dollins

MTC-00010529

From: Agliodoro, John
 To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/11/02 10:51pm
 Subject: The U.S. Government and Microsoft Corporation

The stunning achievement of Microsoft as a noble enterprise is its great gift to the general public.....the access to useful and inexpensive information. This voluntary transaction by a willing consumer exchanging a pittance of cost for the value received should result in a chorus of support by U. S. officials. The high profits EARNED by Microsoft which produce huge government income and high employment that creates more productivity and further government tax income by those gainfully employed should guarantee unwavering support for the existence, growth, and continuance of Microsoft as a standard of awe and respect.

And yet, unconscionably, competitors of less sterner stuff in alliance with pale political will and bureaucratic force, characterize an angel of deliverance as its opposite.....FOR SHAME !! There must be agents of reason within the corridors of government who could reverse the nonsense and give due reverence to the man and his company and therefore give reverence to the sacred philosophy our blessed nation was founded upon.

John Agliodoro, CEO Cybex International john—agliodoro@umholdings.com

MTC-00010530

From: David A. Cobb
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:49pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Gentlefolk:

I am a professional software developer of over thirty years experience. Thus I have watched, and been affected by, many of the changes in the business of information technology during a period when it has changed dramatically. The desktop platform has not, until recently, been a major focus of my work; however, I have been a user of desktop systems for about twelve years and have used a considerable variety of both Microsoft and competing products.

Microsoft is certainly capable of producing good software. So are many others. However, Microsoft does not consistently do so, because, in my opinion, they don't need to be good to win. This is a most deplorable situation for both business users and developers. So long as one company remains "the only game in town," American software products will be somewhat less than they could become.

I have watched from the sidelines as one competitor after another has been crushed. Sometimes, to be sure, it was because they could not produce a product as good as or better than a Microsoft product. But often it was for other reasons having little to do with the technical merits of the products.

Microsoft can easily afford to give away software, as they have done with their Internet Explorer. Likewise, their "deals" with OEM system builders lets them put their products in the hands of users at a perceived price no competitor can match. Even without the economic muscle provided by Microsoft's wealth and monopoly power, the production of software invites this sort of marketing—however high the cost of initially developing a product, the cost of reproducing it is practically nothing.

I have read the Proposed Final Judgement with bemused dismay. I am no lawyer and don't pretend to understand all of it. But it seems clear that this is barely a "slap on the wrist." Microsoft is hardly constrained from continuing its version of "business as usual." This seems extraordinary in the face of a strong judgement that they have indeed routinely engaged in unlawful business practices.

My memory reaches back over many years of this business to a time when IBM was the "2000 pound gorilla," and was constrained in several ways by one or another consent decree. A part of the means used then seems very appropriate now: I recommend that the PFJ be amended to require the complete unbundling of operating system software from (hardware) systems.

Specifically, let the OEM builders construct their systems and then offer the consumer a choice of software at retail prices to be installed. This will immediately eliminate the consumer's illusion that the pre-installed Windows software, with all its newly bundled add ons, is free. Let the consumer see that, for example, the hardware costs $700, the Windows OS costs $200 or a Linux OS costs $50; the Internet Explorer browser is included in the OS, Netscape for Linux costs $25, etc. I realize that the OEM's are not a party to the judgement; the terms would need to be something like: "Microsoft shall cause all software to be marked with the price at which it is to be sold, whether at retail or pre-installed, and shall not contract with any OEM or system integrator to imply that the pre-installed software is being provided free or at negligible cost." Further, Microsoft should be constrained to offer its software to any OEM or system integrator at a cost determined only by the volume of sales—with no covenants concerning what software packages the OEM may elect to market with his systems.

This is the best opportunity the US will have for many years to come, to restore a measure of competitiveness in an industry that is becoming rapidly less competitive by the month. Please do not throw it away.

Sincerely yours,
 David A. Cobb, Software Engineer
 7 Lenox Ave
 West Warwick, RI 02893-3918

MTC-00010531

From: Andrew Clerkin
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 10:54pm
 Subject: Time to end anti-trust case

I believe that it is time to end the anti-trust case against Microsoft. The government has wasted way too much time and money on this case. I'm a consumer and I don't think Microsoft has hurt me. If people don't want their products they don't have to buy them. There are alternatives available. This case was pushed down our throats by competitors who want a short cut to the top. Rather than compete with Microsoft they figured it would be easier to get the DOJ to go after them. Even the experts in the field have no idea how computer technology will evolve. I think it is absolutely ludicrous to think that government bureaucrats would be able to figure out how technology will evolve and how the government should control it. Let the free market run it's course. The DOJ totally screwed up the telephone system in this country. Prior to the break up of AT&T we had a regulated monopoly that worked great. Now we have an unregulated monopoly and the whole system is screwed up thanks to the DOJ. The point is that "it ain't broke, so don't try to fix it".

Sincerely,
 Andrew Clerkin

MTC-00010532

From: Mehelis@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 11:00pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 1430 Aerial Way SE
 Salem, OR 97302-1606
 January 11, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
 United States Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
 After three years of unnecessary legal battles, I was pleased to hear that a settlement between the federal government and Microsoft has been reached. Considering the terms of the agreement, Microsoft did not get off easily. In fact, Microsoft has to make several significant changes to the way that they handle their business. For example, Microsoft has agreed to make available to its competitors, any protocols implemented in Windows' operating system products that are used to interoperate natively with any Microsoft server operating system.

With the many terms of the agreement, I see no reason to pursue further litigation on any level.

Sincerely,
 Anna McNeil

MTC-00010533

From: Schulman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/11/02 11:07pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

After the United States Government pursued breaking up the phone company at great cost to the taxpayer, the ultimate result was higher costs for service, poorer quality service, nuisance competitive advertising and illegal switching of services, and the little Bells are starting to merge together to improve service, reduce cost and get a better handle on management.

Regarding the Microsoft Settlement, all I see is that the United States Government is demonstrating again that it did not learn from historical reference. Ultimately, the consumer will not benefit, the taxpayer will have footed an enormous cost, and Microsoft will end up the winner anyhow. It's a lose/lose game and the Government is making the rules to make sure that the real loser is still the consumer.

I think the United States Government cannot run private business as well as private business can. As it is, there are too many incompetent administrators with guaranteed job security and high salaries in the government that would have been fired in the private sector for excessive waste of profits and poor business handling.

I would grade the Government's efforts in this matter a C minus—and that is being generous.

After all, the private sector cannot provide a military with such waste and lost records as has been shown time and time again and still manage to protect our country with other people's money as our Government can.

DENNIS SCHULMAN
9591 128TH TERRACE N
LARGO FL 33773

MTC-00010534

From: Ishmel Taylor
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/11/02 10:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ishmel Taylor
11059 Continental
Warren, MI 48089-1734
January 11, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ishmel Taylor

MTC-00010535

From: Edna Earle Crews
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 11:04pm
Subject: End The Clinton-era Anti-trust law abuse

Dear Sirs:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and was a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Take action soon.

Sincerely,
Edna Earle and Raiford Crews
2087 Crews Lane
Crystal Springs, MS 39059

MTC-00010536

From: ACalapai@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 11:05pm
Subject: (no subject)

GENTLEMEN:

BASED ON WHAT NEWS WE HAVE , I FEEL THAT THE JUDGE IN THIS CASE IS BIASED AGAINST MICROSOFT AND SYMPATHETIC TO APPLE CO AND OTHER COMPETITORS OF MICROSOFT.

I DO NOT SEE APPLE COMPUTER DONATING ANY EQUIPMENT TO ANY SCHOOLS OF NEEDY CHILDREN, BUT YET THEY CRITICIZE MICROSOFT AS BEING UNFAIR OR WANTING AN ADVANTAGE TO PENETRATE THE SCHOOL SYSTEM WITH THEIR WARES. BECAUSE THE COMPETITORS ARE UNABLE TO COMPETE WITH MICROSOFT THEY TURN TO ENLIST THE COURTS FOR THEIR BENEFIT ON THE BASIS THAT THEY HURT THE THE PUBLIC.

I AM GRATEFUL THAT WE HAVE THE BENEFIT OF THEIR PRODUCTS AND WHAT MICROSOFT HAS CONTRIBUTED TO OUR ECONOMY IF THEIR DONATION WAS INSUFFICIENT WHY DID NOT THE COURT JUST ASK FOR ADDITIONAL BENEFITS.

THE COURTS SHOULD WAKE UP AND NOT BE SO DUPED BY THE STATES ATTORNEY GENERALS WHO ARE STILL NOT SATISFIED AND THE COMPANIES WHO COULD NOT DEFEAT THE ASTUTE MANAGEMENT.

THINK ABOUT ALL THE INVESTORS IRA'S AND PENSION PLANS THAT HAVE BEEN DEVASTED THE COURT'S EVEN SAW FIT TO REFUSE MICROSOFT ADDITIONAL TIME TO PREPARE FOR THE CONTINUED CHARGES .

IT SEEMS THAT THIS LETS KEEP GANGLING UP ON MICROSOFT BY THE ENEMIES OF MICROSOFT IS GETTING TO BE STANDARD PROCEDURE BY THE COURTS AND SOME BIASED STATES.

THE FINAL OUTCOME THEREFOR IS THAT THESE NEEDY CHILDREN WILL BE DEPRIVED OF THIS BENEFICIAL EQUIPMENT. I HAVE NOOT SEEN ANY CONTRIBUTION FROM APPLE AND

OTHER COMPETITORS JUDGE YOU HAVE HURT THESE CHILDREN ACALAPAI

MTC-00010539

From: Joan B. DeMarcus
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 11:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I will be brief. The U.S. should adopt laissez-faire capitalism. Let Microsoft go.

Microsoft dominated the market because it was the most productive and efficient company in its marketing field. Productivity and efficiency are virtues. No person or company should be punished for their virtues.

As for the U.S. antitrust laws, they are fraudulent and should be repealed.

Joan B. DeMarcus

MTC-00010540

From: Anita
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 11:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree with this action and think the government would be better served if they would quit undermining the businesses that keep this country running head and shoulders above all the others.

Thank you,
A.L. Farina

MTC-00010541

From: Chris Wood
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/11/02 11:40pm

Subject: Make an informed decision

I just spent 9 days trying to make a Microsoft Windows 2000 server work with a Unix SAMBA server. (SAMBA is an NT4 compatible open source protocol so that windows users can access unix file systems as if they were windows file systems.) If you research the history of Samba and the nightmares they have had trying to figure out how Microsoft uses the SMB protocol, you will quickly see the efforts Microsoft goes through to break the Samba compatibility. Each time a new version of windows comes out, it is just different enough to cause problems for Samba/Unix administrators. As an administrator, once you spend 9 days trying to find a problem (and the problem is directly related to microsoft keeping the protocols secret and changing the protocols) you curse Microsoft.

After cursing them, you realize why some companies only use Microsoft —because MS has made it near impossible to use anything else but them. The second thing to consider is the same tactics related to MS Office. Each version uses a new format (which again is secret). Not only does this make it near impossible to use Corel Office, et al, it also forces customers to upgrade MS Office when a new version comes out because the old version is not compatible with the new version. Our company has to share files with other companies and if we can't open their files, then we can't do business with them. If they use MS Office, then we have to be able to support that too. We have been trying to use Corel Office which is a fraction of the cost, but the inability to keep up with Microsoft's file format changes might force us to drop $50,000 into getting 200 users onto MS Office.

Now, not only does MS force you to upgrade... most companies prefer to upgrade their office applications every 4 years, but Microsoft's new licensing policies will require companies to upgrade every 2 years. Where are the choices for the users? Sure, you can choose other options but you may not remain in business if you do because of the external forces of MS as I listed above. Beware .Net, the new Comcast/ATT cable deal, Xbox, ERP things they are planning, etc, and you have an ever more dangerous MS. Don't just think of punishing their past, but controlling their current actions and future actions. They are more of a threat right now than they ever have been. The current DOJ proposal's are the equivalent of dropping the case. A $1 billion dollar cash penalty plus restrictions still may not stop them (do you realize how much cash they have in the bank?) and the current proposal doesn't even get near this.

Chris

MTC-00010542

From: mitchen
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 12:02am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 D Street NW
 Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530-0001
 email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
 Fax 1-202-307-1454 or 1-202-616-9937
 Dear Ms. Hesse:

I am a software developer and IT professional. I've been following the Microsoft Antitrust case and recent developments with the DOJ settlement. As a professional, I can testify that Microsoft is a monopoly and its dominance affects average consumer who have to pay a high price for a not so good product. To give you an example of a monopoly, let me ask you if you have a TV set at home? When you purchased your TV, did you go to a big store where a sales person helped you to choose among dozens, if not hundreds, of different models, didn't her/she? Even if you went to a small shop on the corner, you probably looked at a few models anyway. When you brought your TV home and hooked it up to your antenna or satellite dish, how many channels can you watch? Probably more than one, at least. You get your network channels, your cable channels, your public television, and of course all these home shopping channels on all kinds of airwaves spectrum. Now, please let me know what would it be called, if you go to a store to buy a TV and all the brands and models belong to the same manufacturer.

Well, you want to watch TV, so even if all the sets are made in one place, based on one technology, rely on the same set of commands and have the same menu for operations, you still would buy it, because again, you really want to watch TV and you don't care about the brand that much. Ok, you brought your TV home, you hooked it up to whatever you have: antenna on the roof, your satellite dish, you cable or all of the above. You are done working, it's time to have fun. You grab you coke and pop-corn, get in your favorite chair, grab the remote and push the Power button. Ta-da! You are watching it and everything is great but suddenly you are starting to notice that you can watch only certain channels. And the stingiest thing is that you are watching only channels which are owned by the same company which manufactured your TV. Even though there are a lot of channels to choose from and they offer a seemingly great number of topics and programming, they still all originated in the same place where your TV set was made. Your friend tells you about some other channels which you can't get on your TV.

You have to go through enormous pain to get those "other" channels on your TV: you have to call that nerdy guy from work and have him do some magic work on your TV, downloading and installing different special systems to allow compatibility of your TV with "other" channels. Ok, you spent enough time and effort to get your TV fully compatible with all channels and programs. Few months (weeks, days, minutes) later, you get news from the company which manufactured your TV that your set is very insecure, full of hidden problems, dangerous to operate if you don't know what you are doing and all your neighbors can see what's going on in your living room through your new TV set's screen. You are panicking, you are calling tech support, the nerdy guy from work and other experts in TV so that they protect your privacy and your living room. Again, almost all the problems seem to be solved, but you are a little bit jumpy and you don't look at your new TV the same way as only a short time ago. There are still some problems with your TV. Did I mention that you can't buy VCR, DVD player, stereo or any other system to connect to your TV, unless it's also manufactured by the same company that made your TV set? And of course, VCR tapes and DVD discs that you rent at your favorite rental store must only be made by... guess who? You got it, your TV set manufacturer! But even this is not the worst part. Soon you hear again from the manufacturer that all remaining problems with your TV will be fixed in the new model which you must buy to ensure that your viewing pleasure continues since the company is changing format of all its TV, radio, video, etc. programming and only the new model TV set will be able to receive it. Devastated, you through away your "old" but still perfectly good TV set (except that it's kind of useless now) and get in line at your favorite big (or small) TV store to buy the new latest and greatest TV set. And the story continues again and again in the same manner.

So, do you think that this is a monopoly? I hope you do, and I hope that you will pass this message around to other people in DOJ. Please let me know if you have any question or if I can be of any help to you and your colleagues in this matter.

Sincerely,
 Alexander Mitchen
 IT developer

MTC-00010543

From: Cristea, Eugen
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/12/02 12:19am
 Subject: monopol == no good

Dear Judge,

I believe there are thousands of e-mails regarding this case. I will try all my best to be short and sharp. In 1999 i have to buy a new computer because my old one was very slow. Usual, computer prices are dropping every few months. At that time the situation was different and special the cost for the memory was up. Why? There was a big earthquake in Taiwan and Taiwan is a main memory producer. In a few months everything was back to normal but i believe you understand my point. In this case it was a natural disaster, but it could be anything. Your car has two separate brake circuits in case one of them fails. What if Microsoft will get bought by a sick mind like those responsible for the 11-th september. There are many ways things could go wrong in this situation. It's risky to put your money in just one place.

Anyway, life will go on with or without Microsoft. Roman Empire was powerfull and invincible for a long time but it disappear in the final.

just a small dot in this world, eugen

MTC-00010544

From: Ishtiyag Bhatti
 To: Microsoft
 ATR.gws@clickaction.com@inetgw
 Date: 1/12/02 12:24am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 I am an educated housewife and mother, having a master's degree in education. I've opted to stay at home since I have a 22 month old baby.

I came to know through a friend some of the aspects of the Proposed Settlement made by the Justice Department with Microsoft, and I am displeased by them. Firstly, how could the Justice Department grant Microsoft a government-mandated monopoly of the software industry and even worse— other technology markets? Definitely such decision would seriously jeopardize all serious competitors - both now and in the future. We're living in a free and capitalistic society, and one of the advantages of it is that people have the right to choose from among several brands of one single item, and in this case, software. I would want to see a healthy competition of several software companies, in order to make prices competitive as well. Secondly, how could the Justice Department condone Microsoft for violating the antitrust law and even for its illegal conduct e.g. bribing other competitors in order to stop their operation. What is the Justice Department's motive behind this action?

Your Honor, I would want Microsoft be brought to justice for the good of this present as well as the future generation.

Respectfully,
 Meldy Bhatti
 P.O. Box 184
 Rantoul, IL 61866

MTC-00010545

From: Lucio DiGiovanni
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 12:30am

Microsoft has Not been dealt a fair deal
 A fair deal would have been to be split Microsoft up so that Apple could have had a chance to sell a more consumer friendly product for the past 5 years instead of being squashed to 5% market share.

MTC-00010546

From: Kay Schenk
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 12:31am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Kay Schenk, MizK

"The probability that we may fail in the struggle ought not to deter us from the support of a cause we believe to be just." — Abraham Lincoln

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the judges and counsel involved in the Microsoft antitrust case, #98-1232, for allowing public comment on your final decision. I'm sure by now you have received many responses from interested citizens like myself.

I hold a master's degree in Computer Science which I obtained in 1976. I've worked continually with computers since that time. My occupational setting has been primarily with academic institutions where I have been involved in many different roles since 1976: as computing support personnel, as a programmer, and in my current title as Web Master for the two main web sites at California State University, Chico. Needless to say, I have lived through more changes in the computer industry than I can even remember at this point.

I have attempted to follow this particular antitrust against Microsoft for several reasons not the least is my current involvement in Web development, where the "browser" software of course is an integral component. However, what I find really interesting is that it was this particular piece of software apparently caused this complaint to be filed. (I don't really define this as "middleware" since that term carries a very different connotation to me.)

In my mind, many of Microsoft's business practices, this being just one of many, have certainly been worthy of this type of complaint. But I digress. I read with interest the "Competitive Impact Statement" that was posted to the DOJ Web site around mid November, 2001. What I found particularly interesting was this statement: Appropriate injunctive relief in an antitrust case should: (1) end the unlawful conduct; (2) "avoid a recurrence of the violation"; and, (3) undo its anti-competitive consequences. Additionally, you state that:

Restoring competition is the "key to the whole question of antitrust remedy". You then go on in this same paragraph (section IV.B. of the "Competitive Impact Statement") to describe how Microsoft's illegal conduct maintained the application barrier to entry in the personal computer operating systems market by its practice with the particular middleware product, its Internet Explorer browser.

Unfortunately, in my mind anyway, this is only one very small instance of the type of practices carried out by Microsoft for to thwart any and all development not only in the PC operating systems market but the PC applications market as well. And, I don't feel your proposed Final Judgment will fulfill the any of the goals of "injunctive relief" at all in the long run. Much more has gone on in the computer industry since this complaint was filed in 1998, and I can tell you with absolutely certainty, that many more anticompetitive moves and harmful monopolistic practices have been carried out by Microsoft in these last five years. Some, even, have severely compromised the entire Internet. The initial complaint contains 129 paragraphs of description. They seem to provide a good overview of Microsoft's former practices with OEMs with respect to the installation of the Windows operating system and severe restrictions placed on these OEMs concerning the installation of other, many better, non-Microsoft products. Frankly, I don't see the current case so much as directly realting to the browser product, as the incredible amount of market share Microsoft amassed from say 1990-1998 because of these practices and others.

Because Microsoft controls the PC operating systems market, it found a way to convince your office for one, that certain features it "incorporated" into more recent versions of its operating system, Windows 95, for example, were really part and parcel of the OS, and not just unnecessary elements it decided to include to increase its share in other markets. Incorporating Internet Explorer directly into Windows 95, and not easily removed, was just one such tactic. At about the same time, Microsoft made significant strides, fully aware of the Internet's expansion about that time, to include "monitoring" pieces, if you will, into the Windows 95 operating system to basically track users without their knowledge. Many of these "features" were well publicized on the Internet when discovered and ways were found to disable them much to Microsoft's chagrin, I dare say. I'm sure you must be aware of a letter to President Clinton by Ralph Nader on July 26, 1995 concerning some of this.

In reality, something like browser "middleware" is not even remotely required by an operating system, whose only function really is to provide a means to address the memory available and devices attached to your machine, and load some modicum of software processing power into memory to enable you to program your computer. Anything else on top of this primary function, I classify as "utilities" or "user interfaces" or "software applications". Browsers, as an entity, do not really pose any threats from a competitive standpoint to operating systems in my mind. If this is Microsoft's excuse for their conduct, I stand dumbfounded.

The Final Judgment certainly is a step forward in curtailing Microsoft's current unethical practices, but it certainly does not mitigate, in any way, prior grievances not does it prevent the kind of development practices that have basically enabled Microsoft to totally dominate the PC OS market to begin with.

The biggest positive of this Judgment in my opinion is the requirement that Microsoft provide its Apis and Communications Protocol specifications to developers and OEMS (sections III.D. and III.E.) Although this requirement does not "open up" what Microsoft considers its operating system, it will at least hopefully provide the development community at large much needed information on how others can provide comparable "middleware" products.

However, even this requirement comes with a loophole that the Justice department will no doubt find difficult to challenge if one were to believe Microsoft. Section III.J.1. states that Microsoft is not obligated to provide APIA information which it feels "would compromise the security of a particular installation or group of installations of anti-piracy, anti-virus, software licensing" "I would guess given our current Internet computing environment, that Microsoft might claim that major portions of its Windows OS might fall into this umbrella definition. The upshot of such a loophole will be that Microsoft will continue to capitalize on its monopoly power and reveal very little that will directly benefit additional developers. Microsoft has attained much of its OS monopoly power by developing its own applications, which just coincidentally work best with its own OS. This is no accident. It is absolutely because Microsoft has refused to disclose certain details of the Windows internals to the development community at large.

The appointment of a Technical Committee (detailed in Section IV. Compliance and Enforcement Procedures) seems to be a great requirement at first look. However, I question the politeness of allowing Microsoft to be involved at all in choosing these individuals. This is nonsense.

I also highly object to the restrictions placed on the TC members in terms of public access and accountability to the public. This antitrust suit presumably serves the public interest! And only that. The only communication from the public at large that I can decipher from the Judgment is item IV.B.8.d.:

"The ETC shall complaints from the Compliance Officer, third parties, or the Plaintiffs and handle them in the manner specified in section IV.D. below". I guess I would have to ask: what third parties? Who do I complain to as a private citizen? My state attorney general? Additionally, nowhere in this Judgment is there a mechanism for even informing the public who these TC members are. This is the Internet age. Given th enormous public exposure of this case with nearly all pertaining information posted to the DOJ Web site that this rather critical follow-up is completely shrouded in privacy.

In this regard, I find items IV.B.9 and IV.B.10 especially of concern. I don't think Microsoft should have the opportunity to govern how the implementation of this part of the Judgment is implemented. And this is what seems to be taking place in the description of these two points. Additionally, I find the payment of the TC by Microsoft troublesome without further details. Why wouldn't an escrow account to which Microsoft contributes a fixed annual amount simply be established based on cost estimates? It seems incredibly unwise for Microsoft to be directly in charge of paying the TC. Again, it is difficult to determine actual implementation details based on what you've published.

These are specific issues I have with the Final Judgment as it is currently written. However, like many, I feel this Judgment is woefully inadequate in addressing the "larger" issues of Microsoft's business practices, which are integrally tied to its monopolistic position. Microsoft's unethical business practices are a direct result of its monopoly power and the desire to ensure that the proprietary APIs on which much of the Windows environment has been built would be used as definitive "standards" in nearly every aspect of computing—from the desktop to the Internet. To this end, Microsoft has attempted to thwart nearly every aspect of "open standards" that have existed for years. As early as 1995, Microsoft seemed to head a coalition of other vendors in opposing the "interoperability" specifications of HR 1555, the communications bill which provided, in part, the V-chip mechanism.

More recently, in its OS distributions, Microsoft has badly implemented the core protocol used by the Internet, tcp/ip, thereby setting up a scenario leading to denial of service attacks on Windows/NT systems, one of which belonged to the U.S. Navy. While this might be attributed to innocent error, many of the Internet community believe such lack of quality testing is solely attributed to Microsoft's monopoly power and a basic "we don't have to care" attitude. Microsoft's security problems are so well-known they are documented in literally thousands of sites on the Internet. This scenario wouldn't be quite so fearsome if Microsoft only sold products to businesses who, hopefully, would have the technical expertise to deal with them. But this is not the case in our current society where, according to a U.S. Census report in August, 2000, 42% of households had Internet access. Many of these consumers have very little awareness, much less actual knowledge, of computer security problems and what they could ultimately mean. More sophisticated hacking techniques like distributed denial of service attacks, coupled with total lack of prevention or precaution by household computer users, spells enormous problems! Microsoft is not only a key player in this problem, but, according to nearly every reliable source dealing with computer security issues, THE key player. The reason why is simple—they're a monopoly, they don't have to care.

Microsoft itself is now so concerned about its reputation in this area that it has publicized that "white hat" hackers who expose these problems only add to the problem. This is ludicrous! Is it not the vendor's responsibility to fully test such products under many adverse conditions to determine worthiness. Apparently not for Microsoft, who, in its zeal to rush products to market, has not taken the time, or can't be concerned enough to take the time! More recently, according to a post to a well-known British web site on 12/13/2001, Microsoft continues its highly debatable business practices by essentially "bribing" security by offering them upwards of approximately $30,000 worth of software for $1,450:

"All you have to do is keep silent about any Microsoft security bugs you might discover, until Redmond authorizes you to speak.

Oh, and you have to employ at least two exclusive Microsoft Certified Professionals, such as MCSEs."

The story gets better but I'll spare you the details.

My point in all this is simple. Microsoft has employed unethical business practices from its inception. It continues these practices even I write this. This Final Judgment will not stop those practices. There are too many loopholes and the implementation, however well-intentioned, is fraught with problems. Microsoft is a monopoly and as such operates the way most monopolies do with little concern for quality, customer satisfaction, or long-term innovation.

They exist to conquer competition in any way possible including but not limited to marketing products of exceptionally poor quality with the expectation that the consumer will just buy into it because it's the only game in town.

The main function of any antitrust remedy in my mind is to protect the consumer. Your other goals are worthwhile but not really the main point. Your Final Judgment does little really to protect the consumer and in fact, denies the consumer access to intricacies of the Judgment itself. The best outcome of this case would be to divide Microsoft up into individual entities presumably an operating systems division, an applications division, and a networking division, so at least, the hope anyway, the new divisions would at least be on equal footing with competitors and Microsoft might be prevented from deceiving consumers into believing all that is not really an operating system, is.

Thank you for your consideration of this response.

MTC-00010547

From: Andrew Harrod
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:03am
Subject: Microsoft settlement
Andrew Harrod, M.A.L.D.
1512 Bremerton Lane
Keswick, VA 22947-9148
(434) 295-8328

To whom it may concern:

I wish to write in support of the proposed Microsoft anti-trust settlement. I feel that the American taxpayers have supported this law suit long enough and that it is time to move on.

Andrew E. Harrod

MTC-00010548

From: DHscoggin@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:04am
Subject: Microsoft Overcharging

I think the charge that Microsoft has used its monopoly power to overcharge the consumer is ludicrous. Don't understand how they can be coincidentally charged with overcharging the consumer and also bundling additional capability into their products at no / low cost to drive their competitors out of business. Also, it is clear that Microsoft has been a catalyst for innovation in the computer technology field rather than an inhibitor. Let's move on to something more important like the pillage of Enron.

MTC-00010549

From: Bill Adams
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:21am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice,

Microsoft also known herein as MS has intentionally restricted use of the java programming language as an included feature in their new browsers, siting various and conflicting criteria for doing so. This prevents millions of websites with such existing technology from having it used, prohibits good and fair trade and stifles innovation. This feature can be worked around by the many of millions of developers who created the content at a tremendous expense in time and energy. A free web site that I developed (<http://www.SeeMyDesign.com>) and continue provide for the good of society, employs such technology and has been running successfully since 1997 but key features will become defunct because MS chooses to hurt the end user.

This removal of industry standard functionality (has been free and available for 5!! years in all browsers) is in light of MS bundling many other features in the operating system which have the effect of promoting and locking the users into the MS operating environment and in effect, becoming free to those that purchase a computer.

An example is the .mov movie MIME type that Apple computer utilizes to display their interactive content on the windows platforms. This change prevents Apple quicktime from properly displaying and playing in to name an example: Windows2000. No message or information is provided. This specific example can be seen when viewing Quicktime VR content. Not only does a message not pop-up in the browser indicating the content cannot be displayed, but nothing happens at all—which for the average user, won't know what action to take.

This small example is MS mode of operation and has been since the beginning. I urge, beg and employ you to make mandatory, an invitation from MS to 3rd party vendors to include their windows-certified softwares with the MS operating system install media (CD's, etc.). I also strongly feel that MS should be penalized for their past actions of which penalty should be of monetary nature and provide good to the whole of humanity such as providing learning material to schools, but NOT providing software and computer which exacerbate the problem. Thank you for your consideration of these issues and for providing a conscious for those that do not know technology well enough to make informed decisions and those that do know it well enough but don't use alternative tools because comparable ones are bundled with the operating system. PLEASE contact me if you have any questions, need a voice or would like additional opinions.

Sincerely,
Bill Adams—Founder,
www.SeeMyDesign.com 801-484-3319
promote@seemydesign.com

MTC-00010550

From: Jsam42@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:26am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dear Sir,

Please stop harrassing Microsoft for being so successful. Bill Gates is one of the true heroes of this country. Please settle this case.

Sincerely,
John S. Samolitis
1545 W. Chase #203
Chicago, IL 60626
773-764-5336

MTC-00010551

From: dusty holman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:47am
Subject: Microsoft

I am retired from Texaco after 39 years as an electrical engineer.

I think you will find that if it was not for Bill Gates that the computer industry would be in shambles.

Microsoft standardized computers and their operating system. If it were not for Microsoft there would be chaos in operating systems and no one would be able to walk up to a computer anywhere and operate it.

How does Bill Gates overcharge for his products? I was under the impression that in the USA you could charge anything you want to for your own products.....if folks don't want to buy it they don't have to.

You can always go out and build your own operating system. Like Apple; like IBM. It is very simple as they found out.

For some reason I think the Justice Department is trying to destroy Microsoft so the Chinese can take over computers.....wonder why I think that?

Dusty Holman

MTC-00010552

From: Ruth Harris
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:15am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I am disappointed that the DOJ seems to have caved in to Microsoft. This is a company that engages in clearly unethical behavior. I can give you an example. A friend who is a consultant works closely with a business organization and had his email account through them and the ISP they used which also hosted their website. The organization decided to make online ordering of their products available to their customers.

In order to do this they needed "shopping cart" software and decided to purchase that offered by Microsoft. They went to the appropriate website to download it and went through all the steps to do so. At the end when they clicked the button to complete the process, the Microsoft website hijacked their website off their ISP's server. They were unable to get the process undone. Phone calls to Microsoft were futile. They all lost their email access as a result

I don't care how much money Bill Gates donated to politicians. This sort of behavior should be stopped.

Ruth Harris
Santa Rosa, CA

MTC-00010553

From: tom@nzymes.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:16am
Subject: Enough Already!

This country became the Great Country it is because of the free marketplace. Why does the government feel it has the right to control any part or faction of that marketplace. It has to stop before you destroy the initiative of every small business in America. Whenever the opportunity arises for Attorneys of any ilk to practice their trade of twisted truths and distortions especially against the free will of businessmen in America we, as a country take another step towards their great socialist dream.

Thomas Stansbury,
Westminster, CA

MTC-00010554

From: madhavan.s. madhavan.s.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:39am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Sir,

I strongly in line with Sun's view of the issue as i am a Java Developer and i am expecting the Java to play a leading and key role in developing portable,cross-platform applications . So please keep Microsoft out of this Monopolistic behaviour .

Regards,
S.Madhavan.
MADHAVAN.S

MTC-00010555

From: T-Bird Tom
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:42am
Subject: microsoft settlement
7288 Graydon Drive
North Tonawanda, NY 14120-1453
(716) 695-6104
January 11, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing you today to voice my opinion in regards to the Microsoft anti- trust dispute. I support Microsoft and am eager to see this dispute come to a timely end. This agreement is thorough and was reached after extensive negotiations and three years of anti-trust dispute. Microsoft has agreed to carry out all provisions outlined in this agreement, such as: disclosing more information about certain internal interfaces in Windows and granting computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows so as to promote non-Microsoft software programs. A technical oversight committee has been created to monitor Microsoft compliance, and companies can sue Microsoft if they feel the company is not complying.

We are facing very difficult economic times. We must do all we can to focus on our lagging economy. It is time to let Microsoft move on and forward. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
Thomas Miller

MTC-00010556

From: Dean Stephens
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 2:18am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dean Stephens
6310 Green Valley Circle #305
Culver City, CA 90230
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial was always just one more of the ongoing trial lawyer witch hunts. It is high time for this trial to be over. In a hundred years, the people involved in witch hunts such as the tobacco trials, and the Microsoft trial, will be reviled and despised with the same feelings we have today for the bogts who burned witches at the stake. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief, even as the innocent victims of the previous witch hunts finally found peace.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of serving consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views on the disgusting behavior of America's courts and its slimey lawyers.

Regards,
Dean Stephens

MTC-00010557

From: Chris Stackhouse
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:03am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Keep the settlement as is. It has been agreed to by most of the parties, the lawsuit and penalty has clearly made its point, the donations will obviously improve access to computer technology for the poorest schools and kids. Only Microsoft competitors are complaining (or their state's attorneys general).

It's time to move on.

MTC-00010558

From: Bmnov20@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:06am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Clinton spent 40 million going after Bill Gates rather than capture bin Laden when he had the chance. Now look where we're at and where are the priorities. Bill Gates is what America is about, the chance to make a difference in the lives of a lot of people and contribute to the economy and provide a lot of jobs. He used his brains to make a buck and many bucks for a lot of people. Because of the DOJ and some crybaby companies everyone in America has lost something. Leave it alone and go after something worthwhile. We in this family are angry.

Mary Linker

MTC-00010559

From: Bebu Corp
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Party,

I think that the Microsoft Settlement is not enough. I work in a non-profit organisation providing refurbished old computers to the poor and disabled. Microsoft has prohibited us from refurbishing old computers with Windows 95 on them. While this operating system is old and unsupported by Microsoft anymore, they still require us to obtain a license to "give away" these donated computers.

I wish that the settlement will consider organisations like ours because we are not breaking hurting anyone but Microsoft is still screwing us up. Those computers were donated to us for free and we simply format the computers, install the old Windows 95 or Windows 3.1 with slower computers, and donate them to new immigrants, poor families, disabled people and orphan homes. We make no money and all of our helpers are doing voluntary work.

Yours Faithfully,
Daniel

MTC-00010560

From: Thamaraiselvan P
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi there,
i am strongly opposing Micorosoft Monopoly. This will slowdown/reduce the innovative software development/products. They should provide API/Specification for their products like WORD/EXCEL etc. thanx.. ThamaraiSelvan.P
Member Technical Staff—ADG
E-mail : thamaraiselvanp@planetasia.com
Phone : 5522252/7 ext :511
www.Planetasia.com
"You don't know what you can get away with until you try."

MTC-00010561

From: rumpwrr
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:33am
Subject: Setteltment

For God sake settle this thing now. Microsoft is only guilty of creating a standard operating system that allows all computers to easily communicate. Designing a useful standard is why "Windows" is popular not because Microsoft has some sort of manopoly. If the competition in the nine states can't compete let them go out of business.bill Rumpza

MTC-00010562

From: James Wine
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 3:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

James Wine
5817-20th Ave
Sacramento, CA 95820-3107
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over,

companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James M. Wine

MTC-00010563

From: jean martin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 5:43am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is high time, and long past, to get the Microsoft antitrust case settled and done with. I am almost sure that the very beginning of the economic downturn we are currently trying to climb out of, was first initiated due to the anti-business, anti-capitalist attitude of the previous Administration. I am in full support of the current Administration in its desire to get this case settled without further action. Enough is enough. Please "call off the dogs".

Jean L. Martin, M.A., M.S.S.W. (retired)
Richardson, Texas

MTC-00010564

From: Evans Hollandsworth
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 6:19am
Subject: get over it

Microsoft is definitely guilty!!!!!!—of using the "free enterprise" system which i think has made this country great. Why do we//You want to punish someone for being very successful???

The folks that are pushing these suits are mad cause they didn't have the foresight, intelligence, determination that Bill Gates had.

Gates has given the whole world a usable product.

Let him alone!!!!
Evans Hollandsworth

MTC-00010565

From: Philipp Resl
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 6:59am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am part of the worldwide network that is working to get BeOS back into the market place, but there is no hope to succes if the following issues aren't addressed:

At first I think it is important to make dual-boot options mandatory, moreover open Office file formats would be a great thing.

I hope this letter helps, and I wish you all the best for your Settlement!

with regards,
Philipp Resl

MTC-00010566

From: sangchul shin

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:31am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am very much concerned about the possibility that Microsoft continue its monopoly on the desktop operating system. It has been proven several times that Microsoft in fact have used its monopoly position to crush the competition. And that is precisely what the court has found: Microsoft broke the law. Now I am amazed U.S. government's leniency toward Microsoft. I want to make sure that you know I am utterly opposed to the US government position on this matter and call for more severe punishment against Microsoft.

MTC-00010567

From: dick@softplc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:52am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

Your proposed settlement with Microsoft is unbelievably lenient. It is as if you were not in the courtroom when the evidence was presented. The best observer of this case was Judge Jackson. What the appeals court had to say about his opinions missed the fact that he observed the evidence being presented.

I have been in the software business for 20 years. It is my opinion that your settlement does not go far enough.

Don't cash your checks from Microsoft. Somebody might find out that you have been bought.

I am a Texan, a republican, and a Bush supporter, but if I find out that Bush had anything to do with this settlement, he will not get my vote next election.

Go back to what Judge Jackson thought was appropriate. His supposed BIAS could not have been pre-existing. His opinions were formulated based on the evidence presented by David Boies.

You have made a mistake, fix it.

Dick Hollenbeck
President, SoftPLC Corporation
SoftPLC, Open Architecture Control Software

dick@softplc.com
Ph: 512/264-8390
Fx: 512/264-8399
http://www.softplc.com

I want to be what I was, when I wanted to be what I am now.

MTC-00010568

From: Brent L. Roulier
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:50am
Subject: DOL Settlement with Microsoft.

The time has come to bring this case to a close. The proposed settlement needs to be implemented. We need to get the economy moving forward, Every minute of delay further hurts America.

Brent & Diane Roulier

MTC-00010569

From: Mike Strong
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 9:11 am
Subject: CC scolding sent to Microsoft

You will never be able to volunteer a resolution to your infractions because you are incapable of recognizing any culpability for inappropriate, anti-competitive practices on your part. In your minds, if there is ANY competition remaining in the universe, on any level, on any product, you are totally justified (in your minds) to pursue the most aggressive, monopolistic behaviors that you can you squelch that nook of remaining resistance.

The inanity of your settlement proposal of dumping a billion dollars or so of your own products onto the public sector as a token apology for crimes and indiscretions you obviously do not believe that you've even committed is more than ludicrous. It's insulting. You are flooding the educational sector with your own products, fostering a future dependency on your products., which computer companies have done as an explicit marketing strategy for decades (DEC was the best at this during the seventies with Universities, and Apple in elementary schools). In addition to taking all the benefits of that, business-wise, you try to spin it as some sort of spectacularly sacrificial consolation for your detractors. While you are patting yourselves on your backs, I should think that you are probably writing it all off your corporate taxes at the same time. While I don't know that you've had the audacity to pull that third maneuver, I would expect it. I do not fault the tactic as a business tactic. Rather, I am incensed that you would try to blatantly spin it as penance.

As a computer professional who has developed on your platforms for 15 years, and who has developed products targeted for Microsoft platforms all during that time, I have had enough. You have virtually never cooperated with good, industry standards. Everyone else involved always mistrusts your participation on various standards committees. You only feign to go along for a short time to get your bearings until you can finalize plans for your own, proprietary, parallel standard. You want the world to only have you or the rest of the world to choose from standards wise, and you work feverishly to make use what they are already dependent upon you for to coerce them into accepting your proprietary alternatives to emerging standards.

Microsoft should have embraced J2EE..NET is a total offense to me professionally. Your subscription-licensing model, while suitable in a few contexts, where clear, on-going service and value are being provided, is otherwise a subtle trap that you are laying down. Because some people have become content with earlier versions of certain MS products that have been perfectly adequate for them, you cannot bear having them not make their annual sacrifice at your alter. You feel compelled to ensnare everyone into putting out their financial arm for an unending IV transfusion into your wallet. You want to be the all-encompassing public utility for all activities, all commerce, all enterprise functionality and endeavors.

The fact that you have done many good things, and made many wonderful products that all of us want to support you in, such as Microsoft Word, et al, makes your excesses, indiscretions, and greed all the more egregious and scandalous.

You must be resisted by the most aggressive means. I will boycott your products and services every chance I can in every context that I can, and I will actively encourage others to do so, until and unless you demonstrate some willingness to behave well. While aggressive competitiveness is the "American way", it comes with rules of engagement and fair play. If you've won 90% of the monopoly board, you must be reconciled to the fact that you have to begin to play the game differently. What was OK 15 to 20 years ago, can no longer be the mind set by which you operate today.

Either accept the separation of the OS business from the applications business, or accept public-utility style regulation. You have to accept one or the other at this point, or you will be taking a position of overt evil. No amount of rationalization or word-smithing will be able to assuage the wrath you will deserve.

Mike Strong HM: 512-259-0723
321 Mesa Oaks MBL: 512-970-0637
Leander, TX 78641-8937 FAX: 413-581-3847

MTC-00010570

From: John Bintz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 9:21am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the two most important parts of this settlement are the IE bundling with Windows to kill Netscape and the inability for OEMs to allow dual-booting PCs. For the longest time, Netscape had the much superior product to Microsoft, but once IE became bundled with Windows, and the only way to get an alternative browser was to download a several megabyte file over a phone line connection, most average users say, "What's the point? I've got the 'e' here. I'll just use that." The average user balks at both file downloading and program installation. It's no wonder Netscape holds so little market share right now, and what is left is slowly eroding away (my work's Web traffic logs indicate that 80% of external traffic right now is IE, 15% is Netscape).

The dual boot restriction on OEM PCs also killed the Be software company and their competing operating system BeOS. BeOS was a very powerful, Unix/Amiga-like platform built from the ground up to be the ultimate media processing foundation. Hitachi wanted to make a dual boot Windows/BeOS machine, but because of OEM restrictions, users of the Hitachi FLORA had to go through numerous steps to enable the BeOS part of the hard drive. No normal user could be expected to follow all these steps just to enable an alternative operating system. Their response? "But it goes to Windows just fine! Why do I need this Bee-thingy, anyway?"

Microsoft's inability to give the users control is what makes them dangerous. If I want, I should be able to uninstall IE and put a competing browser in there to replace it. Had Microsoft opened up all of the programming interfaces to the operating system, a competing browser (such as Netscape or its offshoot Mozilla, which is what I'm using right now) could seamlessly replace Internet Explorer and everyone would be happy. Had Microsoft allowed OEMs to give visible dual-booting options, companies like Dell wouldn't have to produce two different lines of computers, one with Linux preinstalled and one with Windows installed (and Be might still be around). You could get a quad-booting Windows/Linux/FreeBSD/BeOS machine if you wished, and consumers would be happy.

However, Microsoft is really taking advantage of the beginning and non-power computer users with their very sneaky tactics. Try explaining to a beginner that the 'e' and the 'n' do the same thing, but that the 'n' is better. "Why is it better? The 'e' came with the computer!" Or try explaining that there's different OSes out there than Windows and you can use two different ones on your computer. "What, like those eyeMac thingies? My friend has one, and her Word is all different. I told her to get a Gateway, and now her Word looks right." It's the non-power users who are hurt most by this, because Microsoft's practices limit their exposure to anything non-Microsoft in any way they can.

Thank you.

MTC-00010571

From: Maria Hans
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 9:36am
Subject: antitrust case.
Blank213 Blazer Court
Melbourne Beach, Florida 32951
January 8, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The reason I am writing to you is to express my support for the settlement that has been reached in the Microsoft antitrust case. After three years and millions of dollars spent, both parties in this case have agreed to bring it to an end. I plead with you to avoid those special interests that are trying to have this case resumed.

This settlement, despite the objections of opponents, is equitable. With this settlement Microsoft has agreed to disclose its internal interfaces and other previously secret code to competitors. In fact Microsoft is sharing more secret information with competitors in this settlement than any computer company has ever in history shared. However for the opponents of the settlement this is not enough, some of them won't be happy until Microsoft is destroyed.

As Microsoft is one the most important American companies, and a very large employer, I think it is wise to end the case against them and let them focus on business. With this settlement, that will be possible.

Sincerely,
Richard Hans/Maria Hans

MTC-00010573

From: Edward Hine
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 9:55am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please keep the spirit of freedom which I feel Microsoft Corporation represents. It seems that competitors are trying to destroy this freedom with their own selfish goals.

Next time on line,
Andrea

MTC-00010574

From: curtis kreutzberg
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/12/02 9:09am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 curtis kreutzberg
 13623 south 300 east draper, ut 84020
 January 12, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 curtis kreutzberg

MTC-00010575

From: Mark Martin
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 10:07am
 Subject: Judgments

Regards:

1) I am a software professional that programs in a variety of areas.

2) The fluid nature of our environment, particularly in the last few years (the internet in particular) is a diverse area to maintain, and requires knowledge of many areas.

3) There needs to be some sort of standards so this medium can be of benefit to all, so for most needs, I use the non-profit/impartial settings for this such as World Wide Web Consortium (www.w3.org) for compliance purposes.

4) At some level in order to satisfy our clients, the ability to be portable and satisfy our clients becomes, more specific regarding the operating environment they use vs. what we use to serve them.

Case in point (as a developer, I consider this a perfect example of predatory practices):

1) Internet Explorer 6.0, Microsoft dropped/ restricted it's use of software plugins, this changed a big area of the internet programming arena.

How does this impact, what is predatory about it?

Well there are several areas to consider.

1) The User base, from a development standpoint most software professionals have accepted the fact that the user prefers Windows as the desktop, Mr. Gates has undoubtedly driven this, however many competitors, particularly in the free software arena have come about, it is up to us to educate the general public as we can about the alternatives.

But by and large, the public is driving that end of the market.

2) Since the public drives the market, what happens when Microsoft changes the game from a development standpoint? From a business perspective, it forces Microsoft's lack of support onto the support desks the of companies such as ourselves to resolve issues that were a direct result of Microsoft's broad power to totally change the market place. From an economics standpoint it can be argued that this creates jobs and generates spending, however, for the smaller businesses, this may not be an option.

3) This move along with the 'NET' initiative in the current release of Windows XP, further proves this predatory initiative further, from a programming perspective it (Microsoft) is again trying to garner market share through their vast influence by further negating those initiatives that are currently in place to try and establish a neutral ground for programming and delivery. How so? Well, any previously neutral options become, again driven by the public and the desktop, further forcing the programming community into a position of a) designing new methods to neutralize the change or...

b) submitting for financial reasons to Microsoft's drive over the market.

I can name numerous other instances of this practice through the last 15 years, I am sure you are aware of many of them, so I will not bother enlightening you as to these areas, unless, you inquire of me further.

In general, the public (in our affluent society) is duped by the the 'Wolf in Sheep's Clothing'; the only way to change this is to educate them. But I am increasingly concerned, that this amount of technology garnered in one area, is risky to the general nature of our world (not just the U.S.). It seems strange that in some arenas, there are virtually little or no virus attacks, but in Microsoft, it is daily news, not to mention our own military utilizes this technology (at least to some degree). I am not particularly a negative person, but the long term implications of this practice to continually drive market share and proliferate the use of a medium that is not only bug prone but has a high propensity to propagate rogue computer programs (as in viruses), is a scary thought indeed, since a lot of our government is driven by this very software.

What would I do?

Well, I do think Microsoft has a lot to be credited for, no I do not think they should be put out of business. They are doing what our capitalist society is supposed to do, go after the dollar. But there are ethical considerations that need to be addressed with the amount of power this company possesses, and no amount of publicists can address them through recommending humanitarian donations, and foundations for Microsoft to make them look better in the public's eyes. The fact of the matter is, is most of the public is oblivious to long term implications, nor do they care, until it effects them. Having said that, I will proceed...

1) This power needs to be dispersed, i.e. it is so powerful, that if allowed to persist, at the very least, it needs a body to govern it, not unlike our government does, we know this as the 'checks and balances' (the Judiciary Branch, The House and Senate, and the President).

This method is the one that governs our capitalistic society, so it should work and be fair for Microsoft.

2) If you are not going to divide it up, so all this technology does not reside in one faceless giant's realm, at least develop a governing body consisting of consumer/technical expertise that has an unbiased and educated hand in this direction our society and technology has taken us. These people have to be unencumbered by lobbyists. There are many such organizations trying to do this now (though all may not be in our country). This is a basis for argument, but is a compromise between break up or allowing these sensitive areas to be continually changed with the main consideration being market share.

3) The alternative, if the above is not acceptable is to continue on with the original remedies proposed by breaking up Microsoft, as originally proposed. If the Department of Justice fails to provide a remedy to this, the potential to subvert our society exists and will only get easier if the power of this entity is not dispersed.

It is my hope that this will be read with an open mind and with consideration, not just another faceless citizen. Until the last DOJ remedy, I have given much faith to my government to provide the correct course of action, however, I have become increasingly concerned with the methods of arriving at these judgements. I understand that some remedies will not meet with my own personal approval, and can live with that, but I feel a compelling need to appeal to the good of all, not just a base of satisfied internet users.

There is more to this than meets the eye, it is not meant to be 'evil' as some refer to it, but there does not appear to be a checks and balances system for this technology and I do not believe that it is a purely monopolistic approach. I equate the proliferation of this broad range of technology with the invention of the atomic bomb.

With great freedom, comes great responsibility, and that responsibility also compels us to look further than our pocketbooks or predatory marketing practices. We have a responsibility make our country aware of the power of this, and first we need to become responsible enough as a society to be able to use this technology both morally and safely.

It has already showed it's (the technology) ability to be a very positive thing for humanity, but the negative uses are just as numerous.

In summation, I do think something more appropriate than the current remedies is in order.

I feel that too much power (not just market power) resides in this company's (Microsoft) ability to drive the market. This power needs to be dispersed.

MTC-00010576

From: Stephen T. Spray

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:22am

Subject: Congratulations to Judge Motz

Any knowledgeable user of Microsoft products is fully aware of the bundling and the games they have played for years to frustrate competition from competitors.

Congratulations to Judge Motz for taking a stand for open competition in the real spirit of what has made America great. A deal in which the guilty party is the architect of the punishment is the worst sort of abuse imaginable, but it is typical of Microsoft's arrogance that they would think they could get by with it. I am so glad they have not—so far.

Stephen T. Spray
Huntsville, Alabama

MTC-00010577

From: Michael Carter

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:23am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Microsoft has cost my father a couple of jobs, I have lost opportunities because of them. If I am going to say anything that sticks with you it is hack them up like at&t/ma-bell, if anyone is going to believe in the justice system it is on your heads. some of the things microsoft has done, and continues to do, I think could land someone like me in prison for life. but since they have so much money and influence they are getting a slap on the wrist. do you think people will believe in the justice system if the wealthy and powerful can walk all over it, but joe blow you or I die by it.

Where is our david.....? We have a rampaging Goliath!

MTC-00010578

From: Charles Crawford

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:24am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft has a superior product that has world wide distribution because it is the best. Let them continue to expand their technology for the benefit of all of us.

Thank you.
Charles P. Crawford

MTC-00010579

From: Paquette, Robert

To: MS ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:28am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

13 Osprey Drive

Berkley, MA 02779-2337

January 12, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft

US Department of Justice

Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I support the settlement that was reached between Microsoft and the Justice Department. This agreement will be good for the public by allowing Microsoft to focus on more innovation and new software development.

Although I did not agree with the commencement of this suit in the first place, I agree with Microsoft that it is time to move forward. One is that Microsoft has agreed to grant computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows so as to promote non-Microsoft software programs that compete with programs included within Windows. This will allow computer makers to replace access to various features of Windows with access to non-Microsoft software such as programs from AOL Time Warner or RealNetworks.

As the Director of Technology for a small business in Massachusetts, I understand the importance of Microsoft's products for our economy. The company has done much to standardize development in this country and improve worker productivity. I trust your strong leadership for this settlement will continue.

With highest regards,
Robert Paquette
cc: Representative Barney Frank

MTC-00010580

From: prockett

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:31am

Please support the original court's decision on microsoft. Bill Gates is way ahead of the crowd in ideas and they are jealous.

Pat Rockett

MTC-00010581

From: Jerry (038) Phyllis Price

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:34am

Subject: Microsoft Trial Comments

Dear Sir:

I am writing to ask the Justice Department to settle the Microsoft trial. I believe this trial has squandered taxpayers' dollars, and was a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. I have lost money on my Microsoft stock, as many others have. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. I believe a settlement of this case will be in the public interest. And I can think of better things to spend our taxpayer's money on than targeting another corporation.

Sincerely,
Phyllis Price
P O Box 6307
Maryville TN 37802.

MTC-00010582

From: Randall Weytens

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 10:41am

Subject: Microsoft Case

To the United States Department of Justice,

I am sending this letter in response to the U.S. Department of Justice's acceptance of public comments on the Microsoft Case.

I do not think that Microsoft has violated any laws. This is why I think so: Microsoft is not a monopoly. A monopoly is only possible when other companies are not allowed to enter the marketplace by law, and Microsoft does not create or enforce the law.

Microsoft has never used force in the marketplace. Microsoft has never told businesses to do something at the point of a gun. They trade only when the transaction will benefit them. To survive in the free marketplace, a business cannot sacrifice itself to others and be successful. Microsoft has not violated any businesses or individual rights. The only possible way to violate another's rights is to steal, damage or destroy private property (from the first form of property, a person's body, on up to material and intellectual property).

I think the attack on Microsoft is illegal because:

To tell Microsoft to give away their source code is a violation of property rights. They have purchased or developed their code legally, by themselves. It is intellectual property, and it is theirs.

To break up the company is to violate their property rights. The company has a right to their property (everything from buildings to software source code), and therefore the right to bundle, integrate, or offer separately their software in any manner they choose. If someone does not like Microsoft software, buy something else. (There is Apple and Linux, to name a few, amongst others). Microsoft has brought value to the marketplace by offering affordable, well designed solutions that individuals all over the world use and enjoy. They have brought immeasurable profits and benefits to the businesses and individuals that use their software, enhancing their productivity by leaps and bounds. If Microsoft was no good at what they do, they would not be successful. People would not buy their products. The only legal and moral way to end Microsoft's grip on the marketplace is to produce something better than Microsoft has.

In order for humans to survive, they must think. Reason is not automatic. Those who choose to think have the chance of survival. Survival is not guaranteed, because some will be better at thinking than others. The Constitution of the United States, which is based on this idea, does not guarantee a business survival in the marketplace. They are not entitled to x number of customers, or x percent market share. They are not guaranteed subsidies from the American people or a share of another's ideas.

Business is based on the law of survival. If you can produce something that is good, that people are willing to buy, then you will survive. Do not, and you will not. Microsoft embodies this principle. They have succeeded. People like, use and want their software.

I think that America is the best place on earth, because it is the only one based on true, moral principles.

The ideas, that one is entitled to something just because it exists, that have motivated the attacks on Microsoft is what will send us all to hell in a hand basket. These ideas are based on Altruism, the foundation of everything that is anti-American. America became great because it enforced the rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, not the guarantee of happiness. I hope that these rights will still be defended, and that Microsoft will be left to do business as usual, their way.

Thank you for your consideration,
Randall J. Weytens
CC: Jessica Wanless, Paul Millard, Randall Weytens

MTC-00010583

From: MPerryCole@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 10:40am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
DOJ

I believe the settlement in m/soft is fair and reasonable. In view of the serious issues involved and the time taken to come to resolution and because of the lower court judge's impertinent and unjudicial remarks which could provoke a new trial and prolong this matter even further, this matter is ripe for settlement, and the parties should be allowed to settle this long and hard fought dispute.

Please cast my vote to put this matter behind us and move forward. We need to conquer a recession-not keep rehashing this old news.

Michael Cole
Attorney at Law
Calif Bar #37417

MTC-00010584

From: George McClure
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 10:45am
Subject: attorney general letter sent

MTC-00010586

From: Bill Wagner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:01am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi Mr. Ashcroft,
Enclosed is an attachment in defense of Microsoft Corporation.

Thanks,
William M. Wagner Jr. 13 Osprey Drive
Berkley, MA 02779-2337 January 12, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft US
Department of Justice Washington, DC
20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
I support the settlement that was reached between Microsoft and the Justice Department. This agreement will be good for the public by allowing Microsoft to focus on more innovation and new software development.

Although I did not agree with the commencement of this suit in the first place, I agree with Microsoft that it is time to move forward. One is that Microsoft has agreed to grant computer makers broad new rights' to configure Windows so as to promote non-Microsoft software programs that compete with programs included within Windows. This will allow computer makers to replace access to various features of Windows with access to non-Microsoft software such as programs from AOL Time Warner or RealNetworks.

As the Director of Technolo9Y for a small business in Massachusetts, I understand the importance of Microsoft's products for our economy. The company has done much to standardize development in this country and improve worker productivity. I trust your strong leadership for this settlement will continue. With highest regards,
Robert Paquette
cc: Representative Barney Frank
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00010587

From: Bob Harler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:08am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT 6959
South Highway 76 Russell Springs, KY
42642 January 11, 2002 Attorney General
John Ashcroft U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,
I am writing to you in support of Microsoft regarding the antitrust settlement. Microsoft did not deserve to be the target of antitrust litigation. They reached their point of market dominance solely due to the superiority of their product. Other vendors of software could not adequately compete with a product line that had been so overwhelmingly welcomed by the world's computer users. Superior product development is what placed Microsoft at the pinnacle of market dominance, not illegal marketing.

That being said, I do agree with steps being taken to ensure illegal marketing does not take place. But punishing Microsoft for producing a superior product smacks of allowing their whiny competitors to use the U.S. legal system to enhance their own market position. That practice should be considered as unfair and illegal as the alleged Microsoft practices.

I appreciate your time in this matter.
Sincerely, Robert M. Harler

MTC-00010588

From: charles messler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:22am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gentlemen:

This protracted litigation is akin to trying to milk a dead cow. Clearly, it smacks of an abuse of the legal system by attorneys interested more in fees than a just settlement.

I can see nothing wrong with Microsoft's efforts to integrate functions in any of their current Operating System platforms. To say that it disadvantages Apple (MAC) is ingenuous. There are MAC people and there are PC people. PC people are less likely to be graphics oriented, and prefer the control that Windows gives them. The integration is a plus. What is to stop MAC from innovating rather than cry help? Information Technology has a life cycle measured in months. Any settlement will be partly out of date before it can be approved.

It still galls me to recall Mr. Klein, Janet Reno and group cavorting like children when the now chastised judge made his findings of law.

Thought should be given to the millions of Microsoft shareholders that will be affected by the actions of the DOJ. Consider retirement assets that have already been decimated, albeit not to the extent of Enron.

Let the individual States fight in the Supreme Court if they are not satisfied with an omnibus settlement.

Thank you,
Charles L. Messler

MTC-00010589

From: Jared Davis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:33am
Subject: My Opinion

To whom it may concern,
I have followed the microsoft antitrust case with interest. I believe that the Departmane of Justice should not settle the case, and that the original findings of the case should be adhered to. These are, in my opinion, the actions that should be taken:

Microsoft should be split, all application software should be produced and sold by one portion that is split off, all operating system software and support should belong to another portion.

All java language development should be halted by Microsoft. This is not to say that they cannot use it, but that they must make their browsers and operating systems 100% compliant with the Sun Microsystems release. A monetary damages fee should be paid to the holders of the Netscape Software company.

Internet Explorer must be spun off to its own company, completely separate from the applications and the operating systems producers.

It is not fair, cor correct, for Microsoft to lose a judgement that it is a monopoly, then use the money it has illegally earned from that monopoly to buy off the Department of Justice.

Thank you,
Jared Davis

MTC-00010590

From: dblubbers
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:46am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that this settlement should be accepted and done quickly. This court case is one the the things that started the downslide of our economy. I have been familiar with the computer business since 1981 and am fully aware that certain companies are using the government to overcome Microsoft as a competitor.

Sincerely, Beverly Lubbers

MTC-00010591

From: dblubbers
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:50am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle the Microsoft case immediately. It is a fair settlement. Having been in the computer business since 1981, I am aware that Microsoft's competitors are using the government to attempt to control Microsoft as a competitor. The states do not wish to settle because they see dollars to use for their budgets. We have used Microsoft products since they started. We are thankful that they have helped establish a standard software that we could all safely build our businesses on. Thank you, Microsoft.

Dick Lubbers

MTC-00010592

From: Karen Hunt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:55am
Subject: Settle the Suit, ASAP, Please
Attorney General John Ashcroft January 12, 2002 Department of Justice RE: Microsoft Suit Pending
Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
Please let the Court know that you support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. Please use all of the power of your office to make the settlement of the aforementioned case come to an end by letting the Federal Judge know that we, Americans want it to end and stop putting Microsoft through all of this scrutiny. Please let the Federal Judge handling this case hear from you, representing us, the consumers. Take action today, and in support of this proposed settlement.

Thank you for your speedy work in this matter. Thank you for your continued integrity that you have displayed in the past and I know, will in the future.

Sincerely yours,
Karen W. Hunt
8931 Gaylord # 166
Houston, Texas 77024-2910
(713) 464-8153

MTC-00010593

From: Alan Vier
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:57am
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust

My view on the Microsoft anti-trust is that they should be free to innovate. I also feel that they are not using their "nopoly" in terms of pricing. The os is very complex and to get an upgrade for under $100.00 is a bargain! It would be nice if everybody could use their time and profits to better use than to spend it in court!

I do feel that Microsoft should not leverage their "monopoly" in terms of dealer preferences or limiting other companies to innovate.

Let us remember that it is Microsoft that tries to allow others to write applications for the PC vs Apple and others that limit hardware and make it more difficult to write software. It was Microsoft that allowed others to innovate other hardware and software applications that made to PC so popular.

Sun and the like should fight their battles in the marketplace and not in court. Linux is putting pressure on Microsoft to keep prices down and innovate, which is the way it should be.

In summary,
Let the bright create and not fight!

MTC-00010594

From: Charles B. Stinson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 11:58am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Charles B. Stinson Lighthouse Road P.O.Box 62 Prospect Harbor, Maine 04669-0062 Tel 207/963-2677 Email ckelp@acadia.net January 14, 2002 Attorney General John

Ashcroft US Department of Justice 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am in support of the current settlement between Microsoft and the Department of Justice at the federal level. Microsoft has produced some of the best products for the computer, which accounts for their vast success and status as an industry leader. There have been some instances in the past where making a choice in peripheral Windows components was overly difficult, which is one of the reasons I am in favor of the current settlement. I understand that from this time forward Microsoft products will be much more accommodating to the use and integration of competitors software peripherals. This is definitely a step forward, because I believe above all else the consumer should have the right to choose, to mix and match software as they see fit.

Another important reason for ending the antitrust proceedings swiftly is the strain, which our economy is currently under. The information technology industry is one of the biggest in the United States, and the antitrust suit has hurt this industry. Not only Microsoft has felt the burden of these proceedings, commercial retailers who sell MS products, employees of said retailers, Microsoft affiliated companies, stock holders, and the American tax payers have all been impacted by the antitrust suit. Given the current down turn in our nations economy, now is not the time to be wasting our resources in the court room when they could be better utilized elsewhere. Therefore I support the antitrust settlement, and urge you to do the same.

Sincerely,
Charles Stinson

MTC-00010595

From: Ludwik Kozlowski SR., M.D.
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 11:36am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Ludwik Kozlowski SR., M.D. 7608 Geronimo Circle N. Little Rock, AR 72116 January 12, 2002 Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ludwik J. Kozlowski SR., M.D.

MTC-00010596

From: Harold Berenson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 11:20am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Harold Berenson 20110 218th Ave NE Woodinville, WA 98072-7145 January 12, 2002 Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Harold R. Berenson

MTC-00010597

From: Charnan31@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft
ATR,BUBDAVI@aol.com@inetgw
Date: 1/12/02 12:10pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

My opinion and comments: Microsoft should get off the hook??\four years is enough??\ If another company has a better operating system??\they should show it and the world will buy it instead of XP. My County and my City has computers and training in every Library Thanx to Bill Gates. Their Software is reasonably priced??\litigation is never reasonable in cost.??\Let????s settle it now??\

Charles Murrell,
Redding California.
CC:gmburl@attbi.com@inetgw,SLATER455@aol.com@inetgw,Ce...

MTC-00010598

From: bs—crotteau

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 12:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's get on with it. Make the settlement and let Microsoft get back to being a major contributor in the high-tech world. One of the few places where the USA still holds competitive advantage.

Thanks,
BC

MTC-00010599

From: Alan Hansen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 12:35pm
Subject: Microsoft suit

Dear Sir or Madam

The time has come for the scumbags in the Justice Department to stop the suit against Microsoft, get off the dole and go to work.

Alan Hansen
124 North 155st
Shoreline Wa.98133
Have a nice day, Al

MTC-00010602

From: Juanema Hinesley
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 12:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Juanema Hinesley 5733 Hwy 9 E Shirley , AR 72153-6033 January 12, 2002 Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Juanema Hinesley

MTC-00010604

From: Samuel Golf
To: Microsoft ATR,MicrosoftComments@doj.ca.gov@inetgw,...
Date: 1/12/02 1:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Case

[Text body exceeds maximum size of message body (8192 bytes). It has been converted to attachment.]

To the minds of many Americans, the results of the Microsoft Antitrust case have called into question the integrity of our legal system as well as our political process. And to those which have not yet noticed, I think historians will take note on behalf of future generations.

In the past few years, Americans have been outraged at revelations of Chinese attempts to influence our political process through campaign contributions. It is well established in fact that Microsoft did give massive campaign contributions to members of congress and one erstwhile presidential candidate, namely George W. Bush. Additionally, lobbying efforts—either directly or indirectly—were made to others in congress as well as the Justice Department.

In light of these facts, it was with horror and dismay that I watched the direction and aspiration of the Justice Department's antitrust efforts change nearly 180 degrees following the presidential election (in stark contrast to previous tradition). The dangerous message which is being broadcast here is manifold:

First, it is possible to commit a serious crime in this country, be found guilty of committing that crime, and by manipulating the length of the trial beyond the term of a presidential administration it is possible to escape the original intentions of your prosecutors, effectively nullifying the most detrimental outcomes.

Second, the concept of "one man, one vote" is a joke in this country. Here we vote with dollars, and the more dollars you have, the more votes you get to make.

Third, and most disturbing, there is no longer separation of powers between the executive and judicial branches of government, as the framers of our constitution wisely intended. At other times in our history, foreigners committing similar acts have been imprisoned for treason. At other times in our history, Americans committing similar acts have been tried—and committed—for racketeering.

Additionally, when people have knowingly submitted false evidence in a trial, they have been tried and committed for perjury—again, leading to imprisonment. Microsoft was actually caught in the act of falsifying videotapes entered into evidence not once, not twice, but three times in the course of its antitrust trial.

I cannot recall when such egregious acts have ever been treated so lightly in America. Please keep in mind that we are not talking about abstract concepts of "harm to consumers" or "diminished competition in the computer market". We are talking about the very palpable pain and suffering of literally tens of thousands of hard-working people losing their jobs, businesses, and fortunes when Microsoft's illegal acts bankrupted thousands of businesses. Most of these businesses did not fail because they were making inferior products, nor because they were poorly managed, but because of the unlawful acts of an unfair competitor.

Meanwhile the founders, employees, and investors in Microsoft have made literally billions of dollars as a result of these illegal actions -which apparently everyone who benefited gets to keep. Where is the deterrent to committing the same illegal acts in the future?

Microsoft has already been found guilty of violating antitrust laws. The entire reason the antitrust trial occurred is due to Microsoft's violations of a previous consent decree. Now the Justice Department proposes to remedy Microsoft's behavior with yet another, impotent consent decree. This solution defies logic: When someone is found guilty of breaking laws, the punishment amounts to making them say "I'm sorry" and then promise not to do it again. Of course when the same perpetrator commits the exact same crime again (except worse) the new, improved punishment amounts to making them saying "I'm really, REALLY sorry this time" and promise not to do it again. Ever.

Except with Microsoft, they haven't even acknowledged that they are guilty. Publicly they maintain that they are the ones being injured by the "overzealous" efforts of the Justice Department (which at this point is anything but "zealous"). Microsoft is nowhere near saying "I'm sorry." So with Microsoft's established pattern of breaking consent decrees, what assurance do the American people have that they will actually adhere to this new one?

Other arguments diminishing the need for drastic remedies similarly defy logic: Some would have us believe that with AOL purchasing Netscape, the competitive landscape has changed faster than the trial could proceed, so there is no longer any need for anything to be done. Perhaps we should apply the same logic in a murder trial: once a murderer has completed killing their victim, there is no longer any need for punishment, because there is no way that the victim could possibly be harmed again. Microsoft effectively put Netscape out of business (it would never have been possible for AOL to purchase them without a tremendous devaluation of their stock); their products are no longer used widely, and they have lost all power to compete in the market with Microsoft—not because they produced an inferior product, but as a direct result of Microsoft's illegal and anticompetitive acts.

An effective remedy should be one which does not cost the American taxpayer the burden of a Saddam Hussein-style inspections of Microsoft's internal workings. As with nuclear inspections of Iraq, Microsoft has demonstrated its willingness to play a shell game with incriminating evidence. No, clearly Microsoft's past behavior demands that an intelligent person require permanent structural change to the company to pave the way for real competition in the computing market, and will furthermore show that in America, nobody is above the law—no matter how much money or political influence they wield.

The nature of Microsoft's unfair advantage which they have abused in the past comes from the collusion of several essentially separate business units, which must be cleaved in the remedy stage of this trial in order to have lasting beneficial impact: 1) operating system (OS) software

- 2) software development tools
- 3) productivity applications software
- 4) Internet client & server software
- 5) media software (Windows media, et al)
- 6) hardware
- 7) thousands of substantial holdings in other companies in disparate markets

Due to the massive size of Microsoft and its demonstrated ability to abuse this clout, simply dividing the company into two would still produce two rabid 800-pound gorillas, rather than two well-behaved chimps willing to play nicely in their respective markets. Three or four separate entities—with mechanisms in place to prevent continued collusion—are required to restore healthy competition to all these markets. Furthermore, Microsoft should be required to divest itself of holdings in other companies, which it also uses to maintain and extend its monopolies. Additionally, restitution should be required, considering the billions of dollars in gains that Microsoft and its investors have accrued as a result of these illegal practices. There simply must be a deterrence to breaking the law, and keeping the profit of billions is not a deterrence. Since our entire society has been damaged by Microsoft's actions, our entire society should receive restitution—to the tune of tens (if not hundreds) of billions of dollars—in the form of infusions to our nation's education system. Contrary to the previous proposals in civil suits, Microsoft should have no control—directly or indirectly—over the ways in which this money is spent. It could be used to offer equal technological access to all in our society, as well as explore implementing exciting new possibilities for integrated accelerative learning approaches that have been proven around the world to work eminently better than our own current system.

I also feel that officials at Microsoft should be prosecuted for racketeering and perjury efforts which occurred both during and after the antitrust trial. Again, people in our society should be treated equally in the eyes of the law, no matter how deep their pocket books happen to be. Also, the suggestion of making Microsoft's OS source code "public source" would simply benefit Microsoft, by encouraging wider adoption of the OS, because it would essentially be FREE. This would mimic the cycle of damage done to Netscape when Microsoft chose to give away Internet Explorer. In the "public source" scenario, Microsoft would also benefit from the combined efforts of thousands of programmers attempting to fix the many thousands of bugs that are known to exist within its operating systems. Microsoft has the particularly slimy business model of knowingly releasing software which is profoundly flawed, then charging its customers for a re-labeled product which partially fixes the bugs found in the previous generation, along with some additional new features and new bugs. This has been the business model of "upgradeware" that Microsoft has employed when convincing people to upgrade from Windows 95, to Windows 98, to Windows ME, and now Windows XP.

Recall that separation of powers and the public's faith in the integrity of the American political and judicial processes are literally what is at stake as the remedies are applied in this trial. Please show Microsoft that they are not above the law.

I offer my sincere appreciation for your time and consideration.

Samuel Goff

MTC-00010605

From: Mathieu Frenette

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 1:03pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm a Java Software Architect who really cares about the outcomes of the settlement—especially long term results—for they may bring down my entire open-source-multiple-platform-technological-freedom-world forever. No matter the usefulness of Microsoft's products, I just can't imagine a world with only that. Unfortunately, it seems to be the direction things are going.

I'm afraid this settlement has a much greater impact than what most people are aware of, for it will communicate to Microsoft whether or not (and at what degree) the entire world is willing to accept a "technological despotism".

Technological lock-in, altogether with their new operating systems (ie. WindowsXP) which slowly puts them in the middle of literally everything—including worldwide E-commerce—will bring them even closer to this "technological despotism".

In this respect, I sincerely believe the settlement should serve as a warning to Microsoft, clearly stating that the world is not letting go of its technological freedom.

Thank you profoundly for taking the time to review people's comments...

Best regards,

Mathieu Frenette

Java Software Architect

Freeborders Canada

mathieu.frenette@freeborders.com

MTC-00010606

From: Richard Becker

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 1:04pm

Subject: Amazing indeed...

Dear Sirs:

As a software engineer, and president of a technology company, I am astounded that the government cannot clearly see what Microsoft has done over the past several years. They have leveraged their monopoly to further strengthen their position, and effectively freeze out new, and for the most part better technologies. The most amazing part of this whole situation, is that they continue with business as usual, and for the most part nothing happens. They manage to tie things up in the courts for years, while technology keeps moving forward, and their position continues to strengthen. Nothing short of a breakup will stop this monopoly, and allow technology in this country to move forward. When one looks to Europe and Asia, where Microsoft is not so entrenched, that is where technology is thriving. Competition spurs innovation, but monopoly's stifle it.

With the recent introduction of the X-Box, Windows Multimedia format in DVD's, and in refusing to support competing, yet superior technologies (ie. Java) their monopolistic position only strengthens. As a person that is directly involved in the industry, it is so obvious as to the general strategy of Microsoft, it is a shame that our learned justices can't see it also.

Regards,

Richard J. Becker

President

MATRIX Information Systems Inc.

MTC-00010607

From: DWyatt4@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 1:12pm

Subject: Comment from consumer

It is obvious to many that the consumer is not the issue. We know that to buy a car piece by piece is outrageously more expensive and would put most car owners out of the market.

Yet you want Microsoft put in a position where they cannot add value to their product to the benefit of the consumer.

The amount of money Microsoft has had to spend in courts and to attorneys could have gone a long way in stopping world hunger and health issues. The consumer would also be way ahead without this costly litigation.

That will benefit only a few competitors of Microsoft.

The justice dept. as usual will end up screwing the consumer.

Dick Wyatt

MTC-00010608

From: Derek Mason

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 1:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is a very sad day in American history to see the DOJ abandoning its role of protecting the American public. It's issues such as the gov't's unwillingness to truly do what is right w/ MS that leads the public to see the U.S. gov't as corrupt, ineffective and protecting corporate interests over the needs of the general public.

The real issue in the MS case is stopping its monopolizing practices, which leads to further abuses and encroachments on constitutional protections. Corporate monopolies develop and function in a fashion not unlike authoritarian regimes, such as fascism.

The proposed settlement really doesn't do anything to accomplish this. The proof of this should be readily apparent to well-trained attorneys and constitutional experts. One needs only to look at MS's most recent behavior to grasp how ineffectual the DOJ has been.

Windows XP requires the purchaser to acquire an activation code from MS upon installation. This code is really an inventory of one's computers hardware. MS says it does not gather individually identifying information from the computer, but my computer hardware is my property, and I have a right to privacy regarding its content and use.

The claim that activation is separate from registration, which is essential for access to a variety of necessary services, such as the support system. Registration does require submission of identifying information, but MS claims it keeps this separate from activation.

What guarantee do I have that MS will do this? Given their behavior in the past, only a naive idiot would accept this. It is unimaginable that the DOJ allows this. The founders of our nation would be aghast at allowing a government agency to do this, let alone a private company.

Yet, MS is undaunted in its practice because I believe they know they can do what they want without any real action from the DOJ, or other regulatory body. It bespeaks the kind of arrogance of the early monopolists like JP Morgan, Rockefeller and the other early 20th century industrial tycoons.

I do not believe that MS paranoia about loosing profits from software privacy entitles them to infringe on the civil liberties of Americans. Apparently, the DOJ believes this as well because it has failed to stop the MS monopoly.

As if this activation isn't enough, MS is even more intrusive. If you change some of the hardware in your computer, such as cpu, ram chips, harddrive, firewire cards, Windows XP de-activates itself. You are then required to call MS and tell them what you have done to your computer!. I added a firewire card to my pc, and had to call them. It took two days to get a live person, but we've lived with that for many years. When I reached their agent, she said, "So, what are we doing today?" The implication being that they were entitled to know what I was doing with my pc. Incredible!

MS doesn't have a right to know this. They have sold me a copy of XP, and it does not include my giving up my rights to privacy.

The point is that we are forced to put up with this because: We have no other viable options when it comes to an OS. They have a monopoly. Why doesn't the DOJ grasp this? Does the settlement get at this?

Obviously not because MS continues to do these kinds of things.

One can also see very clearly where they're heading next. It does not take a genius to see that they are going to incorporate MSN into the OS, just as they did with Explorer. Then signs are already there. To get access to certain services, such as support, you have to have MS Passport, which is part of MSN.

Further you have to take their instant messaging, and you cannot even delete it from your system. They have recently bought QWest's internet system, which is now MSN. So they now have their own internet. The next step is to claim MSN is part of the os, and force people to pay for it in order to access the internet. They will do this by changing Internet explorer to MSN. The DOJ's settlement with MS is an abandonment of the US constitution, and the ideals that it embodies.

The real solution is to take the API and make it public domain, or force them out of every other business avenue they have been pursuing, MSN, internet service provision, non-os applications, and to stop them from abridging privacy.

It is hard to understand why DOJ cannot find the courage to what is so obviously right for the American people, and in their best interest, not a corporation's. Big Brother is here alright, but Orwell was wrong in thinking it was the federal gov't, it's Microsoft.

Derek Mason
Smithfield, UT

MTC-00010609

From: ME Conces
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:38pm
Subject: I am opposed to the government curtailing Microsoft's innovation in the business world.

Objections

I am opposed to the government curtailing Microsoft's innovation in the business world. Objectonists regret they can't keep up, so they spend our money going to court to prove that in essence

Microsoft is better qualified than the opponents in moving forward with innovation in the computer world. I feel Microsoft should be able to place computers in the schools if they can do it. Other companies are only objecting because they didn't think of it first.

Mary Eileen Conces
meconces@NWLlink.com

MTC-00010610

From: W. Roger Gehman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Warren Gehman
126 Park Avenue
Mount Joy, PA 17552-1524
January 10, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

Microsoft has gotten a raw deal as a result of a vendetta against it by politicians and lawmakers. Microsoft in no way should be broken up and should not be subject to many of the concessions it is being forced to make.

For over a decade now, Microsoft has led the tech world in innovation delivering the highest quality and most reliable products and services to the market. At times their market dominance precluded others from gaining an edge, but that forced competitors to raise their performance levels, weeding out companies who were not strong.

Microsoft cannot be punished for exhibiting vision and grit. Bill Gates accomplished the American dream and should be able to bask in his success, not wallow in political agendas. I urge your office to support the settlement for the sake of American public.

Sincerely,
Warren Gehman
cc: Senator Rick Santorum
Representative George W. Gekas

MTC-00010611

From: miriamlarson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:45pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs, Lets resolve the Microsoft problem and get on to bigger and better projects! I'm sure that you and your cronies have spent enough time and money on this subject . . .

Sincerely,
Miriam Larson

Bremerton, Wash. 98311

MTC-00010612

From: taliesin@speakeasy.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:51pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

I submit that both the Courts and the Department of Justice have a fundamental conflict of interest with respect to the antitrust case against Microsoft. How can one possibly judge a company and mete out fair justice when one depends upon that same company to do one's daily work? I further submit that in the interests of justice, Her Honor, her staff, and the DOJ team—at the very least—should immediately henceforth and until the conclusion of the case, cease and desist from using any Microsoft products for any reason in any way related to the case. This includes operating systems, applications, servers, even mice and keyboards. This includes all aspects of the lives of those involved. Home computers, games and game consoles, et cetera, et cetera, ad infinitum nauseumque. This will do two things. It will not only remove the specter of "what will I do if all this disappears" doubt from the minds of those involved, but prove to them personally just how pervasive the Microsoft monopoly is... and just how possible it is to break it, if only we have the will.

The proposed settlement, so far as I can tell, has no punishment for Microsoft, only prevention of further wrongdoing. I propose the following very simple step: A complete, total, ten-year ban on using Federal monies for the purchase of any Microsoft products, directly or indirectly. Current software would be allowed to remain, but as licenses expire or computers need upgrading, they would have to be replaced with non-Microsoft products. You cannot both break Microsoft's monopoly and pay them to maintain it. This would not only remove any Federal conflict of interest completely, but have the effect of forcing Microsoft to play fair with non-Microsoft systems or be forced from the industry as people make the changes necessary to make their own systems talk to non-Microsoft Federal systems.

There are many flaws with the proposed settlement, but I believe the addition of this one proviso, removing the conflict of interest from the case, will effectively cure all its remaining ills, and forever break the monopoly that today is Microsoft.

Glenn R. Stone
Linux Systems Engineer working in Redmond, WA

MTC-00010613

From: Tanner lewis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 1:55pm
January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing you today expressing my sincere belief that that no further action on behalf of the federal government needs to be taken against Microsoft. This issue has held the leading innovator, as well as the entire IT industry, in a state of stagnancy for three years now. It is time that the government let them get back to work. For this reason, the settlement reached in November should be implemented without further delay. It is quite clear that this settlement is thorough and reasonable. The government wanted to inhibit anti-competitive behavior and that is exactly what this agreement does. Microsoft has agreed to allow its competitors access in code and interfaces that internal are internal to Window operating system products.

Additionally, Microsoft has conceded broad new rights to computers makers to ship non-Microsoft operating systems, as well as the rights allowing them to configure Windows so as to promote software applications that compete with Microsoft products. There are many other provisions of this settlement, all of which will be verified by a Technical Committee for compliance. Under these conditions, it is fair to say that Microsoft's competitors have a significant advantage, and more importantly, this settlement satisfies the original goal of the government's lawsuit.

This settlement should be implemented immediately so as to allow Microsoft to get back to producing innovative products and services. This issue has been drawn on far too long, to the detriment of the IT industry and the economy. It demands a resolution. Please continue your hard work in this direction.

Sincerely,
Tanner Lewis

MTC-00010614

From: rosing@peakfive.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,

This is in response to the Microsoft Settlement. I'm disappointed because the settlement will not lead to a competitive business environment. It's clear that Microsoft has a monopoly. I can't run my business without paying Microsoft. The problem with the settlement is that it doesn't address the fact that Microsoft already has a monopoly. To rectify this the settlement should encourage more competition. The settlement makes a reasonable attempt at fixing some obvious problems in how Microsoft interacts with other companies and how they can modify or use Microsoft's operating system, but there is a lot more to using an operating system or writing applications for an operating system then setting icons. Microsoft should have to make any changes to the operating system available to the entire public long enough ahead of time of implementing them that other companies can use the changes in a competitive manner with Microsoft's other software products.

Another approach to ensuring competition would be to encourage a competitive operating system for PCs. My biggest complaint with Microsoft is that it has little to no competition. The consumer is stuck with whatever Microsoft comes up with no matter how many errors or worthless features are in it. If the Mac OS ran on PCs then Microsoft would be pressured to fix some obvious problems. If there were a company with enough capitol to build a simple interface for Linux then Microsoft would have real competition. I would like to see the settlement structured to have Microsoft pay for the development of a competitive product, either Mac OS on a PC or a simple Linux interface, then have Microsoft's operating system made public.

Thank you,
Matthew Rosing

MTC-00010615

From: Frank Koch
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Frank Koch
158 Terning Drive West Eureka, MT 59917
January 12, 2002 Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530 Dear Microsoft Settlement: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Frank Koch

MTC-00010616

From: Denise Rounds
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 1:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Denise Rounds
PO Box 480097
Charlotte, NC 28269
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Denise Rounds

MTC-00010617

From: James E. Osteen, Jr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:29pm
Subject: Put an end to the Antitrust Case

Can you please save me and my fellow taxpayers a little money? The last thing that we need now is for the DOJ to keep harassing Microsoft. In my eyes, Microsoft's competitors are whinning, because they cannot build a better product.

James Osteen

MTC-00010619

From: marina slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:48pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dear Judge KK;

As a long-time (and very discontented) Microsoft user, I find it almost unbearable to think that I will be forced to continue to use the MS operating systems— and (gasp) MS applications— indefinitely into the future if the PFJ is approved as it now stands. Please help bring at least a modicum of real competition to our country's PC software industry. For all of us millions that use the PC everyday to do a variety of tasks, how much nicer it would be to have truly free choice in applications—and an Operating System that actually worked without crashing. Clearly you can't do a lot about the latter. But please do something about the former. Please don't allow the 'bolting' provision of the PFJ to stand.

Sincerely yours,
Marina Slayton
Palo Alto, CA

MTC-00010620

From: marina slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 2:51pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

THANK you Judge—for taking this case seriously. Please do not let Microsoft have its way.

We need a competitive software industry in our country-not a MS monopoly.

THanks,

MTC-00010621

From: G S
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:02pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
GREETINGS JUDGE;

THANK YOU FOR YOUR WORK IN REVIEWING THE PFJ. AS A 10 YEAR VETERAN OF THE SOFTWARE INDUSTRY, MY READING OF THE PFJ TELLS ME THAT IT IS DEFINITELY NOT IN THE PUBLIC'S BEST INTEREST.

I HOPE YOU WILL SEND THE PFJ BACK TO JUSTICE AND ASK THEM TO CORRECT AT LEAST THE MOST EGREGIOUS SECTIONS, IF NOT (PERHAPS BEST) START AGAIN.

AFTER ALL, THREE COURTS HAVE ALL FOUND THAT MICROSOFT DIRECTLY AND REPEATEDLY ABUSED ITS MONOPOLY POSITION (95% OF THE EFFECTIVE MARKET FOR PC OPERATING SYSTEMS IN THE USA??). WHY SHOULD WE TRUST THEM GOING FORWARD???

THANK YOU.
GWS

MTC-00010622

From: Barbara Bryant
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 2:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Barbara Bryant
PO Box 1344
Levelland, TX 79336
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

WHY DON'T YOU GO AFTER THE "UTILITY/TELEPHONE MONOPOLIES IN SMALL TOWNS?"

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Barbara Bryant

MTC-00010623

From: Anders Persson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hej

Microsoft position on the software market make them a monopoly company. They thoroughly use it by adding not large differences to standards but small ones. Many companies in Sweden have abandoned other products like Netscape since they do not handle everything correctly if a site has been developed by any MS product. Since a lot of people use MS Word, MS Front Page in large companies they of course produce their sites with those tools. Netscape handles them almost correctly but since Microsoft has added some slight differences only known internally of Microsoft it is only MS Internet Explorer that has the possibility to handle the pages correctly.

They have tried the same with Java and their product Visual J++ that in some cases produced not standard Java code. So, Microsoft is defacto, by its large market share, setting the standard but not telling anyone. A similar case is the openoffice.org tool that tries to read MS Word format documents. I recently filed an issue about a bug to openoffice.org. They did not handle some tables correctly that was produced with a MS Word tool that a friend of mine used. They looked at the binary format of the document and the reason was that MS Word ignored in this specific case the carriage return that was included in the table? Why did they ignore it? How should anyone else than the developers at Microsoft be able to write products that use information produced by other tools either by direct communication or via files produced by Microsoft tools.

If a small company do like Microsoft none will bother since it often does not affect anybody. But since Microsoft totally dominate the market everyone must follow what they do. If Microsoft decide that they need a new product in a certain area they just take it since they can easily create a new product that is better integrated with all other Microsoft tools than any other vendor can do.

The only possible solution is to divide MS into a lot of smaller companies.

Regards
Anders Persson

MTC-00010624

From: Don Running
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:05pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

MTC-00010624-0001

805 Harrison Street
Wakefield, MI 49968-1043
January 12, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530-000

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

We are huge supporters of Microsoft. We have long been impressed by the company's ability to produce user-friendly products. Microsoft has their hand on the pulse of the consumer's needs. This is the secret behind Microsoft's ability to innovate. We want to voice our support for the settlement. This settlement is fair. It is reasonable. It contains many terms that will ensure anti-competitive behavior in the future. The largest of these terms is the disclosure of the internal interface. Competitors will now be able to access the design of the Windows system. This will put competitors at an increased advantage.

Microsoft is a great company. It has helped the technology industry immensely. The settlement will allow them to get back to what they do best. Enact the settlement.

Thank you.

Sincere regards,
Donald R. and Margaret A. Running

MTC-00010624-0002

MTC-00010625

From: Gayle Green
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
4119 North Simpson Road
Otis Orchards, WA 99027-8721
January 12, 2001
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I support the settlement of the Microsoft Antitrust Case. I am outraged about the amount of money and time that has been devoted to it. This case should not have been brought in the first place. I am even more outraged by the handling of the case by the judiciary. I believe firmly that the government should simply drop the case against Microsoft, however, as the likelihood of this happening is slim, I support Microsoft's agreement to comply with the terms of the settlement agreement in the interest of ending this costly, wasteful, unwarranted, and needless litigation.

The terms of the settlement are more, considerably more, than fair, just, and reasonable. Microsoft has gone far above and well beyond what should be expected of it. Microsoft has agreed to disclose to its very competitors the interfaces that are internal to its proprietary Windows Operating System. Similarly, Microsoft agreed to not enter into contracts with third parties that would require that third party to exclusively promote or distribute Microsoft products. There should be no hesitation in accepting these terms; no hesitation on the part of the Department of Justice; and, no hesitation on the part of the Court. A nation that hesitates in times of crisis is lost. And our nation is facing a crisis.

I believe firmly that this case was brought as a result of the government's ongoing pattern of interfering with successful American businesses. Innovative companies, like Microsoft, should be free to further their businesses. When innovative American companies are allowed to freely innovate, American businesses, American consumers, and the American economy in general, will benefit.

Thank you in advance for your attention to this matter and, please, let our nation move forward.

Sincerely yours,
Gayle E. Green

We do not lose heart. Though outwardly we are wasting away, yet inwardly we are being renewed day by day. For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. So we fix our eyes not on what is seen, but on what is unseen. For what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal.

II Cor. 4:16-18

MTC-00010626

From: Mike Duetting
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
5756 Spruce Knoll Court
Indianapolis, IN 46220
(317) 255-4806
January 12, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing to express my full support of the recent antitrust settlement between Microsoft and the US Department of Justice. The case has dragged on long enough and I believe the settlement is fair and in the best interests of the America public. There are two things I completely agree with in the terms of settlement and think will be good for the IT Industry. First, the increased relations between Microsoft and computer makers and software developers will allow knowledge sharing, which is unprecedented in this industry and should promote higher growth rates. Second, designing future Windows versions so that computer makers, software developers, and consumers can more easily promote non-Microsoft products is a welcome adjustment to the current format.

But, for the IT Industry and economy to rebound this matter has to be settled as soon as possible and that will only happen when the nine states in opposition drop their lawsuits. I believe they should be scolded for their actions and I disagree fully with their intents.

Sincerely,
Michael S. Duetting

MTC-00010627

From: m C
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:11pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
DEAR JUDGE; WHEN REVIEWING THE PFJ, PLEASE THINK OF WHERE OUR NATION WOULD BE WITH ONLY ONE OIL COMPANY (STANDARD OIL) OR WITH ONLY ONE RAILROAD CORPORATION... MONOPOLIES ARE INHERENTLY BAD FOR OUR INDUSTRY, OUR ECONOMY AND OUR NATION. AND I DON'T THINK THAT ANYONE LOOKING SERIOUSLY AT THE NUMBERS WOULD ARGUE THAT MS DOESN'T AT LEAST HAVE A DEFACTO MONOPOLY IN OUR INDUSTRY.

AGAIN AND AGAIN AND AGAIN MS HAS ABUSED ITS MONOPOLY POSITION TO PUT ITS COMPETITORS OUT OF BUSINESS. AND NOW THE GOV'T WANTS TO TRUST MS NOT TO DO IT AGAIN (WHICH IS HOW I READ THE PFJ).

THAT IS RIDICULOUS...AND IT WILL BE A SERIOUS BLOW TO THE AMERICAN SOFTWARE INDUSTRY.

PLEASE TAKE A COURAGEOUS STAND FOR FREE MARKETS. PLEASE STAND AGAINST THE MICROSOFT MONOPOLY.

THANK YOU.
MARIAN CHILDS
TOLEDO, OHIO

MTC-00010628

From: Stephane
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The american DOJ is the only authority that can do anything against the unfair market strategy of Microsoft corporation. And it may do so because, for its own interests, breaking such a monopoly would benefit the USA's state.

1-Microsoft's monopoly keeps the new economy fragile and weak. What would happen in case of Ms' crash ? The main industrial network in IT would be thrown to ground. Do you think people would like not to upgrade windows computers during 10 years because MS is dead ? Do you remember that anti trust laws were established after 1929 and why ?

2-This monopoly costs to the us society. The illegal and nonsense raises in software (that became necessary for most users and enterprises) involves a real robbery of the american society. The states are stolen, as their people are, when they spend million dollars just because the have to buy an up-to-date system (even if up-to-date just means more beautiful and newly marketed).

3-From a computer security point of vue, having only one large scaled operating system (that can't be customized or modified in any way) is the MAIN factor that explains why viruses and security holes spread so quickly in the net. More diversity would carry more immune to the net and the american economy as well.

4-No more innovation, what a pity for such a new field : creating Operating Systems for people.... Microsoft is simply leveling down the computer science as many will tell you. Even their "innovations" are not innovations because they are not shared and this just becomes a market advantage to strengthen Ms and weaken the technology ability to change and evolve. American founder thought it would not become another oligarchy ...

What an amazing idea to see that justice is feared to break someone who concentrates so much power in a democracy...

MTC-00010629

From: ELHoffmann
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

Since technology changes and evolves so quickly these days, it is impossible that a monopoly can exist.

Every company has an equal opportunity to achieve success and Microsoft should not be punished for accomplishing the highest level of success. Over the past ten years, growth of Microsoft has fueled the US economy. As a result of litigating Microsoft, this source of "fuel" has been cut short. Thus it is important to end litigation as soon as possible.

The settlement offers the best solutions to the problem and serves the best interest of the people. We should not continue to weaken our US companies and while risking the chance of another foreign entity take advantage of the software market. There are already several non US companies developing products that will provide very strong competition for Microsoft. Microsoft should be left alone so that they can continue to develop new cost effective products and stay ahead of these foreign competitors. I am very concerned about the large legal bills being forced on Microsoft to defend themselves against this unwarranted litigation. In past years many other US companies had an equal opportunity to develop competitive software but have not been successful simply because what Microsoft has provided has been better and cheaper. I know because I have used much of that software and am very familiar with the cost and functionality.

After more than three years of litigation, it is about time that a settlement was reached. The current agreement ensures that other US competitors have an opportunity to be promoted the same amount as Microsoft. Provided in future Windows programs will be a mechanism that enables all users to easily reconfigure Windows to endorse software programs that are competitive with Microsoft products. In doing this, Microsoft consented to document and disclose necessary interfaces to the competition in order to advocate software compatibility. In addition, Microsoft has agreed to the establishment of a Technical committee. These software engineer experts will monitor Microsoft's business practices and will report any violations of the settlement.

Due to the excessive length of this case, it is necessary to end litigation immediately as it is not beneficial to the parties involved or to the US citizens. I believe the justice department has many more important items on its agenda. This country can not afford additional terrorism so that is where the justice department should be putting these resources (to better use in protect the people of the United States).

Thank you considering my comments.

Sincerely,
Leon Hoffmann

MTC-00010630

From: DrShelleyG@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 3:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The DOJ should allow Microsoft to press on in competitive ways and to innovate. Surely some compromise can be reached. If not computers and software for schools, how about software for government entities?

Shelley S. Gordon, Ph.D.
2444 West Oak St. #228
Denton TX 76201
DrShelleyG@aol.com

MTC-00010631

From: tjsimon124
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 3:28pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Department of Justice:
 It is high time that this case be closed and allow Microsoft to continue their innovative process's in developing new, improved, and affordable software programs that benefits individual consumers, the software industry, and the American Economy. Please stop spending taxpayers dollars on this case and devote your efforts to other more important matters that affect all Americans.

If the few special interests individuals would spend the resources in improving their software products instead of litigation, maybe they too could improve the efficiency of their products.

THOMAS J. SIMON
 Concerned consumer

MTC-00010632

From: CANTDANCELK@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 3:29pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

It is just unbelievable that a company such as Microsoft is penalized for being successful. Enough already! I have yet to find ANYONE who has been "hurt" by what ever Microsoft has been accused of. The real villain in this circus are the competitors of Microsoft who just cannot compete or will not compete without government intervention. If you cannot compete in a certain market, then you probably are IN the wrong market. This is what a true "open market" is. Microsoft is being penalized for following the American Way. A successful company that has indeed improved my way of life and millions of others. Let's face it. The states that are involved are only looking for another "cash cow" to fill their coffers. To drain Microsoft of legally earned revenue, an amount that Microsoft will have to pay, but like any other prudent company, would pass the cost back to the consumer by raising the price of its product, thus basically becoming a "hidden tax" upon the American people.

The Department of Justice must end this trampling on the spirit of what is America, an open market, the freedom of commerce, the right to be successful without penalty.

Lou G. Kush
 27810 49th Ave S
 Auburn WA 98001-1913
 United States of America
 (253) 859-3004
 e:mail: CantdanceLK@aol.com

MTC-00010633

From: WWilli2182@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 3:34pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:
 I should like to record my view that the Microsoft settlement recently agreed upon is fair and reasonable, and in the public interest, and it would be very much against the public interest to reopen the case at this time, after already protracted litigation.

Very truly yours,

William J. Williams

MTC-00010634

From: Richard Iverson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 3:37pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 8468 W McRae Way
 Peoria, Arizona 85382
 January 12, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The federal government has no place telling people how to run their business or punishing them for being successful when they do it right. Microsoft is being punished for simply being too successful. I hope that this settlement means that both Microsoft and the government can move onto more important issues.

This settlement will make it easier for companies to design their products for use in Windows by requiring Microsoft to give them information about how Windows operates internally. If they don't feel that Microsoft is complying, they are allowed to take them back to court. I feel that this is more than enough to handle all of the original complaints that were brought against Microsoft in the first place.

Please let this settlement stand and let this whole mess finally be over and done with. Thank you for hearing me out in this matter and I look forward to hearing the result of this case after the comment period has ended.

Sincerely,
 Richard Iverson

MTC-00010635

From: Patraykirby@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 3:44pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement
 January 8, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

This letter is intended to express my concern regarding the continued delay in the settlement of the Microsoft case. This matter has been the object of years of litigation, constant controversy and continuous delay. All the while, one of the nation's most dynamic corporations has been hamstrung in a manner detrimental to the whole IT industry and our national economy. It's time to end this controversy and get Microsoft back to work.

The proposed settlement will satisfy the concerns of the government and remedy the grievances of Microsoft's competitors. The company will be constrained to open up its Windows systems to non-Microsoft software and computer manufacturers. There will be a Washington appointed oversight committee to monitor the company's compliance. In short the fears of Microsoft's competitors are no longer justified.

This case is now no more than a political football, and treating it as such is detrimental to this country and our economy. Please finalize this settlement.

Sincerely,
 Raymond C. Kirby
 9411 Brookview Drive
 Brentwood, TN 37027

MTC-00010636

From: Julia Stemper
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/12/02 3:07pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Julia Stemper
 1830 E. Parks Hwy. #639
 Wasilla, AK 99654
 January 12, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
 The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Julia Stemper

MTC-00010637

1437 Darthmouth Street
 Scranton, PA 18504-2122
 (570)342-0590
 January 8,2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice,
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001
 Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am happy to see that a settlement has occurred between Microsoft and the US Department of Justice in the antitrust case, but extremely upset with the nine states continuing their lawsuits. Microsoft should not be broken up and most of the concessions they are being forced to make are ridiculous. I am currently studying for a degree in Business Information and have worked in numerous internships in the IT sector. As a student, and constituent of IT businesses, I think Microsoft is being wrongly forced to disclose their technology that they have worked long and hard to develop. I will say that Microsoft has done wonders for our technology educational systems and should be applauded for how they have helped our economy.

The terms of the settlement have some just points such as forming three-person team to monitor compliance with settlement and increasing relations with competitors to share technological codes and interfaces.

I hope that the Department of Justice helps to suppress state opposition and works to free up Microsoft so that they can focus on regaining the growth they had over 3 years ago.

cc: Senator Rick Santorum
Senator Arlen Specter

Sincerely,
Mark Gowarty
From: Mark Gowarty
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 4:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attached are my feelings on the Microsoft Settlement. Please see that they are read and reflected upon.

Thank You
Mark Gowarty
CC:Microsoft Freedom to Innovate

MTC-00010638

From: Don (038) Susie Meador
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:13pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
MabelDonald A. Meador
20482 Townline Rd.
Lanark, Illinois 61046
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:
I want to take a moment to comment on the settlement between Microsoft and the Department of Justice that was reached late last year. The settlement is definitely in the public's interest and is a fair deal for both sides of the dispute. From every indication I have seen, the agreement is strong and requires many changes to be implemented by Microsoft.

As an example, Microsoft has agreed to design future versions of Windows to provide a mechanism to make it easy for computer makers, consumers and software developers to promote non-Microsoft software within Windows. This will in turn give consumers the freedom to choose to change their computer's configuration at any time. Also, Microsoft will be monitored under the agreement by a Technical Committee to ensure they are meeting their obligations.

I believe Microsoft has done a world of good for this country. Their products are extremely important to this country, whether small businesses or individuals in their home use them. I hope you continue to support the settlement and take no further action.

Sincerely,
Donald Meador

MTC-00010639

From: fstapel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:20pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear sirs;
You may add my name to the list of people who are dissatisfied with the proposed settlement suggested by the Microsoft Corporation. I believe that giving poor school districts refurbished PCs and software, will only end up adding to the monopoly that they now enjoy. It will also impoverish the already under funded schools, in maintenance of these reworked machines plus the continual cost of updating them, and upgrading the software. It seems a very clever ploy to get more schools locked in to the "Microsoft Way", which has already proven to be expensive to businesses and the private sector alike. I believe Microsoft needs to forfeit a stiff fine, and have this granted to these schools, with the choice of Operating Systems, Windows, Macintosh, Linux or whatever.

Thank you for taking time to read this. sincerely.

Frank Stapel
106 Develin Drive,
Phoenixville, PA 19460
fstapel@erols.com

MTC-00010640

From: Otto Ammer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:28pm
Subject: antitrust

bravo microsoft!!!!!!!!!!!!!!Why doesn't the gov. keep its nose where it belongs.

Not in pvt industry.
O.J. AMMER
300s. stonebase rd.
New Wilmmington Pa. 16142

MTC-00010641

From: Steve Skipper
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:30pm
Subject: Settlement agreement

To whom it may concern:
As a resident of Washington I am amused at the different states' AG's as they attack Microsoft. Even though our AG was a lead litigator in the tobacco suit (we grow no tobacco in WA), I notice our AG is not part of this action, but many of the other AG's have competitors to Microsoft headquartered in their states. This appears to be a legal shakedown, because many of them were happy if Microsoft dumped money into their state in exchange for settling. (If it were truly an anti-trust case, none of these pursuers would let Microsoft buy them off.) Is this the American way? I hope not.

I would like to mention just one little piece of testimony in the government's case against Microsoft. Ralph Nader in his testimony mentioned that they were so upset with Microsoft's business tactics that they did not use any Microsoft products in their office. I think that says it all. Microsoft is not the only game in town.

I would also like to refer back to another case not so long ago, very similar to this one. Remember when the government claimed that no one would ever be able to compete against IBM, because they controlled so much of the market. A suit that lasted some 13 years was for naught. IBM is even throwing in the towel on trying to compete in the desktop business and it had nothing to do with the government making a level playing field. What was the purpose of the suit? Are we going to make the same mistakes with Microsoft?

The free enterprise system is not perfect, but I think if we look at history, it turns out to be the most efficient and gives competitors the best opportunity to become the new industry giant.

If Microsoft is willing to settle under the terms now proposed, let's do it.

Steve Skipper,
Not affiliated with, own no interest in, not an advocate for or not paid by Microsoft

MTC-00010642

From: Tammy Stambaugh
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:50pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Attorney General Ascroft,
I'm writing to ask you to accept the proposed settlement by the Department of Justice, Microsoft and nine of eighteen states which will stop wasting taxpayer's money on the decade-long competitor-driven persecution of Microsoft.

I ask that the Federal District Court determine that the proposed settlement is in the public's interest and end the waste of our money on this case. Please settle it, and be done with it.

Thank you,
Tammy Stambaugh

MTC-00010643

From: PTLJanell@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom it May Concern:
As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Janell Hope
11805 Meridian Pl. NE
Lake Stevens, Wa. 98258
ptljanell@aol.com

MTC-00010644

From: Pete Carapetyan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 4:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Your honor:

Please do not allow our country to be bushwacked by Microsoft, who uses not one but every available tactic to maintain their control over the marketplace.

By making technology appear much more complex than it really is, and then using that as a shell game to outwit the court system,

Microsoft makes a sham out of our laws, and a mockery of what has allowed technology to move forward.

Please do not allow the court to be duped by this very clever group. You do not have to be a technical genius to see when you are being snookered.

Pete Carapetyan
http://datafundamentals.com

Java Development Services

Open standards technology for commercial profitability

MTC-00010645

From: steve@stevemarse1studio.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 4:40pm

Subject: Attached word file
Steve Marsel Studio, Inc.

215 First Street
Cambridge, MA.

02142 steve@stevemarselstudio.com

January 11, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft

US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania
Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530-
0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

After three long years of litigation between Microsoft and the Justice Department, I was excited to hear that a settlement had been reached.

The agreement reached required extensive negotiations and is extremely comprehensive. The agreement requires many concessions from Microsoft that show the government got strong deal in this matter. For example, Microsoft has agreed not to enter into any agreement obligating any third party to distribute or promote any Windows technology exclusively or in a fixed percentage, subject to certain narrow exceptions where no competitive concern is present. Also, any violations of the settlement could bring a contempt of court charge against Microsoft. The settlement is also a good development for consumers. Besides benefiting the economy, Microsoft will now be able to focus their resources on developing the next generation of products consumers have come to expect. Therefore, I hope your support of the settlement remains strong and this entire affair can be put behind everyone.

Sincerely,
Steve Marsel

MTC-00010646

From: Charlene Higgins
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 4:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charlene Higgins
504 N. Cottage
Miles City, MT 59301
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech

industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charlene Higgins

MTC-00010647

From: alvin j pohl
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 5:07pm
Subject: MICROSOFT LAWSUIT
12380 Drayton Drive
Spring Hill, FL 34609-4034
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001
January 10, 2002

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

It has come to my attention that there has been a settlement reached in the Justice Department's case against Microsoft. I would you like to know that I support the settlement, which has been reached by the parties involved.

However, I believe that the case was a waste of the court's time to begin with. There was no need to bring legal action against Microsoft, because they did not commit any crime. They are just a successful company who develop excellent products. I think the terms of the settlement are more than fair and reasonable for the government to accept. For instance, Microsoft has agreed to license its Windows operating system products to the 20 largest computer makers on identical terms and conditions, including price.

Also, I would like to remind you that there will be a three person technical committee established to make sure Microsoft is complying with the settlement, and to aid in the dispute resolution process. Furthermore, the continued pursuit of legal action against them would just be a waste of time and money. I ask that the Justice Department terminate its efforts to prosecute Microsoft.

Sincerely,
Alvin Pohl

MTC-00010648

From: Gerald Thomas
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 5:13pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Sir,

I believe that a favorable Microsoft settlement is in the interest of consumers and the public in general. Microsoft products have continually improved and have provided inexpensive software to the average family at a reasonable cost. I would have bought from their competitors if their product was as good.

Gerald G. Thomas

MTC-00010649

From: Don Kovacs

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 5:18pm

Subject: Fw: Microsoft settlement

ATTN: Renata B.Hesse

BOGUS

The DOJ, Microsoft and nine (9) attorneys-general have reached a satisfactory conclusion in this case against Microsoft. This case should be concluded as over and those states that do not wish to partake in the settlement should get NOTHING, including Connecticut, which I am a resident of (my attorney-general Blumenthal has a tendency to grandstand). Enough already. Microsoft makes a product and generates jobs, pays taxes and provides social responsibility to schools, etc. Government, takes from citizens and is supported by my taxes. End this case NOW!!!

Respectfully

Don Kovacs

16 Elaine St.

Norwalk, CT 06850

(203) 866-9671

MTC-00010650

From: Muneer Qaid

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 5:24pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi,

First let me start with this funny thing...i'm writing to you this email using Microsoft technology(Hotmail) itself but opposing Microsoft' way in business.

Yes, i think Microsoft should give some space for other companies to work and make money. Apparently that was not the goal of Microsoft in the past years. I do encourage Microsoft innovation and hard work but it SHOULD NOT target its work at harming/destorying or taking ideas of others and plug them into MS Operating Systems.

I think Bill Gates had made enough money to keep him and all his grandsons extremely rich for sooooo long. Give it a break Bill Gates.

Regards,

Muneer

MTC-00010651

From: Kay Lidington

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 5:43pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I live in the UK. Many people are concerned over abuse of a dominant position by Microsoft. The media is full of stories of abuse of a dominant market position by the firm. It probably needs to be reined in, but break-up of the entereprise is in the interests of no-one. Whether or not you like the firm, they have single-handedly advanced information technology to levels that even a couple of years ago were beyond the wildest dreams of most people across the world.

If you wish to rein them in, many people will consider this appropriate. If you wish to break them up, you will do more damage to the civilised world than Osama bin Laden could even imagine.

As a patriotic UK national, I wish a UK firm had the expertise that Microsoft consistently show. As a member of the civilised 'Western' community, I expect you to consider where we would be without this firm.

For the record, I use an outdated version of "Windows" (Windows '95)because newer versions would leave smaller business like mine, that rely on older Windows-dependent programs, unable to run these 'old' programs without spending money we do not have.

I have no love for Microsoft, but be realistic—it is the only firm able to advance computer applications at a pace required by businesses worldwide.

K Lidington,

MILT, MInstTA (UK)

MTC-00010652

From: George Salisbury

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 5:49pm

Subject: microsoft settlement

I find the persecution of Microsoft an abomination of free enterprise. Microsofts bundling of their products is a procedure that has been followed by many manufacturers since day one. But the idea that a man like Bill Gates can utilize the system and become the richest man in the world causes our current socialist government fits. This is totally un-American. You are supposed to be free to be all you can be in this country. Apparently, not!

Totally disgusted,

George Salisbury

6018 E. Gillette Rd.

Cicero, NY 13039

MTC-00010653

From: Stella Canfield

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/12/02 5:48pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stella Canfield

111 E.Evans Rd.

Wapato, Wa 98951

January 12, 2002

Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry.

It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over,

companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Stella Canfield

MTC-00010654

From: Glenda R. Snodgrass

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/12/02 6:06pm

Subject: Proposed settlement of Microsoft anti-trust case should be REJECTED

With regard to the proposed settlement of the Microsoft anti-trust case, may I respectfully state that I believe the proposed settlement should not be approved. Primary faults with this proposed settlement include:

1—No punishment. In spite of the fact that Microsoft has been judged to be a monopoly, which is a violation of U.S. anti-trust law, the proposed settlement does not punish Microsoft in any meaningful way, nor does it grant any meaningful relief either to consumers or to companies such as Apple, Sun and Netscape which were found to have suffered due to Microsoft's monopolistic practices. Microsoft will continue to enjoy the many fruits of its prior illegal activities.

2—No relief. The proposed settlement will not require Microsoft to change its normal way of doing business in any meaningful way. Consumers will still be forced to buy Microsoft software, at least the operating system, with every new PC purchase. (If you don't believe this is true, pick up the telephone right now and call Compaq or IBM and try to order a new PC with no operating system installed. They will not sell you one.)

3—No disclosure. A fair settlement must require Microsoft to reveal the secrets of its file formats to the extent that third-party software companies may create competitive products able to read documents created by Microsoft software and which will interact with Microsoft operating systems as well as Microsoft's own products do. The existence of the Microsoft monopoly over recent years has resulted in the creation of millions of documents in Microsoft-specific file formats; until these documents can be properly used by other software products, the monopoly will not be broken. The current proposed settlement does not provide for such necessary disclosure.

4—No protection. Likewise, the proposed settlement does not provide for adequate disclosure of network protocols like .NET, which Microsoft plans to use to completely dominate the Internet. Until and unless these protocols are regulated by an independent third party and fully disclosed, only software developers using Microsoft development tools on Microsoft platforms will be able to fully implement the technology.

5—No security. It is crucial for national security interests that the Microsoft monopoly be halted, firmly, in its tracks. Just as a gene pool must be diverse to survive, the communication infrastructure of this country must have a diverse base to withstand attacks. It is a well-known fact in technical circles that the Microsoft operating systems have myriad serious security holes, making its ubiquity an even greater liability. More secure systems cannot penetrate the market, to diversify the national infrastructure and provide security through complexity, until the Microsoft monopoly has been broken.

The proposed settlement will not break the stranglehold of the Microsoft monopoly, and thus should be rejected.

Glenda R. Snodgrass
Post Office Box 885
Mobile, Alabama 36601

MTC-00010655

From: Philip Haddad
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 6:11pm
Subject: Microsoft

As a taxpaying citizen I'm demanding that the crusade against Microsoft stop. Trial lawyers make loads of money in these cases. However, it sets a bad legal precedent and is paid with by taxes.

Sincerely,
Philip Haddad

MTC-00010656

From: Peter Menchini
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 6:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a consultant who works in the technology field, I am strongly opposed to the way the government has been handling this case of late. Microsoft, as a matter of course, uses it's monopoly position to carry out the most outrageous anticompetitive practices.

Indeed, they are the very picture of arrogance. They stifle innovation at every turn, even as they take credit for other peoples' initiatives. Their complete lack of concern for software security for instance, has cost companies thousands of dollars in lost revenue.

I urge the Department of Justice to stop helping Microsoft achieve dominance in school systems, and instead deliver the most severe punishments allowed by law.

While I prefer a break up of Microsoft, I understand this may not now be possible. In any case, I would think the government would look at how much money Microsoft really has, and ask for both compensatory and punitive damages based on the billions they've cost not only consumers, but State, Federal and local governments as well. This should be calculated to include the loss of jobs at other, competing firms as Microsoft's threats have forced corporations to dump other viable technologies or suffer the wrath of Redmond.

These things are all well documented, and Microsoft has made it clear that they are both unrepentant and unbowed. Even today, they continue their efforts to dominate at all costs, even if it means that America falls behind in cutting edge technology.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Peter Menchini
Citizen of the United States of America

MTC-00010657

From: Millie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 6:43pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

My opinion and comments: Microsoft should get off the hook? four years is enough? If another company has a better operating system? they should show it and the world will buy it instead of XP. My County and my City has computers and training in every Library Thanx to Bill Gates. Their Software is reasonably priced? litigation is never reasonable in cost. Let's settle it now?

Charles Murrell,
Redding California.

My brother, Charles Murrell, wrote the above; we are in agreement with his opinion and want you to know.

George A. & Millie L. Berlemeier
14 Bruno Ct.
El Sobrante, CA 94803-3238
(510) 223-3694

MTC-00010658

From: leotakorns@frontier.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 7:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to have the Microsoft case settled. I do not think we are gaining anything by prolonging and dragging it out.

MTC-00010659

From: west goewey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 7:23pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

get it over with . . . tired of my tax dollars being wasted on this law suit. lets get the economy rolling . . . the only ones that win in a law suit are the lawyers!! let the buyer worry about what operating system to buy!! the settlement looks good to this consumer.

west goewey

MTC-00010660

From: Pat and Bob Goodpaster
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 7:39pm
Subject: Fw: Microsoft settlement

From: Pat and Bob Goodpaster
To: mailto:Renata B. Hesse
@microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
Sent: Saturday, January 12, 2002 7:11 PM
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Microsoft's generous offer should be accepted. Enough is enough. Let's get this closed and let this progressive organization help move our great country forward.

Sincerely,
Robert L. Goodpaster
1648 Elliott Ave.
Ashland, Kentucky

MTC-00010661

From: RickWRoberts
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Microsoft continues to develop business strategies which have a direct effect on the consumer and developer communities. One of the objectives of these strategies is always to impede other companies from developing technologies which might interfere with Microsoft's goals. Examples: Netscape Navigator and Java Technology. Even after the Antitrust suit was filed, Microsoft continues to try make it harder for other companies to develop their technologies. Example: Microsoft .Net strategy. And Microsoft says look at all the great things we have accomplished. But, much more could have been accomplished if Microsoft wasn't always trying to inhibit other companies abilities to compete in a fair market. I will only support a settlement which does not allow Microsoft to continue to bend the laws to suit there strategies.

Rick W. Roberts
Independent Software Developer

MTC-00010662

From: Kevin Poulsen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,

It has come to my attention, through BeOS channels, that you are accepting proposed remedies to Microsoft's anti-competitive behavior as a monopoly.

To the point:

1. Microsoft should be limited from placing ANY restrictions on resellers. This includes, but is not limited to resellers selling individual copies of software, major/minor computer manufacturers who bundle MS software with their systems, VARs who may give discounts for bulk orders on MS products, etc.

2. Microsoft should be required to publish a price list with all available discounts. Anyone who meets requirements for fair discounts (based on volume, etc.) can get the discounts without any strings attached. Also, end-users should be allowed to upgrade whenever they see fit, instead of being forced into "subscription services".

3. Microsoft NEEDS to be broken into at least 3, preferably 4, independant companies (Mini Micros) using the AT&T breakup as a model. I strongly think we need 2 operating system companies and 2 application companies. Tied to this, COMPLETE OS APIs need to be published to any application/OS manufacturer that requests them.

4. Monetary damages at a staggeringly high number—sufficient to be considered by Microsoft as incentive for avoiding anti-competitive practice in the future. These monies could be placed in a trust fund for a number of years. Anyone who can prove damages, can be paid from this trust fund.

Now, my thoughts on each item:

1. There have been numerous operating systems that could have fared well if it wasn't for Microsoft's heavy hand behind the scenes of computer manufacturers. Examples include OS/2, Dr DOS, many DOS variants, Linux, Unix, and, most recently, the BeOS. I remember when OS/2 came out. I was a student at the time and I saw the two OSs side-by-side in the University computer store. OS/2 looked impressive, but it faded away quickly. I wonder why? I have had a strong interest in the BeOS for about 5 years. I heard that the BeOS was shipping as a dual-boot on some HP computers. I later found out that the computers did ship with the BeOS installed, but that Microsoft prevented HP from adding the BeOS to their boot manager and would not let them use a third-party boot manager. This severely effected the commercial viability of the BeOS. Computer manufacturers and software distributors should be able to compete on a level playing ground. Microsoft has no place dictating unfair distributor restrictions.

2. Microsoft has frequently played favorites and punished distributors who don't agree to Microsoft's whims (selling OS/2, selling linux, etc). Microsoft should not be allowed to "punish" ANY software distributors. There are valid reasons for giving discounts.. specifically volume. Changing the wholesale price on Microsoft products for "preferred" or "black-listed" vendors is unfair practice. In addition, Microsoft recently initiated a "subscription" policy. Instead of allowing end-users to upgrade when they feel it is appropriate (e.g., when Microsoft provides a decent upgrade product), Microsoft now requires that companies use a "subscription service" for upgrades. This is a clear coercion that would be unnecessary if Microsoft provided a product that was worth the upgrade. End users should be able to indicate approval by upgrading whenever they want.

3. BeWINE is an effort to allow Windows applications to run on the BeOS. WINE also allows Windows applications to run on Linux and X. (http:// bewine.loungenet.org/ and <http://www.winehq.com/>) I would like to see this project succeed, as well as others like it. But, they need ALL of the OS APIs. Breaking Microsoft into 2 companies, one with the OS and the other with applications, simply will NOT provide the open information that is needed. I think it is more important to break Microsoft into 2 OS companies. This is the ONLY way that all the OS APIs will be made public.

4. Microsoft has inflicted amazing monetary damage on competitors as well as on it's customers. If a company (Microsoft) produces a quality product at a fair price, then I don't mind if they make a healthy profit. Microsoft not only has NOT provided a quality product, they know that they can charge outrageous prices as long as they have control. Microsoft's value will undoubtedly increase if it is broken up (just look at AT&T and the baby bells). Microsoft's effort to avoid a breakup is clearly so that they can maintain control. Microsoft has to be fined punitive damages relative to it's size. This is the only way to give them a sufficient incentive to compete fairly.

Some additional commentary:

First, my background. I was a network administrator for 5 years working primarily with Windows NT 4.0. Mind you, I wouldn't mind working with Microsoft products if they actually worked the way they should and were priced according to what they are worth.

Windows has traditionally been a very unstable and low performance OS. Microsoft puts effort into "features" that will get customers. But they routinely include "bugs" that are "fixed" in the next version to entice upgrades. Once blatant example is USB support for Windows NT 4.0. This is not difficult to provide. In fact, I've heard of 3 third-party programmers who had plans to offer it, since Microsoft hasn't included it in any of their 7 service packs. Coincidentally, none of those companies have brought it to market. I know (but can't prove) that Microsoft killed any efforts to offer USB support for Windows NT 4.0 so that users would have to upgrade to Windows 2000.

I've seen many confusing pricing schemes that are designed specifically to drain money from customers. Sometimes, these schemes include charges for no product. In particular, they charge a fee for every computer that accesses a server. They have started a "subscription service" that is effectively the only way to get product upgrades without spending a fortune on "new product" prices for upgrades. We also know that Microsoft charged twice the profitable price for Windows 95.

I became aware of the BeOS about 5 years ago. I watched in anticipation as newer versions came out and as it got great reviews. Finally, with version 4, I thought it was good enough to give it a try. It worked great (and still works great) on my P200. I've since upgraded to 5.0 and I am writing this e-mail using Mail-It on the BeOS. I still use Mail-It for my everyday personal e-mail. There are several sample programs that ship with the BeOS. I eagerly opened 11 of them, including a flight simulator, a Mandelbrot set generator, a spinning Open-GL teapot, a couple of videos, games and a starfield simulation. With all eleven of these applications open and running, some of them slowed slightly, but the equivalent of the Windows Start menu didn't even hesitate when I clicked on it. I bought stock in Be Inc. about the time that it was fluctuating wildly. This was poised to be a great OS. It was almost purchased by Apple. Then, as I later learned, HP (I think) delivered several computers with the BeOS installed. They were supposed to be dual-boot, but Microsoft nixed the dual boot, essentially making the BeOS inaccessible. That, among other things, killed the BeOS. The BeOS was then sold to Palm for 11 million—a mere fraction of it's asking price for Apple. I am hoping that Palm will license to Be United so that we can revive this great OS.

(Please note that my e-mail address will be changing from kwpoelsen@home.com to kwpoelsen@cox.net in the near future, in case you want to contact me.)

MTC-00010663

From: Dean Johnson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 7:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dean Johnson
2411 Skyline Way #106
Anacortes, wa 98221
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dean Johnson

MTC-00010664

From: Joyce A. Reynolds
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
12332 Ridge Cove Circle
Charlotte, North Carolina 28273
January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I have become increasingly concerned by the outcome of the antitrust suit brought against Microsoft by the U.S. Department of Justice. Even though I feel that Microsoft should never have been brought to trial, I am satisfied with the terms agreed to in the settlement that was reached. I support the terms of the agreement, which include increased information sharing and non-retaliation clauses.

Unfortunately, nine other states, along with Microsoft's competitors are seeking to overthrow the decision before it becomes permanent and to impose even further regulations of the company than it has already submitted to. This is ridiculous. The Department of Justice has better things to do with its time and money than to haggle endlessly over already resolved issues. It is in the best interests of the Justice Department, and indeed the American people, to let the lawsuit stand as it has been resolved.

I support the terms of settlement as they are. There is no need for further debate. I hope this letter will help persuade you that the settlement needs no further amendment. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Joyce Reynolds

MTC-00010665

From: millers
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:19pm

Please we have had enough. Most people are sick of the government waste in pursuing Microsoft. Let it go more harm than good is being done. We need less government intervention not more or as in this case prolonged waste of court time and money.

Thank you
David G Miller
millers@presys.com

MTC-00010666

From: Fred Grott
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Renata B. Hesse

The proposed settlement does not settle any specific points within the anti-trust judgment.

Question: How much of embarrassment for the US DOJ would it be if the settlement in Europe under their laws succeeds to redress Microsoft's Monopolistic practices where the US DOJ fails in obligation to the US Public's trust?

No matter what settlement is implemented, remember this . . . Worldwide computer users, software developers, hardware vendors, software vendors, and etc will remember where you failed and some of us happen to vote upon those lines in the next round of up coming elections in the US.

Fred Grott badapple@netnitco.net

MTC-00010667

From: Professor Time
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have written on this antitrust case many times over the past few months. Now that the government seems to be doing what is in the best interest of the consumers, I feel that any attempt to "derail" this settlement is just another example of bureaucratic overspending.

Let us put an end to this nonsense and go back to being truly competitive. Agressiveness is not always a dirty word. Sometimes it is just another way of saying "Yankee Trading".

Thank you.
W. Craig Westlake.

MTC-00010668

From: Alfred E Johnson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir:
The Microsoft settlement is fair. Please stand by it!
Thank you.
Al Johnson

MTC-00010669

From: Bill Loytty
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:47pm
Subject: One vote for accepting the proposed settlement.

Dear staffer who tallies these things:
Please add one vote to the "accept the settlement and get on with it" pile.

MTC-00010670

From: Aroughthopher
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 8:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Sir or Madam,

I am a developer and user of the BeOS operating system, produced by Be, Incorporated. BeOS is a product that is used world wide. Recently Be, Inc. was forced to sell its intellectual properties to Palm, Inc., due to problems getting themselves situated in the market place. One of the main reasons for this can be summed up in one word, Microsoft. I am part of a group of people trying to get BeOS back into the marketplace, but in order for us to this, Microsoft cannot be allowed to get away with what the actions they have taken in the past, and continue to take. The proposed settlement is a start, but some work is needed. The following is a list of items that I feel would help in our cause, and they the US DOJ, could help us accomplish.

1. Microsoft Office needs to use open file formats, so that alternate operating systems can interact with it properly. We don't need the source code, just the file format. The format chosen should be standardized by a recognized standards body, and maintained by them. This way, future compatibility can be maintained.

2. The Win32 API needs to be made publicly available and fully documented. This is needed so that products, like BeWine or WinBe can be used to run MS Windows applications under the BeOS.

3. The file systems used by Windows, needs to be opened, so that operating systems that exist on the same machine as MS Windows, will be able to access the files that exist under the Windows directories. Microsoft should also be forced to interoperate with foreign file systems as well.

4. The ruling must include a "must-carry" rule, so that any OEM Microsoft is supplying Windows with, must have a alternate operating system installed, if Windows is installed on that system. This is the only way alternate operating systems will ever be given a chance by average users.

The last point I made is the most important. This is the only way the Microsoft can truly undo the damage they have done to the BeOS. Because Microsoft had made exclusive contracts with almost all of the major OEMs in the industry, not many people ever even heard of BeOS. Be, Inc. is/was a small company, and did not have the marketing budget the Microsoft has. And since they were unable to make deals with the OEMs, they could not get their product to market, except on the shelves of retail stores, over the internet, and by word of mouth.

The current proposed settlement is too weak, for the damage that Microsoft has done to the industry. I don't think Microsoft should be put out of business, but they should be punished. I currently use some Microsoft products, and therefore do not consider myself anti-Microsoft. I do, however, believe in capitalism, and what Microsoft did was inexcusable.

Thank you for your time,
Paul Ashford

MTC-00010671

From: Richard Paul
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/12/02 8:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Richard Paul
1134 2nd Street North
Fargo, ND 58102
January 12, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Richard A. Paul

MTC-00010672

From: Spencer Grey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/12/02 9:26pm
Subject: Opinion of MS Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
I would like to add my voice to those who are against the current proposed settlement in the antitrust case against Microsoft.

I feel the proposal does little to either redress past transgressions that Microsoft has made or to meaningfully prohibit monopolistic behavior from Microsoft in the future. The measures outlined in the settlement are not realistically enforceable and subject to manipulation and interpretation.

Consumers and developers alike will ultimately benefit from more stringent action being taken against Microsoft. Please take this into account when you make your final decision.

Thank you for your patience and understanding.

Respectfully,
 —Spencer Grey, President
  Electric Funstuff
  <http://www.electricfunstuff.com>

MTC-00010673

From: Mary Henry
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 9:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

MTC-00010673 0001

142 LOWELL ST. APT 3
 1ST FLOOR REAR
 MANCHESTER, NH 03104
 MARY A. HENRY
 Telephone (603) 666-0574
 email: mhenry2@worldnet.att.net
 January 10, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
 U.S. Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I enthusiastically support the Microsoft settlement and hope to see it enacted in the immediate future. The sooner the settlement is enacted, the sooner Microsoft will be able to return to the business of making quality software.

The settlement includes many concessions on the part of Microsoft. Microsoft has agreed to licensing restrictions. These licensing restrictions will allow the twenty largest computer makers to license the Windows' operating system at the same price. This allows computer makers more freedom to select the software that they want to ship to their customers.

Microsoft has come to this settlement with interest in resolving this issue. We should resolve it as soon as the public comment ends.

Sincerely,
 Mary Henry

MTC-00010673-0002MTC-00010674

From: Kat31286@netscape.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 9:42pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel strongly that Microsoft should be punished for it's transgressions.

There is a horrible misunderstanding of the point of the suit in the first place. Microsoft is a monopoly and has used that monopoly position to force others out of business or to bend to fit their desires.

Microsoft has done tremendous injury to the Java community, Netscape, Apple and countless others with it's anti-competitive practices. It affects people's freedom to choose among alternatives. It affects the price people must pay, directly or indirectly. It also has longer-term implications for people's privacy and security. It means less innovation and lower quality software. Please consider this when making your decision. Thank you very much.

Kate Ruter

MTC-00010675

From: Dr. L. E. F. Page
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 10:00pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

Gentlemen:
 While the Tunney Act requires a public comment period, please be aware that lobbying groups can flood the system with "public comment." Haven't we spent enough time trying to limit Microsoft Corp.'s ability to remain an innovative industry leader? The settlement seems just as proposed, without further breaking up or restrictions, and I feel you should affirm it as soon as legally possible.

Sincerely,
 Leslie Page (concerned private citizen and internet user)

MTC-00010676

From: Adi Ben Yahya
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 10:10pm
 Subject: Microsoft—a bully

It is clear that Microsoft is the biggest bully in the school yard. Worse still, it's now grown so big that it jeers at the teacher's warnings. For the sake of the others, and ultimately the bully, it's time to discipline mischievous behaviour.

AB
 CCadi_ben3@yahoo.com@inetgw

MTC-00010678

From: RBeck89373@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 10:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement Ashcroft letter sent this date via US mail.

MTC-00010679

From: mary-johne hickman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 11:02pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 TO THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE: PLEASE LEAVE MICROSOFT ALONE. OUR ECONOMY IS JUST ABOUT SHOT!! YOU'RE NOT HELPING IT ONE BIT. PLEASE LEAVE MR GATES AND HIS COMPANY ALONE. AMERICA DOESN'T NEED ANYMORE INSULTS. PLEASE END THIS NIGHTMARE AND LEAVE MICROSOFT ALONE.

THANK YOU,
 MARY-JOHNE HICKMAN

MTC-00010680

From: Jim Hall
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 11:13pm
 Subject: public comment: Microsoft antitrust litigation

I am writing this email to send a short statement on what I believe would be a suitable remedy to the Microsoft antitrust litigation. This is in response to the public comment that was invited for 60 days.

After reviewing the findings of fact in this trial, and based on my position and experience in the Information Technology industry, I cannot see how the settlement that is proposed even pretends to remedy the antitrust violations for which Microsoft has been found culpable. A suitable penalty, in my opinion, would be to split the Microsoft company into two halves: one that provides operating systems, and one that provides application software (including the web browser.) The two halves must be prohibited from bundling the other's products for a period of no less than seven (7) years. Further, only one of the split companies should be allowed to carry the "Microsoft" name, to prevent confusion in the marketplace that the two halves still operate as one. I believe that such a remedy would require the new companies to fairly compete with other software companies in the marketplace. Microsoft would not be able to leverage a monopoly on the operating system at the desktop level to push application software. Other vendors would be put on a more level playing field with the two Microsoft companies. Thank you for your consideration of my comment.

James Hall
 1254 Lafond Ave
 St Paul, MN 55104

MTC-00010681

From: rlwills@scottsbuff.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/12/02 11:43pm
 Subject: Microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
 1102 Lincoln Street Potter, NE 69156-0068
 January 12, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
 United States Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am a long-time Microsoft supporter. As such, I am pleased with the settlement reached last November with the department of Justice. The settlement is a vital end to the litigation process that has crippled the IT industry in recent years.

The details of the settlement are complex. Microsoft has agreed to many terms that will increase competitor's ability to access the Windows' operating system. First, Microsoft has agreed to disclose the internal interfaces of its software design. This allows developers to substitute their software in place of the Microsoft network. The terms of the settlement will allow users to erase separate aspects from the operating system, such as Explorer or Media Player.

This settlement is in the public interest. It provides an opportunity for the IT industry to rebuild itself. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
 Richard L. Wills

MTC-00010683

From: melinda stortenbecker
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 12:06am
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Get it over with. Competition and free enterprise are what made this nation a hope for everyone, not just a few wealthy. When Gates started, he was just a nobody with drive and determination. Leave it be.
 Melinda Stortenbecker

MTC-00010684

From: Eugene Vilensky
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 12:48am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hello,
 As a college student and a computer enthusiast and future programmer, it is my strong belief that Microsoft has done irreparable harm to the computer industry.

They have done wrong and deserve to be punished not because they are a successful company, but because they have violated anticompetitive law, and have done it with an air of arrogance and political clout and disrespect for the wishes of consumers.

It is understood that Microsoft is the U.S.' single most successful company, but they have not done it by pushing out a quality product that has fought for its own Darwinian place in the marketplace. They did it by choking off competition—in the case of preventing computers from shipping with BeOS installed alongside Windows (or any dual-boot configuration). I was and still am a big fan of the Be Operating System, it was a powerful tool that would in a free market have won marketshare on its own merit, but it suffered because people could not find computers with BeOS installed, hence the main tenet of competition—consumer choice—was choked off by Microsoft. Even now I cannot go to BestBuy or circuit city or Dell.com and easily order a preconfigured Linux machine. Even now Microsoft is plotting the destruction of consumer choice.

And if we don't punish Microsoft for breaking the law, why can they not be brought to justice for delivering inferior products? If GM didn't have Ford to contend with, would you, the "Department of Justice" allow such a GM to ship cars with faulty clutches and breaks, that would harm people's livelihoods as much as Microsoft bugs have stolen money from my employer and my fathers employer and the company that my uncle owns? The damage is in the thousands of dollars, because Microsoft can defecate in a box, brand it as 'Windows', and the market is forced to accept it. We demand some semblance of quality from our auto manufacturers, so why not from our software suppliers? I hope that the DoJ really lives up to its name, promotes competition and products that succeed on their merits and creates an economy in which two or even three or four 'Microsofts' can coexist, improving each generation of software upon that which came before, learning that customers are important when there is an alternative, and each employing thousands of people and strengthening the economy.

Best regards,
Eugene mailto:e.vilensky@home.com

MTC-00010685

From: Mike Taylor
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:58am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My impression is that the government has spent so much time listening to disgruntled competitors of Microsoft that it has missed the end user exposure.

The end user problem with Microsoft is not that it makes software that competes with other companies. The problem is not that sometimes MS integrates software into its operating system. From the end user perspective, the software on a PC should be vertically integrated. And it should be done by a single manufacturer.

From an end user standpoint, just try to identify the responsible software maker when something doesn't work and more than one software maker potentially is responsible. The difficulty to the end user goes up exponentially with the number of different software makers involved. E.g Microsoft Windows with Netscape Navigator and something doesn't work. Neither Microsoft or Netscape will take responsibility. They just point fingers (if they talk to you at all) to each other.

The problem is that MS dominates the Operating System market and therefore can dictate terms to the end user. What the end user needs is a viable number of choices for an Operating System. More Linux operating systems on new PCs; more OS2 operating systems on new PCs; more Apple systems out there.

As an end user, I'd much prefer having a viable choice of what operating system I would be using on my intel based (there's another problem) PC. The DOJ has focused on fixing things for malcontents such as Netscape (whose browsers are clearly inferior to Explorer and whose own ethics are somewhat suspect). That may be a problem for companies like Netscape but it is certainly not as significant a problem for the end user as the total dominance of MS in the operating system world.

The end user is going to be up a creek without a paddle in the future because of the near universal usage of Windows. The DOJ focus should be on making the playing field more level for alternative Operating systems.

MTC-00010686

From: Jim Herrmann
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:36am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,
First some of my background. I have been a computer professional for 15 years, specializing in data base administration. My professional career has been mostly with mainframe data bases, but I have done extensive work from my home with personal computers. I maintain several web sites for various volunteer organizations to which I belong.

I believe the Microsoft Settlement has been a capitulation by the current administration and the Department of Justice to the big money donations of the Microsoft lobbying and campaign contributions. The US won this case! Why has the justice department settled for this woefully inadequate solution to Microsoft's conviction as a monopolist? This is the penalty phase of this case, and yet there appears to be no penalty for Microsoft, and in fact if implemented as written, could actually increase Microsoft's Monopoly. For true justice to be served, the courts must decide the punishment and not the politically (and monitarily) motivated DOJ. For this reason, the settlement as currently written must be REJECTED!

I would like to point out several flaws in the settlement and recommend some alternatives that would seem to make more sense. I refer to the settlement found at <http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/f9400/9495.htm>

III.A Microsoft shall not retaliate against an OEM...

Not only should Microsoft not be able to punish the OEM, but OEM pricing should be disallowed for Microsoft. The OEM vendors should be required to pay full retail price for the operating system and office products, and pass this on to the consumer. In other words, strike paragraphs III.B.2 and III.B.3 from the settlement. Furthermore, the OEM should be required to list this cost as part of total cost of the machine, and offer all machines they sell with either alternative operating systems, or no operating system at all installed. This would provide clear disclosure to consumers of the "Microsoft tax" they are paying with each new computer system. Allowing users to remove items from a purchased machine is inadequate, as they have already payed the "tax" and Microsoft goes unpunished.

III.D ...Microsoft shall disclose to ISVs, IHVs, IAPs, ICPs, and OEMs, ...the APIs and related Documentation... While this is a step in the right direction, Microsoft should be compelled to make public, not simply to certain companies but to the public, all operating system APIs, all communication APIs, and every single file format, current and future, created or used by any of their products. The interfaces and file formats should not be allowed to be considered "intellectual property" that would allow Microsoft to restrict access by imposing "royalties or other payment of monetary consideration" simply to interface with their products. This will promote true competition by allowing other companies and the open source community to write programs that can be fully compatible with, and have equivalent functionality to the Microsoft monopoly products.

II.J—No provision of this Final Judgment shall:

1. Require Microsoft to document, disclose or license to third parties...
2. Prevent Microsoft from conditioning any license...

This paragraph reads like a major legal loophole for Microsoft that will allow them to get away with keeping large parts of the interface to their systems a secret by saying that the disclosure would "compromise the security" of that system. The APIs and file formats I mentioned above should be excluded from this paragraph.

Section V. Termination

B. In any enforcement proceeding in which the Court has found that Microsoft has engaged in a pattern of willful and systematic violations, the Plaintiffs may apply to the Court for a one-time extension of this Final Judgment of up to two years, together with such other relief as the Court may deem appropriate.

So if I have interpreted this paragraph correctly, if Microsoft fails to comply with this settlement in the first five years, their punishment is to spend two more years not complying!?! How is this an incentive for Microsoft to comply with the settlement? This section completely removes what few teeth this settlement ever had. This section should be completely rewritten such that if Microsoft fails to comply with the settlement, any and all intellectual property not in compliance will be forfeited to the public domain. That would be an incentive for compliance!

In summary, the Microsoft punishment for being a convicted monopolist should include the opening and documenting of all Application Programming Interfaces for their products, the documented specification of all file formats for documents created by their products should be public domain, and the complete prohibition of the discounts and "bundling" Microsoft currently engages in with hardware vendors. Additionally, the legal loopholes should be removed, and the penalty for non-compliance should be severe.

A settlement that truly encourages competition is very much in the national interest and national security. A study released a year ago by the highly respected Center for Strategic and International Studies, pointed out that the use of Microsoft software actually poses a national security risk. We can not allow any one company to maintain a strangle hold on something as important to this nation as the information technology infrastructure of this country. It is very important for the future of this nation that a careful and deliberate penalty that restores true competition to the software marketplace be implemented.

Thanks you for your time,
Jim Herrmann
Kansas City, Kansas

MTC-00010687

From: Steven
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 2:58am
Subject: Microsoft Case

To Whom it may concern;

Please consider the settlement offered by Microsoft. Learning tools and teaching has never been but should be the number 1 concern. Any thing that bolsters the teaching environment instead of the N.F.L. will benefit the future of this nation.

Give our children computers.
Concerned;
Steven R. Evers

MTC-00010688

From: Gradyg123@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hello,

My comments about the proposed final settlement are simple:

1. The settlement ruling must be properly enforced otherwise it is a complete waste of time.

2. Microsoft Corp. has shown and continues to show no reasonable regard for any person, company, product or authority that presents an obstacle to the continued growth of Microsoft. They are the new Mafia.

I offer the following news articles to illustrate my point. Note that eliminating Linux software is ranked second on Microsoft's agenda for 2002, despite the fact that Microsoft has 96.28% of the OS market compared to 2.32% for Apple and .24% for Linux. But Linux has had success with server software and Microsoft also wants to control the internet, so "the spread of Linux" must be prevented.

Ximian Gives Linux a Friendly Face

New software package features a graphical interface, but is the company's first product that won't be free.

Matt Berger, IDG News Service

Tuesday, August 28, 2001
Ximian Desktop, the first packaged software product from the Boston-based company, includes a suite of desktop applications and a graphical user interface for Linux PCs,

"We see the biggest opportunity of open source on the desktop in the corporation," says Nat Friedman...

[continues]
<http://www.pcworld.com/news/article/0,aid,59743,tk,dn082801X,00.asp>

Topic: MS Internet Monopoly
Msg #381712

Date: Wed, Aug 29, 2001, 2:11:07 PM
From ZDnet:

"The Burton Group analyst Gary Hein says Microsoft.Net can be summarized in one simple statement: Microsoft is building an Internet monopoly ... Does the very nature of the Internet prevent one company from monopolizing the Internet? In a perfect world, market forces and open standards would prevail. But this isn't a perfect world"

Continues:
<http://news.excite.com/news/zd/010829/ll/microsoftnet-a-new>

"It's unquestionable that .Net integration will simplify the Internet experience for millions of users. But at what cost? As a society, are we willing to cede control of the Internet to Microsoft for the sake of usability and convenience? Success is far from guaranteed, but Microsoft will do everything in its power to win. Our eternal vigilance is the only barrier between Microsoft and its next monopoly."

<http://www.pcworld.com/news/article/0,aid,59743,tk,dn082801X,00.asp>

Topic: "Software libre!"
Msg #381768

Date: Thu, Aug 30, 2001, 5:34:09 PM
Governments push open-source software
By Paul Festa
Staff Writer, CNET News.com

August 29, 2001, 4:00 a.m. PT
Governments around the world have found a new rallying cry—"Software libre!"—and Microsoft is working overtime to quell it.

A recent global wave of legislation is compelling government agencies, and in some cases government-owned companies, to use open-source or free software unless proprietary software is the only feasible option.

This legal movement, earliest and most pronounced in Brazil, but also showing signs of catching on elsewhere in Latin America, Europe and Asia, is finding ready converts as governments struggle to close sometimes vast digital divides with limited information-technology budgets. So far, there is no evidence that similar legislation is being considered anywhere in the United States, experts said.

Open-source and free software represent a budget-priced alternative to Microsoft's Windows operating system and applications that can cost thousands of dollars a month to license. In addition, access to underlying source code means governments and businesses can fix problems or modify software to work more effectively.

[continues]
<http://news.cnet.com/news/0-1003-200-6996393.html?tag=tp-pr>

Linux Left Behind: Microsoft, Apple Still Kings of the Desktop

By Remy Davison, Insanely Great Mac
December 19, 2001

Linux may well be capturing more and more of the server market, but it has still failed to make inroads into the desktop market, according to StatMarket statistical data, published by WebSideStory.

StatMarket places Linux's web usage at less than 1% of total internet use. As of December 17, Linux's share of world wide web use was a mere 0.24%. StatMarket says that while use of Linux to access the net has fluctuated between 2 and 3% over the past three years, the operating system has not demonstrated real growth in terms of internet usage.

"Linux has made inroads as a server operating system, but not on desktops. Its adoption rate among Web users remains miniscule, even in three years' time."

Linux—More Bark than Bite.

<<http://biz.yahoo.com/prnews/011219/lawO37-1.html>>

Macintosh OS Global Market Share Less Than 3% for Three Years, But Shows Promise in Some Countries SAN DIEGO, Jan. 8 /PRNewswire/—WebSideStory, Inc. (www.websidestory.com), the world's leading provider of outsourced e-business intelligence services, today reported that the global market share for Apple's (Nasdaq: AAPL) Macintosh operating system has remained at less than 3 percent since January 1999, failing to take significant market share from Microsoft. Mac's global usage share as of January 2, 2002, was "2.32 percent", compared to Microsoft's 96.28 percent as of the same date, according to WebSideStory's StatMarket (www.statmarket.com) New Microsoft Program Rallies Forces To Crush Linux Enterprise & Partner Group chief to oversee Linux/Unix escalation process (URL: <http://www.crn.com/Sections/BreakingNews/breakingnews.asp?ArticleID=32424>)

By Paula Rooney
CRN

Redmond, Wash.

7:12 PM EST Tues., Jan. 08, 2002

Microsoft plans to rally its field sales force and partners to crush Linux—and IBM's efforts with the competitive operating system—in 2002.

According to a Microsoft memo dated in December, the software giant will unveil a "Linux Insiders" program at the company's Envision event in January, an expansion of its existing Linux Competitive Champ Program.

Microsoft also created a new Linux/Unix escalation process that is being headed up by Microsoft Enterprise & Partner Group Vice President Charles Stevens, according to the memo, which was written by Brian Valentine, senior vice president of Windows for Microsoft.

Valentine emphasized that Microsoft will take a more aggressive role in beating Linux—and any vendors that supports it. "I want you to know just how seriously we're taking Linux here in Redmond We have the best d*mn sales force in the world backed by the best engineers in the world—of course we will take any non-Windows OS serious," Valentine wrote. "Linux is out there in some of your accounts and you may not know it. The ground up nature of how Linux is introduced into our accounts means that we need to modify our traditional approaches of finding out about Linux in our customer base. We have to be more hands-on and dig deeper in your accounts."

The Linux/Unix escalation process being headed up by the Enterprise & Partner Group involves getting Microsoft's field sales force and solution providers to tap into the expertise of the Microsoft "Linux Insiders" to advance Windows 2000 and unseat rivals Unix and Linux in the server marketplace. The "Linux Insiders," a task force of Microsoft experts on Linux that will be unveiled at Envision, will assist the sales force and partners in preventing the spread of Linux—as well as IBM mainframes/Unix servers running Linux—in corporate server centers, according to the memo. "By building a virtual team of field staff and corporate resources, we will enable the field to have one place to go for communication and competitive information. The Linux Insiders will have access to a centralized Web site where personnel can request help, route issues and share best practices that the entire field can leverage," Valentine wrote. "If you still need help for Global, Strategic and Major accounts, the Linux/Sun Insiders (or your General Manager) can escalate the issue to the new corporate Linux/Unix Escalation Team. Let me emphasize that you need to work with your local Insider or your GM because they have direct access to this escalation team. The team is committed to provide an initial response within one working day."

Microsoft also intends to commission an independent analysis by DH Brown to attack the perception that Linux is free, the memo said. Another cost analysis comparison case study between Linux and Windows, due in May, will assess a variety of usage scenarios such as Web, file and print.

In the memo, Valentine encourages staffers to snoop around corporate server environments to locate new sightings of Unix and Linux. The software giant apparently is concerned about inroads made by IBM and other Linux backers in the IT segment. "Ask about the 'connector' pieces—you'll potentially find Linux in these areas. This is a great way to not only find out about Linux, but also other IT projects that may include Novell, Sun, Oracle and other competitors," the memo said. "You can expect us to turn up the volume on winning against Linux, as well as IBM."

According to Directions on Microsoft, a Kirkland, Wash.-based newsletter covering the software giant, "Linux ranks second among Microsoft's top 10 challenges for 2002"—next only to engendering trust in the enterprise for security and reliability. "This free but powerful operating system is hurting Microsoft competitors such as Novell and Sun in the server market, but it could also dampen growth in Microsoft's server software sales," according to the Directions on Microsoft report issued on Jan. 8. "IBM is trying to make Linux a household name. Meanwhile, Microsoft is adding to Linux's appeal with higher licensing fees and product activation technologies designed to prevent unpaid use of Microsoft software." One systems integrator that sells and services both Linux and Windows said Microsoft's big push against Linux is not a problem in the short term, but could pose a conflict in the future. "This will not affect us in the current market because ... our current revenue with Caldera is on Unix platforms," said Rich Figer, vice president of sales at S.B. Stone & Company, Cleveland. "In the future, however, when Linux and Unix become closer to one product we could find ourselves in competition with Microsoft operating systems. Most of the Unix/Linux market is highly driven by application vendors. If application vendors choose not to develop on Linux that would be a much bigger problem. If Microsoft puts their energy in to alienating application vendors from Linux it would cause problems."

S.B. Stone, for instance, does 25 percent to 30 percent of its business with Caldera on Unix platforms, but Microsoft represents the rest of its business.

Copyright 1999 CMP Media Inc.

Topic: MS rigging votes again
Msg #389420

Date: Thu, Jan 10, 2002, 6:47:00 PM

Sinking to new depths of desperation in its war against Java, Microsoft has been caught stuffing ballots during an online vote concerning web services.

<http://www.theregister.co.uk/content/4/23612.html>

<http://news.zdnet.co.uk/story/0,,t269-s2102244,00.html>

The vote, run by ZDNet UK was to see which technology enterprises were planning to use, to deploy web services. Java was the clearly winning, having amassed two thirds of the votes. However, the chaps at ZDNet became a little suspicious by the complete reversal in statistics a week later ... MS .NET was the clear winner! A quick look at the server logs revealed an unprecedented number of votes, originating from the same people within the Microsoft's domain. One person had even voted 228 times They also found evidence that automated scripts, executing from servers within Microsoft, were being used to rig the vote. Microsoft's lack of honesty in attempting to carry out such an act, is only matched by the stupid, hamfisted way they executed it.

Topic: Rio Riot: 5,000 songs

Msg #389401

Date: Thu, Jan 10, 2002, 1:36:01 PM

Alan:

What WERE they thinking?! They were thinking, probably correctly, that their largest audience, PC-users, don't have FireWire. So why bother adding it given the "cost" and "complexity" of an Oxford 911. Even so, it's a USB 1.1 device, not even 2.0, which is strange.

This year, all the local employees of the company I work for were offered a sweetener when buying a new PC through the company; the cost was deducted from your gross salary, so your benefit is that you pay less income tax (i.e. if your highest band is 42%, you really pay only 58% of the computer's cost). Brand-spanking new with XP. FireWire was not an option. (Obviously, neither were Macs) Note: This particular person does not live in the U.S. and therefore is not subject to U.S. tax laws.)

2. Unless otherwise provided in the revised proposed Final Judgment, Microsoft shall begin complying with the revised proposed Final Judgment as it was in full force and effect starting on December 16, 2001.

1. Microsoft shall not retaliate against any ISV or IHV because of that ISV's or IHV's: a. developing, using, distributing, promoting or supporting any software that competes with Microsoft Platform Software or any software that runs on any software that competes with Microsoft Platform Software,

I. "ISV" means an entity other than Microsoft that is engaged in the development or marketing of software products.

Thank you for your time.

Gerald W. "Grady" Goodwin, concerned citizen

MTC-00010690

From: Iain O'Cain

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 3:24am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm a consultant whose livelihood is threatened by Microsoft's abuse of their monopoly power. In recent years, I've moved progressively farther from use of Microsoft products in my own and my clients' solutions for office applications and Internet services. Some of the language in the settlement recently proposed by the Department of Justice concerns me greatly. It appears to me that this settlement would not only fail to curtail Microsoft's abuses, much less provide punitive deterrence or compensation to consumers, but could actually help strengthen Microsoft's attacks on openly available software.

Much of the language I've read in this proposed settlement seems to grant Microsoft undue powers for determining their responsibilities. Some examples include:

Section III(J)(2) seems to allow Microsoft to continue restricting access to their API, Documentation, and Communications Protocols from anyone they consider not to be a business! In particular, "... (c) meets reasonable, objective standards established by Microsoft for certifying the authenticity and viability of its business..." seems outrageous to me. Providing my clients with access to their data often calls for the use of software like Samba,¹ which is developed noncommercially through the collaboration of consultants like myself with the result of helping all our business practices.

Section III(D) appears to further limit Microsoft's obligation to share their API details except to organizations defined as commercial. What about projects like I've already mentioned? What about the government's own projects? I know that many consultants like myself have had to depend at times on the public availability of software developed at public expense by branches of the government.

Microsoft have already destroyed, through the practice of bundling, their main competition in the Internet browser market despite Netscape's huge lead. Their greatest rival now may be the Mozilla² browser, which is developed by a diverse collaboration, again noncommercially.

¹ Information on the Samba project is available at <http://us1.samba.org/samba/samba.html>

² Information on the Mozilla project is available at <http://mozilla.org/>.

Despite bundling Web (WWW) server software and tying that to their Web content authoring software, Microsoft has yet to dominate that area. Consultants such as myself still prefer by some margin to deploy the more efficient, collaboratively developed Apache³ software. Yet Microsoft continues to attack our ability to deploy such Open Source⁴ solutions when it encourages or even forces by its market position the deployment of its own software, while keeping its software interfaces secret and designing that software to depend on connections with Microsoft's own products.

I urge everyone involved to exact greater remedies. Please restrict Microsoft's ability to wield its monopolies against innovation by other parties as it has so clearly and consistently done. Microsoft should have to publicly reveal any software interfaces they might conceivably use as leverage to block competition because they have proved how cynically they have been willing to exploit every advantage to illegally block competition throughout their existence.

Thank you for considering this input.

Sincerely,

Iain O'Cain <iocain@spamcop.net>
6125 Oakpark Trail
Haslett, MI 48840

MTC-00010694

From: Troy Lister
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 5:28am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Troy Lister
3130 Oak Road, Apt. 418
Walnut Creek, CA 94596-7752
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Troy Lister

MTC-00010695

From: Harris L. Gilliam
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:01am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hello,

I am writing as a concerned consumer and professional in the computer industry to respond to the proposed settlement of the lawsuit against Microsoft. I watched with much interest the trial and events that followed. Many industry experts predicted that Microsoft would indeed be found guilty of anti-competitive behavior. They also correctly predicted that Microsoft would use its considerable financial might to "wait out" its opponents. This is exactly what Microsoft has done. They have dragged out the court battle long enough that the operating systems and products that were originally in question are almost obsolete. They have protected their monopoly position.

The remedies proposed do not go far enough to protect the industry and its consumers from Microsoft's predatory behavior. I welcome the provisions to prevent Microsoft from retaliating against companies that chose to use competitive products. I welcome the provisions that require Microsoft to publish documentation and license APIs. These will provide the possibility for third-party software that competes with Microsoft. Sadly that is all it will do. It will not significantly change the choices that OEMs have because Microsoft has already extinguished all third-party competition. OEMs and other software developers still have a strong financial incentive to not compete with Microsoft. There still is no other OS which can replace Windows in the PC desktop market. This is because all the products and software people are dependant on is written for Windows. The duration of Microsoft's monopoly makes it prohibitive for any company to arise and produce an alternative to Windows or Microsoft's consumer products (which, for the most part, work exclusively with Windows).

For so long consumers have been forced to use Microsoft products they have become "slaves" to the software. There isn't a corporate IT manager alive that would attempt to build an office system on anything except Microsoft Windows and Microsoft Office. Schools that train office administrators and secretaries pretty much use Microsoft products exclusively. Redmond would like to have you believe this situation developed because they have superior products. A conversation with anyone who works in an office or the casual reading of a trade publication would dispell that myth quickly. There is barely a day that passes without some report of a security hole or major defect being found in a Microsoft product. The stranglehold that Microsoft has on the industry must be broken. The only way the damage that Microsoft's monopoly has done can be truly remedied is to create a financial viable market for software which competes directly with Microsoft products.

Possible ways to achieve this include:

(1) Require that Microsoft produce versions of all its middleware products (IE, Microsoft Office, etc) for non-Microsoft operating systems. This will give OEM's and consumers a choice of what OS to use on their machines. It is clear that there is only a choice if OEMs and consumers can still use the products they have become dependant upon.

(2) Require that Microsoft publish documentation for and licence not only the APIs that make software compatible with Windows but also the details of the file formats for their Office suite of products. Again this is intended to allow OEMs and consumers to have a choice of what OS to run on their machines. If third-party software can be written which is entirely compatible with Microsoft's file formats then this software would also be free to run on any OS that a competing company chooses.

There are sure to be other ways to achieve the necessary goal of creating a real opportunity for competition with Microsoft. While the currently proposed remedies do much to prevent certain direct monopolistic behaviour by Microsoft it does little to correct the unnatural position Microsoft enjoys in the marketplace. There are few companies in any industry who can consistently produce substandard products, as Microsoft does, and yet not incur the "wrath" of the consumers. When you have no other choice you settle for what you can get. As they used to say about Musolini: "He is a cruel dictator but at least the trains now run on time." The recent attitude Microsoft has shown with regard to its Windows XP product (continued bundling of Microsoft-exclusive software and technologies to stifle competition) and its overall practice of limiting consumer choice demonstrates that Microsoft is not in the least repentant. It is clear to this consumer that they don't plan to change their behavior anytime soon.

The government's decision to not pursue further legal action is a great disappointment. I can only hope the states, who have refused to cave in to Microsoft, fair well in their continued battle. Otherwise I don't expect to see any change in the situation.

Harris L. Gilliam
Director of Engineering
Supewings, Inc.

MTC-00010696

From: Gheorghiu Alex
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:24am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Good day,

My name is Gheorghiu Alex and I'm from Europe/Romania. I'm 24 years old and I work with computers since 14 (so I had 10 years of experience). Right now I'm a student at Faculty of Informatics and Faculty of Bioengineering.

1. A few years ago when the Internet emerged Netscape browser was the first and best browser that allow a person to navigate ³Information on the Apache projects is available at <http://www.apache.org/>.

⁴Information on the practice of Open Source development is available at <http://www.opensource.org/>.

on the Internet. This browser was provided by Netscape. After a year or so, Microsoft launched a browser, named Internet Explorer and incorporated it in Microsoft Windows 95 and Microsoft Windows 98. So when you have something that came for nothing and it is imposed you will use it; and so Netscape in a few years almost disappeared from the browser market.

2. Around 95 Sun Microsystems launched a new programming language named Java whose purpose was to allow you to write a program that will work on every operating system like: Microsoft Windows, Linux, Unix, to work with special devices like future cell-phones, palmtops and even to incorporate in a car's computer, microwaves, TV, etc. When they see that this language became so popular among programmers they decide to stop its ascension and try to pervert its basic roles but Sun Microsystems, IBM, Oracle continues to follow initial concept totally independence from platform.

3. Here is a small funny thing when Microsoft take the leadership in browser war, they took all rivals facilities (those facilities included Java) and so Microsoft kept the Java in their browser. Now they have monopoly and because of that they throw away Java from the Internet Explorer 6.0 browser and put their proprietary languages like VisualBasic. All I want to say is that Microsoft step by step take control of very aspect of computer world, from operating system to cell phones.

I know that USA is a country where freedom is the law (my country was under USSR sphere of influence for 50 years and I saw at my grandparents and my parents what this mean) and I hope that this humble mail will be a warning for what Microsoft is trying to do. I do not want my children to live in a Microsoft world and when I'll be very old my computer that will monitor my life signals to crush (or to breakdown) (oh, sorry I've forgotten to say that after THEY become monopolistic in a special domain their products become unreliable and full of errors).

I think that will be best for all to listen to Sun Microsystems and Linux RedHat proposals.

Thank you,
Alex

Please excuse my English.

MTC-00010697

From:

nicku@nicksbox.tyict.vtc.edu.hk@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 7:01am

Subject: Microsoft monopoly

Dear Sir/Madam,

Microsoft has a history of attempting to monopolise the market in every way it can. The competition comes from Linux. Any remedy to Microsoft's monopolistic practices should include the following.

It is almost totally impossible to buy a computer that does not have Microsoft's operating system installed. This is a major part of the problem. A user who wants to install another operating system must pay for the Microsoft operating system even though it is not desired. The first requirement for a reasonable remedy should require that Microsoft's products should be available as extra-cost options when purchasing new computers. The price that is charged should be the same as that when not purchasing a computer. In this way, real competition could begin.

The proprietary formats of Microsoft's document file formats (both current and future) should be made public, so that competing products may read documents created with Microsoft products. This should apply to all the document formats used by all the Microsoft Office products. This is in addition to opening the Windows application program interface (API, the set of "hooks" that allow other parties to write applications for Windows operating systems), which is already part of the proposed settlement.

All the Microsoft networking protocols should be published fully, and made available for open source developers to implement. The current proposed settlement limits access to open source development in a way that benefits Microsoft. Open source is the major means of providing competition to Microsoft. The settlement should not exclude open source developers from access to information about Microsoft protocols that can be used directly. Microsoft is not adverse to using open source software, then altering it in minor ways to create a new and incompatible "Microsoft" protocol. See the way Microsoft has "embraced and extended" the Kerberos protocol so that only Microsoft Kerberos servers are compatible with Microsoft clients. You need to take action to prevent Microsoft from embracing and extending the Internet, which till now has been an open environment created by many for the benefit of many, and owned by no one.

Nick Urbanik RHCE

Dept. of Information & Communications Technology

Hong Kong Institute of Vocational Education (Tsing Yi)

Tel: (852)-2436-8576, (852)-2436-8579

Fax: (852)-2436-8526

nicku@vtc.edu.hk PGP: 53 B6 6D 73 52 EE
1F EE EC F8 21 98 45 1C 23 7B ID: 7529555D

MTC-00010698

From: Jrsitcer@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 7:29am

Subject: Microsoft settlement of suit

In my opinion the suit against Microsoft should be settled as soon as possible. The continuing litigation is not good for the consumer or the economy. It would benefit all, except the Microsoft competitors, to put an end to this matter. Please accept the judgment against Microsoft and let that be the end of this.

Jill Sitzer (Mrs. Gary)

20 Barchester Way

Westfield, NJ 07090

MTC-00010699

From: Charles R Heilers

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 8:46am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settlement seems just and fair. Needs to be put into action.

Charles R. Heilers

1270 W CR 580 N

North Vernon, In. 47265

MTC-00010700

From: Kit Welsch

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 9:33am

Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
ATTORNEY GENERAL JOHN ASHCROFT
US DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
950 PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE, NW
WASHINGTON, DC 20530-001

DEAR MR. ASHCROFT,

PROSECUTE OPEC, NOT MICROSOFT
OPEC IS THE MONOPOLY THAT HAS OPENLY CONSPIRED TO CONTROL PRICES
AND THUS ADMITS IT IS A MONOPOLY.
THE ONLY WAY I CAN SEE TO DEAL WITH OPEC IS TO ORGANIZE THE OIL
IMPORTING NATIONS INTO A GROUP CALLED OPIC (ORGANIZATION OF OIL IMPORTING COUNTRIES). WE COULD THEN WORK TOGETHER TO RESTRICT OR TAX PRODUCTS GOING TO THE OIL
EXPORTING COUNTRIES IN ORDER TO FORCE THEM TO DROP OUT OF OPEC.

MICROSOFT, ON THE OTHER HAND, HAS INCREASED MY PRODUCTIVITY BY MAKING SURE THAT ALL THEIR PRODUCTS WORK TOGETHER
SEAMLESSLY. WHEN I GOT MY FIRST COMPUTER, DOS WAS THE OPERATING SYSTEM AND NOTHING SEEMED TO WORK TOGETHER PROPERLY. THE WINDOWS OPERATING SYSTEM BECAME THE STANDARD BECAUSE CONSUMERS
LIKED IT. SO, MICROSOFT CAME TO DOMINATE THE MARKET BY PRODUCING THE BEST PRODUCT, NOT BY CONSPIRING WITH OTHER PRODUCERS TO CONTROL PRICES.

THE ONLY REASON THIS LAWSUIT
HAPPENED IS BECAUSE MICROSOFT CHALLENGED THE COMPETITION BY GIVING IT'S BROWSER AWAY FOR FREE
AT A TIME WHEN NETSCAPE WAS TRYING TO SELL THEIRS. THAT'S COMPETITION, NOT MONOPOLY. IT WAS GOOD FOR THE CONSUMER. IF THE GOVERNMENT CONSPIRES WITH NETSCAPE TO STOP MICROSOFT FROM GIVING AWAY THEIR BROWSER, THEN
THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE BECOMES THE MONOPOLIST, AND THE CONSUMER IS HARMED. PLEASE STOP THIS INSANE
PERSECUTION OF A COMPANY THAT WAS GREATLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE PRODUCTIVITY INCREASES WE SAW
DURING THE 90'S. PLEASE STOP
PERSECUTING THE ONE COMPANY THAT HAS BEEN PRODUCING AN ENVIRONMENTALLY CLEAN PRODUCT
THAT WE HAVE BEEN ABLE TO EXPORT
ALL OVER THE WORLD AND HELP WITH OUR BALANCE OF PAYMENTS. PLEASE ACCEPT THE SETTLEMENT PROPOSED,
AND ALLOW MICROSOFT TO USE THE MONEY THEY ARE SPENDING ON THEIR LEGAL DEFENSE TO CREATE THE NEXT
NEW PRODUCT WHICH WILL INCREASE OUR PRODUCTIVITY AND STIMULATE OUR ECONOMY BETTER THAN A TAX CUT.

SINCERELY,
KIT WELSCH

216 ARCHER WAY

BOX 1820
ANNA MARIA, FL 34216-1820
941-778-5230
941-778-7229 FAX
hwelsch1@tampabay.rr.com

MTC-00010701

From: Lee Wagstaff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 9:33am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lee Wagstaff
614 Pine Tree Court
Walled Lake, MI 48390—
Attorney General John Ashcroft
January 12, 2002
US Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I have very strong feelings regarding the recent settlement between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. I believe that the government's intervention in Microsoft affairs has done much to hurt the local and global economy. Mr. Attorney General, wrap up this settlement now. We can not continue to pride ourselves on our "competitive spirit" and then take action against a company that has bolstered the entire economy of our country by that very same spirit. And, worse, this action was taken as a result of a few complaining companies that could not prosper in a competitive environment and, as a result, blamed Microsoft for their failure. When the complaining and ultimate threat of legal action drove Microsoft market value down, it deteriorated the overall market creating a hole that many companies fell into. Again, Mr. Attorney General, put an end to this economy debilitating, legal misadventure.

Everyone knows Microsoft has made very significant strides in the innovation of this industry. These major innovations may have given the impression that Microsoft desired to gain unreasonable control over the market. Not so. But in an effort to placate the punitively sponsored objections of its competitors, Microsoft has agreed to remove certain software features from its Windows Operating System to prevent imposition of future antitrust violations. Several changes have been made in their business practices. Microsoft will disclose the internal interfaces and protocols of its Windows software to competitors; allow competitors to modify Windows to take out Microsoft software and put in their own; and have oversight from a Technical Committee. Their compliance has gone beyond the restrictions and obligations at issue in the lawsuit. I think that this is more than a fair indicator that Microsoft is willing to get back to the business of developing new products.

It is hoped that my expressed views on this issue will aid in the resolution of this matter. I am more than happy to know that there is so much cooperative effort to that end. Thank you for your wise leadership.

With deepest regards,

MTC-00010702

From: iiel@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 9:54am
Subject: READ ON

Hello again:

I would like to see Microsoft made to offer free to all current Microsoft operating systems all of the preceding operating systems that the current one obsoleted.

This is so that the excellent software that was not financially successful for the owners could continue to operate for the users of the operating systems that need to upgrade to the most recent version for other reasons, like keeping current with financially successful software companies newest versions.

I believe that versions like DOS, WIN 3.1, WIN 95 and even WIN 98 could be classified as free to current owners of WIN ME, 2000 and later.

What do you think? When I gave the idea for WINDOWS to the UNITED NATIONS in 1979 and suggested that Bill Gates should develop it, that was FOR the WORLD. Not for Bill Gates personal fortune! He has turned into a greedy . . . ! He was given the idea. He needs to give back!

Very TRULY yours,
Bernard Solomon Katz

MTC-00010703

From: markrussell
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:20am
Subject: MS

Gentlemen,

I recently wrote to several State AG's regarding the Microsoft monopoly case. Several responded and asked that I write directly to DOJ. I am a 74 year old Consulting Civil Engineer. My first computer was an LGP30. When I started my own practice in 1965 I "time shared" a GE computer located at their Missile and Space Division at King of Prussia, PA. using a "ground line" and an ASR33 Teletype. (what this proves I don't know, but I was asked by one of the AG's, who actually called on the telephone, that I include this "bio.") I am still practicing, thanks to the PC and without the 50 employees. I went from DOS as an operating system to OS/2 because it allowed me to keep the data of projects in a "file folder" and the files in each project folder were "associated" with the software with which they were created. IBM, at some time in the past, announced a new PC and I thought it was time to "upgrade" to a faster machine. Called IBM. Said I wanted their machine and wanted it with OS/2. Was told they could not sell it with OS/2, only window. I bought from a local PC store and installed the OS my self. I consider this a restraint of trade. Microsoft, at the very least, should be required to open their Application Program Interface to all so that any program written for window could be easily adapted to other operating systems. Thank you.

Marcus H. Russell, P.E., L.S.
3 Foxcroft Court
Voorhees, NJ 08043
856-782-0054

MTC-00010704

From: Konrad Ko(FFFF)odziejczyk
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:20am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement that Microsoft signed with DOJ and 9 states should be approved by court because Microsoft didn't violate Sherman Act. The proposal of other nine states goes for far. Microsoft legal tied Internet Explorer to Windows and Microsoft legal commingled Internet Explorer's code with operating system's code.

MTC-00010705

From: Richard Pritchett
To: Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov
Date: 1/13/02 10:25am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a former user of IBM's OS/2 as my personal desktop operating system, I have personally seen the level to which Microsoft has stooped in order to kill off or severely cripple their competitors. As is noted in the court case's record of fact, Microsoft put undo pressure on IBM to get them to stop marketing and selling their highly acclaimed OS/2 Warp V3.0 and OS/2 2.x operating systems. OS/2 Warp V3.0 was a product that allowed consumers to make an easy migration from Windows 3.x to OS/2 and still be able to use their old applications, but to do so on a far superior operating system. Because this method allowed IBM to get around one of the major barriers to operating system competition, i.e. applications use and support, OS/2 was a major threat to Microsoft, and was approaching the 14 million licenses sold mark (from public comments, not official IBM numbers). Microsoft forced IBM's hand by making them either stop their marketing and sales efforts or pay much greater prices on their OEM contracts for the purchase of Windows95. Since IBM is, and always will be, a hardware company first, they made the only business decision they could, which was to stop their OS/2 efforts, and succumb to the pressure from Microsoft. Now I'm stuck using Windows due to application needs. My desire to use OS/2 persists, but most of the software I use is either not available or sufficiently immature for me to use OS/2 anymore.

While this is only one of many companies that have been hurt in this industry, it is clear that a competitive market for operating systems is the ONLY way to return the software market to a competitive, and innovative industry that it once was. The currently proposed settlement fails to address the one key area that is needed to do this. Microsoft's Application Programming Interfaces (API's), the underlying software commands that tell the operating system what to do, and for which programmers must use to properly program a Windows application, MUST be FULLY documented and open source to the public domain. There is no other way to get the market back on track. If the Windows API's are fully documented and released to the open public, in a very timely manner, then many programmers, who currently are trying to bring the ability to run Windows programs on various Linux distributions (WINE Project) and on IBM's OS/2 (Odin Project), will be able to give the Linux and OS/2 operating systems the ability to run Windows applications, including their Office suite, on both operating systems, and any other operating system where enough interest is present to port the applications.

Also, Microsoft should be forced to divest its Office Suite software, as it gives them a dual monopoly which ties into each other and gives it a lot more power to generate new monopolies, and keep raising prices for new features (bug fixes). If this department does not wish to force a divestiture upon Microsoft, then force Microsoft to release the file formats into the open public so that other competing office suite makers (Lotus; Sun; Corel before MS pumped money into them) can allow their suites to use Microsoft Office files natively, thereby allowing consumers the choice to decide which office suit gets the job done better. Right now MS has a huge lock on this market because everyone's documents are in these file formats that Microsoft changes with each new release so that other suite makers can't keep up.

In summary, Microsoft must be forced to open its Windows API's and either divest its Office suite or be forced to publicly document their file formats (in a timely manner for both). Combined with restrictions on their OEM license agreements, this should have the net affect of bringing competition back to the software marketplace. If these things are not done, then it will simply be a slap of Microsoft's wrist, and the marketplace will continue to loose small and innovative companies due to the practices of Microsoft. The list of greatly innovative companies that were killed off is huge. Many have already won court cases, or settlements, against Microsoft.

Thank you,
Richard A. Pritchett
Tampa, FL
rpritch2@tampabay.rr.com

MTC-00010706

From: rsobba
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:46am
Subject: Microsoft Case

To whom it may concern,

First some of my background. I have been a computer professional for 15 years, specializing in data base administration. My professional career has been mostly with mainframe data bases, but I have done extensive work from my home with personal computers. I maintain several web sites for various volunteer organizations to which I belong.

I believe the Microsoft Settlement has been a capitulation by the current administration and the Department of Justice to the big money donations of the Microsoft lobbying and campaign contributions. The US won this case! Why has the justice department settled for this woefully inadequate solution to Microsoft's conviction as a monopolist? This is the penalty phase of this case, and yet there appears to be no penalty for Microsoft, and in fact if implemented as written, could actually increase Microsoft's Monopoly. For true justice to be served, the courts must decide the punishment and not the politically (and monetarily) motivated DOJ. For this reason, the settlement as currently written must be REJECTED!

I would like to point out several flaws in the settlement and recommend some alternatives that would seem to make more sense. I refer to the settlement found at <http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/f9400/9495.htm>

III.A Microsoft shall not retaliate against an OEM...

Not only should Microsoft not be able to punish the OEM, but OEM pricing should be disallowed for Microsoft. The OEM vendors should be required to pay full retail price for the operating system and office products, and pass this on to the consumer. In other words, strike paragraphs III.B.2 and III.B.3 from the settlement. Furthermore, the OEM should be required to list this cost as part of total cost of the machine, and offer all machines they sell with either alternative operating systems, or no operating system at all installed. This would provide clear disclosure to consumers of the "Microsoft tax" they are paying with each new computer system. Allowing users to remove items from a purchased machine is inadequate, as they have already payed the "tax" and Microsoft goes unpunished.

III.D . . . Microsoft shall disclose to ISVs, IHVs, IAPs, ICPs, and OEMs, . . . the APIs and related Documentation. . .

While this is a step in the right direction, Microsoft should be compelled to make public, not simply to certain companies but to the public, all operating system APIs, all communication APIs, and every single file format, current and future, created or used by any of their products. The interfaces and file formats should not be allowed to be considered "intellectual property" that would allow Microsoft to restrict access by imposing "royalties or other payment of monetary consideration" simply to interface with their products. This will promote true competition by allowing other companies and the open source community to write programs that can be fully compatible with, and have equivalent functionality to the Microsoft monopoly products.

II.J—No provision of this Final Judgment shall:

1. Require Microsoft to document, disclose or license to third parties . . .

2. Prevent Microsoft from conditioning any license . . . This paragraph reads like a major legal loophole for Microsoft that will allow them to get away with keeping large parts of the interface to their systems a secret by saying that the disclosure would "compromise the security" of that system. The APIs and file formats I mentioned above should be excluded from this paragraph.

Section V. Termination

B. In any enforcement proceeding in which the Court has found that Microsoft has engaged in a pattern of willful and systematic violations, the Plaintiffs may apply to the Court for a one-time extension of this Final Judgment of up to two years, together with such other relief as the Court may deem appropriate.

So if I have interpreted this paragraph correctly, if Microsoft fails to comply with this settlement in the first five years, their punishment is to spend two more years not complying!?! How is this an incentive for Microsoft to comply with the settlement? This section completely removes what few teeth this settlement ever had. This section should be completely rewritten such that if Microsoft fails to comply with the settlement, any and all intellectual property not in compliance will be forfeited to the public domain. That would be an incentive for compliance!

In summary, the Microsoft punishment for being a convicted monopolist should include the opening and documenting of all Application Programming Interfaces for their products, the documented specification of all file formats for documents created by their products should be public domain, and the complete prohibition of the discounts and "bundling" Microsoft currently engages in with hardware vendors. Additionally, the legal loopholes should be removed, and the penalty for non-compliance should be severe.

A settlement that truly encourages competition is very much in the national interest and national security. A study released a year ago by the highly respected Center for Strategic and International Studies, pointed out that the use of Microsoft software actually poses a national security risk. We can not allow any one company to maintain a strangle hold on something as important to this nation as the information technology infrastructure of this country. It is very important for the future of this nation that a careful and deliberate penalty that restores true competition to the software marketplace be implemented.

Thanks you for your time,
Rick Sobba
Prairie Village, KS.

MTC-00010707

From: Lynn and Ms Leanne Sant
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 10:58am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lynn and Ms Leanne Sant
P.O. Box 329
Preston, ID 83263-0329
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Lynn and Leanne Sant

MTC-00010708

From: Dave Walsh
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 11:11am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I have been involved in developing computer software for 25 years. I have watched Microsoft's behavior since the very first PCs. I currently own a computer company that focuses on the development of Java software for the healthcare market, with a particular emphasis on the Medicaid sector. I would like to make the following points.

1. In my opinion Microsoft has a tendency to sit back and let the venture community, and entrepreneurs invest many millions of dollars with early stage technologies. Once the economic viability of these products has been established, Microsoft steps in with a free, bundled or tightly integrated product that destroys the competition. Once there is no more competition they begin to charge what the market will bear for the bundled solution.

2. At the heart of the problem is the fact that Microsoft is using its base level software first DOS, then Windows, Windows applications, Browsers to insure that the entire industry propagates their initiative. If a group develops software that is truly innovative, then Microsoft will buy it or build a clone that is offered as a part of the windows initiative. Any settlement that allows Microsoft to pay compensation by giving away software, which will further their ambitions to educate the world that Microsoft products are the only answer, is counter productive. Having Microsoft purchase and distribute computer hardware from a variety of manufactures seems appropriate. This Hardware should be pre loaded with some of the software that has been injured by the Microsoft practices. The latest version of Java and one or more of the excellent development environments for Java should be pre loaded to the exclusion of Microsoft development software. The Latest version of Netscape's browser should be pre loaded instead of IE. Initiatives such as these would be much more consistent with with a resolution to the problem.

3. I believe that Microsoft should be forced to distribute a version of Java that's meets the current Java specification with any operation system that Microsoft ships, including Windows CE. The problem with Java is a distribution problem. Insuring the availability of an alternative to consumers and the ability for developers to assume that a current Java application will run on a consumer device is a huge step towards opening competition.

4. My organization often responds to local, State and Federal RFPs. All too often these RFDs specify that only Microsoft solutions will be accepted. I do not believe that it is the job of our government to promote Microsoft products in any way. The government should be specifying software that is compliant with recognized standards organizations and requesting features that are relevant to the tasks associated with the procurement.

Regards
David P. Walsh
President
eServices Group

MTC-00010709

From: MAHIR1996@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 11:09am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Friends, I believe that it would be in the best interest of the country (even if it weren't in the grip of recession,) to settle the Microsoft case quickly and fairly. I think it was a bad decision to reject the generous offer Microsoft made. Please, please, for the benefit of us all, end this unnecessary case and the waste of the government's money. When you look at the outrageous Enron case which also will cost much of the public's precious money, (this is not a waste,) the Microsoft's offenses disappear.

Mary Daley,
11811 E Terra Drive,
Scottsdale, AZ 85259 (480) 391-1817

MTC-00010710

From: R Carlson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
January 9, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue,
NW Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I would like to express my opinion regarding the recent settlement in the Microsoft Anti -Trust case. First of all, this whole case was ridiculous and is clearly an attempt on the part of some of the Microsoft competitors to invalidate the competitive advantages of Microsoft and steal their intellectual property. The government has been erroneously dragged in to a technical discussion it does not have the ability to moderate nor does it have any business intervening in the affairs of a private company. However, what's done is done and this settlement should be the final end to this mess. Spending more time further evaluating the details of the settlement is a waste of money. The most recent judicial decision just complicates and extends the whole silly case. With the existing recession and our newly rediscovered partisan politics our economy can't stand to have our IT industry continue to be burdened in this manner.

I am currently retired, but was involved in the computer industry for nearly 30 years, the last 15 of which were as a CEO of a public computer company. I was closely involved with Microsoft products and still use them for my daily computer use. Given our free enterprise system, I am free to use whichever products I see fit, and nothing Microsoft has done precludes me from using whatever software and hardware I choose to use. Like thousands of other Americans, I use Microsoft because it is easy to use, and more importantly it provides a standard which encourages the rest of the industry to provide compatible products. It is my belief it is these standards issues that have allowed us to become the premier technical and business country on the planet. The settlement will make it even easier for non-Microsoft products to be used on people's computers. Additionally, Microsoft will be handing over their coding and interface design (Which is intellectual property) to help their competitors compete more fairly (Unfairly??) in the market. I don't see what more could be asked of Microsoft. Please make sure this settlement is respected and that this lawsuit is put to an end.

Sincerely,
Robert A. Carlson

MTC-00010711

From: Phil Patterson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:38am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Phil Patterson
6300 Welles Brook
San Antonio, TX 78240
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Phil E. Patterson

MTC-00010712

From: Bernadette Hein
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:36am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Bernadette Hein
72 Cambridge Dr.
Hershey, PA 17033
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Bernadette Hein

MTC-00010713

From: SkiSnow@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Go ahead and settle.
Brian Boyd

MTC-00010714

From: Jens Bj(FFFF)rlo Tandstad
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The case against Microsoft is clearly that of a Monopoly exploiting markets and manipulating consumer patterns of purchase. Moreover, the delay and discrimination as to when and to what degree information is disclosed to third party software developers not member of the Microsoft Software production family. The effects of this monopoly includes, but are not limited to:

- Lack of freedom when purchasing software goods.
- Lower quality of products not a part of or cooperating with Microsoft.
- The hardware industry favouring Microsoft because of it's market position, tailoring hardware to the Windows OS, and thus strengtens their position further, hindering competition.
- Security issues due to recurring exploits and weak spots in the Windows system. This is an effect much affected by the Microsoft strategy to include all types of programs in the OS, thus removing the convenience and often possibilty of not using a program in which there is a considerable security hazard. (Internet Explorer, Instant Messaging, Microsoft Network protocols)
- Deliberate neglecting file formats to create inconvenience so that people stop using competing programs.

You all know this, make the right decision. Let us have the benefits of a free market.

Jens Tandstad
NORWAY

MTC-00010715

From: henk@snapper.soneraplaza.nl@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:21pm
Subject: Settlement Microsoft

I am against the proposed settlement in US vs. Microsoft. You should stop criminal behaviour by all means. You should never reward criminal monopolitic activities with a higher market penetration.

I think that if a small company had the behaviour of MS, the management would be punished with sending to prison. Why don't you do that with the MS management?

May be you can punish the MS management with the obligation of developing each application for multiplatform? (f.i. Apple and Linux) Then you can minimalise the effects of the present monopolism. And all users would benefit with a higher degree of freedom.

MTC-00010716

From: Charlie Parker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:41pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Department of Justice,
I applaud the DOJ for finally settling the suit with Microsoft. It is good that the federal government is moving forward to items of far greater importance and not wasting any more taxpayer dollars on an issue it shouldn't have even looked at in the first place. In my humble opinion, this suit did nothing to benefit consumers; it was filed purely at the behest of companies who failed in the marketplace because of their own ineptitude, and the fire was fanned by a bunch of ambulance-chasing lawyers whose egos and arrogance far supersede any other interest.

Charles S. Parker

MTC-00010717

From: Randy Hartley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 12:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Opinion

Competition is what is needed to ensure a good product. Without competition, there is no reason to make a better product or for that matter make the existing product better.

It is for that reason I am opposed to a settlement with Microsoft

Thank You
Randy Hartley

MTC-00010718

From: M. Hermann
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 12:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

M. Hermann
14359 SE 6TH ST, Apt 204
Bellevue, WA 98007-6733
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Martel C Hermann

MTC-00010719

From: George Keselman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Technical Reviewer Board proposed is useless. Those 3 persons will have no effective rights, and will be manipulated by Microsoft during 1 month each serves. One of two Board members is to be assigned by Microsoft, and the third one is also to be elected by that Microsoft assigned person. What a brilliant idea!

The Microsoft phenomenon can be viewed as promoting public computing ignorance through not educating and limiting choices. It is easy due to human nature. That's why it succeeded in the game. The document should forbid Microsoft promote its system in public schools without teaching equal or more time Linux or Unix systems. It is easy, too, but there is a powerful lobby in the US government that promotes Microsoft only. This is the primary reason the situation persists.

George Kesleman
Atlanta, GA

MTC-00010720

From: Jim A Goluch
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:24pm
Subject: Microsoft—DOJ
2011 "I" St.,
Laporte, IN 46350- 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania
Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:
I am writing to express my support of the recent settlement between Microsoft and the US department of Justice. I think the settlement is ion the best interest of the American public because it forces Microsoft to make some concessions that will even the playing field, but it also allows Microsoft to get this suit off its chest and continue to innovate as it has for over a decade.

Microsoft has really standardized the industry and its products, services, and training are really outstanding. As a computer analyst I would say though that I believe their marketing tactics are a little heavy handed, so the fact that Microsoft will be increasing its relations with software developers and computer makers as well as agreeing to design future versions of Windows to make it easier for competitors to market their products within Windows.

Since the settlement does seem fair and just, I urge your office to finalize it, and help facilitate ending the nine remaining states opposition. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
James Goluch

MTC-00010721

From: limoman 2929
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Please See Attachment

MTC-00010722

From: S I
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:28pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dearest Judge K;
Please take a careful look at the Proposed Final Judgement that the Dept of Justice is trying to foist upon the American people. It is an outrage that Microsoft—after having been found guilty time after time in American courts—is about to be let off basically scott free. Why should the strongest and wealthiest Americans get off from obeying the law?

I have been in the software industry for almost 10 years—and I have personally seen Microsoft rip off ideas, patents, products and even entire companies. Repeatedly. But this is no different then what the courts have found. I know run a small company—and we have to tiptoe around MS all the time—as do all software companies our size.

Please protect small, independent software developers like myself. That's the great thing about our country—the rich and powerful don't always win. thank you very much.

Sasha Winston
Menlo Park, CA

MTC-00010723

From: Jane Waski
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
420 East 64 Street
New York, New York 10021
January 9, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
Let me begin by saying that I appreciate the opportunity to speak on behalf of ordinary consumers. Companies like Microsoft don't become powerful because of competitors, but because of people like me who purchase and use their products. I am an avid user of Microsoft software, and feel that they have been unfairly singled out. Nevertheless, I also believe that the current settlement satisfies the government and public interest in a way that should allow this suit to end. I feel that the three-year lawsuit and the efforts of the negotiations have culminated in a settlement that is both fair and reasonable.

While new government regulations will be imposed on Microsoft's business and technology practices, this settlement will provide certainty about the new rules and thereby ensure that the company can continue delivering advanced American technology to the marketplace. I also believe that this case has had a direct impact on the federal and state economies. During this difficult time, it doesn't make sense to spend more money on a battle that has already been won. Under the agreement, competitors can sue Microsoft if they feel that the company is not complying with the terms of the settlement, and Microsoft can continue innovating in an effort to maintain its competitive advantage. In short, I think that the necessary corrections have been made to solve the problems, and now it is time to return focus from litigation back to innovation. The settlement agreement is the first step in the right direction.

Sincerely,
Jane Waski

MTC-00010724

From: Matthew Jones
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 1:56pm
Subject: Comments on the settlement between the USDOJ and Microsoft

I am writing to you to state my disappointment at the proposed settlement with Microsoft in the antitrust case. I cannot see anyway that this settlement punishes the convicted corporate felon Microsoft, improves competition or helps the consumer. I work in computer industry, although not with a competitor of Microsoft. However I work on an embedded Internet browser. Because Microsoft Internet Explorer is so pervasive (a monopoly) and because it has undocumented extensions it is virtually impossible to produce a browser that can compete. While it might appear that web browser technologies such as HTML and HTTP are standards the reality is that they are so inadequate and incomplete (and ignored) that the only way to be assured that the page "renders correctly" is to try to guess at what IE does. This forces all competition to chase IE. There is no standard for validating HTML therefore the de-facto validation is "looks good in IE." This is only one example of the problems with Microsoft's monopoly.

I believe that the remedy suggested by judge Jackson makes far more sense than the current proposed settlement. Furthermore some of the parts of proposed settlement will only reenforce Microsoft's monopoly, especially the part about donating software. I suggest the eventual punishment for Microsoft include:

1. Breaking up Microsoft into three separate competing companies. One for operating systems, another for applications and a third for online services such as MSN, Passport, Hotmail etc.

2. Microsoft should be fined billions of dollars for monopoly behavior and producing bug ridden security inept software.

3. PC manufacturers should be forced to provide users with an alternative for pre-installed operating systems. For example, customers should be able to request that Linux is pre-installed.

4. Microsoft operating systems should be required to ship with the latest version of the Java runtime environment from Sun Microsystems.

The current settlement does nothing to benefit this country, the computer industry or consumers. Therefore I urge you to discard it. I also urge you to take the hardest line in punishing Microsoft to the maximum possible.

I would be happy to provide additional information if required.

Sincerely,
Matthew Jones
12918 View Mesa Street
Moorpark, California 93021
Telephone: (805) 531-0474
email: sjmj3us@yahoo.com

MTC-00010725

From: Rick Creson
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/13/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Anti Trust Case

This entire case needs to be dismissed. Anti Trust made no sense in the beginning and makes no sense now. The people who have made the most noise about this case and have prompted the government to pursue action against Microsoft are the people who want any and all competition to go away, specifically Larry Ellison of Oracle, Scott McNeely of Sun and those in charge of Netscape. Microsoft may have gone beyond the acceptable to "compete", however, the Government has gone beyond sanity in its contention that competition is not acceptable to Microsoft. Regarding operating systems, I believe that everyone who pays attention, knows that a myriad of operating systems will never occur. Effectively, Industry has determined that there are three effective operating systems with which they will participate: 1) IBM and their Mainframe environment, which serves large scale systems, 2) The UNIX environment that serves mid-size and client server systems, and 3) Windows, which serves the desktop and acts as the clients to the client-server environment.

If a company was to create the next "better" operating system, one of the three above would disappear, just as Digital's VM Operating system dissipated and then disappeared with the growth of UNIX and Windows. By the way, the demise of Digital, created the birth of Oracle and SUN. You did not hear Ellison and McNeely complain about that one.

Lastly, Apple Computer has been around for years. They have been unsuccessful, not because of Microsoft but because of their inability to serve the business marketplace and because the business marketplace saw no room for them.

Please stop this nonsense against Microsoft and move on.

Rick Creson

Rick@MeridianGroup.com
 Meridian Technology Group, Inc.
 4949 SW. Meadows Road #440
 Lake Oswego, OR 97035
 503-697-1600 In Oregon
 800-755-1038 Outside Oregon
 503-697-8600 Fax
 www.meridiangroup.com

MTC-00010726

From: Elaine Cohen
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 1:59pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the Court of Appeals settlement is fair & just. As a WEB TV Grandfather & GRANDMOTHER Microsoft ha added so much to our lives from letters to & from our Children & Grandchildren to pictures of our Greatgranddaughters—also activities we never thought we could do on the Web. We live in a retirement village & we all are grateful to Microsoft for all their efforts in our behalf. Please settle the case in Microsoft's FAVOR!!!

Sincerely
 Elaine E. & Simon Cohen

MTC-00010727

From: david snyder
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/13/02 1:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 David Snyder
 700 Anne Ln.
 Henderson, NV 89015
 January 13, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 David L. Snyder

MTC-00010728

From: David Thieme

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 2:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 I sent the attached letter to Att Gen Ashcroft & Senator Rick Santorum.
 David C. Thieme
 27 Pine Free Drive
 Mechanicsburg, PA 17055-5568
 January 13, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice,
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing to encourage you to finalize the Microsoft settlement. The Justice Departments pursuit of Microsoft has cast a dark cloud over the information technology industry for more than three years. I work for Ciber and our business has slowed down drastically due to the unknown future of Microsoft. Companies are afraid to move forward, new technology is not being used, all because Microsoft's future is unknown. I for one blame the Federal Government for the current recession. This blatant attack on corporate America is, in my opinion based solely on jealous envy of their success. America no longer has a free market system. By interfering with Microsoft our government has impacted our economic system in ways that will take longer to repair than it did to inflict such harm. The current proposed settlement will at least allow Microsoft to refocus its energies in the American arena where it is sorely needed. Yes, Microsoft is the Giant in the market, but they got there by a vision of the future. A future no other company saw. So why do we punish them for making our future what it is? This action has not only impacted Microsoft but the whole Information Technology community. Many have new innovative ideas but are afraid to act on them for fear of winding up like Microsoft.

As a born again Christian, I was so pleased to see that someone in Washington was not afraid to stand up and acknowledge his beliefs. I felt assured that you would be able to evaluate our laws with the insight and beliefs our founding fathers based this country upon. You understand the importance of our freedoms and the reasons why a Free Market is so successful. The tyranny of government must be returned to a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Mr. Ashcroft, it is time to allow innovation to continue in America.

While I fear that this settlement will still continue to snuff out the brightness of our potential technological future, I think it is far better that the past six years have been. The settlement as proposed looks like it will satisfy the prosecutions arguments. It also looks like it will please most of Microsoft's competitors, except the ones who would not be satisfied until Microsoft was no longer in business. The settlement forces Microsoft to share its technological break-throughs with its competition, and open the Windows Operating system source code. It also compels them to stop allegedly anticompetitive practices. All monitored by an oversight committee chosen by the Justice Department and the Microsoft's competitors. I believe sufficient concessions have been made. Most importantly from my view Microsoft will remain a sole corporate entity enabling it to continue to push American Technology into the future we deserve. The economy needs a Microsoft, as does the Information Technology industry and most importantly America needs Microsoft back in the game. Please support this settlement.

 Thank you.

Sincerely,
 David Thieme
 cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00010729

From: Bob Kaufman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 2:29pm
 Subject: antitrust
 Dept of Justice,

The remedies proposed for Microsoft's proven monopolistic and anti competitive behavior are entirely too weak. Look to history as a guide for the proper appropriate response to a trust or monopoly. Have you no spines? These remedies don't even amount to a slap on the hands. Look up what the remedies were for Standard Oil and AT&T after they were proven as monopolists in court. Like Microsoft (MS), they were rich, fought long and hard in court, but were rightly found to be illegal corporations. They were broken up to preserve competition and stop the monopolistic behavior—and their ill-gotten cash gains were removed. All of these steps are crucial.

First, you must remedy the monopoly itself, in this case the suggested solution amounts to the same one used during previous failed attempts to oversee company behavior. Two consent decrees were levied—neither one worked—Microsoft continued (and continues) to tie new features into their operating system at the expense of competitors and consumers. It is time to split Microsoft's OS from direct company control into a new company. Anything less will lead to the same monopolistic behavior that we have seen before and continue to see with the release of Window's XP. MS, with the rushed release of XP, attempts to harm RealAudio by grafting the weak MS streaming media stand alone programs to the pre installed OS that comes on new computers. Thereby foisting one more inferior MS product onto the consumer who wants to buy a new computer but not the MS media players. In the process RealAudio, the key innovator, and maker of the number one media player is hurt—much like what was done supplant the previous number one browser Netscape with inferior new number one MS Explorer. You are fooling yourselves if you think this will change with the current remedy.

Second, you do not let the monopolist use the gains from previous monopolistic behavior to then buy into other industries and continue to profit from the past monopoly. In this, the current remedy is completely lacking. In effect what the latest settlement does is to let MS sit on it's multibillion dollar war chest stolen using the Window's OS monopoly. MS continues to use that cash to buy out promising companies with competing, threatening technologies to protect MS's inferior products. This harms consumers and puts a chill on innovation and leaves MS free to continue to stifle competition. Make an accurate study of the estimated gains from the demonstrated monopoly and remove that cash from MS and return it to consumers. And we are talking billions here not some bargained down fine that is politically palatable.

MS's influence on the peoples elected officials ranges far and wide, but don't doubt for a second that the people will remember those in government that let the worst monopolist of our times off virtually scot-free. . . .again.

Bob Kaufman
Bellevue WA

MTC-00010730

From: SSteele
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 2:48pm
Subject: Settle Microsoft case
To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,
Stephen D. Steele
Cortex Medical Management Systems, Inc.
600 Ericksen Avenue NE, Suite 320
Bainbridge Island, WA 98110
CC:mrichards@effwa.org;innetgw

MTC-00010731

From: William B. Moore
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 2:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Justice Department:

The proposed settlement with Microsoft makes it seem as if it is a company that is only concerned about innovation and fair minded capitalism. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Microsoft is a government backed monopoly used to provide a uniform computing platform to simplify subjugation of the citizens. Breaking up Microsoft is the logical solution. I do not expect it because government prosecution of Microsoft is a sham to pay lip service to those who rightly fear fascism.

If there are those in the U.S. Justice Department who admire Teddy Roosevelt ("The Trust Buster"), then perhaps a breakup of Microsoft can be hoped for. Please attempt it.

Sincerely,
William Moore
1215 Oxley Road
Columbus, Ohio

MTC-00010732

From: Frederic Marchand

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hello.

I think that there is an urgent need to open the PC OS market to other solutions than Microsoft. A statu quo at this time will only strangle the market.

If you want to have an idea, go to your local PC store and ask for a PC without Microsoft's OS (an empty PC). You'll see. . .

One action which should be taken is to force Microsoft to have the acknowledgement of the court for all their OEM contracts in order for the court to prevent any monopolistic usage.

I am a BeOS user and I am sure that BeOS development has been put on hold by Microsoft influence or pressure and/or contracts. the result is the bankruptcy for a company which tried to be "innovative", something Microsoft pretended to protect. . .

Frederic Marchand
Paris, France

MTC-00010733

From: Craig Hillemann
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

Persuant to provisions of the Tunney Act, I am writing to express my opinion on the settlement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice in November of last year. Apparently nine states are seeking to further prosecute the Microsoft Corporation. As both a taxpayer and purchaser of personal computer software products, I do not believe that the antitrust case against Microsoft should be dragged out any longer.

Please be reminded that the purpose of antitrust laws in the United States is to protect consumers like me, and not to support the self-interests of competitors in the marketplace. The parties that goaded the DOJ and states to file antitrust actions were Microsoft's competitors, not consumers like me. Microsoft's competitors are obviously envious of Microsoft's success, but the reason Microsoft has succeeded is simply that Microsoft has consistently delivered better and more cost-effective products, and furthermore fostered a large market and environment inviting competition. As result, enormously more quality, low-cost hardware and software is available from both Microsoft and other vendors for Windows than for any other operating system (e.g. Linux, MacOS, Solaris, etc.).

Microsoft's Windows product provides excellent functionality for the price. As a consumer, I want Microsoft to bundle as many applets as possible in Windows, and I do not appreciate hardware vendors modifying Windows. My computer-using colleagues feel similarly. Windows as provided by Microsoft works well on a remarkably wide range of computer hardware. The applets included in Windows provide very helpful functionality with dependable stability and user interface consistency. Their inclusion does not prevent other vendors from developing products with greater functionality, but does provide a useful standard for other vendors to try to surpass.

I have read the entire Appellate Decision for this case, and based on the facts, including my own experience as a computer user, I do not believe bundling Internet Explorer in Windows was unlawful. Frankly, I appreciate the inclusion of Internet Explorer in Windows. Microsoft's alleged misrepresentation of Java support may have been questionable, but the context was a struggle with Sun, one of Microsoft's biggest detractors, for control of the language. Microsoft has since pulled back support for Java in Internet Explorer. Anyway, the proposed settlement goes well beyond any reasonable remedy in view of Microsoft's possible misstep. Under the circumstances, the agreement made between Microsoft and the Department of Justice was certainly more than fair. All parties directly involved (not counting Microsoft's competitors) seem satisfied with the terms reached. Microsoft has agreed to license its software and applicable intellectual property rights to its major competitors. Moreover, Microsoft is planning to format future versions of Windows so that its competitors will be able to introduce and endorse non-Microsoft software in Windows. Microsoft has also agreed to disclose Windows line code to competing computer software producers. However, I personally will want the full version of Windows from Microsoft without it being hacked by other vendors.

I do not believe litigation should continue in this case. There is no need to drag the suit out any longer. You and your office should back the settlement.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Craig L. Hillemann
1229 Crestover Road
Wilmington, DE 19803
302-479-0432
Craig-H@msn.com

MTC-00010734

From: Brooks, Rama
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/13/02 3:13pm
Subject: Microsoft needs to slow down

To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Rama K. Brooks and I am a CompTIA A+ Certified Computer Technician working for the State of Indiana/Dept of Administration/Division of Information Technology. We are still in the middle of upgrading the state's infrastructure with Windows 2000 from Windows NT 4.0 and now XP and the .Net servers are coming out. If Microsoft took more time in developing newer versions of Windows then we wouldn't have to deal with all these security issues and bugs. Not only that but the Enterprise Agreement we have with them allows us x amount of licenses for desktops, servers, and apps. Because of budget constraints we can't get all the state agencies upgraded to Windows 2000. And now we have agencies that want to purchase XP. I am feeling that we are being pushed for forced upgrades. Upgrading any part of the IT infrastructure should be done because it is technically a sound idea for the organization, not because a software company wants to force it down our throats.

I started out wanting to become an MCSE (Microsoft Certified Systems Engineer) around 1995. I started to study on my for the Windows NT 4.0 track and then found out it was going to be replaced with the 2000 track. I have been working for the State of Indiana since April 16, 2001 and that is when I started to get the hands on experience for Windows 2000. Now the XP track is coming out. Before you needed at least 2 years experience with the software to pass the test. But with XP, the test it came out the same time as the product. I have invested over $500 in study guides for the 2000 track. Stop the insanity might be a better term. I feel as a IT professional that because of their greed, Microsoft is going to kill the MCSE credential and the best part is that the Dept of Justice doesn't need to do anything for that to happen. Employers are going to realize that the only way for people to be certified in Windows XP (before this track expires) and not have the 2 years experience with the product is going to mean that they are more likely a "paper MCSE". Unless it is someone upgrading from the NT 4.0 track or Windows 2000 because they have the base knowledge and experience. All they need to do is learn what's new with the XP track.

I find the idea of XP sending information to Microsoft's website from the user's PC rather disturbing and unethical. This presents a rather significant security risk for criminal hackers (crackers) and cyber-terrorists to break into a network. How safe would you feel to know if the FBI had deployed XP on all their special agents desktops? I would say that in some instances this could pose a national security risk (it all depends on who is using XP and how critical their data is kept).

Perhaps a fair solution would be to have Microsoft give those schools money instead of Microsoft products. Breaking up Microsoft would be bad because then they could spread out to all the areas that this lawsuit is trying to stop them from doing. And if Linux takes over more and more desktops then don't be surprised Microsoft porting Office to Linux. They will soon learn the lesson that IBM has just learned (on their own) that you can't be everything to everyone and dominate it all. IBM has regrouped on what it wants to focus on, and that will be the same fate Microsoft will soon suffer.

In their defense Microsoft is a publishing company. It would be like saying that McGraw-Hill has unfair advantage on school text book market. AOL which holds the monopoly on Internet Services Providers had merged with Time Warner to become the "monopoly" for media. But many upstart Internet Service Providers are popping up and thriving. Why? Because of customer focus and satisfaction. When companies get too big, they stop caring for their customers. That is when they start losing business. A case in point would be the phone company or McDonalds. Both have given me (as well other people I know) lousy services, but they make enough that they don't care. You go to a family own dinner and usually you get the best service. If you want proof that pertains to this case, then look at LINUX. It was created around 1992 by a college student in Finland. He then cut it loose, source code and all to the open source community. He still controls the final say about changing the kernel (the heart of the operating system), and there are companies making money of distributing it, as well as writing programs for it. The result, it is being ported to watches, radios, PDAs, cars, robots, and any electronic device you can think of as well as any kind of CPU architecture. Basically Linux went in 10 years from a "radical underground movement" to a business quality type of Operating Systems that Microsoft has identified as it's main threat. Linux has accomplished everything that Microsoft wanted Windows to accomplish or Scott McNealy (Sun Microsystems) wanted Java to accomplish. Where did these companies go wrong? It is because they tried to dominate the market and control their standards while making a hefty profit. Most of Linux's migrations to different electronic devices you can download the source code free and compile it or pay for a packaged CD.

Linux also has several different professional certifications. And with CompTIA creating a Linux+ certification shows more proof how Linux is business accepted Operating Systems.

Don't split Microsoft up, because that will create a different Microsoft company for each area they are trying to monopolize. Instead let them grow and become more bloated. Their greed will be their downfall. In the early 1980's IBM wanted to enter the PC market, and Texas Instrument (who dominated that market) had pulled it's TI-99/4A off the market. IBM asked CP/M (the dominant company for operating systems) to create an operating systems for their PC. When CP/M told them no, a little upstart company called Microsoft offered to do it. Now it seems that things are coming full circle because Microsoft is where CP/M was 20 years ago. And Linux is where Microsoft was 20 years ago, except Linux is more user driven versus company driven.

Just fine Microsoft a multi-billion dollar fine and end this whole trial. I would also suggest that you take on AOL/Time-Warner as the new monopolistic threat.

Sincerely,

Mr. Rama K. Brooks, A+
Systems Analyst
State of Indiana
Department of Administration
Division of Information Technology
Indiana Government Center North
100 Senate Ave., Room N551
Indianapolis, IN 46204
(317) 232-1052—Office phone
(317) 232-0748—Fax
CC:Zust, Brian

MTC-00010735

From: Guoliang Qian
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Hi,

This is Guoliang Qian, a Ph. D. in Computer Science from CUNY Graduate School.

What I would like to see: 1. Microsoft will document OS features and APIs in a complete and timely fashion. 2. Separate from Microsoft OS development and application program development businesses.

What I would NOT like to see: Force Microsoft to open the source of its Windows operating system.

Justification for the above: To promote innovation and fair competition.

Thank you!

Guoliang

MTC-00010736

From: Sally Ciarlo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:27pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Please stop wasting tax dollars and time persuing this case. Microsoft has done more for the taxpayers of this country than all of you down in Washington put together.

MTC-00010737

From: Charles A Sellon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:32pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement
Microsoft settlement

MTC-00010738

From: Lisa Starbuck
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please do not agree to this settlement. Microsoft has shown again and again that they will not play by the rules, and this settlement does not go far enough to ensure a level playing field. In particular, my concern is for the lack of limitations on what Microsoft can include in their "operating system". They have already killed off several companies by copying their concept and integrating it into their system in such a way that few companies can compete. The long this goes on, the worse it will get.

Thanks for your time and attention to this matter.

Lisa Starbuck

MTC-00010739

From: donald j annis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 3:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a retired IBM employee. While working in a division principally involved with department of defence contracts, I watched the justice department distract and stifle IBM's business activities for the better part of 10 years only to have the case closed with no significant conclusion.

Much the same can be said for the Microsoft situation. It is time to bring this case to a speedy end. This case likewise is an unnecessary burden to Microsoft, the economy and the justice department.

Regards,

Donajd J Annis
22 Holiday Hill Road
Endicott, NY 13760

MTC-00010740

From: Gary Cauchi
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 4:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit.
Gary Cauchi
5935 East McKenzie Avenue
Fresno, California 93727

MTC-00010741

From: Jeffrey Burger
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 3:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jeffrey Burger
1927 Stonemanor Drive
Lancaster, PA 17603
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey L. Burger

MTC-00010742

From: Jonathan Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 4:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

I am a student at Boston College, and I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ).

First, the PFJ does not stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly. It does not force Microsoft to substantially alter its structure and marketing plans. The inability of the settlement to force Microsoft to change its business structure makes the settlement pointless. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. It would set a terrible standard if Microsoft was allowed to get away with its monopolistic and abusive tactics. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

All in all, the settlement between Microsoft and the Justice Department is weak and does not fix the basic problems the suit was brought to correct. I urge you to do everything in your power to overturn the settlement.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Hill
Brighton, Massachusetts

MTC-00010743

From: csaxton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 4:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

After reading the final judgement I would like to point out a number of points that are apparently not pin pointed in the document. What is Microsoft in the business of providing? This may sound like a stupid question so I will explain in the following paragraphs.

1. Before you begin to sell software you need a market to sell the software to... Microsoft has saturated the user market with their operating system...business users as well as home users.

2. You need to make sure that you can compete in this market, to be able to write good quality software. Because Microsoft owns the operating system that most home and business software is hosted on it already has an unfair advantage since they will know and already have teams of programmers who have inside information on how to program certain API's. In fact it is not uncommon for Microsoft to add the functionality to the operating system and then add user applications that use that functionality to be released at the same time. This leaves everyone in the world playing catch-up every time.

3. Trust... I work for a software house who developed manufacturing software for the Microsoft platform and spent millions of pounds in R&D to only find out that 3 and a half years down the line Microsoft bought one of our competitors and now develops software with them. This left us competing and relying on a competitor?? Their in house software products all lie in the following fields

Games
Word processing Accounting Manufacturing Banking

Numerous in house business products...

THEY DON'T WORK WITH PARTNERS SO THEY OWN THE OPERATING SYSTEM AND THE BUSINESS SYSTEMS??

Would splitting the company into distinct smaller companies be a bad thing...?

There are a number of other worrying points in the document.

1. After they nearly destroyed all competition in the internet market with internet explorer, why have they not been punished?? Final Judgement should include some sort of punishment so that they know not do it again...

2. The document does not detail and nail down when competitors software becomes suitable for replacing the Microsoft equivalent.

3. Any code to do with the operating system could be deemed important to the security of the operating system...It would be very easy for MS to keep any code they wish away from the eyes of the TC.

4. The TC seem to be another piece in the RED tape if they have no power to testify in court.

....Point 4.d

No work product, findings or recommendations by the TC may be admitted in any enforcement proceeding before the Court for any purpose, and no member of the TC shall testify by deposition, in court or before any other tribunal regarding any matter related to this Final Judgement. Would this mean that if I went to them with a complaint about Microsoft practises that I could then not proceed with the complaint to the courts? I am not sure since the final judgement does not nail this down...It is very wide open to abuse...

Information is the new monetary system and at the moment Microsoft is holding a very large piece of this currency?

MTC-00010744

From: Henry S. Williams
To: John Ashcroft, Microsoft Microsoft
Date: 1/13/02 4:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge you to accept the proposed Microsoft anti-trust suite settlement. Please see my attached letter.

Thank You

Henry S. Williams
1304 Adams Ave.
Toppenish, WA 98948

MTC-00010744-0001

Henry S. Williams
1304 Adams Ave.
Toppenish, WA 98948
E-Mail: stein nanwilliams@msn.com
Phone: 509-865-2915
January 13, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Ave., NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing in regard to the proposed settlement of the Microsoft anti-trust case. As a user of Microsoft products I have found their products to be of high quality and value priced. Consumer complaints with Microsoft are few; unfortunately competitor complaints have driven this "anti-trust" matter. As a resident of Washington State, as well as a stock holder, let me tell you this unreasonable litigation has cost our State millions of dollars and my wife and I thousands of dollars. I believe the proposed settlement is more than fair. I urge you to accept this settlement and put an end to this long drawn out litigation.

The proposed settlement requires Microsoft to make serious concessions to its competitors as Windows systems will have to be made to accept non-Windows software. In fact a government appointed oversight committee would now monitor Microsoft's business practices and insure it abide by the settlement terms. Clearly this settlement is more than just a slap on Microsoft's wrist. The terms should be more than enough to appease the harshest critics of Microsoft, and it will certainly increase competition in the technology marketplace. At this time of National economic uncertainty we need this great corporation at work. Please support this settlement.

Sincerely,
Henry S. Williams

MTC-00010744-0002

MTC-00010746

From: Shuryl A Potter
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 5:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Department of Justice;

I watch our great country being eaten up by corporations such as Philip Morris, News media giants, and several other powerful corporations and the justice system seems to turn their heads. We can't help but wonder when a company as great as Microsoft, which has created enormous opportunities and wealth for the American people and the world, contributes billions of dollars to some of the poorest nations in the world, is always brought to task. Is it because our government and justice system is being control by corporations more powerful than themselves? My family and many friends are quite happy with Microsoft and their way of doing business. We will always support and buy their products no matter how hard their competitor's try to destroy them. We beg you to search your conscience and not bend to giant corporate pressures.

Sincerely,
Shuryl A Potter

MTC-00010747

From: Dave fenton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 5:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Case

For the life of me i cannot understand why you wish to punish a company that has been on the cutting edge of technology, has not hurt consumers one bit spends billions on research and development, gives more money away to charities than any other company, and still you want more. These other states and companies just have sour grapes and you are playing right into their hands.

A VERY SATISFIED MICROSOFT CUSTOMER

Dave Fenton

MTC-00010748

From: George McLennon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 5:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
George McLennon
458 Rice Circle
Enterprise, Alabama 36330
January 13, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am deeply concerned over further inquiry into the Microsoft antitrust settlement. I thought this issue had finally been resolved. This period of public comment is important so that the Justice Department be advised of the enormous support of the settlement that exists.

I believe the settlement to be extraordinarily just. The licensing of Windows at a uniform price will discourage most favored policies between Microsoft and PC producers. Now producers will not have to compete against one another to receive the same treatment from Microsoft. This newfound freedom for producers benefits the technology industry immensely. Additionally, Microsoft has agreed not to retaliate against vendors that use or sell non-Microsoft products.

These benefits will in turn be passed on to consumers. It is clear that this settlement is in everyone's best interests.

Sincerely,
George McLennon

MTC-00010749

From: jerrystuart
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 5:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
For Attorney General Ashcroft.
Jerry Bonow

MTC-00010750

From: Chris Bertelson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 5:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
DOJ,

I want to urge you to accept the current Microsoft Settlement and move forward. Your energy is best spent on companies who screw their employees and customers like Enron. Leave our most successful USA company alone!

Thanks,
Chris Bertelson

MTC-00010751

From: Adrian Latinak
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 5:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Adrian Latinak
5 Wildwood Lane
Amherst, NH 03031
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Adrian Latinak

MTC-00010752

From: James White
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 5:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
James White
11 Sand Fiddler RD.
Hilton Head Island, SC 29928
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James D. White

MTC-00010753

From: Wm G Fuller
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 5:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Wm G Fuller
360 CR 259
Iuka, MS 38852
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Wm G Fuller

MTC-00010754

From: Barry Younce
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 5:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Barry Younce
2308 SW Walt Arney Rd
Lenoir, NC 28645
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Barry A Younce

MTC-00010755

From: Shah Raza
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
755 Birkdale Drive
Fayetteville, Georgia 30215
January 12, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to voice my opinion in regards to the Microsoft settlement issue. I feel that this antitrust dispute has gone on long enough, and I would like to see a final resolution to this dispute. I support the settlement that was reached in November, and I believe this settlement will serve in the best public interest.

Microsoft has agreed to carry out all provisions agreed upon in this settlement. For example, Microsoft has agreed to license its Windows operating system products to the 20 largest computer makers on identical terms and conditions, including price. Microsoft has also agreed to design future versions of Windows, beginning with an interim release of Windows XP, to provide a mechanism to make it easy for computer makers, consumers and software developers to promote non-Microsoft software within Windows. This settlement is complete and thorough.

I support this settlement and believe this company should not be penalized for their success.

Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
Shah Raza

MTC-00010756

From: Don Dennis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attached please find a letter for Attorney General John Ashcroft.
Donald E. Dennis
32727 30th Avenue Southwest
Federal Way, WA 98023-2763
January 13, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I'm writing to express my opinion that the antitrust case against Microsoft has been flawed from the start. Microsoft has not infringed upon any rights of American people and has just operated within the confines by which we set up our free market economy. I have yet to hear complaints from consumers about Microsoft's prices or practices. In fact I feel that their prices permitted me to have a PC at home with software that I could afford and most people I know feel the same way. It seems the only complaints are from their competitors because they can't keep up.

Under the terms of the settlement Microsoft will be forced to not enter into any third party agreements for exclusive distribution rights. That is ridiculous. This is the same as telling Pepsi they cannot sign an exclusive agreement with Wendy's. Also, creating a uniform price list with the 20 largest computer makers is essentially setting up the framework for a monopoly. In fact many of the concessions create situations that do violate antitrust laws instead of appeasing them. It's in the best interest of the American public to end this litigation now. Microsoft is a leading innovator of technology and we need their growth and leadership to lift the IT sector out of its current state. Microsoft has done what other competitors could not do, but now it's time to let them play it out in a free market, which is what our society, is based upon, not the government intervention that has occurred in this case. I urge your office to make the settlement a reality.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Donald E. Dennis

MTC-00010757

From: james@wt6.usdoj.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the proposed settlement is disgusting from a consumer standpoint. It does nothing to improve the climate of competition in the Operating System/software sector, nor does it contain any substantive penalty for past anticompetitive activity on the part of Microsoft. Microsoft's contention that the status quo allows for improved innovation is patently absurd on its face, and I think actually this proposed solution will have a continuingly negative effect on improvement in the software field. Microsoft through its "embrace and extend" policies does not innovate it takes innovation from competitors, and extends the functionality's with proprietary additions which block any effective counter to its extensions. Due to dominance in the market, secondary to exclusionary marketing practices rather than true innovation Microsoft has effectively prevented useful, timely and economical improvements in the market.

Microsoft has in the past and continues in the present to attempt to block any competitive innovations. They have perverted standards to their own benefit, and refused to allow others to write software which will work well with the Windows OS. They provide crippled renditions of proprietary software included with their operating system in attempt to drive competitors from the marketplace. Microsoft have made it virtually impossible to purchase a consumer grade computer with any operating system other than windows. My own personal experience has required me to spend over two thousand dollars during the past 5 years for software that I have never used, and will not use in the future. By requiring that peripheral companies to only develop drivers for the Windows OS I am prevented from using many pieces of hardware that would make my computers more functional.

I think the proposed solution should be dismissed out of hand. It does nothing to protect consumers and the computer industry in general from the monopolistic practices of Microsoft. It contains no real penalty for MS and encourages continued anticompetitive practices on Microsoft's part.

Jim
James Mellema, CRNA

If ye love wealth better than liberty, the tranquillity of servitude than the animating contest of freedom—go from us in peace. Crouch down and lick the hands which feed you. May your chains sit lightly upon you.—Samuel Adams

MTC-00010758

From: Cindy Kasin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is to express my opinion that the settlement reached between Microsoft and the DOJ and other states should be approved. The settlement is fair, and it is certainly in the public interest to bring this matter to an end. The uncertainty and anxiety the litigation is adding to generally uncertain economic times will only stifle innovation in the marketplace.

The only people who stand to gain by prolonging this matter are disgruntled competitors and their highly paid lawyers and lobbyists. It's time to get on with it.

Cynthia D. Kasin

MTC-00010759

From: Ned and Suzy Cheely
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case and get onto more serious problems! We, the taxpayers, through the government, have spent enough time and money on this case. It is time to move on. Please support the settlement as proposed by Microsoft and the Bush Administration. We do.

Thank you.
Suzy Cheely
9 Harrop Parrish
Williamsburg, VA 23188

MTC-00010760

From: Joe and Pam Sherman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This case is a colossal waste of every tax payer's money. It's clear that no settlement can be reached that doesn't pass muster with California's lobbying interests. The Justice department should spend it's resources going after terrorists and companies that are truly damaging this country, like Enron.

Joseph M. Sherman
Resident of Washington State

MTC-00010761

From: Louis Parks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 6:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please accept the Microsoft settlement. As a consumer and an American citizen I am sickened that this case ever happened and that it has gone on for so long. Settle the case, and let us and Microsoft move on with our lives.

Louis Parks
Chief Technology Officer
Adsoft Design, Inc.
(801) 627-6300
2404 Washington Blvd.
Ogden, UT 84401

MTC-00010762

From: Adam Jenkins
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 7:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir/Madam,

As a java developer I am extremely worried about what is going on with the settlement, especially when you consider that it hasn't deterred Microsoft from anti-competitive behavior. An example of this is the security restriction they are putting on the java virtual machine on the Windows XP operating system. There is no logical reason to take the actions it has, when you consider that sun has spent many years developing java security, and the current security model is far more secure than Microsoft's competitor to java applets, ActiveX. Sun Microsystems pioneered the internet while Microsoft was still asleep...they developed a great language for distributed computing and really assisted in the development of the internet by providing a lot of software solutions free. The internet would not be what it is today without applets...think about that, all distributed computing through web browsers in the early days of the internet was accomplished through applets, a lot of companies that drive the US economy today (Macromedia, QuickTime) began their lifecycles with java. Now we are in real danger of losing that technology, just like what happened to Netscape. It is very disconcerting that companies that give back so much to the community and advance communication mediums for the benefit of all society are allowed to be wiped out by a company that does none of those things.

If you do not take sterner actions against Microsoft, you are sending a message to all developers saying that it's no use for them to give back to the community with the technology they create...it will be a sad day when software developers are too scared to do something that benefits the community (e.g. java technology from sun, cookies from Netscape), because they risk having their livelihood destroyed by a large monopoly. This is not a small case, it has wide reaching, long term implications for what is becoming one of the major communication mediums in the world. Your decision here will effect global communication for decades to come, please, I beg of you, make the right decision and release Microsoft's hold on the development community, allow everyone in the world to benefit from the internet and not just one company, the world will thank you

Sincerely
Adam Jenkins
Senior Team Leader
Tralee Software Pty Ltd

MTC-00010763

From: Ty Conner
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ty Conner
506 Westmoreland Pl
Jackson, TN 38301
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech

industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ty Conner

MTC-00010764

From: Mark Dubosky
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Mark Dubosky
1312 Chattahoochee Circle
Roswell, GA 30075
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mark Dubosky

MTC-00010765

From: Ozie Christian

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ozie Christian
3590 Cortez Dr.
Pensacola, FL 32503-3116
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ozie Christian

MTC-00010766

From: William Hildebrand
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
William Hildebrand
1420 Whitetail Court
Hermitage, TN 37076
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
William Hildebrand

MTC-00010767

From: Ray Trees
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ray Trees
150 Avery St.
Walla Walla, WA 99362
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ray Trees Jr.

MTC-00010768

From: William Capella
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
William Capella
9 Marlon Pond Rd.
Hamilton Square, NJ 08690
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
William M Capella

MTC-00010769

From: Jim Vaughan
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 5:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jim Vaughan
1114 S Juanita Av
Redondo Beach, CA 90277
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Vaughan

MTC-00010770

From: James Saville

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 6:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
James Saville
313 Granada Drive
Vestavia Hills, AL 35216
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

This case should never have been brought—it is a simple case of competitors unable to compete because they are not smart enough—consumers have never been harmed!!! Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James Saville

MTC-00010771

From: Topazjudy@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 7:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Department of Justice

I firmly believe that the suit against Microsoft was unfair. I think Microsoft has been a boon to the Internet and to computer users all over the world. It was responsible for setting a standard that has made communication between users easier. As a rank amateur on the computer, I at least have found that I can find employment and communicate with my friends with reasonable ease. I liken this to being an American from the west who can converse with a DownEaster or a person from the deep south with only occasional confusion as to terminology, as compared to a person from America trying to communicate with a German or Japanese or Sudanese where the language is so different as to be incomprehensible to me.

Furthermore, the federal government, which brought suit against Microsoft, has reached an agreement. As a taxpayer I helped fund that suit (even though I did not wish to). Now some of the states wish to impose a different outcome in the suit, although it has already been settled to my satisfaction, and the plaintiff, using my funds to pursue the action. Microsoft has already paid the price through the federal settlement and through the cost to defend itself. The latter alone was sufficient punishment to address issues perceived only by a handful as being egregious.

Again, I did not think there were grounds for a suit in the beginning. In our society those who put forth the most effort and resources generally succeed the best anyway. This is the way free enterprise should work, and this is what Microsoft has done.

Microsoft has provided a service by making it easier to use technology. I remember years back when there were so many different programs and operating systems that only the few could succeed in going from one to another. Now, with some standardization, but with plenty of options, most of us are comfortable with entering new employment or enjoyment with a minimum of training. The savings in money is inestimable.

Please, stop this nonsense.

A taxpayer:
Judith F. Jacobs
1880 Austin
Gardnerville, NV 89410
topazjudy@aol.com

MTC-00010772

From: Arnold Kraft
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 7:18pm
Subject: microsoft settlement case 30 Holly
Circle Weston, MA 02493-1455 January
13, 2002 Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice 950
Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington,
DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

Like most who follow technology news, I am pleased that the Department of Justice and Microsoft have reached a settlement agreement. Three years of litigation have proven to be taxing on the entire IT industry. The settlement calls for Microsoft to renounce its ability to retaliate against its competitors, yet, its competitors retain their right to retaliate against Microsoft in the open market. This action may prove to decrease competition within the software industry, which will inevitably hurt the consumer.

The Department of Justice owes the American IT industry and Microsoft an end to this suit. Prolonging the suit can only serve to further harm the American consumer. Please accept the settlement now.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Arnold Kraft
Arnold A. Kraft
30 Holly Circle
Weston, MA 02493-1455
Tel: 781 235 0560
Fax: 781 235 4345
Cell: 617 413 5426

MTC-00010773

From: chris berger
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 7:20pm

Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
HONORABLE JUDGE AND AG OF CALIFORNIA;

AS A LONG-TIME MEMBER OF THE AMERICAN SOFTWARE INDUSTRY, I AM VERY CONCERNED ABOUT THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT BETWEEN THE US GOVT AND MICROSOFT. IT APPEARS TO ME THAT THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT HAS A NUMBER OF SIGNIFICANT WEAKNESSES—NOT THE LEAST OF WHICH IS THAT MICROSOFT IS REALLY NOT PUNISHED IN ANY SIGNIFICANT WAY FOR PAST ABUSES. MAYBE EVEN WORSE—UNDER THE PROPOSAL IT APPEARS THAT WE IN THE INDUSTRY—ESPECIALLY US SMALLER PLAYERS

WILL HAVE TO RELY ON MS EVEN MORE...AND THAT IS TRULY FRIGHTENING. I RUN A SMALL SOFTWARE COMPANY BASED HERE IN THE BAY AREA. BUT NOT ONLY IS THE PROPOSED DEAL FRIGHTENING TO COMPANIES LIKE MINE, I BELIEVE IT RAISES SERIOUS ISSUES FOR THE ENTIRE AMERICAN SOFTWARE INDUSTRY...AND OUR NATION'S ECONOMY AS WELL. I HOPE THAT YOU WILL TAKE SERIOUSLY YOUR RESPONSIBILITY TO EXAMINE THE PROPOSED AGREEMENT AND FIND IF IT IS TRULY IN THE 'BEST INTERESTS' OF CONSUMERS. IT'S HARD TO SEE HOW HAVING ONE MONOPOLISTIC PROVIDER OF THE LARGE MAJORITY OF CONSUMER SOFTWARE IS IN OUR COUNTRY'S BEST INTERESTS. AND AS MS HAS CLEARLY AND REPEATEDLY SHOWN—IF THEY OWN 95% OF THE MARKET FOR THE OS—THEY'RE GOING TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THAT TIME AND TIME AGAIN.

I HOPE THAT YOU WILL STAND UP TO MICROSOFT.

THANK YOU.
CHRIS BERGER

MTC-00010774

From: Margaret (038) Doug Green
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 7:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Someone want's tohave the internet just like the telephone system when the Feds got through with it a few years ago. Lets settle this as quick and as -painless as possible so we can get on with our lives.

MTC-00010775

From: Robin Thomas
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 7:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robin Thomas
9061 East Shorewood Dr.
Mercer Island, WA 98040
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robin Thomas

MTC-00010776

From: Dave Melvin
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 7:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dave Melvin
1633 River Birch Ave
Oviedo, FL 32765-7962
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dave Melvin

MTC-00010777

From: Wai Seen Teh
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 7:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Wai Seen Teh
415 Namahana Street
Honolulu, HI 96815
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
The Wai Seen

MTC-00010778

From: Douglas Whitmarsh
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Douglas Whitmarsh
727 whiting Street
Hanover, MA 02339
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Douglas Whitmarsh

MTC-00010779

From: David Beatson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 7:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Beatson
PO Box 1052
Shelter Island, NY 11964-1052
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David R Beatson

MTC-00010780

From: John Hightower
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 7:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Hightower
15 Butterfly Cove
Little Rock, AE 72210
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

It is time for this anti-consumer trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom, when this dinosaur is laid to rest.

Then Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and stop wasting tons of time and other valuable resources on litigation. It's their competitors who can't make it in the marketplace, not the end users and ordinary people who have to rely on their computers to be productive, who benefit from this anti-trust, anti-consumer exercise in poor government.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers, not making it possible for other businesses to keep making products that people don't want and won't buy. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of successful corporations, people who actually use the software—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers. With the chains off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies, instead of funding to the tune of hundreds of thousands or more dollars the parties and politicians who represent these market-loser businesses.

Sincerely,
John Hightower

MTC-00010782

From: Ryan Ware
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 8:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ryan Ware
233 Willow Lake Blvd
St Paul, MN 55110
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

Microsoft unfairly uses its products to leverage market share. Make them open Office up—file formats, possibly a linux version. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ryan Ware

MTC-00010783

From: Jeff Naber
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 8:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jeff Naber
10111 S. College Place
Tulsa, OK 74137
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jeff Naber

MTC-00010784

From: John Smith
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 8:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Smith
1104 Cara Drive
Largo, FL 33771
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John C. Smith

MTC-00010785

From: Colin Lowenberg
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 8:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Colin Lowenberg
5123 Birdwood
Houston, TX 77096
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

Although I was wholeheartedly content when one lawyer attacking our newly elected president was finally taken off the payroll and removed from the Microsoft trial, I also wholeheartedly agree with the views shared below. The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Colin Lowenberg

MTC-00010786

From: David Hill

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 9:10pm

Subject: Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

I am a student at Boston University, and I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ).

First, the PFJ does nothing to stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly through the use of its operating system. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. It would be a terrible standard to set by letting Microsoft get away with its retaliation tactics, bolting schemes, and attacks on Java. All these tactics lower competition in a supposedly free market and also limit software standards. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

To sum up, I'm deeply concerned the recent settlement does not regulate Microsoft enough in the future allowing Microsoft to continue its monopolistic tactics. In addition, Microsoft is not even being punished for laws it clearly broke in the past. This sets a terrible standard. I would request that you do your best to overturn this settlement.

Sincerely,

David W. Hill

Brighton, Massachusetts

MTC-00010787

From: donnar

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 9:17pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement
21902 96th Avenue Southeast
Snohomish, Washington 98296
January 12, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

We are writing you today to voice our opinions in regards to the Microsoft settlement that was reached in November. This case has gone on long enough. It is time to embrace this settlement and let this company get back to doing business. We have more important things to worry about.

Microsoft has agreed to carry out all terms of this agreement. Microsoft did not get off easy. This strict settlement contains terms that go well beyond the original terms of the lawsuit. For example, Microsoft will now share information about the internal workings of Windows with competitors, and it will use a uniform price list when licensing out Windows. Microsoft has agreed to these terms so as to hasten this process.

Again, we support Microsoft and this settlement in this dispute. During these difficult economic times, we must focus all our energy in bolstering our lagging economy. Please do your part by supporting this settlement.

Sincerely,

Maurice & Donaleen Ravensberg

MTC-00010788

From: Connie Wickland

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/13/02 9:34pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case with Microsoft in a fair manner. There has been great damage to our economy and to investors and consumers. Please do not squelch innovation.

Thank you.

Connie

MTC-00010790

From: Dennis Lutz II

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/13/02 9:21pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dennis Lutz II
22526 Savannah Heights
Von Ormy, TX 78073-3009
January 13, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over,

companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Dennis Lutz II

MTC-00010791

From: Alex Tsukernik

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/13/02 9:30pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Alex Tsukernik
184 Cabot St. Apt 3
Newton, MA 02458
January 13, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Alex Tsukernik

MTC-00010792

From: Jason Prell

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/13/02 9:44pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Jason Prell
350 Cayman Street
Iowa City, IA 52245
January 13, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jason Prell

MTC-00010793

From: Georg Bolch
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 9:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Georg Bolch
P O Box 528
Suquamish, WA 98392-0528
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Georg G Bolch

MTC-00010794

From: ACalapai@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:13pm
Subject: (no subject)

GENTLEMEN:

THE JUDGE IN THIS LAST DECISION OF THE MICROSOFT AGREEMENT STATES THAT THEIR OFFER WAS TOO ADVANTAGEOUS FOR THEM AND TOO COMPETITIVE FOR APPLE COMPUTER. SINCE WHEN DOES A JUDGE RULE ON COMPETITION BETWEEN TWO CORPORATE ENTITIES. I THOUGHT THAT'S WHAT BUSINESS WAS ALL ABOUT. WHAT DID APPLE EVER CONTRIBUTE TO THE SCHOOLS THAT ARE IN POOR AND NEEDY AREAS. HAVE THE COURTS IN OUR COUNTRY TURNED SO LIBERAL AND AGAINST BIG AND SUCCESSFUL CORPORATIONS.

THE JUDGE DID NOT BELIEVE THAT A BILLION DOLLARS WAS ENOUGH-IS THAT BECAUSE THEY ARE A WEALTHY COMPANY? ARE THESE JUDGES, POLITICIANS AND STATES ATTY GENERALS TRYING TO ULTIMATELY BREAK BIG BUSINESS. OR JUST TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THEM BECAUSE THEY HAVE THE RESOURCES

DISAPPOINTED AND CONCERNED

MTC-00010795

From: charles varano
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the settlement is fair & equitable and agree that we need to move on with this issue.

MTC-00010796

From: Goldberg, Adrian
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a developer of business software using a variety of technologies and platforms I view with consternation the continuing and growing market monopoly by Microsoft. I believe it to be in the best interests of the US IT companies and IT companies worldwide that the US government drastically inhibit Microsoft's ability to dictate and control software usage worldwide.

Adrian Goldberg
GIS Consultant
Sinclair Knight Merz
Melbourne, Australia

MTC-00010797

From: Jim Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/13/02 10:45pm
Subject: Tunney Comments on PFJ in US v Microsoft

Renata Hesse
Trial Attorney
Antitrust Division US Department of Justice
601 D Street NW, Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530
<microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov>
Ms. Hesse:

I am submitting these comments by email since the Department is as affected by recent events as other governmental agencies. I am writing to comment on the proposed Final Judgment in US v Microsoft.

"[T]he suit has been a futile exercise if the Government proves a violation but fails to secure a remedy adequate to redress it."—US v E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. The proposed Final Judgment proposed to the Court by the United States Department of Justice and Microsoft fails to serve the public interest in too many ways to be an acceptable resolution to the case. While serving the public interest must be the primary goal of any resolution to this case, I note in passing that a crucial requirement of any system of justice must be that lawbreakers do not reap the rewards of their misconduct. The proposed Final Judgment fails to meet that goal as it is entirely forward-looking, albeit weakly so.

First, the proposed Final Judgment does not contain "any admission by any party regarding any issue of fact or law." This is unacceptable. Microsoft has broken the law. That is a fact decided by the District Court, upheld by the Appellate Court, and one which any resolution of this case must explicitly state. Independent civil proceedings will rely on the outcome of this case and it is critical that a declaration of lawbreaking be present.

The restrictions placed on Microsoft's business practices by the proposed Final Judgment appear at first glance to be sound but are so riddled with exceptions as to be effectively meaningless. With just a few minutes' thought, I was able to think of sidesteps by Microsoft that would neuter the restrictions and yet fall within the purview of the proposed Final Judgment. I am a layman; I can only imagine the ease with which Microsoft's legal staff can think of sidesteps—especially when you consider that they wrote much of this proposed Final Judgment. For example, Microsoft is not required to "document, disclose, or license" anything that would purportedly hinder security or rights management. That's a gaping hole which would allow essentially all networking and multimedia protocols used in products folded into Windows to be completely undocumented. With the release of Windows 2000, Microsoft claimed that they had included Kerberos authentication mechanisms. They used empty data fields in an undisclosed manner to extend the Kerberos specification in a manner to provide authentication services between Windows servers and Windows clients which were denied to non-Windows clients. When pressed for details, the company asserted that their modifications were security-related and refused to disclose them. That conduct is still permitted by this proposed Final Judgment. Further, the proposed Final Judgment appears to be totally ignorant of the free software movement (sometimes called "open source"). Neither term appears in the document, nor in the Competitive Impact Statement released later. Nearly all the proposed Final Judgment's provisions are predicated on commercial interests representing the only means of competition. Free software is not as a first principle about making money or gathering market share. It is a philosophical perspective that software can and should be shared so that it can be improved through the the ability and right of its users to correct errors, add features, or provide superior implementations of algorithms. It is important to understand that by "sharing" I do not refer to the violations of intellectual property law best exemplified by the Napster service. This sharing is a decision made by the original programmer which permits or even requires redistribution of the source code (the human-readable information which is turned into the one-and-zeroes of computers to be run as a program). The best known examples of this movement are the Linux kernel and the GNU tools that together provide a computing platform which can run on the same hardware as Windows and which provides a functional equivalent to the Unix operating system. Since the software in a Linux-based computer is largely written by noncommercial interests, the programmers would fail to meet the "business viability" requirement for licensing Microsoft intellectual property needed to allow interoperability—said requirement to be ascertained by none other than Microsoft, in another of this proposed Final Judgment's absurdities. Also, since many of the free software programmers are hobbyists, they lack the financial resources to meet licensing terms that companies like Sun Microsystems or Apple Computer would doubtless find to be "reasonable and nondiscriminatory". Given that Linux-based systems represent the greatest competitive threat to Microsoft's desktop operating system monopoly right now, leaving the free software programmers and their software methodology out of the judgment throws away the single best option to restore competition to the marketplace.

The aspect of this proposed Final Judgment that most fails the "sniff test" is the compliance and enforcement section. For starters, the Technical Committee is a wholly inadequate enforcement mechanism. The fact that one of the three members is to be chosen by Microsoft and one chosen in part by that member means that half the committee will be of Microsoft's choosing. Prisoners do not get to select their jailers and Microsoft should not have any say in its overseers. The fact that such a farcical arrangement could even be suggested stems from the failure of the proposed Final Judgment to acknowledge expressly that Microsoft has broken the law. The enforcement mechanisms read like a partnership agreement, not the lettering of a lawbreaking monopolist. Once selected, the Technical Committee's effectiveness is almost nonexistent. Three people, even with a staff to assist them, are not capable of auditing the tens of millions of lines of software that make up Windows and the Middleware produced by Microsoft. They cannot interview the thousands of Microsoft employees. They are also to be gagged from making public statements about their activities, a shame when simple public statements about Microsoft's conduct can influence that conduct. Staggeringly, the result of their work is not even admissible in enforcement proceedings! Of what possible value is this committee?

Finally, I object to the termination stipulation of the proposed Final Judgment. This wretched agreement will be in effect for five years, with the promise of up to two more years if Microsoft fails to comply with its terms. I find myself compelled to ask what reasonable person could refrain from paroxysms of belly-laughter at the idea that the solution to the failure of a five-year agreement is to extend that same agreement for two more years. The further damage to competition and the public that Microsoft could wreak by the end of that five-year agreement is almost incalculable. It took the company less than five years to annihilate not just Netscape but the commercial market for web browsers. Now that they have set their sights on messaging, home video games, multimedia such as audio and video, online shopping, personal video recorders, authentication services and more, how can the Department consider allowing the degree of autonomy that the proposed Final Judgment would?

I have barely scratched the surface of my objections to this proposed Final Judgment; I trust that others will address the shortcomings I have left out. I would like to take a moment to mention the utterly disgraceful manner in which the United States government has betrayed the American people by throwing in the towel in US v Microsoft. After securing a thundering victory in the District Court and then accomplishing the coup of having that victory largely upheld by a unanimous decision of one of the country's more business-friendly Appellate Courts, settling the case with this pathetic excuse for a Final Judgment is contemptible. The career of the head of antitrust at Justice, Mr. James, is a history of justification for anticompetitive conduct and Attorney General Ashcroft is occupied with the September 11 attacks on the United States, but they are officials of the Department of Justice with obligations to the American people. The proposed Final Judgment comes nowhere near adequately discharging those obligations.

The Competitive Impact Statement required as a justification by the proposed Final Judgment has been released and it is as unenlightening as one would expect given the agreement that prompted it. University of Baltimore antitrust expert Robert Lande put it best when he said "I think Charles James is going to spend the next 30 years of his life saying 'I didn't sell out to Microsoft.'" The Competitive Impact Statement is as telling in what it doesn't say as in what it does say. The Department's repetition throughout the Competitive Impact Statement that the proposed Final Judgment restores competition and serves the public interest cannot make that statement true. Its recounting of the history of the case is accurate. Would that the actual impact statement were so. In truth, it reads as little more than a restating of the proposed Final Judgment with a bit more plain English and a bit less "legalese". At least, it reads that way until the end, when the Department tries vainly to justify this unconditional surrender. Their reasoning essentially boils down to "better a horrible conclusion today than a good one in two years." I take particular exception to this statement: "The remedies contained in the Proposed Final Judgment are not only consistent with the relief the United States might have obtained in litigation, but they have the advantages of immediacy and certainty." That is blatantly false. The District Court's ordered relief was far stricter than this settlement and the Appellate Court was quite clear that their reason for vacating that order was to preserve the appearance of impartiality. The newly assigned judge was expressly permitted to consider that very same ordered relief. The proposed Final Judgment may have "immediacy and certainty" but it is certain that Microsoft will immediately resume Business As Usual—to the detriment of American citizens, businesses, governments. Given the feature-set of Windows XP, one could make a compelling argument that the company has already resumed business as usual.

The Department of Justice had an opportunity to restore competition to an exciting industry that has been hobbled for too long by Microsoft's monopoly abuses. You had the support of two courts and you have come back with a settlement which isn't even a slap on the wrist: it's a loving caress. Shame on you all. You have a chance at redemption, however: withdraw the proposed Final Judgment. Return to Judge Kollar-Kotelly for the penalty hearings ordered by the Appellate Court when it disqualified Judge Jackson from rehearing that stage of the trial. Lay the evidence before her. Include Microsoft's actions since Judge Jackson issued his Findings of Fact, such as Microsoft's incorporation into Windows XP of multimedia players, instant messengers, and online shopping and let this case be ended by a judicial order that can only surpass the proposed Final Judgment in effectiveness.

Let me conclude this letter by reiterating my key points of objection to the government's proposed Final Judgment: it permits the monopolist to retain the fruits of its illegal acts. It provides no incentive for the monopolist to reform its business practices and thereby come into compliance with the requirements and restrictions of the Sherman Act. It ignores past harm to competition and does nothing to constrain future harm. It is in every way a betrayal of the Department's responsibility to the nation and is exceptionally painful given the smashing success the Department had in proving its case before the Court.

Thank you for your time.

James L. Hill, PhD
105 Azure Drive
Los Alamos, NM 87544
505-670-4280
<jimhil1@swcp.com>

MTC-00010798

From: Henrik Bruun
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 10:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Henrik Bruun
2557 Bishop Estates Road
Jacksonville, FL 32259
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Henrik

MTC-00010799

From: gary keramidas
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 10:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
gary keramidas
18722 dale ave
allen park, mi 48101
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
gary j keramidas

MTC-00010800

From: Shane Kelley
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 10:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Shane Kelley
10628 Gardenwood Road
Orlando, FL 32837
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Shane Kelley

MTC-00010801

From: Craig Catapano
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 10:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Craig Catapano
8912 North Lamar Blvd Suite 214
Austin, Tx 78753
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. It's time to Drop this none-sense and move ON! There is no "Monopoly", move on to something more important...US Healthcare.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Craig M Catapano

MTC-00010802

From: Sean Phillipson
To: Microsoft
ATR.dougp@intermind.net@inetgw
Date: 1/13/02 11:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The remedies outlined in the current proposed agreement don't go nearly far enough to reign in the monopolistic practices of Microsoft. Microsoft has already violated the spirit of even the proposed remedy, and previous findings, by including even more applications in their new OS (Windows XP). With every application they include, whole software markets are put out of business. I also thought that any remedy should deprive Microsoft of any gains made by the monopolistic behavior. Microsoft made tens of billions of dollars from this behavior, why do they get to keep that money? Why have I never heard of any effort to estimate of how much money was made through Microsoft's monopolistic behavior so a real punishment can be imposed?

The remedy proposal of the 9 remaining states is far better and should prevent the behavior that got Microsoft in court. That is the idea behind this remedy, I hope. Companies are still afraid to anger Microsoft. There are subtle ways in which Microsoft can "get even" with a company for favoring another OS. And now I see in the news that Microsoft actually has a program in place to kill Linux. Microsoft has agreed to the DOJ settlement because it still leaves it with plenty of "Monopolistic" opportunity and loop holes.

As a software engineer I can tell you that Microsoft can modify it's OS code to do the things that the 9 hold out states suggest. They are flat dishonest if they say they can't. Every version of Unix/Linux/MacOS cleanly separates the OS services from any applications. A browser is a application and should never be embedded in the OS. These are smart guys, tell them they have to do something and they can do it. They may not like it, but they can do it.

Thank you
Doug Phillipson
Las Vegas Nevada

MTC-00010803

From: Mmonias@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 11:38pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 it is time to go forward and stop the endless litigation mmonias@aol.com

MTC-00010804

From: Art Hilgart
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 11:43pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I urge the breakup of the MS operating system and applications into two firms, along with compulsory licensing of all MS software, now and in the future.

Patents are intended to reward temporarily inventions not obvious to others. They are not grants of permanent monopoly, nor should they be. Academics and journalists rushing to defend Microsoft and disparage the Justice Department display stronger ideologies than memories. Bill Gates is not an innovator serving millions of computer users as he and his defenders would have us believe, but the incredibly lucky exploiter of a monopoly he has kited into scores of billions of dollars for himself. When the personal computer was no bigger than a breadbox, IBM saw little future for the device and entered the market with assemblies of purchased innards. To run programs, a computer needs a controlling operating underbase, and when Bill Gates and Paul Allen falsely told IBM that they had such a system, IBM thoughtlessly contracted with them to license it for their desktop diversion. Gates and Allen then proceeded to buy one of the many such programs that had been written by hobbyists and others. With the help of his attorney father, young Gates acquired Q-DOS from its hapless inventor for a few dollars of his father's money and changed its name from ?Quick-and-Dirty-Operating System? to ?Microsoft Disc Operating System?, or MS-DOS. This cloud no bigger than a man's hand consisted of two programs? COMMAND.COM and CONFIG.SYS? with a combined size of less than 100kb. As it happened, IBM salesmen were as adept at selling PCs to business offices as they had been at selling electric typewriters, and DOS became the industry standard Because IBM did not buy the system outright and because intellectual property law confers a monopoly on the system and its interminable upgrades, Gates now has control of most personal computers in the world.

Nearly all application programs are written for DOS or its successor, Windows, so buyers of IBM-type computers must also buy a Microsoft operating system, and since most computers are now based on an MS system, application software designers must write Windows-based programs if they are to sell many copies. Others are free to design non-Microsoft operating systems, but these are useless in the absence of applications, and applications won't be written for systems not already in wide use. Because of this circularity and constant upgrades conferring perpetuity to MS patents and copyrights, Bill Gates is the proud possessor of an unshakeable monopoly.

This is enough for antitrust attention, but there is more. I recently bought a new custom-built computer from Gateway 2000. In addition to the ineluctable Windows, the package included Microsoft Excel, Word, and Explorer. When I told the consultant I wanted the WordPerfect/Quattro Pro/ Netscape suite, I was told that Gateway's contract with Microsoft required that they sell and install these Microsoft applications with the necessary Windows. Even were I to take the Microsoft programs and pay extra for the WordPerfect suite, they could not sell it or install it. I bought the WordPerfect programs directly from Corel and installed them myself, but most consumers probably just use the Microsoft programs that come with new computers, extending Microsoft's control into the applications field.

Gates did not write DOS, and his staff copied the Windows user interface from Apple. The Microsoft programs I had to buy but do not use are not marvelous innovations, they too are imitations. Word was copied from WordPerfect, Explorer from Netscape, Excel from Lotus, and Money from Quicken. The dominant shares that the Microsoft ripoffs now command in the applications field are entirely due to Gates's use of the essential Windows to fob off his imitations as part of a bundle. The success of Windows is not due to its elegance. The bloated, slow, and unwieldy system continually requires purchase of bigger and faster hardware. There are innumerable bugs and customer service is mediocre and expensive. A common ?solution? to a problem is a recommendation to back up everything externally, unload all programs, reformat the hard drive, and start over. Of course, upgrades will eventually correct the errors? but carry a new generation of bugs. Octopus like, moreover, Windows has a tendency to sabotage rival software and reset configurations to use MS programs as defaults.

Gates and his cheering section bemoan that the Justice Department is about to cause irreparable harm to millions of computer users. Since Microsoft has contributed approximately nothing to the nation besides a fiendishly clever business plan, the consumers don't need to worry. I urge the breakup of the MS operating system and applications into two firms, along with compulsory licensing of all MS software, now and in the future.

Patents are intended to reward temporarily inventions not obvious to others. They are not grants of permanent monopoly, nor should they be.

Art Hilgart
 ahilgart@kzoo.edu

MTC-00010805

From: Greg Smith
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 11:41pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge,

I like many I know have been viewing the Microsoft litigation with a whole range of emotions. First disbelief that the government was seriously taking on such a powerful force. Next observing some judicial success and what appeared to be a serious effort to right an obvious wrong, I was very encouraged. With the reversals since the elections and many publicized Microsoft donations, my skepticism of my elected officials returned. However, nothing can compare to outrage I felt when I heard the Microsoft's settlement proposal.

A proposal which is so obviously meant to squash what little competition it has in the education market. The audacity is something I should have suspected Microsoft of. What baffles me is why, when proposed, the instant response was not "Microsoft, you just don't get it?" There are many good options which would create competition in the software industry. Forcing Microsoft to spend money it earns from overpriced software we are forced to purchase on anything seems absurd. How is that solution, it's hardly even a penalty, Microsoft can charge anything it likes for its products. It already charges several orders of magnitude more than the industry for its mediocre products. How about some obvious solutions, obvious to anyone who has been in the computer business for a while, like Microsoft.

How about JAVA. Force Microsoft to include Sun's VM with Windows and make it really work. Or how about "Open Doc." This would truly put the software industry in full motion. Microsoft was so worried about this software at one time it had to force Apple to discontinue it with drastic action. I suspect a breakup may also bring the software industry out in force with new and useful products. I hope you can see through Microsoft's fog of absurd statements and massive political contributions to do something to eliminate the vise Microsoft has on the software industry.

Greg Smith
 Westmont College Webmaster

MTC-00010806

From: Mark Stephens
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/13/02 11:49pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The US Department of Justice is wrong to attack Microsoft. Their grounds of attack allege that Microsoft included Internet Explorer with their Windows Operating System. The DOJ claims this harmed consumers because it stifled competition. I strongly disagree. Microsoft did not harm me in any way, in fact it more than met my needs in an efficient manner. In University, as in work, there are deadlines to meet and time is a precious commodity. Computers are a tool which can greatly assist in getting things done in a faster, more efficient way.

One thing I did not like about computers is the amount of time and effort it took to install programs. When I needed a report quickly, it took precious time to evaluate and purchase the necessary software. The technical process of installing software was not as simple (as it is today). Microsoft was able to answer this issue by bundling. They sold the O.S, the web browser together, which was exactly what I was looking for. I liked the idea of buying a new PC with all the software included. The US DOJ directly told Microsoft this is wrong, and indirectly is telling me that my personal desires are actually harming others. The result of these actions? Instead of getting a solution I want, I will only be allowed to have software solutions which are government approved. I will no longer have the choice which was available before.

I can make my own choices about what is good for me. I will not purchase products that do not meet my needs. The DOJ seems intent on removing the choice of packaged software, and is attacking Microsoft for the 'unlawful' process of meeting this desire.

Also, The idea of charging microsoft $1,000,000 per day seems like extortion. I endeavour to see the DOJ to put an end to what appears to be nothing more than an attack on a prosperous company. (Prosperity being a key factor that differentiates America from almost every other country on Earth.)

Thank you for your time,

Mark Stephens CC:mark-stephens@sympatico.ca@inetgw

MTC-00010807

From: John Muckleroy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:02pm
Subject: U.S. Government persuing Microsoft John Ashcroft, Attorney General

I think that it is downright sinful the way the government is persuing Microsoft. I see it as just another case of jealousy on the part of the competion, with the government acting as "Big Brother" to keep the bully from getting any bigger. We consumers don't need "protection" from Microsoft. We come closer to needing protection from the Government. I think that there is a lot of truth to that line I heard some time ago, and it goes like this. "If Bill Gates had contributed more money to Bill Clinton's political war chest, there would not be a lawsuit in progress at this time. The states that are backing this suit are just looking for money, and that is all there is to it. They didn't deserve any money from the Tabocco settlement, and they don't deserve any from this.

MTC-00010808

From: wladimir.nedo@ps.ge.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:12pm
Subject: Comments

Microsoft continues a pattern of anticompetitive practices designed to thwart competition on the merits, to deprive customers of a choice between alternative technologies and products, and to exclude Microsoft's competitors from the general marketplace. The initial suit concerned the monopolistic practice of Microsoft, to purposefully do whatever it took to make sure significant market participants distributed and used Microsoft's product instead of a competitors—including paying some customers, and using its unique control over Windows to induce others to do so Microsoft has made clear that, unless restrained, it will continue to misuse its operating system monopoly to artificially exclude competition and deprive customers of a free choice. As Paul Maritz, Microsoft's Group Vice President in charge of the Platforms Group, was quoted in the New York Times: "We are going to cut off their air supply. Everything they're selling, we're going to give away for free."

Since the release of the '95 OS version, through to the XP OS release, Microsoft's conduct has not changed. Where any competitor appears to threaten Microsoft, either through outright purchase, or by 'giving away' similar functionality artificially bundled with the OS, Microsoft strives to prevent market alternatives to Microsoft's products from gaining any foothold in the general marketplace. Microsoft's conduct regarding competitor products has been and, if not restrained, will continue to stifle competition, to extend and to maintain Microsoft's Windows operating system monopoly.

MTC-00010809

From: Kevin Ulland
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 12:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Kevin Ulland
6453 139th Place NE #41
Redmond, WA 98052
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. I fully support the settlement between the nine states, the DOJ and Microsoft. I don't believe Microsoft is a monopoly that has abused it's power, and Microsoft hasn't ever hurt me, the CONSUMER. But that's not what's at issue here.

I believe that the settlement that the DOJ and Microsoft agreed to is fine. It not only tackles the anti-trust "violations" but also addresses the market and Microsoft's role therein. I am happy to see that nine of the eighteen states have signed on, but I am frustrated by the remaining states who wish to proceed with the trial. I have a question about those nine states.

I live in Washington State. I am happy with Microsoft, I like Windows XP and it's features. I use Passport and love the fact that it's integrated into the OS. It saves me time! I love Internet Explorer. It renders beautiful web sites, and being a web developer, it's a great application. Netscape is non-compliant with the standards and mis-interprets code all of the time, creating ugly sites and interfaces. I DON'T want Microsoft to stop innovating. I want the next version of Windows to be even more rich with features. If Massachusetts or California go into the hearings in March and get extra sanctions or limitations applied to the deal with Microsoft, those limitations had better not effect me here in Washington, or any of the other 41 states! Just because California is listening to the special interest groups from Silicon Valley and Microsoft competitors and NOT it's consumers, that should not affect me in my state. I remember my US history, and I remember that we all started out as separate states, like little nations, and we created a federal government to over see national issues. But laws passed in California do not apply in any other state, and I am hoping that a ruling against Microsoft for California, or the other nine states only applies in those states. If California law can't affect me here in Washington, why should a ruling for California affect me as well? Will a ruling for the nine states affect the other 41?

Please answer this question, because I think it is vitally important that as a consumer I know what is going to happen to Microsoft and the software I use in my life and work. It is wholly unacceptable that these nine states' problems with Microsoft affect the rest of the nation. The settlement with the DOJ can affect all of the states, because it is an agreement with the Federal Government...

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views, Kevin Ulland kevinu@intentionallyu.com
Citizen of Washington State
Sincerely,
Kevin Ulland

MTC-00010810

From: Frank Danaher
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:08pm
Subject: Dear sir

Dear sir
Please settle the MicroSoft law suits as soon as possible.

These issues do not belong in the law courts and represent an attempt by the various state departments attorney general to enrich the state at the expense of the the company involved. Please try to do something to move law suits such as these out of the Department of Justice arena and back to the companies that are involved. We need less and not more oversight by your department regarding commercial conflicts.

Frank Danaher

MTC-00010811

From: Steve Brown
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to end the persecution of the Microsoft Corp. Microsoft has done much more to help the consumer and help the American economy than they have ever done to hurt it. It is time to stop wasting taxpayer money and end this action bby the Justice Dept. I support the current settlement that is on the table to bring this to a close.

Thanks!
Steve Brown
Reynoldsburg, OH

MTC-00010812

From: Shanmugam, Karthik
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/14/02 1:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
I agree with the terms of the proposed settlement.

MTC-00010813

From: Ron LaPedit
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It pleases the court, I would like to commend the 9 dissenting states for not accepting the proposed DOJ settlement with Microsoft. I believe that it has been shown time and time again, that Microsoft 'extends and extinguishes.' That is, while appearing to support a standard, such as Java or Kerberos, they then add extensions to it that will only run on the Microsoft operating system (OS) platform. When threatened by Netscape, which sold a browser which allowed web pages to be displayed on any platform, they developed their own browser and tightly integrated it into the OS then bundled it free of charge. Coupled with web pages that used coding which would only work on the Microsoft browser, they took over the market, effectively eliminating Netscape as a viable company. And this was AFTER a consent decree with the DOJ in an earlier case!

With Windows XP, Microsoft is attempting to take over access to the Internet, forcing users to use their middleware and go to Microsoft approved sites when a URL (web address) is mistyped. Microsoft MUST be reigned in as a convicted monopolist, or there will be no choice whatever left for consumers.

The settlement worked out for dismissal of the class action cases alleging overcharging by Microsoft shows Microsoft's arrogance and contempt for the law. This settlement would have helped Microsoft crush Apple in the education market where Apple is still a competitor. Since when is the loser of a case allowed to settle in a manner which benefits it. Better that Microsoft be forced to distribute coupons for free software to the customers it allegedly overcharged. But I digress here.

I sincerely hope that you will work with the dissenting state attorneys general to create a settlement with teeth in it which will prevent Microsoft from crushing the competition through illegal practices, of which it has already been convicted.

Ron LaPedit
2115 Sea Cliff Way
San Bruno, CA
650-359-9887

MTC-00010814

From: Tim McMullen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:25pm
Subject: Microsoft

As a PC user, I believe Microsoft must be broken up to allow competitors back into the market. Please force a spin-off of all MS business other than a basic operating system.

The spun off unit(s) should work totally independently, with the same rights and privileges that all other applications developers get. This will re-enable competition and truly stimulate 'innovation'.

Thanks
Tim McMullen
4615 Sidereal Dr
Austin, TX 78727-5129
(512) 837-9366

MTC-00010815

From: kaydan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft has for many years used anti-competitive practices to corner the market and stifle the progression of the industry. Over the past 10 years they've released around 10 different operating systems. All of which have had some level of incompatibility with one another and make it almost impossible to produce an application that will work on their next platform's release. When a market exists that they wish to control they either add the feature free of charge (driving companies like Netscape out of business), or if they wish to control a standard they create their own standard and cut support for the currently accepted standard (DirectDraw, .Net, etc). Or, in the worst type of situation, they try to fork an existing standard to devalue the standard altogether (Java, JavaScript). Being that they control a vast percentage of the market, progression in the computer industry has actually regressed in many ways in the last 10 years.

Sincerely
Daniel Bermender

MTC-00010816

From: landon kelsey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:30pm

In a monopoly, there are explicit and implicit acts that are illegal and bad for the USA.

*Explicit acts are those such as the many aggressive acts of conspiracy by Microsoft brought out early in the suit.

*Implicit acts are those such as the inability of small companies to keep up with a company (MS) that can throw 1000 programmers at a project. Norton Antivirus, for example, could be destroyed overnight.

I personally like .NET and C# and it may be the best idea yet, but MS is still not the US National Software Co.

If you don't believe me, look at the service you get from your local telephone company. Many festering sores are left over from a monopoly. A truly putrid bureaucracy left over from a monopoly.

Two types of monopoly. . . a vertical trust and a horizontal trust Vertical. . . example McDonald's could have farms that raise beef and everything else including restaurants Horizontal. . . Safeway (unlikely due to inherent poor management) could own every grocery store

MTC-00010817

From: John Longthorne
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:38pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This attack on Microsoft, and the economy, has gone on too long. Please concede that this suit should never have been brought to court and bow out gracefully. The DOJ suit has most likely cost America and its citizens more in lost wealth and economic security than the Enron fiasco. Times are bad enough without our own government trying to stifle job creation and wealth accumulation.

Microsoft is in a tough business and needs support rather than hindrance.

Thank You,
John and Marilyn Longthorne
18 W. Sage St.
Pine Haven Wyoming, 82721

MTC-00010818

From: Seven
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:43pm
Subject: Re: proposed settlement

I strongly feel the existing proposed settlement with Microsoft does little to redress the manifest imbalance in the operating system marketplace or address the monopolistic practices of Microsoft.

The playing field needs to be leveled. The existing proposals don't do it.

Morley Chalmers for the 7Office team
Seven@7Office.com
416/926-9296

MTC-00010819

From: Duane Odom
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 1:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am concerned that this settlement will do little to change Microsoft's behavior or restore competition. The settlement fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system and it is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism.

Microsoft is a monopoly and has used that monopoly position to force others out of business or to bend to fit their desires. This affects people's freedom to choose among alternatives. It affects the price people must pay, directly or indirectly. It also has longer-term implications for people's privacy and security. It means less innovation and lower quality software.

Thank You,
Duane Odom
Duane Odom
3035 Barnes Ln.
Cottdale, FL 32431
(850)352-2229
duane—odom@yahoo.com

MTC-00010821

From: Jim Robertson
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/14/02 1:59pm
Subject: FW: Encourage DOJ to settle Microsoft case

I received the following email message. I am only writing to see if it is a legitimate use of my time (or the people I forward this to) or is it a hoax? Is the DOJ seeking public comment? I receive so many "form/chain" letter via email, I never know what to believe anymore.

Thanks for you time.
 Jim Robertson
 Olympia, Washington
 From: Marsha Richards
 [mailto:mrichards@effwa.org]
 Sent: Thursday, January 10, 2002 5:31 PM
 To: info@effwa.org
 Subject: Encourage DOJ to settle Microsoft case

Dear EFF Friends,
 As you know, 18 states and the federal Department of Justice (DOJ) have been involved in a lawsuit against Microsoft. Recently, the DOJ announced it has negotiated a settlement agreement with the company (one of America's most successful). The settlement must be approved by the federal judge in the case before it can take effect, and the DOJ is currently seeking public comment.

The case against Microsoft has greatly harmed Washington citizens. Stock values, not only in Microsoft but in the entire NASDAQ, have dropped dramatically and consumers overwhelmingly agree that allowing the case to end with this settlement is good for them, the industry, and the nation's economy.

Please consider sending a letter, fax or email to the DOJ to let them know what you think about the settlement. The deadline for comment is January 28, 2002. I'm including a sample letter below along with the contact information you'll need. Please feel free to edit it as you see fit, or write your own.

I would recommend sending your comments by email or fax since mail has had difficulties lately. Also, if possible, would you let us know if you decide to send a letter? We'd like to measure the impact. Thanks very much.

Cordially,
 Bob Williams
 President
 Evergreen Freedom Foundation
 P.O. Box 552
 Olympia, WA 98507
 (360) 956-3482
 effwa@effwa.org
 [Contact Information]
 Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 "D" Street, NW, Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530
 email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
 <mailto:microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov>
 Fax: (202) 307-1454—OR—(202) 616-9937
 [Sample Letter]

To Whom it May Concern:
 As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge

Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.
 Signed,

MTC-00010822

From: Bob Mileti
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:04pm
 Subject: Don't buy the Microsoft Settlement
 Dear US Dept. of Justice:

Please do not allow Microsoft to settle this case with such a self serving plan. They have cost me and my small company untold amounts of money due to poor products and total lack of support. Furthermore I'd like to have all the money I spent for programs that I never wanted in the first place, but were forced to pay for from Dell and Gateway.

Make it hurt and make it hurt good.

Thank you,
 Bob Mileti

MTC-00010823

From: T. Ron Davis
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:10pm
 Subject: Comments on Microsoft Litigation
 BlankRenata Hesse
 Trial Attorney
 Antitrust Division
 Department of Justice
 601 D Street NW, Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530
 microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov

I'm fed up. This is litigation that never should have been filed in the first place. It has stifled innovation, severely damaged the economy, and impacted or will impact the majority of technology companies in the USA for decades. Anti-trust laws are in place to protect CONSUMERS not COMPETITORS. Consumers do NOT, and never did, support this legal fiasco. I urge you to put this outrageous waste of taxpayer money to bed. Get it settled and get on with real business.

I am encouraging all of my colleagues to contact you as well.

Sincerely,
 T. Ron Davis
 25424 NE 39th Way
 Redmond, WA 98053
 T. Ron Davis
 President/CEO
 iRequest, Inc.
 http://www.irequest.com
 Tele: 425-643-1771
 FAX : 425-898-9726
 "Empowering the Consumer Through Information"

MTC-00010824

From: Richard Saul
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:12pm
 Subject: Settlement in Microsoft Antitrust Case

Microsoft wields enormous power in the computer industry. They are able to share software and computer hardware development. I have been a software engineer for twenty years and I have seen Microsoft grow from "micro" to huge.

Microsoft has a long-standing practice of including new features that directly compete with another company's software into the Windows operating system family. They brought this practice with them from the DOS operating system.

Microsoft has done used this exact practice with:

1. Memory management, inclusion of Expanded Memory Services killed Quarterdeck's QEMM.

2. Disk Compression, inclusion of disk compression wiped out Stac Electronics Stacker.

3. Fax Services, by including fax capability Microsoft has reduced the market for WinFax.

4. Remote Control software (like PCAnywhere) is an example that has just been introduced in Windows XP. Microsoft will enter a market with a very low priced product because they have the scale of economy to afford to dump the product at a loss. They do this until they have wiped out their competitors.

This has been done with:

1. Access, Microsoft introduced Access for $99 at a time when databases commonly cost $500.

2. Internet Explorer, Microsoft gave IE away when Netscape cost $40 to buy.

3. TCP/IP network access. Microsoft gave away free TCP/IP software when ordinarily it cost $350 or more.

4. The Xbox is a current example of this product. Microsoft "subsidizes" their competition and includes other company's products into Windows. This might appear to be in a company's best interest but in fact it limits the company's ability to succeed because of the contractual obligation they are under.

1. HyperTerminal

2. Citrix

Last and maybe worse Microsoft manipulates standards to their benefit. 1. Java as a language was standardized by Sun Microsystems. Microsoft introduced a "Java" product with different features that competed against Sun's standard.

2. Microsoft formulated the Internet Explorer web browser to understand the HyperText Markup Language different than Netscape; web developers had to choose between developing for one, the other or both.

Microsoft has delivered incredible value for its customers. I have no doubt. But they have done that over the dead bodies of dozens of competitors. Microsoft's ability to create a new operating system version and be the only company to deliver productivity software for the platform is almost the heart of their advantage. Take it away!

If you look at every major Microsoft OS introduction of the last 10 years, Microsoft always delivers a new version of Office simultaneously. They are the only company that can and their competitors spend the next year catching up. Stop this!

The only way that true competition can be restored is if Microsoft's Operating System group is torn away from the Applications group. Break Microsoft up! Breaking Microsoft up into at least 2 and maybe more companies is the only way to restore competition in the software market. I bet if I wrote this in Microsoft Word you could read it, but if I wrote it in Lotus WordPro you couldn't!

Rich

Richard Saul, Engineer

POS Development
Kinko's Field Support Organization
richardsa@kinkos.com

MTC-00010825

From: Walt Perko
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:12pm
Subject: OS vs. Advertising portal?

Aloha,
I love Windows. However, my fear of MS has been growing with the growth of the Internet and Internet Portals. I don't want to upgrade to Windows XP for fear of a marketing blitz and a filtered Internet in it's very near future.

It should be written some basic laws of the Digital Domain—1.email falls under the same rules and procedures as snail mail
2.Operating Systems should be just that and no more, not attached to a 'Profiler' or 'Advertising Portal' unless we get the OS AND UltraBandWidth 'New Global Network' access FREE like broadcast TV. I should be able to do a search on the Internet like it was the Oxford English, American Heritage etc? Dictionaries and all the Encyclopedia's combined etc?

I should be able to do a search on the Internet and find a mailing address, email address, phone number etc. of anybody in the world. NO UNLISTED ENTRIES!

I should be able to be connected to the Internet and see who is connected to me at ALL TIMES!

I've been looking at Linux, it's not ready for prime-time yet, but getting close—but how much will it cost to move some of my very expensive software to run on it??? I'm hoping for a newer and better OS than Linux.

Check my creativity on iFilm.com and MP3.com . . . My goal is simple. To live a good life and know I've learned what is important to life and it's meaning . . . Walt Perko

It's not the bulls and bears you need to avoid—it's the bum steers.—Chuck Hillis

Whoever values peace of mind and the health of the soul will live the best of all possible lives.—Marcus Aurelius

Great people talk about ideas. Small people talk about other people.—Tobias S. Gibson

The person who makes a success of living is one who sees his goal steadily and aims for it unswervingly. That's dedication.—Cecil B. De Mille

The person who goes farthest is generally the one who is willing to do and dare. The sure-thing boat never gets far from shore.—Dale Carnegie

MTC-00010826

From: Himani Naresh
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The Microsoft lawsuits have been a waste of taxpayer dollars and a huge burden to our IT sector. They have dragged on too long and should be settled as soon as possible. Having said that, I think the settlement is in the best interest of the American public because it will allow Microsoft to focus on its own business and the IT sector to return to normal. Some of the terms of the agreement are a little harsh on Microsoft, but overall I think they are fair. Consumers and software developers have to be happy that Microsoft will be disclosing internal interface technology, and designing future versions of 'Windows' so that other vendors can promote their products from within the OS.

The nine states that are in opposition to the settlement are just showboating and should be reprimanded at the federal level. They have no right to continue this suit, which should not be handled at the states level anyway. Please stop the nine states from furthering the deterioration of our IT sector. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Himani Naresh

5306 Lake Washington Blvd. #H
Kirkland, WA 98008

MTC-00010827

From: Gideon Yuval
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:20pm
Subject: settlement

It would seem to me high time that that old MS lawsuit were finally settled.

Thanks

Gideon

MTC-00010828

From: Susan Gibson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:21pm
Subject: Judge Kollar Kotell
Judge Kollar Kotell-

I am writing to express my concern about the Justice Department's handling of the Microsoft case. I understand that the Tunney Act allows review of this decision, and I would like to express my concern about increasing Microsoft's power and monopoly through this decision. My understanding is that every court decision regarding Microsoft and its antitrust/monopoly activity has found that Microsoft abused its monopoly position to prevent competition and restrain free trade. These decisions have been found repeatedly in the judicial system over the past three years. I am very concerned that the Department of Justice is not punishing Microsoft nor moving to stop this behavior. It presents significant risk to free trade and other competitors to allow Microsoft to use their monopoly power to hold customers hostage and reduce their product choices. This sets a dangerous precedent. I believe Microsoft should be penalized for its long-standing antitrust abuses and prevented from exhibiting this behavior in the future. Other products/technologies/companies are at risk for their very existence if Microsoft is allowed to continue this anticompetitive behavior (products based on Java, Linux, AOL, the Mac, etc).

I hope you will take this under consideration in your decisions.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely-

Susan P. Gibson

Susan P. Gibson

President—Eve Group Inc.

1004 Windermere Avenue

Menlo Park, CA 94025
 ph 650 326-8073
 fax 650 326-8073
 cell 650 888-2646

MTC-00010829

From: Bill Zipfel
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:23pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The corrupt and criminal Clinton administration is thankfully over and the Executive Branch has been returned to honor. Because of the staggering turpitude of the Clinton administration, there is much work yet to be done to root out the continuing disgrace that it was. One large item on that list must be the settlement of the Microsoft case. I strongly support the settlement. Successful entrepreneurs who create thousands of jobs and add real value to our world ought to be praised and emulated, not sued and mocked.

Bill Zipfel

MTC-00010830

From: Patrick H. Corrigan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In my opinion, the DOJ settlement was a gift to Microsoft, not a punishment. Like the previous settlement DOJ settlement with Microsoft it only prevents behavior that is moot because the damage has been done and also allows practices that will tend to strengthen Microsoft's grip on the computer industry.

In every instance in which Microsoft has gained domination of a market segment innovation has ceased and prices have risen. Sometimes the price increases have been hidden in upgrade costs and changes to licensing terms, but the have increased none the less. Little new software is being developed because potential developers and investors know that if a new product is successful Microsoft will use its monopoly power to take over the market for that product. Microsoft is now using its might to make sure it dominates and controls the Internet.

Please find a way to reign them in.

Patrick H. Corrigan
 pcorrigan@corrigan-group.com

MTC-00010831

From: Jerry Burgen
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/14/02 2:25pm
 Subject: Settlements

Howdy,

Thanks for handling the Microsoft judgement this way. It bodes good for us all. In essence, what we've got here is that if I am found guilty of breaking any law of these United States, that if I don't agree with the outcome, that I also have the right to sit down with the prosecution and work out a solution that is agreeable with me, despite what the laws state, correct? Thanks for setting the precedence, this means that every supposed lawbreaker in the future will have the same opportunity to self adjust their punishment that you have given Microsoft. I'm sure that they will be glad to hear it. Oh, and does that also apply to the people that have broken laws in the past, ie. racketeers, smugglers, etc? Keep up the good work.

Jerome Paul Burgen
 Honest Citizen of These United States
 jburgen@mediaone.net
 CC:'jburgen(a)mediaone.net'

MTC-00010832

From: Bill Buxton
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:27pm
 Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Settlement

I feel sold out. I can not fathom by what degree of righteousness the DOJ can possibly think that a settlement of a few billion dollars constitutes justice. I have been around, or in, the computer industry since 1980 when I took my first programming class. Over the years I have watched with sadness as one company after another has sought to dominate (control) the industry. My greatest hopes were on Microsoft as they seemed to talk the talk of equity and fairness. Then, from my own experience, I learned that they were one of the worst offenders. They have sought the advantage of every loophole and trick to market their products and control competitors. I have even felt they broke the law in several instances where they sought to extend and embrace competitors, or persuaded companies that it would not be wise to market competing technologies.

The bottom line is that what they have done is illegal and immoral. To punish them with a simple fine draws short of preventing them or other companies from doing the same in the future. Microsoft should be broken up into smaller companies (OS, Desktop applications, Back Office or application integration, and web technologies) so that they do not have the ability to wield such influence to stifle future competition.

PS My view are my own and not those of the company I currently work for.

Bill Buxton
 Web/App Developer
 Miller Heiman Incorporated Tel:(775)827-4411 x257 [PST]
 1595 Meadow Wood Lane Fax:(775)827-5517
 Suite #2

mailto:bbuxton@millerheiman.com Reno, NV 89502 http:// www.millerheiman.com
 <http://www.millerheiman.com/>
 CC:attorney.general@po.state.ct.us@inetgw

MTC-00010833

From: Jane Griscti
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:31pm
 Subject: Settlement of little or no benefit to consumers

To the average user there is only one operating system available for PC's ... Microsoft. Most users are not even aware there are options. This is more than just 'branding'; MS has successfully wiped out any consciousness of choice in the operating system market. Their success places developers in a bind; if most of the installed base is MS then they must write applications for MS. Often these applications don't have the newest feature displayed by MS developed applications. This in turn pushes consumers to use MS applications and MS NEVER writes applications for non-MS platforms.

Developers end up in a Catch-22 situation. The consumer doesn't become aware of competing products because the hot applications get written for MS first then MS releases a newer 'hotter' application taking advantage of the latest MS operating system bells and whistles (known about by MS internal developers) and the external developers play catch up. In the end, the MS operating system becomes the only playing field; one slanted heavily in MS's favour.

Application and Middleware development need to be spun off in to an independent company. As well, the new company should be encouraged to write software for non-MS operating systems as well as MS systems. Not only will that open up the operating system playing field but also the application software field. Then maybe consumer's will begin to learn that PC does not equal MS.

Jane Griscti
 jane@janeg.ca

MTC-00010834

From: Pam Dvorak
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 2:32pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement/Comments under the Tunney Act

The attached file contains my comments on this settlement. Thank you-Pamela J. Dvorak

Pamela J. Dvorak
 612 Woodleave Road
 Bryn Mawr, PA 19010-2921
 610-526-2216 / fax 610-526-2886 /
 pjd190@hotmail.com
 U.S. Attorney General John Ashcroft
 Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001
 January 14, 2002

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am pleased that the Microsoft Antitrust case has finally nearing completion. After three years of litigation, it is time. Microsoft can once again focus on what it does best-product development, driving a successful business.

The broad range of the settlement [restrictions and obligations on Microsoft that extend products and technologies not even at issue in the original lawsuit] represents Microsoft's willingness to bend backward to see this case rectified and settled. With Windows XP, Microsoft has already carried out modifications listed within the agreement, making it easier for computer makers, software developers and consumers to reconfigure their Windows setup at any time. In addition to that, Microsoft has also agreed to supply to the competition its protocols used to operate Microsoft's server operating system, allowing opposing software companies to make their products compatible, should they choose to do so.

Microsoft's compliance will be monitored carefully, thus precluding future violations. This may be 'preaching to the choir', but I never felt that the company should have been punished for being competitive- and doing well. The American way is for the market to judge the value of the product. Not everyone can be on top. From my view, this Operating System made this technology user-friendly and accessible to a great segment of the population. Thank you in advance for your support of this [dare I hope] final settlement. Sincerely,

Pamela J. Dvorak
cc: Senator Rick Santorum Senator Arlen Specter

MTC-00010835

From: Stephen Marney
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:33pm
Subject: I don't like the proposed MSFT settlement

No, not one little itsy bit, I don't!
You guys aren't doing your jobs as far I'm concerned.
Stephen Marney

MTC-00010836

From: Tracker@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:33pm
Subject: Microsoft—another word for dictatorship

I would like to present a few comments regarding the proposed settlement offered by Microsoft Corporation in its court case. I firmly believe that Microsoft Corporation has a commitment to a policy of world domination in the computer realm. All the past actions of Microsoft indicate that the company has an embedded policy of control of the computer and computer software industries to the end that Microsoft products will be the only products available to the computer using world.

Microsoft has engaged in manipulation of software functioning and content through financial actions such as purchasing the rights to programs and then suppressing the functions and content by deliberately denying those functions and content to computer users by not including those functions and contents in Microsoft products. Functions and content have also been altered so that they will not perform as originally created to perform, or have been so altered that they will not perform in any venue except a Microsoft venue, thereby denying their usefulness to the computer using public.

An example of these actions is plainly visible in the recent information release of the proposed WMA programs and devices. WMA programs are designed to deliberately alter MP3 sound files so the files will no longer perform properly on an MP3 device. The resultant WMA converted file will only perform properly on a WMA device and cannot be reverted back to its original form because of the proprietary programming that Microsoft has created.

This move, creating a completely incompatible MP3 alteration program, indicates that Microsoft Corporation intends to invade the MP3 device market with an overwhelming effort. The intention could be to eliminate all MP3 market devices and replace them with WMA devices which are the intellectual and marketing property of Microsoft, thereby creating another monopolistic situation.

Microsoft Corporation will attempt to assuage the concerns of individuals and government offices by stating that their devices work in conjunction with PC format computers and are an enhancement for those devices. Microsoft will not admit that the MP3 alteration program is irreversible or that it will be made available to the buying public as a "loss leader" sale item. Microsoft Corporation should not be permitted to continue its policy of domination through repression and denial. Microsoft should be forced to reveal the source code being used in its programs so that free enterprise developers will have the opportunities to create products and software that competes freely with Microsoft products.

Microsoft should be forced to separate the functions of software program creation and computer operating system production to enable private enterprise development of competing products.

The penalty phase of this issue should be made effective against Microsoft and cause the corporation to make appropriate redress of the wrongs it has already committed. Microsoft should not be permitted to continue to defraud the government and the courts by "giving" Microsoft products and software to a market area that Microsoft has not had a history of effective past presence. Allowing Microsoft to buy its way out of any penalty by "donating" outdated and refurbished equipment and software to schools is not an effective penalty. It only allows Microsoft to freely establish itself in an area and provides further domination of the computer market by creating a situation where children would be exposed to only Microsoft products and programs. This would help to create another market segment, the children become future Microsoft product users through their introduction and indoctrination to those products while in school, which would ensure the monopoly that Microsoft is attempting to continue.

Thank you for taking the time to read my comments. I hope that a sensible and proper adjudication of the monopoly suit will be reached and that proper penalties will be assessed against Microsoft Corporation for its egregious business practices.

Ronald Steinke
701 Bradford Court
Chico, CA 95926-8768

MTC-00010837

From: HP Authorized Customer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:35pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Dear Attorney General:

I think people are after Microsoft because Microsoft is a successful company and has plenty of money. Why penalize success?

I notice ever since the government started with charging Microsoft with wrongdoing we've been in a recession.

Microsoft wanted to donate one billion dollars and they don't think that's enough. Give me a break!

Respectfully yours
Richard Diamond
CC:Microsoft's Freedom To Innovate Network

MTC-00010838

From: Jacy Odin Grannis

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Your Honor; Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am writing out of deep concern about the proposed settlement plan. It is my contention that the settlement focuses on remedying what are, in the end, minor issues and does not begin to address the larger issue of Microsoft's true impact on the competitive landscape.

As noted in the findings of the court, Microsoft is a monopoly. The most damaging aspect of this is Microsoft's ability to unilaterally set de facto standards for the computing industry. Microsoft argues that by so doing, it is acting in the public interest. Certainly standards do benefit the industry, but it is also certainly not true that Microsoft is uniquely capable of coming up with the best standard. In fact, it is easy to demonstrate that Microsoft is not truly using this power to improve matters for the consumer, but to further extend its own monopoly. For example, RealAudio was one of the first products to offer streaming media for the Internet. It would not be a stretch to say that, at one time, it was the de facto standard. Microsoft saw that it was behind in the game, but rather than working to improve the standard that existed, it came up with its own proprietary standard that would require the use of its products and which would only run on Windows. Not only that, but it began to bundle its own player as the default player with Windows. Now, while Microsoft's Media Player may, now, be technically the match of other media players, but at the time it was not. However, consumers have demonstrated time and time again that what matters most to the majority is not technical superiority, per se, but convenience. Thus, though Microsoft's player might not have been the best; it was already there, and more or less did the job, so they consumers used it if they could. If Microsoft did not have this huge advantage, however, it is very questionable whether their product could have survived. Nonetheless, it did, and now RealAudio is engaged in a pitched (and, it seems, losing) battle to get users to use its products.

There are other very similar examples such as Netscape, Outlook Express, and MSN Messenger. In each case, Microsoft started behind the competition with an inferior product. However, by bundling their product with the operating system and by, in effect, dumping their product for free, they overtook other competitors whose main revenue was selling a competing product.

Microsoft Office is another huge cornerstone in the monopoly. It has, itself, become a standard. It helps reinforce the Windows monopoly. Anecdotally, and speaking only for myself, I can say that I have become very frustrated with Windows over the past several years. It is not nearly as stable as I would like, and it has too much baggage that slows it down. However, I find that I am unable to drop it entirely and go to Linux (which is a technically superior system) largely because I use Microsoft Office, and it is not available on Linux. I am certain that I am not the only person in that position, though I can not offer statistics to demonstrate what sort of population I represent. However, the point remains that there is a demand for other operating systems. An independent company would likely want to meet that demand, to give users the software they want on whatever platform they want to run. But Microsoft, which has become a monopoly in so many areas of the software industry, has a disincentive to meet that demand. Rather than develop new versions of their programs for other operating systems, they continue to develop almost solely for Windows. Their statements to the contrary, this is not because of any technical superiority enjoyed by Windows. Their only motivation is to further the Windows monopoly.

In the end, these examples become self-reinforcing. Microsoft Windows enjoys a monopoly position in the operating systems market. Microsoft develops new standards that require the user to be running Microsoft Windows. It pushes these standards and creates new monopolies by bundling its technologies with the operating system. It enjoys other monopoly positions with other products, such as Office. It concentrates its development of these products mostly or exclusively on Windows (Microsoft's support of the Mac is laughable, and only exists to give it a chance to say they aren't doing what they're doing). This reinforces their Windows monopoly. Since users have to have Windows to run software they need, such as Office, they use Windows. Other companies know that users have to be running Windows, so they develop for it. This furthers the OS monopoly of Microsoft. In the end, though, everyone but Microsoft loses. They can dominate any market they enter by virtue of their sheer size and position. All the other companies are forced to scrape along in niche markets because they can't really compete with the position Microsoft has built for itself.

The proposed settlement fails to remedy this situation. Even with the settlement remedies in place, Microsoft will still be able to bundle new products and technologies in to Windows, stifling competition. Indeed, this is currently going on. Microsoft has decided that it does not want to support Java because it does not have proprietary control over it. So it has created a new language, C#, as a competitor. Their whole .NET strategy is a prime example of Microsoft using its position to further its monopoly. And there is nothing in the settlement that will prevent them from continuing to pursue this strategy.

What, then, is the remedy? First of all, Microsoft must be broken up. Windows should become its own company. Office should become its own company. And the rest of Microsoft's products should go in to a third company. Secondly, Microsoft should be forced to devote equal development resources to developing its applications, especially Office, for an alternate platform. Preferably this would be Linux, but the Mac OS X would do as well. Thirdly, Microsoft Windows source code should be released to the public. Not as free code, but on an open source license that allows people to see the code for free, but requires them to pay a license fee if they want to use it. Finally, the different companies that emerge from Microsoft should be forbidden from entering into any collaborations with each other whatsoever for a period of five years.

Thank you for your time.
Jacy Grannis
Senior Software Engineer
Questia Media, Inc.

MTC-00010839

From: Westly.Schmidt@bankofamerica.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To whom it may concern,
I strongly oppose the proposed final judgement because it:

Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected;

Fails to remedy the injury done to the JavaTM technology community;

Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market;

Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system;

Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism. Furthermore, Microsoft is a monopoly and has used that monopoly position to force others out of business or to bend to fit their desires. This approach is EXTREMELY destructive to business where competition is in the best interests of everyone (except Microsoft) involved. The the proposed final judgement is a joke, a slap in the face to anyone with enough education or experience to know what they are trying to get away with. It is pure ignorance, or a desire to profit from the demise of our society, that would enable anyone to accept the terms of the proposed final judgement as being just. For everyones sake, including (albiet, against its will) Microsoft's, do not accept the proposed final judgement.

Sincerely,
Westly Schmidt

MTC-00010840

From: Ron (038) Tynna
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:40pm
Subject: Re: Microsoft
Ronald Davis
412 S Vine Street
Wichita, KS 67213
January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
Washington, DC

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

As I read the paper, I get more and more concerned over the status of our economy. Since I know that the technology industry has a great deal to do with the status of our economy, I get concerned over items like the recent Microsoft developments. I was obviously surprised to find out that Microsoft is being delayed even further. After three years of negotiations, it is ridiculous to dissect this agreement any further. The governments of the US and Kansas State have many other things to worry about, and should not be wasting our resources on a battle that has already been won.

The terms of this agreement have not only been well thought out, but include many substantial changes to which Microsoft has agreed to. Some of these changes include business-related topics such as licensing and marketing, but even extend to engineering, design, and documentation of intellectual property. As we let these terms speak for themselves, we allow the IT sector to work together and focus on maintaining our place in the global market. This is important to the consumer, our technology industry, and our economy as a whole.

Help support our technology industry. We need to get back to business and continue with the innovation that has made us great. Please help stop any further action against this settlement.

Sincerely,
Ronald Davis

MTC-00010841

From: Santiago Alfaro Tornero
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:37pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Escribir estas notas en castellano. Creo que sobre todo lo relacionado con el caso Microsoft hay una cuesti?n clave: para que se cree tecnolog?a y haya investigaci?n, que cuando se aplique lugar a avances para todos, es crucial tener campo donde trabajar e innovar. Lo que tristemente est? ocurriendo es que Microsoft est? comprando cualquier innovaci?n que se produce en el campo de las tecnolog?as de la informaci?n en cualquier lugar del mundo, y con ello, hace que muera la ilusi?n de las personas por dise?ar algo nuevo y las empresas pertenecer a Microsoft. Si hay un pa?s en el mundo que entiende el valor de las personas por luchar por algo propio, ese es Estados Unidos.

Si seguimos as?, va a ser tan dif?cil invertir en Tecnolog?as de la Informaci?n que nadie lo va a intentar, y con ello va a perderse la impresionante innovaci?n que proviene de las personas y las empresas peque?as con capacidad de crear nuevas formas de hacer. No creo que sirvan para nada estas l?neas, ya que lo que mueve el mundo son los intereses ego?stas de grandes conglomerados industriales.

Me conformo con recibir una notificaci?n v?a correo electr?nico de que alguien por lo menos ha le?do estas l?neas.

Muchas gracias.

MTC-00010842

From: Christian BAYER
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi,

I think it is very apparent the proposed Microsoft settlement neglects some significant areas. It does nothing to; prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future, spark competition in the software industry or deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains. I believe the judicial system is required to insure these types of remedies are made when violations of anti-trust laws occur. I believe the evidence of Microsoft's gross disregard for conducting itself in a legal manner and the costly detriment consumers have suffered should compel an attempt to uphold the law rather than brushing it aside, as seems to be happening. Other concerns regarding the exposure of children to Microsoft's products are additional issues. If the judicial system does not seek to enforce the laws of the United States, what purpose does it serve?

Christian Bayer

MTC-00010843

From: Isaac Ordonez
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think that allowing Microsoft to push its monopoly into schools as punishment for its monopoly is down right stupid. This company get away with murder and needs to be punished fully. I think the original ruling to break up the company allow companies with actually working products to flood the market. Please do not allow Old bill to rule my Microwave, Video games, Computer, TV, Internet, Car, and even bed. They are taking it too far and should stick to making an OS and office suite.

Isaac Ordonez
Technology Support Specialist II
San Rafael City Schools

MTC-00010844

From: Andre Azaroff
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/14/02 2:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sirs,

I am opposed to the proposed settlement the DOJ has made with Microsoft. It does nothing to punish or prevent any of the predatory business practices Microsoft has been found guilty of.

I also feel it is deplorable that the judicial (and apparently the executive) branch of our government is for sale and has been bought. Also that it is for sale only to a select few now that the republicans are back in power. Yes, the republicans who supposedly pride themselves on being the law and order group in Washington. I guess the old adage is true that the law only applies to those who can't afford it. The end result of your current actions in this case certainly show that anyone with enough money or clout or connections may choose to ignore any law they see fit (whether or not the law is just is a different matter, it still is a law) and that once a verdict is handed down, if the defendant disagrees with it, he may negotiate a different verdict. This is very disturbing. I would hate to think that this lawsuit will now be cited as precedent in criminal cases allowing murderers and rapists to be able to negotiate lesser sentences.

The settlement negotiated with Microsoft will do nothing to curtail their unfair business practices. Particularly the Microsoft "TAX" everyone pays for buying a new PC. The tax I am referring to is the licensing that is added to almost all new PCs sold, even if there are absolutely no Microsoft products installed on them. This I find particularly disturbing. Since the PC manufacturers have absolutely no recourse or protection from Microsoft's ability to pull their windows license without any infractions to their business arrangement with Microsoft. I could go on (point by point) but I feel I have expressed my opinion.

Andre Azaroff
St. Onge Company
1400 Williams Road
York PA 17402
Phone: 717 840-8181 ext. 8075
Fax: 717 840-8182
Website: www.stonge.com

MTC-00010845

From: Michael Sean Goppold
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Since Microsoft got away with illegally bundling middleware programs, and is a monopoly, further distribution for the next few years of Microsoft Windows Operating Systems should be prohibited from containing such bundled middleware programs, either through discount or use of freeware.

Hardware vendors must give at least 5 choices other than MS Windows, with full interoperability of its hardware.

Other than that, the proposal I feel does do a lot for the time being. I agree with most of the terms of the proposal. Since Microsoft's monopoly is illegal, in case that after the duration of the judgement Microsoft still has ways to run a monopoly on the software scene, perhaps a more generic, more widely applicable set of rules for competitive software distribution will be necessary.

Thanks for considering my opinions.
Mike Goppold

MTC-00010846

From: Mike
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:02pm
Subject: No Deals for Bill

Its incredible to see how some want to continue to coddle Bill Gates and Microsoft. This is the biggest antitrust case since Standard Oil. Instead of considering ways to extend their monopoly into the education system, we should be formulating ways to remove their unfair advantage and punish them for their predatory, imperialistic business practices. A couple of suggests: open source the operating system code; break up the company by OS, Applications, Development Environments and Internet; and apply punitive damages commiserate with past damages and future earnings of its victims. Here's a chance to put real competition back into the software and operating systems business, don't blow it!

MTC-00010847

From: Gregory Brewer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 1:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gregory Brewer
1227 SW 149th Lane
Sunrise, FL 33326
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gregory A. Brewer

MTC-00010848

From: Jon Viscott
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 2:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jon Viscott
8581 Santa Monica Blvd.
West Hollywood, CA 90069
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jon Viscott

MTC-00010849

From: Jo Ann Sedars
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 2:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jo Ann Sedars
3714 North Shore Drive
Clear Lake, IA 50428
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jo Ann Sedars

MTC-00010850

From: Penney Williams
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 2:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Penney Williams
4946 Mathews Ave
Indianapolis, IN 46227-4223
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Penney Williams

MTC-00010851

From: Lucia Foley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:19pm
Subject: Bonanza

The proposed "punishment" for Microsoft seems, in fact, to be a marketing bonanza for the company that facilitates the sort of non-competitive actions the firm is to be sanctioned for. This makes absolutely no sense whatsoever, and will simply assist Microsoft in killing the competition for once and for all—and far more rapidly than they could on their own. The existence of other operating systems such as Apple and Linux is essential for encouraging innovation and keeping pricing competitive.

Lucia Foley
Lucia Foley
Director of Communications
Hampshire Educational Collaborative 97 Hawley Street
Northampton, MA 01060
413-586-4900 x109 / 413-586-0180 fax www.collaborative.org
e-mail: info@collaborative.org

MTC-00010852

From: W. Nathaniel Mills, III
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Please read my note below originally sent to Richard Blumenthal, AG, State of CT.

Thank you,
Nat.

Forwarding...

Monday, January 14, 2002 3:16 PM

To: "W. Nathaniel Mills, III"

<nat@classobjects.com>

cc:

Subject: Re: Thanks for not supporting DOJ cave-in to MS

"W. Nathaniel Mills, III" wrote:

It makes me proud to reside in a state not afraid to seek justice, regardless of the potential political fallout. Please continue to pursue litigation against Microsoft. They have done so much to constrain innovation in the personal (and now business) computer marketplace, it would be a shame to see them walk away with little more than a slap on the wrist. The first question investors ask small technology companies seeking funds is "what will you do when Microsoft replicates your technology and offers it for free?" How can you counter such a question, unless you believe you have some remedy in the courts to be protected from such aggressive, monopolistic behavior?

Best Regards, Nat
W. Nathaniel Mills, III
16 Deer Hill Lane
Coventry, CT, 06238
860 742 7646

Dear Mr. Mills:

Thank you for your recent thoughtful correspondence concerning the Microsoft antitrust case.

As you know, on November 6, 2001, the United States Department of Justice and Microsoft filed a proposed settlement. I did not join that settlement because I do not believe it would accomplish the goals we set when we filed the case. Nor would it accomplish the remedial goals set by the U.S. Court of Appeals: (1) to prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future, (2) to spark competition in this industry; and (3) to deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains.

You may also express your opinion to the judge of the federal trial court considering this settlement by filing written comments with the United States Department of Justice by January 28, 2002, as follows:

Mail: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200

Washington, DC 20530-0001

[NOTE: Given recent mail delivery interruptions in Washington, DC, and current uncertainties involving the resumption of timely mail service, the Department of Justice strongly encourages that comments be submitted via e-mail or fax.]

E-mail: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov

In the Subject line of the e-mail, type "Microsoft Settlement."

Fax : 1-202-307-1454 or 1-202-616-9937

Please keep me informed of your opinions on the case.

Thank you again for contacting me.

Sincerely,
Richard Blumenthal
Attorney General

MTC-00010853

From: john@murphy.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's time to get on with business. Please accept the settlement that has been reached between Microsoft, the DOJ, and nine states. This bickering is a problem for our economy which is in a tenuous state right now. Let it go!

AGREE TO THE SETTLEMENT ALREADY REACHED AND STOP THE CONTINUING PROSECUTION OF MICROSOFT.

Thank you.

John Murphy
109 Pine Wood Lane
Los Gatos, CA 95032
John Murphy

MTC-00010854

From: Dguildner@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:31pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

I wonder how many millions is being spent of taxpayers money to continue the case against Microsoft. Is the government really concerned about monopoly now after they have made a ruling, or is it just politics and competitors getting their state governments to continue on for the special interest of those companies? I am weary of it. Let it go and let the people benefit rather than use taxpayers money to pay for the competitors wish lists.

Diane Guildner

MTC-00010855

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR,microsoftcomments
@doj.ca.gov@inetgw

Date: 1/14/02 3:32pm

Subject: ; Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,

I am a 20 year software executive who has had the opportunity to both partner with Microsoft and compete against Microsoft during my career. As such, I have spent time in Redmond, WA and gotten to know firsthand both the culture, and Machiavellian management philosophy that has been a legacy at Microsoft.

In recent days, I have come to know through an ex-colleague some of the details relating to the Proposed Settlement made by the Justice Department with Microsoft, and to say the least, I am displeased by them. This is why I am writing to you today.

Your Honor, how could the Justice Department grant Microsoft a government-mandated monopoly of the software industry and even worse—other technology markets? Clearly, this decision would seriously jeopardize all competitors—both now and in the future. This decision would clearly violate some basic principals of Capitalism, such as our right to choose, our right to fair competition, fair pricing, etc.

In closing, your Honor, I submit to you that like never before in our Country's history, Microsoft has unequivocally shown itself to be the proverbial 800 pound gorilla. Their illegal conduct and activities (bribing & threatening partners and competitors) have been proven time and time again. I would like to see Microsoft be brought to justice for the good of our country, our economy, and most of all- the good of our people. I like millions of other Americans are counting on you, and counting on justice to prevail.

Respectfully,
Joseph Cortale
Senior Vice President of Sales
jcortale@eloquent.com
Eloquent

2000 Alameda de Las Pulgas
Suite 100
San Mateo CA 94403
Tel: (650) 294-6474
www.eloquent.com

This email may contain confidential and privileged material for the sole use of the intended recipient. Any review by others is strictly prohibited. If you are not the intended recipient please contact the sender and delete all copies.

MTC-00010856

From: Ken McFadden

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom this may concern:

I am a System Administrator and am appalled by the Settlement against Microsoft. Even today, MicroSoft is still trying to impose and force Windows products on all users (this is evident in their latest OS's in their implementation of MIT's Kerberos and LDAP). In today's "Hell'ter Skelter" world of terrorism, it is more imperative that Corporate America be able to secure their computer systems to the highest degree.

Kerberos is one product that allows that higher security needed today regardless of the platform. MicroSoft has once again embedded a standard into their OS, but doing what they know best, and that is disabling it from working with the true standard. As soon as someone devised a solution to higher security along with a means where Windows and Unix machines could talk between each other and maintain common user ID's and Passwords, Microsoft has to block it and once again making it impossible for users to have both Microsoft and Unix products together (or impose Microsoft's solutions to enable it to work).

Every Computer Professional in the US is tuned into the issue with MicroSoft's Monopoly case, of which we are broken into 2 groups. One who only uses MicroSoft products and is ignorant to their practices. And the other who use both types of platforms. As myself, I work for Lockheed Martin, which contracts to the Government, and due to reliability and security reasons we are required to use Unix on certain applications. MicroSoft continuously makes my job harder day to day.

If Microsoft is allowed to continue practicing these methods where one day everyone gets fed-up and moves to Microsoft, thus allowing a tremendous hole in our Corporate America and National Security. As it is Microsoft products are known to be very buggy. Microsoft needs to concentrate on improving the reliability of their current products before attempting to mess-up others with reliable products in an attempt to block others from making a buck.

I pray that regardless of what Microsoft may throw your way to muddy up the water, you will stay true to what is best for this Nation. Personnel opinion is Microsoft should be split where they could focus on Operating Systems only thereby improving the product for all customers.

Sincerely,
Kenneth M. McFadden

MTC-00010857

From: Peg and Phil Walker

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:42pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We believe the government suit against Microsoft has gone on long enough. It has been very expensive and we fail to see how it has served the interest of the public.

Sincerely,
Philip & Margaret Walker
2435 Felt Street #118
Santa Cruz CA 95062

MTC-00010858

From: WKOPPE5955@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

THE SETTLEMENT IS VERY FAIR-UNDER ATTORNEY JANET RENO CLINTONITE INVESTIGATIONS WERE STOPPED WITH OUT JUST CAUSE REOPEN ALL.THIS LIBERAL THINKING CAUSED 911.ONLY A COMMUNIST THINKS GOVERNMENT SHOULD CONTROL A FREE MARKET.ARE YOU ONE STOP BEING ANTIBUSINESS AND ANTIAMERICAN.AOL CHANGED THE MARKET SHARE WITH PURCHASE OF NETSCAPE AND THE CONSUMER WAS NOT HURT.IT IS TIME FOR YOU ALLEDGED EDUCATED PEOPLE TO GO BACK TO SCHOOL AND STOP BEING A CLINTON FOOL.BILL GATES AND THE INTERNET ARE AMERICAS NUMBER 1 INDUSTRY AND HE IS LEADING THE WAY AND THIS MAN WILL STAY AT HIS SIDE ALL THE WAY AND THEN SOME.ONLY ONE QUESTION ARE YOU7 A VETERAN IF NOT SIT DOWN AND ZIP THE LIP LIBERAL-I AM PROUD TO BE A REAGAN REPUBLICAN AMERICAN BORN VETERAN WHOSE FAMILY CAME HERE IN 1742 AND LEAD THE WAY WITH COMPETITION AS PRESIDENT LINCLON STATED A SOCIETY LIKE OURS MUST AN SHALL REMAIN FREE.AS A GRADUATE IN BUSINESS FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF SAN FRANCISCO THE PEOPLE HAVE DECIDED ACCEPT THE DEAL DECERTIFY THE CLASS ACTION FROM THIS POINT WHERE THE REMAINING IDIOTS PAY FOR THEIR STUPIDITY.FOR THE RECORD I NOTE JIM RYAN ATTORNEY GENERAL FELT THE DEAL WAS ACCEPTABLE.THIS MAN WILL BE REWARD FOR HIS UNDERSTANDING YOU CAN ADDRESS HIM GOVERNOR JAMES RYAN-THE GOOD RYAN-END OF THIS STORY AND GOD GETS THE GLORY-END THIS UNAMERICAN ERA NOW AND THAT GENTLEMEN WILL BE THE ORDER-ASK SLICK WILLY WHAT HAPPENED TO HIS LAW LICENSE AND LEGALLY HE ADMITTED LYING WHAT ABOUT THE RENO GROUP WE AMERICANS WANT THE TRUTH AND THIS IS A DEMAND TO REVIEW JANET RENO AND ALL THE LAWYERS UNDER HER SUPERVISION FOR ANY AND ALL RICO VIOLATIONS BECAUSE THEIR SEEMS TO BE AN APPARENT MISCARRIAGE OF JUSTICE AND MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.START THGE INVESTIGATION TODAY WIRTHOUT HESITATION THANK YO

MTC-00010859

From: morgwyn@willmar.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is in the best interest of our national and international economic enterprises that Microsoft is allowed to continue to bring innovative value to consumers through the content of it s products and services while also providing existing and new business opportunities for the global economic good.

MTC-00010860

From: gstrange@carolina.rr.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time for the suit against Microsoft to be over. The Justice Department should accept the settlement and encourage all the other States to do the same so that our economy can recover.

MTC-00010861

From: deggansr@mbxinc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

What the courts came up with is fine. Let's get on with business.

MTC-00010862

From: blackshack1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's been resolved. Get on with it.

MTC-00010863

From: ceo@ltu.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

For the past ten years I have been President of a high tech university in Michigan. Earlier in my career I practiced anti-trust law in Washington DC mostly before the FTC and the DC Circuit. I believe the proposed settlement should be approved. While it is more than the law requires and is ill advised it will at least put the matter behind us. The anti-trust laws are intended to protect markets and consumers not competitors. Regardless of proven monopolistic behavior there has been no showing of harm to markets or consumers. When viewing the loci of the Ps this remaining prosecution itself sounds of champerty on the surface and its sanctions threaten the vitality of technological innovation in this country which will put us at a global competitive disadvantage. My attorney general saw the importance of this competitiveness to Michigan a state which is key to keeping America economically strong and agrees with my recommendation.

MTC-00010865

From: SandraKallander@mediaone.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As I am not a stockholder in any of the companies involved I don't think I or the government has any business in this matter at all. The consumer me has more power than Microsoft and the government put together. We are not threatened or endangered. You are being used.

S.

MTC-00010866

From: jharrison@dataworks-nc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern: I support the settlement crafted between Microsoft and the US DOJ. I don't feel the case was warranted from its inception. Millions of taxpayers dollars have been unjustly spent in a lawsuit that was targeted at protecting the competitors of Microsoft not consumer best interest. I do believe that some of Microsoft's licensing practices and their heavy-handed approach in working with OEM system builders were in question. The trial and settlement did make progress in that area despite the process being in efferent at accomplishing these specific goals. After being in the technology industry for well over 12 years now I can honestly say that the actions of the DOJ did not reflect the best interest of consumers the technology industry or this nation as a whole. At this point in time proceeding with the settlement and curtailing the actions of the remaining litigation against Microsoft would be the best action taken for all involved.

Sincerely
Jason S. Harrison

MTC-00010867

From: storrsdewolf@worldnet.att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This country is so much better off because of Microsoft's development of software that everyone can use. It is because it is easy to use and because just about everyone who works with computers uses common software that Microsoft has been so successful. This is not monopolistic! Settle and let Microsoft and their competitors get on with developing new and even better software instead of spending so much time on this suit.

John DeWolf

MTC-00010868

From: chiefrob2@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I personally think the economy has been greatly effected by the government's attempt to break up Microsoft. It appears to me that the people who work hard and are successful or that contribute anything to society are punished for their efforts. It is time the producers benefit for a change and in the process the people as a whole will benefit. I say it is time to let this thing go.

MTC-00010869

From: chynadahll1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough is enough you've gotten your pound of flesh from Microsoft. And their competitors are seeking the elimination of Microsoft because Microsoft was a leader in the field and they want only to use the Government to get Microsoft out of their way. And the TAX payers are tired of footing the bill even if you claim the Litigants are footing all the costs. There could be better use of the Judges time on more pertinent cases.

MTC-00010870

From: expressflowers@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I hereby strongly endorse this settlement. thank you

MTC-00010871

From: drittler@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Discontinue any further action against Microsoft.

MTC-00010872

From: beefydave@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To R. Hesse People with more education than I have come up with the decision on the Microsoft thing and therefore it must be as close to the fairest of outcomes concerning everyone effected. I suppose in another 20 years or so we'll really know.

MTC-00010873

From: donamill@bellsouth.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settle with Microsoft as soon as possible. enough is enough. Let private enterprise live thrive and be free of government control.

MTC-00010874

From: bigmagic@modempool.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I guess you can call it a win for Microsoft but I call it a compromise in Capitalism and Freedom. The US was founded on the principles of Capitalism and Freedom and we should strive to maintain those principles. When IBM ran the PC show and everything you bought had to be IBM compatible no one complained except for the consumers. Microsoft came along and made a better product much cheaper and easier to use and suddenly we have a problem...we have a monopoly not unlike IBM had but because some politicians are in IBM's pockets the DOJ was suckered into taking a communistic act.... We have to break up Microsoft. Because of this action the US economy was thrown into a recession. The suit can argue all they want but many of us knew when we heard of the DOJ's plans exactly what would happen. If I were to cause such an action that would affect the entire country I would be in prison. A win for Microsoft? Maybe. We will see.

MTC-00010875

From: carnut1965@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it concerns: Prolonging the case against Microsoft is a waste of tax payers money. This litigation has gone on long enough. Microsoft's competitors should take the money they are spending to prolong this litigation should be used to improve and research products to compete with Microsoft. They are sore losers because they didn't come up with the ideas first.

MTC-00010876

From: longuski@juno.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the settlement with Microsoft is VERY appropriate. I am tired of competitors who are not willing to work at competition tying up our court system only to cause a higher cost to the consumer. Let s see the courts start working on some real issues!!!

MTC-00010877

From: cu8@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft offer for settlement should be accepted and a closure to this case. The case is slowing down a industry.

MTC-00010878

From: dfessen@tetrinet.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please let the verdict stand. Our Gov.hounded the Auto Industry so that Imports are taking more and more market share. Let s NOT REPEAT!

MTC-00010879

From: dstev55539@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the settlement is fair. Any company in the past had the opportunity to come up with an operational system if they had wanted to the only one was linux who has a lot of faithful followers. This agreement allows competition from all who want to participate. Do whats right and settle it now.

MTC-00010880

From: BelzAcadmy@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let the decision stand as it is presently settled. Sincerely Andrea Belz

MTC-00010881

From: flapolecat@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen: It is with great regret that I see this problem is not fully resolved. As a senior citizen and retired living on income derived from investments it is of the utmost concern that this problem is finally resolved. Although I personally would not have agreed to the terms of the agreement they being very bad for an industry based on innovation since Microsoft feels they can continue to support the public under these restrictions the matter should be settled for the good of the consumer and the country.
Fred Budukiewicz

MTC-00010882

From: texmur01@interserv.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the finding of the DOJ and support finalizing the case as is. I sent two page fax last week explaining why.

MTC-00010883

From: dheckh@mindspring.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The last thing our economy and the entire high tech sector needs is more uncertainty and regulation.

Please settle this lawsuit and end the persecution of Microsoft. This litigation has caused more financial hardship to thousands (probably millions) of stockholders and to the economy than anything Microsoft could ever have done. It s time to move on and let Microsoft get back to the business of doing what they do best—making life better for all of us. Klara Hunt

MTC-00010884

From: blw50@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leave the man alone he has done more for the computer world and everyone else is jealous of it this is a free enterprize country isn t it. What a waste of money the people of this country has had to spend to do all of this court bussiness on MS.

MTC-00010885

From: billsuehop@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to end this misguided suit against Microsoft. The computer industry has benefitted greatly by Microsoft there is no reason to continue to persecut this company. Stop wasting Microsoft s and our country s time and money and end this suit. Sincerely William M. Hopper

MTC-00010886

From: huntingbeagles@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It s my strong belief that this settlement is in the best interest of everyone—the technology industry the economy and especially consumers. Since the settlement newspaper editorials from across the nation and across the ideological spectrum have endorsed the settlement. Microsoft competitors shouldn t be holding up this settlement. We can t allow greedy companies to hold up progress.

Sincerely
Cosmo Stallone

MTC-00010887

From: sthompson292811MI@comcast.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is a sad day for american businesses and the general public if the courts of this land allow competitors to sue because they can not build a better mouse trap and courts order a these companies from building better mouse traps. Where would this country be today if the courts stifled every inventive thought just because somebody else yelled foul. Stop this insanity now and get this country back on the road that was laid out for use by our founding fathers.

MTC-00010888

From: bskoehler@bellsouth.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to end this on-going legal battle. A society that chooses Capitalism believes in an economic system marked by a free market and open competition in which goods are produced for profit labor is performed for wages and the means of production & distribution are privately owned. Microsoft is a formidable competitor that is to be admired. May the best company with the best products & services succeed!!

MTC-00010889

From: tee@nonantum.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Take the settlement with Microsoft! I m so sick of this dragging on—for what? Some jealous competitors who whine? Focus efforts where it s really needed not in the already-competitive world of technology.

MTC-00010890

From: dwb15@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please approve the settlement made between the federal government and various state attorneys general with Microsoft. Enough already!!!

MTC-00010891

From: bstawink1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Do not attempt to change the current court decision of Nov. 2001

MTC-00010893

From: Chris Norloff
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I oppose the proposed settlement with Microsoft. I find the proposed settlement weak, and not in the customers' best interests. The proposed settlement will not ensure competition in the marketplace, and will not restrain Microsoft from further monopolistic practices.

thank you,
Chris Norloff
508 N. West St.
Falls Church, VA
22046-2517

MTC-00010894

From: pmurphre@indiana.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 3:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Penalties

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to express my concern over the proposed settlement being considered in the case against Microsoft. Not only will the settlement in its current form do nothing to restrict Microsoft's monopoly, it does not actually punish the corporation for a crime of which it has already been found guilty. Therefore, the settlement should include components that force Microsoft to open its documentation so that other companies can design software to make the computer industry truly competitive. This is the reasoning behind antitrust laws, is it not. Furthermore, Microsoft must be stopped from including their software as a prepackaged part of virtually every personal computer on the market these days. I chose not to use the Windows operating system and was extremely distressed when attempting to buy a new computer that I had to subsidize Microsoft with the purchase price of my computer since I could not find one in any mainstream store that did not come with Microsoft software pre-installed. This is an intolerable and monopolistic practice that should be stopped. As a concerned consumer, citizen and someone interested in the fate of information technology, I humbly ask that the proposed settlement be reconsidered so that it will indeed prohibit Microsoft from retaining its monopoly in the computer industry. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Patrick D. Murphree
1015 N. College Ave,
#1
Bloomington, IN 47404

MTC-00010895

From: Terri Dow@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:52pm

Subject: accept settlement

Reed and Terri Dow
12302 NW43rd Court
Vancouver, WA 98685
360-574-9641

terridow@aol.com

U.S. Department of Justice
Antitrust Division
601D Street, #1200
Washington, DC 20530

Email: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov

January 14, 2002

To Whom it May Concern:

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call 'product tying' to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for 'tying' would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court's drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability.'

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation -the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,
Reed and Terri Dow

MTC-00010896

From: Frank Baxter

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:52pm

Subject: Objection to the settlement

As a member of the computing industry, I do not see how the proposed settlement even comes close to providing remedy for the antitrust violations committed by Microsoft. This company has continually removed competition using their OS monopoly, raised prices for inferior products, and forced consumers to pay for software that they do not use nor want. Despite this, the settlement fails to address these issues, nor any of the other issues they were already found guilty of in a court of law.

Although I understand that the events on 10/11 may cause some to think a quick settlement, no matter how weak, is a service to the country. I completely disagree. Forcing consumers to pay a Microsoft tax will do nothing to promote the economy. The proposed changes to their operating system will reinforce their monopoly, forcing consumers to pay even more charges for transactions that only Microsoft will be able to broker.

I urge you to reconsider this settlement now, before it is too late.

Sincerely,
Frank Baxter
CTO Synthesys Technologies, Inc.
65 Stansel Court
Springboro, OH 45066

MTC-00010897

From: nharding%ou.edu@ou.edu@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:54pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the Bush administration in calling for a settlement in the Microfost case.

Nathaniel Harding
Norman, Oklahoma

MTC-00010898

From: Pete Norloff

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:54pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am against the proposed settlement with Microsoft. The proposed settlement is weak and not in consumer's or the country's best interests. The proposed settlement will not ensure competition in the marketplace, and will not restrain Microsoft from further monopolistic practices. Further, the proposed settlement fails to extract ill-gotten gains that Microsoft has obtained illegally.

Sincerely,
Peter Norloff
10820 Miller Road
Oakton, VA 22124
703-938-4343

MTC-00010899

From: David Schaub

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 3:41pm

I would like to voice my concern about Department of Justice's settlement with Microsoft.

David Schaub
4507 Hollow Oaks Dr.
Chapel Hill, NC 27516
davidschaub@mindspring.com

MTC-00010900

From: Frank Vitello

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:14pm
 Subject: Microsoft Comments
 Ms. Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 D. Street, NW
 Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530-0001
 Re: Comments on the Microsoft Proposed Settlement Agreement

Dear Ms. Hesse:

This will serve as the comments of Defenders of Property Rights on the settlement agreement that the Department of Justice has proposed in its antitrust litigation with the Microsoft Corporation. Settlement of the litigation with Microsoft is in the best interest of all parties involved to avoid prolonging a questionable case, which seemed to be initiated more with the anticipated remedy of a multi-million dollar settlement as an objective than sound antitrust policy. Moreover, as our comments below discuss, settlement of this litigation is in the public interest.

Settlement of This Lawsuit Will Bring to An End A Lawsuit That Was At Odds With The Constitution's Protections of Intellectual Property. When the Constitution was ratified, the framers highlighted the importance of protecting intellectual property rights. In Article I, Section 8, the Constitution authorizes Congress to "promote the progress of science and useful arts, by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries." U.S. Const. art. I, § 8.

Moreover, all property rights, including that of intellectual property, were given further protection by the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which states: "no property shall be taken for public use, without just compensation." U.S. Const. amend. V. The purpose of the Fifth Amendment is to ensure that property owners have the right to possess, use and profit from their property, whether that property is tangible in the form of a family farm, or intangible in the form of a computer operating system. There is no question that a bulk of Microsoft's vast assets is comprised of intangible intellectual property, commonly known as patents, copyrights, trade secrets, brand names, market presence and intellectual know-how. In its zeal to enforce the antitrust laws, however, the Justice Department has apparently forgotten the Constitution protects all forms of property, including Microsoft's intellectual property.

Antitrust Enforcement Should Enhance, Not Undermine The Constitutional Protections of Intellectual Property. In its antitrust litigation with Microsoft, the Justice Department has proposed that Microsoft be broken into smaller pieces or that Microsoft should be forced to fully or partially relinquish its intellectual property rights to competitors. In addition, the Justice Department has suggested that Microsoft be forced to disclose its "source code," or the software blueprint for its operating system, Windows, which some consider to be the "crown jewel" of the software industry. Such disclosure would allow competitors to gain access to immediate updates on the Windows system so they can also release their updated software at the same time that Microsoft releases a new Windows version.

Since competitors, on average, usually release a new product a year after Microsoft releases a new Windows version, the government's plan would preclude Microsoft from, for a limited time, profiting exclusively from the fruits of its labor and investment—which strikes at the heart of the free-market economy. If the government were to have its way, not only would it be destroying the free-market principles on which this country is based, but it would also be taking private property for public use, without payment of just compensation, contrary to the Fifth Amendment's guarantees. See Kimball Laundry v. United States, 338 U.S. 1, 3-4, 11 (1949) (holding that loss of intellectual property—skilled management, good will and advertising—was taken and just compensation due: "[T]he intangible acquires a value . . . no different than the value of the business' physical property.").

Microsoft has indeed been successful in the use of its intellectual property rights. However, Microsoft entered the industry thirteen years ago, when computer software and related technological investments were risky financial undertakings. As such, Microsoft earned its wealth as a result of its original ideas and innovative technological breakthroughs in the computer software industry. Thus, by virtue of the patent and copyright laws, the reward to Microsoft for the creation of its intellectual property rights has already been weighed against the rights of its competitors. To force Microsoft to give up its hard-earned property rights, and the reward resulting therefrom, is not the valid enforcement of antitrust laws, but an uncompensated taking of private property.

In short, the Microsoft antitrust litigation has posed various legal and constitutional barriers for the government. Defenders of Property Rights applauds the current administration in its efforts to put an end to the lawsuit. We agree that now is the time to foster the growth of American companies and to encourage the innovative, entrepreneurial spirit of Americans, and not to continue to selectively pursue the innovators of our country, at all costs—at the expense of the economy, the consumer and our Constitution. In sum, Defenders strongly encourages the Justice Department to approve the proposed settlement agreement and finally put an end to its case against Microsoft.

Yours truly,
 Nancie G. Marzulla
 President, Defenders of Property Rights
 Frank A. Vitello
 Defenders of Property Rights
 1350 Connecticut Ave., NW, Ste. 410
 Washington, DC 20036
 202. 822.6770
 Toll Free: 866. 630.9787
 202. 822.6774 facsimile
www.yourpropertyrights.org

MTC-00010901

From: Joe Maranto
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:11pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have attached my thoughts on the above referenced settlement for your consideration. Please let me know that you have received this letter. Thank you.

Respectfully,
 Joe Maranto
 Joseph V. Maranto
 8 Graveswood Court
 Baltimore, MD 21234-1451

January 14, 2002
 BY FAX 1-202-307-1454
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 United States Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing to ask that you give your immediate approval to the agreement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. I believe this settlement is fair and equitable for the country and for business alike. Microsoft has done as much for the computer trade and its users as Goodyear has done for auto production. Microsoft is the wheels and fuel that make computers work.

With all due respect, I believe the antitrust suit brought against Microsoft was unnecessary and unfounded. Personally, I use Microsoft Windows out of choice because Microsoft's software programs are the best on the market. It is my understanding that Microsoft has agreed in the settlement to assist the computer industry by opening up its intellectual property rights to its Windows internal interfaces, and license its property on a non-discriminatory basis. This is bound to stimulate the economy and do great things for the entire industry.

In conclusion, I am asking you to allow Microsoft to get back to business without this cloud and legal case as a major distraction to its daily business of developing the best software in the world.

Respectfully Yours,
 Joseph V. Maranto
 VP Cignal Mortgage Corp

MTC-00010902

From: sharpe jones
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:17pm
 Subject: Microsoft
 120 Greensview Dr.
 Madison, MS 39110-8854
 601-856-2950
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania
 Ave, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001
 January 14, 2002

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

There appears to be an opportunity to settle the Microsoft antitrust case now. In view of all the other pressing matters facing us, I would urge you to finalize the Microsoft case as soon as possible. My request is not made because I like Microsoft, but because I feel they were shaken down by the previous administration. Their crime was standardizing and promoting software that the entire world liked and used- except for a few of their competitors! These products increased US productivity greatly and the price was reasonable.

It was a very sad day when the Clinton DOJ attacked one of the crown jewels of American technology and helped accelerate the decline in the US equity market. I pray you will do the right thing and close this bad chapter as soon as possible. Thanking you, I remain

Sincerely,
John S. Jones

MTC-00010903

From: jack williamson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.
Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft

The purpose of this letter is to express my ardent support for the settlement reached last November between the department of justice and Microsoft. As a corporation, Microsoft has done more for the technology industry than any other corporation in American history. In turn, the litigation against Microsoft for the past three years is matched by the decline in our once prosperous technology industry. This coincidence must not be underestimated.

The settlement shows much compromise between the two sides of this issue. Microsoft has agreed for the creation of an outside technical committee. Under the stipulations of the agreement, this committee is to come as an outside third party. The purpose of this committee is to ensure compliance with the settlement agreement. This technical committee, then, will assure the efficacy of the agreement.

I hope you will consider the plight of the technology industry when reviewing this settlement. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,
Jack E. Williamson

MTC-00010904

From: Kelly McCullough
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:39pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I've been involved in computer centered physics curriculum development for more than 6 years, and have used both Microsoft and non-Microsoft operating systems, development tools, and applications. I am deeply by the proposed settlement, and I would very much like to see Judge Kollar-Kotelly address these flaws. What is included:

1. A five-year limit. Microsoft's antitrust begotten profits have accrued over a decade of illegal monopolistic practices. Five years seems inadequate to restore the marketplace to a level of normal competition. Even if the settlement didn't provide mechanisms (noted below) which Microsoft can use to hamper the implementors of the proposed settlement, the enforcement period should be at least equal to Microsoft's monopolistic practices. Also, certain structural elements of a sound settlement should probably be enforced in perpetuity.

2. Microsoft's voice on the technical committee. It seems unreasonable for a confirmed monopolist to choose its guards. Given the pervasive influence of Microsoft in the market, and its persistent monopolistic behavior, it is dubious proposition at best that their chosen representative, and representative who can be vetoed by that person, will primarily have the interests of the public at heart. Watchdogs chosen by Microsoft, on the Microsoft payroll, and working fulltime in secrecy on the Microsoft campus, do not meet any reasonable criteria for impartiality.

3. Crafting a feature that allows Microsoft to dispute costs gives Microsoft a built-in mechanism for sandbagging. Quote: "Microsoft may, on application to the Court, object to the reasonableness of any such fees or other expenses. On any such application: (a) the burden shall be on Microsoft to demonstrate unreasonableness; and (b) the TC member(s) shall be entitled to recover all costs incurred on such application (including reasonable attorneys' fees and costs), regardless of the Court's disposition of such application, unless the Court shall expressly find that the TC's opposition to the application was without substantial justification." Given the vast wealth Microsoft has obtained by monopolistic abuses of the consuming public, setting enforcement expenses as "reasonable", and giving Microsoft a mechanism for subpoenaing their overseers is an invitation to trouble. Microsoft's bearing of the "expenses" of such activity will be trivial, and more than compensated by the implicit protection of any future monopolistic behavior concealed from the technical committee. It also allows Microsoft to run out the clock at a very cheap cost. The technical committee should have a free hand, and an unlimited budget underwritten by Microsoft.

4. Microsoft has implicit control over who is permitted to be their competitor. Quote: "(c) meets reasonable, objective standards established by Microsoft for certifying the authenticity and viability of its business..." Why does Microsoft get to apply the litmus test of the "authenticity and viability" of who is permitted to see their APIs? Quote: "Microsoft shall disclose to ISVs, IHVs, IAPs, ICPs, and OEMs, for the sole purpose of interoperating with a Windows Operating System Product, via the Microsoft Developer Network ("MSDN") or similar mechanisms, the APIs and related Documentation that are used by Microsoft Middleware to interoperate with a Windows Operating System Product."

Doesn't Microsoft have control over who participates in their proprietary MSDN program, and don't they set criteria of participation (eg, nondisclosure, etc)? This is one of the very mechanisms by which Microsoft has implemented its monopolistic strategy. Such APIs should be freely distributed to the public, not sold to the few acceptable competitors that Microsoft designates, on terms of their own setting. Allowing Microsoft to use their MSDN mechanism and decide which business is authentic and viable is too weak. It specifically gives Microsoft a mechanism to exclude open source developers, academics, etc.

What is left out:

5. Recompense. Microsoft has illegally profited for years from its monopolistic practices. That money rightfully belongs to the public, and should be returned to the public. It should be fairly straightforward to measure the average profitability of their nearest competitors vs. Microsoft's illegally enhanced profit margins, thus determining how much Microsoft illegally profited. Perhaps this money could be funneled into educational grants for computer hardware and (completely non-Microsoft) software for elementary, secondary, and college tuition. These funds should easily cover the expense of putting (for example) a MacIntosh computer on the desktop of every student in public schools, state universities, etc.

6. Punitive damages. Over and above returning the ill-gotten gains to the public, Microsoft should be penalized for their illegal activities.

7. Document formats. Microsoft enforces its monopoly by keeping its file formats proprietary. Since Microsoft chooses which competing operating systems to support with their applications, companies who have been monopolistically pressured into buying Microsoft applications (eg, MS Office) are trapped on the Microsoft platform by their inability to migrate their (proprietary and copyrighted) corporate data to other operating systems. This is key. Microsoft applications compel users to stick with Microsoft operating systems, this perpetuating their monopoly. The only remedy would be to open up their file formats (or possibly to require them to provide fully and publicly documented import/export features that allowed users to migrate all their data (including "objects" such as forms, reports, etc.) to competing products, and to likewise recreate data from compliant import files (even if created by competing products). In other words, the public deserves a way to get all their data out of Microsoft products, and Microsoft should pay for providing such a mechanism.

I've heard the rationale that punishing Microsoft would be bad for the economy. Does that mean that we have two brands of justice? One for those who commit crimes large enough to endanger the economy and one for people who commit smaller thefts? Secondly, the leverage Microsoft has in the economy was acquired through illegal monopolistic practices, and the judgment should not perpetuate the consequences of these practices. Third, monopolists have always been bad for the economy, the contrary arguments of monopolists notwithstanding. And finally, the amount of money from recompense and punitive damages, pumped back into the economy in such a way as to stimulate competition in the computer software field, should provide an enormous economic boost.

American citizens are counting on Judge Kollar-Kotelly to faithfully perform her solemn duty to uphold justice by preventing this weak and flawed proposed settlement from being implemented, and properly addressing the true interests of the United States of America by returning the ill-gotten wealth from Microsoft to the public from whom they stole it, further penalizing Microsoft financially, and crafting structural remedies to prevent Microsoft from committing the same crimes again.

Sincerely,

MTC-00010905

From: raydor@nwonline.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:
 Its time to let this settlement go through. Greedy attorneys should not have more. Its time to let commercial interests work for the market—not being tied up in courts. This country was developed on free enterprise. This is a good settlement. Thank you.

Ray Rogers

MTC-00010906

From: emmert@web-access.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please accept the agreement between DOJ and Microsoft and end the infernal uncertainty that s plagued the markets for years. The suit against Microsoft has probably done more to undermine both investor confidence and citizen confidence in government than any single occurrence over past decades. Please put an end to it!

MTC-00010907

From: weep@gte.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Time for the states attorney generals to call it quits and get about the business for which they were elected and stop wasting taxpayers dollars. The settlement is more than fair. Competitors should not use the government as a crutch.

MTC-00010908

From: mail@hand-shake.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft are the robber barons of today. they steal from the poor or at best pennies on the dollar then claim it as their own. they eliminate competition by hiding their operating system features until they have announced their own products which corner the market before anyone can compete. their contributions to politicians to stop their split is pure pay off. do not let them get away with this. They stifle creativity stifle a free flowing marketplace by blocking others from competing and prevent BETTER products from entering the marketplace by their operating system monopoly. Its like the Detroit car people always saying they knew what people wanted...then the Japanese came along and proved them wrong. Microsoft needs COMPETITION to improve and we need an open market place to give consumers a better option.

Microsoft products are buggy crash often and yet they have cornered the market because they own the monopoly. This is at the core of the anti trust laws. stop them and stop them now.let new businesses grow and thrive by preventing them from their continued cornering of the market place and the flooding of same with mediocre products.

MTC-00010909

From: FIRSTABOREAN@worldnet.att.net

@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to see the Microsoft antitrust case settled now and finally. As a consumer of software products (I am a writer of fiction and other literary materials) I deeply appreciate the way that Microsoft has made my work easier and much less expensive. They should not be punished for being successful they should not be penalized for making computer technology affordable and they should not be made less competitive despite the wishes of their competitors. Microsoft competed in the marketplace and won and their opponents have tried to trump their triumph by competing politically. Those competitors should not get away with that.

MTC-00010910

From: tpatti@mindspring.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft is a proven monopolist and is currently working to keep the prices of personal computers and personal computer operating systems unnaturally high with their monopoly status. The company should be broken up into separate companies for each of it s operating systems (a company for MS-DOS Windows 95 Windows 98 Windows 2000 Windows NT etc) and a company that sells software to run on personal computers. Monopolies like Microsoft hurt consumers and keep technology out of the hands of the poor and force obsolescence on older computers by refusing to support older operating systems.

MTC-00010911

From: Egentry5@junio.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please stop the Microsoft law suit and take the settlement as Offered. We think enough is enough!!

MTC-00010912

From: dougcooks4u.icu82@junio.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please press forward to settle this matter without further litigation. I think the settlement agreement is reasonable. It should be settled promptly.

MTC-00010913

From: dpg-man1@junio.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let the dead dog lie.

MTC-00010914

From: Chinamarine45@junio.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel if tech. companies want to develop new and better products. They should do so. Let the public decide if they want it or will buy it. We have so many regulation I bet their forgotten who or when it become law.

MTC-00010915

From: wchsr@bellatlantic.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It s time we get off Microsoft s back. Why are we penalizing a corporation for being competitive? Because they re successful? That certainly appears to be the case. The original argument— Explorer vs Netscape— was decided by customers like me. My ISP provided Netscape with its package. I got rid of netscape because it did not satisfy my needs. Case closed. My decision. No coercion from Microsoft.

That s why Microsoft has been successful: people like their product. When the whiners produce a better product people will buy it.

MTC-00010916

From: jim—in—nyc@hotmail.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the settlement reached by the Department of Justice is fair and equitable and deserves to be approved. Please end this case which has been promoted by Microsoft s competitors from the very beginning and has nothing to do with harm to consumer choice. Thank you James F. Shanley

MTC-00010917

From: dwdunaway@junio.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

i feel this was a fair settlement for concerned.i also think the remaining attorney generals should settle with what Microsoft has offered.

MTC-00010918

From: btrask3@hotmail.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The US Justice Dept. and the States Attorney Generals case to bring down one of the most successful American companies has hurt and is hurting not only consumers like myself . . . but ALL of the high tech industries. Competitors of Microsoft who were the motivation for this ill advised proceeding have put their self interest above the interests of America. This proceeding has given our GLOBAL competitors precious time to play catchup . . . providing them with the opportunity to steal our momentum as we lead the world into the Information Age. Enough is enough!!! Please settle this case and lets get back to what we all do best . . . and if Microsofts competitors can t compete with better more reliable products . . . then that is not Mirosofts fault. Consumers like myself will always act in our self interest and buy the superior product at the better price . . . thats why today I own windows office canvas quicken and other products . . . not all Microsoft . . . but the ones I consider the best value. Government should not be meddling in free enterprise. Settle this case now so we may get on with life! And our 401K s can recover from the justice departments tragic fumble. Bill Trask

MTC-00010919

From: fubecao@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This was a case that should never have happened. The economy has suffered enough because of it let it end NOW.

MTC-00010920

From: DAK7592@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leave Microsoft ALONE the judgment is enough!!

MTC-00010921

From: cwwhyble37@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it was fair judgment that was given.

MTC-00010922

From: jmel@adnc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the proposed settlement is disgusting from a consumer standpoint. It does nothing to improve the climate of competition in the Operating System/ software sector. Microsoft s contention that the status quo allows for improved innovation is patently absurd on its face and I think actually this proposed solution will have a continuing negative effect on improvement in the software field. Microsoft has in the past and continues in the present to attempt to block any competitive innovations. They have perverted standards to their own benefit and refused to allow others to write software which will work well with the Windows OS. They provide crippled renditions of proprietary software included with their own in attempt to drive competitors from the marketplace. Microsoft have made it virtually impossible to purchase a consumer grade computer with any operating system other than windows. My own personal experience has required me to spend over a thousand dollars during the past 5 years for software that I have never used and will not use in the future. By requiring that peripheral companies to only develop drivers for the Windows OS I am prevented from using many pieces of hardware that would make my computers more functional. I think the proposed solution should be dismissed out of hand. It does nothing to protect consumers and the computer industry in general from the monopolistic practices of Microsoft. It contains no real penalty for MS and encourages continued anticompetitive practices on Microsoft s part.

MTC-00010923

From: dan@apl.washington.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Too much taxpayers monies have already been wasted on this matter and now the whiners want to waste more. It s over let s move on . . .!

MTC-00010924

From: hossward@bright.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement with Microsoft is a win/win situation. Instead of a few people getting a few dollars this settlement will provide an opportunity for students to have computers in the classroom. It is a positive step forward in the No child will be left behind effort of this administration.

MTC-00010925

From: exileweb@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft is a monopoly for the people. Any action taken against it should not be designed to hurt the company which has done great things for us but instead to motivate them to help more. The settlement is a great idea and should be allowed to stand.

MTC-00010926

From: Kyle_Gross@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It s time to end this suit. From the beginning it was obvious that this suit was brought about by a few companies that could not compete on a level playing field with Microsoft. So they have tried to change the rules to inhibit inovation and creativity so their inferior products would be able to compete. As an end user of software products I have no allegiance to any particular company. If Sun Novell and the others can make a better product I will buy it. If they can not I will not. I don t need the government telling me what products I should buy or supporting inferior products just because they have many congressmen and attorney generals backing them in their individual states. In Utah (a Novell owned state) it is obvious the only reason they are pursuing this case is to further the profits of Novell not the pursuit of justice. If Sun and Novell would put as much effort in making better products as they have done in trying to bring down Microsoft they may have already produced a better product that clearly outsells Microsoft.

MTC-00010927

From: mstrayer@mw.sisna.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel it is time to settle this case. Our Government has let our technology lead slip to Japan. All of the things Americans invented and excelled in such as televisions VCR s camera s microwave ovens automobiles stereo s machine tool s and many more. We have a lead on the World in software let us support and not destroy this. It appears a few States Attorney General are holding up this settlement to further their own political carriers. Microsoft produces the most productive software for our business and home use at favorable prices.Lets let them continue so that our businesses can continue to have the productivity lead we now enjoy.

MTC-00010928

From: bcschnabel@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This whole thing should never have gone as far as it has. Microsoft has done nothing wrong except be the biggest and the best at what they do. Competition is good for the soul of the company. There have been many times where this is true. IBM and Xerox Apple and Dell. If these companies cannot come out with a better product to market to the general public then they don t deserve to be in business. If Microsoft was to be broken up it would just come back bigger and stronger than before. All one needs is to look at the phone companies like the Bells. They were accused of being A monopoly . They were broken up and the came back bigger and stronger. So lets leave well enough alone. If the others don t like whats going on then like the saying goes if you can t stand the heat get the heck out of the kitchen .

MTC-00010929

From: julwalters@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We have had enough harassment of MSFT. It s time to knock it off! Wrap up the suit against them and let private business get back to work not force them to be tied up in litigation!. Stop listening to anyone who doesn t like a company and tries to destroy that company. Enough is enough.

MTC-00010930

From: dianejacob@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I don t believe it was a good use of our tax dollars. Business is business. There are far more important issues to research and spend money on.

MTC-00010931

From: bobp@marketwriter.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement with Microsoft is the biggest rip-off of US industry and consumers that I have ever seen. I cannot imagine my so called government agreeing with such a lame settlement. Arquments as to the importance of the settlement to the economy are specious and in any event untrue. Microsoft broke the law. That conclusion is very clear. Last I looked this country punished lawbreakers. Microsoft should be severely punished. The proposed settlement does not come close to severe punishment. It is possible that top executives of the company should be imprisoned-yet there is no mention of that possibility in anything I have read. Placing appropriate restrictions on Microsoft given that the company is a monopoly will only help the US and world economy. Please understand that competition is a good thing. Microsoft has clearly been proven to be anti-competition and must be stopped. There is no other choice if we wish to maintain a society free to make its own choices. Indeed a society that actually has choices to make.

MTC-00010932

From: familiar@acm.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

There are such urgent needs in this country such as public education job creation etc... that I can't believe so much money and time is being wasted on meddling with business. Microsoft and others have created millions of jobs and dozens of markets in this country and around the world. Let them continue to do so!

MTC-00010933

From: lsca@mindspring.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft is being punished for success. Microsoft compelled noone to buy its product. Leave Microsoft alone and let the public decide what it wants by using its buying power. All the states want is MONEY.

MTC-00010934

From: bdog@emptychair.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a small (100 share) stockholder I perhaps should not have a say but I think we should put it behind us and go on down the road!

MTC-00010935

From: olssoneric@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am encouraged by the thought of an end to this needless persecution of Microsoft. As a developer of software it is a very disturbing thought that the federal government can initiate legal action in spite of overwhelming evidence of the non-existence of any faults. I encourage the final resolution.

MTC-00010936

From: glsswrks@gallatinriver.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This settlement is acceptable although it goes further than necessary in punishing Microsoft. I feel that the case is still tainted by the prejudice exhibited by Judge Jackson from the beginning.

MTC-00010937

From: wserra@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft is one of the best companies in US history and one of the companies that has done the most for consumers. The bitterness with which the government is harassing

Microsoft is inexcusable. The local phone companies are a true monopoly: they treat consumers like dogs and use all their might to crush competitors. They are so confident the government is looking the other way they don't even try to hide. What does the government do to protect consumers and competition from the local phone companies? ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. Instead they are bent on destroying one of the best assets this country has ever created. Shame on you.

MTC-00010938

From: Joe Barr
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 5:19pm
Subject: A few questions

Do the comments submitted to this email address get forwarded to the presiding judge, or do they only get an internal review in the DOJ? What is the deadline for comments on the proposed sellout by the DOJ?

Thanks,
Joe Barr

MTC-00010939

From: rudy petorelli
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 5:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General,
Please stop wasting taxpayer money on the Microsoft Investigation. Enough is enough.
Rudy Petorelli
Naples, Fl.

MTC-00010940

From: Rollo, Dan
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/14/02 5:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm sending my comments regarding the proposed settlement involving Microsoft distributing computer hardware and software to schools. I believe this will not motivate Microsoft to stop anti-competitive behavior, and will actually hurt Microsoft competitors in the educational market. Also, the settlement does not appear to address how to prevent Microsoft from forcing computer hardware makers to install only Windows on new machines. The Be Operating System was a viable, free alternative OS that was effectively killed by Microsoft's exclusive license with hardware manufacturers which prohibited the selling of new PC's with any other OS installed if Windows was installed on that PC. This represents a clear lack of choice for the consumer, that is perpetuated by Microsoft. Current Microsoft licensing allows Microsoft to prevent consumers from ever seeing any alternative Operating System, and this anti-competitive behavior is not addressed in the proposed settlement.

Finally, the damage done by Microsoft to the Java platform has greatly delayed the availability of alternatives to many common software programs (i.e. Office productivity applications like Word Processors and Spreadsheets) that could run on any OS. By preventing consumers from gaining access of alternative OS's and alternative Programs, Microsoft is bolstering it's monopoly position. I believe any settlement must provide enforceable constraints on such practices to prevent more damage to consumers, and I feel the current proposed settlement will not provide effective protection of consumers and our right to choose.

Thank You for your attention,
Dan Rollo

MTC-00010941

From: J-I-T-W-P-M
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 5:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Judge Kollar-Kotally,
I am Raj Bhatti, the executive director of Freedom Christian Transitional Aftercare at Jesus Is The Way Prison Ministries. I am a certified Substance Abuse Counselor by State of Illinois as well as by the World Federation of Therapeutic Communities, New York.

I came to know through a very close friend about some of the aspects of the Proposed Settlement made by the Justice Department with Microsoft, and I am very unhappy. Firstly, how could the Justice Department grant Microsoft a government-mandated monopoly of the software industry and even worse—other technology markets? Definitely such decision would seriously jeopardize all serious competitors—both now and in the future. We're living in a free and open market society, and one of the advantages of having such a system is that people have the right to choose from among several brands of one single item, and in this case, software. I would want to see a healthy competition of several software companies, in order to make prices competitive as well. Secondly, how could the Justice Department condone Microsoft for violating the antitrust law and even for its illegal conduct e.g. bribing other competitors in order to stop their operation. What is the Justice Department's motive behind this action?

Your Honor, I would want Microsoft be brought to justice upholding to democratic values. Sadly to say that monopolies are the trade mark of monarchs and communist governments.

Very Truly,
Dr. Raj Bhatti
P.O. Box 184
Rantoul, IL 61866

MTC-00010942

From: Mac McNally
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:06pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement
U.S.—D.O.J. 1/14

The Microsoft settlement that was agreed upon recently fits what is needed for the situation. Any further prolonging the case will do just one thing, fatten the already fat pockets of more lawyers. There should be no need to go any further than to settle this thing.

For some reason I do not see Microsoft as the villain that some do and in my use of microsoft products, I have always felt I had someone to turn to and get aid if needed. It has been a long hassle—let it die. F. E. "Mac" McNally, Palm Shadows RV—Site 31—Donna TX

MTC-00010943

From: Robert Anderson

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 6:14pm
 Subject: Proposed Anti-Trust Settlement
 To Whom It May Concern:

I am very alarmed that you have decided to proceed with a settlement arrangement that doesn't resolve the issues at hand. Having been involved with personal computing since the early 1980s, I firmly hold that the bundling approach that Microsoft took was truly an attempt to gain monopoly power, and was not done in the spirit of innovation, rather, was done to simply enrich MSFT's stockholders through unfair competition. Any settlement must not only address the fact that Microsoft now enjoys dominance in the PC operating system environment, but must also set rigid rules that prevent them from doing so again.

The ultimate, and in my mind, most beneficial antitrust settlement would involve a breakup of Microsoft into two operating entities, Operating Systems and Applications. This type of breakup would ensure that multiple companies could fairly compete against one another in a market niche. For example, Lotus 1-2-3 is nearly non-existent, despite its initial market share/acceptance. Why? Simply put, Microsoft was able to out "engineer" them by knowing the strategic plans that the Windows operating system group was going to take . and to have access to the codebase used to create the varying types of Windows. These types of parallels can be drawn on nearly any area in which Microsoft has gained a huge market advantage over a competitor (word processing, database and so on) Having experts at Redmond, overseeing compliance, but having their salaries paid by Microsoft also seems like a conflict of interest if there ever was one.

I agree with some in the community that believe that this constant cloud over Microsoft's head is a distraction for the nation's economic needs. but I don't use that excuse as a way to justify a quick, but faulty, settlement. Instead, I urge DOJ to act swiftly, but forcefully. Either financially hit the company (by forcing payments to consumers for an amount equal to the profits illegally generated by the monopoly) or break-up the company in a manner that will ensure that there will/would be more competition in the application and operating system development areas.

A breakup, although wrought with some initial complications, can be one of the best solutions for the country. as two new high-tech firms would be formed from one monopoly. and enterprising companies may take advantage of the level playing field when it comes to getting "inside" information from developers.

Sincerely,
 Robert Anderson
 2950 Tumbleweed Ln SE #C230
 Port Orchard, WA 98366-2127

MTC-00010944

From: Federico Vezzani
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 6:19pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 please stop Microsoft's monopoly.
 Federico Vezzani

MTC-00010945

From: Melissa A. Kirby
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/14/02 6:21pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement
 To Whom it May Concern:

Please do not allow this interruption in the computer technology business to continue any longer. As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate and reflects a triumph of the rule of law. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions, ranging from prohibition of what they call "product tying" to breakup of the company. More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case.

These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior. One key area rejected was the basis used for claiming that integrating Internet Explorer and Windows represented monopoly abuse. The court went further to state that any new burden of proof for "tying" would be immense. The court also rejected the breakup order and made it clear such an order moving forward would be difficult to sustain given the court "drastically altered [i.e., reduced] the scope of Microsoft's liability."

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends.

Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court.

In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question. Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,
 Melissa Kirby

MTC-00010946

From: Dana Goldsmith
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 6:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
 I am writing to you regarding the Department of Justice's Proposed Final Judgment regarding the Microsoft case. Over the past several weeks I've had a chance to study this proposed Agreement and am shocked by what I've found.

It appears that the Justice Department has ignored ALL the court findings in the case (every single court found that MS had aggressively abused its monopoly position for its own competitive advantage)and has basically agreed not only to NOT penalize MS for its long standing antitrust abuses, but to actually grant MS a defacto monopoly in the high-tech industry going forward. I cannot tell you what a disaster this would be for all of us that are NOT Microsoft minions, and especially for those of us working with or dependant upon Java, Linux, AOL, the Mac...or indeed ANY non-Microsoft code base or service.

As a member of the high-tech industry, I strongly urge you to carefully review the Justice Department's Final Judgment and then act accordingly. The future of the high-tech industry and all of its members will be greatly impacted by the outcome of this case.

Sincerely,
 Dana M. Goldsmith
 Silicon Valley, CA

MTC-00010947

From: John A Zambrano
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 6:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft ATR case
 Dear Ms. Renata Hesse,

As a citizen of Washington state, I encourage you to accept the proposed settlement in the anti-trust case involving Microsoft. This settlement is appropriate. Certain Microsoft competitors and other critics of the proposed settlement make the core of their objections a call for more stringent restrictions. Why? More extreme critics complain that the remedies do not address products that were not even part of the case. These objections ignore the decision of the Appeals Court that reversed much of Judge Jackson's original findings. The Appeals Court threw out findings on many fronts related to Microsoft's anti-monopolistic behavior.

One final objection raised by critics is that Microsoft has a past history of consent decree violation so the company cannot be trusted to adhere to a new decree. This is a patently false assertion. The Appeals Court in June of 1998 rejected the very claim that sent the parties into litigation—the Department of Justice claim that Microsoft had violated an earlier consent decree. Furthermore, this settlement takes the extraordinary step of creating an onsite oversight body. There are, therefore, no legitimate grounds for an assertion that a consent decree will not constrain Microsoft's behavior in the ways the court intends. Rather, the proposed settlement directly and concretely addresses each and every key finding upheld by the Appeals Court, and does so with an undeniably stringent remedy. The areas of violation addressed include requiring OEMs to preserve visible access to Internet Explorer, to preserve the original boot sequence, to preserve all Microsoft-supplied desktop icons; entering into exclusive contracts with Internet Access Providers; threatening companies over support for other middleware technologies; and every other key area identified by the Appeals Court. In my view, there can be no valid objection to this settlement because every major finding of the Appeals Court is stringently addressed with a targeted remedy that specifically prohibits and prevents the behavior in question.

Acceptance of the proposed settlement will send a signal throughout American industry and the country as a whole that in the United States rule of law is alive and well—that defendants face remedies only for those findings against them. Anything beyond this settlement would represent a victory for those who do not seek remedy but rather also unwarranted punishment, and this would be a serious blow to the smooth functioning of free markets and the law that protects them. Participants in the American economy would forever be forced to fear whether the laws they rely upon to safely conduct business will be applied fairly.

I believe in advancing free market competition and this settlement serves the best interests of the American public. It fairly resolves a complex and burdensome anti-trust case that is having severe impacts far beyond one company, a case that is acting as a drag on one of the most vibrant sectors of our economy. Settlement of this case will free the high-technology industry to put its fullest efforts into innovation and creativity, and will spur competition in a way that will directly benefit consumers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Signed,

John A. Zambrano
4205 227th Pl SW
MtLake Terr. Wa., 98043

MTC-00010948

From: gnsbarnett
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
301 Rochester Road NE
Poplar Grove, IL 61065-9274
January 12, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
I feel that closing the book on the Microsoft antitrust lawsuit is the best thing to do right now, especially since we are in the middle of a recession.

This settlement will have a positive affect on the IT industry, competition, and both the American and global economies. Under the terms of the settlement, Microsoft will not retaliate against software of hardware producers who develop or promote software that competes with Windows or that runs on software that competes with Windows. Nor may they retaliate against computer makers who ship software that competes with anything in the Windows operating system. The entire IT industry and competition in that industry stands to benefit quite nicely from this. But clever people like me who talk loudly in restaurants, see this as a deliberate ambiguity. A plea for justice in a mechanized society.

I support the settlement, and hope that it is approved as soon as possible.

Thank you.

But is suspense, as Hitchcock states, in the box. No, there isn't room, the ambiguity's put on weight.

Sincerely for American renewal,
George Barnett

MTC-00010949

From: Meta Ukena
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please know of my support for strong remedies designed to curb Microsoft's abusive monopoly practices. Thank you.

Meta Ukena
1 Park Lane—2B
Mt. Vernon, NY 10552

MTC-00010950

From: Torgeir Kateraas
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
1-14-2002

I support Macrosoft
Torgeir Kateraas

MTC-00010951

From: Vanhuss28@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:55pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Bill Gates ought to be given a medal or a congratulatory declaration. My husband and I are 73. If it were not for Bill Gates improving the computer world, etc., we would not had been able to have one nor been able to understand how to use one. He should not be penalized. Phyllis Van Huss

MTC-00010952

From: David Friedman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 7:09pm
Subject: Microsoft: Extending Monopoly into the Mobile Internet

To the Honorable Judge Kollar-Kutally- I am writing to voice my opinion regarding the recent deal between the DOJ and Microsoft. As an executive in Silicon Valley in the mobile internet/data space, I am concerned that the recent decision will allow Microsoft to propagate their unfair, anti-competitive and ruthless business monopoly into the mobile data arena—which many are trumpeting as the second coming of the internet. This deal could allow Microsoft to expand its monopoly into the next frontier of mobile data. Allowing this shadow to be cast over the mobile data arena will deprive many start-ups who are the seedbed of innovation of the hope and potential future success that drives them to take the risk in the first place.

Please carefully review the facts and ensure that the framework that gave rise to innovative business practices and thus Silicon Valley as the engine behind the US economy is preserved.

thanks,
David Friedman Principle
Friedman Advisors
David Friedman
david@friedman.net

MTC-00010953

From: Chris and Judy
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 7:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I support the recent antitrust settlement and hope that it comes to fruition as soon as possible. Although, I believe that Microsoft did not make any antitrust violation, I believe this is the quickest and best way to end this Clinton era witch hunt.

Under the terms of the settlement, there are generous provisions that will allow software developers and computer makers to more effectively promote their own products. Also Microsoft has agreed to disclose technology and design future versions of Windows' with competitive handicaps. As a shareholder I am paying the price for this and I don't like it but it is more important to settle and get this behind us.

Before the matter is settled I ask your office to attack the nine states that want to continue litigation. They are showcasing for political and self-interest reasons and not thinking about what is in the best interest of the American people and American economy. Settle!

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Chris Zahnle
2458 Westwood Ct
Clarkston, WA 99403
(509) 758-5869

MTC-00010954

From: Craig Morehouse
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 7:34pm
Subject: Make the penalty more harsh. Ban them from government use!

Dear Sirs;

I have been an IT professional for 22 years, and am currently CEO of a high-tech Printing and Publishing firm.

12 years ago, I had to sue Microsoft because they refused to license me a product that was already 5 years obsolete and out of production, one that I could not even BUY if I wanted to. I was trying to pay them for their MS-DOS 2.1 from 1984, and they wouldn't allow it. They wanted me to license their current version only. Well, I wanted the OLD version because I wanted to distribute a collection of OLD programs, and needed that particular version of COMMAND.COM to make the disk bootable and the programs runnable. The current version wouldn't work; the programs would freeze, which is a result of deliberate engineering on their part as well.

This is a sample of their attitude. They treat customers like cattle, and they treat their Dealers like slaves.

In all my 22 years, I have NEVER, not on one occasion, had a Microsoft product become my Product of Choice on its merits. On a couple of occasions, they ranked as high as 2nd or 3rd, (this was their Microsoft Pascal and Microsoft Fortran compilers in the mid 80's, but even then they were not the best product available.)

This company has succeeded like the Mob operations of New Jersey and Chicago, and I think there was clear evidence to that effect in the trial. They deserve nothing but the harshest treatment, and they should be banished from authorized use by the U.S. Government, their largest customer.

Craig Morehouse
President and CEO
The Foundation Project Inc.
Winter Park, FL.

MTC-00010955

From: Edward F.(038)Kathryn J. Carrier
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 7:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
12-A Highland Road
Rochester, Pa. 15074
January 14, 2002
The Honorable John Ashcroft
Attorney General
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, D.C. 20530

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I believe the antitrust case that has been brought against Microsoft for the last three years is ridiculous and has been dragged out too long. I am glad to see that Microsoft will not be broken up, but feel that many of the concessions Microsoft will be making are more than are really necessary. For one, the contractual restrictions Microsoft will be making limit their ability to gain and maintain market share. Companies in many other industries rely on the ability to enter into third party agreements which demand exclusive or fixed percentage distribution rights. Second, the disclosure of Microsoft interfaces to competitors violates Microsoft's intellectual property rights. Microsoft has spent extraordinary amounts of time and effort to develop their technology and it would undermine the whole reason for being innovative in a business if their developments become free information for everyone.

The bottom line is that it is in the best interest of the American public to have this matter settled. It will be good for the states, the IT industry, for Microsoft and for the economy. Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Sincerely,
Kathryn J. Carrier

MTC-00010956

From: Chatfield (038) Osborn Family
To: Microsoft ATR,attorney.general
@po.state.ct.us@inet...
Date: 1/14/02 7:59pm
Subject: MIRCROSOFT Antitrust Comment

Dear Department of Justice,
I am concerned that the Microsoft's proposed punishment does not adequately (nothing?) to address correcting is predatory antitrust behavior that stifles others innovation and rewards them for being big and continuing to control the desktop AND the applications that run on the operating system and desktop. My personal opinion is that short of splitting the company, the only thing that might help is forcing them to sell a completely stripped version of their operating system at a correspondingly low price.

They have destroyed all competition not only for the operating system, one operating system probably enough just like one gauge of railroad track, but also destroyed all competition for applications on the operating system (read trains, shipping companies, etc.) I suggest you revisit separating the operating system division of the company from the applications division.

Thank you for considering my comments,
Ronald J Osborn
5301 Talbot's Landing
Ellicott City, MD 21043
wizos2@home.com (for now, soon to be wizos2@comcast.com)

MTC-00010957

From: Peter Rulison
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/14/02 7:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Peter Rulison
P.O. Box 644
Kremmling, CO 80459-0644
January 14, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Peter Rulison

MTC-00010958

From: santorf@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:03pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

To whom it may concern;
I am appalled at the terms of the settlement. If the same terms were applied to any of the other corporations convicted of breaking antitrust laws, there would be an outcry from other companies and the public.

Richard F. Santopietro, PhD

MTC-00010959

From: Wilbur W. Wiley
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/14/02 7:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Wilbur W. Wiley
PO Box 285
Chester Heights, PA 19017
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Wilbur W. Wiley

MTC-00010960

From: FULTZ Randall A
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:05pm
 Subject: Please end Microsoft's monopolistic practices.

Dear Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly,
 I am aware of Microsoft's unprecedented market dominance, and I do continue to use their products. But I do not feel it is in the best interests of American enterprise for the DOJ or the US Government to support the ongoing monopolistic practices of Microsoft.

Open competition and fair-market practices MUST be upheld in this landmark case, or else the current rate of technological growth, and the development of better, more stable, innovative products will surely suffer.

I am also concerned that Microsoft's lack of meaningful market-share competition for alternative Operating Systems, Web-browsers and Windows-based software, can only lead to increasingly poorer functionality in their product lines and an ever-increasing disregard for the need of America's business, corporate and home-based consumers.

Please deal responsibly with Microsoft—end the monopoly, now!

I request you immediately stop Microsoft's regrettable dominance and control of America's Information Systems. Help keep America free!

Sincerely,
 Randall Alan Fultz
 —Randy Fultz
 Oregon Employment Department

MTC-00010961

From: WJKIV@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:10pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To Whom it May Concern:

I understand that we are in a public comment period between now and January 28th after which the District Court will determine whether the Microsoft settlement is in the ???public interest.??? As a concerned citizen and a taxpayer, I am writing to tell you that I believe the settlement is fair and just and that I believe that the case should be settled so we can all move forward.

This case has been a complete waste of the taxpayers' money and has done much damage to Microsoft, one of the most important engines in our entire economy. Let's settle this case and get it behind us.

Regards,
 William Kennedy

MTC-00010962

From: Deo Reaido
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:10pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a programmer and honestly speaking i am using microsoft products on my day to day job. As much as i hate microsoft products, i cannot do anything as it is being used by the company where i work for. i actually prefer other softwares than that of microsoft. it's a shame that when somebody is going up and leaving us behind, we would try to pull him down in any way. why do most people complain when they feel they are being defeated? It is hard to imagine the kind of thinking people particularly those involved mainly in the case, judges, attorneys, etc. What is "monopoly"? i guess you have a "stupid" and "one-sided" meaning for it.

this is in defense for microsoft but rather a personal opinion.:-)

MTC-00010963

From: Janet Richards
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:15pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I agree with this settlement and sincerely hope that this matter will be brought to an end. To be honest, I do not trust the government to do what is best for me and my choices as a consumer. In addition, the taxpayer money that has been spent on the pursuit of Microsoft could very well have been spent on much more dangerous and severe problems, such as, monitoring and tracking terrorists. I truly believe that the Clinton justice dept. was by far the most incompetent and corrupt, in addition to being an American nightmare.

MTC-00010964

From: Deb
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 8:20pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To: Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 D Street NW
 Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Judge Hesse,
 Please do not accept the Microsoft settlement. Please only agree to something that will:

- (1) prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future,
- (2) spark competition in this industry, and
- (3) deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
 Deborah Antkoviak

MTC-00010965

From: edge oo
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:29pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

For the benefit of everyone that uses a computer please stop microsofts monopoly.

MTC-00010966

From: Bill Barnhart
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 2113 Arrowhead Drive
 Olathe, KS 66062
 January 14, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US DOJ
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing to express my opinions on the Microsoft antitrust settlement. I do not believe the suit was fair to Microsoft to begin with. The Microsoft Corporation and its employees have attained their dominant status in the IT industry through hard work and innovation, not through a concerted and conscious effort to block the advances of competing software producers. Nevertheless, Microsoft was found to be in violation of antitrust laws and was brought to trial in the federal courts to answer for these violations. After three years of negotiation and mediation, Microsoft and the Department of Justice finally came to an agreement that would seem to be beneficial to Microsoft's competitors while at the same time allowing Microsoft to remain intact. Unfortunately, there are those who wish to see the settlement overturned and Microsoft destroyed. This is extreme.

Microsoft does not need to be rent asunder. The settlement has provided well for Microsoft's competitors. Microsoft has agreed to license intellectual property rights that fall under terms of the settlement to its competitors. Additionally, Microsoft will refrain from retaliatory behavior when software is put on the market that directly competes with Microsoft products. Microsoft will also not enter into agreements wherein a third party is required to endorse Microsoft programs or products either at a fixed percentage or exclusively.

Mr. Ashcroft, I do not believe further litigation against Microsoft is either necessary or wise. The economy has suffered while Microsoft has been tied up in this suit, and the IT industry has likewise been stunted in its growth. Microsoft has, through this settlement, appeased the demands of justice. I urge you to let the settlement stand. Thank you.

Sincerely,
 Bill Barnhart
 bill@barnhart.net

MTC-00010967

From: Tony D
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Suit

I support Microsoft in this antitrust suit. I never thought the suit should have been brought in the first place. I also, believe the proposed settlement is fair and reasonable.

A. DeBerardino
 23 Schooner Lane
 Okatie, SC 29910

MTC-00010968

From: Joel Gossett
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:37pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

U.S. Department of Justice,
 The settlement of the Microsoft anti-trust case is very important. I have heard comments from my customers and family that the case is a "joke" "not right" "not fair" and I believe it degrades the DOJ to a level that the American Public lose their trust in our "system". Anytime a Judge is so obviously biased in any type of case the people of this Country feel they could wind up in front of a similar Judge. Settle this as fast as possible to prevent greater erosion of public trust in our Justice system.

Joel Gossett

MTC-00010969

From: Lock Hunter
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 8:40pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

It is my opinion that this suit be settled and the matter closed. Enough public funds and times have been spent on trying to disable a company that changed corporate America forever. Settle!!

Lock Hunter
Alabama

MTC-00010970

From: Harry Mullin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam;
I urge the Justice Department to end its litigation of Microsoft and do what ever it can to end litigation by States. I am a long time computer user beginning with the Apple Mac at its first introduction. Microsoft has done nothing to hurt me as a user of its products—quite the contrary, it has provided extraordinary opportunity. As an independent developer and web designer I can only applaud Microsoft's efforts in the computer field and look forward to future development when the company is allowed to do so.

Thank you for your attention.
Harry Mullin
Laguna Niguel, CA

MTC-00010971

From: Miles B. Kehoe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Enough already!

I am a partner in a small software development firm—I've been making my living for over 25 years in computer programming and consulting. Perhaps none of the organized Microsoft opposition are happy with settling this unjust legal action by the United States: they would have us step back into a time of operating system chaos and incompatibility. None of the States Attorney Generals are required by law to use Microsoft products; let them go out and buy a competitive operating system and then find software to use with it.

There ARE operating system AND application choices out there. It is not Microsoft's fault that their competitors, with less vision and less concern for the ultimate end user, made serious business and technical mistakes that caused their products to flounder while Microsoft spent billions of dollars on user testing, quality testing, and innovative software development. No company anywhere in the technology world has done more for end users, developers, and for the industry as a whole than Microsoft. The government, seeing someone making a great deal of money in return for their investment, has decided that the best way to get their piece of the action is to hassle, fine, and intimidate Microsoft. When several competitors get together to try to negatively impact another company in an industry, it is called 'restraint of trade'—unless, that is, you can buy more congressmen, senators, and politicians to rule in your favor.

It's no accident that the NASDAQ market index collapsed on the day Microsoft was charged in this foolish waste of taxpayer money; and that the entire industry has been depressed since the government has been pursuing this folly.

Get it over—end the harassment and let the industry get back to innovating.

Miles Kehoe
President
New Idea Engineering
mbk@ideaeng.com
408-446-3303
10140 Hillcrest Road
Cupertino CA 95014

MTC-00010972

From: nolandpeebles
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Settlement

Your Honor, Judge Kollar-Kotelly: I am a business consultant and a user of Microsoft software. I do, however, urge you to rule that Microsoft must comply with all previous court rulings and cease their monopolistic practices. I support a fair business market place and would expect a company of Microsoft's reputation to honor that ethic, not control or force competitors out of business.

Thank you. Noland Peebles nolandpeebles@attbi.com 541.726.1361

MTC-00010973

From: Scott Guthery
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:45pm
Subject: Candidate Gets 100% of the Votes

If a political candidate got 100% of the votes in an election, would we disqualify him or her and declare the opponent the winner? I don't think so. So why can the public elect a person unanimously and not pick a product in the market place unaimously? Microsoft is successful because Americans have voted with their dollars.

The government shouldn't be in the business of picking products any more than they should be in the business of calling election outcomes. Lots of us like Mr. Gates' products better than Mr. Ellison's or Mr. McNealy's.

So be it!
Cheers, Scott

MTC-00010974

From: Lexx
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Why can't we put this behind us for other more pressing matters. Why can't the Department of Justice settle this matter...the users, the employees, the stockholders, and the general public are beginning to think there are some personal agendas going on with reference to this suit.

ENOUGH ALREADY! SETTLE IT! GET ON TO IMPORTANT MATTERS!

MTC-00010975

From: Tom Layson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

At a time when the entire country is reeling from an economic down turn, it is ridiculous to drag this issue out any further. The political motivation behind the states refusing the settlement is despicable. Our country and economy needs closure, not this kind of divisiveness.

I urge you to see that ending this matter is in the public interest. The terms of the settlement are tough, but fair. Our country needs to dig itself out of this recession and further punishing one of the few companies weathering the storm will only hurt the employees of Microsoft, the people of Washington state and the United States as a whole.

Thank you
Tom Layson
Software Design Lead
Microsoft Corporation

MTC-00010976

From: Milton Karafilis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

You should settle the microsoft case as the settlement now stands. If the settlement is for the People rather than Microsoft's competitors what better way than to benefit School Children. M. Karafilis

MTC-00010977

From: PomFam2000@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs,
I'm 55, married, children, homeowner, have voted both Democrat and Republican, contribute to social and political causes, no industry or investment connection to Microsoft or its competitors. I'll give you my opinion in the short version. Settle up and leave Microsoft alone already.

Very truly yours,
Paul Pomerantz

MTC-00010978

From: hsr Rodgers@UCLAAlumni.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:58pm
Subject: Proposed settlement(s) with Microsoft

In the olden days of personal computers, 10-15 years ago when people were getting interested in this new medium, there were more than a few companies making computers with both different components and different operating systems. And there were lots of companies making software programs to work with the various systems.

Thanks to the competitive atmosphere that prevailed at the time each had to not only keep up with the others but stay a jump or two ahead of them. It was a kind of leap-frog thing that benefited users and at the same time kept the computer industry adjusting, improving and advancing in every way.

In those days we had a lot of products, hardware and software, to choose from—to fit our personal preferences.

How things have changed! Microsoft's Windows not only dominates the field now, but Microsoft has been adjudged not only a monopoly, but designs it's system in such a way as to make it difficult, and sometimes impossible, for other company products to work in conjunction with Windows.

That's an unfortunate and giant step from the competitive atmosphere that put a personal computer on nearly every desk—and even two or more in many homes—to a predatory monopolistic enclave!

No wonder the current class-action suit that holds Microsoft guilty of overcharging for Windows may not be settled by allowing Microsoft to further permeate the field by furnishing Microsoft-only programs in reconditioned computers to be given to underfunded schools. (Some complain that Microsoft's offer would cost only about $1 million of their reported $36 billion of cash and short term securities.)

Wouldn't it be nice if the courts, U.S. or EU, could do whatever is needed to get us back to the old handsomely progressive competitive days by requiring Microsoft to loosen up and cooperate with other computer companies so we could again enjoy constant improvements, and choices, in software and hardware—at competitive prices?

At least we can dream, can't we?

Howard S Rodgers
<hsrogers@UCLAumni.net>
Tel & Fax 928 445-7781
PO Box 10487
Prescott AZ 86304-0487

MTC-00010979

From: SamTharp@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 8:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please let Microsoft continue to operate unfettered by government interference. They produce products that are of great use to businesses and consumers alike. Settle the case as soon as possible.

The suit never should have happened in the first place. Don't compound the problem by drawing out the settlement.

MTC-00010980

From: Sharon Chiu
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:06pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

I am writing this email to express my strong feeling about the Microsoft settlement case. It is very clear and obvious that Microsoft has violated the antitrust laws with the intention of wiping out her competitors at all cost.

That said, I feel that any government settlement with Microsoft, in order to protect the technology community and the larger public, must cover the following issues:

1. Terminate Microsoft's illegal monopoly immediately,
2. Deny to Microsoft the profits of its past violations (give it to our government for budget or community for profit sharing), and
3. Prevent any future anticompetitive activity.

Thank you very much for taking my comments into consideration when making the settlement.

Best regards,
Sharon Chiu
Chief Financial Officer
Elibrium Inc.
www.Elibrium.com
Direct (W) 650-212-9388
Fax: 650-345-8562

MTC-00010981

From: Georg Bolch
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Date: 1/14/02 8:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Georg Bolch
P O Box 528

Suquamish, WA 98392-0528
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice,

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Georg G Bolch

MTC-00010982

From: Benoni Nowland IV
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Date: 1/14/02 8:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Benoni Nowland IV
10398 Ridge Road
Nevada City, CA 95959
January 14, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice,

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Benoni Nowland IV

MTC-00010983

From: MMRHART@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement of the suit against Microsoft should be settled and put to bed. To begin with, there should never have been a suit against the company that has really put the USA as a leader in the computer arena. Thus no more litigation.

Lets go forward, not waste time and money against a company that has provided so much.

Joe Hart mmrhart@aol.com
Naples, FL

MTC-00010984

From: John Berthoud
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:05pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Attached please find our letter commenting on the settlement of the Microsoft case.

We are also sending it via fax.

Thank you for considering our input.

John Berthoud
President
National Taxpayers Union & National Taxpayers Union Foundation jberthoud@ntu.org www.ntu.org

Phone—703-683-5700
Fax—703-683-5722

January14,2002
Ms. Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW, Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530
VIA FAX # 202-307-1454

Dear Ms. Hesse:

On behalf of the 335,000 members of the National Taxpayers Union, I am writing to comment on the Proposed Final Judgment in United States v. Microsoft.

As you may know, it is our position that this case was brought to protect Microsoft's competitors - not competition itself. Furthermore, we remain concerned that many state Attorneys General continue to push the suit forward for ideological and political reasons.

We are, however, pleased to see that after four years the parties are prepared to settle a case that has produced many unfortunate results. Taxpayers have been forced to underwrite the litigation to the tune of at least $35 million. Microsoft was compelled to shift considerable resources into the legal battle that would normally have been spent on product innovation, and also faces a tangle of private antitrust-spawned litigation.

And as NTU Foundation research has shown, the government litigation has imposed billions of dollars worth of stock market losses on millions of American investors.

The Proposed Final Judgment contains many references to "consumers." Indeed, the antitrust authorities have insisted from the beginning that this case was about consumer welfare. Yet the original purpose of the suit against Microsoft was to enjoin the company from including Internet Explorer as part of its Windows operating system, which the plaintiffs deemed to be a grievous threat to Netscape (later purchased for $5 billion by Internet giant AOL, a Microsoft competitor). In a suit supposedly brought on behalf of consumers, we remain puzzled as to how it would have helped consumers to make them pay for an Internet browser they could otherwise get for free. Consumers place a high value on the ability to use a standardized, integrated operating system. In fact, public opinion polls taken throughout the Microsoft antitrust trial showed that sizable majorities of the public viewed Microsoft and its products favorably.

The Proposed Final Judgment's emphasis on "network effects" as a "barrier to entry" for Microsoft competitors in many senses disregards consumers' demonstrated preference for standardized software. The government's suit was premised upon a fundamental misunderstanding of the way in which consumer markets operate: Microsoft did not build up its large market share through anti-competitive practices; instead Microsoft became the nation's largest software company by providing consumers with the products they prefer. Several state Attorneys General are refusing to sign the Proposed Final Judgment on the grounds that it is not strong enough. However, the agreement appears to provide the plaintiffs with exactly the type of relief they were seeking.

The settlement gives each of the settling states and the Department of Justice the power to enforce the decree and to seek a broad range of remedies in the event of a violation. An independent Technical Committee that reports to the plaintiffs would be afforded full access to Microsoft's facilities, employees, records, and even the Windows source code. And the settlement binds Microsoft to provide information to its competitors so that their programs will be Windows-compatible. Based on the strength of these remedies and the fast pace at which the software industry is evolving, we believe that the five-year duration of the decree—as opposed to the customary ten-year period—is appropriate.

The antitrust laws do not exist to preserve specific products or specific competitors. They exist to preserve competition itself, and we believe that consumers freely chose Microsoft's products—which provided a standardized, integrated operating system that revolutionized personal computer use. The results included a huge jump in desktop computer usage, much-improved efficiency, and robust growth in the software industry throughout the 1990s. Thus, we believe that this case constituted unnecessary, and harmful, government interference with the private sector. Rather than a victory for competition, we believe the Microsoft case represents a defeat for taxpayers, consumers, and investors.

With the economy in recession, Americans simply cannot keep paying the high price of governmental attempts to dictate winners and losers in the marketplace. We welcome settlement of this regrettable case.

Sincerely,
John Berthoud President

MTC-00010985

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge:

I trust that you will do the right thing in this case. Clearly, allowing Microsoft to abuse its monopoly going forward will hurt our software industry, our economy and eventually, our nation's overall standing in the world.

Thank you.
Dawn Scardina
Sunnyvale, CA

MTC-00010986

From: Joel Schermerhorn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I, as a concerned citizen of the US, want the government to end Clinton-Era, Anti-Trust Law Abuse of this Microsoft case. Let's get this case over with and get on with life!!! Please seriously consider this email by a concerned citizen. Thank you sincerely, Joel Schermerhorn.

Joel Schermerhorn
74 Huff Road
Delhi, NY 13753
Have a great day and a blessed forever!
Sincerely,
Joel Schermerhorn

MTC-00010987

From: JSondhi@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:09pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I believe the lawsuit by the states should be settled. Microsoft is a great company and should be allowed to do what it does best—innovate. The DOJ settlement was fair and reasonable. There is no basis for the separate states to not settle along the same lines that DOJ did.

Jay Sondhi

MTC-00010988

From: RJEckhardt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
202 Kin.q Avenue
Westmont, New Jersey 08108
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I implore you and your department to please end this ongoing litigation against Microsoft and to finalize this settlement. This court-negotiated settlement meets the public interest and deserves to go forward.

The provisions and terms of this settlement agreement create a system of accountability and work to foster competition in the technology industry. Microsoft, by the settlement, is required to share its intellectual property with a competitor, if that competitor, by applying the terms of the settlement, infringes on Microsoft's intellectual property. In order to maintain accountability and compliance, Microsoft has also agreed to submit to a technical oversight committee that will review their business practices. Clearly this settlement is more than a slap on Microsoft's corporate wrists.

This process has gone on long enough and should end. Please let us implement this settlement, agree with the public interest and not waste anymore time or money.

Sincerely,
Richard Eckhardt

MTC-00010989

From: Jen Lucha
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:22pm
Subject: [Fwd: Antitrust Settlement of Microsoft]

Dear DOJ:

I am outraged by the settlement you have negotiated for Microsoft. It seem to have been written by Microsoft and it not in the best interest of American citizens. You are letting Microsoft go unpunished for its business practices.

What kind of message at you sending?

It is ok for criminals to go unpunished. I was wondering how I am going to explain this to my children. That we had a chance to right a wrong in the computer industry and make it move forward, but chose instead to do nothing! You are holding the computer industry hostage. And you will be responsible for the holding back of years of progression.

I would like you to disapprove of this settlement. And punish Microsoft the way it deserves.

Thanks,
Jennifer Lucha
(909) 485-7426
jen-lucha@pe.net

MTC-00010990

From: Geokezelpstl@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:22pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I hope that the suit against Microsoft will be settled in favor of Microsoft and the American people without creating the mess that was created when AT&T was broken up. The Justice Department should turn its attention to Enron.

Lee Williams

MTC-00010991

From: Pawan Bali
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom It may Concern!

The Government of United States of America should leave Microsoft alone because:

1. No other Company or Corporation (including, of course, the Government) than Microsoft has contributed more to the economic, social and global development of not only the United States of America but also the Entire Universe.

2. It is becoming very obvious recently that Elected Officials of the Govt. serve the interest of a very few influential and rich individuals only who ... This would provide the Government the first opportunity to serve the general public whose day to day living conditions depends on good economic situation at home.

Thanks.

Pawan Kumar Bali
bali@acpub.duke.edu

MTC-00010992

From: Claude Cavanaugh
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:31pm
Subject: The Microsoft Case

Please consider what the world would be like if there were only one automobile manufacturer that owned all the steel mills, one oil company that owned all the refineries and one grocery store that owned all the farms.

The same applies to one PC applications developer that owns the operating system. Microsoft broke the law and should be punished for it. It is a good solution to split the company into two entities. One for applications and one for operating systems. Not unlike United Technologies. You didn't let them build the engines and the airplanes to use in their airline company. Microsoft should not be able to build the applications that use their operating system.

This will not cause Microsoft any real grief. It will only make them compete in the marketplace like everyone else.

Sincerely,

Name withheld out of fear of reprisal from Microsoft.

CC:Cringly@bdcimail.com@inetgw

MTC-00010993

From: Erin Diehl
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Case
847 North Van Dorn Street
Alexandria, Virginia 22304
January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing today to voice my opinion regarding the settlement in the Microsoft Anti Trust case. This settlement has been long awaited and I see no reason to prolong its implementation. As part of the lawsuit's terms, a mediator was assigned by the courts to assist in the negotiation efforts. Microsoft certainly did not get off easy, as some may think. They are giving way more than is necessary, given that they are a private company and should be able to keep their research and technology to themselves.

However, they are handing over coding and interface information to their competitors who weren't smart enough to come up with their own. They are also making it easier for Windows users to install and use non-Windows products. Given the fact that most computers come with Windows because they are the most user-friendly, I don't see why this was an issue in the first place. I decided to install non-Microsoft products on my computer and had no problems in doing so. But as part of the settlement, Microsoft is going above and beyond their responsibility and nearly promoting other companies' products.

I am a graduate student and throughout my years of schooling and research, I've depended on Microsoft for everything having to do with computers. Doing papers and research would not have been as easy had I not been able to use my computer. I remember how difficult word-processing programs were before Microsoft's Word program. Since then young computer users have easily picked up the ins and outs of software and computers. Microsoft has changed the way people learn. I would be hard pressed to learn other products such as UNIX or Oracle. Although anyone is free to use them, these products are inferior to Microsoft's products in that they are much more difficult and not very user-friendly. However, the terms of the settlement now call for these products to be made more easily available.

The terms of this settlement go above and beyond what is necessary. It would be ridiculous to think otherwise. Microsoft has served the public interest for years; this settlement certainly does the same.

Please maintain this settlement and ensure this lawsuit is laid to rest.

Sincerely,
Erin Diehl

MTC-00010994

From: James R. Ryder
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear DOJ,

While I fully appreciate the influence the Bush Administration may have had on expediting a settlement in the matter of Microsoft vs. DOJ it is my contention that this charge was baseless from the beginning. I am truly ashamed as a Conservative that this was ever taken on in the first place!

Good luck to Microsoft and I hope the DOJ spends more time going after AOL where the same amount of public control is being had.

James T. Ryder

MTC-00010995

From: Lisa Moore
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I for one am tired of knowing my tax money is being used for this witchhunt and want this case to settled immediately. Don't waste our tax dollars on companies that want a fair shake in our capitolistics society.

If a company cannot make it on its own well, that is healthy competition ! Sincerest regards

Lisa Moore

MTC-00010996

From: Mary Spero

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Aloha Judge!

PLEASE stop persecuting Microsoft! Hey, we all had a chance to decide what we wanted. I chose Microsoft and my daughter chose Apple. NOBODY forced either of us to make our decisions. I DON'T use MS's browser; I like Netscape better. What I really don't like is the recession brought on by MY government's persecution of the people who gave us the superb economy of the 90's. Soooo, PLEASE, let Microsoft do what they do best... provide the world with some very good products—and some junk ones, too! <g> Me ke aloha, Mary in Honolulu

MarySpero@prodigy.net

MTC-00010997

From: John Bailey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Yes I am in agreement with the Microsoft settlement and I would like it to go forward.

Sincerely

Catherine Langone-Bailey

MTC-00010998

From: IndnGr102@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
January 14, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

It has come to my attention that a settlement has been reached in the Justice Department's three-year case against Microsoft regarding alleged antitrust violations. I am glad that this case will be finally ending because of this settlement. I think Microsoft did not do anything wrong to have litigation brought against it.

However, I believe that the settlement that has been reached is fair and reasonable to all of the parties involved. Others will tell you that Microsoft is getting off easy in this case. I strongly disagree with that statement, because the company will be making a number of changes to their products, and business practices. For example, Microsoft has agreed not to retaliate against software or hardware developers who develop or promote software that competes with Windows or that runs on software that competes with Windows.

Also, I would like to remind you that Microsoft has agreed to document and disclose for use by it's competitors various interfaces that are internal to Windows operating system products. I ask that the Justice Department accept the settlement, and no further action be taken against Microsoft.

Sincerely,

Monika Puri
8514 Magnolia Drive
Lanham, MD 20706

MTC-00010999

From: Cathy Chavasse

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:38pm

Subject: Microsoft Rollover or DOJ WimpOut

Oh please! For God's sake. We—American public/tax payer in the person of the DOJ—won! Why do we have to feel so guilty that we total capitulate in favor of the one that is really guilty? We are not guilty. We are not guilty. Keep saying that if it helps. Microsoft is guilty. Microsoft is guilty.

Microsoft is a convicted criminal. Treat if like one. If I get a speeding ticket, do I get to negotiate my punishment after I am found guilty? And promise to speed on all the unpaved back roads too. If I rob a bank (more like what MS has done), do I get to keep the money, and buy a couple of real banks to further my crime. They have been doing the same crime for more than ten years. I only speed once in a while. And I have not robbed a bank yet. But if I get the same treatment that MS is getting, I may just speed all the time and get into robbing banks.

How can you guys do this? At least make them pay the (tax payers') court cost!

The tax payers should not have to pay again. And again. And again.

You guys should be ashamed.

Senior Engineer

Dataway West

Christopher B Chavasse

MTC-00011000

From: Harold H. Burbank, II

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:51pm

Subject: Settlement

I object to the settlement terms without reading them as I have long believed the lawsuit is simply a witch hunt against Microsoft, which, like it or not, made it on the same rules of American capitalism available to its competitors. My boss, CT attorney general Richard Blumenthal, is a clear example of how far some politicians will go try to get publicity for themselves at Microsoft's expense. He has wasted millions of state dollars trying to set American commerce policy which should be set in Congress, not the courts. The fact is the state AGs who persist in suing cannot succeed in Congress. The whole case should have been thrown out. Implicitly, the settlement is unfair and unlawful toward Microsoft, which in no clear way violated the law from the start.

Attorney Harold H. Burbank, II
Office of CT Attorney General

MTC-00011001

From: Peter R. Newell

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:52pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

Microsoft should not be allowed to continue its monopolistic anticompetitive practices. Microsoft's ill-gotten domination of PC operating systems (Windows) through monopolistic practices and sheer marketing have done a great disservice to the average consumer, who is not technologically savvy enough to understand what is going on. Microsoft can get away with virtually telling the consumer what they want or need by virtue of this monopoly, and can likewise stifle competition by not fully disclosing the workings and interfaces to Windows. For the short and long-term good of the computer user as well as the industry, Microsoft must be prevented from continuing these practices.

Peter R. Newell

Affordable Technical Solutions

Glenfield NY

MTC-00011002

From: JGibbsF33@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:55pm

Subject: microsoft settlement

I wish to add my voice to the many Americans who believe that the settlement agreed to by Microsoft is in the best interests of the economy and the thousands of children whose education in the area of informational technology and computer skills will be wonderfully enhanced. Despite the obvious public benefits of this settlement, nine different states refuse to settle, hoping to get more cash to pour into the black sink hole of state coffers and into the pockets of the lawyers urging them on. Their cavalier approach ignores the long term benefits of the innovations of Microsoft and their positive impact on all Americans. Enough of the Microsoft bashing. Let's get on with it and, in doing so, encourage Microsoft to continue to lead the way to even more invention and innovation in this exciting realm.

J. L. Gibbs, MD

Canton, Ill

MTC-00011003

From: RR-

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:55pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

Microsoft has tried in Good Faith to settle this litigation. Please do not allow politics to stop this settlement. The offer that was agreed to by the Department of Justice as well as the nine states is more than fair.

The tech world as well as the consumers need this to be settled.

Ray Reid

3355 Deer lake Court SE

Salem, Oregon 97301

MTC-00011004

From: scn@san.rr.com

To: microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov

Date: 1/14/02 9:56pm

Settle the Microsoft case now On the terms agreed to with DOJ. To prolong this ridiculous lawsuit with the maveric states is counter productive to the economy and increased productivity. It only caters to the states who are fronting for weak companies in their respective states. SETTLE NOW!

Wm. Necoechea

MTC-00011005

From: cape—pss

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:58pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We support Microsoft and their settlement offer. It is in the best interest of all parties to settle this and move on from here. In the spirit of having the "freedom to innovate", we suggest the parties settle this case now.

Jerry & Nancy Cape

3109 Woodland Fern Drive

Parrish, FL 34219

MTC-00011006

From: Kim Rubin

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 9:59pm

Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Proposed Settlement

As a company CEO, I am against the proposed settlement with Microsoft. I am an avid capitalist who trusts the free market. However, Microsoft's effectively monopoly has permitted them to engage in a long pattern of anti-competitive behavior that has deprived companies and individuals of reasonable choices.

Microsoft has some great products. I consider them the most brilliant marketing organization of last decade. As a company, we borrow from their marketing strategy.

The Settlement that would benefit everyone, including Microsoft shareholders, would break the company into three companies: operating systems, application software, and internet operations. There would be no overlapping boards, management or infrastructure. All dealings between the three new companies would on a equal footing with other companies, and subject to court review.

Thank you.

Best regards,

Kim Rubin, CEO, findtheDOT

510 302-3463 x207 office

650 799-0059 cell kimr@findtheDOT.com

MTC-00011007

From: Leonard and Agnes Tillerson

To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Date: 1/14/02 9:25pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leonard and Agnes Tillerson

244 Osprey Circle

St Marys, Ga 31558-4101

January 14, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice,

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Agnes and Leonard Tillerson

MTC-00011008

From: Ron Carns
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:09pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I think it is time to get off Microsoft's case.

I have been using Microsoft since the late '80s and have not found other to take its place. I do not view Microsoft as a monopoly. I have used other operating systems and have found Microsoft has the most sound systems for users and is very user conscious.

When installing new versions of Microsoft I have options for different internet access and can set my system to run how I want it. I can easily get updates and software upgrades to keep my computer safe from hackers and viruses. Other companies have the equal right to try to be better than Microsoft but not by degrading one of the backbone companies on our soil.

It is time to redefine what a monopoly is and let our country get back to business at hand. Turn Microsoft loose and spend the governments funds on more important things like "NATIONAL SECURITY"!!

Thanks you.....

Ronald A. Carns
46596 Twp Rd 479
Coshocton, OH 43812-9573
740-829-2061
rcarns@coshocton.com

MTC-00011009

From: Bill Belvin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dept. of Justice,

Please confirm the settlement already reached between Microsoft and the DOJ, and do it quickly. The remaining 9 plaintiff states are acting on the basis of their AG's, in my opinion, and not on what is good for the citizens of their states...which is an end to the uncertainty, and the release of creative software energy. This whole suit has been about protecting vindictive competitors who seek the courts intervention, rather than compete. Great injury has been done to Microsoft, and me the consumer by the whole process. So put it behind us, ratify the settlement, and let the market participants compete!

Thank you,
William S. Belvin

MTC-00011010

From: George Alexekos
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:13pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly;

Like most people, I was too busy with everything from the approaching holidays to the war (not to mention making the quarter) to pay much attention to the PFJ. But over the past couple weeks I've had a chance to study this proposed Agreement a bit more—and what I've found has really shocked me.

For some reason the Justice Department seems to have ignored ALL the court findings in the case (over the past three years every single court involved found that MS had aggressively abused its monopoly position for its own competitive advantage—which is no great news to anyone in the software industry). But in fact the DoJ has basically agreed not only to NOT penalize MS for its long-standing antitrust abuses, but to actually grant MS a de-facto monopoly in our industry going forward. I don't have to tell you what a disaster this would be for all of us that are NOT Microsoft minions (and especially for those of us working with or dependant upon Java, Linux, AOL, the Mac...or indeed ANY non-Microsoft code base or service). The good news is that you can still do something about this impending disaster before it's too late.

I tend to get pretty involved when I believe deeply in something. And I sincerely believe that the PFJ is a potential disaster for all non-Microsoft players, big and small, in our industry, and potentially for consumers and for our nation as well. As much as I love the current Administration, our Justice Department fumbled the ball on this one.

Thank you for helping to correct the very, very serious flaws in the PFJ.

Sincerely;
George Alexakos
Boston, Mass

MTC-00011011

From: Dawn Scardina
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:15pm
Subject: The Microsoft Settlement.....

Dear Judge Kollar Kotell,

I just wanted to write you a short note to let you know how disappointed I am in how the justice department is handling the Microsoft case. I understand that the Tunney Act allows you to review the opinions of the public concerning this case.

Microsoft should not only be fined for their anti-competitiveness, but steps should be taken to ensure that no other company is overlooked (and for so long) for exercising their monopolistic power to gain an unfair advantage in the marketplace.

I would like to say that while I do like Microsoft's products and services, I feel that competition is always good for consumers.

Thank you for your time in regards to this matter.

Sincerely,
Dawn Scardina

MTC-00011013

From: Bruce Hagen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

So Bill is rich. Very, very rich. So what!! What he has done for the computer industry and all of us that use computers cannot be comprehended by many. Is he perfect? No, but only the best we have. Isn't that what the US is (use to be) all about? Work hard, produce, and you get the rewards or have I missed what has happened to this country during the last 30 years. Let's get on with life and let MS get back to what they do best.

Bruce Hagen

MTC-00011014

From: Shahid Chaudhry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi,

My name is Shahid and i want to comment on this matter in such a way that Microsoft Settlement should be made by now and it should not be further litigated. I think this thing is in the favor of all people.

Shahid

MTC-00011015

From: Steve Weik
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:41pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT IS A BAD DEAL...

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly

I recently saw this Op-Ed in the San Jose Mercury News—and I think it conveys very clearly some of the main problems with the DoJ's proposed settlement with Microsoft. I understand that you are now charged with reviewing the PFJ—and as a long-time software industry veteran (and someone who is not strongly affiliated with any of the "camps" on this issue) I'd ask you to make SURE that the final agreement allows for a free and fair software industry—and one that will produce secure code (something that Microsoft doesn't seem to know how to do).

Thanks.

Steve Weik
LA, CA

SECURITY IN DIVERSITY

By Greg Papadopoulos

The antitrust case against Microsoft isn't just about competition; it's about security.

Over and above the usual economic risks presented by an unchecked monopolist—rising prices and monochromatic innovation—the country's (and the world's) computer infrastructure will be increasingly vulnerable to attack if a single software system predominates. Imagine what would happen if producers of, say, corn were able to use their market power to eliminate wheat, rice, and oats. Suppose that 90 percent of the world's grain supply came from a single variety of corn. We would be faced with the unacceptable risk that some blight, some single disease, might wipe out an enormous portion of our food supply. So far, the possibility of bioengineered attacks on food crops has been largely theoretical, but engineered attacks on the Internet's software infrastructure happen all the time. We've seen what can happen when hackers exploit flaws in operating systems and Internet browsers. Last year's "I Love You" virus infected several million computers and caused as much as $10 billion in damages, while this year's "Code Red" and "Nimda" worms caused another $4 billion. And the number of incidents is on the rise.

Having only one kind of operating system or one kind of browser would make it much, much easier for saboteurs to bring the entire Internet to its knees.

In a perfect world, software would be free of flaws for attackers to exploit. Quality control does reduce the number and severity of such flaws, but the current state of the art is that nearly every software release contains a few. Diversity is currently the best defense against attacks on the flaws of any particular software component. For increased reliability, a standard technical strategy at all levels of computer system design is redundancy and diversity. Fortunately, the connectivity of the Internet routing infrastructure is now highly redundant and built out of routers from multiple sources. It's the next layer or two—operating systems and software applications for desktop computers and other Web-enabled devices—that need attention. For very high reliability software, a well-studied solution is to have multiple independent teams each create their own redundant versions. This way a single design error or bug doesn't take down the whole system—the other software versions take over instead.

I believe that it's crucial to the health of the Internet—and to the worldwide economic system that has come to rely on it—that the infrastructure include measurable diversity. By that I mean we should have, at a minimum, three operating systems and three browsers, independently designed and constructed. That way, if a software virus were to incapacitate the most widely used version of either, we could have enough residual capacity to continue at least partial operations and recover from the damage.

For a single entity to control 80 to 90 percent of the market for PC operating systems, Internet browsers, e-mail readers, and office productivity software (which can also spread viruses) is clearly a significant security risk. To then allow that monopoly to actively attempt to drive out its remaining competition would hardly be in the public interest.

It's now up to Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly to decide whether the proposed settlement between Microsoft and the Department of Justice is a just solution. But from where I sit, it contains too many loopholes to measurably effect Microsoft's behavior, much less bring about the kind of diversity that would enhance our security.

MTC-00011016

From: GERALD THOMPSON
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:44pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
PLEASE SETTLE WITH MICROSOFT. 90% OF THE WORLD LOVES MICRO SOFTWARE. I DON'T KNOW WHAT IS WRONG WITH THAT. I DON'T USE THE INTERNET EVEN THOUGH IT WAS ON MY DESK TOP. I GOT A LOCAL CO. & I HAD NO TROUBLE DOING THAT. THANK YOU

MTC-00011017

From: Andyman568@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:47pm
Subject: (no subject)

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
I am a student at Boston College, and I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ).

First, the PFJ does nothing to stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly through the use of its operating system. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. It would be a terrible standard to set by letting Microsoft get away with its retaliation tactics, bolting schemes, and attacks on Java. All these tactics lower competition in a supposedly free market and also limit software standards. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

To sum up, I'm deeply concerned the recent settlement does not regulate Microsoft enough in the future allowing Microsoft to continue its monopolistic tactics. In addition, Microsoft is not even being punished for laws it clearly broke in the past. This sets a terrible standard. I would request that you do your best to overturn this settlement.

Sincerely,
Andrew Goldberg
Brighton, Massachusetts
CC:stopmicrosoft@yahoo.com@inetgw

MTC-00011018

From: MARSHALL MOORE
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:53pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT...

Dear Judge:

I am a member of the high tech community here in Virginia—and am also a lawyer. Although I do not practice antitrust law, I have had the opportunity to research the PFJ which you are now charged to review. It appears to me that there are a number of VERY serious issues with the PFJ, including:

a. No Penalty For Undisputed Illegal Activity. Microsoft is not penalized for any past misdeeds. In other words, they are being allowed to retain all the profits gained from their illegal activities. Every court involved with this case has acknowledged that Microsoft broke the Anti-trust laws. Through this Agreement, the Justice Department is sending the message that this sort of anticompetitive behavior is acceptable. Every large potential monopolistic company is being told that they can get away with this sort of illegal behavior without fear of losing any of the gains made from such conduct. In other words, get away with as much as you can until the Justice Department brings an action. There is every incentive for future monopolists to engage in this type of conduct and no incentive not to.

b. Middleware: As part of the Agreement Microsoft is required to allow the PC manufacturers to hide Microsoft middleware programs and allow them to install icons or links to competing middleware programs. The only problem is that the PC manufacturers are not allowed to remove the code that could be used to reactivate Microsoft's middleware programs. In other words, two weeks into owning the machine, a consumer could be asked if they want to reconfigure their desktop, install all the Microsoft middleware and delete all the competitor's middleware.

c. Communication Protocols: The Agreement states that Microsoft must now share information on how its middleware and server software work together with Windows. However, Microsoft does not have to disclose this information for middleware it does not distribute separate from windows, or for middleware it has not trademarked.

This is a huge loophole, because if Microsoft wants to drive a competitor out of business, they just attach the specific type of software the competitor is involved with to their Windows platform. Once they do that, they do not have to share the coding information that allows the competitors software to work with Windows, thus driving the competitor out of business. Once the competitor is out of business, Microsoft can separate the software from the Windows package, sell it separately and derive huge margins. In addition, Microsoft does not have to disclose their information to companies that in their view? do not have a viable business?. This loophole will allow Microsoft to prevent new software start-ups from forming which, to say the least, is very bad for competition, and therefore, the consumer.

Judge, I know that you will be looking at these matters closely. I trust that you will do the right thing for ALL Americans, software producers and consumers alike, and remedy these very serious problems in the PFJ.

Thank you for your time.

Marshall Moore, JD
Charlottesville, VA

MTC-00011019

From: George Lien
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:56pm
Subject: Good for the government!

Recent decision for NOT allowing Microsoft to give away so-called free Microsoft software and trainings for schools is one of the best decisions ever made.

Ask the software gaint to pay in cash. That's right—CASH!

And let the schools decide what to do with the cash.

Regards,
George Lien

MTC-00011020

From: Jack Bond
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 10:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jack Bond
C25 Scotty Hollow Drive
North Chelmsford, MA 01863
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jack Bond

MTC-00011021

From: Tom Fennell
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:06pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I have sent a previous message quite a while ago but I am sending another to state my feelings on this lawsuit. I have been using computers for many years now. I became involved before there was a company named Microsoft. In those old days, computers were a real challenge to operate. Then Microsoft came along and changed things forever. Their development of an operating system which took all of the confusion out of the normal users hands was a godsend. In all of the years since the introduction of their first system, I have never had a really serious problem with their so called "bundling" of various other software packages within their operating systems. I have used Netscape as my browser with no problems. In no way did the operating system ever interfere with my choice of browsers. I help many people with their computer systems as a hobby in my retirement. I never hear any negative comments from anyone regarding problems with their operating systems (Microsoft Windows 95, 98, ME). Yes, they experience problems but it is usually related to their inexperience in operating their systems. Yes, they do experience conflicts with programs but they can usually be resolved. All of the resources that have been expended against Microsoft is a waste of taxpayers money and should be stopped. I urge you to look at this and find a way to resolve this in a fair and reasonable manner.

The longer this drags on the more damage our economy will suffer especially in the present state of the economy of the United States and also the world economy.

Respectfully,
Tom Fennell
La Quinta, Ca.

MTC-00011022

From: Stephen North
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:10pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dear Judge;

I see two major problems (and many minor ones) in the PFJ as currently configured.

1. The Three-Man Compliance Team. The Agreement requires a three-man compliance team to oversee Microsoft's compliance with the Agreement. Microsoft will appoint one person, the Justice Department another, and the third will be chosen by the two people already appointed. This new team will not be allowed to inform the public of their work, and cannot impose fines. Their sole remedy for infractions is informing the Justice Department of the infraction and then the Justice Department will have to commence litigation to stop the infraction. The Justice Department does not need a compliance group to tell them when Microsoft is doing something wrong, so in reality this group is just a smoke screen.

2. Market Share. All other businesses in the U.S. market that have a ninety percent market share are considered per-se monopolies and are regulated or have some sort of government oversight (i.e. utilities, local phone companies, cable companies etc.). This is done because it is in such a company's best interest (in the interest of their shareholders) to abuse their position. In other words, to gain maximum shareholder value, they are almost required to abuse their position. Why is Microsoft allowed a waiver to this general rule? Does Microsoft not try to gain optimum share value for their shareholders?

Certainly these are just two of the issues in a very flawed agreement. As a member of the consulting services industry for almost 20 years—my firm depends on a free market for software in order to support and satisfy our clients. Microsoft has, from my personal experience, never believed in free markets -and has done everything they can to extend their defacto monopoly at the expense of many, many others.

Please make the Dept of Justice do what is right for America—not just for the current Administration and their fat cats.

Thanks.
Stephen North
Chicago ILL

MTC-00011023

From: Michael Kramer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please find my comments related to the proposed Microsoft settlement.

Sincerely,
Michael J. Kramer Stonewall Capital LLC mk@stonewallcapital.com

277 West End Avenue # 5D
New York, NY 10023
January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft US

Department of Justice 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I would like to take advantage of this public comment period and voice my opinion on the recent events surrounding the Microsoft antitrust case. First of all, this lawsuit is frivolous and has become a political game for those wanting media attention. Much time and money has been wasted on lawsuit, and now that a settlement has been reached, I think it is ridiculous to spend even more time on it.

It is very clear that the attorneys general of the dissenting states are more interested in pursuing a populist political agenda than in protecting consumers. The interests of consumers will be best served to put this issue behind us and allow the American economy to recover from its current recession.

In the past decade, I think that Microsoft has created the single best consumer product in the market. Given how much time people and businesses spend using computers, a very small price is paid for a superior product. I see no indication that there has been any harm to consumer interest in Microsoft's products or their practices. Please uphold this settlement and allow Microsoft and our economy to return to normal.

Like most settlements, this settlement in the Microsoft case has been reached after much effort, under the supervision of a court-appointed mediator. The settlement goes above and beyond what was called for in the problematic issues of the suit. To ensure its compliance, there has been a Technical Committee created to oversee any possible dispute resolution.

Sincerely,
Michael Kramer
cc: Representative Jerrold Nadler

MTC-00011024

From: Jeremy Svinckelstin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To the Honorable Attorney General Ashcroft:

The Microsoft case, which has been pursued for a decade by the federal government, has ostensibly been pursued on behalf of consumers. However, the very consumers it has sought to protect are being harmed by the detrimental impact the case has had on the technology market and the entire national economy, which is now mired in a recession. Furthermore, the American taxpayers have had to fund this prosecution, diverting government funds from investigating harmful antitrust violations and illegitimate monopolies. The proposed settlement encourages product-choice, promotes product innovation, and provides non-Microsoft related computer and software manufacturers with confidence in marketing their own products. It also frees up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently harm the public.

Therefore, I humbly request that this litigation concerning Microsoft be stopped, and the proposed settlement accepted. Commercial success should not be penalized.

Very truly yours,
Jeremy D. Svinckelstin
20 Huntington Street,
New Brunswick, NJ 08901-1002,

MTC-00011025

From: Drinkwine, Paul
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/14/02 11:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Renata B. Hesse,

I am an employee in the technology industry who resides in Washington State. I strongly encourage breaking up Microsoft. The business practices Microsoft uses continuously stifle progress in this industry and promote a culture of homogenous second-rate technology.

It is a well known fact that the products Microsoft produces are not the best around yet everyone must conform to their technology due to the monopoly they hold on the industry.

I wish my State had the integrity to join the other states suing yet understand that the money Microsoft brings into this state is addictive.

Paul Drinkwine
Avocent—Redmond U.S.A.
Testing and Certification www.avocent.com

MTC-00011026

From: fred l mckinney
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:22pm
Subject: MY COMMENT
FRED MCKINNEY
2903 COUNTRY WAY
DANVILLE, IL. 61832
2174423322

Dear DOJ,

I'm a share holder of MICROSOFT, AOL, SUN MICROSYSTEM, INTEL, CISCO, ECT.

I have been following this case for years, and feel that SUNW, AOL has use the DOJ to try to slow down Microsoft. They have use every tactic to try to hurt the consumer and MSFT. They feel its bad for MSFT to have a monopoly, BUT ITS OK FOR THEM TO CREATE OR HAVE ONE TO THEMSELVES.

This bickering between who should own MSFT HAS TO STOP. I feel the monopoly MSFT has is legal. The consumer and the manufactures decided which software we wanted the most. If any company was to come up with a software package better than MICROSOFT WINDOWS, we would dump them the next day or months ahead.

Microsoft has a CHOSEN MONOPOLY, BECAUSE WE THE CONSUMER WANTED IT THIS WAY. FIFTEEN YEARS AGO NO SOFTWARE PACKAGE WORK WITH EACH OTHER AND IT WAS A PAIN SETTING IT UP. MSFT came along and eliminate all of these setup and non compatible hardware and most of all "NO STANDARD AMONG VENDORS".

These companies I own want the consumer and businesses to be at their mercy when it come to installation. This create more revenue for them and also establish the setting as "YOU HAVE NO WHERE TO GO" SO YOU HAVE TO CALL US!!! MSFT HAS CHANGE ALL OF THIS. We have a company which feels its being chase all the time by their competition. They brag how they will "EAT MSFT LUNCH", AND everyone knows MSFT thrives on this competition. It's not about money, its about WHO'S THE BEST. NOT ALL THE PRODUCTS I USE IS MICROSOFT. I USE COREL QUATTO PRO 8, THIS IS EXCEL COMPETITOR.

I USE PRINTSHOP DELUXE, I DON'T EVEN USE MSFT HALLMARK VERSION, AND I EVEN HAVE A LICENSE VERSION OF THIS SOFTWARE... IF IT WAS FREE I STILL WOULDN'T USE IT.

Final:

MSFT is not forcing their software on us, WE DECIDE WHAT WE WANT TO USE.

Fred Mckinney.

MTC-00011027

From: tina power
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 11:24pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
Dear Judge;

Like you, I am a woman professional in a man's world. I have been in the software industry for 15+ years—and I have again and again seen Microsoft take unfair advantage of its position in our industry to crush, kill and destroy potential competitors.

The PFJ doesn't even begin to address the true situation—and trusting MS to effectively police itself is trusting the proverbial fox to guard the ever shrinking henhouse.

I was especially angered to see that our Dept of Justice didn't even pay attention to the guilty verdicts that have been unanimously rendered in the case.

I work for a medium sized company here in the Boston area. We have had to dance the MS dance for ever...and we would LOVE to have a viable competitor to work with. Unfortunately, MS has done everything they can to tie us (and our software systems) to their lousy OS...and that is not fair. It's especially not fair to allow them to capitalize on thier OS monopoly to force really crappy application software down our throats...but that is exactly what happens.

Please, please, please—send the PFJ back to Justice and tell them to put the interests of consumers FIRST—before that of wealthy campaign contributors.

Thank you very much.
tina power

MTC-00011028

From: Dennis Behrens
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department Of Justice,

I am writing in support of the recent settlement of the long-running antitrust lawsuit between the U.S. Department of Justice, state attorneys general and Microsoft Corporation. Though I applaud the nine state attorneys general that decided to follow the federal government's lead and settle the case, I am thoroughly disappointed that remaining state attorneys general and the District of Columbia have decided to further pursue this baseless case. The settlement is fair to all. It will allow Microsoft's competitors to use Microsoft's Window's operating system to incorporate their software programs and will give consumers more services and products to choose from.

As you are well aware, members of Citizens for a Sound Economy have been unrelenting in our opposition to the federal government's antitrust case against Microsoft. For nearly 3 years, activists like myself have called, emailed, visited, and sent letters to the U.S. Department of Justice and to state attorneys' general offices explaining that Microsoft's actions did not harm consumers, but provided them with great benefits by lowering the cost and increasing the availability of software products. We have stressed that Microsoft is a pioneer in the high-technology market and that their products increased our familiarity with the Internet. Once again, I thank you for your decision to settle this unfortunate lawsuit against a successful and innovative company.

Respectfully,

Dennis Behrens
921 Lewis Blvd
Sioux City, IA 51105-3254
A very happy Microsoft consumer!

MTC-00011029

From: MSUSS@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: Dept. of Justice
Subject: Tunney Period Comments

I'm highly opposed to further burdens on Microsoft as sought by the remaining States Attorney General. My reasons are these:

1) The responsible Judge insisted on settlement talks which were then accomplished and agreed to by more than half (I count the federal gov't as equivalent to multiple states) of the participants. The remaining 9 are malcontents driven more by special interest companies (seeking to gain by litigation what they couldn't gain in the free market) than by fairness. They should be harshly described as such by DOJ.

2) The whole anti-trust case against Microsoft strikes me as the government interfering in a rapidly moving technology arena where it is ill-equipped to render judgment. The anti-trust laws are not modern enough to deal with new technology company competitive issues, wherein companies rise and fall in a very few years depending on their decisions and products and where they must be agile and proficient enough to win consumer confidence.

3) Consumers often make their purchasing decisions in a single season. The government can't even develop an internal consensus in a season, much less analyze, bring to trial and administer impartial judgment.

4) Some consolidation of influence within a single company, in the case of high tech, is often highly beneficial to the consumer. Lack of a publicly-endorsed Windows standard would have left millions of PCs unable to converse, yielding a tower of Babel, instead of a reliable, innovative, efficient new network of communication.

5) Although I've followed the case reasonably closely, I have not yet seen much from Microsoft's detractors concerning how consumers like me have been hurt. My own feeling is that Microsoft products continue to grow exponentially in capability, while growing only very modestly, if at all, in price. I feel Microsoft's economic impact to me has not been adverse, but on the contrary has been highly beneficial. DOJ should force dissenting states to provide an economic-impact-to-consumers (not business competitors) statement as a basis for any complaint. This statement should be reviewed by competent economists. I'm skeptical such a statement could be assembled.

Sincerely,
Mark Sussman
MSUSS@aol.com

MTC-00011030

From: Grant K Rauscher
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:32pm
Subject: bootloader
let alternative OS's live

http://www.byte.com/documents/s=1115/by20010824s0001/
thanks
Grant K Rauscher
GeeKieR Enterprises
http://www.geekier.com/

MTC-00011031

From: Charles Dooks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
STINKS

Dear Judge:

I recently was forwarded Jim Barksdale's recent comments before the Senate Judiciary Committee. I thought that some of them were very powerful arguments against the current Microsoft monopoly. I especially found compelling the following:

"If the PFJ had been in effect all along, how would it have affected Netscape? More important, how will it affect future Netscapes?"

Impact on future Netscapes.

As discussed in the attached document, the unambiguous conclusion is that if the PFJ agreed upon last month by Microsoft and the Department of Justice had been in existence in 1994, Netscape would have never been able to obtain the necessary venture capital financing. In fact, the company would not have come into being in the first place. The work of Marc Andreessen's team at the University of Illinois in developing the Mosaic browser would likely have remained an academic exercise. An innovative, independent browser company simply could not survive under the PFJ. And such would be the effect on any company developing in the future technologies as innovative as the browser was in the mid 1990s.

That leaves the question of whether Microsoft itself would have developed browser technology necessary for Internet navigation. My belief is that Microsoft would not have developed that technology. It is abundantly clear that Microsoft viewed the browser and the Internet itself as the principal threat to their core business of selling operating systems and applications for desktop computers.

This PFJ allows Microsoft to employ the full fury of its multiple monopolies against anyone who would develop a browser or any other technology that might have the potential to challenge any aspects of Microsoft's business. I have reviewed the PFJ, and my impression continues to be that it is a document whose principal purpose is to protect Microsoft from competition, and not to open up the market to competition with Microsoft. I note, again with pleasure, that the remedy proposal by the state Attorneys General who remain as plaintiffs would significantly open the market up to competition.

If the PFJ provisions are allowed to go into effect, it is unrealistic to think that anybody would ever secure venture capital financing to compete against Microsoft. This would be a tragedy for our nation. It makes a mockery of the notion that the PFJ is good for the economy. If the PFJ goes into effect, it will subject an entire industry to dominance by an unconstrained monopolist, thus snuffing out competition, consumer choice and innovation in perhaps our nation's most important industry. And worse, it will allow them to extend their dominance to more traditional businesses such as financial services, entertainment, telecommunications, and perhaps many others.

Four years ago I appeared before the committee and was able to demonstrate, with the help of the audience, that Microsoft undoubtedly had a monopoly. Now it has been proven in the courts that Microsoft not only has a monopoly, but they have illegally maintained that monopoly through a series of abusive and predatory actions. I submit to the committee that Microsoft is infinitely stronger in each of their core businesses than they were four years ago, despite the fact that their principal arguments have been repudiated 8-0 by the federal courts."

Judge, that is absolutely what my experience as a software programmer tells me. I am not an expert in antitrust matters—but what Microsoft is doing is wrong.

Please help correct the deeply flawed document that our Justice Dept produced.

Thank you.

MTC-00011032

From: RainAZ@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:42pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Yes, for Microsoft and a Big No to You the government that continues to harass a very important and wonderfully worthwhile Company. While you folks work away doing God knows what, Microsoft actually does help real people in real time. Get off it. Now.

Lorraine Grover

MTC-00011033

From: John Stage
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:43pm
Subject: MICROSOFT IS A PREDATOR

Dear Judge:

I am a former Microsoft executive—and please excuse me but I'm not going to give you my full name in this e-mail for fear of reprisal.

Net-net: there is no question that MS explicitly targets competitors and uses every dirty trick in the book (and more) to put them out of business. I've seen it—more than once.

I have no idea why the DoJ totally rolled over on this one...looks like they just took a dive. Maybe MS is giving to the GOP big time—I don't know. But I do know that the PFJ is a very bad deal for everyone who's not a MS millionaire—and even many of us that used to work there are not proud of what we did.

I'd ask you to make sure that Microsoft is held accountable to the same laws as everyone else. No one else will.

John
Seattle, WA.

MTC-00011034

From: Joseph Gadoury
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
From: Joseph Gadoury
17 Mason Rd.

Dudley MA 01571
508-943-2516
jgadoury@bellatlantic.net
To: Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing to express my satisfaction that the Department of Justice has finally decided to settle the anti-trust litigation against Microsoft. While I believe that the original case against Microsoft was weak, unsubstantiated, and not necessary, this settlement seems to satisfy the public and the government's interest.

The terms of the settlement keep Microsoft accountable, foster innovation and increase competition.

According to the settlement, Microsoft has agreed to submit its technology and business practices to a three-person, government-appointed, technical oversight committee. This committee will be responsible for ensuring Microsoft's compliance with the agreement, and resolving disputes. Microsoft has also agreed to change its licensing practices to ensure that the maximum amount of technology is available to the industry.

This settlement goes beyond the government's original complaints and ensures that the company will be a viable entity in the future. I am sure you'll agree that it is time to turn our national resources to more fruitful and productive ends.

I hope that this is the last step in this drawn out process and that the government ceases all further federal action.

Thank you for your careful consideration,

Joseph Gadoury
jgadoury@bellatlantic.net

MTC-00011035

From: Claude David
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

I for one do not consider it unfair for Microsoft to bundle "goodies" with their operating system, so long as nobody is compelled to use them. Their competitors are free to make their own products as attractive to the consumer as possible. But they don't seem to be prepared to give anything away "for free", yet they have the nerve to ask the federal government to use its resources to dismantle a company that this country should be so very proud of.

There are matters of greater moment that the department of justice and this government should be devoting their resources to. Let us not shoot ourselves in the foot for the sake of a few greedy CEOs and jealous States.

MTC-00011036

From: bubbalaura@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the settlement 100%. This case has dragged on far too long. Too much of the taxpayer's money has been spent that could have spent on other issues. This has been a witchhunt against Microsoft for the beginning. Approve the settlement and let's move this Great Nation forward.

God Bless You and God Bless America.

MTC-00011037

From: Mike Moses
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Mike Moses
323 N Narberth ave
Narberth, PA 19072
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mike Moses

MTC-00011038

From: Michael Giesler
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:06pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Michael Giesler
11111 109th Pl NE
Kirkland, WA 98033
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Michael Giesler

MTC-00011039

From: Chad Myers
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Chad Myers
6437 Clay Allison Pass
Austin, TX 78749
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Chad Myers

MTC-00011040

From: Elias Gelat
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Elias Gelat
7004 Live Oak Dr
North Richland Hills, tx 76180
January 13, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
E.A. Gelat

MTC-00011041

From: Steve Sheldon
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/13/02 11:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Steve Sheldon
15233 Greenhaven Way
Burnsville, MN 55306
January 13, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Steve Sheldon

MTC-00011042

From: Adam Bockhorst
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:06am
Subject: Decision shows awareness of school budgetary realities

Judge Motz' decision to scuttle this ill-conceived settlement was appropriate. He clearly recognized that organizations making procurement decisions quite often follow a path of least resistance. Allowing Microsoft to seed thousands of school districts with free equipment and products likely would have made the adoption of its products a fait accompli, at least in some districts. A Federal district court would have been complicit in expanding the very monopoly recognized by the DOJ—a nasty example of the government's left hand not knowing the activities of its right.

Adam Bockhorst
Computer Assistant, Kirkwood School District
St. Louis, Missouri

MTC-00011043

From: Jeffrey Jimenez
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:44am
Subject: Objection to Microsoft Proposed Final Judgement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
I am filing my personal objection to the proposed final judgment on the Microsoft case. Supposedly, the Court has found Microsoft guilty of violating all rules of proper business ethics and practices. However with the PFJ (Proposed Final Judgment), the Department of Justice throws out, if not abandons all previous court findings that indicts Microsoft. In fact, the PFJ permits Microsoft to continue with its monopolistic and predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment not only to the software sector but also to the technology industry as a whole. Without a doubt, I strongly believe you will receive thousands of similar appeals encompassing the many flaws that are apparent in the proposed final settlement. My main focus entails one fundamental flaw clearly noticeable in the proposed settlement:

The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its current market position, or should I say, Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology markets.

Under the general rule, most monopolies in the past, such as AT&T and Standard Oil, are either broken up or carefully regulated. However, Microsoft is given a pardon or a waiver to this general rule of thumb altogether. Also, Simple slaps on the wrist or severe reprimands by the Department of Justice will not radically alter Microsofts existing operation methodologies. As history has proven over and over again, Microsoft will undoubtedly abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless something extraordinary is done such as breaking up Microsofts business into several parts or meting out severe punishment, Microsoft will persistently continue to implement illegal business practices. I submit to the Court that the Proposed Final Judgment does not solve the Microsoft issue.

Respectfully,
Jeffrey Jimenez
3061 La Selva Ave Apt C203
San Mateo, CA 94401

MTC-00011044

From: Jeff Daniell
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 12:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jeff Daniell
PO Box 1444
Lampasas, TX 76550
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jeff Daniell

MTC-00011045

From: Jonathan Hughey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 12:38am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jonathan Hughey
4240 Cuesta Dr.
Irving, TX 75038
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jonathan N Hughey

MTC-00011046

From: Steve Moore
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 12:49am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Steve Moore
1306 Island View Ct.
Nashville, TN 37214
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Steve Moore

MTC-00011047

From: John Thibodeau
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/13/02 11:59pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 John Thibodeau
 366 S W Main St
 Douglas, Ma 01516-2505
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 John Thibodeau

MTC-00011048

From: Jesse Cook
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 12:46am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Jesse Cook
 5784 Ohara Ct
 Boise, ID 83703
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Jesse Cook

MTC-00011049

From: Chance Cartwright
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 12:13am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Chance Cartwright
 12 Perkins
 Lampasas, TX 76550
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 Chance Cartwright

MTC-00011050

From: Hao He
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/14/02 1:21am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It appears to the rest of the world that justice is only as much as you can afford it in the USA.

Microsoft has been found to be a monopoly and has used that monopoly position for its illegal gains. However, Microsoft can get away with its wrong doings without any effective punishment.

Dr. Hao He

Software Architect
 The above statements only reflect my personal views.

MTC-00011051

From: root@smtp.sunflower.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 1:43am
 Subject: Microsoft

This is a terrible settlement. I do feel that those in the Justice Department that made it were well meaning, but they simply do not understand what Microsoft is doing. Most developers will flat out tell you that Microsoft is an impediment to technological advancement, they are a monopoly, and have massively abused that position.

I could go on and on. But let me just make one example, Internet Explorer.

Microsoft was nonexistent in the development stages of the Web. But they ended up cloning the good work of others, and then using their monopoly power to drive those who were the innovators, out of the picture.

This is what Microsoft does every time. They were a decent and innovative company, up to the mid 90s. But that changed. Microsoft no longer creates, it does not innovate. It clones, and uses its monopoly position to drive those that really do innovate out, leaving Microsoft with control of the market.

If this is not monopoly abuse, what is? Please tell me. And what is really frightening, is what Microsoft has planned for the future.

Frank Kalich
 Software Engineer
 915 Alabama
 Lawrence Kansas 66044
 785 331-3413

MTC-00011052

From: Jason Carreiro
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 1:07am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Jason Carreiro
 376 Hailes Hill Rd.
 Swansea, MA 02777
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jason Carreiro

MTC-00011053

From: Mayssam Sayyadian
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 5:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

hello,
In my opinion, the proposed final judgement:

Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected.

Fails to remedy the injury done to the JavaTM technology community. Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market.

Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system.

Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism.

Regards,
—MS.

MTC-00011054

From: Blanc
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 2:56am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

What is it called when there is centralized control of private enterprise? What could be better for consumers than to have Big Brother sitting in Microsoft's office, at Microsoft's expense, watching every move it makes?

What a great precedent for the future of business and the "free market" in the "free world"!

What could be better for fostering personal resolve, self-reliance, and independence of mind, than to have a "higher" agency make the decisions for OEMs, ISP, and OSPs who lack the courage to reject exclusionary agreements or refuse to do business under those terms, since otherwise they'll miss out on the large piles of money they're sure to make in the deal?

What could be better than knowing it is a crime to protect the integrity of products for which a company is liable, and that it is required by law to include the competition in the designs? Perhaps this country should also include a link to communism in its charter, to provide it equal opportunity to attract our attention and fealty.

If I owned Microsoft, I would say to hell with it—let them use Linux. After all, there is no obligation to continue producing this operating system, make improvements or add features to it, or creating new software applications—and all the while suffering imposed indignities in order to operate the business.

Nor are consumers obliged to continue using computers and software: these things are not like air or water or food, and large numbers of people hardly know how to use them. Those who do have become used to their benefits, with much thanks to Microsoft, among others. But it is possible to live without them: it was not so long ago that they did not exist as choices for the average consumer.

Where is the harm to consumers from products they are free to desist from using, when they are not required to go to the store and put their money down to buy any of them, but once having done so are at liberty to roam the internet and discover all sorts of other free downloadable software to use in replacement, limited only by their time and curiosity?

I have experienced no harm from using Microsoft's products, but this settlement, though less destructive than the previous proposal, makes me ill.

Blanc Weber

MTC-00011055

From: Frank Bohnem
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 2:08am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Frank Bohnem
3247 Nowhere St
T.O., CA 91362
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Frank Bohnem

MTC-00011056

From: Mike Larson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 2:49am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Mike Larson
3672 Falcon Way
Eagan, MN 55123
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

It's time for this anti-consumer trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will put competition back in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom, when this dinosaur is laid to rest.

Then Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and stop wasting tons of time and other valuable resources on litigation. It's their competitors who can't make it in the marketplace, not the end users and ordinary people who have to rely on their computers to be productive, who benefit from this anti-trust, anti-consumer exercise in poor government.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers, not making it possible for other businesses to keep making products that people don't want and won't buy. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of successful corporations, people who actually use the software—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers. With the chains off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies, instead of funding to the tune of hundreds of thousands or more dollars the parties and politicians who represent these market-loser businesses.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mike Larson

MTC-00011058

From: Charleen Hoffman
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 3:08am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charleen Hoffman
PO Box 80927
Fairbanks, AK 99708-0927
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charleen Hoffman

MTC-00011059

From: Jani Pohjanraito
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 4:05am
Subject: Antitrust Division's case against Microsoft

Dear Sirs!

I would simply like to point out that before just competition in the OS and browser market and developing field is ensured (even in the simplest possible manner), the consumers will be paying extra price, and software developers will have 3-4 times the workload per project.

—For years Microsofts unethical conduct (middleware bundling with OS, 'harassment' of other browser developers, ...) has been slowing down the development of the web, made developers job next to impossible and has in my experience reduced the quality of services available to consumers on the internet.

—All of the above at the consumers expense: people have paid for the operating system, believing that Windows will increase their productivity and possibilities, when it, in fact, has brought limitations to the services available to them. This is an outrage!

—Web-service and software developers have been paying the dearest price: Microsofts business conduct has forced developers to invest at least 3-4 times more time and energy in bringing their products to markets—extra work is required because developers have to 'work their way around' the limitations and barriers set by microsoft (brought forward by the OS and the browser and programming language 'discrimination' practiced by Microsoft).

I hope you really consider this case as the case of the future of efficient internet and desktop computing—it is 'make it or break it' case. Outcome will be either outdated and limited OS/Service market, or contemporary and rich OS/Service market. Best Regard, Jani Pohjanraito Web Developer since 1996

MTC-00011060

From: Peyman Afshani 78179805

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 7:49am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In particular, the proposed final judgement: Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected; Fails to remedy the injury done to the Java™ technology community; Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market; Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system; Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism. In addition, Microsoft has unlawfully gained popularity for its products, by forcing everyone that installs Winxxx to use its applications including Players, browsers, editors and ... and in this "proposed final judgement" there is no solution for this unlawfully gained popularity. This popularity consists of forcing end users, which are mostly novice or beginners to forcibly use Microsoft's product and have no desire to change the software.

MTC-00011061

From: Angela Watkins
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 4:32am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Angela Watkins
Rt1 Box173-6
Durant, Ok 74701
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Angela Watkins

MTC-00011062

From: Matt Frankford

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 4:14am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Matt Frankford
17000 sw 17th cir
ocala, fl 34473
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Matthew D. Frankford

MTC-00011063

From: Charles Salber
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 4:54am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charles Salber
3833 Edgewood Ave.
Fort Myers, FL 33916-1054
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charles Salber

MTC-00011064

From: Craig Hillemann
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 5:16am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

A FINFlash Alert: The DOJ wants to hear from YOU[RESENT IN PLAIN TEXT] January 13, 2002 Attorney General John Ashcroft U.S. Department of Justice 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

Pursuant to provisions of the Tunney Act, I am writing to express my opinion on the settlement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice in November of last year. Apparently nine states are seeking to further prosecute the Microsoft Corporation. As both a taxpayer and purchaser of personal computer software products, I do not believe that the antitrust case against Microsoft should be dragged out any longer.

Please be reminded that the purpose of antitrust laws in the United States is to protect consumers like me, and not to support the self-interests of competitors in the marketplace. The parties that goaded the DOJ and states to file antitrust actions were Microsoft's competitors, not consumers like me. Microsoft's competitors are obviously envious of Microsoft's success, but the reason Microsoft has succeeded is simply that Microsoft has consistently delivered better and more cost-effective products, and furthermore fostered a large market and environment inviting competition. As result, enormously more quality, low-cost hardware and software is available from both Microsoft and other vendors for Windows than for any other operating system (e.g. Linux, MacOS, Solaris, etc.).

Microsoft's Windows product provides excellent functionality for the price. As a consumer, I want Microsoft to bundle as many apples as possible in Windows, and I do not appreciate hardware vendors modifying Windows. My computer-using colleagues feel similarly. Windows as provided by Microsoft works well on a remarkably wide range of computer hardware. The apples included in Windows provide very helpful functionality with dependable stability and user interface consistency. Their inclusion does not prevent other vendors from developing products with greater functionality, but does provide a useful standard for other vendors to try to surpass.

I have read the entire Appellate Decision for this case, and based on the facts, including my own experience as a computer user, I do not believe bundling Internet Explorer in Windows was unlawful. Frankly, I appreciate the inclusion of Internet Explorer in Windows. Microsoft's alleged misrepresentation of Java support may have been questionable, but the context was a struggle with Sun, one of Microsoft's biggest detractors, for control of the language. Microsoft has since pulled back support for Java in Internet Explorer. Anyway, the proposed settlement goes well beyond any reasonable remedy in view of Microsoft's possible misstep.

Under the circumstances, the agreement made between Microsoft and the Department of Justice was certainly more than fair. All parties directly involved (not counting Microsoft's competitors) seem satisfied with the terms reached. Microsoft has agreed to license its software and applicable intellectual property rights to its major competitors. Moreover, Microsoft is planning to format future versions of Windows so that its competitors will be able to introduce and endorse non-Microsoft software in Windows. Microsoft has also agreed to disclose Windows line code to competing computer software producers. However, I personally will want the full version of Windows from Microsoft without it being hacked by other vendors. I do not believe litigation should continue in this case. There is no need to drag the suit out any longer. You and your office should back the settlement.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Craig L. Hillemann
1229 Crestover Road
Wilmington, DE 19803
302-479-0432
Craig_H@msn.com

MTC-00011065

From: Tom Kirkwood
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 5:46am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Tom Kirkwood
4362 Rice Street
Shoreview, MN 55126
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial was well worth the cost in taxpayers' dollars, was a blessing to consumers. It is high time for this trial result in real changes that will stop the destruction of small companies. Many Americans think the federal government should have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft will be aware they cannot do these kinds of things, and not waste valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tom Kirkwood

MTC-00011066

From: Faraz Hach
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:59am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected;

Fails to remedy the injury done to the JavaTM technology community; Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market;

Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system;

Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism.

Microsoft forced the users to work with its components like ie (Internet Exp . . .)

—F.Hach

MTC-00011067

From: larry mahoney
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:42am
Subject: End Microsoft Anti-trust Case
Please put a STOP to this Clinton-era corporate witch hunt!!!
Thank you.

MTC-00011068

From: mark oliveri
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 7:43am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
mark oliveri
626 chestnut st
mifflinburg, pa 17844
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
mark oliveri

MTC-00011069

From: John Quigley

To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 7:46am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 John Quigley
 15 e charlotte ave
 wyoming, oh 45215-2113
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
 John E Quigley II

MTC-00011070

From: David Secret
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:19am
 Subject: I urge you do not go light on Microsoft: Consumers and innovation will suffer.

This was sent via US Mail, I decided to copy you via EMail due to the risks of US Mail to Washington these days.

I wanted to make you aware of the opinions from industry regarding the irreparable harm Microsoft has done to the computing world. They have been blatantly anticompetitive, destroying any competition they could using their OS monopoly and continually expanding into new areas by leveraging their OS: Web Viewing, Web servers, Music(Media Player). No one can compete in any area if Microsoft simply bundles their product with their Operating System for free at first, they stave out all competition then charge because they are the only viable player in the market.

They were blatantly apathetic at the charges leveled at them by the court, they were mocking and even faked an exhibit in order to show removing Internet Explorer from a Windows computer was harmful.(Even though any computer expert knows it isn't).[There were different icon layouts on the computers during the video, showing it had been cut and another computer used instead of the original.]

It is clear, without stiff penalties and controls on their future actions a company like this will not deviate from it's illegal ways. I urge you to consider a breakup of Microsoft into at least two companies: Operating System, and Office. This would at least stop some of the leveraging they are doing in those two areas which they control.

Respectfully,
 David Secret
 MIS Director
 Kearney Development Co., Inc.

MTC-00011071

From: Smith, Janet (123)D 101
 (126)Indianapolis(125)
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/14/02 8:36am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Please see attached letter.
 <<USAGSmith_Janet_1009_0109.doc.dot>>

Janet 9115 Hague Road
 Indianapolis, Indiana 46256
 January all, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 US Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530
 Dear Mr. Ashcroft:
 As a concerned citizen, I write you regarding the recent Microsoft settlement. It is foolish, to me, to continue to dissect an agreement that has been meticulously negotiated for three years. How can it be, that there may be further litigation on this subject? The terms that have been outlined are in the interest of the entire IT sector and can only benefit our position in this highly competitive global market.

The many concessions that Microsoft has made in this settlement are directed toward promoting non-Microsoft software. This alone, shows that Microsoft is working in the interest of our entire technology industry. Some of the major changes they are willing to make include licensing, marketing and even future design. Using these terms as a guideline to get back to business is helpful to the consumer, the IT sector and our economy as a whole.

Please help to get this settlement moving forward. We need these guidelines to help pull our IT sector together to be productive in this global market. Let's make sure that there be no more litigation against this settlement. I thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
 Janet Smith

MTC-00011072

From:
 tom.szymanski@exgate.tek.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:41am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

I am writing this to urge you to reject the proposed Microsoft settlement. I believe the settlement as it currently stands would neither punish Microsoft for the anti-competitive actions it has taken in the past, nor prevent it from repeating them in the future.

On the contrary, it think it would provide MS with additional ways to strengthen it's monopolistic grip on our country's home and business software.

I believe that the only remedy to this problem is to subdivide Microsoft into separate business entities that would compete in the marketplace with each other and other technology companies.

Sincerely
 Tom Szymanski

MTC-00011073

From: Agnes S Heller
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 8:52am
 Subject: settlement

At a time when companies like Enron fraudulently squandered the public's moneys(mine included), it would be best that one of the most outstanding and profitable companies be allowed to operate without further interference. The states that do not wish to accept the settlement are going to spend a lot of their constituents money for lawyers' fees. This whole suit was ridiculous, belly aching by the likes of Scott Mc Neily and his company. He and the other competitors are just not smart enough! That is what it comes down to.

The stockholders of Microsoft should sue the justice dept.You are NOT SERVING PUBLIC INTEREST by further litigation.

Sincerely Agnes Heller
 (Microsoft stockholder)

MTC-00011074

From: Mark Rapp
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 8:25am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Mark Rapp
 96 Linn Drive
 Verona, NJ 07044
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mark Rapp

MTC-00011075

From: Doody, Scott (FUSA)
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/14/02 9:04am
Subject: Microsoft monopoly

As an informed consumer, I find Microsoft's corporate behavior extremely distasteful. I find Microsoft's products useful, but lacking any meaningful alternative I have no basis for comparison. Microsoft is clearly a monopoly and clearly continue to abuse their power even in the face of antitrust prosecution. Even the recent "settlement" propagates their power by placing them in a position of prominence in one of the few software markets they don't control—our children's schools.

The development of Passport and the other components of .Net is truly alarming, given Microsoft's incompetence with security, obsession with controlling "revenue streams" and thinly veiled contempt for consumer's wishes. I plan on purchasing a new computer soon, at which point I will feel forced to wipe Windows XP from the hard drive (having paid for a license) and installing an older version of Windows, simply to safeguard my privacy and financial safety.

The best way to correct a problem like Microsoft is market forces, but the market is powerless in the face of Microsoft's influence over software developers and would-be competition. The role of the government is to protect the market from influences such as Microsoft, and I am amazed at the lack of progress on the part of Federal prosecutors. I have read excerpts from Bill Gates' testimony to Congress, in which he states that maligned Microsoft is not a monopoly and that consumers have plenty of choices. However, confronted with the breakup of his company, he then states that Microsoft is central to the entire personal computing industry; and that thwarting the company will imperil the entire industry. This, from a man who stated under oath that the does not know what "market share" is.

The DOJ needs to get busy.

Scott Doody
Project Manager
Phone: 302.282.7713
Graphic Production Services (GPS)
First USA Bank

MTC-00011077

From: PTemeles@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:24am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Letters have been faxed to Ashcroft and R. Santorum.

MTC-00011078

From: Michael Willems
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:31am
Subject: MS

Hello,
For what it is worth, our company, while it tries to take a balanced view and uses many MS products, feels that MS is hindering the industry by its anticompetitive behavior, and that a split-up is the only remedy that will provide both justice and growth. Please persevere.

Sincerely,
Michael Michael Willems
<mwillems@digitalview.com>
Chief Technology Officer
Digital View Group
http://www.digitalview.com

MTC-00011079

From: Robert Wheat
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:39am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

January 11, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

As a software developer, I am writing to voice my opinions on the settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft Corporation. I want you all to know that I support the settlement that has been negotiated with Microsoft.

It is my belief that the only reason the Justice Department is in the middle of this is due to other competitors' inadequacies and complaining (we are starting to call it—the software complaint lobby—if you can't sell it then go complain to your congressman). When Lotus was suing everyone for similar spreadsheet programs, we all thought—hire more developers—not lawyers. Make your product better to compete with the competition. That is what I do all day long. Where is Lotus today? I believe the products that Microsoft develops are the best in the business. It is the job of the competition to improve their products in order to be successful as well. It is my understanding that this settlement was reached after extensive negotiations with a court appointed mediator. As I understand it, Microsoft is not getting off that easy. They are required to make specific changes due to the settlement. For example, Microsoft has agreed to document and disclose even more interfaces that are internal to the Windows' operating system products for use by its competitors.

I urge that no further action be taken against Microsoft. We all want to get on with the next generation—not the last generation software.

Robert Wheat
13423 Post Oak Glen Cypress, TX 77429
cadworx@coade.com
281-890-4566

MTC-00011080

From: norris dalton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:39am
Subject: Bill and the Boys

If any part of your paycheck comes from tax dollars, you should give it back. Try this. Stop using any and all software that is made by Bill and the boys. See how far you get. People like you are the reason he has done as well as he has.

Norris A. Dalton
norrisdalton@hotmail.com

MTC-00011081

From: Thomas Angioletti
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:41am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To Whom it May Concern:

I am a software developer in the defense industry and have been following the anti-trust case against Microsoft. I do not think that the proposed settlement adequately punishes Microsoft for its crimes against the American people in restraining free trade, nor will it discourage Microsoft from similar future behavior. Microsoft has shown no remorse for its actions; anything short of a heavy penalty (such as removing copyright protections for Windows) is an insult to the rule of law. Furthermore, attempts to monitor Microsoft's good behavior in the fast-paced tech industry will always be several steps behind.

In my view, the software industry, due to the high fixed cost and very low marginal cost of developing software, has a weakness for monopoly formation. We need a government willing to actively police our industry and enforce the antitrust laws.

Sincerely,
Thomas C. Angioletti

MTC-00011082

From: Greg—
Ambrose@Vanguard.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:42am
Subject: Microsoft settlement.

Please read the letter I've attached. It expresses my opinion on the Microsoft case.

Thank you,
—Greg Ambrose
1250 Warwick Furnace Road
Pottstown, PA 19465-8903

January 13, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing to inform you of what I think about the recent settlement between the Justice Department, and Microsoft. I think that this case should not have been brought to court in first place. However, it is in the best interests of all parties involved to accept this settlement and move on to other things.

The terms are more than fair and reasonable for the government to accept. Microsoft will be making a number of specific changes to their products, and business practices. For example, Microsoft has agreed to license its Windows operating system products to the 20 largest computer makers on identical terms and conditions, including price. Also, the company has agreed not to retaliate against computer makers who ship software that compete with anything in its operating system.

As you can see, Microsoft did not get off easy in this case. Please accept the settlement, and take no more action against Microsoft. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Greg Ambrose
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00011083

From: Will Hitchcock

To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/14/02 9:53am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I was inspired to submit a comment by an article posted on Sun's web site. This article continues to convince me that we live in a world rife with thieves. Thieves that now have the US government working for them. I will keep this short since there must be thousands of comments to sift through. Microsoft has only done one thing wrong: a contract violation with Sun in terms of their implementation of the Java Virtual Machine (they added Windows specific logic). Absolutely that is a contract violation and should be punished. Every single other allegation is bogus. The US government has become the henchman for Oracle, Sun and the rest of the thieving whiners out there. Microsoft crushed Netscape because they bundled internet explorer. Good. I would like to sell a calculator program but Microsoft includes one in the operation system. Is a calculator part of the operating system? Isn't Microsoft using it's monopoly to keep me down? Shouldn't everyone be forced to pay for my calculator program?

Please keep in mind, that the only true monopolies (100% market share) that have existed in the history of this nation were created by the government. The free market has never yielded a monopoly—not a single one. Standard Oil's market share was smaller than Microsoft's for example. The government's law suit is an attack on freedom and therefore the foundation of modern civilization.

Thanks for your time.

Will Hitchcock

Principal Software Engineer

Delphi Technology Inc.

Phone: (617) 494-8361 x2046

Email: whitchcock@delphi-tech.com

MTC-00011084

From: Jeff Whicker
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 9:56am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I would like to add my voice to the 9 States and the European community in a plea to reject the proposed Microsoft settlement. The settlement provides no remedy for the past abuses of Microsoft's monopoly, and it provides no effective means of insuring that Microsoft will end it's abuse of that power.

I was very dismayed that the Monopoly was not broken up. Why should developers such as myself be given sub-standard documentation concerning Microsoft's APIs while Microsoft's own developers are given access to "secret" APIs? A company which owns the most popular operating system simply has no business being in software development. They are competing unfairly with the very community which MADE their operating system popular in the first place.

If the software community had not propelled Microsoft's OS to the forefront then it would be understandable that Microsoft would develop software to be written on it's own OS in an attempt to make their system more useable. But it obviously didn't happen that way. Microsoft first let companies like Wordperfect, Netscape, Lotus, Quicken, and thousands of others develop software for their OS. Then after their OS was already a monopoly, they went into direct competition with those companies and they did so entirely unfairly. They developed secret APIs which were never documented for the general community of software developers while documenting them fully to their own developers.

I realize that the proposed settlement prohibits Microsoft from continuing this practice. Yet the settlement does not make any remedy for the damage this practice has already done. Nor is any agency with real teeth going to be able to enforce the agreement. If Microsoft again fails to completely document it's own APIs they will simply claim it was a mistake. And then only if they are caught. They need to be broke up.

Sincerely,

Jeff Whicker

MTC-00011085

From: Chris Lovett
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 9:27am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Chris Lovett
 2155 Grand Brook Circle
 Orlando, FL 32065
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Chris Lovett

MTC-00011086

From: Gene Averett
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 9:06am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Gene Averett
 3889 Marlesta Drive

San Diego, CA 92111
 January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Gene Averett

MTC-00011087

From: Scott Prugh
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/14/02 9:13am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Scott Prugh
 2840 N Lincoln Ave
 Chicago, IL 60657

January 14, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
 Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Scott Prugh

MTC-00011088

From: Account CONSULT-SMI AI/SM-I
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 9:58am
Subject: Trial against MS
 Confidential **

Dear Sirs,

I would like to state my opinion concerning the proposed settlement. As a software developer, the quality of my own work depends on the quality of intermediate software like operating systems platforms or databases. Also, the level of stress that I have to face within my daily work with computers and the bearability of the job I do are majorly influenced by the actions of global players like Microsoft or Sun Microsystems.

Therefore I speak as a person directly concerned by Microsoft's policies and strategies and I cannot resist but to tell you that the business part of my life would be much more bearable if Microsoft would stop their ongoing seeding of discord.

Lately I bought a notebook and after a complete market survey, I found out that there was only one Notebook-vendor who could offer me notebooks without a preinstalled Windows operating system. If you purchase a Dell, Sony, Toshiba, Samsung or other notebook, then you can choose to take this graphics card or the other, you can configure every aspect. However you are always forced to purchase a Windows OS along with it. This is so up to the very day. If you just make the test, walk into a PC store, choose a particular notebook, and ask if you could purchase this laptop without a preinstalled windows, then you will always hear that this is not possible.

A fair competition between software vendors will only be made possible again, if some institution like the DOJ controls Microsofts behaviour. — Another aspect is that within a free-market economy, the best product should win the customers approval. Microsoft however is using its predominant position in todays market to force all software vendors into using their proprietary windows protocols.

In the earlier days I used to program windows software and my work was hard. Nowadays I am only using Java software coming from Sun Microsystems. Since that time, my work is much easier. My Point is, that although Java technology is superior to anything Microsoft has to offer, it is not going to spread among the people and its use it not going to increase because Microsoft again is using it monopoly to suppress Java technology.

If microsoft was acting in a fair way, they would reckon that Sun Microsystems is offering a product that is open and top-nodge an would try to catch up. Microsoft could even adopt Java technology because it is free. Nonetheless Microsoft prefers to use its monopoly to boycott this outstanding technology and therefore suppress the improvement of software products directly.

By any means necessary, microsofts superciliousness has to be abolished. Laws must have a substance in reality and may not only look good on a piece of paper. It is necessary to apply strict regulations to Microsofts business mien.

Whatever judgement you decide on, it must be so made that it guarantees that Microsoft cannot go on acting as they do now in the future. To my mind the measures proposed so far are not sufficient. Microsoft not only deserves a higher punishment—it will be necessary to ensure a change in behaviour. Microsoft has had a chance to show that they are willing to cooperate but shows no sign of this. For example, Applte has integrated Suns Java platform within its newest operating system called Mac OS. Linux distributions come with a preinstalled Java platform. However, Microsoft is not integrating a modern Java-platform into its brandnew windows XP.

At the same time Microsoft is trying to become the only holder of people's electronic identities by setting up a proprietary platform that holds peoples secure identities. This project is called Project Hailstorm and Microsoft is using its monopoly once more to push this technology forward, not only ruining better proposals but also leading into an era where your complete identity as a person is hosted by one private company!!!

best regards
Sascha Coenen

MTC-00011089

From: Ernie Bello
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 9:57am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ernie Bello
610 Park Ave Apt. B10
Rochester, NY 14607
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ernie Bello

MTC-00011090

From: David Henry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:15am
Subject: Microsoft case comments
U.S. Department of Justice
Gentlemen/Ladies:
Refer: Microsoft case.

I understand the DOJ is taking comments about the Microsoft Case. Microsoft was clearly a case of monopolistic behavior. The company should have been split into four separate operating units.

1. Operating Systems.
2. Internet related software.
3. All other software.
4. All other business activities.

Why this wasn't done is a mystery to me.
David Henry
1620 S. 118th E. Ave.
Tulsa, OK 74128-5636

MTC-00011091

From: Frederick R. Brock
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:40am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To whom it may concern:

I feel that the proposed remedy fall's short of curtailing microsoft's monolpoly. I am a developer and devlope primarily java based enterprise systems, this means my inability to recieve windows OS specificate API (application programmers interface) information does not effect my ability to deliver a solution to my clients, however, from a price perspective I just spent 200.00 (199.99) on my UPGRADE to windows XP and just a quarter before I spent another 200.00 dollars on my UPGRADE to windows 2000. I can't afford MS Office which is near 1000.00 for a UPGRADE with the full version over 1000.00+ they can charge this because they are a monopoly!!!!. I have been around computers my entire life and watched as DOS evolved into windows and MS grew to become a monopoly. I used to be able to buy a Office suite of my choice from 5 or 6 vendors for about 79.00 dollars, MS drove all of them under and now If I want to be compatible with the rest of the world I have to pay MS 1000.00+ for a sub-quality office product. I can't afford to do this as a small business, I wish their was an alternative. But since you will not separate them or at least cap the price increases that they pass on to the consumer for MINOR updates to their product, no other vendor will have a chance.

In addition, when I installed my new XP upgrade it ruined 6 months of work, some of which I cannot re-create, I can't get my money back so I guess I am stuck. This is a big problem!!!!. Their software now answers questions and chooses options for you, as a result it ate my HD to crap with out giving me, the owner of the computer, a chance to intervene, thier should be a law against this. I lost time and money. Frederick R. Brock Brock Consulting Inc.

MTC-00011092

From: Raymond
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:29am
 Subject: Comment on about the MS settlement

Hello:

I work with schools and community centers in the LA area. Many schools and community centers would like to use Linux as there main educational Operating System. After watching the video of Dan Kegel at Linux Public Broadcasting Network I also conclude that Microsoft must not create barriers to prevent MS applications from running on Linux via the WINE project. If the DOJ would enforce this one condition the US software market would likely return to a competitive market again. Most importantly disadvantaged ethnic groups and poor schools would have the technological skills they need to compete in the job market. Please watch the video at www.lpbn.org to find out what the really bright tech people of this country are saying. The link is www.lpbn.org.

Sincerely,
 Raymond Stedng

MTC-00011093

From: Brian Densmore
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 10:29am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice and honorable judiciary, A peer of mine sent this letter to you. I have previously sent in a letter. But this perhaps goes a little bit further in explaining my thoughts on the matter.

Some of my Information Technology background:

- B.S. Computer Science
- 8 years professional programming employment
- 20 years computer experience
- 10 years professional computer/computerized hardware experience
- 30 years electronic experience (started experimenting age 10)

In other words I have extensive knowledge of things electronic (of which digital computers are but one branch of) from both a hardware and software level.

I believe the Microsoft Settlement has been a capitulation by the current administration and the Department of Justice to the big money donations of the Microsoft lobbying and campaign contributions. The US won this case! Why has the justice department settled for this woefully inadequate solution to Microsoft's conviction as a monopolist? This is the penalty phase of this case, and yet there appears to be no penalty for Microsoft, and in fact if implemented as written, could actually increase Microsoft's Monopoly. Exactly! Microsoft has already been found guilty. While I can understand the DOJ backing off the separation of Microsoft, that doesn't mean they don't need to be reined in and made to behave like a good Monopolist. It has been apparent for some time Microsoft has flaunted the law in many aspects. They have taken other peoples copyrighted and or patented software and changed the copyright or patent information and sold it as their own (just one example: STAC software's stacker compression software). This kind of lack of morals needs punishment. They just keep doing this over and over, and getting way with this! this is a travesty and a mockery of the American legal system. Don't let Microsoft manipulate the law to fit them; manipulate Microsoft to fit the law.

For true justice to be served, the courts must decide the punishment and not the politically (and monetarily) motivated DOJ. For this reason, the settlement as currently written must be REJECTED!

I would like to point out several flaws in the settlement and recommend some alternatives that would seem to make more sense. I refer to the settlement found at <http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/f9400/9495.htm>

III.A Microsoft shall not retaliate against an OEM... Not only should Microsoft not be able to punish the OEM, but OEM pricing should be disallowed for Microsoft. The OEM vendors should be required to pay full retail price for the operating system and office products, and pass this on to the consumer. In other words, strike paragraphs

III.B.2 and III.B.3 from the settlement. Furthermore, the OEM should be required to list this cost as part of total cost of the machine, and offer all machines they sell with either alternative operating systems, or no operating system at all installed. This would provide clear disclosure to consumers of the "Microsoft tax" they are paying with each new computer system. Allowing users to remove items from a purchased machine is inadequate, as they have already paid the "tax" and Microsoft goes unpenalized.

III.D ...Microsoft shall disclose to ISVs, IHVs, IAPs, ICPs, and OEMs, ...the APIs and related Documentation... While this is a step in the right direction, Microsoft should be compelled to make public, not simply to certain companies but to the public, all operating system APIs, all communication APIs, and every single file format, current and future, created or used by any of their products. The interfaces and file formats should not be allowed to be considered "intellectual property" that would allow Microsoft to restrict access by imposing "royalties or other payment of monetary consideration" simply to interface with their products. This will promote true competition by allowing other companies and the open source community to write programs that can be fully compatible with, and have equivalent functionality to the Microsoft monopoly products. APIs (Application Programming Interfaces) are exactly that. They are an interface; a way of communicating between two closed systems. If Microsoft hides the APIs, then only Microsoft can communicate with that system. Microsoft does disclose a number of APIs, but not the ones they use "internally"; which allows them to "integrate" certain things (like Explorer) into the OS. No one else can use these APIs without reverse engineering them, because they are hidden from the public.

II.J—No provision of this Final Judgment shall:

1. Require Microsoft to document, disclose or license to third parties...
2. Prevent Microsoft from conditioning any license... This paragraph reads like a major legal loophole for Microsoft that will allow them to get away with keeping large parts of the interface to their systems a secret by saying that the disclosure would "compromise the security" of that system. The APIs and file formats I mentioned above should be excluded from this paragraph.

Section V. Termination

B. In any enforcement proceeding in which the Court has found that Microsoft has engaged in a pattern of willful and systematic violations, the Plaintiffs may apply to the Court for a one-time extension of this Final Judgment of up to two years, together with such other relief as the Court may deem appropriate.

So if I have interpreted this paragraph correctly, if Microsoft fails to comply with this settlement in the first five years, their punishment is to spend two more years not complying!? How is this an incentive for Microsoft to comply with the settlement? This section completely removes what few teeth this settlement ever had. This section should be completely rewritten such that if Microsoft fails to comply with the settlement, any and all intellectual property not in compliance will be forfeited to the public domain. That would be an incentive for compliance!

In summary, the Microsoft punishment for being a convicted monopolist should include the opening and documenting of all Application Programming Interfaces for their products, the documented specification of all file formats for documents created by their products should be public domain, and the complete prohibition of the discounts and "bundling" Microsoft currently engages in with hardware vendors. Additionally, the legal loopholes should be removed, and the penalty for non-compliance should be severe.

A settlement that truly encourages competition is very much in the national interest and national security. A study released a year ago by the highly respected Center for Strategic and International Studies, pointed out that the use of Microsoft software actually poses a national security risk. We can not allow any one company to maintain a strangle hold on something as important to this nation as the information technology infrastructure of this country. It is very important for the future of this nation that a careful and deliberate penalty that restores true competition to the software marketplace be implemented.

Thanks you for your time,

Jim Herrmann
 Kansas City, Kansas

KC Linux Users Group—to unsubscribe send mail to majordomo@kclug.org Enter without the quotes in body of message "unsubscribe kclug"

Thank you,
 Brian Densmore
 Associate <mailto:densmore@ctbsonline.com>
 CompuTech Business Solutions, Inc.
<http://www.ctbsonline.com/>
 (816) 880-0988 x215

MTC-00011094

From: Paul Farwell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 10:34am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I want to voice my concerns about the proposed December 7th settlement of Microsoft antitrust case. These views are my own and not those of my current or previous employers.

As an experienced software developer, I see effects of Microsoft's monopoly on the software industry that are probably invisible to the average software user. It's been my responsibility to investigate and recommend software tools to my employer. In many cases, there is a reluctance to consider anything other than a solution using Microsoft tools and technology. The reason is not necessarily because Microsoft solutions (like Visual C++ or Visual Basic) are considered better than the alternatives. It's the concern that alternative solutions have no built-in support for deploying applications on the Windows operating system, which a large majority of our customers use. Java technology is a really good case in point. For years, Java has had the potential to provide users with complete and powerful applications on their web browsers in a browser-independent and OS-independent way. It is a much better tool for writing sophisticated web applications than HTML, which has become the de facto standard for web user interfaces. Most users don't realize how primitive most web applications are because they don't know what the alternatives are. While it is true that HTML is an open standard, one not controlled by Microsoft, it is also very limited. HTML is good at presenting text and pictures, but is a poor technology for developing a good web application, like a on-line scheduling tool. It amazes me that even today most web applications are displayed in HTML (and JavaScript). Why is that? Java applets would be the primary tool used in web applications if Internet Explorer had not won the "browser wars". IE's support for applets is poor because it offers out-dated (or nonexistent) Java support. Microsoft has attempted to introduce their own active content solution, ActiveX, but this solution limits the software developer to Microsoft technology on both the front-end (the browser) and the back-end (the middleware services on the network host). It works only if the software developer takes the 'Microsoft everywhere' approach.

It is very frustrating to see software vendors avoid Java technology, not because of the merits or demerits of the technology itself, but because of the perception that Microsoft won't support it. Ordinary consumers of software may not fully appreciate this, but it does have a powerful effect on the kinds of products we can deliver to them.

As a remedy, it makes sense to me that Microsoft supply a complete and up-to-date version of Java with every copy of the Windows operating system. This would remove the burden from the software vendor of struggling to get good Java support on an end-user's computer. That way, Java technology could be judged on its merits, not on whether Microsoft supports it.

Paul Farwell
Software Engineer

MTC-00011095

From: richard brosnahan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:41am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice

I was disappointed in the proposed settlement the Department of Justice offered for its case against Microsoft. Where the case found them guilty of using their monopoly power to crush and stifle competition, the settlement does little to punish them, and provides nothing to deter them from doing it again.

It has been determined that they used illegal tactics to become what they are. Stifled competition means innovation is stifled as well. I urge you not to accept the weak settlement proposal. It is in the public interest that a stronger penalty be applied, as well as stronger remedies to prevent Microsoft from continuing their illegal practices.

Best regards,
Richard Brosnahan
Senior Software Engineer
Xperts, Inc
email: rbrosnahan@xperts.com web: <http://www.xperts.com/>
CC:Richard Brosnahan

MTC-00011096

From: Stephen.Lochren@Sun.COM@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:47am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

After reviewing the Prohibited conduct section it appears that Microsoft is left to review its practices and conduct business in a fair and unbiased manner and given the facts to date this has not been the case. I would recommend that this settlement not be granted in its present form and sent back to the courts.

Steve Lochren

MTC-00011097

From: Liz Lindsey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:48am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,
I am writing to let you know I support the Bush Administration and Microsoft in their desire to settle this lawsuit. Not only do I believe that Microsoft has done nothing to harm me as a consumer, but I believe my life has been greatly improved because of all the technology brought to the market because of Microsoft. The advent of the home computer has transformed my life and 'raised the level of all boats'. To prove there's no monopoly in my home, we own a Macintosh, and we also run Unix on our server, though we use Microsoft on our PCs. I have never been forced to use Bill Gates products, and the ones I do use, are used through choice. Explorer is without a doubt a better product than Navigator. There is a choice, and 90% of users agree. The 10% who use Netscape are proof that the government had a specious argument for 'monopoly'. Stop wasting my taxpayer dollars on this trial. Drop this case! Free up Department of Justice resources to pursue antitrust violations that currently truly harm the public.

Elizabeth Lindsey 2125 Colorwood Ct.
Fuquay Varina, NC 27526
919-557-4966

MTC-00011098

From: Marvin Gardner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:38am
Subject: Fw: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Sir:

I would like to submit some argument as an amicus curiae. The Attorney General gave me your e-mail address, for which I am very thankful. I am aware that this amounts to a large amount of reading, but until today I had no idea of how to contact you. I strongly request that you take the time, especially to read the information posted at the first URL in the enclosed message. I lived and worked in Silicon Valley (San Jose, California) from 1973-1995 working in the semiconductor industry. As such, I am pretty well acquainted with the history of Microsoft and Bill Gates, which the huge majority of people in this nation are totally unaware of. Secondly, I strongly suggest that my 5-point "settlement" proposal contained in the enclosed letter is (in all likelihood) the only one that will do true justice to the people of this nation.

Thank you for your consideration.
Marvin Gardner
Boise, Idaho

From: Marvin Gardner
To: Connecticut AG; Florida AG; Iowa AG;
Kansas AG; Massachusetts AG;
Minnesota AG; Utah AG

Sent: Thursday, January 10, 2002 9:34 AM
Subject: Microsoft lawsuit

Bill Gates, beyond question, is an incorrigible (non-lethal) sociopath at core. (If you would like a quick biographical (personal and business) proof of that statement, you can find it on a page I authored and posted a couple of years ago: <http://sonsofliberty.org/wrecking-crew/bill-gates.html> In a nutshell, Gates obtained his de facto control of both, the home computer and internet software fields by the skillful (and totally unprincipled) "use" of legal stalling. By financially outlasting his opponents through an endless series of challenges and appeals until his opponents dropped out. Only one company—Apple Computer (which was financially as large as Microsoft at the time of the law suit)—has been able to financially "stay the course" with Microsoft, and Apple won! Last summer, when the Appeals Court threw out Judge Jackson's penalty (but verified the verdict) and the U.S. Attorney General publicly announced it would "settle" with Microsoft out of court, I contacted U.S. Senator Larry Craig's local (Boise, Idaho) office, sat down with one of his employees and "educated" that employee on what Microsoft had done throughout its history in order to control the software business, and set down the steps (conditions) that are necessary in any "settlement" that would bring justice to the people of America. And I urged that employee (with whom I have a friendship) to urge the DC office to have Sen.

Craig pass on to AG John Ashcroft. (Craig and Ashcroft have had an especially close personal relationship, through their "off duty" participation in the "Singing Senators" quartet.) I have no idea as to whether or not the Senator did pass the information on to Ashcroft. I only know that, just a few weeks later, the DOJ announced it's (total cave-in) to Microsoft. I also know that, sometime during the first 10 months of last year (the FEC printout I received last November does not give the dates of donations, just the "span of time" during which they were given), the Microsoft PAC gave $6,000 to Senator Craig. And considering the fact that, in all the years Craig has been a Senator and Microsoft has been donating to Congressmen, it had given a grand total of only $2,000 total to Craig, I wonder. Anyway...

There are 5 points that any settlement with Microsoft will have to include in order for the American people (and software businesses) to at last have justice:

1. All Microsoft software must be "open architecture" (a technical term that the software industry understands).
 2. Microsoft must publish and distribute free of any and all charges the source code of any and all software it releases.
 3. There must be total unbundling of all Microsoft task-specific software.
 4. All future Microsoft software releases must be 100% "backwards compatible" with all earlier Microsoft editions of similar programs.
 5. All future Microsoft release must contain no "blocking" of competitors' software. I feel certain that some of you might not understand the importance of some (if not all) of those 5 points, so I will have an explanation of the "why" of each of them posted on my personal web site by tomorrow (January 11). It will be accessible at www.bigskytel.com/marvingardner/MS—justice.html
- Yours truly,
Marvin Gardner

MTC-00011099

From: Cedryden@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:50am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

In my opinion the entire pursuit of MSFT is unwarranted and the DOJ is overstepping the boundary of what the antitrust laws were intended for. The entire endeavor was pushed by a bunch of crybabies who couldn't compete in the market place and hence enlisted big brother in their fight. MSFT's bundling is a non-problem for me...I just don't use those features I don't want.

Charles Dryden
232 Rebecca Dr #447
Alamo, Tx. 78516
956-783-7410

MTC-00011100

From: Bradley.Wellington@hbo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:52am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My name is Brad Wellington and I am professional software developer currently living in New York. I am very concerned about the Microsoft trial because I believe that the remedy will have long term effects that will be felt for years. I am particularly concerned about Microsoft's bundling of middleware into their operating system. The proposed settlement doesn't address this behavior, which I find quite disturbing. There is absolutely nothing in the settlement that would prevent them from "Netscape"-ing another product. I am fairly certain that Microsoft's long term goal is to build almost all software worldwide and knock everyone else out of every market, and they plan to use windows to do it. Look at Windows XP. They are trying to stop Kodak from selling digital imaging software, they are trying to eliminate AOL instant messenger by embedding Windows Messenger into XP. It is outrageous to me that they have completely ignored the court's verdict of guilty. They know it is too late for Netscape, they have been pretty much destroyed however XP is trying to replace even more products. It is in your power to keep this from happening again and I implore you to do so. Thank you.

Brad Wellington
Senior Software Engineer

MTC-00011101

From: Jjpick@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 10:53am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please allow things to move forward. The Settlement is tough but fair. Further litigation is a waste of resources.

Thank you,
Joanne Pickrel

MTC-00011102

From: Karthik Raman
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 10:17am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Karthik Raman
1234 Alphabet Lane
Denton, TX 76205
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:

I went to a website that wanted me to send an email with some crap about how the DOJ wasted money on the MS trial. However, I feel that is far from the truth. MS is a horrible monopoly, and I wish it had been broken up. Thus, I hope NOT for the trial to be dropped, but I wish the DOJ could be more aggressive in their strategy to bring down MS.

Sincerely,
Karthik Raman—Senior at the Texas
Academy of Mathematics and Science

MTC-00011103

From: Logan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:37am

I submitted comments earlier concerning this case. I need to add one more. What are you smoking? Give Microsoft the opportunity to close out one of the few remaining competitive markets existing in the computer industry? Make them "pay" 1.1 billion (less than one month's income) in "free" software for one year? Free is the correct term. You propose that they give away "refurbished" machines that have already been amortized and written off and software that they create internally? They don't even have to pay for packaging! Why, come to think of it, they don't even have to pay the taxes on the sales because technically it's a donation.

Then, when the year is up and it's time to upgrade? Hmm, I wonder who's going to end up paying for Johnny to get his new version of Office... Could it be... oh... ME? Are my taxes going to help Microsoft expand it's control over the market? Wow, what a way to solve the problems of the needy. I wonder how much Microsoft stands to make on this deal. Sounds like it could be in the billions of dollars in continued revenue over the next ten years or so. Billions of dollars of MY TAX MONEY.

I thought we elected intelligent people to work in our government. Oh, wait I'm mixing my adjectives. I meant GREEDY when I wrote intelligent. Sorry, my mistake.

Amazing. Simply amazing. We'll as long as you've got it, why don't you share whatever you're smoking so we can all bear this royal bending over a little more gracefully. I'm sure with the lobby money you're getting from Microsoft to write this case off you can afford to buy a little extra for us little people.

Thank You,
Logan
Creative Director, USinns.com

MTC-00011104

From: Lon Baker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:17am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hello,

As a concerned citizen I would like to voice my opinion on this matter. Microsoft has been found guilty of using their monopoly power to gain market share and effectively reduce or eliminate competition in numerous areas. The current proposed remedy of requiring them to "donate" products, services and/or money to the educational institutions in the United States is unacceptable. This will basically allow them to capture the one final market that they are not the dominant force in, effectively driving Apple, SGI, Sun and others out of that market. The penalty for using and abusing a monopoly should be harsh and impose a true restriction on the companies abilities to use this power again. Since the break up option is not an option and a 1 billion dollar "donation" to education only expands their market share and power to influence, some other remedy needs to be found that truly punishes this company for their past actions.

The bottom line is they broke the law, stifled competition, eliminated innovation and leveraged this power to gain wealth, power and mass market control. This needs to be dealt with in a manner that prevents further abuse and sends a clear message that corporations will be held accountable to the laws of the United States of America.

In this time Americans expect and demand that our government acts in the best interests of the citizens and not some corporation that still refuses to admit it did anything wrong.

Please do NOT accept the current remedy being proposed and go back to the drawing board and find something that will stop this from becoming another example the citizens of America use when explaining how corporations get special treatment.

Lon Baker

MTC-00011105

From: richard
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:21am
Subject: Stop the harrasment

When is the government going to stop the harrasment? The government made a mistake going after IBM years ago and I think the government is making another big mistake. I am a consumer and I don't think Microsoft has done anything wrong. I don't see the anticompetitive practices, Microsoft's products are cheap. Yes, Microsoft is huge and is the big bully on the block, but, how can you say that there is no competition in the software industry when everything around us is thriving. Microsoft has set the standard and it is difficult for other companies to accept. There would be chaos if there were no standard Windows operating system like Microsoft's. I see no problem with Microsoft's practices so, and let's more on. Richard L. Bernal

MTC-00011106

From: Chad McCaslin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:21am
Subject: final settlement on Microsoft

The final judgement obviously falls short of having Microsoft be responsible for the problems they cause in forcing consumers to use microsoft products. Just take a look at the latest operating system from Microsoft and you will see that they are now attacking the AOL Instant Messaging Service. I personally installed XP Professional Windows operating system from Microsoft. It automatically loads Windows Messenger into the OS, but that is not the bad part. The problem is that the Windows Messaging client cannot be de-installed. I tried to remove it from the task bar. On re-boot, microsoft placed it back into the task bar. I tried to remove the program files directory and received registry errors. I tried to remove all references to the Windows Messenger from the registry and was happy for a short with the product not running on my system until the next windows upgrade when all of a sudden the product was back. I have not configured it nor do I use it (I use AOL IM instead) but it keeps telling me I need to set the NET stuff and start using it. (this is known as badgering) Somehow Microsoft needs to get that this is wrong and to stop doing it. The current penalty for this type of issue is not even noticable for Microsoft. Obviously, Microsoft believes they can keep it in the judicial system until the problem is a faint memory and the companies that they destroy along the way are just a memory. We are a nation that is suppose to punish those who do wrong even if it was a long time ago. How are we as a nation to promote free enterprises to startup when the monopoly (microsoft) will uncut them before they start. People have a right to use the software they want and to not have big brother force us to use their software. Internet Explorer was one example, Now that that problem is basically behind Microsoft, they are attacking the next product. How do we stop this? The best way is to make it not profitable to cause this type of pain. Even if it is long ago, make sure that the impacts to Microsofts ability to cause similar future problems are extremely hampered. If that causes the price for microsoft products to increase, then maybe other vendors will have a chance to make a difference. When criminals cause the same problem over and over, many states take on the principal of three strike and your out. Well, Microsoft has been doing this for alot more than three strikes. When will we make a stand and say that is enough?

Chad McCaslin
Raytheon
972-205-5753
Chad_A_McCaslin@raytheon.com

MTC-00011107

From: Ted Marquis Jr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:22am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
January 12, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing in support of the settlement in the Microsoft antitrust suit. I would like to see this case concluded as soon as possible. As a small business owner, I am concerned by the fact this case was brought against Microsoft at all. Microsoft has been an innovative, competitive company. Companies, especially those engaged in high-tech endeavors, must remain competitive to remain in business. I do not agree with punishing Microsoft for its ability to remain competitive.

I do, however, believe the case should be settled as rapidly as possible. To achieve this end, Microsoft has made a variety of concessions that go above and beyond the scope of the lawsuit. I do not necessarily agree with the concessions made, as they appear to be overly restrictive. For example, the creation of a technical oversight committee, which will monitor Microsoft's business practices, seems overly intrusive to Microsoft. Despite my belief that Microsoft is doing more than should be required, I support its decision to make such concessions so this case will settle. I appreciate your review of my comments, and hope to see this case settle as quickly as possible.

Sincerely,
Ted Marquis
President/CEO

MTC-00011108

From: Daniel L. Cole
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:31am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I can't tell you how pleased I am with the rejection of Microsoft's settlement proposal. Microsoft has demonstrated over the years that it seems to believe that it is a nation unto itself, with its own rules, regardless of what others experience.

What particularly strikes me is the arrogance of their proposal. I would call it a great demonstration of a Wolf in Sheep's Clothing. Thank you for your astute and wise decision. Microsoft's arrogance will continue, until it realizes that there are other people and companies that have as much rights as they.

I commend your decision.

Thank you,
David L. Cole
14 Abbott St.
Greenfield, MA 01301

MTC-00011110

From: David Graham
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear USDOJ,

I would only comment on one part of the settlement. Microsofts proposal to donate computer equipment and software to needy schools. Although I applaud the concept, I think it does not server as a punishment to the monopoly. Microsoft does not yet dominate the education market. This is simply an oportunity for them to try to gain dominance in the market.

I strongly recommend rejecting any part of the settlement that might increase Microsofts market share in the education market.

Dave Graham
520 N. Sherwood St. #31
Fort Collins, CO 80521
(970) 484-4577
dgraham@i3.com, dgraham@riverrock.org

MTC-00011111

From: eh8@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft case has taken a protracted period of time. A short summary of the situation indicates that not much has been accomplished in regard to the basic issue of concern. The public interest would be best served by moving away from the concept of anti-trust and more to the point of providing competition to Microsoft. Let s see the competitors take more of a role of competition and less weining about Microsoft s success. T

MTC-00011112

From: LaffingKat@free-market.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement seems fair and I think the public is more than ready for this lengthy expensive ordeal to be over. As a neighbor of Microsoft I would love to see this resolved so that residents of this area have one less source of economic insecurity.

MTC-00011113

From: cutterb@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it is fair to all concerned. I hope the deal with the others involved will be settled in the same way.

Anything less will not help America.

MTC-00011114

From: shdwflcn@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I firmly believe that this farse of a case has gone on long enough. While everyone and his dog has been trying to railroad Microsoft other companies have more blatantly defied the most basic of monopoly laws to move against this company. In the end what has that gained the consumer? Nothing but scandal. It was clear in the beginning and is still clear to me now that although what Microsoft DID do (which wasn't nearly as much as what is being done by OTHER firms in the same industry) was wrong this was nothing more than jealousy and hatred of a man who did us all a huge favor for a relatively little price. Without Microsoft the computer revolution would have stuck to a few hackers doing a few things until Apple got their footing. What do I think of the settlement? Good enough if not overly strict. Let Microsoft go.

MTC-00011115

From: dila813@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please Approve the Microsoft Settlement it provides more than enough remedy to the charges presented in the case. It is not in the public s interest for this trial to drag on any longer than it already has. Lets settle and get on with the remedy to correct any wrong that has occurred and we can put this behind us.

Respectfully
Mr. Joe Public

MTC-00011116

From: cgbcott1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please stop the litigation against Microsoft I think the waste of gov t money has gone on long enough!!

Thank you
CB

MTC-00011117

From: BariGood@webtv.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Sirs It is time to finalize the settlement of the Microsoft case. It has dragged on beyond any reasonable period. It is unfair of the government to serve as henchmen for Microsofts competitors any longer. You have reached an amiable settlement. It is time to close the case.

Marjorie Larsen

MTC-00011118

From: evdon2@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the Govt. should have better things to do with the taxpayers dollars than to hound corporations just because they have the know how to make a success of their venture. So please do something constructive instead of destructive in the spending of our money.If you want to go after someone go after the people that provide the American dream only to those who do not have the gumtion to do anything on their own AKA illegals immigrants from the so called underprivilged countrys any ambition they have when they get here is soon replaced with every handout the U.S. Govt. can muster small business loans food stamps welfare & no limit to the amount of children they can have which is no burden to them because you provide evrything necessary Xtras for every child born. I was talking to the Sheriff Dept. here about the kids born to most of these families and they call it their job SECURITY that s some tribute.

MTC-00011119

From: jauregui1@prodigy.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel that this whole law suit was not only unfair and unwarranted but also an unnecessary and frivolous waste of taxpayers money. I think that was the result of a lot of envy and jealousy from bitter underachievers. Bill Gates has done much more in compromising and trying to make up for something that wasnt a wrong in the first place than most people would do. I think he should be praised and commented for what he and his genius have given individuals businesses the U.S.A. and the world instead of our letting envious bitter petty and little-minded idiots punish him for his success and achievements. I guarantee you that if any one of them had created what he has they would feel entirely different. The whole world owes him gratitude and praise not this stupid backstabbing.

MTC-00011120

From: allen.severance@secure applications.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The whole matter had it s origin in the envy of Microsoft competitor s. Microsoft did not do anything illegal. The lame justice department then headed up my Janet Reno lacked the foresight to see this. Instead of demonizing Bill Gates we need to admire what he did for this country. Microsoft should not only be released from any anti-trust suit they should be apologized to. Thank you.

MTC-00011121

From: evzonegeorge@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lets get on with it. This legal draging of legal manuvners must come to a halt.

MTC-00011122

From: jimj@value.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it is time to put this Microsoft case behind us. It is so obvious to me that Microsofts competitors are pushing to keep it going. AOL should be put under the microscope . . . Hummmm. What would we find there . . .? If it wernt for Microsoft I wouldnt be typing this right now. Microsoft has hepled far more people in the learning of computers than any other company. Let s save a little of the TAX Payers TAX money and close this case. The Government has already spent far to much on this case. Thank You

MTC-00011123

From: dovn@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please stop punishing success. Microsoft made the desktop computer possible. America should honor innovation and customer service not cave in ti Microsoft s whining competitors. The proposed settlement is fair to all parties concerned including the American public.

MTC-00011125

From: kwkid@mindspring.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

While I personally don t believe Microsoft should ever have been brought to judgement I firmly believe that it is time to put this behind us. Continued litigation serves no purpose except to line the attorneys pockets with more of my hard earned money. I would much prefer to use that money buying more software from Microsoft Corp.

Sincerely

Dieter Sellers Loyal Microsoft User

MTC-00011126

From: bob—c3@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

THEY ARE CROOKS AND SHOULD BE IN JAIL BUT AS USUAL THE LEGAL SYSTEM ONLY WORKS FORTHE BIG GUYS. IT'S NOT FUNNY ANYMORE.BUT YOU STILL DON'T GET IT.YOU TOOK A DIVE.THHHATS ALL FOLKS!!

MTC-00011127

From: budspence1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
end the charges against Microsoft.

MTC-00011128

From: billtanner@attglobal.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe STONGLY that no company should blatantly violate our nation s anti-trust laws. I believe more strongly it is time to resolve the blackhole of uncertainty surrounding the Microsoft case. There will NEVER be a settlement or verdict that is without strong controversy. America and Americans need your wisdom experience and good judgement during this difficult time. We need to remember that innovation made and keeps America great. Judge Kotelly this is a TOUGH decision for you. But this is a reasonable settlement. Americans everywhere will be positively impacted by resolving this case as expeditiously as possible. Thank you for reviewing these comments. I have included my name and number if you would like to contact me. PS FULL DISCLOSURE: I own 176 shares of Microsoft. I also own 400 shares of Oracle which is Microsoft's biggest corporate detractor.

MTC-00011129

From: rositze@zianet.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The current settlement is enough. It is time to stop wasting time and money on a suit that should probably never have been filed at least on the basis it rests and move forward. Let the consumers determine what products we want and the market will in the long run even itself out.

MTC-00011130

From: emo101@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the settlement with Microsoft is in the best interest of everyone and good for the economy
E.R.

MTC-00011131

From: kmm2000@webtv.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree with the settlement. Let this be the end of it so Bill Gates and Microsoft can move on and get back to business doing what they do best.

MTC-00011132

From: Hipmarjory@WebTV.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe Microsoft is being punished for being creative and far-seeing so lesser companies can cash in on their expertise. Reward Microsoft for being inventive don't punish them.

MTC-00011133

From: bobfinnie1@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to let Microsoft arguably one of America's all-time greatest engines of enterprise get back to business. Let not our government throw any more monkey wrenches into our best companies. Let freedom in enterprise ring!

MTC-00011134

From: qqqq@qqq.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
aaaaaaaa

MTC-00011135

From: cjscaparo@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In my opinion this case has gone on way too long and is starting to burden the American tax payer so let's get the gov. out of it and get it over in my opinion the gov. is bogging this down. Give them their settlement and get it over. It's just the thing that might start turning the economy around.

MTC-00011136

From: chas8422@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Although I don't believe Microsoft should have been brought to trial in the first place I believe the settlement agreement is fair and equitable and should be accepted ASAP.

MTC-00011137

From: ischade@mindspring.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

While it is my opinion that the entire basis of the suit was without cause the process has brought us all to this point and it is from here that we must proceed. It is imperative that the settlement be made final and that all parties are made to abide by the terms thereof. The use of the court system to stymie one's competitors is reprehensible. The production of competitive goods is the proper response. I ask that the settlement be enforced and that all attempts to subvert the course of this final justice be denied. In the vernacular of the day Microsoft's competitors can put up or shut up and quit whining like children at a toy store. Thank you.

MTC-00011138

From: eredhawk@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I may be a user at the end of the intellectual chain but if it were not for Microsoft I may not even be connected to the chain. Just because someone wants what others have is no reason to take that which one has accomplished and give it to the who has not earned it. Get on with it! Thank you for all your hard work on this issue.

Respectfully

Rev. Ernest D. Matties thg.

MTC-00011139

From: eragsac@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Justice Department's frivolous anti-trust suit and the competitors' envious vendetta against Microsoft is pro-longed and frivolous. Microsoft is an innovative firm that should be commended for its success in research and development and marketing. It is an example of American free enterprise all around the world and to condemn its achievements only diminishes what America stands for. It is the choice of the consumers to buy and use the MS software and government should stay out of its production. Stop wasting taxpayer money and spend it on more serious issues in California and the nation. The Department of Justice and the California State Attorney General should not continue to jeopardize the economy and future of technology.

MTC-00011140

From: yourpalgayle@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am delighted my government finally behaved in a way commensurate with business opportunities and good business sense in settling the claim with Microsoft. I feel this giant of a company has proven beyond a shadow of a doubt how important they are to the well being of America and a prosperous American future. Thank you.

MTC-00011142

From: lmcquay@gbmc.org@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree with this settlement arrangement.—
Laurene McQuay Information Technology Consultant

GBMC www.gbmc.org

MTC-00011143

From: cgcworksinc@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

For the time been although not yet clearly and/or fully satisfied to the masses specially Microsoft competitors the mere fact that our legal system team is involved the media exposure industry people and those who care to know and have become aware of such litigation court preceding and final agreement this primary settlement should be carry out. Should Microsoft ever fail to maintain its agreement then the Court shall have every excuse to execute a much tougher ruling and perhaps the break up of Microsoft.

By the fact that all the attorneys general of all the states (The Government representatives) have all agreed on this deal and in order not to reduce the great technology leadership of Microsoft not only in the United States of America but the world their market share and exposure its competitors must not only think of themselves and their bottom lines (Dollars) but how conjunctively can create a better fairer and more advantageous platform for all to work in and therefore continue providing the local and foreign markets with their great selection of products while at the same time maintaining Microsoft under a microscope so that the big M does not violate competitive laws and/or agreements.

MTC-00011144

From: salto30@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:35am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please stop the assault on Microsoft and the freedom to innovate. To whom it may concern As an employee of Microsoft I can ASSURE you that technology is in its INFANCY. This is not the time or era to try and legislate innovation. The world and the technology industries are many many years from true infrastructures on which to build the future. If we don't give key players like Microsoft room to innovate the future will be a long time coming. Your behavior and actions affect all companies who desire to serve customer demand and enhance our world. Get off Microsoft's back and out of legislating the technology industries. Come back in 50 years when we have true solid technologies that may require government regulation. Now is NOT the time for this. Thank you for listening.

MTC-00011145

From: Mike Morris
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have been involved in the computer industry in one way or the other for nearly thirty years and would like to comment on the proposed DOJ-Microsoft anti-trust settlement.

The whole purpose of anti-trust laws is to ensure competition and innovation so that like natural selection inferior products will die out and superior ones will thrive. I have observed with disbelief over the past ten years or so how the most inferior operating system (OS) that I have ever dealt with as a software developer has gained such a market share. When I tell friends that on most OS's computers do not "crash" or "lock-up" they do not believe me because they have not been exposed to alternative OS's (UNIX, LINUX, etc.) Granted that most of Windows initial success was due to its ease of use as opposed to other OS's this is certainly no longer the case and I fear that consumers will never get the chance to find something better if the proposed settlement is allowed to go forward. It is absolutely imperative that Microsoft allow all third party developers access to the Windows source code in order to create cross-platform alternatives to their software products and to allow direct competition with their own software products (Office, etc.) Microsoft should also be compelled to continue to support the JAVA platform since there is so much JAVA content currently on the internet. Failure to do so unfairly denies consumers the use of that content and is an attempt by Microsoft to stymie the JAVA juggernaut which is in direct opposition and competition to their own .NET platform.

Finally I would like to comment that I feel the only reason this settlement proposal came about in the first place was due to "economic expedience." Following the September 11 attacks I think the DOJ felt it in the best short-term interest of the country to soften their position and cave in to Microsoft who from all accounts had been intransigent in previous settlement negotiations. Opposed to popular opinion, the computer industry will not collapse if Microsoft justly loses market share to its competitors. Please do the right thing and protect the millions of consumers who currently have no idea that there is something better out there.

Michael F. Morris Professional Software Developer

MTC-00011146

From: Jaideep Mirchandani
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 11:45am

Subject: Case

Dear Officials,

I would like to register my deep opposition to the proposed settlement. Microsoft is a monopoly by any reasonable standards. The settlement does nothing to take away this status from Microsoft.

Jaideep Mirchandani

MTC-00011147

From: Peter Hodgson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 6:40am
Subject: <http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/ms-settle.htm>

Having read the relevant documents, I am persuaded that the U. S. Government has caved in to special interests. This is particularly distressing, since it coincided with the recent change in federal administration.

Puteracy is a new medium. America is playing a world wide role in defining its parameters. It would be a disgrace if we were to stifle competition at this early stage.

Microsoft must not be allowed to bully the American people, or the world.

Yours truly,
Peter Hodgson
[Emeritus Professor]
CC: hodgson@humnet.ucla.edu@inetgw

MTC-00011148

From: Clive Taylor
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/14/02 11:24am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Clive Taylor
431 Pebblebrook Dr.
El Lago, TX 77586-6012
January 14, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Respectfully,

Clive R. Taylor

MTC-00011149

From: Cecily Wood
To: Microsoft
ATR.general@po.state.ct.us@inetgw
Date: 1/14/02 12:11pm
Subject: Microsoft's predatory ways

I wrote earlier protesting the school aspects of the settlement, which have now been nixed, thank goodness. However that message was based upon public concern. Now, however, my own ox has been gored, as it were, and I am speaking as a victim of Microsoft's monopoly. I have just been informed that as a ComCast cable user being transitioned to @comcast.net from @home (after all the Excite-ment), I HAVE to use Microsoft IE (which is not so bad but removes all choice) and OE for mail. This makes me madder than I have been in a long time. Why should I HAVE to use the most bug ridden major vector for viruses as my only access for email?

I have a Macintosh computer. I made a choice not to be bound by Microsoft, and yet now I am being FORCED to use their browser and their virus menaced email product. Use of Outlook Express means not only that my computer is vulnerable to Mac viruses it was not before, but that I can become a Typhoid Mary, infecting other machines with PC viruses that won't effect my machine, but which get passed along to people I send messages to. I have checked with Netscape and they say yes indeed, Microsoft's use in servers by ComCast leaves me no option because it is requiring a proprietary "handshake" protocol which is not open source—for both the browser and the mail portions. I can't use Netscape, nor Eudora, nor Opera or any other alternative.

ComCast/AT&T is now one of the largest cable ISPs, so that entire large market is being brought under Microsoft's exclusive domination, with absolutely NO choice, no matter whether users are capable of downloading and installing alternative software—something vastly easier on a Mac than a Windows machine.

This is, of course one of the original reasons suit was brought against Microsoft. It seems to me that if they were negotiating in good faith, this proprietary handshake would have been altered to accept internet standards by now. This only further serves to point out that they have no intention of altering the business methods that made them a monopoly, that the current settlement is a mere slap on the wrist, and that they must be monitored extremely closely for compliance, once the settlement is set.

Sincerely, Cecily Wood (cecinalph@home in transition to cecinalph@comcast.net)
CC: Cecily Wood, Cecily Wood

MTC-00011150

From: fleur
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:15pm
Subject: Microsoft security

We are regularly assured that our internet security is sound, but we are equally regularly warned that our pc's are subjected to newer threats of invasion from unwanted sources which, we are told, are even dangerous. The need for regular assurances of security is itself indicative that the opposite might equally be true.

Is Microsoft scaring us into being its minions. Let's have more competition after the spirit of true capitalistic principles. Hey?

MTC-00011151

From: David Chancogne
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

To whom it may concern,
I share the view of the Senate Judiciary Committee's bipartisan leadership that while I would have welcomed a settlement that addressed the numerous Sherman Act violations that were found by the District Court and upheld unanimously by the DC Circuit Court, the DOJ settlement falls far short of that goal. I'm concerned that the settlement will do little to change Microsoft's behavior or restore competition.

This is bolstered by the decision of the nine state plaintiffs to press on with their case to pursue a far more effective resolution. In particular, the proposed final judgment:

- * Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected;

- * Fails to remedy the injury done to the JavaTM technology community;

- * Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market;

- * Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system;

- * Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism.

Sincerely,
David Chancogne

MTC-00011152

From: nancy hammond
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:21pm
Subject: Microsoft
January 14, 2002

To Whom It May Concern:
Please continue forth with the proposed Microsoft settlement agreement as it is fair to all consumers and properly punishes Microsoft for any wrong doing they may have unknowingly caused.

Sincerely,
N Hammond
25959 SE 39th Pl
Issaquah WA 98029

MTC-00011153

From: John Anger
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Any settlement which allows Microsoft to pay through the free use of its products is not a penalty at all. It is a reward. Software does not have a cost like a physical product and the more copies that are in use allow Microsoft to continue its monopolistic dominance in many many markets. Penalties should be paid with CASH. It is the only stick which will get Microsoft's attention. Don't let them dupe you into anything else.

These are my views only and do not represent my employer.

John Anger
Alterna Technologies Group
Suite 200, 5970 Center St. SE
Calgary, AB T2H-0C1
Work: +1.403.692.2203
E-mail: janger@alterna.com

MTC-00011154

From: Glenn Brown
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:31pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Hello:
One of the central issues promoted by Microsoft (MS) in this case has been to protect their ability to innovate. In my opinion, that issue is a carefully constructed red herring. The critical issue of importance to our competitive system is protection of "everyone's ability to innovate and compete". "Everyone" in this current court case includes not only MS, but also their competitors, past, present and future. I believe that the issue of protecting everyone's ability to innovate has been under appreciated, at least in part, because the major voices in the trial and associated hearings have been MS and their surviving competitors. The past MS competitors that have been driven into extinction by the anticompetitive behavior of MS are largely unheard from. When they are heard from their words obviously carry less weight than they would if they came from a source with more business and financial resources. Many of the current competitors have to be careful to speak misleadingly softly so as to not aggravate MS. After all, they often are, to a major extent, dependent on ongoing business relations with MS. Finally, the ranks of future competitors are, and will continue to be, diminished by the awesome and legally-proven ability of MS to crush competition by means both fair and foul.

I believe that the eventual settlement should focus to a minor extent on protecting the ability of MS to innovate. MS obviously has the resources to look out for itself, even without its near total monopoly in desktop operating systems. Instead, the settlement should focus on protecting the ability of its competitors to innovate, and hence to compete.

Remember, if the US government hadn't protected the ability of MS to innovate and compete through its restraint of IBM, MS would certainly not be such a powerful anticompetitive force today. What other successful companies and innovative products might there be in the information technology world today if MS had been similarly restrained over the past 15 or so years? Although we can't redo the past, we can work to protect innovation for all in the future. What ever remedies are instituted to protect innovation, if they depend in any respect on the good nature and good will of the "biggest bully on the block" who has repeatedly broken federal law in crushing innovation by competitors, then those remedies are doomed to failure.

If the US refuses to break up MS into 2 or more independent pieces, then the eventual remedies should be designed to coming as close as possible to such an outcome in both law and spirit. Such a settlement would come much closer to being self-governing than the current proposed settlement.

Respectfully, Glenn E Brown
14 January 2002

MTC-00011155

From: Eric.Devlin@choicepoint.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hey,
When Microsoft released J++, I knew that it did not conform to the Java standard and would only trick unwary developers and managers by using Microsoft's extensions. As soon as you start using a nonstandard solution, you are completely dependent on that provider. As much as Microsoft has added to the whole of computing and that addition is generally good, do not allow that addition to become the only voice that is heard as a result of its previous success. I think that the Microsoft should be broken into separate business units and restrained from engaging in unfair business practices.

Eric Devlin
Senior Software Engineer
KnowX
404 541 0251
eric.devlin@choicepoint.net

MTC-00011156

From: Robert E. Timlin, Jr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/14/02 12:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Ms. Hesse:

I am writing as a concerned consumer to comment on, and indeed protest the proposed settlement - the Revised Proposed Final Judgment—between the United States Department of Justice (along with the nine states party to the agreement) and Microsoft Corporation. Upon review, the terms of the settlement appear wholly ineffective. There is a complete lack of punishment for Microsoft's illegal conduct, and thus no effective deterrent against similar anticompetitive behavior in the future. Also, the agreement takes no substantive corrective action to repair the harm done to the marketplace by said conduct. The preventative measures spelled out in the proposed settlement are also woefully inadequate. Specifically, it permits Microsoft to continue to control OEMs through a codified system of rewards, provides a glaring loophole to allow the company to avoid disclosing Middleware APIs, explicitly allows anticompetitive agreements, and perhaps worst of all completely fails to address Microsoft's use of its Office product to coerce Apple Computer, which the Appellate Court specifically ruled was a violation of Section 2 of the Sherman Act. Furthermore, the Enforcement provisions of the agreement can best be described as "toothless", offering no means to address willful violations by Microsoft other than going back to court, and even then the terms significantly handicap the Plaintiff's ability to prosecute said violations. Enforcement seems to depend entirely on Microsoft dealing in good faith, something which the trial record alone shows is a dubious proposition at best. This Revised Proposed Final Judgment thus completely fails to provide effective relief by the very criteria set forth in Section IV.B of the associated Competitive Impact Statement. In short, the settlement serves neither justice nor the public interest, leaving consumers completely at the mercy of an abusive monopolist. I urge the court to reject the agreement out of hand.

First, let's consider the total lack of punitive and corrective measures in the proposed settlement. Under this agreement, Microsoft suffers absolutely no consequences for its illegal conduct. There are no fines, no compensation to those directly harmed, nothing. The few mild restrictions that are placed on them can hardly be considered punitive, as most amount to nothing more than instructions to obey existing law. And since no steps are taken to undo the competitive harm inflicted on the market by Microsoft, the settlement thus allows the company to keep the fruits of its anticompetitive behavior: a near-monopoly on the Web Browser market. Netscape Communications was effectively destroyed by Microsoft's actions, and ceased to be competitive in the Browser market once it was acquired by AOL-Time Warner. The most recent figures I could find (July 2001) show that Internet Explorer holds an 87% market share. And Microsoft is even now moving to exploit this dominant position, reducing support for open standards in the latest versions for Windows, as well as silently disabling competitor's products that work with the Browser (e.g. RealPlayer and QuickTime, among others). Basically, Microsoft accomplished precisely what they set out to do with their illegal conduct, and this agreement does nothing to redress that. It is not unlike a bank robber being caught, tried, and convicted, then allowed to go free and keep the money he stole! The proposed agreement thus fails completely to act as any sort of deterrent to future anticompetitive behavior. If anything, it even encourages such actions by demonstrating that illegal conduct can be used to achieve business goals without fear of punishment or reversal. That, in a word, is wrong.

I submit therefore that the actual penalty that is to be imposed on Microsoft should include forced divestiture of the Internet Explorer Web Browser, along with a prohibition on purchasing or developing anything to replace it. This simultaneously punishes Microsoft, denies them the benefits of their anticompetitive actions, and levels the playing field for all Browser vendors, restoring competition (thus preventing the Internet from becoming merely an extension of the Windows monopoly). Divestiture would also act as a serious deterrent to future illegal conduct, thus addressing some of the gravest shortcomings of the proposed settlement.

Next, I would like to look at some of the key preventative measures that the proposed settlement spells out, highlighting several glaring flaws that render them ineffectual, or worse. These flaws take the form of obvious loopholes, outright omissions, or even explicit sanctioning of actions that have the same impact as the anticompetitive behavior that the agreement is supposed to stop! Consider first Section III.A, which prohibits retaliation against OEMs for a number of activities. A good provision, but it is made pointless by its final paragraph which permits Microsoft to grant Consideration to OEMs based on their level of commitment to Microsoft's products or services. Instead of punishing those that do not bow to their wishes, the agreement expressly allows the company to reward those who do. The net effect is the same.

Similarly, Section III.B mandates uniform licensing terms, thus preventing Microsoft from using discriminatory licensing to enforce its will. But III.B.3 completely undermines that by permitting discounts, programs, and market development allowances, the only requirement being that they be offered uniformly. This merely codifies a system of rewards for OEMs who toe the Microsoft line. Given the realities of the Personal Computer industry (razor-thin margins, falling sales, layoffs), every OEM is therefore highly motivated to take advantage of whatever discounts or Considerations that are made available. Few, if any, would willingly make the choice to incur higher costs by foregoing these benefits to go with products from Microsoft's competitors. The same goal is achieved as with discriminatory licensing.

Furthermore, I would like to point out that it simply defies common sense to explicitly permit market development allowances for an established monopoly. Any product that Microsoft chooses to bundle with a Windows Operating System Product automatically has access to more than 90% of the market. This is an enormous inherent advantage. The only purpose of any market development allowances would be to absolutely foreclose the possibility of competition. Permitting them in an agreement to settle an antitrust matter is absurd in the extreme. Sections III.A and III.B thus start out as excellent measures, but the exceptions spelled out render them not only ineffective, but actually worse than doing nothing at all. Their end result would be Court-sanctioned anticompetitive practices. These provisions merely substitute positive reinforcement for punishment. It's the difference between giving your dog a biscuit and hitting him with a rolled-up newspaper; both methods serve to control his behavior. I believe that the Competitive Impact Statement's assertion that uniformly offered incentives will not discourage OEMs from favoring, promoting, or shipping products from Microsoft's competitors is incredibly naive and demonstrates a profound lack of understanding of the Personal Computer industry. For these two measures to yield effective relief, I submit that the final paragraph of Section III.A and all of Section III.B.3 should either be removed entirely, or be re-written to expressly forbid what they allow in their present form. Further, I suggest that Microsoft be compelled to provide versions of Windows Operating System

Products without bundled Microsoft Middleware. (The Competitive Impact Statement does note that this was considered but not pursued, but I urge it be re-examined.) These Windows versions would be available at a discount commensurate with the subsequent cost for OEMs to then include the Middleware of their choosing, be it from Microsoft or a third party. There would therefore be no cost penalty incurred by OEMs for selecting Non-Microsoft Middleware, and hence no built-in rewards for using Microsoft Middleware. The unfair advantage of the Windows monopoly would thus be greatly reduced.

Other provisions of the proposed settlement that cause me concern are Sections III.D and III.E, which mandate the disclosure of the APIs used by Microsoft Middleware and Communications Protocols used by Windows Operating System Products. By themselves, these seem like excellent ideas which would give third party developers the same access to core features of Windows that Microsoft's own programmer's enjoy, thereby further leveling the playing field. (The only obvious shortcoming is the 9-12 month time frame specified; that is a long time in the Personal Computer industry, at least for companies without monopoly power, so for maximum efficacy the disclosures should be required to happen much sooner.) However, Section III.J.1 provides an inviting loophole to circumvent these measures. III.J.1 states that Microsoft is not required to disclose APIs, Documentation, or Communications Protocols if doing so would compromise the security of a particular installation or group of installations of anti-piracy, anti-virus, software licensing, digital rights management, encryption, or authentication systems.

On the surface, this seems reasonable. But one need only look at Microsoft's antitrust history to see how this represents a blueprint for defeating the provisions of Sections III.D and III.E. Microsoft blatantly violated the spirit of the last Consent Decree with the DOJ by artificially integrating the Internet Explorer Web Browser with the Windows Operating System. This act of technical artifice exploited a serious loophole in the wording of the Consent Decree, rendering it ineffective and meaningless. Microsoft makes no apologies for this action and in fact maintains they did nothing wrong. Thus there is every reason to believe they would make use of such tactics again if afforded the opportunity (particularly given how successful they were). Section III.J.1 of the proposed settlement gives them that opportunity. By taking essential Middleware APIs and key Communications Protocols and artificially grafting in even basic anti-piracy, anti-virus, etc. features, Microsoft could then refuse to divulge said APIs and Protocols under III.J.1, claiming it would compromise security. Third party developers would thus continue to be denied critical information they need to effectively compete, and Sections III.D and III.E of the proposed agreement would be completely circumvented.

To reiterate, the Section III.J.1 loophole is simply an obvious application of the same technique that Microsoft used with great success to defeat the previous Consent Decree. III.J.1 seems designed specifically to permit such an exploit. While the Competitive Impact Statement maintains that III.J.1 cannot be used to withhold inherent functionality, there is nothing in the Revised Proposed Final Judgment itself that would prohibit Microsoft from doing so. I submit that in order for the provisions of Sections III.D and III.E to be effective, Section III.J.1 should be removed entirely, or at minimum extensively modified (for example, including the above referenced language from the Competitive Impact Statement) to specifically guard against the integration trick. Otherwise, history would probably repeat itself.

Still another problematic provision of the settlement is Section III.G.1. Again, it starts out very good, prohibiting Microsoft from striking deals with IAPs, ICPs, ISVs, IHVs, or OEMs requiring exclusive or fixed-percentage distribution, promotion, use, or support of Microsoft Platform Software. But as with so many of the other restrictions, an exception is included that permits anticompetitive behavior to continue unabated. Microsoft is still allowed to make agreements to require use, distribution, etc. of its software in a fixed percentage if it is "commercially practicable" for the IAP, ICP, etc. in question to use, distribute, etc. competing software in an equal or greater amount. The Competitive Impact Statement does a reasonable job of explaining how this limited exception cannot be used to exclusionary ends, but the argument breaks down completely if there is more than one competitor to Microsoft. For example, in the streaming media market, there are three major competing formats: QuickTime, RealPlayer, and Windows Media. Consider an extremely popular news Web site (an ICP) that might provide content in the QuickTime and RealPlayer formats. Under Section III.G.1 Microsoft could make an agreement with this ICP to provide content only in Windows Media and QuickTime. The terms of III.G.1 would be completely satisfied, as a competitor's product would still be used in equal proportion to Microsoft's, and yet such a deal is clearly exclusionary, removing RealPlayer from competition. As written, Section III.G.1 explicitly allows anticompetitive behavior, giving Microsoft the power to decide which competitors would be eliminated and which would be permitted to survive. Even worse, Microsoft could structure deals with multiple IAPs, ICPs, etc. to fragment a market, choosing a different competitor to keep at each entity, but keeping its own products in universal use, distribution, etc. Network effects would guarantee the Microsoft offerings dominance and potentially extinguish all of the competitors. Obviously, for Section III.G.1 to have any real meaning, the exception must be removed. There are far too many ways Microsoft can exploit the permitted agreements to anticompetitive ends. A monopoly should not be allowed to use its monopoly profits and power to simply buy widespread acceptance of its products or services.

Perhaps the most egregious failing of the Revised Proposed Final Judgment is that it completely ignores a specific violation of Section 2 of the Sherman Act as upheld by the Appellate Court: Microsoft's use of their Office product as a "club" to force Apple Computer to adopt Internet Explorer as the preferred Web Browser (see Section II.B.4 of the Appellate Court ruling). In fact, given the definitions in Section VI of the agreement, not a single provision of the entire settlement applies to Microsoft's dealings with Apple. Apple Computer is not an IAP, ICP, ISV, IHV, or OEM as defined therein. It might be argued that Apple qualifies as an ISV, since the company does produce software, but to quote the Appellate Court in Section II.B.4 of their ruling, "Apple is vertically integrated: it makes both software (including an operating system, Mac OS), and hardware (the Macintosh line of computers)." The Court addressed Apple Computer completely separate from ISVs (as well as OEMs and the rest), thus it is reasonable to assume that in the Court's eyes Apple is not considered an ISV. Which means this proposed settlement leaves Apple Computer wide open to further abuses at the hands of Microsoft, especially where the Office product is concerned. This alone renders the agreement inadequate, without even considering the myriad other problems, as it fails completely to "avoid a recurrence of the violation" (to quote Section IV.B of the Competitive Impact Statement).

Microsoft Office is essentially a monopoly product in the office productivity space. It holds well over 90% market share, and as such is an essential software product on both Macintosh and Windows platforms. Indeed, it is a critical product for the continued survival of Apple's Macintosh line of computers. Even today with Apple's improved financial condition, Microsoft could effectively kill the company by cancelling Office for Macintosh. Office represents a gun pointed at Apple's head, and in fact Microsoft has used this threat not just once, but twice. (The first time the ultimatum was for Apple to license certain interface elements or face cancellation of the Word and Excel software packages, the precursors of Office. Apple was forced to agree to terms that paved the way for Windows to duplicate many elements of the Macintosh User Interface, without Microsoft having to pay royalties.) But even though this coercion has now been explicitly ruled to be illegal, the proposed settlement ignores that fact and leaves Microsoft free to use the tactic again. It would therefore be impossible for the Macintosh platform to compete as vigorously as it might against Windows because Microsoft can destroy it at will if they decide that Apple is becoming too much of a problem. The situation is even worse now that Internet Explorer has a virtual lock on the Web Browser market, because Microsoft can now threaten to cancel Explorer for Macintosh to extract concessions from Apple. The result would be nearly the same as with Office: the extermination of the Macintosh platform. Explorer is rapidly becoming a knife at Apple's throat to go with the Office gun pointed in its face. I submit therefore that appropriate relief in this matter is to remove these weapons from Microsoft's hands. (If someone commits a crime with a gun, the first thing you do is take away the gun.) Divestiture of the Office product line would accomplish this, but may or may not be practical.

(As stated previously, I believe that Internet Explorer should be divested; this is more feasible considering Microsoft generates no revenue from the product, whereas Office produces a large portion of the company's income.) In lieu of divestiture, a series of restrictions must be placed on Microsoft to ensure they do not abuse the Office product. First, they should be required to produce competitive and compatible versions of Office for Macintosh as long as Apple continues producing computers. The "competitive and compatible" stipulation is necessary to preclude Microsoft from creating deliberately inferior or crippled versions of the product, and to ensure interoperability with the Windows version. (This is hardly onerous, considering that Office for Macintosh is a profitable product; this simply prevents its use as a tool of coercion against Apple.) Second, Microsoft should be required to commission under reasonable licensing terms a competitive and compatible port of the Office product to the Linux Operating System. This would remove one of the highest barriers that Microsoft has erected to keep Linux from competing with Windows, as lack of a native version of Office effectively denies Linux access to vast portions of the Personal Computer market. (Again, this does not represent a burden to the company, as Microsoft would not have to do the work, and stands to reap considerable profits from each copy of Office for Linux that would be sold.) Third, similar to the terms of Section III.D of the proposed settlement, Microsoft should be required to disclose and document all of the APIs used by the Office software to interoperate with a Windows Operating System Product. This would help promote competition in the office productivity space by leveling the playing field for all developers. Finally, to that same end, and perhaps most importantly, Microsoft should be required to disclose and document all file formats used by the Office software, making them freely available for anyone to use in their own products. This alone would go far in removing barriers to competition, as file compatibility is one of the primary factors which prevents users from exploring alternatives to Office. Even without divestiture, these four measures would effectively end the use of Office both as a weapon of coercion against Apple and as a tool of monopoly maintenance, as well as encouraging competition in the office productivity market.

Next, let's examine the provisions for enforcement in Section IV. As with the rest of the Revised Proposed Final Judgment, there are some good points, but serious flaws and omissions overshadow them. Foremost among these are the lack of immediate enforcement authority and prescribed penalties for willful violations. If Microsoft chooses to engage in anticompetitive conduct prohibited by this settlement, the only remedies available are voluntary resolution through the Internal Compliance Officer or through court action as described in the Competitive Impact Statement. Neither offers an effective deterrent to violations.

First, consider the nature of the Internal Compliance Officer; he or she is to be a Microsoft employee. The factual record of this case clearly shows that many of Microsoft's anticompetitive policies originated with senior management, among them Bill Gates himself. If further such practices were mandated from the top, is it reasonable to believe that a simple employee who is afforded no protection whatsoever from retribution by this agreement would dare oppose them? Furthermore, even if the Compliance Officer chose to make a stand against such illegal conduct and was not fired on the spot and replaced with someone more pliable, he or she is granted no real power to forcibly stop the conduct. The entire idea of voluntary resolution through a Compliance Officer seems predicated on the notion that Microsoft actually wants to comply and avoid further anticompetitive behavior. I believe the record shows this to be a naive and dangerous assumption.

Microsoft willfully and blatantly violated the spirit (if not the letter) of the first Consent Decree with the DOJ. The company has lied to its developers and customers, coerced competitors, and bullied its partners. During the trial in District Court, Microsoft repeatedly demonstrated contempt for the proceedings and indeed the very notion that the Law has any say whatsoever over its business practices. The company was even caught falsifying evidence in Federal Court! As the trial went badly, Microsoft turned to public relations firms to write fake letters of support in an attempt to create the illusion of broad grass-roots backing for the company's position, the idea being to manipulate public opinion to influence the outcome of the trial. At one point they even stooped to sending letters in the names of deceased individuals! And obviously the tactic has not been forgotten, for recently it was discovered that Microsoft had submitted falsified testimonial letters to the European Union commission currently investigating alleged anticompetitive abuses by the company. And Microsoft continues to misrepresent facts in the matter at hand, failing to disclose lobbying activity related to this proposed settlement in its APPA filing, when extensive lobbying by the company has been amply documented in the media! To this day Microsoft remains unrepentant and denies that its actions were wrong, despite the findings that were upheld by the Appellate Court. Given this record of dishonesty, disregard for the Law, and utter lack of remorse, it seems completely unreasonable to now simply trust that Microsoft will police itself, or even believe that it in fact has any desire to do so.

That leaves court action brought by the Plaintiffs to address willful violations of the settlement. This has proved ineffective in the past, as the case of the original Consent Decree between Microsoft and the DOJ shows. Even when threatened with the unprecedented fine of one million dollars per day, the company was not cowed (unsurprising since their monopoly generates billions of dollars in profits each quarter). Plus, the company escaped punishment for their violation of the Decree completely upon appeal. Thus the threat of court action, with its attendant process of appeals and likelihood of only fines being imposed even if prosecution is successful, does not act as a deterrent against willful disregard of the provisions of the Revised Proposed Final Judgment. Appeals can drag the enforcement proceedings out long enough for anticompetitive acts to achieve their ends, and as before, any potential fine is likely to be insignificant compared to the sheer size of monopoly profits (not to mention Microsoft's staggering cash holdings, which presently amount to roughly $36 billion and counting).

What is required to ensure voluntary compliance on Microsoft's part is an independent, external authority with the power to immediately act to remedy violations, triggering the imposition of prescribed penalties severe enough to make the company fear them. The Technical Committee as established by Section IV.B of the proposed settlement could be such a body, but the agreement fails to give it the necessary enforcement powers. The TC is limited to working through the Internal Compliance Officer or referring the matter to the Plaintiffs to pursue through the courts, both of which are likely to be of dubious value, as outlined above. Furthermore, Section IV.D.4.d makes even court action difficult by prohibiting the TC from either testifying or submitting evidence in any enforcement proceedings. This restriction seems wholly unreasonable as it only serves to further prevent expeditious enforcement. The Competitive Impact Statement notes that the TC can provide information to the Plaintiffs upon which to base an enforcement investigation, but why mandate such extra steps when the TC can directly verify non-compliance for the Court? This makes no sense, and would only serve to prolong the duration of any violations. At minimum, IV.D.4.d should be removed. (Note that this would not compromise confidentiality of materials obtained by the TC, as this is specified separately.) Ideally, since time is critical in addressing any anticompetitive behavior, the TC should be empowered to immediately invoke harsh penalties, either directly or via the Plaintiffs, to stop willful non-compliance. These penalties should be prescribed in advance and severe enough to nullify and reverse any advantage that might be gained by illegal conduct. This might include forced divestiture of products, or perhaps forced disclosure of the source code for the Windows Operating System. The point being that Microsoft would actually fear punishment, and find it in their best interests to comply rather than continue their anticompetitive ways.

Lastly, the final major problem with the Revised Proposed Final Judgment is found in Section V. The specified five-year duration of the agreement is far too short for conduct remedies (even the more far-reaching ones that I have suggested) to fully restore competitive conditions to the marketplace. While the Personal Computer industry is rapidly evolving, Microsoft is a thoroughly entrenched monopoly, and five years represents at best two major upgrade cycles. It is a short enough time that the company can simply "wait it out" (as they have managed to do thus far during the four-year course of these antitrust proceedings) and still wield monopoly power when the restrictions expire. I submit that the conduct remedies should remain in force for a period of ten years. This would allow ample time for competition to flourish and make it nearly impossible for Microsoft to simply bide its time waiting for the Judgment's expiration. Also, the Plaintiffs should be entitled to seek multiple extensions to the term of enforcement so long as there is evidence of willful, systematic violations of the agreement (or associated illegal conduct), rather than the one-time extension stipulated in Section V.B. Again, this is to prevent Microsoft from simply "running out the clock" so it could continue with anticompetitive behavior unhindered.

In conclusion, I believe it to be abundantly clear that the Revised Proposed Final Judgment would be completely ineffective in restraining and redressing Microsoft's anticompetitive behavior. What good provisions there are have been rendered impotent by loopholes and exceptions. This agreement is a failure by the DOJ's own criteria as presented in Section IV.B of the Competitive Impact Statement: (1) it does not end the unlawful conduct (and in some cases officially sanctions alternate forms of it); (2) fails to prevent recurrence of violations (especially regarding the coercion of Apple Computer); and (3) does absolutely nothing to undo the anticompetitive consequences, in particular leaving Microsoft in control of the Web Browser market, control obtained through largely illegal means (as upheld by the Appellate Court). Furthermore, the enforcement provisions are weak at best, completely devoid of meaningful penalties for continued anticompetitive acts. Enforcement seems to hinge entirely on the good faith of a company that has repeatedly demonstrated untrustworthiness. Quite simply, under this proposed settlement Microsoft faces no punishment for its past crimes and no deterrent to future ones.

In order to provide effective relief to the marketplace, I urge consideration of the suggestions that I have submitted in this commentary.

I believe the additional measures and elimination of exceptions and loopholes in the proposed settlement fall well within the scope of the Appellate Court's ruling, and would more successfully undo the harm inflicted by Microsoft's actions, prevent further violations, and restore competition. Even though it is probable that additional, lengthy litigation would be required, the time and effort to ensure appropriate remedies is more than warranted. A quick but ineffective settlement such as the Revised Proposed Final Judgment accomplishes nothing and leaves one of our most important industries trapped beneath the heel of an abusive monopolist.

For the record, I would like to state that I am not employed in the Personal Computer sector and am in no way affiliated with Microsoft or any of its competitors. I have no axe to grind. I do follow the industry though, as computers have been a hobby of mine for nearly 20 years. I work in higher education and manage the computer systems for my department. These consist of a variety of platforms including Windows, Macintosh, Linux, and Unix. Based on my personal experience, almost without exception I would never willingly choose to use any Microsoft product. Yet I am frequently forced to, directly or indirectly because of their monopoly power. As a consumer I am denied choice. This is the harm that is at the core of this case. Now that Microsoft stands convicted of the anticompetitive tactics it has employed for so long, there is the opportunity to pursue potent remedies to restore competition and choice to the marketplace, allowing innovation to flourish. If instead the Department of Justice chooses to proceed with this completely ineffective settlement, then nothing will change and the DOJ will have failed in its duty to the American people.

Respectfully submitted,

Robert E. Timlin, Jr.

P.S. Please note that I have also faxed a copy of this document. This electronic version is provided for your convenience.

MTC-00011157

From: Brian Jones

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 12:40pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

<<Microsoft Letter 1-14-02.pdf>>

Management Concepts, Inc.

Business Computer Systems—Software Solutions

2229 s. Oneida Street Green Bay, WI 54324-8135 OFFICE: (920) 494-4949

PO Box 28135 Website: www.mcigb.com

FAX: (920) 497-4850

January 14, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft

US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am concerned about the status of the settlement recently agreed to by Microsoft and the Justice Department. Your decision to settle the matter is admirable and it is unfortunate that certain adversaries of Microsoft are trying to cause problems for it. After all, the settlement gives Microsoft's opponents everything they could have ever hoped for (and some...) without actually breaking up the company. Everyone wins in this scenario.

Microsoft grew to its great size and magnitude because of the seamless operating system it developed and subsequent demand for its products. Yes, it grew to be a huge corporation, but if you recall, its inception was in a garage. It did nothing illegal to achieve its premiere status, as its competitors accuse.

I am most impressed by Microsoft's agreement to share its code for the Windows operating system with competitors. This is profound and demonstrates Microsoft's desire to move forward—even though it really did not have to disclose these secrets. It will also no longer retaliate against computer makers who ship software that competes with anything in its Windows operating system—another measure that will increase competition.

The settlement is fair and is a much better alternative to breaking Microsoft up. The court should finalize it as soon as possible.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Brin Lave

Brian Jones

Vice President

Cc: Representative Mark Green

MTC-00011158

From: Partezana, Chris

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 12:42pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To restore competition, forget about breakups and require Microsoft to license its source code for a set fee. And with numerous companies selling compatible versions, we might finally see a leaner and more stable Windows. Microsoft should be required to publish all the "hooks" into their OS at launch, patch, upgrade. There should be a penalty for each one discovered that have not been published. Setup a "bounty" system for people to find them. First one to find and post to a web site received a percentage of the fine for that specific hook.

MTC-00011159

From: Joe Cortale

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/14/02 12:53pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,

I am a 20 year software executive who has had the opportunity to both partner with Microsoft and compete against Microsoft during my career. As such, I have spent time in Redmond, WA and gotten to know firsthand both the culture, and Machiavellian management philosophy that has been a legacy at Microsoft.

In recent days, I have come to know through an ex-colleague some of the details relating to the Proposed Settlement made by the Justice Department with Microsoft, and to say the least, I am displeased by them. This is why I am writing to you today.

Your Honor, how could the Justice Department grant Microsoft a government-mandated monopoly of the software industry and even worse—other technology markets? Clearly, this decision would seriously jeopardize all competitors—both now and in the future. This decision would clearly violate some basic principals of Capitalism, such as our right to choose, our right to fair competition, fair pricing, etc.

In closing, your Honor, I submit to you that like never before in our Country's history, Microsoft has unequivocally shown itself to be the proverbial 800 pound gorilla. Their illegal conduct and activities (bribing & threatening partners and competitors) have been proven time and time again. I would like to see Microsoft be brought to justice for the good of our country, our economy, and most of all—the good of our people. I like millions of other Americans are counting on you, and counting on justice to prevail.

Respectfully,

Joseph Cortale

Joseph Cortale

Senior Vice President of Sales

jcortale@eloquent.com

Eloquent

2000 Alameda de Las Pulgas

Suite 100

San Mateo CA 94403

Tel: (650) 294-6474

MTC-00011162

From: John Eriksen

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 12:55pm

Subject: RE: Microsoft Settlement

I originally sent this mail item (below the line) to Richard Blumenthal, Attorney General, State of Connecticut <attorney.general@po.state.ct.us>. He mailed me back and suggested that I forward you a copy concerning MY concerns about the Microsoft settlement. Thanks in advance for your concern and attention. These are matters that are very important to all americans and have unfortunately gotten pushed from the public's primary attention by the events of Sept 11.

As a concerned american... and a very knowledgeable computer professional... Who uses Microsoft products...

I want to urge you to CONTINUE your efforts to rein in the behavior of Microsoft in any way possible.

It is hard to express in words how disappointed I am with the Bush administration and the Dept. of Justice's decision to settle this case short of its original goals. I want to further state that after having said these things.... that I am a conservative republican, who find governmental intrusion into the private sector offensive.. but in this particular case, it is not only justified, but damned important for the good of this country. Microsoft is not ANYONE'S friend. Their goal is become a global corporate entity with the same influence and power that an autonomous country has... And nothing short of pro-active intervention on the part of knowledgeable law enforcement is going to prevent:

(1) The illegal conduct of Microsoft and similar conduct in the future

(2) To spark competition in the information technology industry

(3) To deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains Microsoft is attempting to control the global network... one information protocol at a time. By nothing more intrusive than seemingly benign software 'upgrades'.. all the while... every other computer platform becomes less capable of communicating efficiently across networks DOMINATED my Microsoft software...

This 'incompatibility' is not an accident on their part.... This is a planned 'feature' of their software.. This being software not written to do productive work as its primary function, but to ensure an ever widening sphere of Microsoft dominated networks. Productive work being its secondary function.

This 'incompatibility by upgrade' must stop. Your efforts must continue until Microsoft realizes it is not going to be allowed to force its vision of the future on us any more than Osama Bin Ladin is.

You're legal efforts have my total ethical and political support.

MTC-00011163

From: Elbert Hannah

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/14/02 1:01pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In 1992 I was highly recruited by Microsoft to be on their NT Beta support team. I was very reluctant and agreed to interview at the urging of a close friend who worked there.

Throughout the interview process, I questioned whether Microsoft truly wanted someone like me, since my background was strictly Unix. And, I hated DOS, and I hated Windows, and I hated all of their products. They assured me they wanted me badly BECAUSE of my Unix background... This was during the time when Microsoft touted their new NT Operating System as Open and POSIX compliant—i.e., they were ready to play the Open Architecture card.

I accepted their 4th offer...

On Friday of my first week I attended an internal presentation on the NT POSIX subsystem. The project manager, Margaret (I don't remember her last name) opened the presentation with the following remarks: (and I am summarizing here):

Margaret: Before we get started here with the POSIX Subsystem, I want to make one thing perfectly clear—we have NO interest in this subsystem... The POSIX subsystem is just a check box so we can qualify to get government contracts. We don't care about it, we don't intend to support it, it's just a checkbox.

Then Margaret introduced the ENTIRE POSIX subsystem team, a guy named Matt!

Afterwards, I called and talked DIRECTLY with Larry Kroger about what I had heard. I recounted what I had heard and he made no counter argument. I asked him what I was to tell people asking questions about the POSIX subsystem on the support forums. Larry said, "Tell them we don't support it." I asked what I should tell these people about MS' future plans for the POSIX subsystem. Larry said, "Tell them we have none."

I resigned the following week—foregoing "in the door" stock options that have since exceeded $3M in profit value.

Thought you'd be interested in MS' behind-closed-door "policy". And, if you have any doubts about the authenticity of my experience, check with MS' HR department about my employment at that time... Also, the "presentation" I described was video-taped, as were all of their presentations, so the meeting should be preserved in their libraries.

Elbert Hannah

MTC-00011164

From: Lance Speelman

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/14/02 12:57pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lance Speelman

543 S Magnolia Ct

Bloomington, IN 47403

January 14, 2002

Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust

Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech

industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Lance Speelman

MTC-00011165

From: Jane Olson

To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Date: 1/14/02 11:57pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Jane Olson

2025 Sage Lily Dr

Sidney, MT 59270-5730

January 14, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Jane Olson

MTC-00011166

From: George Maynor

To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Date: 1/14/02 11:42pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

George Maynor

10201 River Drive

Descanso, Ca 91916

January 14, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice,

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views. P.S. Perhaps your time could be better spent bringing the money changers down to their collective knees. Greenspan keeps lowering the interest rate to the money changers but real relief to the people in the form of lower interest rates on consumer loans is nowhere in sight. Don't you think it's about time to help the very people who elect you?

Sincerely,

George E. Maynor

MTC-00011167

From: SAGalant@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 12:09am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case against Microsoft I believe their last offer was a good one and feel that its the competition of Microsoft dragging this settlement on and on. I would like to see the gov. step in and make these nine states accept this offer.

Thank You

Sam A. Galante

MTC-00011168

From: George Tice

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 12:12am

Subject: Settlement

I feel that the Microsoft case should be settled NOW. It is good for the people and the economy and should be resolved without further delay. Thank you

George E. Tice

PO Box 2474

Sedona, AZ 86339

MTC-00011169

From: Ken Smith

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:13am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I understand consumers are being encouraged to voice their opinion about the DOJ settlement with Microsoft. I believe that it is critical for the country to get past this whole mess. The suit was driven by Microsoft competitors that have failed to compete on price, performance or features. All they have left is litigation. It's a sad and disgusting comment on our government that it should be fooled by such tactics.

Microsoft does more for this county in a week then Sun, Oracle or AOL do in a year.

MTC-00011170

From: William and Gwen Fisk
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:15am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is in the interest of the American people and the world economy to settle the Microsoft antitrust suit.

Our economy needs for this issue to be put behind us. Our country needs the funds to continue the Anti-terrorism fight, not litigation costs. Microsoft needs to use their funds to continue researching and developing technology, not litigation costs.

If the other companies could offer the technology Microsoft has developed, you can bet they would have done so. It's sour grapes and let's move on.

Gwen Fisk
Small business owner

MTC-00011171

From: Karen and Harold Williams
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:18am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT = DISASTER!!

DEAR JUDGE;

MY WIFE AND I ARE BOTH IN THE HIGH TECH INDUSTRY AND HAVE BEEN FOR OVER 10 YEARS. THE CURRENT PFJ IS SIMPLY A DISASTER. IT IS FULL OF LOOPHOLES THAT MS HAS ALREADY PROVEN IT IS AN EXPERT AT FINDING AND USING AGAINST ANY COMPANY THAT THREATENS ITS MONOPOLY.

WORKING WITH THEIR SOFTWARE IS AN ABSOLUTE NIGHTMARE—AND NOW THEY WANT EVERYONE EVERYWHERE TO BE PART OF .NET. WE DON'T KNOW MUCH ABOUT THE EXACT LAW IN THIS AREA—BUT IT JUST SEEMS TO US THAT WHAT MS IS DOING IS WRONG. AND CERTAINLY THE PFJ, WHICH I HAVE READ IN PARTS, ISN'T GOING TO LIMIT THEIR ABUSIVE TACTICS AT ALL.

IT'S IMPORTANT FOR OUR COUNTRY THAT PEOPLE LIKE YOU, WHO HAVE THE POWER TO DO WHAT IS RIGHT AND GOOD, DO SO. WE UNDERSTAND THAT IT WILL BE TOUGH TO STAND UP TO MICROSOFT AND THEIR BULLYING TACTICS. WE JUST PRAY THAT YOU WILL HAVE THE STRENGTH, THE COURAGE AND THE WISDOM TO DO THE RIGHT THING IN THIS VERY, VERY, VERY IMPORTANT CASE.

PRAYING FOR YOU.
KAREN AND HAROLD WILLIAMS
BRIGHTON, MASS.

MTC-00011172

From: BCamp1004@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:29am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I wish to state my views in regard to the recent Microsoft Settlement. I for one, (and I believe the majority of the general public) , am pleased that the Microsoft case has gone to settlement so we can put this behinds us all and move on. Enough taxpayers money has been spend on pursuing a company under the assumption that the consumers will benefit from government legal intervention, when in fact the consumers have only benefited from Microsoft's products and innovations.

Sincerely,
Bruce A. Campbell

MTC-00011173

From: GEORGE GRANDY
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:30am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Dearest Judge;

there are five huge problems I see with the PFJ as it currently stands—and I hope that you will use the power of your good office to correct these egregious errors before this is made the law of our good land:

1. Communication Protocols: The Agreement states that Microsoft must now share information on how its middleware and server software work together with Windows. However, Microsoft does not have to disclose this information for middleware it does not distribute separate from windows, or for middleware it has not trademarked. This is a huge loophole, because if Microsoft wants to drive a competitor out of business, they just attach the specific type of software the competitor is involved with to their Windows platform. Once they do that, they do not have to share the coding information that allows the competitors software to work with Windows, thus driving the competitor out of business. Once the competitor is out of business, Microsoft can separate the software from the Windows package, sell it separately and derive huge margins. In addition, Microsoft does not have to disclose their information to companies that in ?their view? do not have a ?viable business?. This loophole will allow Microsoft to prevent new software start-ups from forming which, to say the least, is very bad for competition, and therefore, the consumer.

2. No Penalty For Undisputed Illegal Activity: Microsoft is not penalized for any past misdeeds. In other words, they are being allowed to retain all the profits gained from their illegal activities. Every court involved with this case has acknowledged that Microsoft broke the Anti-trust laws. Through this Agreement, the Justice Department is sending the message that this sort of anticompetitive behavior is acceptable. Every large potential monopolistic company is being told that they can get away with this sort of illegal behavior without fear of losing any of the gains made from such conduct. In other words, get away with as much as you can until the Justice Department brings an action. There is every incentive for future monopolists to engage in this type of conduct and no incentive not to.

3. Middleware: As part of the Agreement Microsoft is required to allow the PC manufacturers to hide Microsoft middleware programs and allow them to install icons or links to competing middleware programs. The only problem is that the PC manufacturers are not allowed to remove the code that could be used to reactivate Microsoft's middleware programs. In other words, two weeks into owning the machine, a consumer could be asked if they want to reconfigure their desktop, install all the Microsoft middleware and delete all the competitor's middleware.

4. The Three-Man Compliance Team. The Agreement requires a three-man compliance team to oversee Microsoft's compliance with the Agreement. Microsoft will appoint one person, the Justice Department another, and the third will be chosen by the two people already appointed. This new team will not be allowed to inform the public of their work, and cannot impose fines. Their sole remedy for infractions is informing the Justice Department of the infraction and then the Justice Department will have to commence litigation to stop the infraction. The Justice Department does not need a compliance group to tell them when Microsoft is doing something wrong, so in reality this group is just a smoke screen.

5. Market Share. All other businesses in the U.S. market that have a ninety percent market share are considered per-se monopolies and are regulated or have some sort of government oversight (i.e. utilities, local phone companies, cable companies etc.). This is done because it is in such a company's best interest (in the interest of their shareholders) to abuse their position. In other words, to gain maximum shareholder value, they are almost required to abuse their position. Why is Microsoft allowed a waiver to this general rule? Does Microsoft not try to gain optimum share value for their shareholders?

Judge: this agreement looks badly flawed—especially to anyone that has been in the industry for years and has seen MS again and again abuse its monopoly powers. I've been a CEO of a number of small software companies—and am one right now. The PFJ will put those of us depending on Java in a very precarious position strategically.

Help make this right. Our entire industry is counting on you.

George Grandy

MTC-00011174

From: todd neighbors
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:36am
Subject: microsoft settlement

Gentlemen and Ladies,

I feel that Microsoft has made our lives better through the innovations they have provided us. I do not understand why some lawyers want to tell us what is good for us. The technology has already changed and is moving in a different direction as more and more people get online. The people that are behind this suit are not individual consumers. The people that tend to benefit are the AOL's, Sun Micro, Nokia, AT&T of the world. They all have monopolies in their own business models. AOL now controls all cable tv. They set the price and what's on. AT&T have not only the phone systems but also have the platform to deliver cable tv and the internet. If you look at the cost Microsoft charges for it's product it's cheaper than either AT&T or AOL's products on an annual basis. Who's providing the better value for the service provided. I don't feel that Microsoft has overcharged anybody and it's a disgrace to the public for these politicians who are suing the company for the betterment of their careers. How come no one sued AOL for the monopoly that they have over cable tv now that they have Time Warner. Look at what they tried to do to Disney a competitor. This is another frivolous lawsuit that only benefits the politicians and hurts the consumer and technology as a whole. Microsoft does not control an individual's ability to create a product for sale in the software market. They make it better. Without Windows, the computer box makers would have been broke years ago. How come no one has looked into the prices that the box makers charged for their products. I want Microsoft products because they work.

MTC-00011175

From: Robert Figone
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:36am

Our government should concentrate on protecting our companies and industries like other countries in the world do. Trying to destroy one of our own companies losses sight of the people that make up these companies. Individuals with families, raising their children that will become the future leaders, doctors, workers and patriots. Our laws should be used to build, not tear down efforts that create better conditions in our society. Encourage those who are willing to take the risk, make the extra effort to be successful not only for themselves but for their many employees as well. Reward effort, not whiners who are looking for a free ride or someone else to carry their fair load.

Government should not try to legislate success, only opportunity!

MTC-00011176

From: mel graham
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:38am
Subject: microsoft settlement ruling
108 Fairview Avenue
Elrama, PA 15038-
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice, 950 Pennsylvania
Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
The Microsoft Anti Trust case settlement has been a long time coming. I am very glad to see that there is now a light at the end of the tunnel. However, I don't see how anyone can even debate the settlement's fairness. Microsoft is giving up a great deal to end this lawsuit, going so far as to give their competitors an unfair edge in the future. Sounds like the "reverse discrimination" rulings of the past.

I use Microsoft products both at work and at home. For years Microsoft has provided American consumers like me with superior products, creating innovative and compatible technologies useful in so many areas. Their dedication to making their product user-friendly created the computer revolution.

Everyone had the same opportunity to "jump in" and profit. AND MANY DID!! Now, with the settlement Microsoft has pledged to share information, including the internal interfaces for its Windows operating system, with its competitors and make it easier for people to install non-Microsoft products in Windows. Doesn't sound like a just reward for a job well done!!!

The government has more important matters to deal with. It should not be intervening in the affairs of private companies. Please uphold the settlement and allow Microsoft to move on with their business.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Milford Graham

MTC-00011177

From: Johannes Ziegler
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 12:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Mr. Kollar-Kotally:

I want to express my dissatisfaction with the Proposed Final Judgement (PFJ) against Microsoft. As a management consultant to leading companies in the high-tech industry, including AOL (formerly Netscape), Intuit, and Hewlett-Packard, I have personally witnessed the damaging and anti-competitive behavior of Microsoft. In several cases Microsoft forced my clients to make product decisions that were not in the interest of the consumer, but that were necessary to avoid open retaliation by Microsoft— which is in line with what federal courts have found when they reviewed the Microsoft antitrust case over the last three years.

Unfortunately, I cannot see, how the PFJ will change this behavior in the future. On the contrary, by not severely penalizing Microsoft for past unethical and anticompetitive behavior and not really curbing the same behavior in the future, this seems like an encouragement for Microsoft to continue with their way of "business as usual".

So I urge you not to approve the PFJ but to request a judgement that adequately addresses both the past and the future of Microsoft's industry-damaging behavior.

Sincerely
Dr. Johannes Ziegler
President and CEO
Synesis Inc.
Phone: +1 650 813 9913
Fax: +1 650 852 9913
www.synesis.com
CC: 'microsoftcomments(a)doj.ca.gov'

MTC-00011178

From: Brian Grave
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:42am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Judge; the proposed deal with MS is a potential disaster for our industry for a bunch of reasons. but the most obvious one is the issue of "bolting."

The PFJ does not address the issue that fueled consumer criticism and which gave rise to this antitrust case in 1998: Microsoft's decision to bind Internet Explorer to the Windows operating system in order to crush its browser competitor Netscape. This settlement gives Microsoft sole discretion; to unilaterally determine that other products or services which do not have anything to do with operating a computer are nevertheless part of a Windows Operating System product; This creates a new exemption from parts of antitrust law for Microsoft and would leave Microsoft free in future versions to bolt financial services, cable television, or the Internet itself into Windows. This is clearly a problem— especially for companies like mine that compete with Microsoft (as well as partner).

I hope you'll help us level the playing field here...it is desperately needed.

Brian Graves
Boston Mass

MTC-00011179

From: Marcus Grumbles
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:43am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am happy that the Department of Justice is ready to close its case against Microsoft. The three-year suit has affected the computer industry and cost consumers a great deal of money. I feel that Microsoft, like any other American business, has the right to conduct its affairs without government intervention.

The proposed settlement is more than fair to the plaintiffs in the suit and will correct any infractions of which Microsoft may be guilty. Microsoft will share its Windows operating system with other computer makers, allowing them to place their own software on it. Also, Microsoft will agree not to retaliate against companies that sell, use, or promote non-Microsoft vendors.

It is time to allow Microsoft and the rest of the IT industry to return to normal. I urge you to see that the proposed settlement becomes formal. The lawsuit has already been too costly on the industry and needs speedy resolution.

Sincerely,
Marcus Grumbles
6503 Bluesky Way
Austin, TX 78745
mgrumbles@austin.rr.com

MTC-00011180

From: ken chang
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:51am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
Judge;

My company works extensively with Java—it is in fact our lifeblood. what MS has tried to do with Java is beyond belief.

The Court of Appeals affirmed that Microsoft had unlawfully and intentionally deceived Java developers and polluted; the Java standard in order to protect its monopoly and defeat competition.

Yet, the PFJ does not restrict Microsoft's ability to modify, alter or refuse to support computer industry standards, including Java, or to engage in campaigns to deceive developers of rival platforms, middleware or applications software. Indeed, Microsoft's decision not to distribute Java technologies with Windows XP, which hurts developers and consumers alike, will be the shape of things to come under the proposed deal unless the Court requires Microsoft to continue to distribute Java technologies.

You must do something to help Java based companies survive. C is a 20 year old language that— if not for the MS monopoly— would have died a natural death years ago (remember Cobal??).

Let competition reign!!

Dr. Ken Chang
SF, CA.

MTC-00011181

From: GOTHDOVE@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:55am
Subject: Time to stop the political attack upon Microsoft

It is long over do to let all this be done with. Most of my friends agree this was all done for political reasons. If the former US Attorney would have spent as much time on terrorist threats against the USA we might not have had the lose of life on 9/11/01. What a injustice has been done to all Americans. Stop letting a group from playing politics and not be concerned for the true welfare of all US citizens.

MTC-00011182

From: Bobbie Dee Flowers
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/15/02 12:01am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Bobbie Dee Flowers
418 West 17th Street, Apt #22A
New York, NY 10011-5826
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice: Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bobbie Dee Flowers

MTC-00011183

From: sergio jimenez
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 12:06am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
sergio jimenez
527 2nd steet Brooklyn, ny 11215
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
sergio jimenez

MTC-00011184

From: ROBERT REMINGTON
To: Microsoft
ATR, rremington@webtv.net@inetgw
Date: 1/15/02 1:05am
Subject: Arthur's Counting Troubles

The Microsoft Anti-Trust private and educational settlements were rejected on the grounds that the amount proposed was far too low! Who's counting for the government, Enron or Andersen's group?

Add a AOL Time Warner settlement recalculated over one year ago from their merger (estimated at about $1 billion dollars from Gerald Levin's figures) and my claim reaches into the billions of dollars without any others factored into the settlement.

Should we use Arthur Andersen's Accenture Group or another respected Big 5 accounting firm in order to calculate the right amount? Can we even trust their CEO after the Enron debacle?

My previous totals, including revenue from Disney, Gary Goldberg / SKG Dreamworks, NBC, Sears, IBM, Microsoft without access to television advertising logs for revenue streams and royalty calculations is over $1 billion dollars. If the USDOJ gives me legal authority and a motivated accounting team, I'll direct the team to the proper TV commercial logs, advertising agency orders, computer manufacturing records & software license sales. Together we'll obtain a more accurate settlement figure, for a lasting peace!

Include me in on these discussions. Decisions on my future, and my money (in the billions of dollars) must be discussed with me, in person!

The sum owed to me is greater than the total 2002 appraised value of the NBC Burbank campus and technology! That's why I am not disappointed to see a full studio audience at the Tonight Show ahead of me! I don't need to be in the studio audience ...

I'll be just as pleased to own the campus and schedule additional productions at unused soundstages within NBC! I can hire additional staff and production workers for new shows, employ more Californians who are seeking work, and we can all have a great time in entertainment! Plus we'll contribute more corporate taxes for General Electric to consider, and help the governments as well!

The USDOJ cannot ignore my email, my legitimate legal rights and claims. After all, the IRS and other government agencies will receive their fair share of the settlements as well! Enclosed is a reminder from the end of 2001, over three weeks ago!

MTC-00011185

From: Julius T. Abadilla
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:21am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gentlemen:

Any settlement regarding this dispute will always displease someone or some other parties because of the magnitude of the situation. It is better to simply go ahead with the agreed upon settlement, i.e., give the poorest schools what was originally agreed upon, let the recipients benefit from this decision now, and move on.

Because of conflicting ideas in our vast population, there will always be some parties who will be 'hurt' no matter what the solution would be. When the new presiding judge proclaimed that she wants a fast track settlement to this problem, I rejoiced. I felt the air of leadership and determination to solve the mess once and for all. In a society like ours, we should always work with the quickest and best 'at that time' solution to out problems, otherwise, we will be paralysed with trying to find the 'perfect' solution which is almost always elusive. It is better to achieve finality now and move on rather than stall the whole process and let the whole economy suffer.

Let us avoid any more losses and missed opportunities due to these uncertainties and indecisions. This is the reason we have leaders and have appointed well-paid decision-makers so that they can come up with solutions within the confines of the law.

Let not the supposedly leaders challenge each others ruling and stall the process all together. Let us move on.

Thank you,

MTC-00011186

From: Tom Eubank
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:33am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs,

I am a customer of Microsoft. I have been a software developer for over thirty years and have used Microsoft products for over ten years. In my opinion, the Justice Department has been used as a pawn of Microsoft's competitors—to win in the courtroom market share that they could not win in the marketplace.

In 1991, I attended a developer's conference, hosted by Microsoft's competitors, at which the head of PC Development for IBM, and representatives of Borland, Novell, Word Perfect, and others, appealed to the attendees to unite against Microsoft. In different, but similar venues, Microsoft promoted the benefits of their future products—not so much in juxtaposition to the competition—but within the context of improvements over their own, then-current products. It is this difference vision that has enriched Microsoft—along with a significant segment of U.S. economy and the lives of many U.S. consumers.

For almost fifteen years, I worked for a company that actively discouraged the use of Microsoft products—primarily due to the presence of a Vice President of Microsoft's major competitor on its board. During that time, my employer wasted millions of dollars on projects that failed in large part due to ill-conceived and faulty software technologies and products that were chosen as a result of the anti-competitive behavior of Microsoft competitors.

I have personally encountered multiple products distributed by major Microsoft competitors that seemed to be designed to impair the reliability or performance of Microsoft Operating System products.

In summary, over the years, Microsoft has created and published a large number of high-quality products for sale to the general public, and has slowly increased market share as a result of the quality and functionality of those products. During the same period, it's competitors have sought to gain market share by stifling competition through their influence in the boardrooms of major corporations and in the courtrooms of the federal judiciary.

The COMPLAINT and the STIPULATION seem to be designed to benefit other large companies—some of which seek to restrain Microsoft from competing with their inferior products and others of which seek to further extend their dominant presence in other segments of the information marketplace. Articles 1. through 3. of the STIPULATION will enable Microsoft's competitors to degrade the user's experience of Microsoft products by embedding their products into the operating system. Rather than ensuring a competitive marketplace, the STIPULATION will impede it by requiring U.S. consumers to use inferior products.

The prosecution of this COMPLAINT has been a waste of U.S. funds for the benefit of a few large, under-performing companies; the enforcement of the STIPULATION would be a further disservice to the U.S. public.

Regards,
Thomas H. Eubank
Durham, North Carolina

MTC-00011187

From: TEDDYSEA@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:43am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Thank God for Bill Gates and Microsoft. I don't think the Government should have interfered in this matter at all. Look at where we are as a result of Microsoft Windows. We now can use computers easily. What a boost the computer industry has been to the economy for the last 10 years and that is all thanks to the ease in which the average person can use a computer. If someone can make a better operating system, then let them and if its good the public will use it; but I don't need the Government running interference on this one.

I can think of many more ways the Government can protect me. Try the banking industry and their unreasonable fees for ATM use or the oil industry that controls the prices of a commodity that I have to use daily! A computer is an option—let the Government interfere and take action on the things in my life that are not optional!

I thought that we lived in a country that embraces capitalism and free enterprise and rewards people that are innovative—I guess not in the case of Bill Gates!

MTC-00011189

From: R. Douglas Barbieri
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:01am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think that the Microsoft was a paltry settlement which is a mockery of the antitrust act. You wasted millions of taxpayer dollars to basically accuse Microsoft of being a monopoly then give them a slap on the wrist. Having Microsoft donate computers pre-loaded with Windows to schools only give them an edge in a largely Mac-dominated arena. What should be required of Microsoft is that all of their operating system source code should be required to be turned into open-source under the GPL license, and that said source code, complete with internal comments and documentation, be released to the general public.

They should then be required to keep said source code up-to-date and published. They should also be forced to adhere to open standards for data formats instead of being allowed to create their own, closed source versions. Those data formats (Windows Media, Microsoft Word, etc) help them maintain their monopoly on the world. By requiring them to play with open standards, we are guaranteed to be able to view their data formats on any system using non-Microsoft software.

R. Doulas Barbieri
dougbarbier

MTC-00011190

From: ww6v@juno.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:12am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: DOJ

I believe the settlement proposed by the court is fair and want this case settled. I disagree with the nine state Attorneys General who want to continue this case should be denied the forum to do so. Please settle this case.

Charles Dorsten
936 Burlington Drive
Santa Maria, CA 93455

MTC-00011191

From: Gerard Verbrugge
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear US government,

I look at this issue with a european background and personal view. I must say that the press and the competitors created a nice show of this trial but forgot all about what it is about. I myself am a happy user of Microsoft products and never felt the need to complain about anything, I do not feel that I pay too much or must use something that I do not want. There are many ways of competing, this competing through justice by the so called big companies is clearly a negative side of the industry.. Also big time lawyers that try to make a small win in this case (DOJ side) is pethatic.

I say Free Microsoft of all its charges and tell the competitors to get of their lazy butts and create products that compete instead of crying....

Kind regards,
Gerard Verbrugge,
the Netherlands

MTC-00011192

From: Walter Paul Bebirian
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:51am
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Since this and most other "antitrust" cases are compared to Standard Oil—I would recommend that the Standard Oil case be looked at from the perspective of what was done and just how we as a country are fairing because of that break-up—It seems that no one—not one of the states or the government is taking into consideration that since the beginning of this "case" that the economy is the real injured party every step of the way and because this is so, every citizen in this country is being negatively effected—My suggestion is that every single person whether they are in or out of Microsoft—does not really appreciate the negative effect of this "action against" Microsoft—For one brief second—let us imagine that there is no Microsoft and that there never was one—how much progress along any lines whether with computers—handhelds—or Internet— would we have made—and if you think that Netscape is innocent—I propose that the investigation truns right around and looks very deeply at the fact that Netscape was not only behind this whole case—but that Hearst Publications—a most powerful and controlling Private Business—has been behind Netscape from the beginning—So—let us take a quantum leap and figure that 20 years down the road—Microsoft is diminished to a small player in both the operating system category and the browser category— so what—how will that have benefited me—I use a Power Mac which runs on an Apple OS 9 system— (nothing to do with Microsoft) but let me tell you one thing—there is no comparison between the Netscape and Explorer Browsers—the Netscape is no where near as good— efficient—easy to use or fast as the Explorer—so let's be truthful—cut out all the double talk and admit that Microsoft is where it is at because it belongs there—and so I don't agree with the Micosroft Company having to pay any penalty or to be judged against because it is the thruth that there has been no investigation as to exactly why any on has complained about Microsoft and done anything but made a better OS—and if they haven't it is most probably the case because given the hardware they have to work with—they can't—so from that perspective— let's all sit down—make a better machine and then figure out how to make a better OS from the beginning of the next generation—

And my dear Department of Justice— friends—if you don't think that I know what I am talking about— that's just fine with me—since anyone who really has the capabilty of designing what I mentioned above will always be a thousand steps ahead of your thinking!

Walter Paul Bebirian
http://www.575488trillion.com

MTC-00011193

From: Jacob Dobrinen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:54am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Letter
911 N. 107th Street
Seattle, WA 98133-8804
January 14, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing in full support of the recent settlement between the US Department of Justice and Microsoft. Litigation has gone on for far too long now, and I think the terms of the settlement are fair and in the best interest of the public and American economy.

A number of the terms of settlement will help give consumer's freedom to choose products. Microsoft had agreed to design future Windows versions so that computer makers, software developers, and consumers can more easily promote their own products from within Windows' operating systems. Also, I like the fact that Microsoft has agreed to form a three-person team to monitor compliance with the settlement. I think the settlement is fair and reasonable and should suit all parties.

Unfortunately, there are nine states in opposition. I urge your office to make the settlement a reality. Our country needs American companies such as Microsoft to be focusing on innovation, development, implementation and growth. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Jacob Dobrinen

MTC-00011194

From: Blomberg David
To: 'microsoft.atr(ajusdoj.gov)'
Date: 1/15/02 2:55am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge

I am relieved that the proposed settlement was thrown out. Please do us all a favor and sned a message that the Antitrust and unethical activites of Microsoft will not be tolerated. I ask that this case continue and that Microsoft be made to pay for its crimes.

I will keep this short

Thank You for hearing me out

David Blomberg System Engineer
Nihon Libertec Co. LTD
1-34-14 Hatagaya
Shibuya-ku Tokyo
Ph: (03)3481-8321
Fax:(03)3481-8371

MTC-00011195

From: wolfgang manowski
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:08am
Subject: microsoft settlement

It is time to settle the microsoft anti-trusst suit. DOJ's proposal is just and in the interest of the electronics consumer. Lets settle so we all can get on with our lives.

Regards,
Wolfgang Manowski
25 Southridge Way
Daly City, CA 94014
4153335610 wolfm3

MTC-00011196

From: debby hein
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:17am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please begin 2002 with a reasonable settlement of this case to benefit all parties concerned...particularly our economy. It's time to move forward and build a healthy economy through healthy corporate relationships.

Thank you,
Debby Hein

MTC-00011197

From: tntvideo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:27am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear People of the United States of America:

I felt that the word UNITED be part of what is NOW needed. Enough is enough, can't the states of this country come to the realization that with the economy in such bad shape that it is today we need unity! We also need a company such as the likes of Microsoft to be left alone! It will be a sure bet that the technology sectors will recover with this company leading the way!

Fed chairman Alan Greenspan has no data and no real answers to help this country to a new economic recovery! The proof has been that he has lowered rates last year 11 times and we still have heard of companies like Ford now getting ready to close down factories to which another 35,000 jobs will be lost. These people that have and will lose there jobs have know class action law suits! Most don't even know what one really is, be it known that when given the choice to sign up to sue a company because it's for the good of the people, ??? this I question and deny my ever putting my name on the dotted line! The lawyer's will make all the money even if they win!

Stand up for what's right, but exactly what has been right in the antitrust case is that Microsoft has surely taken a beating for the most part but unjustly and certainly unfairly by a very bad if not the worst Judge in History to proclaim that Microsoft is a monopoly! Truly Microsoft has been one of best and greatest companies in true innovation of the last century! It has made HISTORY as being a giant in an industry started by others like IBM.

United States of America, we are at war now but with terrorist's for Sept 11, 2001 also has now made HISTORY! We can no longer sit back in this country and fight within ourselves as Microsoft is not the enemy!

I am proud of this country and for which we stand, but right now I'm sorry to say that the time to come together so that this country and our people, many who do not wish to lose there jobs and their sense of self respect need to see a heeling process begin again to this great nation!

At this time, I implore the states that have not settled in the Microsoft Anti-Trust Case to please do so and forget about the term CLASS ACTION in the legal sense. Just to use some ACTION with CLASS and settle so we as a Nation can count on YOU so we can Take care of business where it needs to really be taken care of. Please help our great country and leaders to do their jobs in regards to creating an economic growth for the good of ALL the PEOPLE of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Terrence V. Lipinski

MTC-00011198

From: Mauro Gandini
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:28am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree with Microsoft
Mauro Gandini
The Outsourcing Company
Marketing e Comunicazione
Via S.A. Sauli, 19
20127 Milano ITALY

MTC-00011199

From: The Flanegans
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Judge,

Please reconsider the Microsoft Settlement. As a household that relies on incomes from small software companies and the competitiveness they create, we cannot afford to have the monopoly that is Microsoft drive this away.

Please reconsider.
Sincerely,
Christina Flanagan

MTC-00011200

From: Dan Flanagan / 4alarm films
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 3:33am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Judge,

As someone with over six years experience in high tech, I can tell you I have experienced the strong arm tactics of Microsoft more than once.

Unfortunately, the proposed settlement would not stop Microsoft from taking these same tactics in the future.

I ask you to judge the facts and not act simply to put this behind us. Do the right thing!

Sincerely,
/Dan Flanagan Producer / Director
4alarmfilms

MTC-00011201

From: Richard Storey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:53am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Mr. Attorney General, et al:
I conceive the actions by the DOJ, under the Bush administration, to be a failure regarding the handling of the Microsoft case. Failure to break up this mega-corporation will continue the oppressive effects Microsoft has upon the software market and the PC industry. This may sound harsh, especially coming from a conservative such as myself. However, I am knowledgeable about software and PCs. Knowledgeable enough to know that DOJ took a weak case against MS, because they are guilty of much, much worse than they were found to be. It is evident to me, from the statements from the lawyers in the case, that DOJ is almost without a clue when it comes to PC operating systems and without a clue in assessing what impact MS's coercive tactics have had in the PC industry, as well as the software industry.

Microsoft is a mega-corporation that puts out grossly under-engineered products. They are, in many ways, dangerous to the PC industry, the consumer, and business. But the overwhelming majority of the users out there don't have a clue about this. Ignorance is their bliss. MS's strong-arm tactics, and anti-competitive monopoly has grossly distorted and brought to ruin much of the competition in the software industry. MS should be broken-up and anything short of that is merely a slap on the hand of a serious offender against freely competitive markets.

Some of us know, are aware of, why MS has risen to its place in the market. Sure, the right people, at the right time made it so, partly, but if it were not for IBM's size in the market and their stupidity MS would not have been successful at dominating the entire market. Also, since it was government contracts that, basically, allowed IBM to achieve its status in the market we have series of events made possible by government interference in the market. This is why it is a lie to say that MS is what it is because it is innovative (everyone knows it is not).

Get on with doing the right thing—pursue the break-up of Microsoft and do it soon. It will change everything in the computer and software markets for the better, and besides, considering their practices of coercion with their vendors and the PC OEMs they deserve it.

Sincerely,
Richard Storey
President
Primera Financial Group, LLC
22 West Bryan St., Ste. 234
Savannah, GA 31401
(912) 659-6256
(877) 639-1282 Fax

MTC-00011202

From: Claudio Vacalebri
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:01am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Just to remind you (I already wrote some week ago) my disappointment on this story. I'm writing you mainly as a consumer, although I'm the CEO and CIO of a very small Internet company.

I'll try to list my perceptions and opinions (my english is very poor, so please excuse me for language mistakes).

1) This case wasted millions of $$, please stop this case and please focus on REAL ISSUES, the people that worked, during the past years on such case, could be used with more proficiency on more important cases.

2) Me and other people wasted our time trying to learn about this "vapor-lex" case, the time spent can be considered more millions $$ wasted, please STOP wasting our time!

2a) If I was an American citizen I could add : Please STOP wasting our money!

3) Microsoft always worked, as a company, with a very clear goal: facilitate the "digital-life" of us and the results are evident when you compare single pieces of technologies against MS competitors.

4) The quality of the code provided, during the past 25 years, was always improved as the main example of the honest commitment of the company

5) You are condemning a company that started from scratch and that was able to become the reference for all the world, with your actions you are convincing entrepreneurs to "stay small", that should be better for you but not for the global economy because in this way no evolution can happen.

My list is very long but I do not want to continue wasting my time on such ridiculous story. Just try to consider that this case is not a game or a way to spend your time but try to use your time to end it.

Best Regards and thanks in advance for doing nothing and wasting and confusing us.

Dr.claudio/CEO & CIO dotMMS srl
Email: claudiov@dotmms.it
Messenger: claudiov99@hotmail.com
Sito ufficiale: www.dotmms.it
Portale dimostrativo servizi di Streaming:
<http://dotmms.tv>
Sito Personale: <http://claudio.tv>

MTC-00011203

From: Karl Auerbach
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:04am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am presently the North American Elected Director on the Board of Directors of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN).

I am a member of the Internet Engineering Task Force (IETF). I was recently named a Yuen Fellow of Law and Technology at the California Institute of Technology (CalTech) and Loyola Law of Los Angeles. I have started several companies over the years and have been closely associated with several other startups.

I have been a developer of software since the late 1960s and have been working on the Internet since its inception in the early 1970's. I have experienced first hand the damage that Microsoft has caused to the software industry and to the Internet.

One startup with which I was associated was very definitely "Microshafted" when Microsoft used its operating system monopoly to subsidise and to give away, without visible charge to the customer, a product that directly competed with our products. Later, when we tried to modify our products to be compatible with those from Microsoft, I heard (secondhand) that Microsoft played a shell game with enabling keys to their modules, thus forcing us to dance to their tune.

It is my belief that the proposed settlement will do nothing to prevent Microsoft from continuing to wreck havoc. As a Director of ICANN I am responsible to protect the "stability" of the Internet. Yet I see a great threat to the future of universal and impartial interconnectivity of the Internet arising out of Microsoft's leveraging of its dominance of user platforms to starve out any non-Microsoft technologies or implementations.

The proposed settlement is inadequate. It does nothing to redress the harm that Microsoft has caused. And it institutionalizes those abusive and predatory practices so that they will be repeatedly visited upon us and our children in the years to come.

The proposed settlement should be rejected in favor of a settlement that truly will remedy the past damages and prevent their recurrence in the future.

—karl—
Karl Auerbach
North American Elected Director, Board of Directors
Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN)

MTC-00011204

From: Joseph Kane
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:33am
Subject: microsoft settlement

As an ordinary citizen and member of the military I've sworn to uphold the constitution of the U.S.A. I'm disgusted and appalled by the continued harrassment of Microsoft and its shareholders by the United States Government.

Anyone with a basic understanding of economics knows that there is no such thing as a monopoly in a free market. To penalize the creative and successful is barbaric, un-American and comparable to an act of terror.

If liberty and justice are to prevail the US Government must immediately dismiss all anti-trust charges against Microsoft and any other corporation or individual.

Sincerely,
Joseph Kane

MTC-00011205

From: chrisharrison@citlink.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:12am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Justices,
 It seems to me the most significant factor regarding the decision to break up or apply punitive measures to Microsoft is being completely ignored. This key factor was and still is 'interoperability', which is the ability of computers running different operating systems to exchange files, data, and otherwise communicate freely. Microsoft manipulated features and issues that exploited or limited interoperability in order to squelch competition.

Furthermore, the proposed settlement offers no resolution of this core problem. There's little in the way of laws in place that protects a consumer's rights to interoperability in an OS (Operating System) or NOS (Network Operating System). Just as the development of automobiles necessitated speed limits and standardized safety equipment (turn signals, seatbelts, etc.), America need laws to protect consumers from a single company controlling or overmanipulating the evolution of such essential elements in its network and computing environments.

Recommendation: Penalty and/or restitution be added or replace self-monitoring agent; such that Microsoft be required to take a principal role (via it's proven legal and technical expertise) in enacting new laws that protect consumers' rights to an open OS environment, while providing guidelines for product development that complies with an open standard for OS and NOS interoperability. This role may be manifested by the development of a standards organization, or by a joint committee with congress to enact such laws.

Thank you for your consideration on this matter.

Sincerely,
 Christopher F. Harrison

MTC-00011207

From: wolf@puc.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:29am
 Subject: Microsoft remedy suggestion

No more OEM Software!! Have the consumer buy the OS and install it or have your friendly neighbourhood installer do it. That way, if there is a software problem with MS software, they have to field it and not the OEMs.

The OEM hardware will be according to PUBLISHED compatible specs, so MS can't weasel out and put the blame on hardware! MS has to publish file specs, so competing office products are on the same playing field.

Unbundle all non OS software from Windows and provide links to ALL relevant additions. Legislate software "Lemon Law" and make the producer responsible for damages.

Regards
 Wolfgang Schneider

MTC-00011209

From: sonofgomez709

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:59am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 From: "Microsoft"
 Subject: FINFlash Update: Time running out for DOJ comments
 To: <declan@wired.com>
 Date: Mon, 14 Jan 2002 17:26:12-0800

While Microsoft commends these public officials for involving citizens in a decision that will affect them so profoundly, your voice is more important now than ever before to ensure that the DoJ hears the full spectrum of opinion on this matter.

Gee, when Micro$not got an email containing what Eric Cordian described as "the best defense of Microsoft's anti-trust position that I've seen," they had me charged with a felony and had their employees perjure themselves and hide evidence in order to have me convicted and imprisoned.

I would suggest that anyone sending any emails to Mico$not consider the fact that it may result in their PerseProExecution by a CorporRapeTion and a GovernMint with bottomless pockets.

Besides, Micro$not's high-priced lawyers already proved their inability to do anything more than piss away BadBillyG's money while waiting for HisDigiHoliness' new found Respect for throwing large amounts of money into the Corrupt Lobby System to take effect.

All anyone will do by providing Micro$not with public support is open themselves up to Micro$not's legal wrath and unconstitutional persecution while lowering the cost of Micro$not's political bribes.

People wshould be particularly careful in light of the impending legislation doubling the sentences for computer crimes committed by people using the Linux Operating System. (Hey! You don't think I'd just make that up, do you?)

CJ Parker <sonofgomez709@yahoo.com>
<http://profiles.yahoo.com/sonofgomez709>
<http://members.w-link.net/sog/>

INDEX.HTM
<http://toto.diary-x.com>

MTC-00011210

From: Schlep Rock
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:03am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 I am voicing my displeasure and loathing toward the Proposed Final Judgment. Microsoft, as we all know, continues to commit acts of misdeeds. The Proposed Final Judgment doesnt help the situation any better. In fact, the final settlement only worsens the existing situation. For all intents and purpose, the PFJ does not deny Microsoft its past violations and illegal acts. As one can see, every court, which has been involved with the case, has found Microsoft guilty of breaking the anti-trust laws. However, under the proposed final settlement, Microsoft, surprisingly enough, will be permitted to retain most if not all profits gained through their illicit activities.

Subsequently, the PFJ will not compensate parties injured or harmed through Microsofts egregious misdeeds. In addition, the PFJ will not take into account all Microsoft gains made through its illegal maneuverings. With all due respect, the final settlement is basically acknowledging the acceptance of Microsofts anti-competitive behavior. What kind of message does this send out to the public? I can assure you that the message is clear and simple. The Proposed Final Judgment encourages big corporations to engage in monopolistic and predatory conduct, which in turn is detrimental to the technology industry at large.

With all due respect your honor, I am outraged at such a preposterous proposal that only helps Microsoft to remain intact and continue with its unethical practices. I submit to you my objection to this Proposed Final Judgment.

Respectfully,
 Bill Utlak
 Palos Verdes, CA

MTC-00011211

From: Ailei Jimenez
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:06am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,

With all due respect, I abhorrently object to the Proposed Final Judgment in the Microsoft case. There are several apparent flaws with in the final proposal which will undoubtedly give Microsoft absolute power to abuse their existing monopoly position. Based on further review of the proposed settlement, there is one glaring oversight that cannot be overlooked. One such noticeable defect entails an ineffective and inept enforcement mechanism to implement so-called restrictions. As stated in the settlement, Microsoft will be closely monitored to comply with all restrictions encompassed with in the stated agreement. A three man compliance team will oversee and insure that Microsoft comply with the stated rules and regulations. Taking a closer look however, this three-man oversight team will be composed of the following: one appointee from the Justice Department, one appointee from Microsoft, and another appointee chosen by the two existing members. In turn, Microsoft will control half of the oversight team.

Also, in the likelihood of any enforcement proceeding, all findings by the oversight committee will not be allowed into court. The sole purpose of the committee is to inform the Justice Department of all infractions by Microsoft. Subsequently the Justice Depart will launch its own investigation into the matter and commence litigation to halt all infractions. When all is said and done, the oversight committee is just window dressing, who will not strictly oversee Microsofts business moves. In my opinion, the Proposed Final Judgment does not provide sufficient and appropriate restrictions or penalties against Microsoft.

What reassurance do we have against Microsofts illegal and illicit activities? I can assure you that the Proposed Final Judgment does not effectively nor sufficiently address the question. Therefore I submit to the court my objection to the Proposed Final Judgment.

Respectfully,
 Ailei Jimenez
 San Mateo, CA

MTC-00011212

From: Erlin Jimenez
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:09am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 I am giving my personal objection to the so-called Proposed Final Judgment in regards to the Microsoft case. As history will prove, Microsoft continues to violate business practices. The Proposed Final Judgment in a sense, does not deny Microsoft its past violations and illegal acts. As one can see, every court, which has been involved with the case, has found Microsoft guilty of breaking the anti-trust laws. However, under the proposed final settlement, Microsoft, surprisingly enough, will be permitted to retain most if not all profits gained through their illicit activities. Subsequently, the PFJ will not compensate parties injured or harmed through Microsoft's egregious misdeeds. In addition, the PFJ will not take into account all Microsoft gains made through its illegal maneuverings. With all due respect, the final settlement is basically acknowledging the acceptance of Microsoft's anti-competitive behavior. What kind of message does this send out to the public? I can assure you that the message is clear and simple. The Proposed Final Judgment encourages big corporations to engage in monopolistic and predatory conduct, which in turn is detrimental to the technology industry at large. With all due respect your honor, I am outraged at such a preposterous proposal that only helps Microsoft to remain intact and continue with its unethical practices. Thus, I submit to you my objection to this Proposed Final Judgment.

Sincerely
 Erlin Ortiz
 Lodi, CA

MTC-00011213

From: Ernesto Funa
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:12am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 I am submitting to you my personal objection to the Proposed Final Judgment in regards to the Microsoft case. As history will prove, Microsoft continues to violate business practices. The Proposed Final Judgment in a sense, does not deny Microsoft its past violations and illegal acts. As one can see, every court, which has been involved with the case, has found Microsoft guilty of breaking the anti-trust laws. However, under the proposed final settlement, Microsoft, surprisingly enough, will be permitted to retain most if not all profits gained through their illicit activities. Subsequently, the PFJ will not compensate parties injured or harmed through Microsoft's egregious misdeeds. In addition, the PFJ will not take into account all Microsoft gains made through its illegal maneuverings. With all due respect, the final settlement is basically acknowledging the acceptance of Microsoft's anti-competitive behavior. What kind of message does this send out to the public? I can assure you that the message is clear and simple. The Proposed Final Judgment encourages big corporations to engage in monopolistic and predatory conduct, which in turn is detrimental to the technology industry at large. With all due respect your honor, I am outraged at such a preposterous proposal that only helps Microsoft to remain intact and continue with its unethical practices. I submit to you my objection to this Proposed Final Judgment.

Respectfully,
 Ernesto Funa
 Stockton, CA

MTC-00011214

From: Eliza Funa
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:16am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 I am against the proposed final judgment. Over the past several years, the Court has found Microsoft guilty of all misdeeds. Nevertheless, the Proposed Final Judgment dismisses all previous court findings indicting Microsoft. The PFJ allows Microsoft to continue with its monopolistic and predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment not only to the software sector but also to the technology industry as a whole. Without a doubt, I strongly believe you will receive thousands of similar appeals encompassing the many flaws that are apparent in the proposed final settlement. My main focus entails one fundamental flaw clearly noticeable in the proposed settlement: The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its current market position, or should I say, Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology markets. Under the general rule, most monopolies in the past are either broken up or carefully regulated. Unfortunately, Microsoft is given a pardon to this general rule of thumb. Also, admonishing Microsoft will not radically alter Microsoft's existing operation methodologies. With out a doubt, Microsoft will continue to abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless the court breaks up Microsoft into several parts, Microsoft will continue on with its illegal practices. In conclusion, I object the Proposed Final Judgment.

Respectfully,
 Liz Ageri
 San Francisco, CA

MTC-00011215

From: Ricky G
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:22am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 I object to the so-called proposed final judgment in the Microsoft case. In all past findings, the Court has found Microsoft guilty of violating the Anti-Trust laws. Yet the PFJ or the proposed final judgment throws out all previous court findings that indicts Microsoft. In other words, the proposed final settlement allows Microsoft to continue on with its predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment to the technology industry. I am certain you will receive thousands appeals entailing various flaws apparent in the proposed final settlement. However, my main focus involves one glaring flaw in the proposed settlement: The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology sectors. In the past most monopolies, such as AT&T, are either broken up or carefully regulated. However in this case, Microsoft is given a pardon or a waiver to this general rule of thumb. In addition, a simple slap on the wrist by the Department of Justice will not suffice in drastically altering Microsoft's existing operation methodologies. As history has shown, Microsoft will unfortunately abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless something extraordinary is done, Microsoft will continue to implement illegal business practices. Thus, I submit to the Court that the Proposed Final Judgment does not solve the problems involved in the Microsoft case.

All the Best,
 Ricky Gamboa
 Foster City, CA

MTC-00011216

From: Anne
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:22am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 911 N. 107th Street
 Seattle, WA 98133-8804
 January 14, 2002
 Attorney General John Ashcroft
 U.S. Department of Justice
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
 I am writing in full support of the recent settlement between the U.S. Department of Justice and Microsoft. Litigation has gone on for far too long now, and I think the terms of the settlement are fair and in the best interest of the public and American economy. A number of the terms of settlement will help give consumer's freedom to choose products. Microsoft had agreed to design future Windows versions so that computer makers, software developers, and consumers can more easily promote their own products from within Windows' operating systems. Also, I like the fact that Microsoft has agreed to form a three-person team to monitor compliance with the settlement. I think the settlement is fair and reasonable and should suit all parties. Unfortunately, there are nine states in opposition. I urge your office to make the settlement a reality. Our country needs American companies such as Microsoft to be focusing on innovation, development, implementation and growth. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
 Anne Argue Dobrinen

MTC-00011217

From: Rich Gamboa
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:29am
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
 Your honor, I object to the Proposed Final Judgment entailed in the Microsoft case. After reading and analyzing the proposed settlement, I am appalled that Microsoft can get away with such murder. Obviously here are several apparent flaws with in the proposal which will undoubtedly give Microsoft absolute power to abuse their existing power. Based on further review of the proposed settlement, there is one glaring oversight that cannot be overlooked. One such noticeable defect entails an ineffective and inept enforcement mechanism to implement so-called restrictions. As stated in the settlement, Microsoft will be closely monitored to comply with all restrictions encompassed with in the stated agreement. A three man compliance team will oversee and insure that Microsoft comply with the stated rules and regulations. Taking a closer look however, this three-man oversight team will be composed of the following: one appointee from the Justice Department, one appointee from Microsoft, and another appointee chosen by the two existing members. In turn, Microsoft will control half of the oversight team. Also, in the likelihood of any enforcement proceeding, all findings by the oversight committee will not be allowed into court. The sole purpose of the committee is to inform the Justice Department of all infractions by Microsoft. Subsequently the Justice Depart will launch its own investigation into the matter and commence litigation to halt all infractions. When all is said and done, the oversight committee is just window dressing, who will not strictly oversee Microsoft's business moves. In my opinion, the Proposed Final Judgment does not provide sufficient and appropriate restrictions or penalties against Microsoft. What reassurance do we have against Microsoft's illegal and illicit activities? I can assure you that the Proposed Final Judgment does not effectively nor sufficiently address the question. With all due respect, I submit to the court my objection to the Proposed Final Judgment.

Kind Regards,
Richard Flores
Santa Barbara, CA

MTC-00011218

From: Di M
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:34am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
Over the past several years, we have witnessed first hand the predatory methods Microsoft uses to squash its competitors. Therefore, I am filing my personal objection to the proposed final judgment on the Microsoft case. Supposedly, the Court has found Microsoft guilty of violating all rules of proper business ethics and practices. However with the PFJ (Proposed Final Judgment), the Department of Justice throws out, if not abandons all previous court findings that indicts Microsoft. In fact, the PFJ permits Microsoft to continue with its monopolistic and predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment not only to the software sector but also to the technology industry as a whole. Without a doubt, I strongly believe you will receive thousands of similar appeals encompassing the many flaws that are apparent in the proposed final settlement. My main focus entails one fundamental flaw clearly noticeable in the proposed settlement: The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its current market position, or should I say, Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology markets. Under the general rule, most monopolies in the past, such as AT&T and Standard Oil, are either broken up or carefully regulated. However, Microsoft is given a pardon or a waiver to this general rule of thumb altogether. Also, simple slaps on the wrist or severe reprimands by the Department of Justice will not radically alter Microsoft's existing operation methodologies. As history has proven over and over again, Microsoft will undoubtedly abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless something extraordinary is done such as breaking up Microsoft's business into several parts or meting out severe punishment, Microsoft will persistently continue to implement illegal business practices. I submit to the Court that the Proposed Final Judgment does not solve anything but exacerbates the existing problem with Microsoft.

Respectfully,
Diana Mah
Lodi, CA

MTC-00011219

From: J J
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:42am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
I am objecting to the Proposed Final Judgment. Microsoft continues to break anti-trust laws and discards proper business ethics. The Proposed Final Judgment does not punish Microsoft for it's past violations or illegal acts. Every court, which has been involved with the case, has found Microsoft guilty of misdeeds. However, under the proposed final settlement, Microsoft, surprisingly enough, will be permitted to retain most if not all profits gained through their illicit activities. Subsequently, the PFJ will not compensate parties injured or harmed through Microsoft's egregious misdeeds. In addition, the PFJ will not take into account all Microsoft gains made through its illegal maneuverings. With all due respect, the final settlement is basically acknowledging the acceptance of Microsoft's anti-competitive behavior. What kind of message does this send out to the public? I can assure you that the message is clear and simple. The Proposed Final Judgment encourages big corporations to engage in monopolistic and predatory conduct, which in turn is detrimental to the technology industry at large. With all due respect your honor, I am outraged at such a preposterous proposal that only helps Microsoft to remain intact and continue with its unethical practices. To the court, I submit my objection to this Proposed Final Judgment.

All the Best,
James Anthony
Lodi, CA

MTC-00011220

From: janerest funa
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:45am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
With all due respect, I am stating my personal objection to the so-called Proposed Final Judgment in regards to the Microsoft case. As history will prove, Microsoft continues to violate Anti-Trust laws. As a matter of fact, the final settlement does not deny Microsoft its past violations and illegal acts. As one can see, every court, which has been involved with the case, has found Microsoft guilty of breaking the anti-trust laws. However, under the proposed final settlement, Microsoft, surprisingly enough, will be permitted to retain most if not all profits gained through their illicit activities. In addition, the PFJ will not compensate parties injured or harmed through Microsoft's egregious misdeeds. In addition, the PFJ will not take into account all Microsoft gains made through its illegal maneuverings. With all due respect, the final settlement is basically acknowledging the acceptance of Microsoft's anti-competitive behavior. What kind of message does this send out to the public? I can assure you that the message is clear and simple. The Proposed Final Judgment encourages big corporations to engage in monopolistic and predatory conduct, which in turn is detrimental to the technology industry at large. With all due respect your honor, I am outraged at such a preposterous proposal that only helps Microsoft to remain intact and continue with its unethical practices. I submit to you my objection to this Proposed Final Judgment.

Sincerely,
Jan Ernest Pacual,
Sacramento, CA

MTC-00011221

From: justin funa
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:50am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
With all due respect your honor, I object to the following Proposed Final Judgment. The final proposal undoubtedly gives Microsoft complete authority to abuse their existing monopoly position. After further review, there is one glaring mistake. The flaw entails an inept enforcement mechanism to implement restrictions on Microsoft. With in the settlement, Microsoft will be closely scrutinized and monitored to comply with all restrictions entailed in the stated agreement. Supposedly, a three man compliance team will oversee and insure that Microsoft comply with the stated rules and regulations. However after closer inspection, this proposal only benefits Microsoft in the end. The three-man oversight team will be composed of the following: one appointee from the Justice Department, one appointee from Microsoft, and another appointee chosen by the two existing members. In turn, Microsoft will control half of the oversight team. Also, in the likelihood of any enforcement proceeding, all findings by the oversight committee will not be allowed into court. The sole purpose of the committee is to inform the Justice Department of all infractions by Microsoft. Subsequently the Justice Depart will launch its own investigation into the matter and commence litigation to halt all infractions. When all is said and done, the oversight committee is just a complete smoke screen. In turn, this team will not strictly oversee Microsoft's business moves. In many aspects, the Proposed Final Judgment does not provide adequate or appropriate restrictions and penalties against Microsoft. One cannot take comfort in the fact that the Proposed Final Judgment helps Microsoft's illegal and illicit activities. Therefore I submit to the court my objection to the Proposed Final Judgment.

Respectfully,
Justin Montefrio
Lodi, CA

MTC-00011222

From: serafin jimenez
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:52am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,

I am filing my personal objection to the proposed final judgment on the Microsoft case. Supposedly, the Court has found Microsoft guilty of violating all rules of proper business ethics and practices. However with the PFJ (Proposed Final Judgment), the Department of Justice throws out, if not abandons all previous court findings that indicts Microsoft. In fact, the PFJ permits Microsoft to continue with its monopolistic and predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment not only to the software sector but also to the technology industry as a whole. Without a doubt, I strongly believe you will receive thousands of similar appeals encompassing the many flaws that are apparent in the proposed final settlement. My main focus entails one fundamental flaw clearly noticeable in the proposed settlement: The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its current market position, or should I say, Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology markets. Under the general rule, most monopolies in the past, such as AT&T and Standard Oil, are either broken up or carefully regulated. However, Microsoft is given a pardon or a waiver to this general rule of thumb altogether.

Also, Simple slaps on the wrist or severe reprimands by the Department of Justice will not radically alter Microsoft's existing operation methodologies. As history has proven over and over again, Microsoft will undoubtedly abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless something extraordinary is done such as breaking up Microsoft's business into several parts or meting out severe punishment, Microsoft will persistently continue to implement illegal business practices. I submit to the Court that the Proposed Final Judgment does not solve the Microsoft issue.

Respectfully,
Serafin Jimenez
Lodi, CA

MTC-00011223

From: arlene funa
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:55am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,

I adamantly oppose the proposed final judgment in the Microsoft case. All courts, involved with the case, have found Microsoft guilty of violating all anti-trust laws implemented by the Justice Department. The PFJ basically throws out all previous court findings indicting Microsoft. In other words, Microsoft has been given the green light to continue on with its monopolistic endeavors. I'd like to focus on one fundamental flaw present with in the proposed settlement: For the most part, the proposed final settlement does not sufficiently break up Microsoft. Instead, the settlement allows Microsoft to utilize and leverage its current market position to branch out into other technology markets. Most monopolies in the past, such as Standard Oil, are either broken up or carefully regulated. However in this case, Microsoft is given a full waiver to this rule altogether. Also, a severe reprimand by the Department of Justice will not change Microsoft's present operating methods. Without a doubt, Microsoft will abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless something drastic is done such as breaking up Microsoft itself, Microsoft will continue to commit egregious offenses. Thus I submit to the Court that the Proposed Final Judgment is a huge mistake.

Best Regards,
Ping Funa
Sacramento, CA

MTC-00011224

From: Peter Black
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To Whom It May Concern:

The proposed settlement with Microsoft is neither fair nor appropriate, and rewards monopolistic behaviour that has destroyed many companies and severely distorted the market for software. Actions to date have failed to understand the breadth of Microsoft's monopoly, or the ways in which they continue to enforce it. In particular, the Office package is used highly successfully to reduce the ability of users to change operating systems platforms. Microsoft should be ordered to place the Microsoft Office file formats (for Excel, Access, Word, Powerpoint) in the public domain, and to be given equal voting rights with a range of parties for changes in this format. Microsoft should be forced to maintain adherence to this structure as its primary file format. Such a change would make it immediately possible for others (such as StarOffice or WordPerfect) to use the same format, either as its principal storage mechanism or for interchange. Competition would then be based on the best software tools on the best platform, rather than the lock-in that is created by Microsoft's frequent changes to an unpublished format. This change would be far more effective than any other remedy, and should be extended to open publication of all file formats for any product that Microsoft produces.

Sincerely
Peter Black
Dr Peter Black
Lead Architect
Digital Steps Limited, 1 Bell Court, Leapale Lane, Guildford GU1 4LY

Tel: +44 7976 243 919

MTC-00011225

From: arnie mamon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
I am voicing my personal discuss and outrage at the proposed final judgment in the Microsoft case. Supposedly, the Court has found Microsoft guilty of violating all rules of proper business ethics and practices. However with the PFJ (Proposed Final Judgment), the Department of Justice throws out, if not abandons all previous court findings that indicts Microsoft. In fact, the PFJ permits Microsoft to continue with its monopolistic and predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment not only to the software sector but also to the technology industry as a whole. Without a doubt, I strongly believe you will receive thousands of similar appeals encompassing the many flaws that are apparent in the proposed final settlement. My main focus entails one fundamental flaw clearly noticeable in the proposed settlement: The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its current market position, or should I say, Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology markets. Under the general rule, most monopolies in the past, such as AT&T and Standard Oil, are either broken up or carefully regulated. However, Microsoft is given a pardon or a waiver to this general rule of thumb altogether. Also, Simple slaps on the wrist or severe reprimands by the Department of Justice will not radically alter Microsoft's existing operation methodologies. As history has proven over and over again, Microsoft will undoubtedly abuse its monopoly position at the expense of others. Unless something extraordinary is done such as breaking up Microsoft's business into several parts or meting out severe punishment, Microsoft will persistently continue to implement illegal business practices. Therefore I submit to the Court my objection to the Proposed Final Judgment.

Respectfully,
Arnie Montefrio
San Francisco, CA

MTC-00011226

From: Anthony Mamon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:04am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally,
I object to the proposed final judgment on the Microsoft case. The Court has found Microsoft guilty of violating all Anti-Trust rules. Yet, the PFJ (Proposed Final Judgment), the Department of Justice throws out, if not abandons all previous court findings that indicts Microsoft. In fact, the PFJ permits Microsoft to continue with its monopolistic and predatory practices, which in my opinion is a detriment not only to the software sector but also to the technology industry as a whole. Without a doubt, I strongly believe you will receive thousands of similar appeals encompassing the many flaws that are apparent in the proposed final settlement. My main focus entails one fundamental flaw clearly noticeable in the proposed settlement: The PFJ does not effectively break up Microsoft, but in fact allows Microsoft to leverage its current market position, or should I say, Monopoly to expand its business into several other technology markets. Under the general rule, most monopolies in the past are either broken up or carefully regulated. However, Microsoft is given a pardon or a waiver to this general rule of thumb altogether. Also, severe reprimands will not drastically change Microsoft's existing operation methodologies. Undoubtedly, Microsoft will continue to abuse its monopoly position. Unless something extraordinary is done such as meting out severe punishment, Microsoft will persistently continue to implement illegal business practices. I submit to the Court that the Proposed Final Judgment does not solve the Microsoft issue.

All the Best,
Jun Mamon
San Francisco, CA

MTC-00011227

From: Andy Raynor
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:09am
Subject: Microsoft case

I wish to express my concerns with the ongoing Microsoft anti-trust trial and the remedies that have been suggested. The current proposed remedy, a monitoring system, represents the least effective solution imaginable since it relies on independent policing efforts.

The remedy for Microsoft's violation of anti-trust law and violation of previous consent decrees must be two-pronged. Failure to implement both portions will fail to compensate consumers harmed by the monopolistic behavior and curtail that behavior in the future.

First, the company should be compelled to pay some significant sum in the form of computers and software to public school systems as Microsoft has offered in its settlement. Consumers are entitled to this compensation but associating individual damages to specific consumers would be impossible without overwhelming discovery costs. The provision of equipment and software to public schools represents a good reparation to the citizens of this country for the damages incurred.

The details of Microsoft's donation are critically important. Microsoft should be required to provide a pc and software fund for each state. This provides each state flexibility on achieving their education objectives and allows states to explore open source alternatives running on pc hardware. Software must be provided at Microsoft's best price. This will greatly increase the real compensation received since retail pricing may be between 400%-800% higher than volume pricing.

Apple's opposition to this is entirely self-serving and represents an attempt to hold onto ever decreasing market-share rather than benefiting consumers. A focus on pc's would allow schools to maximize volume discounts for hardware purchases and leverage either the growing open source movement or Microsoft solutions.

Second, the company must be broken up. The market is the most efficient and reliable mechanism for regulating behavior. Any other solution with either be ineffective at changing behavior or much more costly. By breaking the company up, management of each company will perform in a "correct" manner based on market forces.

I appreciate the opportunity to provide input.

Andy Raynor

MTC-00011228

From: Mauro Talevi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:18am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam,

I very very strongly urge the Department of Justice to ensure that the dominant and de-facto monopolistic position that Microsoft has gained be corrected—with strong and effective measures. The terms of the settlement are clearly insufficient and unsatisfactory in this regard. Information technology has enormously grown in importance in the last 20 years, and can be comparable to energy and telecommunications as strategic and vital economic sectors. In the past the Antitrust Act has been applied to oil and telecommunications companies.

This case is equally—if not more—important and critical. Monopolies are extremely damaging to any capitalistic system. I hope the Department of Justice will act promptly and not be intimidated by the catastrophic predictions made by Microsoft.

With very best regards,
Mauro Talevi

MTC-00011229

From: RITMON@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:19am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It appears that the competitors of Microsoft (and the states where they are situated) have decided to improve their lot not by being better and having something better to offer the consumer. They've decided to punish Microsoft for having a superior product.

Please be aware that finding in Microsoft's favor, you would be doing a great deal for the consumer—and for the economy—since millions of us are investors in the company, because we believe in it...

Rita and Richard Monley

MTC-00011230

From: Martin Coles
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:19am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam:

Having been in the Computer industry for the last 20 years, I can only say that Microsoft has performed brilliantly for the consumer.

Through their success and resultant position, they have been able to bring down the cost of computing such that it is now affordable by everyone.

Further, the inclusion of various components in the operating system is once again in the consumers interest, enabling them to use the software easily.

Multiple operating systems from numerous suppliers would not have provided a uniform and easily understandable and affordable opportunity for the man on the street to own and use a computer.

Well done Microsoft!
Kind regards
Martin Coles
Pinnacle Orlando LLC.
Florida . USA
407 891 2857
See our website <http://www.thereyougo.net/>

MTC-00011231

From: Baumgart, David
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 7:19am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am adding my comment on the proposed antitrust settlement with 9 states and Microsoft. It is my opinion that the DOJ has "gone soft" on Microsoft, dropping some of the key provisions for a just and fair settlement. It also appears to me that the DOJ is preparing to let Microsoft off with a slap on the hands instead of any real penalty.

Microsoft was convicted of predatory practices aimed at squashing the competition and I believe they should be punished. Their conviction held up under appeal.

I agree with the 9 states that "pulled out" and are seeking tougher remedies.

David Baumgart
Executive Director, Information Systems Dept

John Morrell & Co.
805 East Kemper Road
Cincinnati, OH 45246
(513) 346-3562

MTC-00011232

From: mrivan@mediaone.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:27am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
From: Anthony D'Andrea
Box 1209
Randolph MA 02368
Re: Microsoft prosecution People:

I still remember the last thing Microsoft produced which, as far as I know, was a legitimate creation of their own company. It was a Floating-Point BASIC Interpreter for the old Apple II Machines that came out around 1979 or so. Since then, it has been all downhill for MS.

It is common knowledge that Bill Gates stole the MS-Dos operating system from his partner at Altair, then sold IBM on using it for the OS in their first computers which appeared several years after the Apples.

Gates' next lie read like this: "If you want a personal computer that you can hook up to your business mainframe, it will have to be an IBM". Not an ounce of truth in it, but between the cosmetic value of the lie and IBM's massive market share, it enabled MS to capture a good 85% of market share from what had been mostly Apple's territory. Later, after Apple had begun incorporating mouse and windows technology into their later Apple II's, the Apple III, the Lisa and early Macs, MS produced the first version of Windows, for which Apple promptly and properly sued them for copyright infringement. Apple won that round, and MS's "Trash Can" has been a "Recycle Bin" ever since.

Unfortunately, the lies and thievery from Gates & Co. was far from over. Since that time, every innovation that has come down the pike has run headlong into Bill Gates. Innumerable companies have had to make the choice between selling out, licensing the technology to MS or being driven out of business by being undersold. To this day, hardware companies sell their wares at near cost, simply in an effort to undercut the competition and keep others like Apple from regaining any market share, then they make their profits from the software later. I own a Macintosh machine. The machine is equipped with a package called "Virtual PC", which allows me to run Windows on the Mac and use any of MS's software, should I choose to do so. I have consistently found Mac software to be far more easy, user-friendly and stable than the MS equivalents. Still, when I visit most software vendors, I find them reluctant, almost fearful, of carrying Mac software. Chains such as Walmarts get their stock thru central buyers which have shown reluctance in the extreme to carry anything BUT MS compatible software. In one case, a chain called "Best Buy", I discovered Mac and Windows versions of identical software on the shelf together, with the Mac version selling at $10 more than the MS version. I summoned the store manager and demanded an explanation. I was told that if he did not price the products in that fashion, MS would pull all their products from his shelves. This has not been the exception, but the rule. How blatant does MS have to act before they can be found guilty of racketeering? How obviously does a monopoly have to conduct themselves to be recognized for what they are? And how many people will have to be hurt or driven out of business before someone takes this monster in hand and administers justice???

The dangers of such a concentration of power go far beyond simply fair business practices. Their efforts, for instance, to modify Sun's JAVA language earned them lawsuits and produced a certain degree of confusion among web programmers. Their regular introduction of new media formats without the software to allow other systems to immediately keep up with the changes provides them with additional pressure to sidestep fair competition. And thruout these efforts, there is always the MS database, in which a great deal of personal information is kept. Does a database of personal information provide a threat in and of itself? Of course not. I am sure Apple has my name and address somewhere in its files. But think of the back-door that MS gave to the NSA, which allows them to enter anyone's computer, anywhere in the world, examine the hard drive and even read and write on that drive with complete concealment. When the Chinese discovered that, they began a campaign to eliminate Windows from every machine in their country and replace it with Unix. Think also of the Eschalon program, which has had Japanese and German authorities angry at us in the USA for some time now, as they have justifiable fears of corporate espionage if that aforementioned "back-door" gets into the wrong hands.

Right now, business has almost no alternative to Windows. And since Windows is nearly completely borrowed or stolen technology, several years behind Apple and others, and since some real security threats exist and grow more ominous on a daily basis, something MUST be done and done soon to eliminate this threat.

The only solution is to deal with Microsoft thru the courts, in the most appropriate way possible, under the RICO laws as racketeers. By taking them in hand, forcefully, and compelling them to adopt practices that will open the market to real competition, you will find that rather than hindering development, it will enhance the opportunities for competing companies to enter the marketplace and speed the development of new technology. The companies are already out there, working on new ideas, developing approaches to market their ideas while defending their battlements from the MS assaults that will surely head their way when the threat of innovation becomes visible.

There are nine states at this time that disagree with the DOJ resolution of the case against MS. This may be the last opportunity to wield the sword of the Law against a seemingly unassailable threat. I beg you, use the power that you have in this just cause. For just one of hundreds of sources of more background and documentation of the illegal and anti-competitive practices of MS, I refer you to this website... <<http://hive.me.gu.edu.au/csand/md/0soft.html>><http://hive.me.gu.edu.au/csand/md/0soft.html>

Thank you for your attention to this critical issue. Your response would be appreciated and a dialogue welcomed.

Anthony D'Andrea
Randolph Massachusetts

MTC-00011233

From: david zhang
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:43am
Subject: Stricter punishment!

Dear Sir/Madam,
Microsoft behavior in the past has shown us its greediness and its true nature. The punishment should be stricter. If we cannot do it today, we will end up in the same situation as we have now with Iraq because we did not finish the job at that time. Please, for a better and more dynamic and diversified technology world, give Microsoft a stricter punishment.

Sincerely,
David

MTC-00011234

From: Christopher L. Lupton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:52am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to accept the settlement. The Attorney Generals in the 9 states opposing the settlement are definitely not acting in the best interest of their constituents, our economy or the nation. I kindly ask that you please review this e-mail and take it into consideration during your decision.

Sincerely,
Christopher L. Lupton
President
InfoDynamics, Inc.
7351 Shadeland Station, STE 260
Indianapolis, IN 46256

MTC-00011235

From: jhauf2@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:54am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please, settle this issue as soon as possible. Microsoft is a fine company and should be allowed to get on with its business. It is bad enough to permit these states to extort millions from Microsoft. Do not compound the damages by delaying the conclusion.

James G. Hauf

MTC-00011236

From: Neil Stahl
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:56am
Subject: Proposed Microsoft Settlement:
Don't Do It

Sirs:

The future of the American computer industry is in your hands. It will be a bleak future if Microsoft is left as the monopoly your proposed settlement would achieve.

As long as one company makes the dominant operating system and applications it will always have an incredible advantage in both markets and will have little reason to innovate or to do a good job. This is born out by the way Microsoft has achieved dominance in both markets, from a start where there were many competitors and software was evolving fast. If you are watching the evolution of software now, you must notice it has slowed to a crawl. If you are watching the quality of software Microsoft produces you have seen security for our computers running their software is remarkably poor. In a market with real competition this wouldn't happen, market forces would correct it.

As a computer user I urge you:

1. Do not go through with this settlement.
2. Do split Microsoft into two or more parts, isolating the part that makes operating systems from the rest.

Sincerely,
Neil Stahl
248 Rainbow Drive #14876
Livingston, Tx. 77399-2048

MTC-00011237

From: Larry Hannay
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:57am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I can't believe the way you guys are buckling under. Current situations, now matter how extreme, should have nothing to do with resolving the problem at hand. I think legislators that have been, shall we say, "influenced", by Microsoft campaign contributions are using the Sept. 11th tragedy and the economy in general to go easy on Microsoft without incurring a negative public response. And I think that stinks. Especially since it is your job to represent the public's best interests. But as always, the public loses out to corporate concerns. I spend a lot of time reading newspapers and technical magazines, and every stinking article I have read points out that not only is Microsoft not getting punished, but your so-called "solution" will help it to increase its monopoly by giving it inroads to the school market that Apple now does so well in. If every stinking magazine article author can see this, then why can't you? Huh? You people disgust me. And then you wonder why the voting populace is so cynical and uninvolved. Or is that the way you want it.

Please don't bother to respond. Your "spin" makes me sick.

Larry Hannay
16 Cutter Ave.
Somerville, MA

MTC-00011238

From: Rail, Marcus E.
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 8:00am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
See attached Microsoft WORD document for comments.

Renata B. Hesse January 15, 2002
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001

This letter is written to comment on the Department of Justice proposed settlement of the Microsoft Antitrust case.

As a corporate purchaser of Microsoft products, we conclude that the settlement does nothing to address the real concerns of the customer. Those concerns involve the increasing ability of Microsoft to set extreme pricing policies without fear of customer loss, and to design products without proper concern to the customer's needs. Microsoft products have served our company fairly well in many areas and we believe Microsoft brought many innovations to PC desktop tools. However, we also believe that Microsoft used questionable practices to drive out the competition or acquire it at a very low cost. For the most part, especially for products like WINDOWS, OFFICE, and INTERNET EXPLORER, we feel we had and still have no real alternative to Microsoft products.

Our other software vendors who work with Microsoft endure extreme pressure to do it Microsoft's way. If they don't, they face severe penalties by a company that truly controls the desktop market. Rather than respond to the customer, we find many of our vendors responding to Microsoft so that Microsoft revenues are maximized.

We question the "freedom to innovate" banner that Microsoft uses to justify their practices. In fact, all we see is slavery to Microsoft for customers and other software vendors. It may be that Microsoft could have won its present monopolist position just through the quality of its products and hard work. We'll never really know. We do know that they are now exercising that monopolistic position to the detriment of the customer. We are now being forced to pay millions of dollars to upgrade to product versions we don't need. The only viable alternative given to us is to pay much higher prices when they finally force us into obsolescence. All software companies try to generate revenue through planned obsolescence, however, only a monopolist can carry it to the extent that Microsoft has, and make the profits it has. The present proposed settlement barely slaps Microsoft on the wrist for past practices and will not deter it from future anti-competitive practices. Moreover, the root of the problem Microsoft's control of both the dominant desktop operating system and the major application software for desktops—will result in costs for the consumer that are not controlled by competition and not in line with the value delivered.

Marcus E. Rally Manager, System Software, Information Systems, Cooper Tire Company
John E. Mitchell Vice-President, Information Systems, Cooper Tire Company
Todd E. Shin Barger Director, Information Systems, Cooper Standard Automotive
Cooper Tire & Rubber Company, Lima & Western Aves., Findlay, Ohio 45840

MTC-00011239

From: Ronald Ford
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/15/02 7:36am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ronald Ford
1211 S.W. Anita St
Arcadia, FL 34266

January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice ,

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ronald T. Ford

MTC-00011240

From: Alan L. Hansen
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:49am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Alan L. Hansen
124 North 155st

Shoreline, Wa 98133-5926
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Alan L. Hansen

MTC-00011241

From: TSulli8693@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:06am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gentlemen:

I am a personal computer user. I think the settlement that has been reached is fair and should be approved. That will allow the public to continue receiving the services of the many new products that Microsoft can develop for our computers.

Thomas F. Sullivan
219 Alpine Dr.
Winter Haven, FL 33881

MTC-00011242

From: William Enouen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:11am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen: At a time when American Industry is challenged to continue to do better and the technology firms are in a downturn, it would seem appropriate to conclude some of the legal activities against Microsoft with just settlements rather than letting such settlements drag on, costing the company and its shareholders and the government and its taxpayers. The case should be concluded and the settlement agreed upon allowed so both parties can get on with more effective use of their time. Thanks for your attention.

MTC-00011243

From: Jim Presley
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 8:18am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement—No!

Hey, I thought you guys were supposed to be protecting us from predators— not siding with them! What kind of Justice Department have we got here? A bunch of toadies for political donors.

MTC-00011244

From: John Keyes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:24am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

To whom it concerns,
I think the settlement is a betrayal of America. It is an insult to suggest that the terms of the settlement are sufficient. Micro$oft will continue its predatory approach to the software market and will continue to hold institutes of education to ransom. It is time to resolve the issue and extract adequate compensation from Microsoft for the companies that have been damaged and for every child whose education costs rise as a result of disgusting licensing terms. It is also necessary so the collective power and choice of a free market can begin to thrive in the software market.

-John Keyes Ireland

MTC-00011245

From: Morris, Perry
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 8:27am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's time to get on with life.....this has drug on long enough. The public will not be well served to have this linger on.

Thank you,
Perry Morris
Coordinator, Computer Applications
Facilities Operations and Maintenance
Florida State University
850.644.8699
pmorris@admin.fsu.edu

MTC-00011246

From: Julie Noll
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:27am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Again, I am outraged. While reading the article in USA Today, dated 1/15/2002, written by Kevin Maney, Silicon Valley CEOs don't pull verbal punches, I couldn't believe what I was reading. "In one corner is the tag team of Larry Ellison, CEO of database software company Oracle, and Scott McNealy, CEO of computer maker Sun Microsystems. In the other corner: their professed enemy, Microsoft, and its leader, Bill Gates. Ellison and McNealy consistently and publicly hurl harsh, sometimes personal and sometimes funny insults at Microsoft and Gates. Ellison has called Microsoft products "pathetic" and motivated employees by showing a computer-generated image of Gates giving them the finger. McNealy has referred to Gates as "Butthead," compared his management skill with Bozo the Clown and proclaimed that the battle of the future is "mankind vs. Microsoft." I cannot believe our government would allow themselves to be influenced by CEO such as Scott McNealy and Larry Ellison. If you ask me I believe their tactics need to be further investigated. I have wrote many times before this case is no longer about justice. It is simply a few CEO allowed to use our government to further their causes.

I am growing ever tired of all these grown men acting like babies. What they need to do is simply create great products, build their companies and stop whining.

It is time settle this entirely.
Julie Anne

MTC-00011247

From: Gerhard Beck
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:28am
Subject: Additional Remedies

Microsoft continues to work towards the utter destruction of any possible competition. Currently in Microsoft's sites are Java and Linux. It is informative that because of Microsoft's monopoly position, only products offered free (such as Java and Linux), cause any threat to Microsoft.

I would propose the following remedies:

1) Microsoft be forced to charge a minimum price for each piece of bundled software such as the Media player, Word, Excel, PowerPoint. The charge would be separately stated and users could decline to purchase the software with thier new machine. This would create a price envelope which competitors could exist within.

2) Microsoft be forced to include the latest release of Java unmodified with its latest releases of Windows. This would ease the integration burdens for Java-based competitive packages.

3) Microsoft be forced to release Linux versions of its Microsoft Office suite at the same time as comparable Windows versions. This would be extremely helpful in developing Linux as a viable competitor to Microsoft on the desktop.

4) Microsoft be forced to stop bundling software with Windows or Office and be forced to charge for the software. Since both products are basically provided with all machines, anything Microsoft bundles in destroys a previously existing market since it is hard to get folks to pay for what Microsoft provides for free.

5) Microsoft be forced to charge one price for Windows both retail and wholesale to manufacturers. Microsoft's current scheme strongly encourages the purchase of a new machine to get a new copy of Windows because the retail cost of Windows is so high compared to the cost of a new machine with the same copy of Windows. Since the cost to duplicate a CD is so cheap, there is no economic justification for the discounts given.

Gerhard Beck
703 676 4403

MTC-00011248

From: e cummings
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

rather than rewarding the guilty party (microsoft) by allowing them to continue monopolizing their markets, (under the guise of donating their products to schools and such) i think a more fitting punishment would be to compel microsoft to sponsor independent contractors to install the free and open-standard Linux operating system and compatible program on the computers they donate, and to train students, faculty, and other users on the use of Linux.

allowing microsoft to "lock in" even more customers by compelling the company to indoctrinate even more people in the use of their closed, proprietary products is no punishment at all. allowing microsoft to write off the retail cost of any software they donate is a reward—the company's true cost for this extra software is negligible, and they will profit from the sale of "upgrades." (the term "upgrades" is in quotes because traditionally microsoft's upgrades primarily consist of bug fixes and patches to their already faulty products.)

ed cummings

MTC-00011249

From: Paul Speer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:29am
Subject: Do not settle—the 1930s parallel

In the 1930s, the motion picture industry (read applications software) controlled the theaters (read operating system). The DOJ brought suit and broke up this set of monopolies (different companies owned different theater chains). The same principle applies here.

Microsoft makes and will continue to make economic rents from the present system. In so doing unnecessary costs are added to businesses using MS products which are passed on to the consumers. Having the Windows operating systems opened to the entry of applications software without the present arbitrary constraints can only be assured through a break-up of the monopoly.

Paul Speer
pdsjunior@earthlink.net

MTC-00011250

From: Dave G
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:40am
Subject: Apple in Schools

The big move in education is standardization on skills that will do the most good. Learn math basics, learn english basics, etc.. The political engine has dictated to schools that they need to teach only things that have value in the market place.

Based on this logic, Apple should be as popular in schools as UNIX computers. Apple Macintosh is a niche machine used primarily by print shops and graphic designers. UNIX is a bigger niche product used primarily in enterprise server environments. Both can be, and in the case of UNIX is learned in college for specialized fields. The rest of the world for the most part uses Windows with or without MS applications. Like it or not, that is the economic and business norm. Hence, our children should be taught this because it IS the norm. My kids went to a grade school that bought gobs of iMacs. They sat in the halls in boxes for two years. Eventually the teachers ended up setting up the machines. These machines were rarely even used. The reason was the schools IT dept. did not understand Mac nor did they care to. No one wrote an education plan using Mac software. These machine were simply a waste of donation. My kids have moved on to Jr. High. The school is just dripping with Dell Wintel boxes, 4 to every classroom and several all computer labs. Not an Apple to be seen. These computers are up and running and being used. Sorry Steve. As for software bundling, everyone does it. MS does, Apple does, Linux does, even big UNIX vendors do. That is how you get consumers to buy. Apple comes with both Netscape and Explorer and iTunes, and CD-Creator, and etc..... Why are these other companies not being censored for their use. Back when the Netscape/Explorer issue was hot, the argument was MS was giving their browser away. So was Netscape. I have never paid for a browser. I only switched to Explorer when Netscape became an unusable application under version 4. Even today, when designing web pages, you still have to be careful to code around Netscape's poor programming habits.

Enough from one person.

Dave Gould

Graphic Designer (My Macintosh side)

MSCE (My Microsoft side)

Geek (My Linux side)

MTC-00011251

From: Koestler, Jim

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:44am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear United States Dept. of Justice, Under the Tunney Act, I would like to provide my comments regarding the Microsoft settlement.

As a US citizen and a tax payer, I'm very concerned and quite frankly disappointed about the continued efforts of my government to pursue a company that continues to innovate. Here is a company that started with nothing, developed quality software at very competitive prices, became successful and now the government wants to punish them. Microsoft's software continues to deliver more features, integrate additional applications, increase performance, all at lower prices. As a consumer, I'm not sure how I'm harmed.

I disagree with the appeals court ruling against Microsoft, but respect their decision. I feel the recent settlement reached is tough, but reasonable and fair to all parties involved. I, along with many others consumers overwhelmingly agree that settlement is good for them, the industry and the American economy. I hope you reach the same conclusion.

Regards,

Jim Koestler

Manager, Sales Engineering

MTC-00011252

From: Cartier, Philip

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 8:54am

Subject: MS Settlement

Dear Sirs:

I think the proposed settlement in the Microsoft anti-trust case is totally inadequate. As a user and occasional buyer of MS products, this settlement does nothing to reduce the excessive prices, poor functionality, and lack of choice that I have faced in the software market due to Microsoft's predatory practices. In addition, the proposed settlement simply extends the Microsoft monopoly to one of the few remaining areas where it is not the major supplier- the education market. The only kind of settlement that provides meaningful redress for us abused customers would be one that would prevent future abuses. That would mean significant penalties, i.e. cash payments that are at least 10-20% of published profits over the last five years and criminal charges against the current and future management if abuses occur again.

Phil Cartier

ph: 5167

MTC-00011253

From: Bev Mautner

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:56am

Subject: I support the recent settlement between US DOJ and Microsoft

Bev and Mark Mautner

600 SW 100 Terrace

Pembroke Pines, FL 33025

Jan 15, 2002,

US Attorney General John Ashcroft, DOJ

Dear Mr Ashcroft,

End this protracted litigation. Enough is enough. The settlement is fair.. I support the recent settlement between the US DOJ and Microsoft. Some of the terms seem fair and reasonable. Others, I do not feel knowledgeable enough to make a judgement call on, but one of those terms, I am concerned about. This involves the issue of being forced to give up the internal interfaces and protocols needed to develop products that are compatible with Window' operating systems. Let's face it. Microsoft has without a doubt been one of the principal driving forces behind America being the leader in technology advancements in computerization. I object to any government entity not protecting their property and/or intellectual rights. Microsoft has worked hard and spent incredible amounts of money and devoted much of their resources to making products and developing new technologies that spin off entire new industries. It is essential that companies be reassured their intellectual property rights are protected by the American justice system whether they be a company has powerful as Microsoft or the next "Bill Gates wanna be".

I therefore urge your office to persuade the nine states holding out to settle, and bring closure to this long and protracted lawsuit.

Sincerely yours,

Beverly and Mark Mautner

MTC-00011254

From: Ferraro, James A

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 8:55am

Subject: Microsoft Litigation

I think it would be in the American public's interest that the DOJ look into the Enron Case than to waste time attacking Microsoft for helping to make this the financially strongest nation in the world.

James A. Ferraro

Lockheed Martin Missile & Space

Air Force Reentry Systems Programs

230 Mall Boulevard, King of Prussia, PA 19406

Phone: 610-354-2932

Fax: 610-354-5225

MTC-00011255

From: Lloyd, Chris M.

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 8:55am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Thank you for allowing the public to comment on the referenced settlement for Microsoft Corporation. I urge the Department of Justice to accept the terms of the antitrust settlement and immediately stop this endless waste of public tax resources. From my perspective, the Justice Department and the nine states contesting this settlement are tilting at windmills, wasting the tax payers investment and needlessly persecuting one of the most innovative and creative private enterprises of both the 20th and 21st centuries. I would rather the resources we are using to witch hunt a major American corporation be diverted to the attack on terrorist organizations in this country.

Thank you again for this opportunity to weigh in.

Chris

Chris M. Lloyd, AICP, REM

Senior Supervising Planner

Parsons Brinckerhoff

757-466-9675 Office, 757-466-1493 Fax,

757-581-9695 Cell

lloyd@pbworld.com

MTC-00011256

From: Danielson, Miguel C.

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 9:00am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

For the past 10 years, I have watched in terrific disgust at the effect of Microsoft, Inc.'s business tactics on average American consumers. For much of this time period, I have been a casual computer purchase consultant and/or Internet development consultant. In both capacities, I have seen the process of decision making in computer hardware and software purchases.

Consumers, particularly in the field of high-technology, are incredibly swayed by the options presented to them at retail locations in their area. For more years than I wish to think about, such options were horribly limited. There was essentially one choice of operating system on one choice of platform. This is all well and good, but when the choice of Internet Service Provider and Internet browser are then thrust upon such consumers by the same provider of the operating system, the choices seem to evaporate.

When I first began using the Internet in 1994, Microsoft's Internet Explorer wasn't even in existence, of course. For many years after that, nobody would touch a non-Netscape browser. This was all well and good, just as it was fine that Microsoft dominated the computer market. But Netscape never had a true monopoly on its product, and it never took advantage of any marketplace dominance it had. As the years went by, the inclusion of Internet Explorer on Windows machines was simply too easy for people to avoid. Though virtually every person of technical computer knowledge I knew preferred Netscape, Internet Explorer somehow became the standard for Web browsing.

As an Internet developer, I struggled with the mess that Microsoft created by supporting only certain HTML standards in its Internet Explorer. Moreover, it extended the HTML command set so Web programmers could do things with their Web browser that weren't "allowed" by the HTML standard that makes the Web run. Developers found themselves having to design three different versions of the same website because of Microsoft's marketplace antics.

With the dawn of Linux, it seems as though, at least for the power users, there was some choice in operating system. Of course, Microsoft swiftly ended such hope by making sure major PC manufacturers couldn't offer any such alternative operating system and still sell Windows in addition. All of these examples are to say nothing of the predatory business tactics that Microsoft employed to extinguish smaller software and hardware businesses that might legitimately compete with them. To be a lawyer in the high-tech industry is to know of many stories of the Microsoft bullying that is commonplace among companies they see as a threat to them. It is truly a farce that Microsoft purports to be a company of innovation. It is well known amongst computer buffs like myself that Microsoft has never have a creative thought in its collective corporate history. It acquires what it wants and fills in the holes. This does not create value for consumers—it reduce what they see in the marketplace and limits them to a single provider.

Please reconsider your course of easing the punishment for Microsoft. The computer and Internet industries will only continue to spiral downward if Microsoft's antics are not swiftly defeated. Under NO circumstances should they be allowed to put their operating system or other products into the hands of consumers. Regardless of whether such products are delivered for free, it is well known that the use of these products by consumers will only further Microsoft's goal of universal adoption and continued monopolization. It MUST be a requirement that any software or computers donated as a part of the settlement must be non-Microsoft related.

Thank you,
Miguel Danielson
Cambridge, MA

MTC-00011257

From: Suzie Overman
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/15/02 8:21am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Suzie Overman
8055 Creekwood Cir. E.
Southaven, MS 38671
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Suzie Overman

MTC-00011258

From: TEEdC12@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:02am
Subject: Settlement

The very idea of allowing microsoft to place its own products into schools as part of its monopoly "cure" is ludicrous beyond words. Please help build a little faith in the government by making this part of the settlement PURE CASH

Thanks
Ted Ciolli
2000 Seven Hills Road
Jefferson City, MO 65101

MTC-00011259

From: Mr Bleakley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:05am
Subject: Microsoft settlement
Sirs: My opinion is SETTLE. Get off Microsofts back. Mr. Bleakley

MTC-00011260

From: James Eshleman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
US Department of Justice:

I strongly support the proposed settlement between the US Government and Microsoft. This trial has gone on for long enough and with or economy in recession the last thing we need to do is harass profitable US companies like Microsoft.

From the beginning this case has seemed like Netscape, AOL-Time Warner, Sun, and other Microsoft competitors have been pushing to have Microsoft broken up, or punished, and not because they believe Microsoft is stifling innovation and hurting consumers, but the opposite. Microsoft is innovating and lowering the prices of computer software all the time, but companies like Netscape who have an inferior products can't keep up, don't forget that before Microsoft started giving away Internet Explorer, Netscape was charging for its Communicator browser.

The settlement is a good idea, and hopefully it'll go through. Microsoft is one of the most valuable companies the US has, and we need to realize that and let them keep operating and out-performing the competition.

Thanks,
James Roy Eshleman
Charlotte, NC

MTC-00011261

From: Marty McClamma
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In section C: I think that having a MS employee oversee MS is like having a Cat watch over a bird. The settlement would have more effect if MS had to pay for a Federal Employee to over see MS.

Marty McClamma

MTC-00011262

From: Harold Burstyn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:11am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

In my opinion, the proposed settlement does not meet the needs of consumers. It will leave Microsoft's unlawful monopoly largely intact. Nothing in Microsoft's market behavior since the appellate remand suggests that they are prepared to play by the rules applicable to companies that have a monopoly. In fact, everything they have done, since the D. C. Circuit unanimously upheld the judgment of monopoly, to increase their products' position in the marketplace has undercut free and fair competition. I believe the District Court should reject the proposed settlement and encourage the settling states to join the non-settling states in continuing the litigation until Microsoft is forced to change its behavior. Harold L. Burstyn, Attorney-at-Law (NY & FL) and Registered Patent Attorney 216 Bradford Parkway, Syracuse NY 13224-1767, tel. (315) 445-0620

MTC-00011263

From: Norman Plankey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:14am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I am appalled by the current degree of ?justice? being levied in the Microsoft anti-trust suit: does this current administration dole out favors ONLY to the powerful and wealthy, while turning a blind eye to the average American? I believe Ashcroft/Bush/Gates are playing a dangerous game and the majority of Americans are fed-up with big business calling the shots through government officials (in the olden days, we used to call them ?elected officials? but that too has become an arcane phrase). regards,

Norman Plankey
129 Good Hill Rd
Oxford, CT 06478
203-881-1390

MTC-00011264

From: Roy C. Dixon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:15am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice:

Pursuant to the Tunney Act, I am submitting comments on the United States v. Microsoft settlement. Please see the attached Microsoft Word document that briefly summarizes the significant costs of Microsoft's innovation to one of its customers.

In preparing this document I have tried to report only factual details about the use of one of Microsoft's programming products and not make any accusations on what development practices within Microsoft were the basis for the problems experienced by this customer.

Roy C. Dixon
Cary, North Carolina

MTC-00011264-0001

The purpose of this document is to relate how innovation by the Microsoft Corporation has affected one of its customers. It will focus on one Microsoft product, Microsoft Office, specifically Microsoft Access 2000, and how Microsoft/Es innovation has resulted in significant costs to this customer. The cost has been reflected not only in terms of dollars, but also in ease-of-use and performance.

The customer in this case is a church that needed a database product to maintain information about its members. In the early 1990/Es, Microsoft introduced Access 2.0 at an introductory price of $99.00, a price significantly below other database products. This purchase proved to be a wise investment since Microsoft Access 2.0 was a very well designed product that was extremely easy to use. In fact, the set of help menus offered by this product are unsurpassed by any other programming product this author has used.

A Microsoft Access 2.0 database was designed by the author of this document and deployed by the church on multiple computer systems that were interconnected through a local area network. By splitting the database into two components, an application component and a data component, multiple members of the church staff could each use a copy of the application component of the database at one time and share the single copy of the data component of the database. This is classically the way a Microsoft Access database is deployed over a local area network.

During the 1990 decade, the church also used other Microsoft Office products, Word, Excel, Internet Explorer, and Outlook Express. Although some members of the church staff would of preferred to use other competing products (the church secretary and the associate pastor preferred Corel WordPerfect over Microsoft Word), using only Microsoft products provided a level of interoperability among the products that was not always possible with using a collection of competing products. If the Microsoft Corporation had defined and negotiated with its competitors a set of common programming interfaces, the church would have had an option to employ one or more competitor products in conjunction with it/Es Microsoft Access database. Late in the decade the church was compelled to upgrade their versions of Microsoft Word and Microsoft Excel. Microsoft had released updated versions of their office software, specifically Office 95 and Office 97, and the file data formats were incompatible with the earlier version of Microsoft Office that was being used by the church. Files received from members of the church drafted in these newer versions could not be read with the older Microsoft Office software. So the church was obligated to upgrade the Microsoft Office software, even though the old software completely suited the needs of the church staff.

At this time, Microsoft had just released Office 2000 and the decision was made to upgrade to this new release. This included updating Microsoft Access from 2.0 to 2000. This has since proven to be a mistake. Microsoft Access 2000, a complete rewrite of the older versions of Microsoft Access, is basically a very poor product. It is extremely difficult to use as a design tool and the programming interface is extremely complex. Furthermore, the help menus within Microsoft Access 2000 and the other Microsoft Office 2000 programs produce an overabundance of references for a given search (50 or more is not uncommon), many of which have absolutely nothing to do with the search topic. In this author/Es opinion, the Microsoft Access 2000 product is basically unusable.

But a more serious problem is that to run Microsoft Access 2000 requires a computer system with a relatively high-speed processor (at least 400 MHz) and a considerable amount of memory (at least 256 Megabytes) to provide an acceptable level of performance. This meant that the church had to replace three of its four computers, an expense that the church should not of occurred. One of the computers was kept since it had been purchased in the previous year and additional memory was added to this computer. Due to extremely poor performance of Access 2000 over a local area network, the church staff is still using Microsoft Access 2.0 on this one computer. Fortunately in the past month, a church member has donated a computer to the church that will allow the church staff to replace this remaining computer system.

Given that the church can overcome the performance problems with Microsoft Access 2000 by purchasing new computer systems does not overcome the technical deficiencies within Microsoft Access 2000. Specific concerns are programming services that have worked properly within previous versions of Access, 2.0 and 97, but do not work within Microsoft Access 2000. The author has stumbled on a handful of such problems, all of which have been documented by Microsoft as being known problems. The sidebar on this page illustrates one of these problems. Now the church has decided to use the e-mail support within Microsoft Access to send reports to its members over the Internet. Once this service is made available to the church staff, considerable savings will result due to reduced mailing costs. This employs a programming statement called SendObject. This programming statement works properly within Microsoft Access 2.0 and Access 97. When executed within Microsoft Access 2000, however, the program reports that an illegal operation has been performed and the program shuts itself down. Microsoft has documented this to be a problem within Access 2000 and has suggested a five-page code module to replace the existing code that executes the SendObject statement (this problem has been corrected in Microsoft Access 2002).

So the first question to be asked is why Microsoft failed to detect this error during testing of Access 2000 and why have they not supplied a program update to correct this problem? Furthermore, the Microsoft Knowledge Base article referenced in footnote (NOTEREF —Ref534630788 (h 7) contains the following qualifying statements: ??The following code may not work properly if you have installed the Outlook E-mail Security Update.?? ??If you have limited programming experience, you may want to contact a Microsoft Certified Partner or the Microsoft fee-based consulting line at (800) 936-5200.0 ??NOTE: This code has only been tested by using Microsoft Outlook as the MAPI client. It may not work with other MAPI-enabled mail applications. Microsoft does not support the use of this sample code with third- party MAPI applications.??

And thus the second question to be asked is why Microsoft, a corporation that states its innovative practices are for their customers/E benefit, would need to make such statements? The option exists to invest in upgrading all the computers at the church to Microsoft Office XP (i.e., Access 2002). Thus the church would again be faced with paying Microsoft Corporation additional funds for newer versions of programming products that have little value over the older versions. Furthermore, the author will not only need to upgrade his home computer with Microsoft Office XP, but will have to purchase new versions of at least two development tools and more than likely invest in a couple of new reference books. The author believes that these development tools are critical in designing a Microsoft Access database of any magnitude.

If the decision is made by the church staff to upgrade the church computers to Microsoft Access 2002, the author will still design and develop the church/Es database within a prior version, probably Microsoft Access 97. This version of Access has proven to be stable, usable, and provides a reasonable set of help menus. Furthermore, the author already owns the Access 97 versions of the development tools mentioned in the previous paragraph. This means that the database will require conversion to Microsoft Access 2002 every time a new update is provided to the church. Based upon the author/Es experience with converting a database to Microsoft Access 2000 this conversion process is not completely automatic, requiring a number of manual changes and additions after the program completes the conversion process.

Thus as the church migrates from the earlier versions of Microsoft Access (2.0 and 97) to the later versions (2000 and 2002), the following observations can be made: The performance of the database program has decreased significantly. The usability of the design interface to the program has decreased significantly. Some original design and programming constructs are specifically not supported. Many new design and programming constructs have been poorly implemented and tested. The usefulness of the help menus and technical manuals has degenerated significantly. Services within the database program interoperate with fewer supporting programs. Along with the monetary expenses mentioned earlier, these are the ever-recurring costs to a customer for Microsoft/Es innovation through its Access database program product!

MTC-00011264-0003

Mike Gunderloy within his article on Access 2002 in the June 2001 issue of Smart Access states, "Subform and subreport design is also much improved in Access 2002 from Access 2000. For starters, the scrollbars for a subform or subreport in design view now scroll in increments small enough to be useful, making it possible to edit subforms/reports in place without making you want to throw the keyboard through the monitor."

As an illustration of this deficiency, open Microsoft Access 2000 Help and perform a search for the SUM function. One obtains a list of 137 references, none of which describe the SUM function. Or do a search for the COUNT function. One obtains a list of 320 references, none of which to the author/Es knowledge describes the COUNT function. The carton containing Microsoft Office 2000 states that the system requirements for running under Windows 95 or 98 are a PC with Pentium 75 MHz processor and 16 MB of RAM for the operating system, plus an additional 4 MB of RAM running simultaneously (8 MB for Outlook or Access). This is a considerable understatement.

Complicating the performance issue was using WinProxy, a program from Ositis Products, which allowed all the church computers to simultaneously share a single dial-up connection to the Internet. It was realized that WinProxy was causing a significant traffic load on the local area network only after the church switched to a cable modem for accessing the Internet. The author has been unable to discover the reason behind this disruptive behavior. The author has estimated that the performance of Microsoft Access 2000 over a local area network is approximately ten percent the performance of the same database running within Microsoft Access 2.0.

Please refer to the following two articles within Microsoft/Es Knowledge Base (the first relates to Microsoft Access 2000 and the second to Microsoft Access 97):

HYPERLINK "<http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;q208364>" <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;q208364>

HYPERLINK "<http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;q155077>" <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;q155077> Please refer to the following article within Microsoft/Es Knowledge Base:

HYPERLINK "<http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;q260819>" <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;q260819>

Based upon private communications with Mike Gunderloy, author of the Smart Access article mentioned in the first footnote, and Peter Vogel, editor of Smart Access (<http://www.smartaccessnewsletter.com>). The SendObject code module does not work on the church/Es computers when running Microsoft Outlook Express, only when running Microsoft Outlook. More importantly, the code module does work on the church/Es server that is running Microsoft Windows 2000, only on the other computers running Microsoft Windows 98.

The two development tools are Speed Ferret by Black Moshannon Systems (a global find and replace utility for all objects and code within the database) and Total Access Analyzer by FMS (a database analysis and documentation utility). Since the developers of these tools just released their Microsoft Access 2000 versions, support of Microsoft Access 2002 will probably not be available in the near future.

Microsoft Access 2.0 was shipped with two technical manuals thereby giving complete documentation on how to use the product. Microsoft ships the Office XP product with little documentation. This is a fundamental flaw. Preparing documentation on any product is an excellent method for checking the logic and usability of a product. The author through his Microsoft Access database development activities has stumbled on many problems in support of these observations. Only a limited number have been documented in this paper to illustrate the problems.

MTC-00011264-0004

The church publishes a roster of members that contains a subreport listing the e-mail addresses of the members. This subreport is printed in two-column format like a phone book (names are listed alphabetically starting in the first column and then continuing in the second column). This formatting works within Microsoft Access 2.0 but does not work in Microsoft Access 2000. Furthermore, this formatting does not work in Microsoft Access 97. Microsoft suggests the following resolution to this problem:

"To work around this behavior, follow these steps: (1) Open the subreport in Design view. (2) On the File menu, click Page Setup. (3) Click the Columns tab. (4) Under Column Layout, click Across, then Down." This is not a work around! This is an entirely different column layout, one that is not appropriate for a telephone-book type of listing. Has this problem been corrected in Microsoft Access 2002? Probably not is the author/Es guess.

August 23, 2000
To: Microsoft Freedom to Innovate Network
(HYPERLINK "<mailto:msfin@microsoft.com>") msfin@microsoft.com)

Dear Microsoft,
Please stop your style of innovating! Your customers cannot continue to absorb the significant costs to their computer systems caused by your type of innovation.

Since purchasing Microsoft Office 2000, I had to purchase a new sophisticated computer system just to run Access 2000 (Access 2.0 and Access 97 run perfectly well on my old computer system). My church, using a Microsoft Access 2.0 database that I wrote, will have to endure the cost of replacing or upgrading their existing computer systems in order to run a Microsoft Access 2000 version of the database.

Bill Gates and others at Microsoft do not seem to have the perspective to appreciate the problems they have caused. From what I have read about the ruling in the antitrust suit against you, Judge Thomas Jackson appears to understand and appreciate the problems your style of innovating has imposed upon your customers, even though he is has minimum expertise in computer science.

And compounding the issue, Microsoft Access 2000 is barely usable from a programming perspective.

Microsoft Access 2.0 is one of the finest programs I have ever used (and its help screens are unmatched by any other program). Microsoft Access 2000 is one of the worst. Please stop your style of innovating!

Regards, Roy C. Dixon

MTC-00011264-0005

MTC-00011265

From: Chengxia You
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:59am
Subject: The Microsoft case

The Microsoft case should be settled. The provisions of the agreement are reasonable and fair. The settlement should be good for the American economy and all parties.

Chengxia You, FNAI, Florida State University
1018 Thomasville Road, Suite 200-C
Tallahassee, Florida 32312, USA
Tel: 850/224-8207 ex 219
E-Mail: CYou@fnaai.org

MTC-00011266

FROM: Dennis Whittaker
TO: MS ATR
DATE: 1/15/02 9:20am
SUBJECT: Microsoft Settlement
Dennis Whittaker
34 Jewett Hill, Berkshire, NY 13736
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft, Department of Justice

950 Penna. Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing in support of the settlement with Microsoft. The changes it requires will restore fair competition and prevent future antitrust violations.

Microsoft has agreed to release the interfaces that make Windows work with software applications to competitors, meaning that other companies can figure out how to better write programs for Windows. Naturally, Microsoft has agreed not to retaliate against software or hardware developers who develop or promote software that take advantage of this new information. Plus, Microsoft has agreed not to enter into any agreements that force third parties to distribute any Windows technology exclusively. Clearly, these restrictions will benefit the consumers as well as the technology sector as a whole.

This settlement is in the best interests of the State of New York, The U.S., and the economy because it will stop any anticompetitive behavior before it starts. Continued litigation against Microsoft will put millions of dollars into a case that has already seen a fair and reasonable end. Let the IT industry concentrate on business as soon as possible.

Sincerely,
Dennis Whittaker

MTC-00011267

From: James Sweetman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:27am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement between Microsoft and the government does nothing to deter this arrogant behemoth from continuing to bully the rest of the industry into doing its bidding. Microsoft has a monopoly on the operating system level, and continues to illegally extend this monopoly by requiring users to purchase unwanted features. The settlement does nothing to address this, and will only encourage Microsoft to continue its illegal acts.

James Sweetman
Arlington, VA

MTC-00011268

From: Seacrist, Ben
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 9:26am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Good Morning

I read somewhere that you all are looking for opinions on the case involving Microsoft. If that is not the case please forgive me for wasting your time with this e-mail.

If it is the case, then I'd like to voice my opinion. Personally, I'm not a big fan of the Windows OS. My 98 crashes way too often and XP is a joke (Windows 2000 saves the day, though, so I am not totally anti-Windows). That being said however, I think Microsoft being sued on anti-trust grounds is ridiculous. If the Windows OS has a big share of the market, it's because it markets its products better. Apple was doing years before what Windows does now. However, thanks to Apple's not-so-savvy marketing and its insistence on proprietary hardware (i.e. no Apple "clones"), they were not able to get a big chunk of the market. Enter IBM and its slew of "clones", most using MS-DOS. Microsoft had a better market saturation because it aligned itself with IBM, which allowed other companies to mimic its hardware, meaning more people came in contact with MS products. That's not Microsoft's fault. Heck, that's capitalism pure and simple. To make Microsoft pay because it used business sense while its competitors did not goes against the grain of our system. Don't punish them because of our companies' shortsightedness. Also, I've heard a lot of complaining about Windows being shipped with Internet Explorer and that that was unfair to other browser companies because it gave MS an unfair advantage. Rubbish. I only recently started using IE on machine at home and at work and only did that because Netscape kept crashing. Windows does not force anyone to use Internet Explorer.

Thanks for your time.
Sincerely,

Ben
Bennett P. Seacrist—EDS @ Detroit Diesel Corporation
13400 W. Outer Drive
Detroit, MI 48239
United States of America
Telephone/Telefon: (+001 313) 592.5189
Facsimile/Telefax: (+001 313) 592.7430
E-mail (EDS): ben.seacrist@eds.com
<mailto:ben.seacrist@eds.com>
E-mail (DDC): bennett.seacrist@detroitdiesel.com
<mailto:bennett.seacrist@detroitdiesel.com>

MTC-00011269

From: Wallis J Morgan Jr
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:25am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a small businessperson involved in the specification and development of computer software for businesses of all sizes, on a regular basis I find the need to integrate solutions utilizing software from a variety of vendors, including Microsoft. Because of this I've found that solutions from Microsoft's competitors are evaluated and selected just as often as those from Microsoft, at least by the customers I support.

Although I have disagreed with the antitrust suit from the beginning, I support Microsoft's position on the settlement, believe it is fair and good for all involved.

Regards,
Wallis J Morgan Jr
databaseinternals
432 Glenmeade Court
Gretna, LA 70056
(504)296-4944 Voice
(504)392-3156 Fax

MTC-00011270

From: AllynnH@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:32am
Subject: Microsoft Case

The Microsoft case is over, as far as the federal government is concerned, and thank heaven for that. The national economy has suffered enough, and its driving engine, the high tech industry, has not been helped by the fact that one of its leading competitors has been dragged into court for more than three years by the Justice Department.

The settlement's provisions protect Microsoft's freedom to innovate its products and will hopefully lead to a new era of revitalized competition in the software market and other areas of the technology economy. Consumers and investors will both benefit from this settlement, and hopefully, it will be the last time the government interferes with the high tech economy.

Allynn Howe
11005 Sweetmeadow Drive
Oakton, VA 22124
703-798-5627

MTC-00011271

From: Doyle E. Whitten
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:40am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please get this settled. Although some Microsoft programs irritate me, nothing justifies the way Janet Reno and her justice department went after Microsoft. What can be done to force the rest of the states to agree to the settlement so we can get this over. I do not like my tax dollars being spent to prosecute a lawsuit against a company. It is time to get this over.

Doyle Whitten, O'Fallon, Mo.

MTC-00011272

From: Terrence
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:43am
Subject: Microsoft settlement comments
Date: 11/22/01
Subject: Comments on Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs,

I strongly oppose the proposed settlement in the Microsoft antitrust case. Microsoft has been proven before the law to have abused its monopoly powers and needs to be punished for that and effective rules must be put in place to restore competition in the marketplace. The recently publicized settlement does neither. Healty competition, innovation, and consumer choice are ESSENTIAL to the high-tech economy. The way I interpret the settlement it is full of holes and will not stop Microsoft from steamrolling the competition with unfair business practices and does nothing to prevent Microsoft from gauging consumers for years to come.

In particular:

- Microsoft must be prohibited from engaging in exclusive and semi-exclusive agreements with any parties for any time period.
- Microsoft must not be allowed to provide financial or other incentives to other parties for favoring Microsoft's products over a competitors product.

- Microsoft must not be allowed to bundle or cross-license its products in any way.

- Microsoft must make public the programming interfaces to all of its major products to allow competitors to implement meaningful interoperability with Microsoft's products. Also, Microsoft must notify all interested parties well in advance before it decides to change any such interfaces and must make these changes available.

- Microsoft must be prohibited from breaking public technology standards by adding proprietary and incompatible features to such standards and then bundling this proprietary technology into hundreds of millions of Windows platforms, thus creating a de-facto standard that overrides the existing public standard.

No exemptions or loopholes can be allowed for the above rules if meaningful relief is to be achieved.

I urge the court to understand the impact Microsoft's past behavior has had on the high-tech marketplace. If Microsoft's ruthless business practices continue unchecked the American economy will pay an enormous penalty in the long run.

Microsoft should compete as much as it wants, but it must stop doing so in an unfair manner. The proposed settlement does not guarantee this in any way.

Sincerely,
Terrence Barr
20875 Valley Green Dr #27

Cupertino, CA 95014

MTC-00011273

FROM: Renee
TO: MS ATR
DATE: 1/15/02 9:44am
SUBJECT: Microsoft Settlement
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to voice my concern on the recent events behind the Microsoft Antitrust case. I am against any further government action. What I do not understand is the punishing of Microsoft for producing a quality product. Under our system of free enterprise, we are free to purchase and use any computer products we wish. It just so happens that Microsoft has created far better products than other competing companies have been able to.

Can you imagine that use of the Internet by ordinary citizens would have been possible without a common platform for communications? In addition to the superior software Microsoft has created, the company has created a niche in the marketplace that in the past decade has brought a huge amount of growth to our economy, not to mention the standardization of computer software programs that have allowed computerization to become part of everyday life.

As an investment portfolio manager, I represent clients who have invested hard-earned savings into American companies like Microsoft whose financial success benefitted ordinary Americans willing to invest in these companies. The additional litigation risk to shareholders has risen dramatically in this country as tort lawyers, including state Attorneys General, seek deep corporate pockets. It is no coincidence that the peak in our financial markets coincided with the Justice Department's announcement in March 2000 that it would seek to break up Microsoft.

Microsoft has agreed to grant computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows to promote non-Microsoft software programs. Microsoft has agreed to design future versions of Windows to make it easier for non-Microsoft software to be installed within Windows, and Microsoft has even agreed to a technical committee to monitor future compliance. I doubt if other firms would do as much. It is shameful that companies like Microsoft should be punished for their success whatever happened to the American dream? I urge you to support this settlement.

Sincerely, Renee' M. Smith

Sincerely,
Renee Smith

MTC-00011274

From: Greg HEck
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:45am
Subject: Microsoft

To whom it may concern, as a long time user of Windows I feel as a consumer I have been harmed by Microsoft's unlawful practices. As they stem rolled or bought and abandoned technologies that I wanted or needed these technologies just disappeared or "evolved" into products from Microsoft that were less useful than the original product. As I have been time and time again frustrated by Microsoft and their practices I strongly urge you to prosecute Microsoft to the full extent of the law.

Thank you

Greg Heck

MTC-00011275

From: R. Easley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:56am
Subject: Microsfot

I think enough of the taxpayers money has been spent on trying to punish Microsoft for being successful!

The economic downturn started about the time DOJ jumped into Microsofts case?

And by the way, where was DOJ when ENRON was stealing from just about everyone?

Best get your priorities right
R.V. Easley
PO box 54
Loon Lake, WA 99148
509-233-2950

MTC-00011276

From: Mark McKay
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 9:59am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have been following the case and am dismayed that the settlement does not go far enough. It does not address Microsoft leveraging it's monopoly to severely damage other web browser manufacturers (such as netscape), nor it's attempt to destroy the Java programming language. The settlement leaves the door wide open for Microsoft to continue to use technical nasty tricks embedded in it's operating system and closed protocols that do nothing but make it more difficult for non-Microsoft companies to compete.

I would encourage the plaintiffs in this case to reconsider and leverage more effective and severe penalties against Microsoft.

Mark McKay

MTC-00011277

From: Barry Baumbaugh
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/15/02 9:50am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Barry Baumbaugh
12032 Timberline Trace North
Granger, IN 46530
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Barry Baumbaugh

MTC-00011278

From: artsieber
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:08am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The remedy should some how benefit the people that are damaged. The consumer is the injured party. How about making Microsoft provide free 800 number tech support for all past and present windows users. A lot of tech companies that still have compition offer this. I as a consumer never ever buy hardware or software that does not offer free tech support by phone. Except of course Microsoft products cause I DO NOT HAVE ANY CHOICE.

MTC-00011279

From: David F. Schreck
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:12am
Subject: Public Comment on Antitrust Settlement with Microsoft

I feel that it is in the best interest of all parties to settle this suit now.

Thanks, Dave

MTC-00011280

From: Micheal Anderson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:15am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Though it would never happen, it sure would be nice to have at least a semblance of choice in the OS market.

I would love to use an IBM version of XP, heh. Even an AOL version, Compaq, HP, any first to third tier manufacturer would be able to license Windows to make their own version. Microsoft would still make money on licensing fee's, still have over site control of the standards, and we would at least be able to honestly pretend to have a choice in OS's.

Micheal Anderson
Edge Computer Games
1245 Woodmere Ave.
Traverse City, MI. 49686
231-932-4263 voice 231-932-2441 fax
<http://www.edgecomputergames.com>

MTC-00011281

From: Howard Peterson
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:23am

Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

I REALLY THINK IT'S A DISGRACE, HOW MICROSOFT HAS BEEN HOUNDED, BULLIED BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT. IF THEY HAD PUT AS MUCH EFFORT INTO FIGHTING TERRORISM, THE WORLD TRADE DISASTER MAY HAVE NOT HAPPENED. THE SETTLEMENT REACHED BY THE MICROSOFT AND THE GOVERNMENT WAS "OVERLY" GENEROUS. ITS JUST PLAIN GREED AND POLITICS NOW, FOR ANYONE PURSUING ANYMORE FROM MICROSOFT. ITS MICROSOFT'S "SOUR GRAPE" COMPETATERS WHO ARE PURSUING THIS OUTRAGE.

HOWARD C. PETERSON
907 VANCE ST N
WILSON, NC 27893-2917
252-237-1228

MTC-00011282

From: Soindianabob@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:17am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am transmitting the attached letter which contains my views regarding the Microsoft case.

Sincerely,

Robert P. Simpson
10 Portage Place
Jeffersonville, Indiana 47130
January 14, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I am writing to ask that you settle the Justice Department's lawsuit against Microsoft after this comment period. The case has dragged on with absolutely no favorable results. It is time to put the matter to rest.

I know firsthand that the Justice Department's action against the company affects more than the company itself. It affects the entire technology sector. Ending the antitrust case under the terms of the settlement seems like the best way to resolve the matter quickly and to everyone's approval. The settlement is fair, and enforceable. It rearranges the way Microsoft does business in virtually every aspect, from engineering and design to licensure and marketing. Any continued action against Microsoft will unfairly impede their progress and ability to continue developing innovative technology. Please end the case as soon as possible.

Thank you for considering my views on this important matter.

Sincerely,
Robert Simpson

MTC-00011283

From: Jim McGurrin

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:21am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

Please do consumers a huge favor and DO NOT leave the language of Section III(J)(2) and Section III(D) as is. If you really are interested in promoting competition and innovation, level the playing field by allowing open source software to compete unobstructed by Microsoft's interpretation of "business criteria". If there is ANY competition for Microsoft at all—it is in the open source world, specifically linux. Microsoft is fully aware of this and the DOJ is not playing their oversight role if language such as this is left in the settlement.

As a side note, it is naive to allow Microsoft to extend their monopoly by allowing, as a "remedy", the putting of their software in our school systems for 5 years. This will damage Apple and others and not Microsoft at all, and it is not doing those school systems or the kids any where near the good spending that same level of money on other technologies (ie open source). Take a hard look at RedHat's counter proposal to provide ALL school systems the software and support.

Please take do not rush to "clear" this case in an effort to "jump start" the tech sector with a pro-microsoft remedy. This is a crucial time in our industry and decisions here will set the direction of our industry (stagnant monopoly dominated or vibrant competitive diversity) for the next ten years at least, and like dog-years, ten tech years are like 70 normal years in terms of the effect on economy wide productivity growth.

If allowed to compete on a level playing field, Linux is a viable competitor to Microsoft, but if linux is to really have a chance to compete for the desktop then it needs to be seen as having a chance of success so that software vendors will put resources into writing applications targeted for linux—without fear of reprisal from Microsoft.

Thank-you

MTC-00011284

From: Carol Hemmen

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:30am

Subject: Microsoft settlement

Attention: Renate B. Hesse

My comment is this—This settlement should have ended a long time ago. It weren't for the Attorney Generals of seven states—one of which I am sad to say that I am a resident of—continually wanting to bring charges against Microsoft, it would have been settled. I do not know what these "seven" think they will accomplish. What is wrong with competition?

It sounds more like a vendetta than anything else. Money spent in court with charges against Microsoft could be spent in so many better ways. Accept what Microsoft has offered and get on with life.

Carol Hemmen—An Iowa resident.

MTC-00011285

From: ALLNCL@cs.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:35am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The suit against Microsoft should be dropped outright by the Federal Government. It was instituted by the previous administration in Washington as repayment for campaign contributions given by AOL, Oracle, at that time, Netscape and others. There is not now and there never has been a monopoly in operating systems. People who buy computers are free to install any operating system they wish or to buy a computer with the system preinstalled. Preference does not make a monopoly.

Technology in recent years has been a blessing for this country and due to companies such as Microsoft we have been on the leading edge. Are there people in Washington who would prefer that in addition to most computers being manufactured in Red China the operating systems should also be? I think the downturn in the NASDAQ is directly related to the Microsoft suit and should serve as a shot across our bow.

MTC-00011286

From: wgstelenet

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:35am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

American Outback

N 43.7 W 74.916

Box 270 South Shore Road

Old Forge, NY 13420-0270

January 14, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft

United States Department of Justice

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am writing to express my support for the settlement with Microsoft. The settlement is in the best interests of the state, the American IT industry, and the economy. The recession has had a devastating effect on state budgets and the Federal budget. It is important that the technology industry be allowed to concentrate on business now.

The settlement imposes a broad series of restrictions on Microsoft. Microsoft has agreed not to retaliate against computer makers who ship software that competes with anything in its Windows operating system. Also, Microsoft has agreed to license its Windows operating system products to the 20 largest computer makers on identical terms, including price. In addition, Microsoft has agreed to document and disclose for use by its competitors various interfaces that are internal to Windows' operating system products—a first in an antitrust settlement. This agreement will clearly benefit both consumers and the American IT industry as a whole. This settlement is both fair and reasonable, and it will prevent future anticompetitive behavior. The sooner the technology sector gets back to business as usual, the better. Wasting more time and money on further litigation is a bad idea.

Thank you for your kind attention.

Sincere regards,
W. Shaw

MTC-00011288

From: Kris Bredemeyer

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:44am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft Settlement is a setback towards fostering competition in the marketplace. Microsoft has used its monopoly powers to leverage licensing terms on its customers that are punitive towards users.

The Windows product activation system is a violation of users right to privacy as a hash of users computer systems is sent to Microsoft. This is the most abusive company to its competitors I have ever seen and because of its monopoly powers it has been able to engage in such conduct unchecked. The only effective way to combat this problem is to split the Microsoft corporation into an operating system company, an office and other software company, and an internet company.

MTC-00011289

From: ray winn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a concerned citizen I believe strongly that the Microsoft Settlement be rendered as quickly as possible.

Further litigation will create continued deterioration for all concerned, and most importantly the American public. Let's please get our total focus on rebuilding the economic foundation of our country instead of to weaken it further. A possible first step might be a self introspection by the DOJ. Thank You, Ray Winn

MTC-00011290

From: margaret jarrard
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:48am
Subject: microsoft settlement

In the interest of the public, people like me, settle the Microsoft issue as soon as possible. I would like to remind you that big business and big government is not the people, although they claim to have our interests at heart. There is just too much politics in the Microsoft settlement issue and I see no reason to prolong the settlement. Our economy as well as everyday folks will benefit most from the settlement of the current agreement. Thanks for your diligence. Margaret Jarrard

MTC-00011291

From: Antworks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:53am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposal settlement for Microsoft's transgressions would seem to be self-serving and, if implemented, would bring about an unanticipated result. The better settlement would be for Microsoft to provide the designated funding to the schools and to permit the schools to make the determination as to which equipment best meets their needs.

Richard McMains
4180 S. Ranch Road
Sierra Vista, AZ 85650

MTC-00011292

From: Doug.Wilkinson@Sun.COM@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:51am
Subject: microsoft settlement

The proposed settlement to the Microsoft antitrust case is plainly no more than a slap on the wrist and a reprimand to "play nice". Mr Gates wont be losing any sleep over this judgement as it is nothing more than an inconvenience in his journey to dominate the software market to an extent where there is no option on which operating system to use for a computer system.

I feel this whole case will have been a complete waste of the taxpayers money.

MTC-00011293

From: Johnson, William
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 10:52am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Fails to include other Microsoft software products such as Micorsoft Office which regularly uses interfaces (APIs) that are not provided to other developers of Office products. While Micorsoft Office is not technically a middleware program, the judgement should be expanded to include all Micorsoft software products that have inteface access that either is not available to non-Microsoft software deveopers or is made available after the last beta of a new version of the Windows operating system

Fails to provide any remedy (fines that double in size on every reoccurrence of the same problem and increase in size by 50% for each month after 90 days that Micorsoft fails to provide a solution to any single problem/short term incarceration for the group leader or any higher Microsoft officer who either verbally, or via e-mail or written note tells a product group to do something that violates any reported compliant that the TC determines is meritorious or any TC proposal for a cure on a date that is one week or later than the TC reported its finding to the Micorsoft Compliance officer) should such a failure be found again in the future!

Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected. It also fails to provide any remedy like fines paid by Microsoft that are given to the company that documents a case against Microsoft. Microsoft should also have to reimburse the company for all documented expenses related to collecting, preparing and reporting the compliant that are reasonable and not deemed excessive by a court appointed arbitrator.

Fails to force Bill Gates and the current CEO of Microsoft who both are billionaires due to their creation of a monopoly to pay any fines. At a minimum, they should personally be forced to reimburse the federal government and all state goveremnts for their costs in this case. In addition, punitive damages should be paid to a fund that could be used to provide seed money to software developers who wish to enter the market. This would be a significant step in addressing the barriers that Micorsoft created in the past.

Fails to remedy the injury done to the JavaTM technology community. Microsoft should be forced to provide a mechanism like the Control Panel Add/Remove program that makes it easy for customers to add the latest Java Virtual Machine and Browser plug in to any and all Windows Operating Systems. In addition Microsoft should be forced to provide to the Java development community any additional interfaces that are provided to any middleware or other Microsoft product in such a fashion that the Java Community deems is necessary to make Java use of the interface efficient. As an example, DCOM works best with C++ or C# or .Net. It has data types that are not easily mapped into Java Objects/types. Thus we as a software development company were forced to purchase a product from JIntegra that wrapped our C++ data structures with Java code. Even after purchasing JIntegra, the effort was so difficult that we paid the JIntegra company to provide one of their software experts to assist in the work. Even with the help of the expert, we had to rewrite our C++ code to use simpler data strctures than the original code. Even now, we are limited to the set of types that the JIntegra expert successfully wrapped. This extra barrier to Java developers who want to use DCOM to communicate to a C++ DLL that runs on a remote server needs to be eliminated. Microsoft should be fined every month after 90 days that it fails to provide a solution or at least provide a team of twelve developers who at Microsoft expense are dedicated to working with the Java development community to eliminate this barrier and any additional barriers reported to the Java development community by members of the community.

Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market. Why is their no fine paid by Microsoft to the court and then paid by the court to Netscape? Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system.

Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism.

MTC-00011294

From: lmfhn@worldpath.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Clearly great care effort and energy is the hallmark of the last year of this issue. As it should be: a new technology in a new time. However it s time to move on: let Microsoft return full focus to its entrepreneurial roots—for shared collaborative benefit—for schools to our economy.

MTC-00011295

From: john@rrci.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs Please do not allow the criminals running Microsoft to continue to illegally bilk consumers and use their ill gotten gains to quash any legitimate competition. The settlement should cost Microsoft at least $10 billion real dollars and prevent them from quashing competition in the future. JDR

MTC-00011296

From: kjacob@thurston.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I send this note in the hope that the government s case against Microsoft will be closed with not further action. I do not believe action should have been taken in the first place and certainly no further action should be taken at this time.

MTC-00011297

From: renslin@enslinpc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I do not agree with the government interfering with the innovations of a company just because their competitors believe it is unfair. The lawsuit against microsoft because some people think they are charging too much for software is ridiculous. If you compare the cost of products and/or services from other software/service vendors you will see that Microsoft is right inline with market standards. The complaint of competitors that Microsoft ties or bundles software with and operating system is simply laughable. Since when does a consumer complain when they get a free add-on for a product they purchased. It is like saying that a car manufacturer cannot install Goodyear tires on a car because maybe a consumer will not want them. If you dont want to use the feature then dont. AOL I believe is more guilty of poor software than any other vendor I know of.

MTC-00011298

From: pholland4@mindspring.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the Microsoft settlement is more than fair for all involved. Please let s settle this in move on.

Peter Holland

MTC-00011299

From: carolk01@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The previous administration made a grave error of listening to Microsoft s competitors who wished to KNOCK MICROSOFT S SOX OFF . Unfortunately not only did the government s decision to HIT MICROSOFT WITH A STIFF PENALTY bring down Microsoft s stock but it crumbled the entire Tech Market. NM is a Democrat state and WE THE PEOPLE had to voice in NM s decision to side with the Government in slamming Microsoft. A few top Democrats in this state made that decision ! MY REQUEST FOR YOU IS TO MAKE A QUICK SETTLEMENT WITH MICROSOFT ONE IN WHICH MICROSOFT CAN AGREE. My news media tells me that Microsoft has offered $1 000 000.00 for computers to be placed in POOR schools. Again Microsoft s competitors are screaming unfair . If their products were as good as Microsoft s they wouldnt have to CRUSH private enterprise. After all America was built on THE ENTREPRENEUR making good in private industry.

MTC-00011300

From: Paolo@TheCornerStore.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As the head of a company that started out selling IBM s OS/2 I know for a FACT that the emergence of Windows in the OS wars was due to the terrible performance of IBM s marketing department and its treatment of ISVs. IBM s attempt to dominate the PC marketplace was far far more egregious than what MSFT did and once again I know I was there in the thick of that war . We are nhot even talking about Apple which tried to own the whole space of desktop computing by owning both the hardware and the software. I shake my head when I see who is doing the complaining against Microsoft! With regard to its supposed Monopoli today we as resellers are only too acutely ware of how tenuous the grip of any technology is on a marketplace especially Microsoft s whose reputation is constantly being threatened by reports of bugs and other attacks. I firmly believe that a new technology could easily displace a Microsoft technology either in the OS or in the applications arena. Microsoft s success is due to its pleasing of the customer and the channel. While I did not believe that Microsoft should have ever even been charged by the Department of Justice (for which I once worked) I most strongly urge anyone there to take into consideration my experience and views and approve the settlement that has been proposed.

Paolo

MTC-00011301

From: www.Fur12521@AOL.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I Think its a Fair Deal for all. I am for the settlement the way it is. 1-14-02

MTC-00011302

From: hdibble@accs.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the settlement is fair and equitable as it stands.

MTC-00011303

From: jczalog@silverdollarcity.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support Microsofts resolution to the Anti-Trust case of providing technology to schools. Taking Microsoft back to court and paying judgements to customers (which will amount to a pittance) benefits only lawyers.

MTC-00011304

From: peter.heinen@homestreetbank.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the settlement is more than fair. To my knowledge no one has shown any harm to the consumer.

This whole law suit is a sham. The public is not even behind it. Who is? SUN Oracle!

MTC-00011305

From: stephz@microsoft.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

For the sake of technology and the US economy please make the remaining states come to an agreement with Microsoft. I feel that these lawyers are going for the money just like they did when they targeted big tobacco. Microsoft has done a lof of good for technology and we all know that Microsoft has done a lot of good for the economy. With the events of Sept. 11th I would think that the government would be more interested in getting the economy up and running again instead of this relentless pursuit of Microsoft and its billions!

MTC-00011306

From: civie@gte.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The politically motivated attack on Microsoft has probably done more to damage the technology sector of the stock market than any other event. Competetors of Microsoft are angry because they actually have to produce a superior product in order to stay in business. There are very few end users of Microsoft that are anxious to see the company damaged. Who is the government trying to protect? End users or competitors? Dr. Charles Ivie Director R&D Dermaprobe International

MTC-00011307

From: jonathan@corbett.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please urge the dissenting states to give up the assault on Microsoft. They should be thankful for the agreement to the settlement by a company whose violations are unclear at best.

MTC-00011308

From: don—pat1@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

msft stick to your guns & keep your powder dry.

MTC-00011309

From: rbruner@ctesc.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

GOVERNMENT SHOULD STOP HARRASING MICROSOFT AND OTHER BUSINESS. THE PEOPLES NEEDS ARE NOT BEING ATTENDED TO WHEN LEGISLATER ARE HOLDING HEARINGS THAT ARE A WASTE OF TIME. MICROSOFT AS WELL AS OTHER BUSINESS S OFFER A PRODUCT PEOPLE DO NOT HAVE TO BUY IT.

MTC-00011310

From: cemkenney@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough already-Stop the insanity! The settlement while not perfect should be agreed upon. I am the Public and I will decide what is in my good .

MTC-00011311

From: jreed@cabq.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The law suit against Microsoft has done enough damage. For the good of all Americans please do not pursue this issue any further.

MTC-00011313

From: snjewins@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Abolish the Sherman anti-trust Act as it is unconstitutional and un-American. Allow the consumer to deal with the likes of Microsoft.

MTC-00011314

From: luann.albertson@verizon.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settling this ongoing series of lawsuits is in the best interest of the country and the free enterprise system. The economy will benefit from concluding this suit.

MTC-00011315

From: erkkifin@mfi.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft case is a simple matter of some less than successful businessmen and marketers going crying to Congress who being equally inept started an anti-trust suit. Being big and successful is NOT a monopoly. The consumer decides what to buy and if the product is so much better than any competition then the product succeeds. Nobody not Microsoft nobody FORCED anybody to do anything. The OEM s had an option other software and PC makers failed to compete so they went crying for help and the Congress in it s infinite stupidity obliged them. The settlement is not fair because it never should have come to this in the first place. But given the fact that the age of litigation being what it is this is the best a true free spirit and entrepreneur can hope for. Without Bill Gates and the Microsoft enterprise the computer world and millions of jobs would NOT be around today or at least be years behind where we are now. Why do so many people and the Congress resent free success??

MTC-00011316

From: jrb312@bellsouth.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

While one one hand I am pleased that this anti-trust case is finally over with but on the other hand I am very disappointed in the actions of the government of this country. In my opinion the software playing field has always been more than fair. Microsoft is more or less being punished for putting out a consistently and above average product. Isn t this supposed to be meaning of capitalism or what is known as the American way? You manufacture a good product and it sells. You manufacture a product of poor or below average quality and you will not be able to compete with the companies who manufacture the higher quality software. The founders of this once great country of ours would without a doubt wonder what has happened to the once fair and impartial government of which they had formed and had dreamed of not so long ago. A company which has done so much for the American economy and made it the home of high tech jogs gets a kick in the teeth by it s own government. The future of the Microsoft company will most likely end up like the automobile industry and move it s headquarters overseas and I couldn t say that I would blame them if they did. This whole anti-trust case has been an embarrassment to this country and what it used to stand for.

MTC-00011317

From: erkkifin@mfi.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The action against Microsoft is a crime against free enterprise. No settlement can erase the shame and sham that the US Govt has forced on the American consumer. You took a few nearly failing and crybaby businesses and presumed to use them as an excuse to speak for the consumer when in fact very few consumers feel that a successful free enterprise albeit quite large business is a monopoly. You have over stepped and abused your power and should be ashamed.

MTC-00011318

From: rob-smith@dell.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft has always strived to make my job as a programmer easier throughout my career. This company doesn t deserve the treatment it is getting from the government and its jealous competitors. The settlement that has been reached should be accepted and Microsoft should be left alone to continue innovating and making computers users lives easier. Where would we be today without Microsoft s contributions? Most likely still in the computer dark ages.

MTC-00011319

From: Mantex1@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

If the Federal Government and the Microsoft Corp. have reached an agreement then why should the States keep this dreary affair going on and on? Let s get back to business and bring this economy back to a strong growth rate.

MTC-00011320

From: michaelouise2@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Time to back off Microsoft and let them go about the business of making money for there stock holders.

MTC-00011321

From: far-iman@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Nearly three years ago I wrote you a letter protesting the unwarranted intrusion of the DOJ into the competitive free enterprise system. The DOJ has cost the American tax payors tens of millions in its frivolous legal action. It is now time to terminate litigation and allow the settlement to go forward without further delay. Thank you.

MTC-00011322

From: tresstaylor@earthlink.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir: The action against Microsoft has gone on long enough. It is taking tax payers money and the company is being persecuted. They have bent over backwards to be fair to all parties. Now stop the greediness of those opposed to settlement. Since this suit has taken place the economy has suffered before 911.

Sincerely
Theresa A. Taylor

MTC-00011323

From: alan@interjot.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I guess this settlement is the best that we can hope for. There is no way that Justice Department should have initiated this silly innovation- and economy-squashing suit in the first place. Can we now at least please drop the matter and get on with letting the real engines of progress take their rightful positions of leadership in the world? Please?

MTC-00011324

From: dolanwpdctown@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am in favor of the settlement. I watched the government waste millions & I mean millions of $ s on the IBM case. It s a hellofa price to pay for all round excellence

MTC-00011325

From: jabathomp@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is a sad day when you build a better mouse trap and the mice get the government to sue you for it. If they can t handle the competition let them stay out of the business Jack Thompson

MTC-00011326

From: gjdtz76@ndak.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I guess I just do not understand the statement by the Judge saying the Microsoft requested settlement would cause a competitive edge for them. Apple has had the competitive edge with education and printing for years. Their equipment is VERY expensive. The attorneys for the states that are holding out on the Microsoft settlement are the states with companys that have their business or satellites in those state. It appears the attorneys for these states have successfully convinced the judge to throw out the proposed settlement. A totally political move. I would very much like to have someone explain to me why AOL/Time Warner is NOT a MONOPOLY. And prove to me that this lawsuit is NOT political.

Please respond. Thank you for the opportunity to express my thoughts. Gerald Dentz

MTC-00011327

From: gotip@earthlink.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case and stop harrasing the best US corporation. These delays will cost us all money and allow the rest of the world to catch up. We should be supporting Microsoft as the whole world relies on their great software.

MTC-00011328

From: joycie@cwnet.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:44am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please leave Microsoft alone. They have provided many jobs and technology to our nation also helping schools and many various programs. Please end these lawsuits. The lawyers are the ones getting rich over this while people are being put out of work because of a silly lawsuit. I bet giving a choice 99 percent of the people would use Microsoft over any other program. I say it is a choice you can use it or not. If you don't like Microsoft don't use any of their products but don't sue over it. It is just as simple as that. And other companies are just greedy as they didn't have the brains like Bill Gates to figure out all of this. I say give the guy credit for all he has done and invented. It amazes my mind what he has done to make it easy to communicate with the world and to type letters without carbon paper and to erase easy.

And to figure out computer programs. Guess this gives you a clue to my age. We have come a long ways thanks to Bill Gates. By keeping on with the lawsuits you make it hard for them to innovate so please get put an end to the lawsuits.

Thanks Joyce Siemens

MTC-00011329

From: Hartmann, George J.
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 10:55am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,
As a individual I want the Government to settle with Microsoft. I therefore support the Department of Justice on its proposed antitrust settlement.

Regards,
George Hartmann
CC:Hartmann George J.

MTC-00011330

From: Waterline2@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:55am
Subject: my opinion on the Microsoft Case

1. Actually, I am tired of it and fairly fed up with the procedure that has taken a well-run free trade business and practically brought it to its knees. As if it isn't hard enough to make a go of a business, the government steps in to slap their hand because of the belly aching of companies that are jealous of its success.

2. Perhaps Microsoft did create a situation where the competition didn't have as good a chance at succeeding, but they also did a lot to bring the common housewife like me into the 21st century. I am glad there is a Microsoft—and a Bill Gates. He built the empire and we came. And we love him for it.

3. I don't know Bill Gates and he has never heard of me and probably the sun will set on me before this thing ends....at this rate. Please, let him go back to doing his business so we can ALL prosper. Good management—taking care of his employees and giving us the tools we need to get our jobs done...isn't that the American way?

4. Some businesses, like Enron, didn't need the Government's help to do a miserable job and at getting into a mess. Get the Government out of Bill's business and let him finish the work he started. Slap his hands just a little if you have to do something, but do it and get it over with so we can all go forward.

5. All of this business with the unfair advantage happened so many years ago—in a different business climate. The Government should be shaking the man's hand instead of slapping it for doing the American dream....and for helping us live the American dream.

If you wish to reach me for any other comments, my name is

Alice Van de Water
1694 San Leandro Lane
Santa Barbara, CA 93108
(805) 969-4438

I am 59 years old and have never personally purchased any Microsoft stock. I own 800 shares, which my husband bought in about 1994 or 1995—he passed away about 3 and a half years ago. I also own Microsoft in my Keogh—and I believe another financial advisor purchased some for another account I have. Obviously, I want the stock to do well, but my comments are from my heart, not from my pocketbook.

MTC-00011331

From: Harry Crowell
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 10:58am
Subject: microsoft settlement

Please stop this vicious lawsuit. Too many people have suffered because of the expensive method of persecution of an enterprising young American. My business, as have most of our country and others across the entire world, have benefitted greatly because of the great work and improvements to the ability to access valuable information and store records.

Please stop this foolish destruction of the principles that made America the place it is.

MTC-00011332

From: Cynthia Grossen
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 11:02am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement excerpt from Complaint

“5. To protect its valuable Windows monopoly against such potential competitive threats, and to extend its operating system monopoly into other software markets, Microsoft has engaged in a series of anticompetitive activities. Microsoft's conduct includes agreements tying other Microsoft software products to Microsoft's Windows operating system; exclusionary agreements precluding companies from distributing, promoting, buying, or using products of Microsoft's software competitors or potential competitors; and exclusionary agreements restricting the right of companies to provide services or resources to Microsoft's software competitors or potential competitors.”

My biggest problem with “the way things are now” is that as it stands, I can not buy a computer from a large computer seller, like DELL, MICRON, BestBuy, Circuit City, etc without being forced to purchase the bundled M$ software; even if I have no interest in every utilizing said software.

Also, it is my understanding that most of these vendors are prohibited from offering “dual-boot” systems as well, as part of their OEM license agreement with M$. Which would be a ‘second-best’ solution to the above problem, from my standpoint at least. I do realize that their are legitimate market concerns as well, such as poor customer demand. But I find it difficult to believe that the fact that M$ owns the OS market (read monopoly here) doesn't play into my concerns in a significant way. I feel that this area is one of crucial importance to future remedies. The browser arguments are extremely compelling and should definitely play into the settlement. But the “Browser War” is effectively over. M$ won.

MTC-00011333

From: Mary Euyang Shen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:02am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please get on with it so that we can give the economy a small nudge upward.

Mary Shen

MTC-00011334

From: Rob Alelyunas
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:03am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Greetings;

I am a professional software developer very familiar with the Microsoft products and strategy, as well as many other software platforms such as Java, UNIX, and Internet development. For many of us in the software industry, the proposed settlement with Microsoft looms as a terrible mistake. Many of the reasons why have been very well illuminated by far better communicators than myself, and these reasons tend to emphasize the failure of the settlement to address the actual abuses and illegal practices that were proven in the case. They emphasize that the remedy has no enforcement, and is unlikely to stop the proven illegal practices.

But my concern is the effect that the proposed settlement has had upon the software community, and the business community at large. That is a chilling effect. New software projects have been canceled, software innovation has been put on hold in many cases, and new initiatives have trouble getting funding. That is because the settlement is a signal that the marketplace won't reward the small, energetic innovators such as Netscape or Real Media. Companies like this, although they have virtually invented and innovated new capabilities that enrich our lives, will not be set free to compete on an equal footing. The behemoth of Microsoft will be allowed to wait for these smaller companies to innovate, then it will bundle carbon copies of their products into its operating system, and if necessary use other illegal monopoly practices such as punitive exclusive relationships with hardware manufacturers.

I ask you honestly, would anyone want to invest in a small innovative software company in this climate? No matter what quality, energy, excellence is in the product, there cannot be profitability as long as Microsoft is free to illegally compete. Investors and the business community are very aware of the Microsoft settlement. And it has already had a chilling effect on innovation and investment. It has had a chilling effect on the American economy. It is a loud, clear signal that discourages investment in small business just as it discourages new ventures.

This is not a good time to be discouraging small business which is the growth engine of our economy. Now of all times we need to carefully consider the effects of our decisions on the economy. There are reasons for the anti-trust laws, and there are reasons to enforce them. American business operating under effective anti-trust enforcement has created the greatest growth and innovation engine the world has ever known. The key is competition, and anti-trust laws are the protectors of competition. Let's have the courage to enforce the law.

Rob Alelyunas

MTC-00011335

From: Nicholas Dronen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:03am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam:

I make my living as a computer programmer and work with Microsoft products every day. I believe the proposed Microsoft settlement will not prevent the company from continuing to act as it has in the past. The U.S. government has had agreements with Microsoft in the past, and they have had little effect. I assert that allowing this or that hardware vendor to put such-and-such icon on the desktop of a Microsoft operating system does little or nothing to prevent the company from using its monopoly of the desktop operating system market to insinuate itself in a rather forthright way into other markets.

Moreover, I fail to see how allowing interested parties to examine the source code of some Microsoft software will solve this problem. At most such a regime will give some well-funded start-up companies and successful competitors of Microsoft (that is, those firms which can afford to send a software engineer to Redmond to spend time reading code) a useful tidbit of information here and there. Since the company's positions in its current markets (and some future ones as well) have not diminished (rather, they have continued to increase market share), it is clear that the company now has even less of an incentive to follow antitrust law than it did before.

Whether Microsoft should merely be punished for its role in the fate of Netscape Communications, Inc., is debatable. I personally think it is irrelevant and that the important matter is to restore equity in competition in the computer industry now and into the future. The proposed settlement does not ensure this; therefore, it should be rejected.

Kind Regards,
Nicholas Dronen
ndronen@frii.com
Computer Programmer
Boulder, Colorado

MTC-00011336

From: Ella Tidwell
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:07am
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I support President Bush in his desire to settle this lawsuit and persecution of Microsoft. Ella Tidwell
4298 US Highway 641 South
Hazel, KY 42049

MTC-00011337

From: Jim Fuqua
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:10am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear DOJ:

The time has come for this case to be settled and now. The axe grinders have delayed this long enough.

Thank you for your consideration. Regards,
Jim Fuqua, A concerned citizen of the US of A

MTC-00011338

From: Benjamin W. Ritcey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:12am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,

The Remedy section of the proposed Microsoft settlement lets Microsoft off far too lightly; what seems like fair and open access to Microsoft's APIs, Documentation and Communications Protocols has, in fact, a critical loophole—I can put this no better than Robert Cringly (<http://www.pbs.org/cringely/pulpit/pulpit20011206.html>): "...Microsoft's greatest single threat on the operating system front comes from Linux—a non-commercial product—and it faces a growing threat on the applications front from Open Source and freeware applications. The biggest competitor to Microsoft Internet Information Server is Apache, which comes from the Apache Foundation, a not-for-profit. Apache practically rules the Net, along with Sendmail, and Perl, both of which also come from non-profits. Yet not-for-profit organizations have no rights at all under the proposed settlement. It is as though they don't even exist.

Section III(J)(2) contains some very strong language against not-for-profits. Specifically, the language says that it need not describe nor license API, Documentation, or Communications Protocols affecting authentication and authorization to companies that don't meet Microsoft's criteria as a business: "...(c) meets reasonable, objective standards established by Microsoft for certifying the authenticity and viability of its business, ..."

So much for SAMBA and other Open Source projects that use Microsoft calls. The settlement gives Microsoft the right to effectively kill these products. Section III(D) takes this disturbing trend even further. It deals with disclosure of information regarding the APIs for incorporating non-Microsoft "middleware." In this section, Microsoft discloses to Independent Software Vendors (ISVs), Independent Hardware Vendors (IHVs), Internet Access Providers (IAPs), Internet Content Providers (ICPs), and Original Equipment Manufacturers (OEMs) the information needed to inter-operate with Windows at this level. Yet, when we look in the footnotes at the legal definitions for these outfits, we find the definitions specify commercial concerns only. "The business climate has changed a bit from the time the Tunney Act was introduced—one does not have to pursue a profit in order to be a competitor. By excluding not-for-profit organization, the Settlement protects Microsoft from their greatest threat, and allows them to continue to stifle innovation.

I urge you to, at the very least, remove these critical loopholes.

Regards,
Benjamin Ritcey

MTC-00011339

From: Carol.McDonald@sun.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:16am
Subject: microsoft Microsoft is a monopoly.

They are not changing their behaviour as witnessed by their new Passport and Hailstorm technologies.

They should be split into OS and Other Software
Carol McDonald

MTC-00011340

From: sam travis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:25am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I for one, cannot believe that the department of JUSTICE is even considering letting Microsoft off the hook so easily! This is the company that has lied and misled the courts at every turn! I am shocked! Shocked and appalled that a corporation can engage in such blatantly monopolistic behavior, and walk away with a comparative slap on the wrist. Having been involved with the personal computer industry essentially since its' inception, I have been witness to the most egregious violations, and would like justice to truly be done.

MTC-00011341

From: Tor-Oyvind Gundersen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:21am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Since I'm a Norwegian citizen, I assume I don't have a right to comment this case. But I just can't sit still looking at injustice... As a professional IT developer, I would just like to say one thing: The way Microsoft has chosen, is not a way the world should be going— please get the world back on the right track.

Thanks for your time.
Regards,
Tor-Oyvind Gundersen
tor@gundersen.nu

MTC-00011342

From: Harold McClarnon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:20am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
HAROLD McCLARNON
310 Westwood Drive Grants Pass,
OR 97527
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

Thank you for your efforts to settle the Microsoft antitrust case. This case was not brought because it had merit, but as a result of jealousy on the part of Microsoft's competitors. I am in support of the case being resolved as soon as possible.

As a result of this suit, Microsoft has agreed to a variety of changes in its business practices. These changes will put to rest any complaints by Microsoft's competitors that they are engaging in anticompetitive behavior. Microsoft has agreed to share the fruits of its labor with its competitors. They will disclose interfaces that are internal to Windows' operating system products. They have agreed to make it easier for computer companies to add non-Microsoft software to their computers, too. These steps will give Microsoft's competitors a giant boost in their ability to compete with Microsoft. The settlement agreement provides more than adequate protection against violation of the antitrust laws.

Nothing more should be required of Microsoft.

Sincerely,
Harold McClarnon

MTC-00011343

From: Judy Sawyer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:22am
Subject: I am against litigation

In my state of N. C. we have approximately 1,000,000, motivated, great citizens who work for Microsoft.. N. C. has been blessed with a fine company , like Microsoft, locating in this state. I own Microsoft software, as does my husband and my daughter and we are very pleased with the quality and the price. We buy Microsoft, we have a choice. and we would not change at present. In my husbands profession he has used sun, oracle and many other software vendors and finds them all inferior to Microsoft. These companies should go to work and developed wonderful software that would be competitive and I would try their product again.. I am sure there will be software beyond Microsoft and some young inventor is probably working on it right now, not expecting to find it in a court of law. I do not feel I have been overcharged for my soft ware, and I have not been in anyway persuaded to buy Microsoft, it was my freedom of choice.

Judy Sawyer
5913 Cedar Landing Rd.
Wilmington, N. C. 28409
Sawyer@wilmington.net

MTC-00011344

From: Jim Rapp
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:23am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear DOJ,

I applaud the DOJ for coming to settlement with The Microsoft Corporation over antitrust concerns. Although the company has perhaps been aggressive in certain business practices, it seems to have curtailed these practices, and wants to move on in life, being a good U.S. corporate citizen. Unfortunately, it appears a cottage industry of media pundits, journalists, attorneys, special interest groups, politicians, and competitors, who seem to have built careers around keeping the company left dangling do not want resolution. Microsoft has created many jobs, has helped the U.S. to become a leader in information technology, and I use their products which enable me to make a living.

I hope that the DOJ continues to work hard to get all parties to settle the Microsoft antitrust case, and allows a great U.S. company to operate without the shackles of all of the above named special interests.

Thank you.

Jim R.

Northern Virginia

(Note, these thoughts also apply to my Austin, Texas based mom, and Huntsville, Alabama based cousin)

MTC-00011345

From: Steven Rubenstein
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:26am
Subject: Input for Tunney Act

I hereby do my "civic" (public interest) duty of putting on record my opinion, for Tunney Act consideration, of the proposed settlement in DOJ and "some states" vs. M$.

Fact: Federal Judge Stanley Sporkin was disconcerted with M$'s business behavior as he understood it.

Fact: M$ and DOJ persuaded an Appellate panel, including Judge Harry Edwards, to overrule Judge Sporkin.

Fact: Failure to resolve some of Judge Sporkin's concerns eventually resulted in a full scale, costly lawsuit.

Fact: Federal Judge T.P. Jackson became so disconcerted with M$'s business and courtroom behavior as to jeopardize his career.

Fact: Antitrust experts expected the DC Circuit, including Judge Edwards, to overturn the bulk of Judge Jackson's rulings.

Fact: The DC Circuit UPHELD the bulk of Judge Jackson's rulings.

Fact: The Supreme Court would not grant certiorari to M$.

Fact: The DOJ, now headed by John Ashcroft, not Attorney General when the case began, reached a proposed settlement with M$.

Fact: Before proposed settlement, DOJ publicly eliminated its strongest weapon: possible breaking up M$.

Fact: News reports stated the "states" were surprised when the DOJ settled and were told after the fact.

Fact: 9 of the states and DC would not accept the settlement, contenting it would not remedy M$'s violations as upheld by the DC Circuit.

Fact: News reports indicate antitrust experts largely feel the proposed settlement is easy on M$ and has loopholes.

Fact: Throughout the trial and settlement talks, M$ did not abate its campaign to make all things software its own—even dictating hardware. At least 9 Federal judges—2 at the District level, 7 at the Circuit level—and 9 Federal justices have expressed agreement, overtly or implicitly, that M$ has repeatedly conducted illegal business practices under, at least, the Sherman Act. I, as a consumer, a scholar, a sometime software developer (without affiliation with any software company), and a concerned citizen, do not see how the proposed settlement remedies any of the findings against M$. Further, at least from the time of the DC Circuit panel's overruling of Judge Sporkin, M$'s subsequent actions have shown it not to be trustworthy. Further, the fact that the DOJ, under a new Attorney General, would, without notifying the states accept such a settlement, under such conditions,

REEKS OF THE VERY KIND OF BACK ROOM DEALINGS THE TUNNEY ACT WAS DESIGNED TO AVERT.

The only possible good in allowing a such a software monopolist to exist, is that it is U.S. based, and, in the fashion of the Federal government's facilitating the RCA-led oligopoly of World War I, a U.S. based monopoly in theory can benefit national security, including by facilitating standardization. Even this argument fails with M$: its leviathan tactics have removed, in fact necessitated against, any need for it to assure software quality. The FBI recently got on M$'s case, for building software that is so easily penetrated and subverted. The damage M$ has done in quashing software innovation invites software developers worldwide to expose and capitalize on the inferiorities of its products. M$ Internet Information Server and M$ Outlook have become such wide standards as to become two of the, if not THE two, major carriers of viruses and worms in the world. Consequently, even the argument of allowing M$ to continue in its current fashion for national security falls short.

We know that being a monopoly is not illegal, but violating the Sherman, Clayton, or Robinson Act is. M$ continues to claim it has the right to innovate, when in fact almost every one of its products either has been bought—starting with DOS itself—or copied from a less-moned innovator—Apple, Lotus, Netscape, RealMedia, Sun Microsystems, to name a few—which M$ can do, because it has the operating system running on 95% of the world's desktops. Lack of innovation cannot be good for the consumer. Anyone who praises M$'s products is doing so without knowledge of what might exist if potential products weren't crushed before inception or fruition, because venture capitalists balk at investing in something they know will be thwarted and because software developers have less chance and possible reward from following through on ideas.

Neither can the consumer benefit monetarily by there being only one major software company. The free market concept implies competition determines price. M$, being a monopoly, can charge almost as it pleases. Recently corporate customers have become disturbed with M$'s coercive upgrade licensing policy. Though no competition remains to which prices can be compared, it is known that M$ has more surplus than any other corporation in the world—even more than any pharmaceutical or energy company. M$ could lower prices on its operating systems and productivity software significantly and remain “the world's richest company.” It lowers prices on products in markets it is trying to win — browser and media player are two examples—to the point of negative revenue on those products, because its vast surplus enables it to cross-subsidize.

Surely, inasmuch as the Tunney Act is constitutional, this is a case to invoke it. The DC Circuit and the Supreme Courts await the outcome.

Humbly submitted,
Steven Rubenstein
Murfreesboro, TN
615 896-7862

MTC-00011346

From: Matt Del Vecchio
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:28am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am with the 9 states that have dissented from the others—I believe that while the proposed settlement is “better than nothing”, it is not Good Enough. without getting into it, it appears the DOJ has backed down. that it was all roar and less bite. this may have something to do w/ the new administration. a desire to protect big business, perhaps.

Sincerely,
matt
Matt Del Vecchio
Web Architect
Microgistix
(612) 486-1125
<http://www.chumbo.com> <<http://www.chumbo.com/>>
<http://www.microgistix.com> <<http://www.microgistix.com/>>

MTC-00011347

From: Gwen and DeVerne
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:29am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have chosen to use Apple MacIntosh computer and operating system. I have freedom of choice. I chose to use Apple and I chose to use Eudora e-mail software and I chose to use Office for the Mac. If Microsoft was not supporting Apple by marketing Office for the Mac software Apple would cease to exist.

Let the market place choose, not government.
DeVerne Jacobsen 01-15-2002 —

MTC-00011348

From: susanf@phys-
ha4nwka.ebay.sun.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:31am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
The proposed Microsoft settlement is unsatisfactory in many ways. In a nutshell, the “penalty does not fit the crime”. The proposed settlement does not solve for the injury done to the Java technology community or the Netscape browser market. It does not solve for the monopolistic behavior by Microsoft. Please use your power to stop the monopoly madness. Our consumer rights and security is at risk.

Sincerely,
Susan Sanguinetti
(20 year employee—high tech)

MTC-00011349

From: Alfredo Rodriguez
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:58am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,
I write you to ask your continued support of the recent Microsoft settlement. This settlement is the product of three years of deliberation and compromise, and contains terms that are beneficial to the entire IT sector. By supporting this agreement, we help to get our technology industry back to business and our economy flowing once again. By not supporting this agreement, we jeopardize our position in this highly competitive worldwide IT market.

Not only has Microsoft agreed to make changes in licensing and marketing terms, but has agreed to make changes in design and development, such as changing XP and 2000 Professional to make it more accommodating for software developers other than Microsoft. This is a bold step, and we need to support this type of agreement as it brings us together as an industry and as a nation.

Please help support this settlement by helping to stop any further actions against this agreement. let us help get our industry back to business.

Sincerely,
Alfredo Rodriguez

MTC-00011350

From: Jeffrey A. Mattero
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:33am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam:
Please place me on the side of encouraging the parties to settle this ridiculous lawsuit! It should never have been filed in the first place, and I can't believe Microsoft is even willing to settle! The company was enormously successful simply because they had the best product on the market. Unfortunately, in this country, success breeds contempt, especially from the government. It honestly disgusts me. Anyway, if Microsoft is willing to settle, please quit wasting taxpayer dollars, and end this once and for all!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Thank you.

Jeffrey A. Mattero
JMattero@erols.com

MTC-00011351

From: JudiTk@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:39am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:
Our government needs to protect our economy, and not to be derailed by attempts to benefit certain companies' interest. It is unfortunate that the remaining states that rejected the agreement have strong support from Microsoft's competitors, in which they reside. Those state representatives have no choice but to support their prime resident companies, and their counter proposal is only to benefit those resident companies. The focus of this case should be based on whether Microsoft has indeed hurt the consumers and our economy. If Microsoft has not taken a lead in consolidating computer operating systems, and offer compatible/integrated software, we would have induced significant inefficiencies throughout the country, and the world. I highly encourage our government to move forward and bring this case to a closure that would benefit the crippled economy. There are other major elements that we all need to focus on, instead of continuing to deplete our valuable resources on this case. Microsoft is now fully aware of its boundaries, in terms of “anti-competitive behaviors,” and shall continue to offer more useful software tools that ultimately benefit us all.

Sincerely yours,
Takaaki Hayashi
839 Bramerton
Andover, KS 67002

MTC-00011352

From: David Baur
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:39am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: The District Court of the United States of America

Attn: Honorable Judge J. Fredrick Motz
Dear Judge Motz,

I disagree with you, as to YOUR rejection of the proposed settlement that Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson court had arrived at. I do not believe that the Corporation known as Microsoft should have been sued for anti-trust violations's in the very first place. I know of not one single industry that has done as much as Microsoft, to advance the education of millions of peoples within these United States of America, and peoples throughout the entire world.

There are however many Corporations within these United States that clearly demonstrate, and factually have, a monopolistic position as to market share....Southwest Bell, Frito Lay division of Pepsico Inc. just to mention a few. Perhaps if you truly want to pursue anti-trust as a Judge, visit your local grocery store and simply go to the chip section and see just how many competitors you have. I think you will find Frito vs Frito vs Frito...

Also instead of pursuing a Corporation like Microsoft. which in my opinion should not have been done in the first place; why not pursue a better criminal justice system. Talk about a disgrace to the American Citizenry.... our legal system is absolutely an abortion of legal justice, and I am not speaking of anti-trust suits, I am speaking of the common everyday criminal act...of the murders, or the rape, of robbery, of the freedom that many criminals receive in the courts within these United States of America!

Let your talents be used in solving the problem of the citizen. Let's get back to basics Judge.

Someone in Gov't needs to provide a better way to communicate with the Gov't., why not spend some time with Bill Gates and develop a system in which the citizenry can vote, communicate, state their opinions, make observations, suggest solutions to our (suppose to be) government.

Let not one man have one voice, but rather have one man supported by many voices.

Thank You,
David H. Baur Sr.
David H. Baur
11770 Ferguson
Dallas, Texas 75228
972 279 4927 front desk number
972 279 4939 back office number

MTC-00011353

From: A P Story
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:36am
Subject: microsoft settlement

Will probably end up a big mess like Bell/AT&T. What's happened to the old spirit of building a business and not getting shot down? I don't own much Microsoft but am greatly disappointed.

MTC-00011355

From: Joseph Rizzo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:51am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the settlement is outrageous and very pro-microsoft. Microsoft should be hit with huge fines and required to provide only hardware to school systems. The schools should have the choice of either an Apple system or an Intel system running Linux.

MTC-00011356

From: Mark Keckeis
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 11:53am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Judge Kollar-Kotally;

I, like many people in the technology industry, am frustrated and concerned by the DOJ's Proposed Final Judgment in it's anti-trust case against Microsoft. Having found Microsoft to be a monopoly and to have acted in a predatory manner, the DOJ looks like it's about to let Microsoft off with little more than a slap on the wrist. Why should Microsoft be above the law? The DOJ should do three things in order to ensure that the law is administered fairly:

1. Terminate Microsoft's illegal monopoly,
2. Deny to Microsoft the fruits of its past violations, and
3. Prevent any future anticompetitive activity.

I cant see that the PFJ does any of these things. Judge Kollar-Kotally, I am not an attorney but I have been in the technology industry since 1982 working for a number of vendors including Data General (now a part of EMC), Apple Computer for 8 years, and four start-up software companies since 1996 including four years at Commerce One. I have personally observed Microsoft behavior both as a competitor and as a partner. They are everything that the original suit and verdict found them to be. It's a part of their culture. It's the way their best and brightest get ahead. The PFJ will exacerbate the behavior that made them a monopoly and created the suit in the first place.

Microsoft is not an innovator. They play the late entry game that their size affords them. By the way, they are not alone in this practice. All of the largest companies, Oracle, SAP and others do the same thing. It is possible for them because they have recognized brand, distribution and money. Three things that very few small, innovative companies have in quantities that allow them to compete head to head with these giants. The difference is that Microsoft is a MONOPOLY. By "bolting", It literally costs them nothing to take the ideas and concepts of much smaller companies and leverage two of these three powerful resources.

The innovation that has made the American economy the most prosperous on the planet is a fragile thing. It starts in small ways with concepts and ideas can become powerful when properly deployed in the marketplace. The PFJ will throttle and undermine the risk-takers who have been the source of so many of the ideas that will drive our industry—and the American economy—forward.

Please, don't allow the PFJ to stand. Strike it down. The American economy will survive and thrive through a settlement that enforces the law.

Thanks for your consideration and best regards,

Mark Keckeis
Director of Sales
nthOrbit
3031 Tisch Way, Suite 12PW
San Jose, CA 95128
Cell: 925-963-0161
Office: 408-423-4690

MTC-00011357

From: Bunneyn@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:58am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir:

Microsoft is one of this countries leading growth companies. They have contributed to our economy and citizens, and we personally have benefited from their products at a fair price.

This action is about money. How to extract money from a successful company by politicians, competitors, and the government. You cannot fool the public. Perhaps 50% of all U.S. citizens have some interest in Microsoft, either through stock or their products, and this action effects them. We have more important problems to expend our resources on, THE ECONOMY.

Rod Bunney
bunneyn@aol.com

MTC-00011358

From: Bill Richart

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:58am
Subject: microsoft settlement case

Please see the attached letter with respect to the Microsoft settlement case. Sincerely,
William Richart
2445 Sheridan Street
Williamsport Penns Ivania 17701
January 10, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

The settlement of the Microsoft antitrust case has taken too long to occur. Litigation should have never taken place from the start and the nine states that have continued lawsuits need to be suppressed.

Microsoft is an extremely important asset to the tech sector in our economy. Our government should be praising the company for all it has done instead of criticizing it. As a firm believer in free enterprise, I think it is ridiculous that Microsoft must disclose its technological secrets. Have we no more respect for intellectual property? Now Microsoft must work with a handicap like no other in the history of the IT sector.

This nation needs to get past this legal mess. The settlement presents a viable solution, so I support it. It is time to get back to the business of innovation, and leave litigation behind.

Sincerely,
William Richart
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00011359

From: SOster629@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:02pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I agree with Microsoft. Get on with this settlement instead of trying to get us stockholders to finance the several dissenting state governments' budgets. The courts have accomplished everything legal and allowable. Let the states balance their own budgets and let Microsoft go back to doing what they do best—making the software the public wants. Thanks. Sam Ostertag, Mesa, AZ.

MTC-00011360

From: David Zickefoose
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 11:23am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Zickefoose
10314 Washington Drive
Omaha, NE 68127
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry.

It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David C. Zickefoose

MTC-00011361

From: Randy Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:03pm
Subject: RE MS Settlement

As a long time software developer (who has never worked for Microsoft or owned their stock), I urge you to strike a blow for consumers, and drop your suit. MS has served as a strong competitor against potential monopolists such as Digital Research, IBM, Novell, Sun, Oracle, & Netscape, which is why current and former executives of those companies continue to lobby you against Microsoft. Instead you should stand fast for Microsoft's right to compete and for consumers rights to benefit from that competition.

Digital Research sold CP/M and derivatives for $200 and up to consumers when IBM PC was released, it was MS's release of MS/DOS that made the PC affordable and usable. Adjusted for inflation, the price of Microsoft's operating system has barely increased (from $40—$100 over 20 years), yet instead of a cryptic command line interface with minimal utilities written by less than a dozen engineers, consumers now get the fruits of thousands of engineers efforts containing built in pc & printer networking, graphical user interfaces, high speed file systems, word processor (wordpad), internet browser, calculator, e-mail, paint program, terminal program, games, etc. If you force Microsoft to unbundle any of these products, you will cost consumers millions of dollars by forcing them to pay separately for each of the products they need. No software company has the right to compete by forcing consumers to pay for what another company is willing to provide as part of a bundle. As a software developer I know that "middleware" is a dangerous place to compete since it's likely to be incorporated into a future OS release, but I also know that I benefit when MS bundling continuously makes their OS more feature rich and accessible, as an internet developer I know our market would have been retarded had not Microsoft made internet access simple, easy and free by bundling explorer.

I also know that Netscape had dozens of competitors, which they brutally destroyed by giving away their browser (they of course say they only gave away a "beta" but I was there, the beta was a very solid application that made it unnecessary to buy a browser from anyone else). Unlike Microsoft, they didn't plan to keep their browser free, just until they made it the dominant middleware for accessing the internet, then like a good monopolist they planned to stick to the consumer. Now the DOJ wants to stick to us and force everyone to pay $49 for a "browser tax"?

Look through history. Lotus dominated the spreadsheet market, forcing everyone to pay $500 for the "standard", a standard so entrenched that no company could compete successfully against them. Microsoft and others created better spreadsheets, but to no avail. It wasn't until Microsoft was smart enough to create Office, giving corporations much more value (word-processing and other products) for the same $500, that the monopoly was broken. Consumers saved hundreds of millions of dollars due to Microsoft's efforts.

It's the same in networking, where Novell built a standard around their decrepit Netware Server operating systems. It wasn't until Microsoft created Windows NT, and built a cheaper, better network operating system that consumers and corporations had a choice. It's the same in databases, where MS keeps Oracle honest, and in workstations & serves, where MS keeps Sun honest. Please strike a blow for competition and drop your suit, please don't force me and other consumers to pay more for our software.

thanks,
Clarke Hill

MTC-00011362

From: Patricia Book
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 11:38am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Patricia Book
6234 E. Presidio
Mesa, AZ 85215
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Patricia Book

MTC-00011363

From: RLFiala@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:19pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

AS A CONCERNED CITIZEN I BELIEVE ALL OF THE ANTITRUST LITIGATION AGAINST MICROSOFT SHOULD COME TO AN END AND ALLOW THE COMPANY TO DEVOTE IT'S TIME AND MONEY AND ENERGIES TO THE CREATION OF BETTER SOFTWARE AND PRODUCTS TO HELP CONSUMERS AS IT HAS SO SUPERBLY DONE IN THE PAST. ONE CONCERNED CITIZEN

MTC-00011364

From: Kentyn Reynolds
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Re: Microsoft Settlement,

In my position as CTO of a large Internet based company I have the opportunity to observe the long-term effects of Microsoft's outrageous behavior. I have seen how Microsoft's undermining of JAVA and other standards has pushed the industry backwards by at least 10 years, and cost every company that I know thousands of unnecessary dollars in multiple development efforts and exception level programming. With the latest US court ruling we now have given Microsoft access to infiltrate our government with millions of dollars of crippling technology. Microsoft should feel the maximum punishment of the law for their monopolistic practices. Please reexamine the recent rulings on this case and create justice for the small technology companies that legally support our government.

Kentyn Reynolds
CTO
ClickAction

MTC-00011365

From: Steve Foerster
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think that the whole matter was nothing more than the U.S. government trying to strongarm the only major industry that didn't kowtow to them, and thus the matter should be dropped immediately with a full apology to Microsoft's employees and shareholders (I am neither) and the American people.

Steve Foerster

MTC-00011366

From: Pete Holsberg
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:29pm
Subject: Revised Proposed Final Judgement
Dear Reader,
I have read the Revised Proposed Final Judgment against Microsoft and completely concur. I do have a question: why does this judgment expire at all? Why is Microsoft not held to this forever and ever? Should Microsoft return to its old ways after this judgment expires, can further action be taken against them?

Thank you,
Pete Holsberg
Columbus, NJ 08022

MTC-00011367

From: richardlaughlin@webtv.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Folks,

How can you continue to punish our most successful American companies that give the consumer products that are worth to me as a user at least 50 times more than the small cost of their software? I'm a Microsoft WebTV user. For only $14.95 per month I get access to cyberspace. I use my WebTV everyday and love it. I don't know of anybody, except Microsoft's failed competitors, that complains about Microsoft's products being too expensive.

Why doesn't the Federal government do something about my higher and higher electric bills at home instead of trying to fix Microsoft when it is not even broken. How about a U.S. energy policy that brings down the cost of living everyday. Microsoft has not changed my WebTV monthly cost of $14.95 for over 3 years but my electric costs go up every year.

Thank you for listening.
Richard Stouts

MTC-00011368

From: Lee Behel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:32am
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge the Justice Department to accept the proposed settlement. Microsoft has suffered unjustly long enough and the entire technology sector needs this to end now.

Lee Behel

MTC-00011369

From: Randy Loflin
To: microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov
Date: 1/15/02 12:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Settlement
Renata Hesse
Trial Attorney
Suite 1200
Antitrust Division
Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Washington, DC 20530
January 15, 2002

Dear Ms. Hesse,

I am writing to object to the settlement of the Microsoft case which has been reached. Nothing in this settlement provides punishment of Microsoft, or relief to the consumers of computer products and programs in the United States. As a 30+ year computer user, programmer and buyer, I find the settlement, which allows Microsoft to continue its monopoly, to be of no help to me. In fact, as witnessed by recent FBI comments regarding the Microsoft XP operating system, maintaining the Microsoft monopoly can only be hazardous to the people of the United States. Any decision in this, the penalty, phase of the trial should include provisions to make Microsoft operating systems compete equally with other operating systems, i.e., it should be an add on to any computer system, not bundled with the system. Additionally, Microsoft program document types must be available to the developers of other programs, so that document interchange will be facilitated. And thirdly, Microsoft internet schemata must interface without problems with all internet users.

Finally, I would like to say that we must remember that this is the penalty phase of the trial. Microsoft has already been found guilty of antitrust violations. Now is the time to support the citizens of the United States, the computer users, buyers, sellers and programmers in this, the new millennium.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Should you have any questions, feel free to contact me.

James R. Loflin
jloflin@elp.rr.com
6020 Camino Alegre
El Paso, Tx 79912-2606
(915) 581-1476 (home)
(915) 771-6391 (work)
(915) 373-1476 (cell)
(915) 774-4905 (fax)

MTC-00011370

From: Bob Gregg
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 12:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I want the DOJ to settle this case. The offer is fair and in the public interest. DOJ resources should be applied to more critical agenda items.

MTC-00011371

From: Jim McDonald
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Penalty Suggestion

Here's what I'd like:

1. Force Microsoft to adopt a file format for all Office applications and PUBLISH their spec. Note that I am not asking for the publication of the source code of Office, simply the description of the file formats used. This way, people can use other Office suites (PerfectOffice, SmartSuite, StarOffice) without wondering if the files created will load properly in Word, Excel, Powerpoint, etc... Just this would open up some competition in the Office Suite market.

2. Force Microsoft to publish every single API in Windows. Again, I am not asking for the publication of the windows source code, but simply to the Application Programming Interface. This would have two benefits: It would make sure that every service, every facility is clearly exposed for use while at the same time, removing the cloud of suspicion that Microsoft has some secret APIs that make their applications work better than others.

3. Muzzle the Microsoft FUD division. This is by far the most irritating aspect of Microsoft as a business entity. They generate FUD and make believe that other competing products are not good while it's far from the case. Feel free to select your example, there are tons of them out there.

4. Forbid them to use the words "innovate" and "innovation" unless they can specifically show that they are the first-movers for the particular product they are advertising. Again, there are tons of examples out there where Microsoft has been only an "adapter" as opposed to an "innovator".

5. Offer a striped-down version of Windows. Just the bare bones and a text-based browser (like Lynx) for initial download of the browser of choice. Nothing else built-in, nothing else cobbled together. A base install should not be more than 20 Megabytes and should scream on Pentium-class machines.

6. Word the requirements that hefty fines will be leveraged for non-compliance. Hopefully, this way, we'll have more competition and a better computing environment. As well, if Microsoft is still dominant after this, it'll be because they have earned it the good old-fashioned way and we'll have little if anything to complain about.

MTC-00011372

From: Samuel Sotillo-Hermoso
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:49pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Since the beginning, the decision to prosecute MS was not a good idea at all; however, the settlement is a worst one. In fact, it is a populist approach to tell MS to give to "disadvantaged public schools more than $1 billion in funding, software, services and training, and around 1 million Windows licenses for renovated PCs." This "gift" is the imposition of a de facto monopoly under government sponsorship.

I hope you can settle this subject in a way that helps all customers, not only a fraction of them, without damaging the whole industry. Remember that the IT sector is not only MS.

Samuel Sotillo
Statesville, NC

MTC-00011373

From: mail@grsummers.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:51pm
Subject: Opinion regarding the microsoft settlement

Dear Sir or Madam,

I'm an American citizen overseas and I would like to express my concern about the recent Microsoft decision. I was greatly disturbed about the appearance of "injustice" that it embodies. I don't think that a convicted monopolist with a long track record of the destruction of highly innovative companies can be left virtually untouched. In many ways, this company now exerts more influence than the US government in economic terms both nationally and internationally and, rulings that allow the continued misbehavior of this confirmed monopolist, in my view, represent a real threat to our national economic welfare and our democracy. In fact, I just don't understand how this ruling has emerged from the most respected justice body in the world—although I didn't agree with the previous manner of Judge Jackson's ruling (content aside), the present situation appears to be wholly unjust to an industry that is the very essence of innovation in America and who's strength has been built upon the emergence of thousands small innovative companies over the last 20 to 30 years. I agree wholeheartedly with the economist J Shumpeter who believed that the health of a nation's economy and its economic future is based upon innovation and that the purpose of profit is to pay for "creative destruction"—the cost of innovation. Take a look at the US computer industry—is this not an example of Shumpeter's views in the purest sense? Is this not the primary reason for the success of the US economy during the last 20-years?

Microsoft now totally dominates the desktop market in both operating systems and applications software, it dominates the hardware industry through this means, it holds a very strong position in the server market. It has done this by the elimination of competition at every possible opportunity—by leveraging dominance of the operating system. This is a fact that can be illustrated in repeated instances; IBM, Lotus, Netscape and Apple being just four examples, shall I go on? The next step for them, and the objective of their .net strategy, is to take over the internet, and place gateways for every user of the internet. This can easily be done by dominating the desktop market with Windows XP, with its raw sockets, and introducing a new MS standard MS TCP/IP protocol for the control of data transmission in the guise of greater security. Who can fight this when Microsoft controls the software on more than 90 percent of the desktop machines? And it can be done in an invisible way, so that the average consumer and the US government will not even notice—until it is too late, just like Lotus, Apple, Netscape, and others. The additional strategy that they are seeking, is to use the patent system and their legal muscle to control the Open Source Software development movement, which now is the only real threat (following the DOJ decision) that remains. If Microsoft is successful in these two ways, then the US government will definitely be relegated to a second class status and will become a virtual, economic fiefdom of the Microsoft Corporation. Can you imagine that the most important aspect of the information age in the United States, the internet, it's software, hardware and income will be totally dominated by one company? Incidentally, the internet, don't forget, was created by the Department of Defense and the UNIX world, federal government and University research agencies, not commercial entities.

The American economic system has long been based upon the idea of creating a level playing field for small businesses. This was a major concern at the time of the American revolution; many experts would say that the American revolution was a battle of the small business economic model (America) against the control of a government Mercantile system (giant global British trading companies). The American economic system maintained a relatively healthy balance until the emergence of the "robber barons" of the late 1800's, which led to the current anti-trust laws that we have today, implemented under Woodrow Wilson. I am not a socialist nor am I a pure capitalist, but I do believe that one role of the government and that of the Justice Department in economics is to ensure a level playing field for all participants. Otherwise the entire economic system becomes skewed, such that we create a few extremely wealthy individuals and then everyone else. This is not a healthy development for any democracy; especially the greatest and most successful democracy in history.

How about some analogies to the original antitrust legislation of the previous turn of the century (1900)—the "robber barons" were largely the rail tycoons. They controlled the railroad networks and the machines that ran them, allowing them to control interstate trade. In the present turn of the century, Microsoft represents the same threat in the information age, where they control the machines (read desktop computers) and now want to control the "tracks" (read internet). Is there any real difference? Not hardly. The stakes are much greater—because it is then just one small step to the control of information. And we all know how democracy is undermined by placing the control of information in the hands of one entity, be it a person, political party of company. Look at Hitler's Germany, Stalin's Russia—in the future will we say Microsoft's America? If there is to be control of information (and I'm not arguing that there should), then it should at least be of the people and for the people—in other words, a (frequently) elected body—not a private individual, one person or one company. That's the way democracies work.

As I said, I am not a socialist nor am I a laissez-faire capitalist; this email is being written on Microsoft software on my laptop; I use Linux software on my desktop at home, and we utilize a mixture of Microsoft and Linux in our office network. I see advantages and disadvantages in all systems. But the development of competition has not come from other commercial entities to Microsoft, because these would soon perish. The competition has come from a grass-roots volunteer effort, of thousands of developers from around the world, working through the internet on common problems and common projects without financial compensation—rather, for the pure purpose of making computer software that is based upon a common and open standard, has freely available source code, is free to use and is technically the best that it can be. I have no doubt that Microsoft wishes to destroy this movement, as their recent public statements about open source software licensing will testify.

What are other countries doing? The EU recognizes the danger that Microsoft poses, and has their own "anti-trust" action underway. In Asia, enormous support is being given to open source software. China is basing their national software industry on government-supported Linux systems. Japan is a significant supporter and Korea has just announced the installation of Linux for some 120,000 government employees. India is supporting both commercial and open source software. I have read that our own government is moving to open source solutions in many areas - let's not let our legal system destroy this valuable economic development.

I don't know what the correct solution is; I am not so naive as to think that this is all a one-sided situation; and I personally don't like to see any successful company penalized for that success. Nor do I like to see private, open source development destroyed by a financial power of a monopolist. The solution, perhaps, is not the present one, nor is it the previous decision of Judge Jackson. It lies elsewhere, and should be subjected to further study by technical experts. It's worth taking more time in this one—this threatens our democracy, our way of life and our economic welfare.

Just like railroads, telecommunications, power, etc, there comes a time when the government must step in and protect the economic welfare of its citizens and the economic future of the nation. Allowing such a monopolist as Microsoft to continue to operate virtually unfettered is the wrong thing to do for the computer industry and for our democracy.

G Robin Summers mail@grsummers.com

MTC-00011374

From: Jeff Holcomb
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Department of Justice,

I strongly oppose the proposed settlement with Microsoft. The "remedy" has no teeth and will do nothing to stop Microsoft from continuing to abuse its monopoly power. Only through strong enforcement and a curb on their monopoly can other companies compete with Microsoft. They have shown time and again that they will be ruthless and will continue to abuse their monopoly.

Jeff Holcomb
mrfy@mac.com
Tucson, AZ

MTC-00011375

From: Michael Motyka
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:25pm
Subject: One important facet of the settlement.

I am concerned with one aspect of Microsoft's behavior that has a serious negative effect on competition and angers me when I go computer shopping : MS using it's large market share to suppress competition by pressuring computer vendors into restrictive license agreements. Please look into MS licensing requirements that prevent vendors from offering non-MSWIN machines or dual-boot machines (machines that can boot either MSWIN or an alternative OS by a user's choice at startup). This problem is common for desktops but is even more striking in the laptop market. I would like to purchase a laptop computer but every laptop on the market contains MSWIN. It is a fact that Linux can run on laptops. Why can't I buy a laptop w/o Windows and skip the license fee for something I don't want? Laptop vendors may say they don't want to sell a product w/o MSWIN but there have been rumors of MS pressure on vendors to not sell a competing OS.

Personally, I intend to cease purchasing MS products from this time forward and move everyone in my family to an open source OS like Linux. I want YOU to be sure that I can get hardware without paying a Microsoft TAX!

Mike

MTC-00011376

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:56pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
From: Andyman568@aol.com
Sent: Monday, January 14, 2002 7:48 PM
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
Cc: stopmicrosoft@yahoo.com
Subject: (no subject)

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
I am a student at Boston College, and I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ).

First, the PFJ does nothing to stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly through the use of its operating system. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. It would be a terrible standard to set by letting Microsoft get away with its retaliation tactics, bolting schemes, and attacks on Java. All these tactics lower competition in a supposedly free market and also limit software standards. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

To sum up, I'm deeply concerned the recent settlement does not regulate Microsoft enough in the future allowing Microsoft to continue its monopolistic tactics. In addition, Microsoft is not even being punished for laws it clearly broke in the past. This sets a terrible standard. I would request that you do your best to overturn this settlement.

Sincerely,

Andrew Goldberg

Brighton, Massachusetts

CC:sara.Hinchey@ago.state.ma.us@inetgw

MTC-00011377

From: Mid Continent Trucking
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:00pm
Subject: U.S. v Microsoft
CC: tomist@ag.state.ia.us@inetgw
January 14, 2002
Hon. Colleen Kollar-Kotelly
U.S. District Court, District of Columbia c/o
Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW, Suite 1200 Washington, DC
20530

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotelly:

I am writing to you to express my support for Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller and his efforts to obtain a fair settlement for the citizens of Iowa with respect to the pending U.S. v. Microsoft case. It is my belief that the proposed settlement is a means for the U.S. Department of Justice to make a long-standing case go away. If I were a stockholder of Microsoft, which I am not, I would definitely be in favor of this settlement. However, as a consumer, I am deeply disturbed by the failure to eliminate their monopoly, and the eventual impact Microsoft will have on the availability of competition technologies, due to their domination of the market.

As I sit here composing this letter, my thoughts run the gamete of issues surrounding the Department of Justice proposed settlement, but not being an attorney, I feel that any argument I may make would be deficient in delivery and impact. It is for this reason that I rely on the office of the Iowa Attorney General to protect my interests. It is my hope that after reviewing all sides of this issue, that you arrive at a settlement that adequately addresses the liability of Microsoft with respect to their violation of antitrust laws.

Sincerely

Dennis K. Henderson

40404 190th St.

Mapleton, IA 51034

MTC-00011378

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:57pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
From: Salim Furth [s2000chops@yahoo.com]
Sent: Wednesday, January 09, 2002 2:32 PM
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

To be quite brief, I urge you to reject the U.S. Justice Department's agreement with the Microsoft Corporation. As a computer-dependent student and webmaster, I experience firsthand the MS software and OS monopoly firsthand, and find it distinctly unAmerican. The inability of other operating systems and software providers to be competitive in the American market effectively outsources innovation overseas, which will catch up with the U.S. software industry in a few years if Microsoft is not stopped.

Thank you for entertaining input from citizens, as one such citizen I greatly appreciate this service.

Sincerely,

Salim Furth

Milton, Massachusetts

s2000chops@yahoo.com

CC:sara.Hinchey@ago.state.ma.us@inetgw

MTC-00011379

From: WENDELL SPIRES
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 12:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
WENDELL SPIRES
3601 N 300 E
KOKOMO, IN 46901
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

WENDELL SPIRES

MTC-00011380

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:01pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Dear Judge; I would like to bring to your attention what I and many other members of the technological community think is totally unacceptable in the proposed deal between Microsoft and the justice department.

1. The deal completely fails to terminate the Microsoft monopoly, allowing it to expand into new markets. The fact that Microsoft has abused its monopoly and is likely to do so again does not seem to be important enough for the justice department to stop Microsoft from monopolizing the market now, and preventing it from doing so in the future.

2. According to the deal, Microsoft is allowed to decide which product should be a "part of the OS". This gives a way for Microsoft to bind any of its non-operating system related products to Windows. It could be Internet Explorer as an example of the web browser, or a stock trading software, or any other service or software, preventing users from installing and using products other than provided by Microsoft.

3. Although the deal requires Microsoft to allow the PC manufacturers to hide Microsoft middleware programs and allow them to install icons or links to competing middleware programs, PC manufacturers are not allowed to remove Microsoft's programs completely. As a result, those Microsoft programs may prompt the user to reconfigure the system and replace all the competitor's middleware with Microsoft middleware, if they'd like. Many users would say "yes", which will remove all the competing middleware.

4. Another important issue that is not addressed in the deal is the way Microsoft deals with existing and potential competitors. For example, the deal does not restrict retaliation against potential competitors.

5. Microsoft refuses to support Java developers and alters industry standards, like Java, to defeat competition. Still, the deal does not require Microsoft to continue to distribute Java technologies.

6. The deal requires Microsoft to share information on how its middleware and server software work together with Windows. However, Microsoft does not have to disclose this information for middleware it does not distribute separate from windows, or for middleware it has not trademarked. It means, if the software is included into the Windows package, they don't have to share any information about how it works with Windows. This is an easy way to hide API's from competitors and make sure the competitor does not have information needed to make its software to work with Windows reliably. Also, if Microsoft feels the information disclosure would harm the company's security, they don't have to share the information.

7. There is no effective enforcement mechanism for restrictions in the deal. The group of three men, half of which will be controlled by Microsoft, will not be allowed to inform the public of their work, and cannot impose fines. In addition, the work of the committee cannot be admitted into court in any enforcement proceeding.

8. The deal imposes only some fines on Microsoft, but allows it to retain almost all of the profit gained from its unlawful activities. This settlement gives a way to any monopolist to brake the anti-trust law, just like Microsoft did, without any fear of losing their profits.

Thank you for your attention,
Oleg Efimov
Saratoga, California
CC:microsoftcomments@doj.ca.gov@inetgw

MTC-00011381

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:03pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
From: Jonathan Hill (hilljn@bc.edu)
Sent: Sunday, January 13, 2002 1:21 PM
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
I am a student at Boston College, and I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ).

First, the PFJ does not stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly. It does not force Microsoft to substansively alter its structure and marketing plans. The inability of the settlement to force Microsoft to change its business sctrure makes the settlement pointless. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. It would set a terrible standard if Microsoft was allowed to get away with its monopolistic and abusive tactics. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

All in all, the settlement between Microsoft and the Justice Department is weak and does not fix the basic problems the suit was brought to correct. I urge you to do everything in your power to overturn the settlement.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Hill
Brighton, Massachusetts
CC:sara.Hinchey@ago.state.ma.us@inetgw

MTC-00011382

From: venkatesalu rajagopal

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:08pm
Subject: Dear Sir/Madam,

Dear Sir/Madam,
The success and flourishing of Microsoft is essential for the economic wellbeing of the country and of individual citizens. Damaging such national 'treasure' is only to benefit some companies that can not compete in the open market place and it will do incalculable damage to ordinary citizens. Please do not do it.

Sincerely,
Rajagopal

MTC-00011383

From: McKim, Patrick
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would encourage the Department of Justice to settle the Microsoft Case. Any further action will only be passed along to consumers as additional cost, and that doesn't make sense.

Settle it!!
Patrick McKim

MTC-00011384

From: rbrhodes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:12pm
Subject: Letter
6420 SE Winged Foot Drive Stuart, Florida
34997

January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:
I am writing to address the outcome of the Microsoft antitrust suit. I am in agreement with the current settlement in so far as to say that absolutely no further action should be taken against Microsoft. I believe that this antitrust suit was unfounded from the start. The issue at stake here as I see it is not whether or not Microsoft is guilty of violating antitrust laws, but is whether or not the state and federal governments are guilty of infringing on free enterprise. I am in agreement with this settlement for one reason only, and that is to see this suit come to an end immediately. I do not believe that Microsoft should have had to make the concessions that they have. Under the terms of the settlement Microsoft is required to license its Windows products out to 20 of the largest computer makers on identical terms, including cost. Additionally, they will be required to document and divulge key interfaces of the Windows operating system to their competitors for the purposes of software development. Should any of these internal interfaces fall under intellectual property rights, Microsoft will be required to grant fair license for the use of said intellectual properties. I believe that these restrictions are unfair to Microsoft, but once again I must begrudgingly support the terms of the settlement for the sake of further economic development and bringing this suit to a final resolution. I have been a long time user of Microsoft products, and have owned several computers over the years. To have come this far only to be struck down by the jealousy of other less successful competitors is outrageous to me. To sum up my views on this issue I ask you this, where would the IT industry be today without the existence of Microsoft? Certainly not where it is now.

Sincerely,
Ronald Rhodes

MTC-00011385

From: NKatt54590@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
January 15, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:
I am writing to express my support for the settlement reached between the Justice Department and Microsoft. It is my understanding that you are currently entertaining public comment on the proposed settlement.

I know that the Microsoft matter was very difficult to resolve and I am sure that the proposed settlement will not make everyone happy. For that matter, I don't think there is any possible resolution to this matter that would make everyone happy, no matter how hard you tried. This settlement allows additional competition, which didn't exist before the suit, but allows Microsoft to remain a viable entity. I think that is best for all involved and for our country. The settlement is fair. Microsoft will share information with its competitors regarding the internal working of Windows, allowing them to more easily place their own programs on the operating system. I support the settlement. Thank you for allowing me to comment on this matter.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Norma Katt
911 Canterbury Drive
Columbia, MO 65203

MTC-00011386

From: Larry Lundquist
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:14pm
Subject: Microsoft judgement

This settlement that the last few states are asking for, is not right. The things they are asking for is not in line with what they have accused Microsoft of. The first settlement that the Justice Department has agreed to, is all the farther this case should go.

Larry Lundquist
1630 152nd SE
Bellevue, Washington

MTC-00011387

From: Miller, Dale (HOU)
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement:

Regarding the following:
The Tunney Act review period, during which the Department of Justice seeks public comment on its proposed antitrust settlement with 9 states and Microsoft, closes Monday, January 28. The settlement is not guaranteed until after the review ends and the District Court determines whether the settlement is indeed in the public interest. I am in full support of the settlement terms, and in complete agreement with the Microsoft stance/approach to the settlement terms.

Regards,
Dale Miller
Compaq Computer Corporation
Platform Validation, ABG
Phone: 281-514-1695
Pager: 713-990-8265
Office: 7170
Email: dale.miller@compaq.com

MTC-00011388

From: Michael Schwartz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I was completely aghast when I recently went to several major retail stores (Office Depot, Best Buy, Staples among others) looking to purchase a laptop computer. Every laptop came bundled with Windows XP.

Having read about security issues in Windows XP, I asked each store if I could get a laptop bundled with a different operating system. In particular, I asked about Linux and even Windows 2000 as alternate possibilities to Windows XP. In each case, I was told that it was not possible.

I suspect that I could have simply purchased Linux separately in the hope that there would be drivers available for the hardware in the laptop, but this is often not the case and I likely would have had to spend a great deal more money to replace existing hardware which would be compatible to Linux.

The bottom line here is that I had no choice at all. On December 21, 2001, I purchased a laptop bundled with Windows XP and installed Windows 2000 on it to have a dual boot system. Some of the hardware is new enough that there are no Windows 2000 drivers for it. In fact, there are several devices that Windows 2000 does not recognize at all and I am unable to identify them.

This is a serious problem for consumers. Microsoft's monopoly must be stopped. Not only do I have no choice regarding other vendors' operating systems, I also have no choice regarding which Microsoft operating system I want to use. I was forced to use Windows XP.

Thank you for your consideration.
Michael Schwartz

MTC-00011389

From: Carmen A. Cancel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:14pm
Subject: case

I can't believe the justice department is still harassing Microsoft. Where were you when Enron was stealing from it's stock holders. I can't believe how selective you can be about your cases. Does it have to do with the amount of money the company passes or doesn't pass out to the officials? I don't get a penny for this letter, but I say these things because I do admire a man that has worked so hard to make his dream come true. Get OFF Microsoft's back already!!!

Thank you, Carmen A. Cancel

MTC-00011390

From: RobertPH1@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's close this case against Microsoft and get on with business. As for the fine being in the form computers with microsoft o/s in them, make it cash so the schools can choose which computer and systems they prefer and are most compatible within their respective schools. Also, I think the states should drop their suits. My concern is that the states have gotten a taste from the tobacco settlements and are now looking for other ways to collect money. The fact is the lawyer friends of the politicians are probably the ones who are making out the most!!! Bob Hanson

MTC-00011391

From: Edwina Houliemi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We think that it would be in the best interest of the American economy to settle the Microsoft case and get on with life.

Edwina and Patrick Houliemi

MTC-00011392

From: Robert Fox
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:18pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

In my opinion, it is high time to settle this case and move on together to help revive the economy and win the war against terrorism. We don't need any more of this type of antagonism towards business. We need to continue to move forward and concentrate on things that really matter.

Robert

MTC-00011393

From: Gregory Slayton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:13pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
From: Kentyn Reynolds
[mailto:kentynr@clickaction.com]
Sent: Tuesday, January 15, 2002 9:12 AM
To: 'Microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov'
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Re: Microsoft Settlement,

In my position as CTO of a large Internet based company I have the opportunity to observe the long-term effects of Microsoft's outrageous behavior. I have seen how Microsoft's undermining of JAVA and other standards has pushed the industry backwards by at least 10 years, and cost every company that I know thousands of unnecessary dollars in multiple development efforts and exception level programming. With the latest US court ruling we now have given Microsoft access to infiltrate our government with millions of dollars of crippling technology. Microsoft should feel the maximum punishment of the law for their monopolistic practices. Please reexamine the recent rulings on this case and create justice for the small technology companies that legally support our government.

Kentyn Reynolds
CTO
ClickAction
CC:microsoftcomments@doj.ca.gov@inetgw

MTC-00011394

From: Tom Rizzo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:17pm
Subject: Anti-trust settlement

I would like to applaud the justice department for finally settling with Microsoft. The allegations against the company, in my opinion, were unfounded. Let's move on and get back to business in the US.

Tom Rizzo

MTC-00011395

From: gjmoran1@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough taxpayer money has been wasted on this unnecessary case. Let Microsoft and this country's computer-users get back to the business of participating in the good use of technology.

MTC-00011396

From: Berkland, David
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:15pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
hi

it is time to stop the endlews lawsuits all levels of government should cease trying to grab a tobacco type bonanza from microsoft, in fact the y would be better served crafting some legislation that would prevent these types of lawyer employment suits from being initiated in my opinion the various state DA's use this case and others to further their careers at the expense of the public and the victim corporations the DA's should be jailed for misuse of public funds

MTC-00011397

From: ajcor@erols.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is not the USA that is taking action against Microsoft. It is the idiot Liberals and Clinton Administration that initiated this moronic action.

MTC-00011398

From: REWOLFX@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:17pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

PLEASE ADD MY VOICE TO THE MAJORITY WHO FEEL THAT THE SETTLEMENT IN THIS FOUR YEAR CASE WAS FAIRLY ADJUDICATED AND THE LAST THING OUR ECONOMY NEEDS RIGHT NOW IS MORE LITIGATION. PLEASE LET THIS MATTER END NOW.
SINCERELY
FERN LOWER

MTC-00011399

From: jerry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:20pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

microsoft should offer a version of windows that is JUST the operating system with NOTHING bundled into it, such as internet explorer, netmeeting, messenger, outlook express, etc.

thank you for taking the time to read my thought on the matter

MTC-00011400

From: Danuel Colter
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To say that over the last few years I could puke at the sheer idiocy of the whole bit is putting it mildly. What Microsoft as a Corporation that employs so very many people around the world, has endured is truly mind boggling garbage. To say this was a trumped up bunch of nonsense is putting it mildly, such money grubbing little idiots I had never expected from my American neighbours, but as they say, the lawyers are nothing short of charlatans.

Danuel Colter
Box 154
Emerson, Manitoba, Canada
R0A 0L0
dcolter@mb.sympatico.ca

MTC-00011401

From: Liz McCollum
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In view of all the facts—leave Microsoft alone—why bring down yet another company that's doing just fine without interference from the U.S. Government.

Liz McCollum
S&S Services Group, Inc.
6222 Tower Lane Suite A-6
Sarasota FL 34240
941-377-4600 Phone 941-377-4610 Fax
snsliz@snservices.com www.snservices.com

MTC-00011402

From: Connie Williams
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

I'm really getting tired of the courts dragging this settlement issue out. Microsoft has made a fair and viable solution to the courts. It is apparent that the only voices of protest come from competitors. Consumers do not and have never had a voice in this whole debate. Microsoft has always played fair, they have had the brains and know how to market their product. If other companies had half the smarts that Microsoft does then they wouldn't be yelling foul. If competitors feel that this settlement will give even more visibility to the consumers then maybe they should step up to the plate and donate an equal amount. Fair is fair, let's settle this and let Microsoft get back to making the world a much easier place to communicate!

Thank you!

MTC-00011403

From: Harry Hertless
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
15128 W Amelia Drive
Goodyear, Arizona 85338
January 15, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

Please finalize the antitrust case settlement as soon as possible and quell opposition from the nine states still attempting to continue litigation. This case has dragged on far to long. It has been conceived from political interests instead of sound economic ones and therefore has been flawed from the beginning. I am a proponent of free enterprise and believe that government should stay out of big business.

Especially in this case where a company has been pushing the drive for innovation and growth in the technology sector. The last thing our ailing economy needs is lengthy litigation that hinders Microsoft's development. The terms of the settlement are more than fair, as Microsoft has agreed to disclose internal interfaces and protocols to competitors. They have also agreed to grant computer makers broad new rights to configure Windows so as to promote non-Microsoft software programs. It is in the best interest of the American Public for the settlement to occur. I urge your office to help make this a reality. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Harry Hertless

MTC-00011404

From: Patel, Thakor G., MD
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:23pm
Subject: Opinion

It is important to settle and move on. This is dragging on for a long time. In this time of national crisis and other priorities, goernment should not spend too much time on this issue. None of the complainers come close to what Microsoft has done for novice computer users. The proof of this is in some nursing homes where without the Microsoft Windows and packaging none of these folks will be able to use computers.

T.G.Patel, MD

MTC-00011405

From: JKIRKPATRICK@PILLSBURY.COM@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This continuance of litigation is wasting my tax dollars. It is time to settle this litigation and move on with boosting the economy!

James Kirkpatrick
Box 1715
Denison, TX 75021
903-415-2576

MTC-00011406

From: cavena@PGFM.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please just get this Microsoft case over with. I think the settlement is fair and should resolve this whole controversy. Enough tax dollars have been spent already. Leave Microsoft alone, go after the cable companies or somebody else.

Thank you for your time.
Craig Avena
1235 Wood Ridge Dr

Atlanta GA 30339

MTC-00011408

From: efdpvb@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lets get on with progress!!time and technology advances in the competitive arena will solve any inequities in the market place!!!

MTC-00011409

From: lmalm@bsu.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the settlement as currently drafted. I think it provides a fair and workable solution and I encourage you to use the opportunity to bring this case to a close. Thank you.

MTC-00011410

From: hv3@smartconnect.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Its time to settle this case. I think the only winners in this case are the lawyers. If Microsoft stops innovating the market will run them over. Why dont you focus the DOJ efforts on find and prosecuting more terrorist? instead of pounding away on Microsoft.

MTC-00011411

From: alcastiglia@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe this is a fair settlement. If AOL/Time warner is not a monopoly I don t know what is. They are the ones pressing the Microsoft case. The longer this case goes on the more it is hurting the economy of the world. Yes world not just the U.S.

MTC-00011412

From: info@transNdigital.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough. Take the best offer MS puts on the table and run with it.

MTC-00011413

From: clyde.nieh@gene.ge.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the arrangement proposed to satisfy the penalty on Microsoft for monopoly practice is reasonable and fair. It should be accepted.

MTC-00011414

From: ron1613@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The prior e-mail may have had an incorrect State field. The correct state is: New York.

MTC-00011415

From: coffeebreakPjG@juno.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Good Day Your Honor: I do not believe that anymore prolong litigaions should take place in fact POOR MICROSOFT has reached a lengthy anti trust settlement and others have AGREED then so be it DROP IT compititors should not prolong it any longer it has cost TAX PAYERS and MICROSOFT a huge amount. I believe Microsoft took the hit because they are good! It s time we start looking into the PUC.co. CABLE co. LIGHT co. GAS co. that is where ANTI TRUST IS!!!! Thank You for your time.

Peter J.Gay

MTC-00011416

From: rozenfeldt@hss.edu@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir/Madam: It is time to settle the Microsoft case now. Further tax-payer money should not be wasted on an already immoral and economically disatrous case. It is immoral because the government again attempts to use its maximum power in the application of force to prevent a company from operating in VOLUNTARY trade with other companies and individuals. Even if a company has market dominance consumers have free will and can choose a competitor (in this case Linux or Apple). The market is open to competing products. Open doesn't mean a free lunch as some competitors would like it. As for the economic consequences less efficient competitors hope to prosper from the downfall of Microsoft and the consumer will have to foot the bill since the best company providing software can no longer afford to provide the best service at the lowest prices. Now Microsoft has offered a settlement and still some are not satisfied. It seems that they would only be satisfied if Microsoft would be put out of business or at least be far less successful. In any case as a taxpayer I refuse to support an immoral unjust and wasteful process. The time to settle is now so that our economy can begin to prosper again.

Thank you.

Timur Rozenfeld

MTC-00011418

From: emerk@gte.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is a compeditor driven suit that should NEVER gone to trial in the first place and has caused significant damage to the entire Hi-Tech industry as witnessed by the free fall of stock prices since the suit was first announced.

MTC-00011419

From: davidaxel@mindspring.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a concerned American citizen I am voicing my opinion. It s high time to bring the lengthy anti-trust case against Microsoft to an end. Microsoft's competitors are trying to undermine this settlement by prolonging the process. I do not want this settlement undermined. Thank You David Axel

MTC-00011420

From: Sunnybarb@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the government ought to SETTLE this case ! It is a waste of the tax payers money to continue any longer. Money has been allocated to schools for technical advancement among other things and this is a good thing. Let technology continue to advance !

MTC-00011421

From: rockett@dallas.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am satisfied with the Microsoft settlement. You should be pusuing America OnLine instead. They are far worse a monopoly than Microsoft ever was.

MTC-00011422

From: hjelte99@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settle this now! justice delayed is justice denied! get on with life and stop making lawyers rich!

MTC-00011423

From: daniels@cniinternet.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Stop the nonsense!! Leave businesses alone! You have no business interfering into the free market system especially since you are bringing supposed legal actions in fraudulent federal courts. Why don't you take Microsoft into a district court of the United States as it demanded by the U.S. Constitution instead of in a United States District Court that is only authorized to function within DC or in one of the U.S. territories! Look it up! But then again you aren t honest enough to look up anything are you? www.texasialiar.com The Federal Anti-Trust Acts don t say what you think they say so do the right thing and leave businesses alone!!

MTC-00011424

From: joelbraun@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the Attorney General is abolutely correct about this settlement satisfying the requirements of the courts it may not be the result that MICROSOFT s competitors would have liked but it is clearly a satisfactory resolution and will allow us all to move forward with more important business.

MTC-00011425

From: rhjenkin@ix.netcom.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that Microsoft is guilty of nothing more than providing extremely good products with very competetive pricing. I do not feel that the using public has been hurt in any way by anti-competetive practices. I was a user of Netscape (a competetive product) for several years and in fact I used it with the Windows Operating System. I switched to Microsoft s Internet Explorer because Explorer is a better product and for no other reason. It is true that Microsoft married their Web browser and Windows Operating system but that does not preclude the use of other browsers. It does make an efficient and outstanding package which makes a lot of business sense. I believe that the settlement proposed is already more harsh than Microsoft deserves. And it is certainly in the public interest to conclude this suit and move on. The Microsoft competitors have already received more concessions than are warranted.

MTC-00011426

From: dfernandes@adelphia.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I approve of the negotiated settlement except that it doesn t do enough to protect the victim (Microsoft) form the clutches of greedy state's attorneys who after the tobacco settlement think they have a license to steal.

MTC-00011427

From: Joey Lesh
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I do not find the settlement with Microsoft to be satisfying to me as a consumer. In fact, some parts of it are akin to throwing the rabbit into briar patch. Furthermore, the settlement does little to prevent further illegal and anti-competitive actions by Microsoft. I urge you to continue the litigation with Microsoft.

Joseph C. Lesh
Software Engineer

MTC-00011428

From: blev@spiderloom.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The so-called settlement is just Microsoft s way of foisting overvalued obsolete and sub-par hardware & software off on a public that would not normally buy such material it lets them increase their market share dump unsellable product at minimal cost and get a massive tax write-off for the overvalued garbage without ever admitting to or abstaining from their usual anti-competitive monopolistic practices. It does not matter to me if they are broken up or remain whole—they need to be brought to heel made to behave and financially punished for their unethical practices!

MTC-00011429

From: betodd46@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a concerned American I am troubled by the actions taken over the past several years by the Justice Dept of the U.S. The time has come to end the expensive and time consuming case against MicroSoft. Please bring this case to a quick resolution. The American public has paid enough for what little has been and will be gained by this on-going case. It is clearly time to quickly and quietly let this case slip into history as another mistake made by the Clinton White House. Thank you for your prompt attention in this matter.

Charles B. Todd

MTC-00011430

From: pdnRPH@worldnet.att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

You must end this discussion and enslavement of Microsoft now before YOU kill the whole technical industry. Microsoft has been punished enough. It is only those who want to punish a great company is what is holding this up. Let Microsoft contribute as they have said and tell those other states to forget it and stop now. We the public will only suffer further punishment if You the government persist in punishing Microsoft further.

MTC-00011431

From: eric@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have been a follower and stockholder of Microsoft for no less than 12 years. I beginning to lose faith in the American Enterprise System and feel that our basic American lifestyle is being undermined by greedy lawyers and politicians who really no nothing about the struggles of technology enterprise and who want to turn everything good into a legal battle for money and power. How did lawyers suddenly become the directors of our lives. What s happening in this arena is destroying the financial resources I use to support my family. We are in dire financial trouble because of this terrible fiasco. There is something terribly wrong in America today.—USAF Viet Nam Era Veteran Veteran

MTC-00011432

From: armckenzie@1st.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ms. Hesse With regard to the Microsoft case—enough is enough. It s time to drop any further litigation. Microsoft has been penalized more that it should have. I have wondered if this case was a witch hunt. Just to show who was in charge. Thank you for considering my request.

Albert R. McKenzie

MTC-00011433

From: kngibson@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is another instance of dragging feet. I think enough is enough and we need to move on. Let s get this matter of with. LEAVE MICROSOFT ALONE and move onto issues—real issues. I believe that if it weren t for Microsoft we wouldn t be where we are at today with our technology. I m glad that MS is not going to be split up but we need to get on with things. You know before all this we ran Netscapes browser at home—but we have since than switched to only running IE as we feel it s a better browser. I don t see a monopoly here I see competitors that might have an inferior product and want the help of the Government to boost their product. Let s drop this shanigans and get on with the business.

MTC-00011434

From: oopapada@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs: I think US Government VS Micro Soft is a travesty of justice and a crime against the American public. Micro Soft is being punished for selling an ever better product for less and less. [Nobody points a gun at anyone for buying Windows the reason being they buy Windows because it works.] Remember our American motto with Liberty and Justice for all. A trust to work has to keep out competition from it s point in the market by force or the threat of force. i.e. the only way that this would be possible. i.e.to make it illegal by government fiat for anyone to compete against this business. Our US Mail service is a monopoly. No one but the incompetent US Post Office can deliver mail at ever worsening service and ever rising prices. And look at the result. It is not Micro Soft which gets better and better for less and less. We should be ever so grateful to Micro Soft instead of punishing them for being good at what they do. And to make what Micro Soft does so well a crime is first....UN-JUST....and second it deprives we citizens of our...FREEDOM... to choose the product we want at the price we want to pay. To continue to harass this manificent company is a crime beyond reason. Stop it if you have any decency left. Sincerely and with great contempt to the miserable scum who brought this crime of anti-trust against this manificent company Micro Soft. I remain Sincerely J.
Billy VerPlanck

MTC-00011435

From: lindaherne@eznet.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I strongly wish government was less involved in many aspects of business. I believe the consumer will decide what products do well by their desire to purchase or not. Where would we be without microsofts inventions? America was founded on the idea of free enterprise. Let it be. The tax payer should not have to continue to support these government actions. If competitors come up with a better product it will sell.

Lets let the public consumer decide which products it uses and how. L.H.

MTC-00011436

From: William—Jack@MSN.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Some Microsoft publicity outfit gave me a call (along with hundreds of thousands of calls to other people?) and wanted me to go to this web site (www.techleaders.org) and fill out this form in support of Microsoft. There is no doubt that Microsoft is a very powerful corporation that makes quite a bit of money. The problem is that Microsoft plays hardball by punishing its partners in business if they don t toe the mark. They also seem to have an amazing control of judges—imagine a settlement that causes schools to give up competing products in favor of Microsoft products! This must REALLY hurt Microsoft to see the anemic competitor (Apple) kicked out of one of its few remaining markets. I view the games between judges and Microsoft as more of a test of the corruption of U.S. judges than as a case about Microsoft. Microsoft is only one of a long string of well-heeled outfits that can purchase the kind of justice they feel they want from our crooked judges.—If only we had an interest in following the money trail to our federal judges...

MTC-00011437

From: brtyv60@msn.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

the gov.should settle the case against microsoft. the gov.&the states seems to want to run microsoft that will cost the comsumers lots of money.microsoft has a lot of great products.I buy them because I like them not because their is no other choise

MTC-00011438

From: Jeanine Leone
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft case should be settled with no further litigation.

Jeanine Leone

MTC-00011439

From: sanben240@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Get off Microsoft s back! A strong Microsf t is good for America.

MTC-00011440

From: J.REID
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The comprehensive agreement should be implemented as soon as possible to free up the courts and lawyers for other matters.

Yours truly,
Jeanette Miles Reid

MTC-00011441

From: Brett Glass
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
January 15, 2002

Attn: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001
To whom it may concern:

The proposed settlement in US v. Microsoft/State of New York et al v. Microsoft has shaken my personal faith in the integrity and competence of the US Department of Justice. It is not at all in the public interest and hence should be roundly rejected by the Court.

The proposed settlement is riddled with loopholes which would allow Microsoft to continue many of its existing anticompetitive practices and to begin engaging in new ones. For example, Section IV, Paragraph U of the proposed settlement states, The software code that comprises a Windows Operating System Product shall be determined by Microsoft in its sole discretion.

This clause allows Microsoft the ability to engage in the anti-competitive practice of "bundling" merely by claiming that a product distributed for the sole purpose of destroying markets or businesses is part of Windows.

Likewise, Section III, Paragraph J of the proposed settlement states: J. No provision of this Final Judgment shall:

1. Require Microsoft to document, disclose or license to third parties: (a) portions of APIs or Documentation or portions or layers of Communications Protocols the disclosure of which would compromise the security of a particular installation or group of installations of anti-piracy, anti-virus, software licensing, digital rights management, encryption or authentication systems, including without limitation, keys, authorization tokens or enforcement criteria; or (b) any API, interface or other information related to any Microsoft product if lawfully directed not to do so by a governmental agency of competent jurisdiction.

2. Prevent Microsoft from conditioning any license of any API, Documentation or Communications Protocol related to anti-piracy systems, anti-virus technologies, license enforcement mechanisms, authentication/authorization security, or third party intellectual property protection mechanisms of any Microsoft product to any person or entity on the requirement that the licensee: (a) has no history of software counterfeiting or piracy or willful violation of intellectual property rights, (b) has a reasonable business need for the API, Documentation or Communications Protocol for a planned or shipping product, (c) meets reasonable, objective standards established by Microsoft for certifying the authenticity and viability of its business, (d) agrees to submit, at its own expense, any computer program using such APIs, Documentation or Communication Protocols to third-party verification, approved by Microsoft, to test for and ensure verification and compliance with Microsoft specifications for use of the API or interface, which specifications shall be related to proper operation and integrity of the systems and mechanisms identified in this paragraph.

This paragraph would allow Microsoft to make any number of excuses for failure to disclose its APIs and communications protocols to any competitor. For example, clause 1(a) would permit Microsoft to claim that its protocols had to remain secret for security reasons, even if the alleged security problems were due to bugs in Microsoft's own software. Clause 2(a) could allow Microsoft to condition the release of information on an intrusive and disruptive license audit of the recipient's premises. Clause 2(c) would prevent access by groups which developed software collaboratively rather than as part of a formal business. Clause 2(d) could allow Microsoft to delay the release of competitive products, obtain advance information regarding competitors' product plans, and/or create barriers to market entry by imposing prohibitively expensive testing requirements.

These are only some of the immense and egregious defects in the proposed settlement which would allow the company to continue to engage in the anti-competitive practices which motivated the filing of this case. The fact that there are so many defects in the proposed settlement has raised suspicion among members of the general public that it was politically motivated; that it was authored by, and/or for the benefit of, Microsoft; and that it represents the fruits of Microsoft's infinitely deep legal war chest and lobbying power rather than anything remotely resembling a remedy.

The Court would be remiss in its responsibility to protect the public interest, and would permanently impact Americans' faith in government and in our free enterprise system, if it accepted this settlement rather than directly and quickly addressing the ongoing anti-consumer and anti-competitive practices described so eloquently by Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson. The Court should roundly and firmly reject the proposed settlement and instead impose conduct and/or structural remedies that have at least a reasonable chance of success.

Sincerely,
Brett Glass
P.O. Box 1693
Laramie, WY 82073-1693

MTC-00011442

From: Klausnh@VolksParts.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough already. Microsoft has helped put a computer in 70% of the homes in the US and now it's getting punished for it. The government has spent millions of taxpayers money because some companies like AOL are whining. Please end this waste of taxpayers money and accept the settlement deal

MTC-00011443

From: Thatcher, Conley S
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov.l@inetgw
Date: 1/15/02 1:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a private citizen, who owns Microsoft stock, and who uses their products daily, I have a strong interest in seeing this antitrust case finished. I think the settlement worked out with the U.S. DOJ is fair and should end the issue. I sincerely hope that this issue isn't dragged out interminably in the courts of the nine holdout states. It would not be good for the consumers or the country.

Conley Thatcher
120 Laurelwood Ave
Placentia, CA 92870
Tpsicon@aol.com

MTC-00011444

From: Dan Damon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:21pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Please get this case settled. Microsoft's latest settlement offer should be ample punishment considering the huge expense they have already incurred in defending themselves from over aggressive government intervention. Wedbush Morgan Securities employees may not accept any orders or instructions to buy or sell securities of any kind by e-mail. All such instructions and orders must be placed by telephone or in person with your Investment Executive. The information contained within this e-mail is based on information available and believed to be accurate at the time it was prepared. It reflects the opinions and beliefs of the individual sender and not necessarily those of Wedbush Morgan Securities.

MTC-00011445

From: jreece@northstate.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's put an end to this issue with the Department of Justice and Microsoft. The technology industry needs a resolution the economy needs a resolution and most of all the taxpaying citizens need a resolution. Microsoft has made an offer for settlement that is more than fair. Let's be realistic the issue is being perpetuated by competitors of Microsoft. If there is any doubt of that just refer to the January 15 2002 comments in USA Today by the CEO's of both Sun Microsystems and Oracle.

MTC-00011446

From: jack@muhlenkamp.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle the Microsoft Issue immediately.

MTC-00011447

From: Jay Tucker
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Justice Department Officials,
I am writing this letter to express my support for the proposed settlement. The ongoing legal action has severely depressed the technology industry as a whole, and notably hindered Microsoft in particular. The settlement proposed takes appropriate action, but leaves the freedom to innovate in the hands of Microsoft, and does not set any untoward precedents for the industry as a whole.

So far, I have been extremely impressed with the DoJ's handling of the case over the last few months. I look forward to a speedy resolution.

Sincerely,
Jay Tucker Technology Coordinator
St. Luke's School

MTC-00011448

From: Raypholtz, Jeannette

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 1:23pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice:
 I am told that our voice counts in determining whether settlement will be reached during the review period of the Tunney Act, ending January 28, 2002. I think it is now in the best interest of the company (Microsoft), their shareholders, and the tax payers money to settle this antitrust suit once and for all. After all this time, why can (9) states not accept the terms of the settlement, and continue to squeeze Microsoft for more retribution for something they have already paid dearly for. Please consider my opinion, and please, let this long drawn out case be settled.

Jeannette Raypholtz
 <<Raypholtz, Jeannette.vcf>>

MTC-00011449

From: vera reitmeier
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Please settle this as soon as possible and lets get on with our lives. Don't let this drag on and on!!

MTC-00011450

From: Clete Bayer
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:20pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement Enough!

Microsoft and the American economy have been punished more than enough. Let's get this settled and be glad it's over.

Clete Bayer

MTC-00011451

From: tom.barnard@dowcorning.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:22pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

The time has come to put an end to this endless badgering of a great company. Time will show that this "monopoly" is temporary and the settlement that has been arrived at is reasonable. Any company that sits on it's laurels and tries to throw its weight around will soon fall by the wayside in the fast changing world of computer software. Microsoft has a competitive advantage for now. So be it.

Tom Barnard

MTC-00011452

From: Hawkins Duane S TSgt SMC DET 11 /CITS

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 1:21pm
 Subject: RE: Action Against Microsoft

I have a suggestion which I believe will benefit consumers and which seems to have been overlooked, up to this point.

1. Forbid Microsoft from issuing software under an "OEM" license. Current Microsoft OEM licenses forbid users (and, now that product activation is here, prevent users) from ever installing the software on any machine other than the one with which the software was purchased, EVEN IF THE ORIGINAL MACHINE HAS BEEN DESTROYED OR THE SOFTWARE REMOVED FROM THE MACHINE. In effect, if a user buys a computer from an OEM with a Microsoft product installed, then chooses at a later date to perform a major hardware upgrade or replace the hardware, in order to use the SAME software, that individual must purchase a new license, in addition to the one he has already paid for, even though the original license goes unused.

2. Order Microsoft to make reparations to consumers forced to repeat purchases of Microsoft software due to hardware upgrade / obsolescence by issuing retail license keys to holders of OEM software. In the case of software which is included on a "System Restoration Disk" which cannot be used on machines other than the one with which it was purchased, order Microsoft to provide full retail copies of the Microsoft media included with the system, in exchange for the original system restoration CD. This exchange could be implemented through the hardware OEMs' support divisions, but should be paid for by Microsoft.

I believe that Microsoft has profited unfairly by coercing hardware vendors into bundling Microsoft software with their products in such a way as to force users to purchase new copies of the software every time they upgrade their hardware.

Purchasers of new systems are ordinarily unaware that such restrictions have been placed on their use of the software, unless they are accustomed reading the fine print of a license agreement which may span several pages, and which may still leave users with the question of software transferability unanswered.

Note that this measure would not prevent Microsoft from enforcing its "One user one license" software licensing policy. It would merely protect users from having to purchase new software each time they upgrade their hardware.

Sincerely,
 Duane S. Hawkins
 happycampers@pcsisys.net Software Developer

MTC-00011453

From: Bill Christy
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:22pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear DOJ:
 In my opinion, the original agreement is enough. If it had not been for Microsoft, our computer technology would not be in the advanced condition that it is. We would still be seeing corporations fighting over what standards that the industry should use. Each had their own agenda. Microsoft took all the ends and put them together and made it work. Now it is being condemned for doing what needed to be done.

The States that are not settling for two reasons. First is trying to get preferred treatment for Companies in their states. Second is just greed.

Lets get this settlement over and get back to business.

Best regards,
 William B. Christy

MTC-00011454

From: Mutasem Abu Remaileh
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:23pm

Subject: Microsoft

The software industry would not be where it is today without Microsoft. What the government calls illegal bundling of products is really a good step forward that makes using a computer easier for the consumers. As any other company Microsoft is trying to ensure its competitiveness in a very competitive market. Lets stop this and move our economy and technology forward.

Mutasem

MTC-00011455

From: Chris Brand
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 1:23pm
 Subject: The tabled agreement is NOT fair on consumers

I'm writing to express my opinions on the proposed settlement, as permitted by the Tunney Act.

Open Source / Free Software Section III.D and III.E, which require Microsoft to divulge details of interfaces (APIs and Protocols), in order to allow competing products to be developed, does not appear to recognize Open Source Software (which is often available free of charge and often has no recognizable company or other organization in control of its development) as an "entity" to which these interface details should be available. This despite the fact that Microsoft has been documented as recognizing that Open Source Software presents a significant threat (see for example, the "Halloween Memo" by Microsoft's Vinod Valloppillil).

For example, the SAMBA project (www.samba.org) is designed to allow other Operating Systems to interoperate with Microsoft-dominated networks. Currently, they have to reverse-engineer all Microsoft protocols in order to create their software, which necessarily limits and delays its functionality, making the use of non-Microsoft Operating Systems in a Microsoft-dominated network less attractive. If Microsoft were required to divulge interface details to developers of Open Source software, projects like SAMBA would make the interoperation of Microsoft and non-Microsoft machines much more achievable, and hence encourage competition. Because most of these Open Source projects do not have a corporate sponsor, there is no entity available to pay a "reasonable and non-discriminatory license fee". Note also that "reasonable" to a multi-billion dollar corporation has a completely different meaning than "reasonable" to an unemployed software developer who creates an Open Source project in order to enhance his coding skills.

The ideal solution to this problem is to change the mechanism by which these APIs and protocols are made available—rather than requiring Microsoft to license them, instead require them to publish them, such that they are available to all, in a similar manner to the publication of the standards for the Internet, which facilitates the communication of a wide range of different computers from different manufacturers, running different Operating Systems.

A similar problem exists where the API or protocol in question relates to Intellectual Property rights of Microsoft. Again, providing "reasonable" licenses is not sufficient to allow Open Source projects to use the interfaces. I suggest that in these cases, Microsoft be required to license the related Intellectual Property free of charge to any implementation where the source code is made available to the public (i.e. available for download free of charge on the internet).

Education Market

Although I didn't find anything in the documents online, I have read that Microsoft may provide hardware and software to schools for free as part of the settlement. This is patently ridiculous, if true. The Education market is one of the few where Microsoft has had difficulty due to Apple's dominance. This would not be a punishment, but an opportunity for them to break into a new market.

Thank you for taking the time to read these comments.

Chris Brand [Software Technical Lead—Wireless Systems]

Spectrum Signal Processing Inc.
t 604.421.5422 // f 604.421-1764 mailto:chris_brand@spectrumsignal.com www.spectrumsignal.com

Confidential information may be contained in this message. If you are not the addressee indicated in this message please destroy this message and kindly notify the sender by reply email.

MTC-00011456

From: Grehan, Yvonne
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:23pm
Subject: LAW SUIT

It is TIME to settle this case and get on with the business of BUSINESS. It is in the best interest of the American economy to get beyond this stumbling block and focus attention on REPAIR, OPPORTUNITY and SUCCESS. The damage done by this law suit has gone far beyond Microsoft and has impacted negatively numerous areas of our domestic and global business sectors for too long. LET'S MOVE ON.

Please SETTLE.

Thank you.

Yvonne Grehan

MTC-00011457

From: Joyce Cuyar
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lets settle this affair and move on with our lives. This settlement is fair to the consumer and good for the economy. Too much time, money and effort has already been expended.

Joyce Cuyar . Owner
Pro-Search Prof. Recruiting
PO Box 372 . Jackson Center . PA . 16133
Phone: (724) 475-4420 . Fax: (724) 475-3519 . Email: cuyar@staffing.net .
http://www.pro-search.net

Charter Member of TOP ECHELON NETWORK OF RECRUITERS Charter Member of US RECRUITERS (membership by invitation only).

MTC-00011458

From: Larry Thompson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:24pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In the terms of the review agreement: I am unequivocally opposed to further legislation. The so-called "monopoly" did not come about by covert means but by the public, the users selecting in the market place the software that best suited them. In the beginning there where a myriad of competitors, what did Microsoft do that was illegal except provide software at a price most of us could afford that did 90% of the things we wanted 90% of the time for 90% of what we wanted to pay. The competitors, whose products could not then and certainly can't now, have resorted to litigation to overturn a free market decision.

No more litigation, settle now.

Larry Thompson 1
1801 China Spring Rd Waco, Texas 76708
(254) 867 2615
larrythompson@hotmail.com

MTC-00011459

From: Kelley Jones
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am not a lawyer, an activist, nor am I exceptionally well informed as to the specifics of the proposed settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft.

However I would urge those involved on the government side of this case to settle quickly and with as little punitive action towards Microsoft as possible. My feelings are that Microsoft is very successful because they sell something that may consumers and businesses want, not because they are evil or unlawful. In nature diversity is good and in our capitalistic system, competition is good. When one entity is successful they should not be punished to protect those that were not as successful. I believe that this case is more about protecting the competitors of Microsoft rather than the consumers.

It is good to have many companies supplying cars, appliances and even computers. It is not necessarily good to have many sources of the standards that allows them to operate. Imagine if each washing machine had different power requirements, different plumbing attachments etc. The cost to install and operate any one would be higher. Microsoft is supplying a base standard that is allowing people and companies to communicate in ways that would be simply impossible if it were not for the consistency in operating systems and office utilities that microsoft provides.

Our economy is struggling to overcome a number of negative factors. Please do not add another by drawing out this senseless process.

Thank you for considering my opinion,

Kelley Jones
Austin, Texas

MTC-00011460

From: Richard
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please do whatever is necessary to approve the proposed settlement as proposed. It's time to move on.

MTC-00011461

From: Mark Price
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Justice Department,
Get off Microsoft's back. Spend your time and our money bringing to justice true and real violators of the Constitution and anti-trust laws. Microsoft should be admired for their success not attacked for it. This pettiness of the Federal Government and Justice Department is not only unbecoming but borders on un-American.

Respectfully,
Mark Price

MTC-00011462

From: Mspani@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I favor acceptance of the proposed settlement in the Microsoft Antitrust Litigation.

Marco Spani
Commercial Properties Northwest, Inc.
500 Union Street, Suite 530
Seattle, WA 98101
206-650-0852 phone
206-624-8584 fax

MTC-00011463

From: Jennifer Holms
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Attached is my letter on behalf of the Microsoft settlement. Please include it as part of the official record.

Thanks.

Jennifer Holms
11246 NE 145th St.
Kirkland, WA 98034
425-488-9038
11246 NE 145th Street Kirkland, WA
98034-1015

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice, 950
Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001
January 12, 2002

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

Microsoft and the Justice Department have spent three years in court and a tremendous amount of resources on the antitrust case. I was pleased to learn that a settlement was reached and that this case may soon come to a conclusion. If this case is ended both sides will be able to return to more important priorities. Microsoft has agreed under this settlement to major concessions and changes. Under this agreement Microsoft will share their internal interfaces with competitors, which is an unprecedented release of information by a software firm to competitors. Microsoft also has agreed to end any contractual restrictions that would possibly harm competitors. With these provisions in the settlement there is no reason to continue this case, as some special interests would like. Please end this case and the wasteful flow of resources to fight it by the Justice Department and Microsoft.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Holms

MTC-00011464

From: John E. Burns
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:25pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In accordance with the Tunney Act review period, I wish to register the following opinion:

I feel strongly that the proposed settlement is not adequate. As a forced consumer of Microsoft products, which are overpriced and inherently defective, a breakup of the Microsoft corporation would permit free market competition and price competitive, interactive operative units to fit my needs.

Thank you,
 John Burns

MTC-00011465

From: LORETTES2@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:25pm
 Subject: Settlement—Microsoft

I've read the terms, think they are reasonable. People I've talked to, stockholders or not, want this to be settled. Enough time—enough money!

Lorette Schneider
 17914 23rd Lane NE
 Shoreline WA 98155

MTC-00011466

From: Richard Wessels
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:26pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Although, I find the actions being proposed in this settlement harsh and far reaching as well as possibly damaging to the company they are targeted at. I find the alternatives far worse. I find it reprehensible that the nine desentencing states that agreed to combine their case with that of the DoJ now want to impose even harsher restrictions on Microsoft. These "honorable" people are acting only in the interest of the companies in their states. Utah = Novell, California = Netscape, Apple, and a host of others, and Mass = AOL Time Warner (possibly the largest single threat to competition that exists today). Something must be done to stop this madness. And although I did not agree with the settlement as it put way to much power in the hands of government officials who know nothing of the computer industry. I would rather have the lesser of the two evils then to have one of the largest employers in the country ruined by over zealous lawyers getting paid off by other companies.

Richard Wessels
 Durham, NC

MTC-00011467

From: Jeff Pearce
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I wanted to take an opportunity to voice my support for the proposed Microsoft Settlement. I think that the settlement is more than fair, and I also believe that settling this case now rather than later is in the best interests of consumers.

It is my belief that this case hanging over one of America's greatest success stories is part of the reason our economy has been suffering for over a year. In that light, I believe that delaying this case any further only benefits Microsoft's competitors at the expense of everyone else. It's no coincidence that most of the states who are pushing for a stronger settlement are also home to Microsoft's biggest competitors.

It is my desire as a citizen and taxpayer that my government does what is right for the majority of Americans and approves the current settlement.

Sincerely
 Jeff Pearce
 Sammamish, WA

MTC-00011468

From: Charlotte Lesan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

Settle the dispute with Microsoft! The nine states involved no doubt have companies intent on further damage to Microsoft or even have the intention of driving Microsoft to Canada. Originally states with jealous competitors of Bill Gates and Microsoft instituted the suit and our stock market has been spiraling downward ever since. Put an end to this foolishness and allow the country to recover.

Yours truly,
 Charlotte H. Lesan (Mrs. James E.)

MTC-00011469

From: Robert Lantz
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am in favor of the settlement.

Robert J. Lantz 5249 S. Joplin Pl, Tulsa, OK 74135

MTC-00011470

From: Joseph Maccaro
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:28pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

It is time to settle with Microsoft.
 Get on with national crisis business.
 Joseph Maccaro

MTC-00011471

From: Andrew Fox
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi please break Microsoft into at least two parts. Their monopolistic practices are spiraling out of control and the proposed "settlement" actually does more harm than good. Have you looked at Windows XP yet?

The answer is right there in plain view in XP. Thank you for your time.

Andrew J Fox

MTC-00011472

From: Behdash, Behzad
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 1:27pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam:

I would like to add my voice to support the proposed settlement terms between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. I truly believe that these terms are in the best interest of consumers and our country. I believe that DoJ's limited resources are best utilized in dealing with more pressing issues at this point and the current terms of the settlement will insure fair and open competition in the marketplace. In my view, most of those opposed to this settlement are direct competitors to Microsoft who would rather gain a competitive advantage in the courts and at the expense of taxpayers instead of doing so in the marketplace. That should never be the objective of an antitrust case.

Behzad Behdash
 Oakland, CA

MTC-00011473

From: Ralph Hudson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:28pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Get this Microsoft litigation settled. America needs to move on from attacking legitimate business. DOJ time is better spent chasing ENRON. They are REAL criminals.

Ralph Hudson
 5174 Apple Road
 Springdale AR 72762
 501-750-3488
 ralph@nixonlaw.com

MTC-00011474

From: Charles Guatney
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:18pm
 Subject: What is the problem?

Why is the government even involved with this issue? Microsoft works as a company, bringing wealth and success to the nation and countless hundreds of thousands of people who rely on what MS produces. To have the imperial federal government intrude on such matters defies logic. Microsoft produces wealth, whilst the imperial federal leviathan consumes wealth.

Get out of this issue and, instead, promote Microsoft's well being. The federal government should stop consuming the nation's intellectual and financial resources.

Charles L. Guatney, Professor Emeritus
 Central Washington University
 445 Chatuge Trail
 Hiawassee, Georgia 30546
 706-896-6065

MTC-00011475

From: Beverly Ann Sowell, REALTOR
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This lawsuit should be settled NOW on the terms agreed. Let Microsoft give computers to schools as their "punishment." I feel this lawsuit existed because of competitors using the government to attack Microsoft. Microsoft has done extremely good things for me and for computer users at very reasonable prices. Leave Microsoft alone, so it can continue innovating good products and contributing to the IT revolution.

MTC-00011476

From: Lalitha Mahajan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let Microsoft's side win.

MTC-00011477

From: Jan-Erik Rottinghuis
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: MSN settlement

Dear sirs:
 Job protection is surely on the minds of Attorney generals.their own? Can we just get on with innovation and competition: do it in the marketplace please, not the court rooms. The only people to benefit are not the consumers but the lawyers.

Regards
 Jan-Erik Rottinghuis
 President & CEO
 PubliCARD, Inc.
 Office +1-212-651-31.19
 US Mobile +1-917-691-54.61
 GSM +33-609.617.787
 E-Mail jrottinghuis@publicard.com

MTC-00011478

From: Jim
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: DOJ vs Microsoft

The point of antitrust investigation is to protect the public interest from businesses that abuse the customer. Microsoft has always sold an excellent product at well below fair market prices. Take Windows XP for example, it's priced less than $200 while its biggest competitor "Linux" sells for over $300 and the origin of Linux was a "free" program. How can this be monopolistic? DOJ, please don't screw up another business like you did to AT&T. That "breakup" sure didn't do much for the customer.

Jim Krass
 1226 Main St.
 Windermere, FL 34786

MTC-00011479

From: rcw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:26pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Please get off Microsoft and all the other business people whose efforts make life more of a joy. I am sick of a bunch of lawyers and politicians becoming the blood suckers of the business world. Get off now. Dick Welch. 6810 Rocky Road Blanco Texas. 78606.

MTC-00011480

From: BigsBernegger@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I firmly believe that it is absolutely important to proceed with the proposed settlement and avoid further litigation which, in my opinion, hurts our economy.

Sincerely yours
 M. Bernegger

MTC-00011481

From: Jerrysafediver@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settlement proposals of Microsoft go beyond that recommended by the Court of Appeals. In the interest of fairness—and the economy of the United States—this matter needs to be closed. I urge you to accept the settlement proposals of Microsoft without further delay.

Jerry Effenberger
 17511 32nd. Ave. N.E.
 Seattle, Washington 98155

MTC-00011482

From: Scott McNairy
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft's competitors are wishing that they had and trying to create ground to stand on by politically pressing on thru their host state's attorney generals with this litigation that claims that Microsoft is a Monopoly. But the fact remains that if you ask these companies who their number one competitor is—they will tell you Microsoft. Not because Microsoft is a monopoly but because Microsoft can do it all—on any device, any time, and anywhere. The lawsuit should not proceed any further against Microsoft to pad the pockets of Microsoft's competitors.

MTC-00011483

From: BruceG@tisi.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft and DOJ crafted settlement goes beyond what was needed for a settlement. It should be accepted and the remaining states should accept it too, although they will not be satisfied until Microsoft is dismantled to the benefit of Sun and AOL who the dissenting states claim as plaintiffs. The true plaintiffs should be consumers but consumers are not considered by the dissenting states. The only concern the dissenting states have are SUN and AOL. Sun and AOL own the Attorney Generals in those dissenting states. And this 'bought and paid for' justice is not in the public interest. The dissenting states should not be listened to as they will only settle when Microsoft is destroyed.

However antitrust is not about propping up competitors and such further sanctions against Microsoft, such as forcing Microsoft to fully disclose its software source code or breaking the company into pieces, should not be entertained.

Additional measures are not required.

Thank You,
 Bruce Garrick
 Sr. Application Developer
 Total info Services
 88-634-9942 x2484
 bruceg@tisi.com

"In three words I can sum up everything I've learned about life: it goes on."—Robert Frost

MTC-00011484

From: Dwain Nelson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:32pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This note is in regards to the Microsoft Settlement. It is my belief the settlement that has been proposed punishes Microsoft far more that is deserved. I consider Microsofts' actions to be nothing more than hard business tactics and they succeeded based on public demand. Nevertheless, the poposed settlement calls for support plan to our nations schools, this will provide badly needed resources and has no long term affect on the use of Microsoft products. They will continue to succeed based on their features and the public demand for those features. If they fail to provide needed features, their sales will decline. Apple Computer made an attempt in the late 80's to influence our nations young with a program that provided deeply discounted equipment to students. History shows that this attempt failed; computer users and business will use the solutions that are cost effective and that provide interoperability amount all programs. The company that provides this will attract new customers.

As a data processing professional, I am well aware of the speed at which new software and features are being developed and deployed. The courts seem to find themselves in a position of hearing testimony and making rulings based on (obsolete) technology.

It is in the best interest of the USA economy, of the Microsoft Shareholders, and of Microsoft to settle this and move on.

MTC-00011485

From: Marshall A. Brown II
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:32pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,
 I believe as a citizen of this country that further litigation serves no purpose but to waste my tax dollars and does not do what is important for the economy. Why waste Millions in tax revenues that could be used for the war effort or education in this country, when the benefit to be gained "Might" lower the price of the OS a few dollars and save the average consumer, with a PC, $10 over several years? and of course $10 to the price of a $600 makes little difference.

Marshall Brown II
 Dir. of Business Development

MTC-00011486

From: Joyce Harness
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:32pm
 Subject: Msft case

I feel this case should be settled once and for all. Msft has made tremendous contributions to consumers, have helped a lot of people and it is time to stop the nine states from continuing this suit.

Thank you.
 Joyce Harness
 3015 NW 73rd Seattle, WA 98117
 206-784-9126

MTC-00011487

From: Terry Moore-SPS
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think one only needs to look at the states that are opposed to this settlement to understand that most of them are more concerned in protecting Microsoft's competitors than they are in protecting the general public. Utah and Mass. are prime examples of this! Microsoft and other high technology companies have lead our economy for the past 9 years to new heights.

Now that the economy is sluggish to say the least, let move on and let Microsoft lead again rather than wallowing around in this litigation hogwash we have seen for the past 2 years. This is a fair settlement for all parties involved including the general public.

Regards
Terry Moore

MTC-00011488

From: Jim Hurst
To: 'microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Litigation
To Whom it May Concern:

I strongly support the settlement of the Microsoft litigation in accordance with the agreement reached with the DOJ. Further litigation is non cost effective and a waste of taxpayer money. Thank you.

James R. Hurst
2847 Butter Creek Drive
Pasadena, CA 91107

MTC-00011489

From: George Gillespie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:33pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

It would be my greatest hope that this case against Microsoft be settled soon. That way we can get on with our lives and let Microsoft be free to innovate, with the result of MSFT hiring more people and helping the US Economy rebound a little faster.

Sincerely, George R. Gillespie

MTC-00011490

From: John (038) Dorothy Johnston
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:35pm
Subject: Microsoft

Sirs: Microsoft software has been a boon to me since I started late on PCs and now am 84. To have software on my PC that is all coordinated (with no language problems) makes it easy for my wife & I to pursue our genealogy and family history projects. The "others" only cover small areas and are complicated, both in installing, but in maintaining. If you want to go after monopolies take on people like AOL, QWEST and the various cable companies.

Just leave our good software alone!

Thank you,
Wilbur T & Dorothy H Johnston
wtj@olympus.net

MTC-00011491

From: brian.pollack@milliman.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Reneta B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-001

Dear Ms. Hesse:

I am writing to express an opinion to the judge of the federal trial court considering the Microsoft settlement. I have been told that I can file written comments with the United States Department of Justice by January 28, 2002, and that those comments can be sent by email. I am concerned over a decision by Microsoft that impacts our firm. I believe it is an example of Microsoft wielding unreasonable power over 3rd-party software through the non-level playing field approach of their operating systems.

I am the Corporate Secretary of Milliman USA, Inc. We are a nationwide (and international) firm of consultants and actuaries. We started in Seattle in the 1940's, and have grown to nearly 2000 employees in over 30 offices. Computing is key to our business. We predominantly use Microsoft operating systems and office software. We use Lotus Notes for email and groupware. We chose Notes a number of years ago because of its unique capabilities. It has become integral to our business function over the years. Our consultants work long hours, both in the office and (at times) at home. Our agreement with Lotus allows our employees to have Notes on their home computers as well as on their office machine. Notes and Microsoft operating systems have always coexisted well together.

We have been made aware that Microsoft will end its support of Notes on its XP home version. They say it is a business application. It is interesting that the biggest competitor for Notes is Microsoft Outlook. Microsoft is not declaring Outlook to be a business application.

If Microsoft is successful in their strategy, and Notes does not work on the XP home version, we may need to provide our employees with an expensive upgrade to XP professional for their homes. Not only is this costly, but our employees will have to give up features of the XP home version that are aimed at the family: audio, video, etc. These are attractive features for the home. Please relay my concern to the judge of the federal trial court. As a business, it is imperative that we at Milliman treat our customers well. Microsoft's decision appears to be directed at Lotus, but impacts us significantly. I do not believe it is in the best interest of the business community at large to have Microsoft be able to advantage itself due to it providing both operating system and application software.

Sincerely,
Brian S. Pollack
brian.pollack@milliman.com 1301 Fifth Ave.
Suite 3800
Seattle, WA 98101
cc: Tim Muth, Esq.

MTC-00011492

From: monaphil
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I am a computer trainer and have been for many years. I'd just like to say that the introduction of Windows has made my life much easier as the Windows product has standardized all software. Microsoft has provided an invaluable service to the population and software students everywhere by providing a standard upon which all software is based. In my perspective, this is an invaluable service rather than a 'monopoly' situation. I think the Microsoft suit should be settled and taxpayers' money should go elsewhere to truly fight injustice.

Sincerely,
Mona Mehta Steffen
3731 N. Military Rd
Arlington VA 22207

MTC-00011493

From: Don Leslie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to express my opinion regarding the Microsoft Settlement. While I know that both sides have their views (backed by their own facts) Microsoft is still one of Americas finest companies ever. They play hardball (as all large companies have to), they stepped out-of-bounds, got called on it, they've already paid a high price and will no doubt pay a hell-of-a-lot more to settle and settle we should. Many of the states holding out are doing so for political reasons and that's an injustice to our country. Let's move on and let Microsoft continue to be the leader in their industry. Microsoft is a great American company and I'm proud to support them and a quick settlement for the good of our economy and country. For the few states that are holding out, let-it-go and get on with life and compete instead of complaining.

Don Leslie
MDB & Associates, Inc.
dleslie@mdb-inc.com

MTC-00011494

From: Paul Larmon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think you should settle this case now. It is in the best interest of all consumers and our economy to stop this litigation.

Paul Larmon

MTC-00011495

From: Don Holt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear US DOJ. Please settle the case with Microsoft. The current proposal seems fair, and we need to move forward and let the technology industry get back to a sense of normalcy. If there is continued doubt about one of the most successful companies in the industry, it will be hard for vendors, partners, and customers to make informed decisions about the future. Please don't let a few competitors try to disrupt one of the most successful runs of technological innovation this country has seen.

Thanks,
Don Barren

MTC-00011496

From: Louis F Schneider
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a home user and believe that it is time to approve the settlement because it seems that the terms of the settlement are fair for all involved. Also I feel that since the 9-11 event it is more imperative that we get business back to normal as soon as possible.

Regards,
Louis Schneider

MTC-00011497

From: Chuck & Cindi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:37pm
Subject: Please Settle the Microsoft Case

It is in the public's best interest, the economy's best interest, and the tech industry's best interest to put an end to this litigation and settle the case promptly.

This has never been a case brought on nor fought in the best interest of the consumer. It was brought on by the executives of Microsoft's competitors and has always been predominantly in their own personal/corporate best interests. Please let corporations and their executives battle out market share in their own arenas—not in the political or court system. Especially in such a fast growing and competitive arena such as the tech sector.

Thank you.
C. Solomon

MTC-00011498

From: JACK PURSER
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:38pm
Subject: Micro antitrust

Why don't you leave this company alone, pretty soon NO company will want to do business in the US because of actions by money grubbers like you!!

Jack Purser Sr.

MTC-00011499

From: Gary Smith (Numar)
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:38pm

Subject: Why is Microsoft's stranglehold on computing being supported by U SDOJ?

I am so frustrated that I felt compelled to write. I have been having considerable difficulty with instability of Windows98. After months of trying to get Linux up and running I made the horrible mistake of purchasing Windows XP. It is a disaster. First time I have upgraded an operating system in 15 years where the upgrade is worse than the previous problem. Of course the non-working OS software is non-returnable (because Bill Gates doesn't have enough money yet I suppose?). Technical support is almost impossible to get. I should have just sent $100.00 to the RNC. At least I would have felt better about who got my money. This guy is not right. He really needs to be reigned in. As for me, it's $100.00 in the trash and back to wrestling with Linux.

Best Regards,
Gary Smith
Principal Mechanical Engineer
NUMAR, Div. of Halliburton
610.251.0116 (main #)
610.722.4576 (direct #)
610.296.9651 (fax)
gary.smith@halliburton.com

MTC-00011500

From: KENNETH J RUSZCZYK
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:38pm
Subject: MSFT SETTLEMENT

I feel that anything that benefits the consumers is best for the economy. Why is it that Politicians, who can't run the country in an orderly fashion. Which is their job, by the way! Feel that they know best how to run the economy? The government officials are so "out of touch" with rest of the population.

That most of their decisions are only for themselves & for those who contribute to their campaign chests. One of the most important reasons that the US economy has done so well. Is that there wasn't too much government involvement in the early stages of it's growth. Now the politicians think that since this country is so great & strong. That they were the ones who made it so. It wasn't them, it was the people who built & grew on this land & made it productive. As usual, the politicians take all the credit for things that go well in which they had no "hand" in. Then deny any involvement in the things that go wrong in which they were in charge of. I know there is not much, if anything I can do to altered their decisions. I do vote but I'm not thrilled about any of the candidates, except those who want to make less government.

I don't look forward to the end of my life but at least I do know that I won't have to put up with government after it either.

Kenneth Ruszczyk

MTC-00011501

From: Sharon Corboy
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov.?@inetgw
Date: 1/15/02 1:38pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

its a real shame that a few A.G. WITH POLITICAL AGENDAS are holding up a reasoned settlement and getting on WITH THE BUSINESS OF GROWING OUR ECONOMY THOMAS A CORBOY GIG HARBOR WASH. 98335

MTC-00011502

From: Lois Tilles
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:38pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I hope that you will finalize the Microsoft settlement as proposed. It is tough and fair. We must get on with business and not wring the life out of successful companies who agree to cooperate.

Lois Tilles
415-310-7654 (phone)
ltilles@pacbell.net

MTC-00011503

From: Michael.Mehler@sce.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to settle this case and move on.
Mike Mehler
Labor Relations
Southern California Edison

MTC-00011504

From: MaryAnn(u)Walters
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Anti-Trust Case

Time to stop this madness. These attacks on our American Companies are the main reason our economy and stock markets are in the dumps. Time to get the lawyers out of Washington's Federal Justice Department and get back to business.

Mary Ann Walters
Brecksville, Ohio

MTC-00011505

From: Subhash Grover
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The case should settle as agreed upon. This will help the economy to get out of recession.
Subhash Grover

MTC-00011506

From: Schober, Larry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Forget Big Tobacco. Forget Microsoft. I'm going to make you a star: I am shocked and appalled to learn of a potent delivery system that luridly and unfairly bundles a highly addictive substance in a seemingly innocuous way. This delivery system threatens and harms the national interests in our food distribution system. I am seeking an immediate stop order be issued to the industry. In addition, I would like to be granted whistle blower status in this case.

In particular I am referring to the bundling of sugar in prepared foods. As opposed to simply dusting foods with sugar, which can be casually detached (brushed off), food preparers needlessly bundle this highly addictive substance in their products. Furthermore, this delivery system (and it is a delivery system—the amount of sugar in the product can be controlled in the recipe) is used to create an artificial craving for a product within the unsuspecting purchaser.

I urge you and your colleagues to take up this vital matter post-haste, and send me my whistle blower check.

I anxiously remain awaiting your response,
Lawrence Schober

MTC-00011507

From: JCir2000@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:39pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

To Whom It may concern: I think the remaining nine states are obsessed with punishing Microsoft. They have taken up a personal position against Microsoft and Bill Gates only because they do not like either, just as Judge Jackson did. This is outrageous unnecessary and a complete waste of time and money to their constituents in those states. The Justice department reached a decision which was fair and brought this long legal process to an end. The nine remaining states should join in, rather then look at what they see as a company which they believe performs unfairly. Look at a company which has been primarily responsible for the huge technology movement throughout the world in the last ten years with their software moving information around the world, allowing world markets to develop faster and therefore creating jobs throughout the world.

Joe Cirillo, a patriot, business man and consumer. I speak on behalf of many friends and my family.

MTC-00011508

From: Sherri Wender
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:41pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Department of Justice:

I am writing in support of your proposed antitrust settlement with 9 states and Microsoft. The settlement is fair, and it is time to move on in the interest of fairness, competitiveness, and for the sake of the economy.

Thank you,
Sherri Wender
21464 President Point Rd
Kingston, WA 98346
sherri@wendertodd.com

MTC-00011509

From: MPavlow@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:40pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case, we have so much going on now, with the economy and the other problems we are facing. We need to set some real priorities, this has gone on long enough.

Marlene Pavlow

MTC-00011510

From: Dr Whom

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:42pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Anti-Trust Trust,
Please leave Microsoft alone, go after some dishonest politicians!!

Thank you,
monty johnson

MTC-00011511

From: Bradley Bobbs

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:42pm

Subject: accept MicroSoft settlement

Please accept the MicroSoft settlement, and stop harassing them already! Go bother someone doing some harm instead of wasting any more money on that nonsense!

Thank you,
Dr. Bradley Bobbs
6862 Hayvenhurst Ave.
Van Nuys, CA 91406
(818)947-3192

MTC-00011512

From: jjm@mpc-inc.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:42pm

Subject: Microsoft Court Ruling a Joke

Hello.
I would like to inform you that the recent court ruling in favor of Microsoft is an absolute joke. This in light of the fact that Microsoft was found guilty of using it's monopoly to further it's cause. Now the DOJ virtually guarantees more of the same by allowing the company to distribute more software, and thus have a stronger monopoly in the market. What kind of judgment is that?

Sincerely,
Jim Mosher

MTC-00011513

From: Roseanne Woo

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 1:40pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The settlement with Microsoft is fair and reasonable. Do not allow the 9 renegade states stall the process. The country has wasted enough energy during the long-drawn-out lawsuit. The time has come for settlement so that a great company can re-direct its resourcefulness to its core business. At the same time, the government needs to adjust its thinking to the new economy.

Roseanne Woo-Haltresht
1973 Lord Fitzwalter Drive,
Miamisburg, OH 45342

MTC-00011514

From: GBee172271@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:42pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Justice Department:
Stop hurting taxpayers. Anything that hurts Microsofts, hurts the investors, the economy, and the country. Let the CEO's of envious companies work hard as Bill Gates did. Stop the madness! It's about time.

Graciela Beecher
2904 Shawnee Dr.
Fort Wayne, IN 46807

MTC-00011515

From: Christina Bishop

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:43pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Judge Kollar-Kotally,
I believe that the Proposed Final Judgement (PFJ) in the case U.S. vs. Microsoft is flawed in the following ways:

The PFJ does not End Microsofts Monopoly and Even Allows Microsoft to expand its Monopoly into Other Technology Markets. The deal fails to terminate the Microsoft monopoly, and instead guarantees Microsofts monopoly will survive and be allowed to expand into new markets. Microsoft has always found it advantageous to leverage its operating system monopoly position in order to maximize its own profits, which many of us have experienced firsthand.

The PFJ Does Not Adequately Address Anticompetitive Behavior Identified by the Appeals Court. The PFJ Incorporates Such Large Loopholes to Its Enforcement Provisions as to Render Enforcement Meaningless.

The PFJ Does Not Provide an Effective Enforcement Mechanism for the Weak Restrictions it does Implement. The proposed settlement requires a three-man compliance team to oversee Microsofts compliance with the Agreement. Microsoft will appoint one person, the Justice Department another, and the third will be chosen by the two people already appointed. In essence, Microsoft will control half the team. This new team will not be allowed to inform the public of their work, and cannot impose fines. In addition, the work of the committee cannot be admitted into court in any enforcement proceeding. The committees sole remedy for infractions is for them to inform the Justice Department of the infraction and then the Justice Department will have to conduct their own research and commence litigation to stop the infraction. The Justice Department does not need a compliance group to tell them when Microsoft is doing something wrong, so in reality this group is just a smoke screen.

The PFJ Does not deny to Microsoft the Fruits of its Past Statutory Violations. Under the proposed settlement, Microsoft is only marginally penalized for its anticompetitive misdeeds. Every court involved with this case has acknowledged that Microsoft broke the anti-trust laws, yet under the terms of the proposed Agreement, Microsoft would be allowed to retain almost all of the profits gained from these activities. Nor does the PFJ make an accounting of all the gains Microsoft made through its illegal activities, nor does it try and compensate those harmed by Microsofts misdeeds. Through this proposed settlement, the Justice Department is sending a very clear (and very dangerous) message that anticompetitive behavior is totally acceptable. Every large potential monopolist is being told that they can get away with this sort of illegal behavior without fear of losing any of the profits made from such conduct. There is every incentive for future monopolists (most definitely including Microsoft) to engage in this type of predatory conduct and no incentive not to.

Thank you for your time.

Christina Bishop

MTC-00011516

From: Jeff W

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:43pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would like to see this settlement accepted by the 9 remaining states and the industry move on.

MTC-00011517

From: Tom (038) Wilma Llewellyn

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:33pm

Subject: Opinion

To Whom It May Concern:
I feel a reasonable agreement has been reached in the "Microsoft Lawsuit" and further litigation does not benefit the country. It seems as if this lawsuit precipitated the current financial situation in this country. I say "Enough already" and let us move on.

Thomas Llewellyn
593 Vintage Dr.
Elkton, OR 97436

MTC-00011518

From: Steve Dehekker

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:44pm

Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:
I believe that it would be an appropriate remedy to split Microsoft Corporation into at least two, completely independent components—one that develops software applications and the other that develops operating systems. This would promote competition and innovation by providing incentive for the applications software entity to develop for platforms other than Windows. It would also serve as incentive to make the Windows operating system more compatible with application software developed by companies other than Microsoft.

I am a non-technical consumer who uses computers, including Microsoft products, on a daily basis. My observations are based upon my actual experience and informal observation of this case for many years.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
 Stephen E. DeHekker, AIA
 Hastings+Chivetta Architects, Inc.
 700 Corporate Park Drive, Suite 400
 St. Louis, MO 63105
 (Main) 314-863-5717
 (Direct) 314-863-4361 Ext 138 sdehekker@hcarchitects.com

MTC-00011519

From: Rocky859@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:45pm
 Subject: settlement

pleases settle this case and get on with life...i am sure these attorneys have more to do than make headlines in their state using this high profile case to further their political ambitions

MTC-00011520

From: Tom Moore
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 1:43pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

IT WOULD BE IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST IF YOU WOULD SETTLE THE MICROSOFT CASE AND MOVE ON TO MORE PRESSING MATTERS.

THOMAS L. MOORE

MTC-00011521

From: David Brookes
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:46pm
 Subject: Microsoft case should be settled

This case should be settle at once. We need to move forward not backward. This case was brought upon Microsoft because they would not give money to politicians in Washington. Why is every time the USG decides to help us we get screwed?

Are the prices of computers going up or down? Down is the correct answer and not only are they going down but you get more for your money. Name one other industry where that is happening?

This case has been a total waste of tax payers dollars. The only real reason the states will not settle is because of poor fiscal policy they are broke. And look here, Microsoft has 40B in cash...so lets go steal it. Your no different then criminals but since you make the rules so your always right.

I vote and the best policy is to vote out everyone who is in office. Ross Perot said it best in 1990, "It's time to clean the shit out of the barn".

Dave Brookes

MTC-00011522

From: david milton
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:46pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We have in place a fair settlement that needs to be adopted in order for the industry to commit reasouces for further inovation. Without the settlement as it stands we cannot expect companies to invest in ideas that that they may not be able to control in the future. Settle this and lets get back to leading the world into the next age. David Milton, 5728 Meadowhaven Dr., Plano TX 75093

MTC-00011523

From: Mark Johnson (PREMIER)

To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:45pm
 Subject: The Tunney Act review—Microsoft

It is my understanding that The Tunney Act review period is still open. I understand the Department of Justice seeks public comment on its proposed antitrust settlement with 9 states and Microsoft, and the public comment's close on Monday, January 28. I also understand the settlement is not guaranteed until after the review ends and the District Court determines whether the settlement is indeed in the public interest.

It is my opinion that the provisions of the agreement are tough, reasonable, fair to all parties involved, and go far beyond the findings of Court of Appeals ruling. Still, while consumers such as I overwhelmingly agree that the settlement is good for me and the American economy, I and every citizen I have come in contact with overwhelmingly want to see this move beyond this litigation, it is also my understanding that nine states have refused to join the settlement. In fact some, including Utah Attorney General Mark Shurtleff and Massachusetts Attorney General Tom Reilly, are urging citizens via email or Web site to submit their comments to the DoJ during the Tunney review period.

Thank you for your review of my opinion,
 Mark Johnson

MTC-00011524

From: TOM R MCMAHON
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:45pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

I SUPPORT THE LITIGATION BY THE 9 STATES AGAINST MICROSOFT TO PRODUCE A FAIRER DEAL FOR THE AVERAGE CONSUMER.

TOM MCMAHON/ SAN DIEGO

MTC-00011526

From: Mark Herrick
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 1:47pm
 Subject: Microsoft
 CC: microsoftcomments@doj.ca.gov@inetgw.gws@clickactio...

Dear Judge Kollar-Kotally: The Court should disallow, in its current form, the proposed settlement between the U.S. Department of Justice and Microsoft in U.S. v. Microsoft (hereinafter referred to as the ?Agreement?). There are two main reasons this Court should disallow the Agreement.

1) The Agreement completely ignores the standard laid down by the DC Appellate Court.

2) The Agreement runs contrary to the public interest of the people of the United States and therefore should be held in violation of the Tunney Act.

I. The Agreement fails to meet the Appellate Court's Remedy Standards. The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as the ?Appellate Court?) in a 7-0 decision upheld the District Court's decision that Microsoft violated the antitrust laws and was liable for such illegal conduct. The Appellate Court further ruled that any remedy found by the District Court must ?terminate the monopoly, deny to Microsoft the fruits of its past statutory violations, and prevent any future anticompetitive activity.? The Agreement fails to meet any of these three standards.

A. Terminate the Monopoly. The deal fails to terminate the Microsoft monopoly, and instead guarantees Microsoft's monopoly will survive and be allowed to expand into new markets. All other businesses in the U.S. market that have a ninety percent market share are considered per-se monopolies and are regulated or have some sort of government oversight (i.e. utilities, local phone companies, cable companies etc.). This is done because it is in such a company's best interest (in the interest of their shareholders) to abuse their position. In other words, to gain maximum shareholder value, they are almost required to abuse their position. Why is Microsoft allowed a waiver to this general rule? Does Microsoft not try to gain optimum share value for their shareholders?

B. Deny to Microsoft the Fruits of its Past Statutory Violations. Under the Agreement, Microsoft is not penalized for any past misdeeds. In other words, they are being allowed to retain all the profits gained from their illegal activities. Every court involved with this case has acknowledged that Microsoft broke the anti-trust laws. Through this Agreement, the Justice Department is sending the message that this sort of anticompetitive behavior is acceptable. Every large potential monopolistic company is being told that they can get away with this sort of illegal behavior without fear of losing any of the gains made from such conduct. In other words, get away with as much as you can until the Justice Department brings an action. There is every incentive for future monopolists (including Microsoft) to engage in this type of predatory conduct and no incentive not to.

C. Prevent any Future Anticompetitive Activity. The Agreement fails to prevent any future anticompetitive activity because it completely ignores anticompetitive behavior highlighted by the Appellate Court. In addition, for the conduct the Agreement does try to remedy, it creates such huge loopholes to the rules it does establish as to render them completely useless. Lastly, the Agreement provides no effective enforcement mechanism for the rules it does establish.

1. The Agreement Does Not Address Anticompetitive behavior identified by the Appeals Court.

a) Retaliation. The settlement does not address Microsoft ability to retaliate against would-be competitors and to take the intellectual property of competitors doing business with Microsoft. The Appeals court found such past conduct by Microsoft highly egregious yet the Agreement does not address these issues.

b) Bolting. The Agreement does not address the issue that fueled consumer criticism and which gave rise to this antitrust case in 1998: Microsoft's decision to bind—or "bolt"—Internet Explorer to the Windows operating system in order to crush its browser competitor Netscape. This settlement gives Microsoft ?sole discretion? to unilaterally determine that other products or services which don't have anything to do with operating a computer are nevertheless part of a "Windows Operating System product." This creates a new exemption from parts of antitrust law for Microsoft and would leave Microsoft free to bolt financial services, cable television, or the Internet itself into Windows.

2. The Agreement Incorporates Such Large Loopholes to Its Restrictions on Microsoft as to Render Such Restrictions Useless.

a) Middleware. As part of the Agreement, Microsoft is required to allow the PC manufacturers to hide Microsoft middleware programs and allow them to install icons or links to competing middleware programs. The only problem is that the PC manufacturers are not allowed to remove the code that could be used to reactivate Microsoft's middleware programs. In other words, two weeks into owning the machine, a consumer could be asked if they want to reconfigure their desktop, install all the Microsoft middleware and delete all the competitor's middleware.

b) Communication Protocols. The Agreement states that Microsoft must now share information on how its middleware and server software work together with Windows. However, Microsoft does not have to disclose this information for middleware it does not distribute separate from windows, or for middleware it has not trademarked. In addition, Microsoft does not have to disclose this coding information if Microsoft deems such disclosure would harm the company's security or software licensing.

(1) Software it Does Not Distribute Separate from Windows. This is a huge loophole of "Bolting" that was discussed above. If Microsoft wants to drive a competitor out of business, they just attach the specific type of software the competitor is involved with to their Windows platform. Once they do that, they do not have to share the coding information that allows the competitors software to work with Windows, thus driving the competitor out of business. Once the competitor is out of business, Microsoft can separate the software from the Windows package, sell it separately and derive huge margins.

(2) Viable Business. Microsoft does not have to disclose their information to companies that in "their view" do not have a "viable business". This loophole will allow Microsoft to prevent new software start-ups from forming because Microsoft could decide they are not a "viable business". Who can really say which new start-ups is a "viable business"? Preventing new companies from starting is undeniably bad for competition, and therefore, the consumer.

(3) Harm to Company's Security or Software Licensing. Microsoft does not have to share coding information if they believe that such disclosure would cause harm to the Company's security or software licensing. There is no provision to say who is to make this determination so it is clearly up to Microsoft. Could not Microsoft make the argument that sharing coding with any software or P.C. Manufacturer would endanger its security of software licensing?

c) Bribing Competitors. The Agreement states that Microsoft "shall not enter into any agreement" to pay a software vendor not to develop or distribute software that would compete with Microsoft's products. However, another provision in the Agreement permits those payments and deals when they are "reasonably necessary." Who is the ultimate arbiter of when these deals would be "reasonably necessary"? The Agreement does not specify so Microsoft will be allowed to make that decision.

3. The Agreement Does Not Provide an Effective Enforcement Mechanism for the Weak Restrictions it does Implement. The Agreement requires a three-man compliance team to oversee Microsoft's compliance with the Agreement. Microsoft will appoint one person, the Justice Department another, and the third will be chosen by the two people already appointed. In essence, Microsoft will control half the team. This new team will not be allowed to inform the public of their work, and cannot impose fines. In addition, the work of the committee cannot be admitted into court in any enforcement proceeding. The committee's sole remedy for infractions is for them to inform the Justice Department of the infraction and then the Justice Department will have to conduct their own research and commence litigation to stop the infraction. The Justice Department does not need a compliance group to tell them when Microsoft is doing something wrong, so in reality this group is just a smoke screen.

II. Violation of the Tunney Act. The Tunney Act clearly states that the court should disallow any agreement between an anti-trust violator and the Justice Department if such agreement is "contrary to the public interest". It is hard to imagine an Agreement that would violate the public trust more than the proposed Agreement. How could an agreement that ignores all three required remedies laid down by the Appellate court to remedy the situation (terminate the monopoly, deny to Microsoft the fruits of its past statutory violations, and prevent any future anticompetitive activity) possibly be within the public interest. If this Agreement is upheld and then appealed, how could the Appellate Court approve this agreement when it directly violates its own mandate. It would have to find this Agreement to be in direct violation of its own mandate and the public interest. The Appellate Court's decision needs to be respected and this Agreement must be found void.

Thank you for your attention to this matter, and should you have any questions about the above letter please feel free to contact me at any time. Sincerely yours,

Mark Herrick
Director of Non-Profit Services
ClickAction
Nasdaq: CLAC
<http://www.ClickAction.com>
CORPORATE OFFICE
2197 E. Bayshore Rd.
Palo Alto, CA 94303
Direct Line: 650-463-3963 Fax: 650-473-3954

MTC-00011527

From: Richard Yochum
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:51pm
Subject: Concerns about DOJ's focus and who they are working for

I remain annoyed by the 9 states that refuse to settle w/Microsoft. I believe their Attorney

Generals have been unduly influenced by Microsoft's competitors, who long ago determined that if they couldn't beat Microsoft in the marketplace, they would do it in court.

In today's global economy, it seems misguided to legally impose restrictions on one of the US' most productive and recognized companies. Has Microsoft shafted investors and employees like Enron? No! There is absolutely no comparison.

Is DOJ going to prosecute the criminal level of 'doing business' at Enron? At Arthur Anderson? These are the type of companies and individuals that need Federal and State scrutiny and prosecution. These types make a mockery, an oxymoron, of the concept, "business ethics."

Will the Feds and State go after these recognized political supporters with the same pit bull determination they attacked Microsoft? Probably not, because in this case, mostly lowly taxpayers and wage earners were harmed. People who cannot fill the coffers of the political parties and their Attorney General lackeys like Sun, Oracle, and the other disparagers of Microsoft.

Let's spend our tax dollars to defend Americans from being bilked by the likes of the criminal scum that made the decisions at Enron and Arthur Anderson. Let their comrades know that such behavior will result in crushing penalties and serious jail time! Allow Microsoft to advance its business model and lead the American economy into a prosperous new era.

Thank you for this opportunity to express my opinion.

MTC-00011528

From: Shaoyu Zhou
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the Microsoft Settlement is in the public interest. It provides a fair and effective way to address the concerns brought by this lawsuit. By resolving this issue quickly and effectively through this settlement, the whole computer industry can move forward, which in turn stimulates the growth of our economy in this difficult time. The remaining nine states that refused to settle are clearly working for Microsoft's competitors. The penalty proposal they have made only provides benefits to those Microsoft's competitors by completely disabling Microsoft's ability to compete. These remaining states are being very unfair to a US company that has naturely grown into a worldwide dominating company by its marketing and technology (and not through merging other companies).

Shaoyu

MTC-00011529

From: vicki winn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:51pm
Subject: Anti-Trust Suit

I am aghast that this case as gone on for as long as it has for an issue that appears to me to benefit no one! Clearly Microsoft has developed a superior product and is therefore the product of choice. This does not make their polices nor practices a "monopoly". I urge a quick an speedy settlement! I strongly believe the offer on the table is fair and benefits all.

MTC-00011530

From: Jerry N. Phillips
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:46pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Gentlemen, get this thing settled! The cost for everyone involved is far more than any award $'s. Let Microsoft get back to work, let the litigations cease. Let's get on with using their superb products. Hopefully Microsoft has learned a hard lesson.

Thank you,
Jerry Phillips
1327 10th St. Dr. NW
Hickory, NC 29601
828-261-0200

MTC-00011531

From: Schober, Larry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Department of Justice:

The provisions of the Microsoft settlement agreement are tough, reasonable, fair to all parties involved, and go beyond the findings of Court of Appeals ruling. You are doing a disservice to computer customers and, given Microsoft's world leading position for this product, to the nation. You are hampering trade by your excessive involvement of government.

By pursuing a reckless agenda of attacking Microsoft you are neither representing justice, nor my interests as a computer user and an American.

MTC-00011532

From: Dan Warrensford
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Notice:

Any person, government or corporate entity that attacks a Capitalist Institution for doing what Capitalist Institutions are supposed to do, i.e., create high quality goods and services efficiently, for affordable prices, is neo-Fascistic at best.

So, stop acting like Mussolini's philosophical heirs, get out of Microsoft's corporate face, and go after some real criminals—like the ENRON executives. Just DO it.

Dan Warrensford
40 Uranus Ave.
Merritt Island FL 32953-3158
(321) 453-2217; warrensd@gte.net

MTC-00011533

From: Bartucci, John
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

I would encourage you to bring the Microsoft Anti-Trust suit to a rapid conclusion. It's gone on long enough and the effect on the consumer (which I realize is irrelevant) will be negative in the long run. I am a professional software developer and I use Microsoft as well as many other vendor's products every day.

Frankly, I'm happy to have a Microsoft around—without them (i.e., a single OS source) we would not have a commercially viable desktop computer, especially for home use. Unix (and all its variants such as Linux) will never be an alternative to a Windows OS, not because of MS business practice but because of the product itself. As a professional, I use Unix everyday—I prefer to work in a Windows environment simply because there are so many more tools available for Windows (which seems to me flies in the face of the judge's decision). And as far as the browsers are concerned, the Internet Explorer browser is far superior to any other browser available. I have several variants of the Netscape browser installed “just in case” but I hardly ever use them—usually because they simply don't work! If Netscape had a problem with Microsoft, it was because they had an inferior product—no lawsuit is going to change that fact. I'm glad Microsoft chooses to bundle it with all their OS products—it saves me the trouble of downloading it.

Please bring this case to a swift conclusion. We as a society have gained nothing from either the case itself or its outcome. And there is nothing further to be gained by dragging this out.

John Bartucci Lockheed Martin Naval Electronic Surveillance Systems—Akron
1210 Massillon Rd
Akron, OH 44315
330-796-2395

MTC-00011534

From: Stephen Quinn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Just settle the case, get this over and done with!!!

Stephen Quinn

MTC-00011535

From: marty stephens
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge the Justice Department to accept the proposed Microsoft settlement. This issue has gone for too long, and has proved a detrimental not only to Microsoft but to the entire tech industry. Our government should be fostering industrial growth in lieu of penalizing creative industries that strengthen our economy.

Martin Stephens
2020 Deer Trail
Warsaw, Indiana 46580

MTC-00011536

From: Jim Stoneburner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's time for the US Government and Microsoft to stop wasting Time and Money. The time could be better spent by parties and the Money which belongs to the Tax Payers could be better utilized by the Tax Payers.

This lawsuit has been an obvious ploy by certain disgruntled Companies to get even with Microsoft through their Clinton contacts. Stop the waste. We've wasted enough Tax Payer money prosecuting (persecuting) Microsoft.

Microsoft in turn has wasted enough of it's revenues—which in turn—has been paid for by increased sales prices to the consumer, the Tax Payer.

Jim Stoneburner
Col USAF Retired
12779 Rueda Acayan
San Diego, CA 92128

MTC-00011537

From: Needham, James P
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 1:55pm
Subject: Let the Market Work!

I continue to be amazed by the ongoing litigation related to Microsoft. From my view if there is any anti-competitive activity going on it is that perpetrated by the DOJ, a few State AGs, and a limited number of companies that made some poor business choices and now what MSFT penalized because of their lack of wisdom. It is time for the DOJ and the courts to put a stop to this judicial extortion against MSFT. As a tax payer, let's allocate our legal resources to stopping terrorism, going after the Enron's of the world and get off the back of the only true innovator company in the last 40 years who has created unprecedented wealth for our country, the public, business and their share holders.

Regards,
James P. Needham
Regional Director Europe & Russia
Airline Marketing Services
Boeing Commercial Airplanes
P.O. Box 3707 MS 21-32
Seattle, Washington 98124-2207
Phone: 1-206-766-2585
US Mobile: 1-206-683-9105
Fax: 1-206-766-1030
e:mail james.p.needham@boeing.com
CC:'msft(a)chasmellon.com'

MTC-00011538

From: Richard Manson-Hing
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:56pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The DOJ settlement proposal seems to address the past (emphasis on PAST) illegal practices by Microsoft to protect its monopoly position in the market for its software and platforms. However, it does little to ensure that future illegal monopolistic practices are not engaged in. It particular, it does very little to address the following:

Microsoft has had time to build up a significant barrier to entry for competitive products. Even with the proposed settlement in place, it would still be prohibitively expensive for would-be competitors to try to enter any market space that Microsoft has deemed theirs. There are already examples (maybe not necessarily directly illegal) of where Microsoft will attempt to commit anti-competitive behavior. For example, their recent financial investment in Groove Networks seeks to tie-in an emerging technology (peer-to-peer collaborative technology) to their Windows platform. The Windows brand is simply too powerful to compete against. The damage is already done!

is generally agreed today that new markets such as mobile computing and small devices such as the Palm Pilot and Cellular phones will eventually command a larger share of consumer interest over the traditional PC. Microsoft has already begun to extend the Windows monopolistic brand to these new areas. A technical review board put in place to review Microsoft practices would be too slow to be effective!

The settlement does nothing to compensate Microsoft competitors for the harm that they have endured. These competitors (Netscape, Java, Real Networks etc) are now engaged in an uphill battle to achieve some prominence in the market. These companies would today be in a much better market position if the anti-competitive practices by Microsoft were never engaged in, in the first place. Microsoft's strategy is to delay litigation until they can make come up with a different method of monopolizing the market or until the point is moot!

In closing, I disagree with the DOJ proposed settlement. It is a way for the DOJ to simply "give up" while saving as much face as possible. The DOJ needs to come up with a way to "level the playing field" by giving Microsoft competitors "a leg up".

MTC-00011539

From: Sslist@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:55pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

I am appalled that the states are continuing action against Microsoft. It is simply improper for the states to serve as lackeys for the likes of Sun and Oracle against the interests of the consumer. Of all the corporate abuses that affect me financially, Microsoft is very low in the list.

I've been in the computing business for most of my working career and have seen the huge benefits to the industry that Microsoft has facilitated. The standard platforms that Microsoft has provided make it possible for my company to succeed against much larger competitors, by minimizing the advantages of size and drastically shortening the development cycle. Price of servers is coming down drastically due to the availability of Windows platforms and Microsoft databases. Compare the prices of Microsoft based servers with a Sun/Oracle of similar capability. And Microsoft hasn't lowered prices to gain share only to raise them later. You should be looking into Airline fare pricing for this abuse.

Give it a rest. Get out of the way of my business, you're hurting me.

Sam List
135 Bow Street
Unit 4
Portsmouth, NH 03801
603 436 1271

MTC-00011540

From: Nick Rosenstein

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:58pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

January 14, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

I decided to take time out of my schedule today to write to you concerning the importance of the recent U.S. vs. Microsoft settlement. The settlement will benefit consumers and the public interest, and therefore no further action should be taken against Microsoft.

Although there are some terms in the settlement which I feel go too far and would not accept, I understand Microsoft's desire to wrap this suit up and move forward. The settlement itself is strong, requiring, for example, Microsoft to possibly disclose intellectual property rights. This could arise if a third party wants to exercise its settlement options. If it is determined that doing so would infringe on a Microsoft intellectual property right, Microsoft will provide the third party with a license to the necessary intellectual property. The settlement actually supercedes Microsoft's property rights. Further, compliance with these terms will be enforced in part by a Technical Committee to be created under the settlement.

This agreement gives Microsoft the freedom to focus exclusively on what they do best, that is, developing new and advanced technology that consumers like myself have come to expect, whether it is at home or work.

Sincerely,

Nick Rosenstein, Ph.D.

President

IPN Interactive Payer Network

Please visit us on www.InterPayNet.com

Interactive Payer Network

Landerbrook Corporate Center

5910 Landerbrook Drive, Suite 110

Cleveland, Ohio 44124

voice 440-720-0700, x201

fax 440-720-0702

mailto:nick.rosenstein@interpaynet.com

MTC-00011541

From: Robert Gibson

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 1:55pm

Subject: Get it done!

Justice delayed is justice denied. Microsoft was denied presenting any evidence before the court ..that's not justice. Having the judge making public comment while the case is in progress. That's not justice. Asking competitors to set penalties. That's not justice. How pathetic does it get?

Even more pathetic as this bunch of has been envious companies hate Microsoft so much that in a bid to line their own pockets with their ill gotten gain they will even go so far as to deny American school kids computers.

It's not about justice is it. It's just plain envy and hate of a rich but generous man who gave $17B to charity last year. YOU HAVE NO SHAME!!

Thank you

Robert John Gibson

Senior Systems Eng, B Eng, NNCDE

Network Engineering

Ph 919 992 5072 ESN 352

MTC-00011542

From: Randy Pelham

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:56pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have followed with interest the antitrust case against Microsoft. It disturbs me that the government will spend millions of dollars of taxpayer money on witch hunts. It is obvious that the government has selectively chosen Microsoft in this matter. Why not AOL? If the government is going to take action against those companies which strive to improve their product for the good of the public, then our whole economy will eventually stagnate from the lack of creativity. I back any settlement that will stop the waste of taxpayer money.

MTC-00011543

From: Elizabeth M(00E9)nard

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:57pm

Subject: Settlement

I honestly believe that this case has dangerously harmed the US and the Canadian economy. If the whole world has a computer on their desk today it is because of company like Microsoft who did deliver affordable software available everywhere. It is not a Microsoft illegal issue but a market demand issue! Their revenue is customer driven! We like it we buy it ! No one is twisting the customer's arms.

Today I can send this message instantly because of Microsoft and their developers all over the world. This case is all about politics not about consumers. Now days everyone can install what ever software they want! It doesn't always have to be a Microsoft product but if it is easier to use and cheaper to buy than let it be a Microsoft product. They deserve it! because they always had the product we needed!

Elizabeth Minard

Canadian citizen

a 20 year old Microsoft Product user

MTC-00011544

From: Stephen Quinn

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 1:56pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

PLEASE just settle this case. It has gone on far too long, it is out of date at this point.

S. Quinn

MTC-00011545

From: Mike Fowler

To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'

Date: 1/15/02 1:57pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I continue to watch with much curiosity the on-going dilemma between various states and the DOJ regarding the above class action suit and as always, try to follow the money. Of all the class-action suits that I have been aware of or had the unfortunate experience to have been part and party, the only individuals or business who profited were attorneys and accounting groups. It appears to me that because there have been no other companies who have been able to develop programs that are both functionally and price competitive with Microsoft's programs, it appears that these remaining states are simply holding out for money to fill their coffers.

Our organization is a medium size business with approximately 200 personnel and we have used and relied on Microsoft products for more than 5 years and have been extremely satisfied with their products and services.

It would be much simpler if these states would just cut to the chase and tell Microsoft how much money they want so that this suit can finally end once and for all. No individual I have spoken to who uses Microsoft products has any idea that they will receive or have ever received any compensation from a class-action suit. Individually one person (if they can verify they purchased a piece of software) will receive only a small return of monies from a suit of this sort. On the other hand, the attorneys are likely to receive millions, tens of millions or more from a settlement. For the most part, the only people interested in this suit (especially since 9/11/2001) are those states who stand to gain millions for their state coffers....I think they care little or nothing about individuals or businesses.

Settle this stupid suit and let's get on with more important matters (such as the obvious fraud associated with the fall of Enron—some blame needs to be laid on investment companies who follow and report on these types of companies and continue to encourage investors to buy their stocks, Arthur Anderson, and those executives who led people astray while dumping their own stock). It's time to move on.

Michael B. Fowler
V.P. Finance/Administration
Rogers & Brown Custom Brokers, Inc.
P.O. Box 20160
Charleston, SC 29413

MTC-00011546

From: Andrew Coupe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:57pm
Subject: Letter of comment on the Microsoft Litigation

Andrew Coupe
14 Middlebridge Court
Silver Spring, Maryland 20906
January 13, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing you today to express my opinion in regards to the Microsoft settlement issue. I am a Microsoft supporter and have been active in informing my state government of Maryland on my views. I feel this issue has drawn on long enough, and I was relieved to hear that Maryland had settled and dropped its lawsuit against Microsoft. I am extremely anxious to see this dispute resolved at the federal level.

Microsoft is a company that has done much to impact our society. Because of Microsoft, we reap the benefits of computer technology in our daily lives. This settlement will end three years of litigation and will allow Microsoft to continue focusing its energy on innovative design. This settlement was reached after extensive negotiations and is complete. Microsoft will now agree to share sensitive information about Windows with its competitors.

I find it particularly disturbing that the remaining states in the lawsuit are all homes to Microsoft competitors. It is my understanding, that the Tunney act was designed to protect consumers not corporations. It appears that Oracle, Novell, Sun Microsystems, and others are using state legislators to further their own agenda under the guise of "protecting consumers". It is ironic that state legislators are pursuing Microsoft for overcharging consumers while Sun and IBM continue to sell competing products at significantly higher prices.

During these difficult economic times, it would serve in the best public interest to stop wasting precious resources on litigation against Microsoft and allow this company to get back to business. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
Andrew Coupe

MTC-00011547

From: Genie Morrison
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To The Folks At DOJ:

This has gone on long enough.

While I appreciate your efforts to reach a fair and equitable settlement for all American businesses and Americans, it is time for action. Settle, and let's move on.

Where is the outcry from DOJ when... Only 2 meat packers control nearly all of the food supply, here in the US? Only 3 major confectioners; Hershey, Mars, and Nestle control most chocolate/candy? Only 1 satellite TV company will control the entire US satellite TV market? Only 2 (major) food service distributors for restaurants in the US? Only 3 companies control air conditioning/furnace (HVAC) manufacturing? The list goes on and on...

We Americans will not need a DOJ if Alan Greenspan lowers interest rates again. Heck, the big companies will borrow money (so they can buyout small, competing companies), Americans will lose their jobs, and soon—a handful of companies will control EVERYTHING in America.

Nice picture? Get this settlement over with. You have many more important issues to tackle. Software giants of today, can fall tomorrow. Who thought IBM would be brought to their knees—by Microsoft?

Kindest Regards,
Genie Morrison

MTC-00011548

From: Richard Spooner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear DoJ

I support the proposed antitrust settlement which reasonably punishes the wrong-doing found by the court and allows all concerned to move on. Users worldwide need the common standard Microsoft supplies. Please don't handicap the US economy by delaying settlement now.

Yours
Richard Spooner

MTC-00011549

From: Esmarrin@aol.com@ inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir:

I support Microsoft in its attempt to innovate. Microsoft has probably done more to move this country forward than any other company. There attempt to be a leader has caused other companies to take notice and because they haven't been as successful they cry foul. Microsoft Corp. should be an example for other companies. No matter what Microsoft does to settle this lawsuit people are not happy. These people, especially the schools, are in it for the money. I would suggest finding some real criminals to bring to justice and leave Microsoft alone and free to innovate.

MTC-00011550

From: kamran mortezavi
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to close this case and move on to more important issues that are effecting our lives to day. My vote is for the settlement.

Kamran Mortezaavi
(301) 340-2669 (home)
(301) 762-9126 (home Fax)

MTC-00011551

From: Tom Berry
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To all whom these presents shall come,
Greetings.

(Is that how it's usually put??)

Having reviewed the documents related to this case, please let me offer the opinion that they are a good start, yet insufficient to prevent monopoly abuse on the part of Microsoft (as they have demonstrated in the past; cf. the December 17, 1997 contempt motion). Further, let me suggest an additional remedy that should lessen the probability of such occurrences while remaining consistent with Microsoft's own claims of its innovative prowess. As you will recall, in the early phases of these trials, Microsoft chose to paint the picture that the case was about freedom to innovate. I believe my (admittedly partial) solution leaves them free to innovate and reap the benefits of any true innovation.

The remainder of this email speaks to Paragraphs 36 and 37 of the original complaint, which are:

36. Neither the antitrust laws nor this action seeks to inhibit Microsoft from competing on the merits by innovation or otherwise. Rather, the Complaint challenges only Microsoft's concerted attempts to maintain its monopoly in operating systems and to achieve dominance in other markets, not by innovation and other competition on the merits, but by tie-ins, exclusive dealing contracts, and other anticompetitive agreements that deter innovation, exclude competition, and rob customers of their right to choose among competing alternatives.

37. Microsoft's conduct adversely affects innovation, including by:
a. impairing the incentive of Microsoft's competitors and potential competitors to undertake research and development, because they know that Microsoft will be able to limit the rewards from any resulting innovation;

b. impairing the ability of Microsoft's competitors and potential competitors to obtain financing for research and development;

c. inhibiting Microsoft's competitors that nevertheless succeed in developing promising innovations from effectively marketing their improved products to customers;

d. reducing the incentive and ability of OEMs to innovate and differentiate their products in ways that would appeal to customers; and

e. reducing competition and the spur to innovation by Microsoft and others that only competition can provide.

Microsoft has in the past established a particular modus operandi, to wit:

1) A potential competitor will develop an innovative product with the potential of material impact in the middleware arena.

2) Microsoft will purchase, license, steal and reimplement the concepts of the product, or simply infringe patents to incorporate the competitive technology into its own product offerings. In the case of simply stealing someone's idea (e.g. Web browsers), Microsoft's operating system dominance then nearly guarantees the overtaking and ownership of the new technology's market. (If you would have evidence of this kind of behavior, especially my infringement accusation, let me suggest that some of the lawsuits brought against Microsoft whose records have been sealed be unsealed. Those cases that Microsoft wants left sealed the most will, I am sure, provide the richest examples.)

3) The threat being neutralized, Microsoft will cease any meaningful "innovation" and begin developing minor feature enhancements designed to drive revenue to Microsoft rather than provide value to consumers. (Witness the release of Word 6 on the Macintosh, which actually ran slower than its predecessor. This flaw was only corrected after massive publicity began to reflect poorly on Microsoft.)

However, the current settlement, especially the paragraphs: "Nothing in this section shall prohibit Microsoft from entering into (a) any bona fide joint venture or (b) any joint development or joint services arrangement with any ISV, IHV, IAP, ICP, or OEM for a new product, technology or service, or any material value-add to an existing product, technology or service, in which both Microsoft and the ISV, IHV, IAP, ICP, or OEM contribute significant developer or other resources, that prohibits such entity from competing with the object of the joint venture or other arrangement for a reasonable period of time.

This Section does not apply to any agreements in which Microsoft licenses intellectual property in from a third party; does not address the behavior I have described, where Microsoft essentially stifles innovation while claiming to be innovative.

Let me propose the following additions to the settlement:

Microsoft be prohibited from acquiring (or making a future agreement to acquire) any company or company's product, or purchasing anything more than non-exclusive redistribution rights to another company's individual product, for seven years. Also, they would be prohibited from making investments greater than, say, $20M in any company.

Microsoft could not possess copies of the source code for any software product not developed in-house, even under license. The actions of any company in which it made investments could not be restricted by Microsoft in any way, shape, or form. Microsoft be prohibited from implementing technologies developed at any other company unless they adequately license someone else's patent. (I'd suggest a guideline of "adequacy" could be established, perhaps 3% of the product's gross revenues.) Possibly companies or individuals could also register their own innovations with an office of the Technical Committee (not located in Redmond). (Given that the Technical Committee will be on Microsoft's campus we have to assume that Microsoft would be able to read any database kept on its premises.) While this appears to duplicate the efforts of the US Patent and Trademark Office, the Technical Committee's innovation database could probably be updated more easily and would allow for the registration of product concepts, again the chief example being web browsers (registration would require the presence of a working prototype, of course). This does not constrain Microsoft from developing its own patents or ideas, indeed, it should encourage such "innovation".

Further, if Microsoft is found guilty in (or settles) a suit of patent or innovation infringement filed (not necessarily resolved) during the period of enforcement (listed as 5 years in the Settlement document, though I would suggest increasing this term to 7 years), punitive penalties should be 30-fold the original judgement or settlement (not the mere 3 times that I believe current law allows).

I believe that these additions to the settlements will encourage true innovative behavior on Microsoft's part to the benefit of the consumer. I recognize that these provisos flirt with restraint of trade. However, Microsoft has flouted the law without adequate recompense to date, and I believe an extraordinary remedy is in order.

Best Regards,
Thomas Berry
Galileo Systems, LLC
408-296-5223
CC:microsoftcomments@
doj.ca.gov@inetgw, ROBERT.RIGSBY@...

MTC-00011552

From: Dixie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 1:57pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Truly this has gone far enough. With all that is happening in the world I would think it is time to move on and let Microsoft run their business and end this long drawn out lawsuit. The settlement terms Microsoft offered are in my opinion more than fair, in the interest of "right" end this nonsense now.

Sincerely

Mary D. Pintler Dixie Pintler
bobndix@oz.net

MTC-00011553

From: Ron Samford
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:00pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
Let's get this settled and move on; it's time to free Microsoft from the burdens of this litigation and get the DOJ focused on more pressing needs. Microsoft has recognized it's not infallible in this issue. All objectives have been met in large measure on both sides. Settle it now, please.

MTC-00011554

From: Bakstran
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To whom it may concern

This email is to let you know my feelings on the proposed Microsoft settlement. I am a Massachusetts resident and do not agree with our Attorney General who has decided not to abide by the proposed settlement. I believe the settlement is fair and is certainly in the best interest of the consumers of the US. Microsoft has provided so much to us in the area of technology improvements and price/performance of their software. I look forward to their innovations in 2002 and beyond.

Sincerely
Annette Bakstran
20 Baker Road
Berlin, MA 01503

MTC-00011555

From: George Huey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is becoming increasingly clear that the case against Microsoft is not only against Microsoft but against the American people as well. The hate spewed forth by AOL, Sun and Oracle is disgusting and I find it hard to believe that our justice system would side with such companies. Our economy is in the toilet and it needs everything it can get it to rebound (like getting off of Microsoft's back). It is an interesting note that our economy didn't start to decline until the government attacked Microsoft. If DOJ is really interested in helping the American people, it will stop listening to the Microsoft bashers (AOL, Sun and Oracle) and think about what is good for the American people. If anything, I would like an inquiry into how the government justice system can take sides with companies such as AOL, Sun and Oracle when it is clear that none of these companies give a flying goose about the welfare of the American people. Anyway, this madness needs to stop. If AOL, Sun and Oracle want to compete, tell them to lower their prices and become competitive with Microsoft, not have the government destroy Microsoft so that they won't have to provide better products. Also, I resent the fact that the government and Microsoft's competitors think that the American public is so stupid that they can't make a choice on what software they want to run on their systems. If I want to run AOL or use an Oracle database, I will do so. Microsoft has never forced me to use their products. I am very happy with Microsoft and their struggle to make the computer user experience easy. I believe that Microsoft is working for the people not against the people like its competitors. Any politician that fights against Microsoft will lose my vote. It is time for the American justice system to get out of bed with AOL, Sun, and Oracle and think about what is good for the people not what is good for Microsoft's competitors. Please stop trying to destroy Microsoft. It is not good for the economy or the American people.

Yours truly,
An American citizen,
George Huey

MTC-00011557

From: Chris (038) Marcia Wood
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:01am
Subject: MS

Whatever decision is made, I believe the ease of use by the general public is the overwhelming issue. Standardization is very important. I really don't care what the standardization is except that it should be in the user realm, not some companies agenda. I do believe that the market place will take care of 99% of all issues. I dread the government's involvement. Sometimes elected officials get involved when they shouldn't and sometimes they don't get involved when they should. I think the economy of the US is much better served by Congress when they listen to the public as opposed to a few companies which failed in their technology and or marketing.

Chris Wood
1155 Victoria Falls Dr
Redmond, OR 97756
541-504-9358

MTC-00011558

From: ML Kuzma
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 1:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
ML Kuzma
77 Worth Ave
Hamden, CT 06518
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice—Antitrust
Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers.

With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Marie Kuzma

MTC-00011560

From: Mathur, Ashok N.
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 2:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Its about time we settled Microsoft case. With the current economy any dragging of the case can only hurt the cause of recovery.

MTC-00011561

From: Barline, John
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 2:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

I am an attorney, Republican, active citizen, consumer of computer hardware and software and daily computer user. I am writing to advise that it is my belief that the Microsoft litigation needs to be settled and not further litigated. The very software that I am using is a result of the good work that Microsoft has done and is doing. I feel that to litigate this matter further is a giant waste of the taxpayers' money, the government's time, and would unnecessarily prolong this process. Let's get on with doing things that benefit the country, instead of penalizing a company that has only benefited the US in the world and all of us citizens.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

John D. Barline
Williams, Kastner & Gibbs PLLC
1301 A Street, Suite 900
Tacoma, WA 98402-4200
Phone (253) 593-5620
Fax (253) 593-5625
email: jbarline@wkg.com

MTC-00011562

From: Bob Walters
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Anti-Trust Case

Time to stop this madness. These attacks on our American Companies are the main reason our economy and stock markets are in the dumps. Time to get the lawyers out of Washington's Federal Justice Department and get back to business.

Bob Walters
Placerville, CA

MTC-00011563

From: Academy of Music Northwest
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs,

Too many lawyers are trying to build a career out of this issue. The terms are fair, reasonable, logical, and good for everyone, except lawyers and malcontents. Let's get on with this settlement NOW.

Thank you,
Dee Wells,
VP Finance and Admin.
Academy of Music Northwest
425 778 7711

MTC-00011564

From: Jimm Butler
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

With all due respect, I have never seen a sorrier excuse as the one where thousands of mostly lower income children loose the opportunity to learn from new resources valued in the billion(s) because of the way antitrust laws are being construed. Why not just require Microsoft to fund, at whatever amount prescribed, the school's choice of computer systems, Microsoft based or otherwise?

MTC-00011565

From: Rod Trent
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:06pm
Subject: Anti-Trust case. . .

The length of time it is taking to reach a settlement in the Microsoft case is horrible. The government has already created a very good settlement, and the states not accepting this settlement are keeping the country and economy from recovering from 9/11. Let Microsoft get back to work and keep making products that provide jobs and economic and market value.

This case is no longer for the benefit of the consumer. Consumers aren't even on some of these panels that the government has allowed. Bringing folks from AOL, Sun, and NetScape into the mix only shows that this case has nothing to do with the consumer. AOL, Sun, and NetScape, specifically need to get to work and just create competing products. Microsoft has never stopped these companies from bearing down and just trying to create better products. They have stopped themselves, and in doing so, have only stopped to whine and cry. You can't compete, if you don't even try to compete. Its like me crying to my mom, asking her to tear up my friend's picture, because he's a better artist than I am. And, when I'm older and find I still have no artistic talent, do I ask the government to burn every piece of artwork in the world because it makes me uncomfortable?

AOL for one, should be under the gun for anti-trust issues. I speak to consumers every day, and the majority of them can't understand how a company like AOL has not entered into any kind of litigation, but Microsoft is forced to be beat on by companies who give as much money to the government as Enron.

If it weren't for Microsoft, these companies would have no one to compete with. From this you can see that Microsoft and its products actually spur competition. They raise the bar, forcing companies to either compete or succumb. What US loyalist can't see that as the American way?

Rod Trent
Microsoft.MVP.SMS

MTC-00011566

From: LMi3280257@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:07pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 PLEASE APPROVE THIS SETTLEMENT.
 GET THIS THING BEHIND ALL OF US.
 Luana Miller
 San Rafael, Ca.

MTC-00011567

From: Thorbz@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:08pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 Please do not allow bickering between businesses to deprive the schools and children to benefit from advancing and keeping up with technology that they cannot afford by themselves.

I believe schools and our well-informed future citizens will be able to make intelligent and informed choices in the future.

LT

MTC-00011568

From: Jody Varner
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Judge,
 My name is Jody Anne Varner and I serve as the Executive Director of Hope Unlimited International and like most professionals, use MicroSoft products daily.

I do not agree with the Proposed Final Judgment that you are considering. I implore you to cause MicroSoft to have to play by the same rules all others do. Please do not let this PFJ stand.

Sincerely,
 Jody Anne Varner
 Executive Director
 Hope Unlimited International 415-438-3350

MTC-00011569

From: Stan Young
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Justice Department Members:
 I write to you to encourage you to accept the settlement proposed by Microsoft. I believe it is fair and putting this affair behind us will be an important step towards getting our high-tech economy back in productive mode. This will help us here in California as it will help the rest of the nation.

Thank you for your consideration.

Stan & Susan Young 19903 Summit Drive
 Topanga, CA 90290

MTC-00011570

From: Jack Lawyer
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 2:07pm
 Subject: Microsoft support

I fully support the Microsoft's position in the anti-trust case. The settlement agreed to with the Federal Government is just and fair. I believe that the states that did not settle are profoundly influenced by their corporate constituencies who are motivated by competition. They are only out to feather their own nests at Microsoft's expense. John W. Lawyer

MTC-00011571

From: Johanna Seth
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:11pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 I have read the recommended documents. I am in favor of settlement under the present terms.

Johanna Seth
 14860-16 Summerlin Woods
 Fort Myers, FL 33919
 941-481-3751

MTC-00011572

From: Jack Richins
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:11pm
 Subject: Comments on the proposed United States v. Microsoft Settlement

After reading the proposed settlement, I am strongly in favor of this settlement. It is fair, rights the wrongs done, and prevents future occurrences. This settlement will help end this case, which has gone on long enough to detriment of the consumers. Quickly accepting this settlement will benefit consumers with a more open market with greater innovation and greater competition. And that is the purpose of this entire case, is it not?

Sincerely,
 Jack Richins

MTC-00011573

From: George Howell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The proposed settlement is a farce. A company has been found to be a monopoly, and one that abuses the situation. The proposed settlement will strengthen the monopoly, and allow further abuse of the power. In addition, the marginal cost to Microsoft to implement this remedy are essentially zero.

A far more rational plan is that suggested by Bob Young of Red Hat Inc, wherein Microsoft pays for hardware, and the software is provided by a free software vendor.

A third potential, and one that I advocate is to modify the current proposal to have some real teeth. First, Microsoft should have to provide cash and/or staff members in dollar amounts annually to equal the retail price of the software it is donating. Many studies indicate that post sale support is the largest factor in computer purchases. Saddling schools with machines and no support is worse than doing nothing. Money better spent on books, etc. will be directed to computer support. Let Microsoft pay for on site personnel. This makes the computers of more use to the schools, and also imposes true monetary penalties for their actions.

Second, this must not be a one-time deal. The computers and software must be replaced on a three year schedule (common in all industries with computer equipment) and the support staff must be on site for the entire three year period.

Finally, to avoid this being simply a three year slap on the wrist, the upgrade cycle should be financed by Microsoft indefinitely. When they cease to support this program, they should be required to develop a new remedy. In other words, this only buys them time. In addition, the amount should be adjusted by the rate of inflation as determined by the GAO or some other independent body.

This proposal will not eliminate the monopoly; it is unlikely that anything will. On the other hand, it will force Microsoft to pay for the pleasure. Also, some might view this as too harsh, being indefinite in nature. The money illegally earned by Microsoft will compound year after year unless there is a monetary penalty sufficient to eliminate their advantage. This plan modification that I suggest would make sure that Microsoft would not be able to take advantage of investments made with illegally gotten wealth. The only other possibility to prevent this is to impose massive cash payments to the respective governments and other plaintiffs.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

George Howell
 ghowell@familyhealthcarepa.com

MTC-00011574

From: Casey Clan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:09pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This misguided action by our government(s) should have ended long ago. As a litigation support specialist for Price Waterhouse, I participated in the last High Tech witch hunt by the DOJ against IBM (with Memorex' help). What a joke! We don't need protection from Microsoft, we need protection from our government! Let us decide ourselves whether to buy Microsoft's products, and then buy stock in the company if we think their profits are excessive. Why don't you guys go find some real criminals.

Please settle this monkey business as soon as possible.

Kevin Casey

MTC-00011575

From: Ron and Jan Miller
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:10pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the Microsoft case should be settled. What better way to have something positive comes out of this. Just think of how many children's lives could be changed if they had access to a computer. One billion in funding, software and training would make a huge difference in our classroom for the better. Just my opinion, for what it is worth. I am a grandmother with several grandchildren in grade school. Sure would like that benefit for them.

Sincerely,
 Jan Miller

MTC-00011576

From: David Sagerian
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:12pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

As a consumer, I am appalled at the manner with which nine states are stretching this incredibly convoluted issue further. I am a California resident and consider the state's actions counterproductive and not representative of my intents and wishes and I speak for many who share the same thoughts.

There has been enormous damage to the consumer out of these lawsuits. Much more than the alleged harm they are trying presumably to correct? Time to call it a lawsuit and MOVE ON!!!!!!

David Sagherian
Glendale California

MTC-00011577

From: Pierce, Jeff
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 2:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To the court:

I strongly agree that the Government should accept the proposed settlement terms and get the Microsoft case resolved without further litigation. The lawsuit is clearly Microsoft's competitors' attempt to injure, harm, distract, and frivolously litigate a successful, tough American company.

Please remember the following facts as you consider settlement:

1) The initial lawsuits were filed after lobbying by Microsoft competitors— not by citizen groups. Read Lawyer Reeback's history.

2) Microsoft is a monopoly in their own product and can modify it as they like. They can expand and add functionality to their products just like their vociferous competitors do—Oracle and SUN being two of the primary agitators.

3) There is plenty of choice for all technologists. Within the information industry, I count just four competitor's revenues (IBM/SUN/ORACLE/APPLE) at well over $100 Billion dollars in just these four named companies. They should develop and market technologies that compete on their merits. I don't see Microsoft getting the state of Washington to sue IBM for their monopoly on IBM mainframes—AND PREDATORY MAINFRAME SOFTWARE PRICING PRACTICES THAT ARE WELL DOCUMENTED IN THE INDUSTRY. Why not? People look at "disruptive technology choices" that accomplish business goals by choosing from a myriad of other products that accomplish their goals. .

NO CONSUMER HARM

The biggest legal issue was supposed to be consumer harm. In all the documents I read on this court case, I have yet to see quantified or estimated damages to consumers. In fact, maybe consumers should PAY MICROSOFT for adding valuable features at no charge into their products— features they could otherwise pay for to "competitors".

The average selling price of PC hardware combined with Microsoft software has fallen probably 66% since I have professionally sold computers and networks for a living. Again, a CONSUMER BENEFIT due to Microsoft.

Final Note: I understand some company called Apple Computer makes an electronic box without Microsoft software; such box is able to mimic functionality provided by Microsoft powered hardware. Consumers can order this box today, immediately, on the Internet and never have to buy Microsoft. Easy to choose alternatives, isn't it?

STATES GOVERNMENTS ARE LACKEYS AND CO-CONSPIRATORS

I am extremely disturbed by states suing on behalf of business competitors. As pointed out, there is no consumer harm—just business competition through the natural competitiveness of the technology industry. The states that choose not to settle should have some fairly well defined precedents set by the current agreement proposal between the Govt/Settling States and Microsoft. Precedents that will stop their continued foolishness in this lawsuit.

Regards,
Jeff Pierce
16 Jesse Dr
Mercerville, NJ 08619
609-584-8621
jeff@pierce.net
CC:'jeff(a)pierce.net'

MTC-00011578

From: Hal Kenyon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To Whom It May Concern,

I own Kenyon Drafting & Design and use many Microsoft products. Microsoft is a great company!

I want the settlement to benefit Microsoft as much as possible. The more we penalize Microsoft, the more we have to pay for their products & services (which are excellent quality).

Sincerely,
Hal Kenyon
www.kenyondrafting.com

MTC-00011579

From: jane mcguigan
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 2:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I cannot understand the reason these states are objecting to the settlement. The taxpayers of the US have wasted enough money with the Microsoft case. I am more that satisfied with the results of the settlement. Let Microsoft get back to their business. I am a user of MS products and a shareholder in the company They have complied over and above.

MTC-00011580

From: Tuttle,Dino M
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:15pm
Subject: Settlement

A quien corresponda:

I think the US government should get it's hands off Microsoft and give them an apology. Why punish a company for succeeding. If we didn't like the product, we'd buy Apple.

Dino Tuttle
Box 3169
Alamo, TX 78516

MTC-00011581

From: Peggy
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 2:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would personally like to comment upon the Microsoft antitrust settlement. It certainly "could" discourage people from striking out on their own and striving to be the best. I personally object to the whole antitrust case with Microsoft. As Americans we should be able to grow our business as much as possible. I am a small company, but certainly feel that "if" I were to become a LARGE company I would feel threatened by government because of this particular antitrust case going on today. I think Americans should be free, with no interference from government—unless fraud is going on - and I do not think it is with Microsoft. They have great products, and because they have developed something of far superior quality to other companies, they are being stifled and punished. I truly do believe it is a crime—and the results of some poor losers' attempts to discredit someone that did better in their plans, production and products, than they.

Thank you,
Peggy Page, 13525 N. Lon Adams Road,
Marana, Arizona 85653—520-682-4326

MTC-00011582

From: George Burch
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:17pm
Subject: Microsoft—a consumer viewpoint

This is just another typical pissing away of the public's money. Microsoft has done nothing wrong. It only happens that the competition is not willing to dig into their pockets to play and the DOJ and the Congress saw it as an opportunity to look like they give a shit about the public. Fact: If I owned the concession on air, to get it you would have to pay. It is called capitalism. Press on with your inane exercise. It is why you guys work for the government. You would not last a second in the real world.

George
CC:Nightly@NBC.COM@inetgw

MTC-00011583

From: Runnerjo@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:20pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

We need to thank Bill Gates and Microsoft for what they have done for this country and technology instead of suing him. Where would we be without Microsoft and computers?

We live in America to have the freedom to innovate and make discoveries that will benefit Americans. One of our freedoms is capitalism. When a man and his company is successful, do we then sue him and try to take his rights away as an American. We need to end these lawsuits now and give Microsoft the freedom it deserves to invent new products that help us all in business and in schools.

Joanne Leonard
Hollywood, Florida

MTC-00011584

From: laura
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:20pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

The consumers have not been hurt by Microsoft. The nine states pursuing the suit against Microsoft are representing competitors-not consumers. The settlement with the government should have brought this matter to close.

Paul Stout

MTC-00011585

From: Jmahamaker@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:20pm
Subject: Priorities

I urge that the government close its case against Microsoft and concentrate on matters of more importance to the American people than persecuting a company which is more responsible that most entities in this country (private or governmental) for the 90's booming economy.

Joan Hamaker

MTC-00011586

From: BranTayDes@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

With the uncertainty of the economy, the Microsoft suit demands closure so we can all get back to normal. Please move this case to a conclusion.

Robert Hines, San Diego, CA

MTC-00011587

From: Stephen Quinn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I almost don't care how you settle this Microsoft case, but please settle it.

Seriously, this has been going on for far too long.

Stephen Quinn, Test Mgr

"The more I want to get something done, the less I call it work."—R. Bach <<http://www.ag.wastholm.net/author/Ashleigh—Brilliant>>.NET Enterprise Server, SQL Business Intelligence

Office Phone: 425.703.5351, Cell Phone: 425.829.3727

MTC-00011588

From: MaurKilleen@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I was very disappointed to learn that US District Judge J. Fredrick Motz rejected a settlement that would have resolved the class-action lawsuits filed against Microsoft.

Enough is enough! First we had an incompetent and obviously biased Judge Penfield and now this. We are still reeling from the attack of 9/11. Our country is at war, our economy in a shambles, thousands of citizens are out of work and thousands more will shortly join them. I thought Microsoft made a great offer that would have benefited the company, the country and the underprivileged but apparently there are those who are hell bent on destroying a great company, major employer and generous benefactor.

Could it be that the goal is to transfer more of our business to Asia or is it to pander to the incompetent and jealous competition here at home? In the interest of all concerned, it is time to settle this case for once and for all.

Then we can direct all of our legal resources and skills towards salvaging the savings, pensions and jobs of the unfortunate citizens ravaged in the horrific, real and major scandal now at hand:-Enron.

Very truly yours,
Maureen J. Killeen

MTC-00011589

From: Dave Garvie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Please, let's settle the Microsoft case, and let them get back to business.

Dave Garvie

MTC-00011590

From: mookie1173
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:25pm
Subject: To Whom It May Concern:

To Whom It May Concern:

I feel the lawsuit against Microsoft should not be allowed to continue. I feel the current set of measures agreed to by Microsoft and the Department of Justice are sufficient and to continue litigation will unnecessarily prolong this country's current economic problems. I feel the final outcome will be the same anyway since the current set of sanctions are fair and reasonable. I feel that this litigation has undermined this country's faith in the future of the entire technology sector. It has done much more harm than any transgressions ever made by Microsoft. I am glad that this happened, but I think it's now time to move on. I hope we will soon be able to put this situation behind us. I'm sure there are many other more constructive ways to use the court's time.

Sincerely,
Mark Hamblin

MTC-00011591

From: ESKIMOPUP@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:25pm
Subject: Microsoft

Please settle the case with Microsoft quickly and in a fair manner so that Microsoft and our economy are not hurt further.

MTC-00011592

From: Ben Trevathan Allied Worldwide
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a Microsoft shareholder (as well as an owner of shares in most of Microsoft's major competitors), I would like to exercise my right to comment on the proposed settlement. Other than my ownership of shares and my use of Microsoft products, I derive no benefit, directly or indirectly, from Microsoft and am not employed in the technology industry.

The prior administration commenced an action against Microsoft that was not sought by the marketplace. The destructive impact of this course of action has been aptly chronicled by the evaporation of tens of billions of shareholder wealth, not just at Microsoft, but among its competitors as well.

Microsoft enjoys its current market position not because of any nefarious plot, but directly as the result of providing a valuable product that the consumer has chosen freely and often. As was the case with IBM in the 1970's, no company—especially one that is competing in an arena in which innovation today can render last year's necessity obsolete—can enjoy a monopoly without the intervention of government. It is cruel irony that it is the intervention of government which now punishes a company victorious in the free and unfettered technology marketplace in order to enrich competitors whose success came not from that marketplace but from generously opening their wallets to Washington influence.

The current administration has the opportunity to return the nation - at least in this one instance—to a path in which freedom and innovation are rewarded and success or failure are determined by the people who participate in the market, not by the purchased power of government for sale to the highest bidder. As has always been the case, the path of freedom requires courage in the face of determined opposition. For the several years that this action has been pursued, we have as a nation followed a dark and dangerous course designed to overturn a verdict rendered collectively by the people. It is a dynamic verdict that is subject to change at any moment. But it is the people, voting daily in a free marketplace, and not the government who must either affirm or cast aside that verdict. History has demonstrated repeatedly and unanimously that when governments intercede to force their will upon the marketplace, the price borne by the people is significant. The Department of Justice should support the settlement of its action against Microsoft. It is the first step back onto the correct path—a path determined anew everyday by the people, not set by the government.

Ben Trevathan
Business Executive MBA University of Chicago

MTC-00011593

From: sdavis15@csc.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir,

I am sending this note to express my concern for the proposed antitrust settlement with 9 states and Microsoft, The provisions of the agreement are tough, reasonable, fair to all parties involved, and go beyond the findings of Court of Appeals ruling. The settlement is good for consumer and the American economy. We need to move beyond this litigation. As a country we have more important thing to deal with like national security and America economy.

I urge you to settle this case with Microsoft which is the best interest for this country at this time.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely yours,
Stephanie Davis

MTC-00011594

From: Clyde Tatman
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 2:25pm
Subject: micosoft settlement

This has gone on long enough. I believe MS is being sued because it is large and successful. Since the Fed. has initiated a suit the states should keep their nose or collective noses out of it.

MTC-00011595

From: Minder, Stephen
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 2:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It seems that the USA needs to get the Microsoft case behind us. Please urge the parties to agree to a settlement that allows competition, but also allows one of America's most important strategic companies to continue to operate.

Stephen W. Minder

MTC-00011596

From: Bob Sanborn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to get this litigation behind us. I believe the proposed settlement is fair and just. As a citizen I would like to get this behind us for the good of the country. Please settle this as soon as possible and avoid any further litigation.

Robert W. Sanborn 5406 W. University Blvd.
Dallas, TX 75209
214-352-9630

MTC-00011597

From: H. G. Bare
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please be advised that I strenuously object to any and all further litigation against Micro$oft in regard to delaying the proposed settlement. I especially object on the grounds that, as a Massachusetts resident, I am now forced to see my state tax dollars spent on useless pursuit of political gain for the incumbent Attorney General, who is only interested in getting free TV air time, not my best interests.

Sincerely,
Heather G. Bare 265 Braley Hill Road
Rochester, MA 02770-1907
hgbare@neaccess.net

MTC-00011598

From: BLHartzell@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:
It is time to settle the Microsoft lawsuit, and stop litigating! The litigation is hurting the economy. The only beneficiaries of the litigation are the trial lawyers.

Sincerely,
Barton L. Hartzell
836 2nd. Ave., #302
Kirkland, WA. 98033

MTC-00011599

From: RICK MARCINIAK
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:26pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case even if you increase the fine 100 million. So there are 9 states against the solution. That's pretty good out of 50 states. If that was the vote in Congress or the Senate it would be a no brainer. PLEASE, let's put this behind us.

Thank You
Rick Marciniak, 1065 Gator Trail, WPB, FL. 33409

MTC-00011600

From: CABAANANTE@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir:
I strongly believe that the Microsoft case should be soon settled as proposed and all additional litigation discontinued.

Sincerely,
Carlos A. Baanante

MTC-00011601

From: Cleon Seguin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:31pm
Subject: litigation

The case against Microsoft is not about anti trust it is about the freedom of interprize to get ahead in a competitive maner. The states are only after a free ride in the development of new produces. Why should Microsoft have to give up there trade secrets anymore than General Motors. As for a monopoly how about the car companys You have to buy Ford parts to fix a ford car as well as the rest of the car companys. How about Boeing , they have 100% monopoly on airplanes. Microsoft has given a huge amount of settlement offer. Tell the states to go to hell and developpe there own products.

Cleon a Seguin
7814 s,112th, st. Seattle wa.
206 772 6798
seguin3d@earthlink.net

MTC-00011602

From: jason dennis
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:29pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

To whom it may concern.
As a software engineer by trade, I wish to comment on the proposed Microsoft settlement.

I would add that I'm not an employee or contracted to Microsoft and do not have shares in the company.

Whilst Microsoft may be guilty of bad practices, I feel that the settlement is fair. The company should not be broken up, nor should it be made to give up to another company the Windows or Office product. America is built on a freedom to make money by giving something the end-users want, if the end-user wants Microsoft then let them choose. Oracle complains but it's software is only used on high-end machines, how does it know what the end-user wants.

Please let the Microsoft settlement stand. So everyone can move forward, developing in a situation where you don't know if the company who's products you are using will be around in 6 months or they are changing to something different is very disheartening.

Regards,

Jason Dennis

MTC-00011603

From: Sean Callahan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:30pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I believe it is now time to settle the Microsoft anti-trust lawsuit, as well as, all the civil lawsuits. The company has been found guilty. Now please pick a punishment and let's move on. By dragging on the settlement talks, the only winners are the lawyers, not the consumers, which is suppose to be the intended winners. Please just pick a punishment and stop all the legal wrangling.

Thank you,
Sean Callahan
Gilbert, AZ

MTC-00011604

From: BOB KADECHKA
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:29pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
PLEASE DROP THIS MATTER!

MTC-00011605

From: Paul Johnston
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement 1055
Doylestown Pike<?xml:namespace prefix = o ns = "urn:schemas-microsoft-com:office:office" /> Quakertown, PA
18951 January 13, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:
I have used Microsoft products for 12 years. Microsoft software is one of the few things in America that works well. It makes my job easier. All the Microsoft products work well together as it should be. As a concerned citizen of this great nation, I am writing to voice my opinions on the settlement, which has been reached in the three-year antitrust case against Microsoft. It pleases me to know that a settlement has been reached by the all of the parties involved.

Microsoft will not be getting off easy, as others would lead you to believe. The company has agreed to document and disclose for use by its competitors various interfaces that are internal to Windows operating system products. This is a first in an antitrust settlement

Also, Microsoft has agreed not to retaliate against software or hardware developers who develop or promote software that competes with Windows or that run on software that competes with Windows.

Please let Microsoft alone. It isn't broke don't try to fix them. I ask that no more action be taken on the Federal level against Microsoft. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Paul Johnston
cc: Senator Rick Santorum
Paul A. Johnston
Asplundh
Quality Assurance
Phone: 215-784-1448
Email: pjohn@asplundh.com

MTC-00011606

From: Roland Pohlman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:33pm
 Subject: microsoft needs help

Please leave Microsoft alone to innovate and design new products for all of us! They have been punished enough. Thank you

MTC-00011607

From: Diane (038) Roland Freeman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft, like Ford, in the early 1900's, has done the world a favor, by establishing a standard that was very much needed to make everyone's computer system compatible and therefore useable, at a time when there was no other compatibility between users. For this, they should be punished? Only greedy, self seeking men would attempt to punish progress in the excepted American way of freedom to create and build in this great country. Long live the Henry Fords and Bill Gates of this world. HE.OR. Freeman

MTC-00011608

From: Jack Sheehan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The purpose of this communication is to express my opinion regarding the Microsoft settlement.

I believe that the original settlement should have been sufficient to end this matter and enable all of us to go back to work without the distraction of additional politically motivated harassment of the Microsoft Corporation. I am of the opinion that Microsoft offers for sale products that are generally superior to any others on the market, and that their prices are reasonable. Further, there are alternatives to these products and anyone wishing to avail themselves of other products has the freedom to do so. Having worked it's way through the minefields created by the Federal government, Microsoft is now being hounded by State Attorneys General who no doubt have visions of another "Tobacco Settlement" bonanza dancing in their heads, another crusade to fill the State coffers on the pretext of upholding the rights of the aggrieved "victims" of yet another greedy corporation. I ask that you bring this matter to an expeditions conclusion and save all of us money that will otherwise be wasted in further litigation. In the end it is the consumer who pays.

Thank you.

John J. Sheehan
 Jack Sheehan
 45 Lenor Drive
 Harwinton, CT 06791
 860-485-1260
 JLSheehan@att.net

MTC-00011609

From: Ellen
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:35pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a consumer I would like to submit my views to you on the Microsoft Settlement

Case. I think this case has gone on much too long and it is time to resolve it for the benefit of the American people. It is time to move on.

I have been a consumer of Microsoft products for over a decade because I prefer Microsoft products. I am well aware that there are other software products that I could choose to use instead of Microsoft, i.e. Linux operating system instead of Windows, but I prefer Windows. So do many, many other consumers.

This case should be brought to a close as soon as possible.

Ellen Warren

MTC-00011610

From: Randy Hinrichs
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:34pm
 Subject: Response

The 9 remaining constituents that want to pursue litigation against Microsoft need to wake up! It is abominable that they would use the justice system to continue down the path of getting the government to help them with their competitive strategy. It seems that they are not going to be satisfied until Microsoft is so neutered that it is impossible for it to continue doing business in a way that helps the american economy and provides very decent business processes.

We begged for someone in the 80s to consolidate the various datasets and enable/empower the end user to be able to share data, work interoperably between mainframes, and bring sublime expertise into software, so we would be much less reliant upon individual software vendors to come in with their consultants, their MIS directors, etc. to help us build a simple spreadsheet, or document management environment. So, Microsoft enters the picture and works toward consolidating a PC environment for empowering the digital worker. They did it right. They did it to the glee of the buyer, as is evidenced by the extreme popularity of the software environment. The customers simply did not suffer. In fact, being a Microsoft employee, I've never heard a customer tell me that Microsoft did them wrong. They only tell me how powerful the software is, and how it helps them get things done!

As Microsoft expanded its own knowledge of the computing environment, it looked for improved processes, improved software architectures, improved features. They innovated to the delight of the consumer, again evidenced by the popularity of the Office Products, the OS iterations both as clients and servers, then as a browser, enabling emancipated publishing to the web. Then, the web enters the picture as a huge opportunity for international global digital development and Mirosoft simply changes its focus to a new platform that would help internationalize digital business processes.

The competitors need to compete on innovative capability, not further litigation. Get back to work! This is a time we need unity and parity, not division and imbalance. These 9 constituents need to work harder to figure out how to build enabling and empowering tools for the end user, not looking for ways to dig into the Microsoft coffers that are targeted for improving business, education and human society. We speak a lingua franca because of Microsoft and it's what we asked for, we cannot blame Microsoft for enabling us with its lingua franca and enormous capabilities to perform as businesses.

Whatever errors in judgement were made by the burgeoning, never before seen software industry with Microsoft at its helm have been addressed with a settlement put in place that accomodates for this evolution. Microsoft is not a malicious company. I moved here myself from Sun, and I find the company to be mature, principled, focused, innovative and strongly competitive. They were young kids when they started (in their 20s), and they emerged quickly, learned hard lessons, and have been focused on enabling people since then. This is not your father's Microsoft, it is a new Microsoft, and it is focused on helping people with software as never before. There are no barriers to entry. There are no monopolies preventing any company from entering this industry. In fact, Microsoft with its new .NET strategy is only going to enable more developers, and more businesses to succeed worldwide.

Let them alone. Let this settlement get us back to business of helping customers, and send a strong message back to these 9 consitutents who want to drag this out that you cannot use the government as a competitive advantage. The government is neutral, meant to make it fair for all. We cannot allow our democratic system favor one individual over another.

Randy J. Hinrichs
 Group Research Manager
 Learning Sciences and Technology
 Microsoft Research
 1 Microsoft Way
 Redmond, WA 98052
<http://www.learningwebservices.com>
 <<http://www.learningwebservices.com/>> 1-425-703-5524

MTC-00011611

From: David Davis
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have seen no benefit to the citizens of the United States by the action taken by the Department of Justice with regards to Civil Action No. 98-1232 United States vs. Microsoft Corporation. I believe it has been a complete waist of government resources and has done harm to the United States economy, the industry as a hole and the citizens of the United States. Although I personally do not agree with Department of Justice case in general, I do feel that a quick settlement would greatly benefit our county. With regards to the settlement I believe it is extreme, unwarranted and unjustified.

Sincerely
 David G. Davis

MTC-00011612

From: Carmor(a)amug.org
 To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov.?@inetgw
 Date: 1/15/02 2:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice
 Microsoft Settlement Hearing
 To Whom It May Concern:

I urge the Department of Justice to settle the current litigation brought by nine states in their dispute with Microsoft. It is in the best interests of all Americans to bring this divisive litigation to a conclusion. At this point only the lawyers are profiting.

Sincerely,
Carla Moring

MTC-00011613

From: Michael S. Guillory
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

For god's sake, settle this thing and let us get on with the business at hand—reviving the economy and protecting the country and our position in the world. Also, the individual litigation should be settled. The school systems would benefit and this would benefit children and the country.

Michael S. Guillory

MTC-00011614

From: KStutz1054@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Send the lawyers home.
Let Microsoft get on with their business.
Ken Stutzman

MTC-00011615

From: Marj/Ed
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the settlement as currently configured is a fair one and should go forward.

Marjorie A. Lynn

MTC-00011616

From: The1stBA@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please bring this matter to a conclusion with a speedy settlement. Thank you.

B.A. Wilcoxson, a microsoft shareholder.

MTC-00011617

From: Jeffries
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:43pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

After reviewing the settlement as presented, I find the settlement best for all concerned.

MTC-00011618

From: J. Alley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case ASAP.

Jane D. Alley
19641 20th Ave. N.E.
Seattle, WA 98155

MTC-00011619

From: Kathy Beardsley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a consumer of Microsoft products, I believe they are working in the best interest of the general public, and I believe the settlement should stand as is.

Thank you.
Mary Beardsley
CC:Mary K Beardsley

MTC-00011620

From: Marj/Ed
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
I agree with the settlement.
Edwin Lynn

MTC-00011621

From: ARNOLD SEIDON
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Settle now. Microsoft is very generous in their offer. Don't kill the goose that we are all dependent on.

Arnold

MTC-00011622

From: monde
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The matter needs to be settled in a way that does not end up being a boon for Microsoft. The school donation looked all warm and fuzzy but I agree with those who suggest that it is just helping Microsoft get a big chunk of the educational market. Let us not forget here that Microsoft broke the law. It just does not seem right that they should get away with it while people who break other laws (many of them victimless crimes) end up in prison. — note: my @ddress is monde@involution.org monde@thraam.com is no longer functional site unseen? see: <http://involution.org>

MTC-00011623

From: Plim1628@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

MY OPINION NOW, BASED ON THE COURTS ORIGINAL SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, I AM NOT IN FAVOR OF CONTINUING LITIGATION AGAINST MICROSOFT FOR THE BENEFIT OF LESS THAN 20% OF THE STATES. THESE HOLDOUT STATES ARE IMPEDING THE FINALIZATION OF THIS WHOLE PROCESS, AND IN DOING SO, IN MY PERSPECTIVE, ARE NOT DOING THE CITIZENS OF THOSE STATES THE GOOD THEY PERCEIVE. RATHER THEY ARE HOLDING THE DOJ AND MICROSOFT FOR RANSOM AT THE EXPENSE OF THE 82% OF THE NATION WHO ACCEPT THE COURTS ORIGINAL SETTLEMENT PROPOSAL.

SINCERELY,
DAVID RICHARD INGALLS
NAPERVILLE,(DUPAGE COUNTY) ILLINOIS

MTC-00011624

From: dgriffith@gdhco.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:47pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I read this article that gave this email address for opinions on the Microsoft settlement. First, although irrelevant at this point, I have to say I think Microsoft has contributed more to the growth and productivity of this country than anyone else that comes to mind. With the development of Window concept, it has made the operation of personal computers available to non-computer people. Thus it has attributed greatly in making computers user friendly enough that ordinary people can use them. As a result of this development, Windows became the software of choice. I remember when everytime you bought something for the computer you had to see if it was "IBM compatible" or not. No one could focus on software development because of compatibility problems. Windows eliminated that and almost all software developers worked toward making their software compatible with Windows. Thus Windows became the universal software.

I always thought the DOJ's involvement was more for the benefit of competitors than consumers. In all industries, inferior competitors complain about being at a disadvantage. In the long run, the antitrust case against Microsoft, in my opinion, had more potential to hurt consumers than to help them. I'm not a computer geek and I can barely operate one without assistance but windows has made my life easier when it does come to using a computer.

My mother is a librarian and has been able to obtain free hardware and software from a Microsoft grant. Many people in Greenup County Kentucky has benefited by the generosity of Microsoft. Their grant was for $50,000. Anyone in Greenup County can come to the library and use the computers and internet.

One lady downloaded a picture of her new grandchild or great grandchild (I forgot which) from a website in California. They offered internet training sessions for senior citizens. None of this possible without Microsoft. I don't see the library getting anything from Walmart (the world's largest retailer and likely the largest antitrust violator in this country!!)

Yes I think the settlement with Microsoft is acceptable and the DOJ should agree to settle the case and move on to a more important use of our tax dollars. The State AG's that are bucking the settlement, I think, want cash money for their States so they can further their individual causes. If you have any questions concerning my position you can contact me at the email address on this correspondence.

MTC-00011625

From: Dave Meltzer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

just wanted to voice my support for the proposed settlement. i've been using microsoft software for nearly two decades and have been amazed at how much value i get for the money. the settlement terms seem more than fair to consumers and the world economy needs this settled too.

MTC-00011626

From: Glenn Hyatt

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:50pm
Subject: Settle Now!

Leave Microsoft alone! Be done with it now! Don't force Microsoft to pack up and leave this land of harassment (once free). Get the government out of business and our lives!

Glenn Hyatt

MTC-00011627

From: O'Neal, Miles (038) Lola
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:50pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is time to stop further action against Microsoft. The settlement should be accepted. I am old enough to remember computers before Microsoft integrated programs to work together smoothly, trying to put together a working home system. I let alone a working office system. I was a nightmare. In my book they are heroes not villains. Leave them alone.

Lola O'Neal

MTC-00011628

From: Sheila Fass
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:51pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I firmly believe that the start of the downturn in the economy started with the persecution of Microsoft. The only way out of this slump is to settle this mess once and for all. Just think of the progress in communication we owe to Microsoft. With their innovations we have become one world in communication. It would have taken decades to reach this level without Microsoft. They deserve some leeway in marketing methods to have a continued impact on international distribution of knowledge.

sincerely: Sheila Fass shefass@calweb.com

MTC-00011629

From: charles jenner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:52pm

Dear Sirs, The nine states that have not agreed to the Microsoft settlement are not acting in the best interests of consumers, of which my wife and I are two, not in the best interests of the economy as a whole. I urge you not to heed their cry but to proceed to settlement. I wish that I had had the opportunity to testify on behalf of Microsoft during the trial.

Sincerely yours,
Charles R. Jenner

MTC-00011630

From: Ian Lance Taylor
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm writing to say that I think that the proposed settlement of the antitrust suit against Microsoft is weak and ineffective. While it addresses part of Microsoft's past behaviour, it does not address their past conduct with regard to squashing innovation in the computer industry. Where the settlement is appropriate, as in the disclosure of protocols, it appears to have been carefully crafted to avoid requiring disclosure to free software programmers, although free software such as Samba is the most common case requiring protocol information, and is the most significant competitor to Microsoft today.

Please reconsider the proposed settlement, and search for a settlement which will properly address the profoundly negative impact Microsoft has had on the U.S. computer industry.

Respectfully,
Ian Taylor
103 Winfield St.
San Francisco, CA 94110
415 550-9004
ian@airs.com

MTC-00011631

From: SandBillE@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice,

The appropriate time and diligence has been dedicated to the Microsoft settlement and the recent settlement is both fair and tough to Microsoft. I encourage the Department of Justice to complete this settlement, as it stands, and pave the way for the US consumer, Microsoft, other software/hardware companies and American business to move forward. We certainly know that moving forward is good for our country, particularly in these difficult times.

Sincerely,
Sandra O. Myskowski
Sandra O. Myskowski, CEO
Sandbill Enterprises, Inc.
1016 Baker Road
Sinking Spring, Pa 19608
Email: SandbillE@aol.com
Phone: 610-698-7056

MTC-00011632

From: AUSSIEALLEN
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:53pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
LEAVE MICROSOFT ALONE. THANK YOU, JEFF S. ALLEN

MTC-00011633

From: Lucien Bomar
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
lb StationeryDear Sirs:

I strongly urge you to complete the current Microsoft settlement under the currently proposed terms. It is long past time to conclude this matter.

I believe the remedy is just and substantial. It is important that we maintain a viable Microsoft. In my career (30 years), I have twice made major purges of software from my companies. The first was largely getting rid of 5.25 floppy based software and the second getting rid of software on 3.5 floppies. Each time I wondered what happened to the companies that had developed the programs that I had invested in that subsequently disappeared. I later found that most had made their Millions, cashed out their stock and moved to mountain villas like Aspen. Microsoft on the other hand has been a constant and has continued to develop new and innovative products while maintaining backward compatibility with their early products. Their products are inexpensive and easy for my employees to use, understand and get support for during the software lifetime. For a business owner it is important to know that the company I invest in (by purchasing software) will be here in the future and will supply support for the products I invest in. Microsoft has proven itself up to the task. Microsoft continues to supply the best (by far) customer and Partner support on the planet. In addition it has created a Worldwide support group of non-Microsoft specialist that support its products.

I will continue to support Microsoft because Microsoft supports me.

Thank you,
Lucien C. Bomar
Senior Member, IEEE
lbomar@ieee.org

MTC-00011634

From: Richard Klinkner
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:57pm

Please proceed with the settlement with Microsoft; it is fair to all parties.

Richard L. Klinkner, A Consumer

MTC-00011635

From: Davar Shokoh-Alai
To: Microsoft ATR, Susan Alai
Date: 1/15/02 2:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

How I wish the government would not try to force competitive advantages for one company over another. Accept this settlement but make it more fair for Microsoft and lower the requirements placed on a pro-consumer company that has opened doors for our country in unimaginable ways. When IBM tried to stranglehold us to their mainframes and Sunw to their boxes, and Oracle to their painful overcharged and painful to deploy database offerings, it was only Microsoft that dared to take on these big guys and offer more powerful and easier to use systems for customers.

Being in the technical management side of the house for 7+ years now and with 17+ years of business management experience, I know how hard it is to discern truth from error when it comes to technical offerings and respective sales pitches; however, it has been so clear that Microsoft is always looking for a way to make it easier to add technological advantages to businesses at a much lower cost. Meanwhile, IBM, Sunw and Oracle have continued to fight them at every front in order to keep the prices at unreachable places and charge us their outrageous consulting fees to deploy their "solutions".

I can not believe how much Microsoft has agreed to give into the government just to settle this and allow our economy to move forward once again! What is even more unbelievable is that 9 of the state attorneys are trying to get more for the competitive companies in their states. Maybe it is considered politics as usual, but it needs to stop now. Settle this case but make it a lot better for Microsoft since they have gone so far in their offer to settle this case. disclosure: I have sold IBM, Microsoft and Oracle solutions and speak from across the board experience.

MTC-00011636

From: Konrad M.Kempfe
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:58pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

This is to support the settlement in the Microsoft case. The case should not continue to be litigated. It is not in the public interest to continue litigation. The settlement proposed is fair.

We do not need our own justice department and states to weaken one of America's best companies while the Europeans and the World Trade Organization are out to harm our industries. We need to protect our industries.

Respectfully
 Konrad M.Kempfe

MTC-00011637

From: Kathy Gooley
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:47pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To: Judge Kollar-Kotally

I am writing to you today to express my intense disapproval of the Proposed Final Judgment announced by the Justice Department regarding the Microsoft case. Having followed the review by the Federal Courts during the past three years of the Microsoft antitrust case, in which they proclaimed that Microsoft repeatedly and forcefully violated U.S. antitrust laws and was liable for its illegal conduct, I am very much alarmed by the PFJ. I am also aware that recently a U.S. Court of Appeals ruled unanimously that Microsoft had clearly violated antitrust laws and that any government settlement with Microsoft must have three key elements: a) Terminate Microsoft's illegal monopoly, b). Deny to Microsoft the fruits of its past violations, and c). Prevent any future anticompetitive activity.

So, my question is, why has the Justice Department cut a back-room deal with Microsoft that fails to meet any of these three standards? I hope that as you review my response to the Justice Department's deal, and others like it, you will recognize the severe mistake that we would be making as a country to ignore what is right here. Please help protect public trust in our Government, the interests of the non-Microsoft developers? community, and the rights of all software users by ensuring that Microsoft is held accountable for their long-standing antitrust abuses. Thank you for taking the time to review my comments.

Sincerely,
 Kathy Gooley

MTC-00011638

From: Hackley E. Woodford, M.D.
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:59pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In view of our economy and post 911, the war, massive unemployment and recession, how could anyone feel honestly justified in holding up social and economic progress by voting against the Microsoft Settlement? Is it competition, jealousy, negativism favoritism, conspiracy, dishonesty, ignorance or What?

Microsoft is an American company. They are big and make money because they earn it.

Microsoft is not the Enemy, they are the Benefactors.

Agree to the Microsoft Settlement and watch the economy improve.

CC:Hackley E. Woodford

MTC-00011639

From: Charles Porter
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 2:59pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My Dear Justice:

It is very clear that no settlement with Microsoft will stop Microsoft's anti-competitive practices. Microsoft has a consistent strategy of entering markets that are not being closely watched, and of violating laws in subtle enough ways, that the motivation to stop the behavior does not become sufficient to be effective until Microsoft has effectively destroyed all competition in the target market, and erected prohibitive barriers to entry, making any constraint on the company's behavior irrelevant.

Microsoft is currently engaged in such a campaign to dominate the Internet Service Provider (ISP) Market. In addition to legitimate strategies such as buying shares in existing ISPs like ATT@home, and developing their own ISP business through the MSN.com business, they are engaged in predatory practices which create effective barriers to large numbers of consumers from doing business with any ISP other than MSN.

Microsoft has an agreement to assume all residential Digital Subscriber Line (DSL) accounts from QWest in thirteen western states. Prior to this agreement, selecting an ISP in these states was very much like selecting a long distance carrier. QWest owned the line from the house to the central office, an receives a fee for running DSL over that line. The consumer could then freely choose from at least dozens of ISP's to carry the traffic from there to the internet. One option for an ISP was QWest's own ISP service Qwest.net. If a consumer is unhappy with an ISP, Qwest would switch them to another within a day or two and for a small fee. Under the agreement with QWest, all of QWest.net customers are transferred to Microsoft. If a customer failed to opt-out before the deadline of November 30, 2001, they would be transferred to MSN. Once the account is transferred to MSN, the consumers relationship with QWest is severed. The customer of record for the DSL service is shifted from Qwest to MSN. This means that Qwest has no control over the customers line, and is unable to shift the consumer to an alternate ISP. Additionally MSN refuses to permit connection to a coveting ISP. The only available option is to "Unprovision the Line", which means to disconnect the DSL service altogether, not just from the telephone office to the internet, but from the consumers home to the central office. To make it additionally difficult, the "unprovisioning" process takes 30 days. (Changing from another ISP to MSN takes only 30 seconds via a Qwest Web page.) Allowing user to opt-out of MSN only by unprovisioning the line is analogous to Sprint saying that the only way to change long-distance carriers is to disconnect your telephone, and then pay to have it reconnected, for the normal new service charges at the time. In fact, unprovisioning the DSL service often does include disconnecting the telephone service itself, though Qwest will claim that this is accidental.

Incidentally, at the time of making the new connection it is difficult to find any options for an ISP other than MSN.

Qwest has taken the additional step of raising the price of a new DSL connection to $100, creating an additional barrier to changing ISP.

Since Microsoft is the majority ISP, most consumers are barred from switching away from Microsoft.

I raise this issue, not because I think the Justice department should be stopping this practice, but because it is strong evidence that Microsoft has not intention of changing its behavior. Information technology changes extremely quickly. By the time Justice is able to stop any particular anti-competitive practice, that practice is irrelevant. The only solution is to remove the power which Microsoft cannot resist abusing. As serious an issue as removing competition in the ISP market is, it is relatively small issue compared to Microsoft's stated objective: control of the internet. Under this plan, for every commercial transaction over the internet, Microsoft will be paid several times:

- once by the consumer for access to the internet, via MSN ISP service
- once by the customer for use of the windows operating system (Microsoft is moving from selling windows to selling subscriptions to windows)
- once by the vendor from whom the consumer purchases for validation of the users identification via Microsoft's passport service,.
- several times by the vendor for several licenses of the Windows server software and web-site software.
- once by the vendor for use of Microsoft financial services currently in development, for the actual transfer of funds
- and more ominously, many more times for selling the information gathered about the consumer while collecting all of the other transactions.

This is just about a simple purchase. I have left out all of the use of Microsoft products in fulfillment of the order and in marketing the product.

Attached is some background material on the QWest/Microsoft case from the Seattle Times and the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

I am available to provide additional information, should you wish it.

Thanks for your attention.

Charles Porter

Appendixes:

My complaint to the Washington state attorney general:

Web Site Consumer Informal Complaint Form: Thank you for using the WUTC Web Site. Use this form to submit complaints to the Consumer Affairs Section

Statewide Toll Free: 1-800-562-6150

Local: 360-664-1120
 Hearing Impaired—TTY: 360-586-8203
 Your Name(required): Charles Porter
 Your Address: Street address: 810—30th Ave

(We need your City: Seattle, address in State: WA order to Zip: 98122 process your comment)

Your County: USA
 Phone Numbers: Home: 206-568-3404
 Day/Work: 425-455-7601 x231
 Your E-Mail address: charles, porter@computer.org
 Date: 11/30/2001

Utility or Transportation Company Information

Company Name: Qwest, Microsoft
 Company street Address: City _____
 State _____ Zip _____

Your Account Number: 206-568-3404 If you know your Account Number, be sure to include it. About Your Complaint Have you tried to resolve the dispute with your utility or transportation company?

(*)Yes

() No

If "yes," what was the result? no change
 Please explain your complaint in detail:
 Qwest has been providing my home with internet service via digital subscriber line (DSL). This service only connects my house physically to QWest's offices. In addition to DSL provider, it is necessary to have an internet service provider (ISP), that connects my line from Qwest to the internet. QWest has been providing my ISP service as well.
 Qwest informed me that I must change my internet provider (ISP) to Microsoft' MSN service by November 31, 2001, or I would be swithed automatically. Immediately after performing the switching operation via the Qwest web site on Sunday Oct 22, I learned that the MSN service had several "features" and requirements that are different from those provided by Qwest. I decided that I should investigate other ISP's. To faciliate this more considered change, within 30 minutes of initiating the changeover to MSN,
 I tried to cancel the change both by contacting Qwest and MSN via email and several telephone numbers, including sales, and customer support at both organizations.
 I attempted both to restore my Qwest service and to change directly to another ISP. The upshot was that I could not cancel the changeover, and that I could only cancel the entire service with Microsoft, but canceling the service would take 30 to 60 days.
 Additionally the act of canceling, disconnects the DSL service provided by Qwest.
 Restoring the DSL service would then take anywhere from i0 days to 6 months, depending on demand in my neighborhood.

It is a far cry from equal access, when you consider that if my ISP were anyone other than Microsoft, changing ISP is as sidle as calling either Qwest or the new ISP and asking for a switch, much like the process of changing long distance companies.

Continuing this analogy, their policy of handling Microsoft is customers, would be like saying that to change long distance carriers, I must wait 2 months, have all of my phone service diconnected, and then wait I0 days to 6 months for a reconnect.

What do you think the company should do to resolve your complaint? Qwest should switch my ISP service to any provider I choose, without delay, handling the request with the same even-handedness that is required for customers long-distance I carrier choice.

From the Seattle Times: A growing number of consumers and Internet service providers co, lain that MSN Microsoft's Web company—is throwing up roadblocks for former Qwest high-speed Internet customers who want to quit MSN.

"It makes me feel like they're saying 'We're going to teach you a lesson' for wanting to quit them," said Larry Lomax of Des Moines, a former Qwest digital-subscriber-line (DSL) customer who switched to MSN and then decided he wanted to move to another provider.

Lomax said that MSN continually told him that he had been disconnected from its service, while Qwest insisted that according to its records, he still had a live DSL connection with MSN. The impasse lasted for about two months and ended earlier this month, when Lomax became so frustrated that he decided to give up on DSL altogether.
 When Qwest and MSN announced they were teaming up last spring, the two giants promoted their new alliance as a boon to 500,000 Internet subscribers in 14 states, mostly in the West, who would benefit from Qwest technology and MSN's content.

Roughly two out of five of those subscribers were DSL customers who had chosen Qwest as their Internet service provider; the rest were customers who used dial-up modems. Under the partnership arrangement, all former Qwest customers would automatically become MSN customers unless they opted out. Washington state DSL customers say the deadline to switch has shifted from a date last month to Jan. 21.

Some critics maintain that MSN is engaging in monopolistic practices that deserve attention, such as forcing customers who want to switch away from MSN to go without DSL service and charging them more if they try to switch. They further contend that Qwest, which originally promised to treat all DSL providers equally to help spread the technology, now is conspiring with MSN to hoard such prized customers. Qwest insists it is not playing favorites.

MSN likewise denies the allegations, but a spokeswoman acknowledged it recently had learned of problems relating to cancellation orders with DSL customers. She added that MSN was working to correct them. It is difficult to gauge the scope of the problem because neither Qwest nor MSN will disclose how many DSL customers have chosen to switch to another provider rather than accept MSN.

The companies also won't say how many customers quit MSN after initially agreeing to the transfer. Even more difficult to figure out is the number of consumers who have given up trying to quit MSN because they found the obstacles too daunting.

"Everyone's just up in arms over this thing," said Darwin Hill, owner of Worldlink, a Shoreline-based Internet service provider who contends that MSN's conduct has cost him customers. "Consumers are amazed by how they can't get anything done," he said.
 Hill is among the providers and consumers in Washington and other states who are particularly peeved at what they claim are routine waits of two weeks—during which no DSL service is available—to change Internet service providers (ISPs) .

In addition, they are concerned about reconnection charges of $69 that will rise to $99 on Jan. 5.

By contrast, before MSN's arrival, Qwest charged DSL customers $30 to change providers. Also, the switch routinely got done overnight, or with minimal service interruption, according to several independent providers.

Charles Porter, a Seattle DSL user who thought better of his decision to accept MSN, filed a complaint with the state attorney general. He stated that when he tried to change service providers, both MSN and Qwest said switching could take from i0 days to six months. "It is a far cry from equal access, when you consider that if my ISP were anyone other than Microsoft, changing ISPs is as sidle as . . . changing long-distance companies," he wrote in his complaint. In an interview, Porter said,
 "Microsoft is up to their old games," referring to monopolistic practices.

Jared Reimer, an executive with The River, a Tucson-based provider that offers DSL service in Arizona and Western Washington, alleged that the system is "rigged up so that it's almost impossible for the customer to switch."

He said that under the new arrangement, Qwest has made MSN the "customer of record" on the DSL portion of a customer's phone line, meaning the consumer no longer has the ability to switch providers at will.
 "They must get (MSN's) permission to do it,"
 he said. Lisa Gurry, an MSN product manager, acknowledged that under the deal with Qwest, MSN owns "the interaction with the (DSL) customer." She said the company
 "recently learned about issues on the order-cancellation process, primarily with DSL (customers). DSL is certainly more complicated for every provider, not just MSN."

She said that the majority of DSL customers wishing to cancel MSN were not having problems and that MSN and Qwest were working "to improve customer experience." Meantime, Gary Gardner, executive director with the Washington State Association of Internet Service Providers, a trade group for the state's independent providers, is asking the state Attorney
 General's Office to get involved.

A spokesman for the office said it was aware of the complaints and was monitoring the situation. Peter Lewis can be reached at 206-464-2217 or plewis@seattletimes.com.
 Copyright (C) 2002 The Seattle Times
 Company Qwest-to-MSN switch frustrates many Internet customers find it difficult to get problems resolved Friday, November 23, 2001

By JANE HADLEY
 SEATTLE POST-INTELLIGENCER
 CONSUMER AFFAIRS REPORTER

The process of switching hundreds of thousands of Qwest Internet customers to Microsoft's MSN Internet service is experiencing some glitches, both companies admit. Qwest and Microsoft Corp. in April announced a five-year partnership under which Qwest will close down its Internet provider service and encourage its 500,000 customers to move to MSN. Qwest will be the DSL provider for MSN customers.

The two companies are encouraging customers to switch before Nov. 30, and Qwest says its Internet provider service will close down early next year. Customers have the option of switching to an Internet provider other than MSN, but Qwest, under its agreement, has pledged to promote MSN above other providers.

But in a confusing twist, Qwest is also quietly offering customers the option of staying with Qwest under a program called StarterPak, which is aimed at small businesses, but is similar in most respects to what it had been offering to its residential customers.

The MSN transition problem has been worst for customers who had been using Qwest's DSL service, which provides fast connections to the Internet, said Lisa Gurry, an MSN product manager. Liz Conner, a Federal Way resident, said she waited 11 weeks to get DSL equipment that she was promised she would get within two weeks. "I've done everything I can think of and contacted everyone I can find," Conner said. "I tried calling Microsoft, even. They can't even tell me what department to contact or who to contact. So the bottom line is that the customer is stymied; they're left holding the bag with nowhere to go to get this problem resolved. The folks at MSN aren't solving it, and they're blaming Qwest. Qwest isn't solving it. They're blaming MSN."

How common is this problem? Unfortunately, the state Utilities and Transportation Commission does not keep track of the number of consumers who complain to them about Qwest/MSN problems.

Instead, the commission keeps track of a far smaller number: customers who don't get satisfaction after they call a special Qwest number that the commission gives to people filing complaints.

That amounts to about five people in the past two months, commission spokesman Tim Sweeney said. The Attorney General's Office has received a similar number of complaints about the Qwest/MSN transition in the last few weeks, spokesman Chris Jarvis said. But Conner said one Qwest customer service representative told her that Qwest's and MSN's computers weren't speaking to one another, and that the mess was affecting about 20,000 Qwest DSL customers.

Lisa Gurry, an MSN product manager, said the two companies are working on synchronizing their databases. "Both MSN and Qwest are two big companies," Qwest spokesman Michael Dunne said. "Making this partnership work, we're experiencing some difficulties in migrating customers from Qwest.net to MSN."

But he added, "We're working tirelessly with MSN" to solve the problems. Grace Dapar, another MSN spokeswoman, said MSN has set up a task force specifically to deal with delays in setting up accounts.

Delay is only one complaint. Others include confusion and difficulty making the switch, difficulty reaching company representatives who are knowledgeable and follow through on their promises, and disappointment with services MSN is providing.

Conner, who said she's spent countless hours on the telephone, said Qwest representatives repeatedly made promises that weren't kept and she believed she was being lied to. "My impression is the folks at Qwest are so desperate to tell you something, and the people above aren't telling them anything."

Aleta Hoyt, a Seattle real estate agent who has Qwest DSL and Internet service, says she has found the process of "transitioning," as Qwest and MSN call it, to be confusing and difficult. Hoyt received a letter in the mail telling her she needed to transition and could qualify for a prize if she did so before next Friday.

Hoyt believed she had no choice but to switch to MSN. She typed her name into the online form to "transition," but the form told her she was "not authorized" to transition. She called Qwest and was told to reset her password and try again. Same result. She was then given a phone number to call MSN's technical support. When she called there, she was told that wasn't technical support and to call a different number. She called the second number, where she was told to call the first number she had called. She experienced problems when the form asked for her "billing phone number" yet required three extra digits added to the phone number. Also, she lost her Internet access totally when she followed the Qwest representative's suggestion to reset her password. A different Qwest tech-support person straightened that out.

But now Hoyt was confused because several of the Qwest representatives told her she could stay with Qwest after all, using the $21.95-a-month StarterPak program. She's now mulling her options.

Meanwhile, in online forums, some customers are complaining that MSN emphasizes Hotmail, its Web-based e-mail service, which makes it impossible to subscribe to traditional Usenet news groups and means that e-mail is stored on MSN servers instead of downloaded to the user's computer.

But MSN's Gurry notes that Web-based e-mail provides the advantage of being accessible from any computer anywhere in the world. Also, MSN has its own news groups, which are "richer" than the Usenet news groups, she said. Gurry initially agreed that MSN was not supporting traditional Post Office Protocol e-mail accounts, but later corrected that and said that although MSN is pushing the Web-based e-mail, users can have access to the traditional POP type of e-mail, in which messages are downloaded to the user's computer.

One customer complained, however, that Microsoft appeared to be doing no spam filtering on its POP accounts. "The services we offer today are based on what the majority of customers have told us they do want," Gurry said. "Inevitably, we'll hear feedback requesting additional features and functionality. We continue to listen to that feedback and evaluate the prospects of including those features in future MSN releases," she said.

P-I reporter Jane Hadley can be reached at 206-448-8362 or janehadley@seattlepi.com

MTC-00011640

From: Ralph Whiteside
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It time for the government to settle the Microsoft case and get on to important issues. Such as, Enron and professional baseball restraint of trade.

MTC-00011641

From: Rhoda Elenbaas
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern: I have watched over the past several years while massive amounts of time and money have been spent on this issue. The proposed settlement pending before the court is just and equitable. It contains a component that will greatly benefit disadvantaged portions of the community and schools. Some might argue that there is hidden motivation and benefit to Microsoft. I would argue that the benefit to the students, families and communities is much greater and should be the primary area of concern because if it does not come from this source—it will not happen in the foreseeable future.

Let's be done with this issue once and for all. I am sick of hearing and reading about it and believe that to continue this matter for another moment is a gross waste of time, energy and dollars. There is a real & great evil at work in our society that is more worthy of our focus. Microsoft has taken it's lashes. Let's move on. A concerned taxpayer and voting American.

Rhoda Elenbaas

MTC-00011642

From: Metters, Bobbie J
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 3:01pm
Subject: My views

I think Microsoft is more than fair and I don't think Bill Gates should be told by we the people or the Government how to run a company. Albeit It was before my time when Standard Oil Co. was forced to break up due to the same type of situation. . . . ok that was oil this is disc but you get the idea. . . . I think Nintendo has far higher prices for it's stuff and then when you finally get one playstation they come up with a new one with higher prices yet on their cartridges and no one says a thing about that . . . and that's just my view. . . . Bobbie Metters

MTC-00011643

From: Paul Goethe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

As a small business owner I wish to state that the proposed settlement is more than fair to small business owners such as our company. Thirty years ago Microsoft developed an operating system that enabled our business to flourish. Our business being Electrical design Software. In the intervening years we have kept up with all up-grades for what I call Very Low charges while all along receiving 1st class back-up and support from Microsoft personnel. To people like us Microsoft has been a God-Send. We feel that the proposed settlement is extremely harsh but we recommend it stands as is.

Best Regards:

Paul K. Goethe President
Optimized Program Inc.
Cleveland , Ohio 44136

MTC-00011644

From: Carl J. Clement
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:02pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I approve of the Microsoft settlement. The entire matter was caused by about 4 potential (failed)competitors who tried to use the Federal government to do their competing!
Carl J. Clement

MTC-00011645

From: Giacomo Zardetto
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

Once and for all, SETTLE the Microsoft Lawsuit. The World Economy is at constant WAR. Life in itself is a war of economics. WHY DO YOU WANT TO DEFEAT ONE OF YOUR OWN? "Divide and conquer", was the motto, of an old communist; STALIN Please settle this once and for all.

Your country and millions of beneficiaries of today's technology will thank you for it.

Sincerely,

GIACOMO ZARDETTO
zardetto@rockisland.com

MTC-00011646

From: property@realtrak.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

While Microsoft probably overplayed its hand enough to get its would be competitors upset to the point of initiating this action, they have certainly done more good for the American consumer than harm. They, by innovation and standardization, have probably done immeasurable good in improving the productivity of our entire work force. I would have preferred that the Department of Justice had not gotten involved in the first place; however, they have and it sounds like the settlement worked out is fair. With respect to the 9 hold-out states that want even more, I am not sure what their game is. Do they want money as an alternative source of revenue in lieu of raising taxes because they think they can get away with it? Do they want glory and recognition? Do they want to punish Microsoft because they are jealous? Or do they really believe they and the consumers they represent have really been dealt an injustice? It certainly makes no sense to me.

Thanks for your time and consideration.

John Gridley

MTC-00011647

From: Gordon R. Martin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

Having owned and used multiple computers and many different software programs and their upgrades during the last thirty years, I can state from experience that the alternative to constant frustration from software "clichis"—is to use an integrated set of software products from a financially strong company which can be depended on to stay in business and continually upgrade its products. I look to Microsoft as being that company. I have always felt that their price of software was relatively insignificant and one of the greatest bargains in history in terms of what it can accomplish. The future of the nation is considerably dependent on having a strong, innovative, software company such as Microsoft with the ability to guarantee continued continuity and upgrading of an overall package of software products for personal computers. The courts should uphold the settlement agreements presently acceptable to the United States Department of Justice and all states should join in the acceptance for the good of the nation and computer users.

Gordon R. Martin
Gleneden Beach, Oregon

MTC-00011648

From: Kevin DeSchene
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:59pm
Subject: Class Action Suite

Hello, The proposed remedy for the class action suites are unacceptable (i.e some odd billions of dollars going to poor schools). Was this an attempt to reward MS for their shoddy business ethics or what? The customer base is the plaintiff here, not the schools. And since when has the accused been allowed to negotiate their punishment. Should we start asking murderers what their punishment should be, (not to be confused with plea bargains). U.S. antitrust law implies that the violator must be deprived of it's ill-gotten gains, as well as be fully sheared in terms of perpetrating the bad deed again in the future.

A proper set of solution:

1. Require MS to accurately publish the APIs Windows, IE, and Office programs,,, etc. . . , and offer same as storable (not automated one-time only) downloads for the public to view and study;
2. Prohibit Microsoft from entering any web services area, including .NET entirely, for 10 years. Since MS is leveraging its existing wares as a jump off to .MAKE-US-RENT-SOFTWARE-FOREVER (a.k.a. .NET), they must be denied this further attempt to profit from the initial ill-gotten gain;
3. No, don't break up Microsoft, but simply require that MS Office applications and all associated source code be declared freeware. This would effectively deny MS the fruits of its initial ill-gotten gains.
4. Fine the firm (MS) an amount equal to the dividends it hasn't paid shareholders as yet; this will prevent MS from using its cash reserves to buy its way around the above restrictions by simply inventing a new sandbox and forcing us all to play in it all over again (this is what they are already trying to do with .NET of course).
5. Their software should be supported and their licensing controlled more: i.e if they quit supporting ANY software, then that said software should become public domain. This would control MicroSoft from forcing upgrades. Microsoft should be required to re-organize their licensing program to allow for corporations/individuals to skip upgrades without punishment.

6. Exclusionary OEM agreements should be considered violation of law and punished accordingly. OEM pricing should be published for public viewing.

7. Political monetary influence should be monitored more closely. Even though it can't be proven, MS has influenced the political regimes of this county (I'm embarrassed by what our political system has become), and policed properly.

8. Program integration should be controlled more readily. Customers should be given the option to buy Windows without any additional programs installed. Windows ONLY, no IE, no Media Player, no Notepad, no nothing, just the OS and any OS related utilities (i.e Defrag, Scandisk, etc. . .)

9. All court/litigation costs should be paid by MicroSoft for ALL litigation imposed in the past 7 years.

10. Additionally, Microsoft should be given a proposed punishment imposed in the case of further future violations of the law.

As Well,

A. Litigation for technology needs to be revamped in this country. Our laws don't move at the speed of technology. By the time the court hearings are completed, the issues are irrelevant.

B. Appeals need to be limited more. There is no other reason for the number of appeals MicroSoft litigation has produced. These appeals just costs the Taxpayers more in taxes.

Thank You!

Kevin DeSchene

MTC-00011649

From: Ann Jackson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Should be Settled

I personally use Microsoft products and think they have givenso much to people that the case should be settled.

Sincerely,

Anmn Jackson

MTC-00011650

From: Tomal, Bob
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 3:03pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

The legal INDUSTRY is out of control. Their greed and never ending pursuit for prolonging the billing for outrageous hourly and contingency fees is unconscionable. Now they are again on the quest to extort and redistribute cash into their already bloated bank accounts. The sick thing with that sleazy mob is that they are now stealing from the American children who would benefit from this settlement. I know that you're all in the same fraternity and will just consider this a crank e-mail, but then again, you might have decency to agree that your industry has crossed over the line.

CC:'MSFIN(a)Microsoft.com'

MTC-00011651

From: Victor Pearson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:06pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The more than $1 billion in funding, software, services and training, etc. should be accepted or the whole thing should be dropped and not brought up any more. Microsoft has been more than fair during this whole process and is still trying to create new and innovated products even when the competition is trying to win via the court of law and not with great software products. If the software competition to Microsoft would put as much effort into their software as they do into trying to bring Microsoft down in a court of law, maybe they would have software that consumers want more than they would want software from Microsoft.

Thank you,
 Victor E. Pearson

MTC-00011652

From: hd74amf2
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Comments on the Microsoft settlement.
 It is time to get this over, and to move on. I disagree that Microsoft should have ever been sued. Look at the damage that resulted in their stock price, which effected millions of people. It is a sad day when competitors of Microsoft waste their time getting the government to file lawsuits, instead of investing in research to compete. The government should have never brought the suit. Anyone that understands technology would know that just because Explorer is on the desktop, doesn't mean that you can't load Netscape.

I don't like or use Explorer, but I do not believe in government interference with private industry. Nothing will be gained by this lawsuit. The consumer will end up paying more. It is a very alarming trend in government.

I do not like most Microsoft products, but until some one comes up with something better, they are here to stay. The emphasis should be getting on with business, and competing with the rest of the world. If Microsoft will agree to the settlement, get it over. I do not think they should settle, they should fight it and win, but if they want to settle, it is time to move on.

Richard

MTC-00011653

From: LSchoenber@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:06pm
 Subject: (no subject)

i think it is time to settle the microsoft case now. there are only nine(9) states do not agree. we cant accept the case because of 9 states. we should not. Judges should have to think more. they claims it hurts consumers because microsoft is monopoly . BALONEY. WE as the consumers know for sure that we did not feel any harm of it. STOP CRYING LIKE BABIES. THAT IS WHAT I FEEL.

THANK YOU.
 Larry Schoenberg

MTC-00011654

From: Flora Donovan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:07pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I find it interesting that our state so small in population and political clout could be a leader in withdrawing from the Microsoft litigation. New Mexico acknowledged some time ago that a continuance of said litigation was not helpful to the people of New Mexico considering the cost to taxpayers as well as the cost to the country as a whole.

Let us put all this behind us Massachusetts and Utah and others. Perhaps the present recession could be helped to an end by a more friendly business environment.

Flora L. Donovan
 A proud New Mexican

MTC-00011655

From: Anne Proffitt
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:06pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this suit! Microsoft has done more than they should have had to in order to satisfy the DOJ, the court and the competitors. The other nine states also need to look at the larger picture and co-operate by joining the settlement agreement.

Anne Proffitt
 1900 Shore Avenue
 Freeland, WA 98249
 DAProffitt@hotmail.com

MTC-00011656

From: Prem Dhawan
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:07pm
 Subject: Settlement

We should settle microsoft lawsuit and move on. It serves no purpose to drag it on.

Best Regards,
 PremDhawan
 @WWFfinancialResolutions.com
 Advisor to Banks & Businesses Bankruptcy Trustee
 Tele: (707) 747-6000
 You are invited to visit our website at:
 <<http://www.wwffinancialresolutions.com>>

MTC-00011657

From: Gilbert Claborn
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:
 Please allow the settlement of the Microsoft case so that the company can get on with its development and production of products at reasonable costs, without inflated costs arising from protracted litigation, and so that my tax money can stop being spent frivolously and without end of needless extensions of the DOJ litigation.

Gilbert L. Claborn
 268 Stonebridge Road
 Birmingham, AL 35210
 (205) 956-1413

MTC-00011658

From: brian mcconnell
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:09pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In the proposed case against Microsoft, the proposed settlement appears to be fair and just, and is definitely in the best interest of the consuming public, and therefore should be allowed to proceed.

I want the case closed.

Thanks so much,
 Bryan McConnell
 1405 Autumn Chase Sq.
 Bedford, TX 76022

MTC-00011659

From: W R Hutchison
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:11pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am in favor of the settlement of the suit.
 W.R. Hutchison

MTC-00011660

From: BETTY BOUSHEE
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:12pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

Please settle the Microsoft case as soon as possible under the term reached with Microsoft and the Department of Justice. This case has gone on far too long and should never have gone as far as it did just because some companies wanted to punish Microsoft's success in stead of competing.

Betty Boushee

MTC-00011661

From: MORRIS KAY
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:12pm
 Subject: Settlement of Microsoft Action

Litigation is time and money consuming. . . . In my opinion, the settlement proposal by Microsoft, which some states accepted, and others did not, is fair and equitable. Let's get this problem behind us.

Morris Kay

MTC-00011662

From: Eric Wanono
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:11pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi,

Firstly, I am sorry about my English, but I am French (nobody is perfect).

I am very surprised by this judgement and all aspects of them. It seems to be much more a concurrence driving process than a legal judgement. I think that it will be great for Microsoft to go in France, because freedom is more really here than in USA. Nobody can tell you that you don't be better ore more efficient than another company. I'm not sure that in case of another company the impact would be the same. My personal vision of this case is that it seems to be a "hunting sorcery". I not happy to don't have in France company like Microsoft but I think that U.S. government won't be happy to have this attitude when this judgement will be view by an "history" point of view. And I am not sure that other company who will take advantage of this situation are more "customer oriented" than Microsoft.

Eric Wanono
 France

MTC-00011663

From: B(038)B Cody
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:12pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

We are of the opinion that enough has been done to Microsoft re: its problems with the Department of Justice. There has been a fair settlement upon which dedicated men have agreed after a most lengthy process. Surely now is the time for the remaining states to agree to come together and begin to serve the public in its wishes for an end to this matter. Further litigation will only serve to disrupt consumer confidence and our economy, and cost many more thousands and thousands of dollars (most likely in the millions, actually). Kindly put a stop to this and ask the remaining entities to agree to that which has gone before. Thank you.

Barbara Cody

MTC-00011664

From: m cochran
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:13pm
 Subject: Viewpoint

Are these other nine (9) states hungry for money? May be these other nine (9) should remove their Microsoft software programs from state's computers and make there own system. Then give back to Microsoft their software and promise never to use Microsoft's software again or Microsoft can take each one of those states to court for using Microsoft's software.

Mel. Cochran
 Riverside,CA

MTC-00011665

From: Dicklaframboise@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:14pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I feel the country and the economy will be better off with the current settlement than to drag it through further litigation. It does appear Microsoft was guilty of some antitrust violations but it also appears the current settlement addresses that adequately. I feel we must also recall the good the innovations of Microsoft have done for the country as a whole as well as the good it has done for the economy of each state. For the record: I am neither a Microsoft employee nor a stockholder.

Richard LaFramboise
 Yakima, Washington

MTC-00011666

From: John Wilder
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:14pm
 Subject: Comments

The government should get out of the watch dog business when there is no apparent reason to bother Microsoft. I see no difference between what the government is doing to Microsoft and what Microsoft is doing to the public. All businesses have to protect themselves from crooks and thieves but the Government cannot sit by and let well enough alone. You pick on Microsoft and let Enron slide until the public is hurt. Give it up and let Microsoft get on with business.

John Wilder

MTC-00011667

From: JLynch3D
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:13pm
 Subject: comment on MS

I'd like to comment on the Microsoft antitrust situation and lawsuit. I am not an employee of MS or have any dealings with them in business. In my opinion, the problems that MS had have been brought to light, and corrections have already been made. The most notable of them being public awareness. Why do I think this is the most important correction against MS? For two reasons:

1. A company's reputation is the most important asset they own. Obviously, MS has taken quite a blow here. This can be evidenced by the slowdown in their business and the rise to power of newer power players in the technology industry. Foremost of these are AOL/Time Warner, which owns the internet business lock, stock, and barrel. Linux is another product that has come to power as an OS. And as well as the handheld Palm products, and the cell phones which have gone to other OS's. If anything, in these competitive technology markets, MS may end up finding themselves squeezed into an area of selling products into the slowing and mature PC market, and being out run by newer companies in new innovative areas of technology.

2. Awareness is important because consumers and business owners need to constantly be aware that they are responsible for the decisions and choices they make. . . and that there are choices. This strikes at the heart of what America is—responsibility for our actions, and for freedom. People who do not like MS can buy an Apple OS computer, or a Linux OS computer, or other alternatives like a Be based OS and computer.

Personally, I use an MS based computer. I do not think it is the best OS or browser in the world and it has a lot of faults. But so do all technology products in these complex areas. However, I am thankful that MS is a company that has unified the computer industry by giving it a platform that people can communicate with, and this may be the one single factor that has led to all the innovation and productivity of this country in the last ten years.

In summary, I do not think MS should be penalized further. It is time to move on—the technology world is not where it was five years ago. It's also time to be thankful and hopeful that MS remains a vital and strong part of American industry. Without it I believe our entire economy would suffer. And God help us if another foreign company rises to power and supplants MS.

Regards,
 Jim Lynch

MTC-00011668

From: ROBERTTF28@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:14pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a retired citizen, using MS Windows 98, I would like to say I wish our Justice Department would stop any further action against Microsoft. I am very pleased with the company and in no way feel injured by Microsoft. On the contrary I feel they have helped me by making their products available. I have many friends who feel the same way and it is apparent to me that most of the objections to Microsoft are from their competitors rather than their customers. Success in the market place should be encouraged by our government, not hindered. When will our government officials stop petty projects and concentrate on the issues of real importance to the nation's citizens? If Mr. Gates had contributed huge sums to our political parties and candidates, would the situation be the same? If Microsoft were located in Mass or Utah would their politician's opposition to Microsoft be as strong? I think not. I see this as a political game and object strenuously.

Robert T. Fellows
 Tucson AZ

MTC-00011669

From: Dick Boulanger
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:17pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

Our household is unanimous in the opinion that the Microsoft settlement is sufficient and the case should be concluded ASAP. Our economy has sustained enough damage. It is high time to start healing the wounds and let Microsoft and competitor's management get back to growing the industry instead of trying to wreck it with Justice Department help. The nine dissenting states should get in line with the majority for the good of the country.

Respectfully submitted,
 Richard J. and Mary Ann Boulanger
 8117 N 12th St.
 Tacoma, WA 98406

MTC-00011670

From: Alex Brubaker
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:17pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Your Honor,

I am a Stanford MBA who has been working in Silicon Valley for several years, some of those in the high tech industry. It is my view that Microsoft has repeatedly out-muscled its competition, wielding its operating system as a big stick, and falling on the wrong side of this nation's anti-trust laws.

The Proposed Final Judgment lets Microsoft off too easy and hardly constitutes a deterrent to future anti-trust violators. Furthermore, it doesn't eliminate the critical components that have enabled them to engage in this illegal behavior.

I strongly urge you to impose heavier penalties on Microsoft that will restore competition and force them to play by the rules like everyone else.

Sincerely,
 Alex Brubaker
 San Jose, CA

MTC-00011671

From: WP/MH
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 3:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

This absurdity has gone on long enough, it is time to settle and stop wasting the public's money, time and energy—the latter items would be better spent on real 'energy' and accountancy crooks, who are screwing the consumer and their own employees.

PE

MTC-00011672

From: Gerald Gaumer
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:19pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

As a concerned citizen, I was very much upset with the manner in which Microsoft was "dragged" down by the prosecutions of the Clinton Administration and his appointed members of the Justice Department. If one reviews the history of our financial markets, there is a direct correlation between the Federal findings of March, 2000 and the subsequent declines of our publicly held corporations, with special attention to those in the high tech sector. Microsoft, though some of its actions may be interpreted as unfair, also must be viewed as a true innovator, willing and able to make the tremendous investment necessary to radically economize the manners in which we transact business or communicate with each other. Sunn, Oracle and others may cry "wolf, wolf, wolf . . .," but there is no small amount of envy mixed in with such cries, as they vie for position in a competitive marketplace.

So enough—let's put this matter behind us, let's get on with rebuilding our economy, get on with innovation and move forward in the grandest way possible. If some states wish not to be a part of the proposed settlement, then let that be their fate, stewing about old business as the rest of us venture forth.

Sincerely,
Gerald W. Gaumer
ggaumer@earthlink.net
Marietta, GA

MTC-00011673

From: Ken Horowitz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the settlement proposed by the Department of Justice is far too lenient—it is a mere slap on the wrist to Microsoft, a confirmed monopolist. The settlement as proposed SHOULD NOT BE ACCEPTED. Instead, the federal government should push ahead along the lines of the other states who have not caved in the Microsoft. The DoJ settlement will accomplish nothing, and will leave Microsoft free to continue its monopolistic ways. Please push for a tougher settlement that will more effectively restrict Microsoft.

Ken Horowitz
kenh@panix.com
203-637-4910
3 Cherry Lane, Old Greenwich, CT 06870

MTC-00011674

From: DONALD J. RESTLY
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

See attached file in support of the settlement.

9436 Wildwood Drive
Chardon, Ohio 44024
January 15, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
U.S. Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I want to take a moment to give my support for the settlement negotiated between Microsoft and the Justice Department last year. I feel this is a good agreement for both sides and gives everyone the opportunity to move forward.

The settlement is comprehensive and mandates significant concessions from Microsoft in order to remain in compliance. Microsoft has agreed to grant computer broad new rights to configure Windows so as to promote non-Microsoft software programs that compete with programs included within Windows. And Microsoft must not retaliate against any computer maker who ships software that competes with anything in the Windows operating system. Microsoft must also subject themselves to monitoring by a Technical Committee to assure compliance with the settlement.

At a time of difficult circumstances for our economy, this agreement could provide a small boost. The settlement will also give each side the chance to focus on other issues. For Microsoft, that means developing new software and for the government it means fighting the current recession.

Sincerely,
Donald J. Restly

MTC-00011675

From: dave cannon
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:20pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I want the US Justice Dept to stop persecuting MSFT for moving America ahead. If you want to end this recession to end drop this lawsuit and settle with MSFT today. This suit is hurting our economy.

MTC-00011676

From: Francie Hanks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:22pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
I BELIEVE THE SETTLEMENT IS FAIR AND THE LITIGATION HAS GONE ON WAY TOO LONG. I STRONGLY URGE THE NINE STATES WHO HAVEN'T JOINED IN THE SETTLEMENT TO DO SO. IT'S TIME TO MOVE ON!

MTC-00011677

From: dwwrayti
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:22pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
Let's settle this now!!! Dragging this out hinders any recovery effort in the tech area. It's like killing the goose that laid the golden egg!!

Don Wray
Carpe Diem!!!

MTC-00011678

From: McCrosson1@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

I understand you are seeking public comment on the proposed antitrust settlement with the 9 states and Microsoft, and that the District Court will consider these comments when it determines whether the settlement is indeed in the public interest. I believe the settlement is very much in the public interest and should be finalized immediately.

Over a year and a half ago, on May 7, 2000, I wrote my representative and two senators to express my concern about the Justice Department's handling of the Microsoft matter. At that time the DOJ was presenting its case to Judge Jackson, who appeared to be inclined to break up Microsoft. I recalled how in the 1970s and 80s all attention was on the successes of Japan; U.S. companies seemingly could do nothing right. One company that changed all that was Microsoft, which became a leader of the U.S. technology surge. We all benefited from this leadership. On the way home from our good paying jobs we could stop off at a Starbucks and have an expensive cup of coffee. Why not? We Americans were doing well in the 90s; unemployment was at all time lows. Much of the litigation initiated by the Justice Department and opportunists like Barksdale was misdirected. Surely Microsoft did wrong, but the current proposed settlement addresses that. The current holdouts to the settlement have an agenda of their own, which is not in the best interest of America. To achieve their ends, they would have us become a society that eats its young! This case against Microsoft has gone on too long. Let's get back to work.

Very truly yours,
F. Joseph McCrosson

MTC-00011679

From: Earl Johnston
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

If the government would pay more attention to companies like Enron and less on Microsoft, the country would be much healthier. The Microsoft cow has been milked long enough.

Sincerely,
Earl Johnston

MTC-00011680

From: Jack Hansen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:26pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I urge the respective state to accept the current settlement agreement. It is fair and equitable for all parties concerned.

MTC-00011681

From: ED SAVCHENKO
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
US Justice Dept.

I believe that the Microsoft case should be settled now. It seems that the only ones who win in a situation like this is the attorney's.

Ed Savchenko

MTC-00011682

From: John Dean
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My name is John Holmes Dean III and I am a 25 year old computer engineer. I have been programming since I was ten on a wide variety of computers; Apple IIe, Commodore Amiga, Macintoshes and IBM-PCs. The purpose of this letter is to highlight the technical inefficiencies of early Microsoft software and come to the conclusion that given a level playing field, no informed consumer would pick Microsoft's products based on quality. I will then talk about the time that Microsoft took over one hundred dollars from me in exchange for nothing in a move that stifled competition in a education setting (similar to the settlement Microsoft has currently proposed).

Between the years of 1987 and 1996, I was an active user and programmer of Commodore Amigas. The Amiga, which never achieved more than a low single-digit market share, occupies an interesting niche in computer history. Released in 1985 (one year after the ubiquitous Macintosh) to great fanfare, the Amiga was the first true "multimedia" computer. At a time when PCs had EGA (16 colors) and Macintoshes were black & white, the Amiga was capable of 4096 colors on screen. The Amiga had 4 channel 8-bit digital stereo sound when the PC had internal speakers and the Macintosh had 1 channel. The Commodore Amiga shipped with Workbench 1.0 which was a pre-emptive multitasking, graphical user interface operating system.

I spent my teenage years engrossed with my Amiga. Because Workbench could do pre-emptive multitasking (a form of running multiple programs where the operating system gives and takes processor time away from the individual programs), I would commonly use my computer to download files over my modem, listen to digital music files and play games at the same time. During this time, Microsoft's flagship operating system was Windows 3.X. Windows 3.X used a form of multitasking called cooperative multitasking. Each program had the responsibility to relinquish control of the processor to the next program. Cooperative multitasking is the same form of multitasking used on Macintoshes before Mac OS X and is considered an inferior method. It was hard to impossible to get multiple program to run correctly at the same time on early version of windows. When it was possible, the systems requirements were far greater. Windows 95 had a limited form of pre-emptive multitasking that was a mix between pre-emptive and cooperative. Windows uses a single letter for drive names. Windows uses the 8.3 naming convention. Windows, to this day, can not really name a file more than 8 letters long. "Long" file names are stored in the "information" field, which no longer exists, obviously. Windows 3.X involved 3 steps to make a disk or CD-ROM appear on the screen, whereas you only had to stick the disk in on the Amiga/Macintosh to have it appear on the screen. Windows 95 and greater still requires one step because after you insert a floppy or CD-ROM, you must still double-click on 'My Computer' to see it.

'Plug-n-Pray' is a term used to describe Microsoft's 'Plug-n-Play' system. The DOS command line was inferior to Workbench's CLI (Workbench had a command line as well) because you couldn't copy and paste. there was no history and no command pipe. I can nit-pick forever when it comes to Windows, however I will admit that most of Window's problems are related to its MS-DOS ancestry and the many, many shortcomings of the IBM-PC architecture.

My other hobby was being a "troll." In internet terminology, a troll posts highly controversial statements to illicit as much feedback as possible (called "feeding the troll"). The term troll had not yet been invented, but I took great pleasure in posting messages to IBM-PC and Microsoft electronic bulletin board systems explaining how inferior IBM-PCs and Microsoft Windows really was. I would of course receive tens if not hundreds of responses, all of which I would respond to— beginning debates which would last for years. I convinced no less than a dozen people of the truth, all of which purchased Amigas and some of which are still life-long friends.

To this day, I have not purchased Microsoft software with one exception. When I was earning my Electrical Engineering degree at the University of Texas, Microsoft signed a deal with the University to provide copies of Microsoft software at $5 a CD. The cost to the university was 100 million dollars which was added to each student's "Computer Fees." In that respect, Microsoft stole nearly $25 a semester from me for five semesters so that I could have the honor of buying Microsoft software for $5 a CD. I hated and despised this move by Microsoft because Microsoft knew that this was the only way to get a college student like me to pay for their software in the first place. Furthermore, because students could get Microsoft Visual Studio for $25 (5 CDs) all programming classes began using Visual Studio because other compilers such as Borland and Metrowerks (where I can currently employed) could no longer compete, even with student pricing. I watched the programming classes at UT go from Metrowerks only to Visual Studio only in the course of two years.

Microsoft's settlement will allow Microsoft to achieve the same goal in the secondary and high school education market. By giving out Microsoft software for free, students will learn and become accustomed to Microsoft software and not made aware of the alternatives. The proposed Microsoft settlement amounts to nothing more than an exclusive advertisement contract between education and Microsoft.

In conclusion, I have personally seen the negative effects of Microsoft and IBM-PCs on the computer market. Microsoft took ten years to produce a product that (almost) met the capabilities of Workbench. Furthermore, Microsoft signed a deal that forced me to give them money just to continue my education. I now work for a Microsoft competitor where I will do my part to bring the giant down. I hope the Department of Justice does theirs.

John Holmes Dean III

MTC-00011683

From: Cynthiasdesigns@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:30pm
Subject: I am against any more of the allegations re: Microsoft

They have done so much for the entire world, that there is just no action other than to be grateful to them for all that they have given, the "Quantum leap for mankind."

Cynthia's Designs
cynthiasdesigns@aol.com

MTC-00011684

From: The Unrein Family
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am writing to register my support for the settlement terms reached by the Department of Justice and Microsoft regarding the antitrust dispute on November 2. I feel that ending the litigation will be beneficial to the economy, and the federal government made the right choice.

Competition is extremely healthy, and every company needs to do business as they see fit. Let's let businesses worry about business, and government worry about government issues. There is no need for unnecessary regulation. Now, more than ever, it is imperative that the market prospers. Agreeing to the terms of the settlement will allow the market to do just that.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter. Please settle this matter and allow Microsoft to get back to business as usual.

Sincerely,
Annette Unrein
annieu@infowest.com
435-674-9816
P. O. Box 1003,
St. George, UT 84771

MTC-00011685

From: Michael Jaszewski
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:31pm
Subject: anti trust lawsuit

I think what Microsoft did was ok. No one was hurt by it. Microsoft single handedly created a industry in our country possible the world over. It's no different what I see everyday business's doing business.

Example—I go to taco bell I can't buy coke, only pepsi why is that isn't that like a monopoly same with computers I buy a comp it's got aol on it not earthlink why is that.

MTC-00011686

From: Pats413@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Various States Should End Their Lawsuit and begin to let the USA economy begin to heal. Consumers have not been hurt by Microsoft in fact we have all benefited from low prices of software and millions of 401K's have seen only profits because of Microsoft. End this immediately and lets stop wasting millions of dollars of our taxed income.

The Stillman Family

Pepper Pike, OH

MTC-00011687

From: Tom Gottshalk
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:31pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement.

Ladies and Gentlemen of the DOJ,

The real issue before you is: Now much money do the non-settling states want before they settle their anti-trust cases with Microsoft? This case is no longer about justice for the PC user, it not about the injustice of a monopoly, it is not about justice for the violation of federal law, but it is about nine states attorney generals trying to get extra money for their state's budgets. The case is about money and political power for politicians not about that Microsoft charged too much for the Windows operating system, which is ridiculous and has never been proven publicly. For all of the state officials if they get money out of Microsoft and it helps their political careers so much the better, right.

Regards,

Tom Gottshalk
344 Remington Dr.
Oviedo, FL 32765

MTC-00011688

From: Chirrip@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:39pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Let's end this harazment once & for all.
Close out per the latest agreement.

George Chironis,
Melville, N.Y. 11747

MTC-00011689

From: JP Altier
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am deeply concerned at the way our government has pursued the destruction of Microsoft, one of the most productive and beneficial companies in our world. In a truly free society, where property rights are vigorously protected, there is absolutely no need for antitrust laws. Microsoft, in fact, is a prime example of the concept that a company can sustain a dominant market position if and only if it provides a markedly superior product than any of its competitors. The very nature of the fact that Microsoft's products are inexpensive and ubiquitous has benefited this world immeasurably. Microsoft, therefore, deserves the market position and profits it has reaped in exchange for the products it has produced.

The fact that Microsoft negotiated vigorously with its customers and competitors should not be a crime. Microsoft did not deprive other companies or consumers of their property rights. Nor did Microsoft obtain its will by deception or physical force. Every company no matter how large or small should have the right to control the destiny of their own products and the right to determine the terms and conditions of their business relationships so long as their practices never include deception or physical force. For a court to have retroactively declared that Microsoft was a monopoly some time in the past and that all of its otherwise legal actions are now criminal acts goes against our most basic instincts of fairness and justice. I strongly urge all parties involved in this case to mitigate the harm to Microsoft and our economy that will result from the enforcement of our misguided antitrust laws. At the very least, I urge the Department of Justice and States Attorney Generals to cease litigation in this matter and I urge the presiding judge to accept the Stipulation and Revised Final Judgment dated November 6th, 2001.

Sincerely,
Joseph P. Altier
CC:msfin@microsoft.com@inetgw

MTC-00011690

From: Larry M. Johnson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:38pm
Subject: settle this thing!

Millions of Americans have had their 401K plans turned totally upside down by this drawn out suit. Settle this thing once and for all!! The fact of the matter is without Bill Gates inventing Windows I couldn't even run a computer nor couple most other Americans that use them every day.

Sincerely
Larry Johnson

MTC-00011691

From: Mark Reed
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I am a supporter of you and President Bush as well as Microsoft Corp. I believe the current settlement is the best course of action at this time. I don't believe the case should have been pursued in the first place, but since the damage has been done can we please put it to rest right away.

I work in the technical industry as a computer programmer. I am not employed (nor ever have been) by Microsoft, but I am a firm believer that they have done an enourmous amount of good in the industry. Their servers and development environment have enabled me to be a successful professional. I am grateful to them—and feel they have been unjustly "picked on". I understand the market is extremely competitive and unsavory practices occur. However, these unsavory practices are done by all parties—if IBM, Sun or Oracle were in Microsoft's shoes—they would have done the same things. Hopefully I would be consistent in wanting an end to those cases as well—were they brought up.

Please put the case to rest.

Sincerely,
Mark Reed
Mark M. Reed
Senior Systems Engineer
(972) 728-8161
mreed@mh2.com

MTC-00011692

From: Dick H.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:30pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

despite the stubbornness of our Atty.
General Blumenthal here in CT. it is obvious that it is in everyone's best interest that this problem be settled and solved and put behind us. please do it!!

MTC-00011693

From: GRIZ1000@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:46pm
Subject: Anti-Trust Case against Microsoft
If Microsoft broke the law punish them but don't reorganize the Company or tell them what they can include in their products.
GRIZ1000@aol.com

MTC-00011694

From: Erratadata@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a concerned citizen, I wish to urge you to finalize and settle this matter immediately. Prolonging litigation is not in the best interest of the American economy in general and the American people specifically. Getting this matter settled NOW will enable Microsoft as well as any and all other companies concerned to get on with the innovation and product development that has marked the progress and growth of this industry for the past two decades.

Sincerely,
Gary Prickett
Mission Viejo, CA

MTC-00011695

From: Sightsaver@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:47pm
Subject: microsoft settlment

It is high time for this case to be settled, especially in light of the events of 9/11 and the recent Enron debacle. A few publicity-seeking, self-righteous AGs, supported by Microsoft's competitors should not be allowed to derail what is in this country's best interest. Tracey Linden DO

MTC-00011696

From: fitz—stewart@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this case. It's in the best interests of the economy, the technology sector, and the entire country.

Regards,
Fitz Stewart
13544 Tabscott Drive
Chantilly, VA 20151
CC:fitz—stewart@hotmail.com@inetgw

MTC-00011697

From: Wilson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:48pm
Subject: enough!!!

This settlement should never have even been a question, but now that it has been agreed to, the vendetta against Microsoft needs to end. It should never have begun. Just because they invented a better mousetrap, they have been victimized by our government. I am ashamed of this.

Sincerely,
Veta Wilson
HCR 76 Box 66
Coleman, Texas 76834

MTC-00011698

From: Don Hall
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:46pm
 Subject: Microsoft Case Settlement

Dear Justices,
 As a citizen of the United States I would like to express my opinion on the settlement issue of the Microsoft case. I feel the offer Microsoft has given is fair and in the best interest of the public. I urge all states to accept this settlement and end the case as soon as possible.

Any further suites or punishment of Microsoft is not in the best interest of the general public and will only harm and impair Microsoft's future ability to continue delivering cutting edge software at reasonable prices. Many if not most of the nation rely on Microsoft's quality software every day for our livelihood. If you try to cripple or punish Microsoft further than has already been proposed will be detrimental to the public who rely on their software.

Any further larger fines will simply make the software more expensive for the end users and all of the general public will be harmed. Please come to a reasonable settlement as quickly as possible.

Thank you.
 Don Hall, DrPH
 Clackamas, Oregon

MTC-00011699

From: LeeAndrews@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:52pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I support the DOJ's proposed antitrust settlement with 9 states and Microsoft. It's time for the litigation to end.

Lee Andrews
 Richardson, TX

MTC-00011700

From: Stanley Shoeman
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:52pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

Let's make a settlement and get this behind us. We have more important things to settle at this point.

Stan Shoeman
 2983 Old Bridgeport Way
 San Diego CA 92111

MTC-00011701

From: B.J. Fornadley
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:51pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please, let's not waste any more Government money in this case. The proposed settlement is more than fair to all parties.

Thank you
 B. J. Fornadley

MTC-00011702

From: James Scheil
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:53pm
 Subject: Class Action Suit

Those nine states should settle the Microsoft class action as proposed. Thanks-Ken & Charline Scheil

MTC-00011703

From: finked@kirtland.cc.mi.us@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:53pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

i am in favor of upholding the agreement reached between the u.s. department of justice and the microsoft corporation. while it will not satisfy some folks, particularly those who tend to see microsoft as a villain to be severely punished at every opportunity, it seems fair to me. microsoft's culpability is proven, but is not, i believe, as serious as the dissenting states' attorneys general claim. and i see no reason to continue the litigation process. the immediate installation of a court-appointed overseer is more appropriate—if we are most interested in protecting the consumer. detmar h. finke
 CC:finked@kirtland.cc.mi.us@inetgw

MTC-00011704

From: Rolygrace@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:54pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Although I am not a lawyer I have followed the antitrust litigation in connection with Microsoft and hereby submit my opinion to the effect that I agree that settlement is good for the consumer and the american economy, which right now needs all the help it can get. Grace Larrinua from rolygrace

MTC-00011705

From: CWO Mel Estes USMC(Ret.)
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:55pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

. Dear USDOJ, I would hope that this settlement is the end of the this long ordeal of stifling the economy and the technology sector. In my opinion it has been a witch hunt from the beginning. MS first established the computer industry years ago, caused the tech revolution, and thus has caused a reason for many of their competitors to even exist. It is easy to see that they are gaining up on them now. Please end this mess.

Respectfully, Mel Estes

MTC-00011706

From: Bruce Rocheleau
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:56pm
 Subject: comments on Microsoft case

I hope that the case is settled quickly. I think that the settlement is fair and provides the basis for rapid technological advances in the near and longer term future. I know that people like myself who use computer technology as part of their jobs look forward to having this uncertainty solved quickly.

Sincerely,
 Bruce Rocheleau

MTC-00011707

From: Brian Satterfield
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear DOJ,
 It all comes down to choices.

I am a software engineer and have worked with computers for the last 6 years. My parents have recently started using computers and it has become obvious to me just how strong the Micro$oft hold is on the industry.

It is my belief that the proposed settlement will do nothing to curtail Micro$oft's actions, growth or domination of the industry and market. I believe that Micro$oft will easily find ways to skirt the edges of the settlement and still be in accordance. They will integrate their applications more closely with the OS so that they are indistinguishable and therefore impossible to separate. I agree with Attorney General Thomas F. Reilly "Five minutes after any agreement is signed with Microsoft, they'll be thinking of how to violate the agreement. They're predators. They crush their competition. They crush new ideas. They stifle innovation. That's what they do."

I agree heavily with Matthew Szulik's comments to the Senate and feel that the government needs to step in and stop the wave of Micro$oft domination. One way would be to ban all use of commercial operating systems on government resources. Another would be to mandate that for the next so many years they will spend money on hardware for every school district in the nation.

Red Hat software corporation has made the following offer (amendments to the DOJ PFJ) and I agree with it completely: Microsoft redirects the value of their proposed software donation to the purchase of additional hardware for the school districts. This would increase the number of computers available under the original proposal from 200,000 to more than one million, and would increase the number of systems per school from approximately 14 to at least 70. Red Hat, Inc. will provide free of charge the open-source Red Hat Linux operating system, office applications and associated capabilities to any school system in the United States. Red Hat will provide online support for the software through the Red Hat Network.

Unlike the Microsoft proposal, which has a five-year time limit at which point schools would have to pay Microsoft to renew their licenses and upgrade the software, the Red Hat proposal has no time limit. Red Hat will provide software upgrades through the Red Hat Network online distribution channel.

I hope the DOJ can see that the injustice done to Micro$oft's competition and to the Open Source community needs to be dealt with in a heavy manner.

Brian Satterfield
 Engineer—Lockheed Martin —

MTC-00011708

From: hicktest@hotmail.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 3:58pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Judge Kollar-Kotelly,

I urge the court to bless the DOJ/Microsoft settlement. It's impossible to please everyone with a settlement (including Microsoft biggest competitors). Both sides seem happy with the compromise. I think the courts dictating which features are allowed in a product will spell disaster for our economy. It's time to forget this mess and stop destroying one of America's best corporations.

Sincerely,
Matt Hickey
Glastonbury, CT

MTC-00011709

From: Rpellet1@aol.com@ inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In the matter of the Microsoft settlement, I am convinced that it is in the best interests of consumers and our economy that it be accepted by all parties.

Much time, effort and money has already been wasted on this effort to discredit and humble one of this country's finest companies. More people use Microsoft products because they satisfy. Get over it.

Robert Pellet
Edison, New Jersey

MTC-00011710

From: Tina.Chan@Fluor.com@ inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 12:54pm
Subject: Fw: Microsoft Settlement

Please, let's not waste any more Government money in this case. The proposed settlement is more than fair to all parties.

Sincerely
Tina Chan

MTC-00011711

From: Phiss@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:00pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is time to settle this nonsense the government has imposed upon us by constantly attacking Microsoft. Am I the only citizen who noticed that with the first court actions against Microsoft, the stock market nosedived and has never come back?

Competition is just that—competition. Instead of whining about Microsoft, why don't these equally wealthy competitors go do something better than Microsoft?

If we ever want this country back on it's feet—and as a business owner—I certainly do, then we need to settle and end thisSurely, we have more to do with our time than attack the major companies in this country—which, if you haven't noticed—are having enough problems.

With this settlement, I believe our financial markets will be revived.

Phyllis G. Schaul
Scottsdale, Arizona

MTC-00011712

From: jim.e.althoff@ssa.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please end this painful, government sponsored targeting of Microsoft. The innovation that has been stopped as a result of this harassment and the destruction to our economy is out of line with the already imposed penalties. No longer can justice be the banner for pursuing Microsoft, now it is simply financial greed, fed by biased legal teams.

CC:jim.e.althoff@ssa.gov@inetgw

MTC-00011713

From: david.j.oakley
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 2:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear sirs:

With respect to the comments on the proposed action, I am opposed to the Government's Action. From my point of view, having a multitude of operating systems, would be akin to moving from one universal language which all understand, to multiple languages, to which few understand more than one or two.

The resulting catastrophic incompatibility between operating systems would destroy the usefulness of communications between computers in different locations.

Respectfully
David J. Oakley

MTC-00011714

From: david—perdue@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I fully support the proposed settlement and urge its approval. I am a professional software developer and a consumer of software. As both, I do not feel I have been harmed by Microsoft in any way.

Approve this settlement and put an end to Microsoft competitors using the courts to fight their business battles.

Sincerely,
David Perdue
Houston, TX

MTC-00011715

From: Phcutch@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:01pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

We feel that business has the right to research, develop, promote and sell new ideas and products. That's what the American way is all about—freedom, now more than ever. We encourage the government to end the litigation process against Microsoft and carry out the settlement that has been reached. It will eventually be best for consumers—prices will be kept down and new products will be available more readily if the costs of litigation, etc. are kept to a minimum and the company can spend resources on research and development and getting products to market.

Phyllis and Hal Cutcher
Tucson, Az
phcutch@aol.com

MTC-00011716

From: Paul Holsted
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen, I have only a limited knowledge of computers but it is very apparent that Microsoft has been a very important figure in the advancement of our national growth which has been astounding and would not have reached this high level were it not for such firms as Microsoft. I feel that it is downright unfair to penalize Microsoft for its creative genius. The agreement between the Department of Justice and the nine states and Microsoft appears to be fair and any further litigation by the Attorneys General of the nine states which have not agreed to the DoJ/Microsoft agreement may be based on ulterior motives in pushing for heavier penalties. Therefore I urge the Department of Justice to not line up with the arguments of these states but instead to push for final resolution of this litigation so that Microsoft and the rest of our economy can move ahead. I feel that this issue has had a negative effect on the economy and so let's get the nation moving ahead and get this matter settled as soon as possible.

Paul G. Holsted, 9871 Mammoth Drive,
Huntington Beach, CA 92646

MTC-00011717

From: Sherm Grossman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

[Text body exceeds maximum size of message body (8192 bytes). It has been converted to attachment.]

CC:webmaster@ago.state.ma.us@inetgw
Dear Sir or Madam:

These comments are in opposition to Massachusetts Attorney General Tom Reilly's position on the Microsoft settlement as stated in the January 15, 2002, Boston Globe Public Forum piece, "Microsoft case key to tech's future," http://boston.com/dailyglobe2/O15/business/Microsoft case—key—to—tech—to—future+.shtml In this article, Attorney General Reilly makes suggestions to pursue remedies against Microsoft. In my opinion, that may result in the collapse of one of the world's foremost technology providers and the PC systems it makes work.

Microsoft develops two distinct software product lines: an Operating System (Windows), which acts to assign priorities to internal PC operations and hardware and is rarely seen or worked on by the typical PC user, and applications, which perform specific tasks for the PC user like word processing, spread sheet manipulation and presentation preparation (MS Word, Excel, Power Point).

The product at the core of Mr. Reilly's objections is the Operating System (OS). Developers of applications need to structure their software to function within the parameters specified by an OS. They have to do this for any OS, and many may do so for more than one: like Windows and Linux, for example. However, there is such a thing as optimization: making the applications run efficiently. Most application vendors want to have their product run as fast as possible on as many PCs as possible, so they optimize their product for Windows, the most used OS.

Now, even if additional OSs are introduced just because Federal and State Governments believe that will lead to more and better products (it didn't with IBM's OS2), applications will still be optimized for just one, but not all OSs. This will result in a PC having its installed OS being able to run efficiently some, but not all, applications because application developers will not get enough return on their investment to optimize their products for multiple OSs. Good business strategy says that the version of the product that should be most heavily optimized is the one that will be used on the PCs that have the most frequently installed OS. For now, that's Windows.

This is not a restriction on emerging technologies. It is a fact of business, and contradicts Mr. Reilly's objective to have "computer users . . . have a full choice of programs," and to ". . . have [computer users have] the freedom to customize their systems with the programs and software they want." To have the full choice of optimized, efficient and fast-executing software, there should be one prevalent operating system in the same way there is and for years has been, essentially, one prevalent PC hardware architecture based on the original IBM PC. (Before you go there, based on sales and available applications, Apple is really a non-player despite Microsoft providing a version of Office that runs efficiently on Apple systems. Notice how it takes a company the size of Microsoft to provide its flagship application optimized for more than one OS and hardware architecture.)

The chaos surrounding creating competing hardware architectures would be akin to forcing into existence a second personal transportation system in which vehicles would run on tracks. What would be the cost of developing a second infrastructure? What would be the response of the vehicle manufacturers? Would there be as many? Would we still see the same vehicle quality? Would we still have as much vehicle innovation? Would there be as many vehicle choices? What would the vehicles cost?

The same chaos would occur if Windows were gutted so that was no longer the prevalent OS. Windows may devolve in the future, but to force it would be disastrous. Technology evolution and user acceptance is generally based on rules similar to natural biological selection. Windows may fall into disfavor and be replaced by another OS, but Microsoft may be the company that creates that successor. Why try to artificially prevent that?

Look what has happened with forcing High Definition TV into existence. Local TV program producers for all but the largest markets don't want to invest in HDTV production equipment until broadcasters invest in the new transmission equipment. Networks are reluctant to invest in HDTV equipment because there are insufficient local affiliates that can carry HDTV transmissions. TV set manufacturers don't want to invest in building HDTV sets until broadcasters transmit HDTV programs. Cable service providers don't want to invest in HDTV cable systems until there are HDTV programs in their markets and there are HDTV sets to receive them. Buyers don't want to pay exorbitant prices for HDTV sets and/or HDTV tuners and receiving antennas until there are enough programs being broadcast to make it worthwhile. (The only reason that there are any HDTV sets around is DVDs, and even those sets don't include HDTV tuners.) So, we're in a stand-off situation with the conversion process taking much longer than the Federal Government wanted.

But, the real problem is not HDTV technology, but the decisions that broadcasters need to make about which one of the many picture quality options to transmit. This is contributing to the TV set manufacturers' reluctance to invest in sets that are optimized around one methodology and is keeping the variety of HDTV sets small and their price high.

This sounds similar to the problems that would develop if multiple OSs were edicted into existence or if Microsoft were forced to relinquish their pre-eminent OS-developer position. The PC world would wind up with either fewer applications or the ones that were optimized for all OSs would become considerably more expensive.

In fact, there is more than one OS currently available. The second OS that's most often noted is Linux. Now, how many popular applications are there currently for this OS? Who's stopping software developers from creating them?

As to computer makers not having control of their systems' desktops, Mr. Reilly and the Department of Justice should realize that "computer makers" build hardware, not software, and that ultimately, the user controls what's on the desktop—not the hardware manufacturer, not the software manufacturer, but the user.

And, it's not clear what an "unbundled" version of Windows does for anyone. What application is Mr. Reilly suggesting is now bundled? A browser? Well, it really is possible to install and use a browser other than Internet Explorer (like Netscape); it really is possible to install and use Lotus Smartsuite rather than Microsoft Office (neither of which is bundled with Windows). So what's the issue here?

Here's another similar situation. Think of an automobile dashboard as being like a PC OS and the car radio as an application. At the moment, it's not usually possible to buy a car without some kind of vehicle manufacturers' radio pre-installed. Will the Federal Government and the States require automobile manufacturers to offer all cars without radios so purchasers can buy their own from either the vehicle manufacturer or some other vendor?

Well, right now many cars owners can have their OEM radio replaced with an after-market one. However, not all auto manufacturers' radios have the same dimensions. And, if one examines the choices carefully, one finds that the variety of replacement radios available for Daimler-Chrysler and GM vehicles is far smaller than those available for cars using DIN dimensional standards. (Remember, too, the radio with the oval-shaped front panel used in the Ford Taurus? There don't seem to be any after-market products available for direct replacement.)

Daimler-Chrysler and GM radios happen to be pretty good. But will the Federal Government and the States want a common form factor legislated that may diminish the quality, ease-of-use and feature flexibility of Daimler-Chrysler, GM and Ford radios?

Mr. Reilly also contradicts his objective when he tries to make his point about ". . . Microsoft disclos[ing] the necessary technical information so that handheld devices, servers and networks can work with Windows. . . ." If Federal and State Governments want this, won't there be more software development for the Windows OS than there is now rather than less? Doesn't this create more products and business for Microsoft? (And, in point of fact, there is more than one OS for handhelds already, and they and servers and networks can work with Windows.)

Finally, perhaps it's wishful thinking, but one seriously doubts that the 3,200 software companies and 200,000 high-tech workers in Massachusetts would ever see any benefit from what Mr.

Reilly wants to do to Microsoft.

Sherman H. Grossman Needham, MA

MTC-00011718

From: james.althoff@verizon.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please end this pitiful, state government sponsored targeting of Microsoft. The innovation that has been stopped as a result of this harassment and the destruction to our economy is way out of line with the already imposed penalties. No longer can justice be the banner for pursuing Microsoft, now it is simply financial greed on the part of the states. CC:james.althoff@verizon.net@inetgw

MTC-00011719

From: Boopster2626@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

Please let this end once and for all, I believe that Microsoft has been very cooperative, etc. At least they didn't loose any records like Anderson or Enron., or try to hid anything. Go after the real crooks like Enron, who left many middle class citizens without any money in their 401K, funny how bigshots could take money out but workers who save for retirement could not. I believe you have a much bigger problem than Microsoft and Bill Gates.

MTC-00011720

From: Diane Nice
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Diane Nice
429 Morwood Road
Telford, PA 18969
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over,

companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Diane

MTC-00011721

From: Randall Page
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Randall Page
348 Freya Drive
Solvang, ca 93463
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Randall S. Page

MTC-00011722

From: C. B. Goff
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
C. B. Goff
2416 Denise Street
Benton, AR 72015-2624
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
C. B. Goff

MTC-00011723

From: Kelly Baker
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kelly Baker
12337 Jones Road
Houston, TX 77070
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kelly Baker

MTC-00011724

From: Joseph W Pfahnl
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Joseph W Pfahnl
2197 Glenkirk Dr
San Jose, CA 95124
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Joseph W Pfahnl

MTC-00011725

From: Andrea Palmer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Andrea Palmer
225 Capstan Drive
Placida, FL 33946-2221
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Andrea Palmer

MTC-00011726

From: Thomas Dill
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Thomas Dill
2325 Browning Drive
Janesville, WI 53546-1143
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Thomas Dill

MTC-00011727

From: Amy Hanson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Amy Hanson
6868 North Overhill #3
Chicago, IL 60631
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Amy Hanson

MTC-00011728

From: Sally Arnold
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Please settle this litigation. It's time to move on. Microsoft has greatly benefitted consumers throughout the world. This mission of punishment is only costly taxpayers and Microsoft excessive expense. Please settle.

Sally A. Arnold, CPCU, ARM, ARe Risk Management Consultant
Self-Insurance Specialists, Inc.

MTC-00011729

From: James Coombs
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
James Coombs
11127 Oviatt Road
Honor, MI 49640
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over,

companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James Coombs

MTC-00011730

From: Kathy Sparks
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kathy Sparks
692 Cobble Dr.
Montrose, CO 81401
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kathy Sparks

MTC-00011731

From: Richard Rizzo
To: Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice
Date: 1/15/02 3:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Richard Rizzo
218 west noble ave.
bushnell, fl 33513-5414
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice,

Dear Microsoft Settlement U.S. Department of Justice:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Richard Rizzo

MTC-00011732

From: Deborah Eaton
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Deborah Eaton
100 Hickory Lane
Scottsville, KY 42164
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Deborah Eaton

MTC-00011733

From: Charles Palmer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charles Palmer
225 Capstan Drive
Placida, FL 33946-2221
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charles Palmer

MTC-00011734

From: Rosaline VanNess
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Rosaline VanNess
8505 Hanford Drive
Richmond, VA 23229-4719
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Rosaline B VanNess

MTC-00011735

From: Laurie Grizzard
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Laurie Grizzard
2967 Mt. Pleasant Rd.
Franklin, GA 30217
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tim and Laurie Grizzard

MTC-00011736

From: Norm Donaldson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Norm Donaldson
697 Carr Ave
Aromas, CA 95004
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Norm Donaldson

MTC-00011737

From: Wyonia R Farner
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Wyonia R Farner
8426 Sunview Drive
El Cajon, Ca 92021-1627
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Wyonia R Farner

MTC-00011738

From: ANTHONY THOMPSON
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
ANTHONY THOMPSON
4801 ASHLEY TERRACE
MIDDLETOWN, OH 45042
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

ANTHONY E. THOMPSON

MTC-00011739

From: Sandi Fowler
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sandi Fowler
6437 Longmont tr;
Fort Worth, TX 76179-3715
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Sandi Fowler

MTC-00011740

From: Wendy Johnson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:55pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Wendy Johnson
7875 Valencia Court
Highland, CA 92346-5753
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Wendy L. Johnson

MTC-00011741

From: T. Mack Jennings
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
T. Mack Jennings
408 Lee St.

Sulphur Springs, TX 75482-4349
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

T. Mack Jennings

MTC-00011742

From: Jocelynn Bailey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jocelynn Bailey
13309 Sturno Drive
Clifton, VA 20124-0957
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Jocelynn Bailey

MTC-00011743

From: Tamey Johnson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Tamey Johnson
4230 County Road 633
Clanton, AL 35045
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Tamey Johnson

MTC-00011744

From: Connie Marthinsen
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Connie Marthinsen
202 Sarazen Meadow Way
Cary, NC 27513
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Connie Marthinsen

MTC-00011745

From: stanley kimmel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:06pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is anti-American that you took action against Microsoft for their ability to do an excellent job of developing and selling their products. You should make every effort to settle and go about your business of prosecuting law breakers.

Stanley Kimmel

Box 23093

Anchorage, KY 40223

MTC-00011746

From: William E. Gabel
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
William E. Gabel
2140 North Parkway Drive
Upper Arlington, OH 43221
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
William E. Gabel

MTC-00011747

From: Francis M. Perry
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Francis M. Perry
2005 S. Berry's Chapel Road
Franklin, TN 37069
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Francis M. Perry

MTC-00011748

From: Linda Schlange
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Linda Schlange
27395 Cypress Street
Highland, CA 92346-3715
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Linda L. Schlange

MTC-00011749

From: Emilia Neudorff
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Emilia Neudorff
7806 Jason Ave.
West Hills, CA 91304-4434
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Emilia Neudorff

MTC-00011750

From: user@openai.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
DOJ,

Please count my opinion as being in support of Matthew Szulik, CEO of Red Hat. I have looked over the PFJ and feel it is seriously lacking in action against one of the richest, sleaziest corporations in the world.

I would very much like to see the further actions that Mathew has proposed be taken into consideration and integrated into the Final Judgement. I believe that Microsoft should fund the advancement of alternative software and other operating systems (Macintosh and Linux) for a period of time to convey the message that you cannot use illegal methods to hold down your competition and suffocate free speech and free code.

Sincerely,
A concerned computer user.

MTC-00011751

From: Rdmandalay@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is my opinion that Microsoft Corporation is a first rate, first class company and the courts and justice system should stop penalizing it. They have been most generous in their settlement offers and contributions to schools. If other companies can't compete, it is not the fault of Microsoft. They can stop whining. The remaining states in litigation are just trying to grab some "free" money and this should be discouraged. America should be proud of Microsoft and free it of all the legal entanglements! It stands for what USA capitalism is all about!

Ann Mitcham
(not connected in any way with Microsoft Corp.—don't even own any stock.)
CC:MSFIN@microsoft.com@inetgw

MTC-00011752

From: Jack
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:08pm
Subject: Settlement agreement

Please see the attached letter regarding the pending Microsoft agreement.

John I. Schuler
269 Glenbrook Drive
Pittsburgh, PA 15237-5303
15 January 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft,

After three long years of legal wrangling the Microsoft antitrust case has finally seen an opportunity for resolution in the settlement reached last November. A continuation of litigation, such that Microsoft's competitors are now strongly lobbying for, will simply not benefit anyone but their competition, and thus will prove to be counter-productive for America.

The current settlement offers much of which that the government and competing companies should be satisfied. It allows free access to Microsoft's source code and interfaces that are internal to Windows operating system products. Additionally, Microsoft is obligated to design future versions of Windows to make it easier on consumers, manufacturers, and software developers to promote non-Microsoft applications. This, in addition to many other restrictions and obligations, will be verified by a Technical Committee to ensure Microsoft's compliance.

It appears to me that this settlement is the best way to put an end to this matter once and for all. I strongly urge to work towards the immediate resolution of this case. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
John J. Schuler
John J. Schuler
CC: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00011753

From: Jean Smith
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,
I think it is about time that this gets settled for the good of the country and all its citizens. I feel that who ever it is that is trying to do this to a good and inovative country is just plain stupid. Without Microsoft I hat to think where we would be. It is a terriable thing to think that someone wants to destroy a good thing. Just because they have some smart inovative people that are capable of doing such things should make us proud not want to destroy what is good.

Sincerely,
Jean N. Smith

MTC-00011754

From: Joan Nims Cook
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:09pm
Subject: litigation

considering the damage already done to the economy it is extremely doubtful that further pursuit of litigation benefits anyone with the possible exception of a few who hope to gain political advantage. Isn't it long since time to stop the foolishness and get on with the work of this country.

MTC-00011755

From: JHart60@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

After reviewing the settlement between the Department of Justice and Microsoft, I am of the opinion that this should move forward. It is not in the best interest of all parties to have this drag out any further. The settlement is Reasonable and Fair to all parties.

There appears to bigger issues that the Department needs to address at this time.

Thank you for your attention on this matter.

J. C. Hart
10821 East 25 Ave.
Spokane WA 99206

MTC-00011756

From: Rexasoras@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:12pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

IT IS CLEAR TO ALL EXCEPT WANNABE POLITICOS IN THE PERSON OF STATE ATTY GENS (9) THAT THIS CASE SHOULD BE SETTLED PROMPTLY. THE DAMAGE DONE TO THE ECONOMY IN THE QUEST TO PUNISH SUCCESS MUST BE CURBED.

DO JUSTICE FOR THE NATION AND SETTLE THIS CASE THAT SHOULD NOT HAVE BEEN BROUGHT IN THE FIRST PLACE.

REX R. MALSON
189 SHERWOOD DR
BRANSON, MO 65616

MTC-00011757

From: yoooperup@hotmail.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that this settlement is fair and just, for a couple of reasons.

1. I do not believe this trial should have gone as far as it has. Every business and person has the choice of Operating system. I could get a Macintosh, I could load Unix or I could use a free version of Linux. The reason Microsoft has such a hold on the Computer OS and Software industry is because they come out with not necessarily the best OS, but the best OS as a package, including support, the amount of Software available, and people knowledgeable in the product.

2. This settlement will bring new technology to schools that currently have 3 year old computers and Software

Sincerely,
Terry L. Read
CC:yoooperup@hotmail.com@inetgw

MTC-00011758

From: Betsy Brinson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I am Josephine Average Consumer and a taxpayer. To date, I still don't understand why my tax dollars are being spent to sue a legitimate business for being successful. I further don't understand why once a settlement is proposed nine states can hold up the process of getting on with life. I have sat back in awe and watched the tobacco growers being subsidized by the government to grow a produce which is then sold to the tobacco companies to produce a legal product that is sold to folks, with a huge tax collected by the government, and then having the government sue the tobacco companies because people choose to use a legal product that is not good for their health. The frosting on the cake is where the government then turns around and takes the money from the tobacco companies and uses it for general fund purposes, not related to health issues stemming from the use of tobacco. I am having a strong sense of deja vue with the Microsoft case. Undoubtedly the fact that some of my retirement is tied up in Microsoft stock biases my view. However, as I see it, the case needs to be settled so that Microsoft can get back to creating more innovations that do nothing but improve my life and as I understand it from the general media the proposed settlement seems to meet everyone's needs.

Betty Brinson, J.D.
W.S.B.A. #12190
1811 "C" Street
Bellingham, WA 98225

MTC-00011759

From: Mary Ann Censky
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:59pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

I would like to encourage all parties involved in the settlement negotiations to do everything in their power to come to full agreement on all remaining issues. I personally feel the downturn in the economy, which started declining about the time the government started their antitrust proceedings, is in large part due to the uncertainty created by the Government's pursuit of Microsoft over the last couple of years. Microsoft has done tremendous good for individual consumers, for business and for our overall economy. Claims that the consumer has been hurt are ludicrous—I believe there are very few consumers who believe this. If Microsoft's competitors developed comparable products and marketed them in the outstanding manner Microsoft has, then these antitrust pursuits would not have been necessary. I applaud the Federal Government's efforts in reaching a settlement and hope the remaining few states will see the wisdom in reaching a quick resolution of all remaining issues.

Please everyone, let's put our Government resources where most needed—fighting domestic and international terrorism and bringing our economy out of the recession—and let Microsoft keep developing their great products that allow individual consumers and small and large business to succeed in their endeavors. It's appalling to think about how much money has been spent on these legal proceedings—let's end it now. If I were a taxpayer in the remaining states that haven't settled, I would be beyond furious.

Thank you for your consideration of my feelings on this subject.

Mary Ann Censky
2731—77th Avenue SE—# 206
Mercer Island, WA 98040
Phone: 206-624-1695
Fax: 206-624-1795

MTC-00011760

From: Duane Dier
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 3:58pm
Subject: Doj

The department of Justice should immediately settle the Microsoft case, that never really was a case anyway, but rather, a governmental vendetta, birthed by greedy jealous competitors, and picked up by opportunistic politicians looking for the next corporation to raid. Remember the old saying "when you rob peter to pay Paul, Paul is always on your side". This is what this amounts to political extortion of a company that has helped free the world. Go Microsoft, and I do not own stock, and No one I know works for the company.

Duane Dier,
Seattle, Wa

MTC-00011761

From: Bob Quinn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Yes, please settle the lawsuit with Microsoft. I agree with the current terms agreed upon by the parties involved. I believe that it is to this country's interest to allow Microsoft to focus on its core business instead of wasting money and resources on lawsuits such as this.

Thank you.
Bob Quinn
The VB Applications Group
25038 SE 40th Drive
Issaquah, WA
<mailto:bob@vbapplications.com> bob@vbapplications.com
(425) 313-1013

MTC-00011762

From: Mr1031@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:14pm
Subject: Settle it

As far as I am concerned the states that are holding out are doing it in either career enhancement on the part of the attorney generals there or they are function more as lobbyists for their in state high tech corporations and probably should have withdrawn themselves because of their bias. I don't feel ANYTHING put on the table would satisfy them short of Microsoft relinquishing total control of itself to them. This ends up being more like reverse monopoly stuff like reverse discrimination!

Ron Walken
Seattle, Wa

MTC-00011763

From: Jack Henderson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think that the current Microsoft Settlement is fair and appropriate. I think that it would be a HUGE mistake to punish further this company.

As someone who travels a great deal, I find it tremendously helpful to sit down at a computer in whatever country I'm in and find a Windows environment with which I am comfortable and which I can immediately use. Any settlement that reduces Microsoft's influence in maintaining consistency in worldwide computer operating systems would be a serious blow to international business and education.

Jack Henderson
Phippsburg, Maine

MTC-00011764

From: Jurg3720@cs.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:15pm
Subject: RE: Microsoft Settlement

My opinion is, to settle the Action as soon as possible. This will be good to our Economy and provide more Stability to the Market. We do not need war within our Country.

Juergen Brunke

MTC-00011765

From: wright—1997@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft settlement is fair and should be approved. Microsoft is a great company and should be allowed to continue without having this case going on forever. This is good for the economy and for America.

As a consumer I am happy with this settlement and with most of Microsoft products. If I like another product Microsoft does not keep me from using it.

Thank You
CC:wright—1997@yahoo.com@inetgw

MTC-00011766

From: Woody Tweed
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:16pm
Subject: opinion

Lets put this behind us and let the economy go forward. The whole case should have been thrown out of court.

Woody Tweed
Linn Creek Mo. 65052

MTC-00011767

From: 432kabl
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Dept. of Justice:

It is long past time to end the government attacks on Microsoft. The dominance of the computer industry that Microsoft has unquestionably attained is primarily the result of serving the needs of computer users better than any other company. Microsoft has made immense contributions to the rising productivity that is the primary source of our exceptional prosperity in recent years. That kind of innovation is the main hope for restoring prosperity after the current recession.

The last thing our government should be doing is attacking and penalizing innovation. In the interest of all computer users, please just find a graceful way to bring all of the threatened litigation and regulatory harrassment to an early conclusion. This would send a strong message that creativity and resourcefulness are still encouraged in the United States; not punished.

Thank you for your consideration.
Sincerely,
Brad Naegle
(Small business owner)

MTC-00011768

From: Jerry Stump
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Leave Microsoft alone.
I so much appreciate their software; Microsoft is my friend. I despise Apple.
Let us get on with other more important items and let this great company Microsoft continue to innovate.

Jerry Stump
1109 20th Street
Belleville, KS 66935

MTC-00011769

From: gbdesign@pop-server.new.rr.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:16pm
Subject: Breakup the Monopoly —

I feel MS should be made an example of for it's arrogance. Knowing they could fund a longer court battle than most foreign governments, the delays and non-disclosure of meetings with Federal officials clearly shows the reason for the court's rejection of the proposed settlement.

MS should be fined with the largest fine in US history, after all they are the richest US company in history. They should also be required to allow the operating systems that are pre-installed in retail machines to be the choice of the computer manufacturer. So if Compaq wants to run Linux, UNIX, or even Apple Computer's Mac OS in their machines.

Nor should pre-bundled software packages be the choice of the software providers. Consumers who ultimately use these softwares, on any platform, should be able to choose from a bare-bones configuration to a fully installed complete suite of softwares, and from the software manufacturers of OUR choice.

We aren't required to use a certain brand of gasoline in our cars, nor should we be required to use only one brand of software in a computer. In example; MS Windows 2000 costs over $500 in Green Bay, WI and the current MacOS offering has two complete operating systems for only $130.

This company has shown too many times it's cavalier attitude about what it can and cannot do, and the victims are the creative people, the educators and the business users of personal computers. We are forced to buy computer systems filled with overpriced softwares that 90% of users will never take advantage of.

So I hope the courts decision will consider the damage caused our social structure because of this monopolistic practice.

MTC-00011770

From: GhassemL@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:18pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Department of Justice

Sirs, To my opinion the settlement agreed between the parties is reasonable and will benefit the economy of the country and consumers are happy that such a great organization is backed by people and the government. This encourages the scientists to further innovations without fear of government's unnecessary restrictions.

Ghassem Ladjevardi
Tucson AZ

MTC-00011771

From: Anthony Macaluso
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:19pm
Subject: action

WHEN IS OUR TRUSTED GOVERNMENT GOING TO OPEN IT'S EYE'S? AND SEE THAT WE HAVE GONE DOWN HILL EVER SINCE THEY HAVE UNDERTAKEN THIS ACTION AGAINST ONE OF OUR GREATEST COMPANY'S, THAT HAS COME ALONG IN MANY YEARS. OUR ECONOMY NEEDS A BOOST NOT A KICK IN THE PANTS AS THEY HAVE DONE. WHAT A REWARD MR. GATES HAS RECEIVED FOR ALL HIS EFFORTS TO BRING US AHEAD IN THE WORLD ECONOMY. I HOPE WE LEARNED A LESSON, THAT PUNISHING A COMPANY OR PERSON'S FOR DOING GOOD WILL NOT GET US ANY PLACE FAST. PLEASE STOP THIS NEEDLESS WASTE OF TAX PAYER MONEY. YOU HAVE SPEND MORE TIME AND MONEY TRYING TO BRING THIS COMPANY TO IT'S KNEES, AND LOOK WHAT IT HAS DONE TO US.

MR. ANTHONY MACALUSO

MTC-00011772

From: minhue—lu@yahoo.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:20pm

Subject: Settlements For Microsoft

Dear Attorney General John Ashcroft:

Microsoft was a treasure of this country for the twenty century, and will also be for the next century. Without the Microsoft's high tech contributions during the last twenty years, this country could well be behind Japan, Britain in the competition of the computer technologies. Consumers benefit from the Microsoft's products.

The settlement between DOJ and Microsoft should be done as soon as possible. Otherwise, our economy will continues to suffer.

Those nine states want to continue litigation are not the public best interests nor good for the economy. They should also accept the terms of settlements that agree between DOJ and Microsoft.

Thank you for your time>

Sincerely,

Min Hue Lu

Computer Scientist

MTC-00011773

From: Louis DeVito

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:21pm

Subject: Microsoft Litigation

I think it is time for everyone to wake up and stop trying to beat a dead horse. The amount of money and time spent on trying to squeeze another dollar out of Microsoft is just so stupid. There is a reasonable settlement on the table, a settlement that was put together by some very wise people with very sincere motives who wanted to move on rather than spend the rest of their lives litigating. Courts are to resolve problems, not find a way for simpletons to waste their lives on de minimus petty schemes. The courts should force a settlement which for all intensive purposes appears reasonable.

MTC-00011774

From: Mary Browning

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:21pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am sending this message to register my strong opinion that the Microsoft case should be settled now and that no more public time, energy or money should be expended in the pursuit of the case.

As a resident of Connecticut I especially deplore the dogged efforts of the Attorney General of Connecticut to depict Microsoft and Bill Gates as Public Enemy Number One.

Surely he and the other attorneys general must have true criminals to pursue. Innovation and energetic enterprise like that of Gates/Microsoft are part of what has made this country the power it is.

"Enough already!"

Mary-Leggett Browning Waterford, CT

MTC-00011775

From: K Ward

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:21pm

Subject: Department of Justice seeks public comment

The Microsoft law suit is dragging on when a fair settlement has been negotiated. It seems that states just want more money. Let's get it over with. This is not good for the country.

Kevin Ward

MTC-00011776

From: Mark Jorgensen

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:22pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

I think it is important to end the law suit and get on with life. Enough is enough. The Attorney Generals pursuing this case are self serving.

Thank you for reading this.

Mark Jorgensen

MTC-00011777

From: RVANDRT@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:21pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think the anti trust case with Microsoft should be settled. I believe the unsettled case is a negative on our economy.

Ralph Trimble

Findlay, OH

MTC-00011778

From: Susan Barbetti

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:25pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir,

Please, settle the Microsoft case as is. It should not go into futher litigation. The Settlement is fair and very generous and it will help thousands of children. Those that don't want to see this case settled are furthering a case of "sour grapes".

Thank you for accepting my comments.

Susan Barbetti

30120 N. 65th St.

Cave Creek, AZ 85331

MTC-00011779

From: TDavis3433@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:25pm

Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

IT IS TIME TO GET OFF MICROSOFT'S BACK. THIS STARTED BACK WHEN BILL CLINTON WAS TRYING ANYTHING TO GET THE ATTENTION OFF OF HIM, SINCE THEN THE STOCK MARKET AND THE ECONOMY HAS BEEN IN DECLINE.

THIS WILL PROBABLY END UP LIKE EVERYTHING ELSE THE GOVERNMENT HAS TRIED TO FIX THAT WASN'T BROKEN, SUCH AS THE DEREGULATION OF THE TELEPHONE AND ELECTRIC SERVICE. WE ALL KNOW THAT THE TELEPHONE COSTS HAVE GONE UP QUITE A BIT SINCE THE SO CALLED FIX AND CALIFORNIA HAD A ROUGH TIME WITH POWER SINCE THAT "FIX" WAS PUT IN.

MICROSOFT PRODUCTS HAVE ALWAYS HAD A REASONABLE PRICE AND ARE

SOME OF THE BEST ON THE MARKET. THE STATES THAT DON'T WANT TO SETTLE ARE ONLY LOOKING OUT FOR COMPANIES THAT ARE IN THEIR STATES THAT CAN'T MAKE IT ON THEIR OWN WITHOUT HELP AND THESE COMPANIES ARE PROBABLY KICKING IN A LOT OF MONEY TO THE CAMPAIGN FUNDS OF THESE POLITICIANS.

I ALWAYS THOUGHT THAT EVERYBODY WAS TRYING TO "BUILD A BETTER MOUSETRAP", APPARENTLY THESE OTHER COMPANIES WANTED TO WAIT FOR MICROSOFT TO BUILD IT AND THEN TRY TO STEAL IT WITH THE HELP OF THE GOVERNMENT.

MTC-00011780

From: haichen—cheng@hotmail.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:27pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The whole case was mainly initiated by some companies can not effectively compete in market. Every actions Microsoft is accused of, such as give away products, bundle products, discount for volumn venders, are common practice of IT industry. All other businesses, including those joined in the case in suing MS(Netscape, Sun, Oracle, AOL), have taken those actions, the only difference is they could not do it better.

It is time to close this case, let government get out of the marketplace, and let consumers to vote with their own money. In long run, if MS is guilty, the marketplace will punish it.

CC:haichen—cheng@hotmail.com@inetgw

MTC-00011781

From: PMConnaugh@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 4:27pm

Subject: Proposed Microsoft Settlement with the States' Attornies General.

January 15, 2002

Attorney General John Ashcroft

US Department of Justice

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I would like to express my opinion on the settlement of the Microsoft case. It's inappropriate that these proceedings are continued. As a user of Microsoft at not only at home but also at work. I can do my daily tasks with a great deal of concentration on the task at hand versus having to worrying through the "how to do" feat.

My wife had taught many Unemployed persons as an Adjunct Professor at Drexel University for a few years. The money was put into this activity, with the intent of preparing the Student to have the necessary Software to qualify for a job. Most Students had little trouble learning the MS Word, Excel, Access, and Outlook.

The fact that most of the American (and possibly most of the World's) Commerce run so profitably and easily is that there is a commonality of Software Tools, made possible by Microsoft. The ease of operation has allowed these Students, the Unemployed, to get those jobs in that they came with the necessary tools which permitted them to begin earning their keep. They had the confidence to spend their time over several months at 2-3 nights a week knowing that their efforts were not in vain. Why? American employers run on Microsoft! And they were prepared. high time that this case be ended.

This lawsuit has dragged on and wasted a great deal of time and (our Taxpayer) money in the process. Microsoft has changed the entire computer industry, giving consumers and businesses superior products. Their operating system enabled a great compatibility that has not been offered by any other company. Why would anyone want to switch to another system and other software that doesn't even work with one another?

I worked for five major companies as an Electrical Engineer and Manager/Vice President, using Microsoft in some way or another in all of my jobs. Microsoft products allowed me to concentrate on "What", not "How". Microsoft is being punished for creating innovative technologies that have changed our computer industry, our business practices, our economic practices and even our methods of government forever. Just look at the simplification that the IRS has enjoyed now that Tax Returns can and are filed electronically (45 Million 2000 Federal returns at last count). Microsoft's efforts should be rewarded, not penalized.

.Think about how difficult it would be for you and those in your family to surf the Net, send Letters to the Editor, check their Bank Statement, pay their Bills, and even check the Weather without a ubiquitous and uniform means of communication. Just trying to change from Apple (Java) to an IBM, or other (Microsoft) computer. It's a waste.

This is analogous to the early problems of selecting between a Beta or a VCS Videotape system. We all use the VCS now. There was no government intervention. The people, the Buyers chose the better system. Did that selection prevent other bright Engineers from now offering CD's and DVD players? No! That's progress.

The proposed settlement is quite equitable for all parties. As I understand: Microsoft is conceding a great deal in order to move on. They are giving away some of their coding and interface design to competing software developers, as well as protocols for their server systems. They have also agreed not to enter into any contracts obligating third party distribution of Windows. Should any problems arise, the Technical Oversight Committee would make sure that Microsoft complies with the terms of the settlement, further ensuring fair competition. I for one, urge that the proposed settlement be upheld.

God Bless America and protect our Troops!
Sincerely,
Phillip M.Connaught
1409 Chancellor Circle
Bensalem, Pennsylvania 19020
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00011782

From: SteveGertsch
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hello,

I think the case should be settled the way the DOJ and Microsoft agreed upon. Get it done and let us get back to our business.

Steve Gertsch
sgertsch@pindersoft.com
http://www.pindersoft.com

MTC-00011783

From: Steve Chittenden
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Sirs,

Thank-you for requesting input from citizens of this country. I believe that Microsoft has paid the price of any misgivings they have done. It is time that all states and Department of Justice settle this matter and get on with the work at hand. Thank-you again for the opportunity to respond. In His Service,
Steve Chittenden

MTC-00011784

From: Swauger, Fred
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 4:27pm
Subject: Microsoft anti trust suit

Agreed settlement is more than fair where would we be w/o windows the cosumer was not harmed who did the suit protect?

Frederic Swauger
(503) 639-2311, (503) 639-2312(Fax)

MTC-00011785

From: RON LITTLE
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement this needs to be settled now !!

MTC-00011786

From: larry novak
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:30pm
Subject: Microsoft law suit

Dear Sirs;
I believe we have held this company up in the air not allowing microsoft to do what it does best, give us next products that will move this economy forward.

The entire country is on hold waiting for these state lawyers to cut up the pie for their state and most of all for their own gain. . Enough, get this ended and send the beggars out of the chambers.

Lawrence Novak

MTC-00011787

From: Jun Zhang
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:31pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I oppose the settlement because I don't believe it is in the public interest to do so. The monopoly power of Microsoft will not change, nor will its practice, given their strategy of always moving one step ahead and rendering court judgment irrelevant due to the lag introduced by litigation.

Jun Zhang
Associate Professor University of Michigan, Ann Arbor

MTC-00011788

From: Kayani, Dr. Sohail
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov.'

Date: 1/15/02 4:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Sir,

The purpose of a settlement should be fair to parties concerned and this settlement is in line with that. However, certain states that primarily include Microsoft's competitors, will like to use the opportunity to do as much harm as they can in the name of an open platform. If their products are good, the market would embrace them. It seems a proxy fight for Sun, Apple and Oracle that these states are trying to fight. The intention of the Attorney General of these states would be considered neutral if they had publicly disclosed the absence of any financial backing by these companies to their election campaign.

Sohail Kayani, MD
322 Saybrook Road
Orange, CT 06477

MTC-00011789

From: Doris J. Lafferty
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Please settle and end litigation . It has been too long and too destructive.

Doris J. Lafferty and Walter E. Lafferty

MTC-00011790

From: mdstoffel@mmm.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear DOJ,

Microsoft has done more than any other company to grow the computer industry. Before Microsoft computers were marketed to large institutions. Microsoft has brought the computer into homes world wide. They have done this by making computers easy to use for the general population and marketing products that we want. Microsoft has done their homework and they have received an A+. This is not according to me but according to the consumers who have purchased their products.

For the good of the industry, settle the lawsuit and allow the computer market to grow again. When Microsoft starts making products that the public doesn't want or makes products that don't work, the market will run from Microsoft. When other companies start making better products than Microsoft, the market will run to them. IBM was once the computer leader but they didn't have the vision or the product line that the general public wanted. Today, Dell is capturing the market share of the the PC market. Dell is getting it by making an affordable, reliable product. Microsoft has done the same thing, they created a good product and made it affordable. They need to take their lumps but let the market give it to them.

Settle the lawsuit.
Mick Stoffel

MTC-00011791

From: bearflat(a)jps.net
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:32pm
Subject: (no subject)
please settle in microsoft's favor.
shirley ross

MTC-00011792

From: Stu Sjouwerman
 To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 4:40pm
 Subject: "Microsoft Settlement"

It's time to get this over with! The U.S. government should not be used as a competitive weapon.

Warm regards,

MTC-00011793

From: Bob Long
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:34pm
 Subject: Microsoft DOJ Settlement

I am in favor of the settlement reached with Microsoft in the Anti-Trust case. Please stop wasting taxpayer money. Consumers were not harmed.

Sincerely
 Robert Longariello Taxpayer and Citizen
 blongari@home.com

MTC-00011794

From: fred@ensuredmail.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:34pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please move forward with the Microsoft settlement. The lack of a settlement is destructive to all of our businesses. When you think of the legal wrangling and the lack of focus inherent in a situation such as this, it is apparent that the real losers are the smaller companies and consumers.

As a business owner, I want Microsoft, Oracle, Sun, etc. . concentrating on improving their products and services rather than attending to legal needs that ultimately help no one other than the legal profession.

Thank you,
 Fred West
 CC:fred@ensuredmail.com@inetgw

MTC-00011795

From: Frank/Chris Pizzeri
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:38pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have reviewed the anti trust settlement and both my wife and I believe it is just. Please conclude this action now. Continuing the pursuit of this matter will be unlikely to serve justice. Those who would be served by furtherance may achieve some small gains for their cause at the expense of the vast majority of Americans.

The law of "unintended consequences" has had a great negative affect on the american public through a lack of confidence.

So "ENOUGH ALREADY!!!!!"
 Frank & Chris Pizzeri
 Stuart, Fl

MTC-00011796

From: BChanceLtd@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:38pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please accept the Microsoft settlement as proposed earlier. Let's stop fooling around and get down to business.

Leo Hohnicki

MTC-00011797

From: Potter, Bob Ext.1411
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 4:42pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I'm begging you—Please get of Microsoft's back. You have had your viewpoint skewed by competitors of Microsoft that could not win in the market place so they are using you to get their way. Don't be used. The business world is not a philanthropic organization. It is market driven. Microsoft has won in the market place. Lets get on with life!!!

Regards,
 Bob Potter
 (831) 796-1411
 www.co.monterey.ca.us

MTC-00011798

From: grego@equilibrium.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:36pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's end this and stop wasting more taxpayer dollars. The computer industry changes so fast that Microsoft will have to adapt, or be left in the cold. Please accept the recent setelement, and let's get back to work.

Greg Olson
 CC:grego@equilibrium.com@inetgw

MTC-00011799

From: THCBC@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:37pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lets have a settlement ASAP and get on with life.

MTC-00011800

From: Tjack1931
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/14/02 10:56pm
 Subject: Re Antitrust Microsoft

Dear Justice Department I would like to voice my Opinion on the Antitrust settlement with Microsoft. I think as a Taxpayer and Voter it is about time that this nonsense suit is put to sleep. The people that Originally brought this suit in the first place are expanding and Monopolizing more than Microsoft ever has.(AOL-Time Warner) Sun Microsystems) etc.I think that Microsoft has done so much for us beginner computer users, and still do.

Sincerely
 Helga Jackson
 4318 So 325th St.
 Auburn, WA 98001
 Tjack1931@msn.com

MTC-00011801

From: James Plummer
 To: mailto:microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov@inetgw
 Date: 1/15/02 4:39pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My input to this long delayed settlement, is to accept the plan which was and is acceptable to so large a percentage of the population. Let's get it settled as part of the country's effort to get the economy going.

Thankyou,
 James W. Plummer,
 2129 Quail Point Ct.
 Medford, Or 97504

MTC-00011802

From: kenneth goff
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:39pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Lets get this settled, Microsoft has done more for the computer than anyone. They don't deserve this kind of treatment.

MTC-00011803

From: Edens, Jim
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 4:41pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough is enough. Any further modification of this settlement is just an attempt by inept competitors to gain an advantage in the marketplace. If Microsoft's products were not valuable the market would not reward Microsoft with business. Those states that are opting out of the settlement and working to pursue their own lawsuits are spending the public's money unwisely and are looking for a scapegoat and a free handout.

Jim Edens
 jedens@nespower.com
 <mailto:jedens@nespower.com>
 - QUOTE OF THE DAY - "The true meaning of life is to plant trees, under whose shade you do not expect to sit."—Nelson Henderson

MTC-00011804

From: Lee and Helen DeGroff
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:40pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I feel the settlement is fair and equitable and the states that have not accepted it are not being fair to us, the consumer. Please let my voice be heard. Helen B. DeGroff

MTC-00011805

From: Charles, Robert F
 To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 4:43pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:
 I say "Enough is enough is enough!" I feel Microsoft has endured more than any company has endured for this Antitrust litigation. As I stated in an earlier EMAIL to your office, these Anti Trust laws were designed to protect consumers—NOT COMPETITORS! After all, look who has brought Microsoft's alleged misgivings to light. Competitors!

I do thank the DOJ for looking out for my best interests; however, I have yet to hear a consumer say anything derogatory about the products that Microsoft sells. Please give Microsoft a fair ruling. . . .

Enough is enough is enough. Let Microsoft get back what it does best; serving the customer/consumer with new innovative exciting products that make the world a better place—not stepping aside so that second rate products can cheapen the American way of life. Please rule in favor of Microsoft.

Sincerely, Rob Charles
 Robert F. Charles
 Global Automotive Americas North
 RF Project Reliability Engineer
 tyco Electronics /AMP Incorporated

*(336) 727-5847 *(336) 727-5068
 *rfcharles@tycoelectronics.com
 *Mail Stop 079-12
 PO Box 55
 3800 Reidsville Road
 Winston-Salem, NC 27102-0055

MTC-00011806

From: DrFlick@iHi.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:44pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The original reasons driving the settlement no longer are valid. The industry and the forces driving it have changed too much. We slapped Microsoft's hands and they listened. I believe, of all of the companies that will be watched and scrutinized, Microsoft is at the top. They can not afford to mess up. They have their mandate and I firmly believe they will stick by it.

I have been dealing with Microsoft for over a decade and have given them more personal information than any other company. It never has been abused and I trust them explicitly when they say it will not be given out or sold. Granted, they were bullish five or so years ago. They absolutely have changed and are sincere in their efforts to remedy how they conduct business. I like what they have to offer and it would hurt my business dramatically if they had to break up or stop making their products. Breaking up the company would hurt the American economy more than it would resolve anything. Think of the impact on the thousands of other companies that rely on the Microsoft platform for what they do and how they live. Microsoft is one of the few innovators left in the industry. I like that. That is why they spend billions of dollars in research each year ? to bring us new and creative solutions that keep our economy flowing. There also is no technical way that providing source code would work. It changes too fast and it would do more harm than good for the world to make broken derivatives from it. They provide more pre-release documentation, technology strategies, sample code, training, and seminars than any other company out there. The only reason competitors want their source is because they cannot figure out how to do it themselves.

Stop wasting our money and get on with spending it on more important things. The only people that care are the press, media, and politicians that want to get re elected. There are too many other problems facing the nation right now and this just drains the scarce resources we don't have. Microsoft can afford to keep those states tied up for longer than they can afford to keep plugging away on a losing battle going. Take Microsoft's offer and run with it. It all will work out in the end because we will not let it happen any other way.

CC:DrFlick@iHi.com@inetgw

MTC-00011807

From: Paul Lingham
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:46pm
 Paul Lingham
 47 Bird Grove
 Stokes Valley Lower Hutt

Wellington
 Phone 049735747
 Mobile 0212586580

MTC-00011807-0001

I'd like to think that this is a good middle-of-the-road set of suggestions. I don't side with ABMers much like I don't side with NMBers. I just want a better computing environment.

Here's what I'd like:

1. Force Microsoft to adopt a file format for all Office applications and PUBLISH their spec. Note that I am not asking for the publication of the source code of Office, simply the description of the file formats used.

This way, people can use other Office suites (PerfectOffice, SmartSuite, StarOffice) without wondering if the files created will load properly in Word, Excel, Powerpoint, etc. . . . Just this would open up some competition in the Office Suite market.

2. Force Microsoft to publish every single API in Windows. Again, I am not asking for the publication of the windows source code, but simply to the Application Programming Interface. This would have two benefits: It would make sure that every service, every facility is clearly exposed for use while at the same time, removing the cloud of suspicion that Microsoft has some secret APIs that make their applications work better than others.

3. Muzzle the Microsoft FUD division. This is by far the most irritating aspect of Microsoft as a business entity. They generate FUD and make believe that other competing products are not good while it's far from the case. Feel free to select your example, there are tons of them out there.

4. Forbid them to use the words "innovate" and "innovation" unless they can specifically show that they are the first-movers for the particular product they are advertising. Again, there are tons of examples out there where Microsoft has been only an "adapter" as opposed to an "innovator"

5. Offer a striped-down version of Windows. Just the bare bones and a text-based browser (like Lynx) for initial download of the browser of choice. Nothing else built-in, nothing else cobbled together. A base install should not be more than 20 Megabytes and should scream on Pentium-class machines.

6. Word the requirements that hefty fines will be leveraged for non-compliance. Hopefully, this way, we'll have more competition and a better computing environment. As well, if Microsoft is still dominant after this, it'll be because they have earned it the good old-fashioned way and we'll have little if anything to complain about.

MTC-00011808

From: Carnes Chapin P GS-13 AFOTEC/TSS
 To: 'microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov'
 Date: 1/15/02 4:44pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

As a consumer, I want the government to settle now. Microsoft has top notch products at ever decreasing prices. Stop wasting my tax dollars on this insane case. Send a message to the cry babies like Oracle, Sun etc—if you can't win in the market place—go find another business to get in.

Patrick Carnes

MTC-00011809

From: robin—maffeo@hotmail.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:49pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am pleased to be given the opportunity to comment on the settlement under the Tunney Act.

Given that both Microsoft and the DOJ have agreed upon terms that address the concerns of the original complaint, I am all in favor of proceeding with the settlement.

In all honesty, I never felt Microsoft has harmed consumers, even though deemed a monopoly. Microsoft has been a key force in driving the computer industry, and enabled numerous companies (media, hardware, and software) to grow and thrive. Enough time and money has been spent on this litigation. Proceed with the settlement.

Robin Maffeo

CC:robin—maffeo@hotmail.com@inetgw

MTC-00011810

From: wally rasmussen
 To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov.?@inetgw
 Date: 1/15/02 4:49pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please no further litigation. Settle NOW.

MTC-00011811

From: Steve Parker
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:53pm
 Subject: anti-trust suit

To Whom It May Concern: Enough already. The liberals have attacked the economy on several fronts, and the result is the bad economy we have now and the weak economy we have had for 6 or more years. Continue with the Microsoft witch hunt and not only is this an action that does not represent the publics interest at large, but the NASDAQ and the technology industry as a whole will continue to suffer! We all can see what the results of that are, but it could get much worse. Microsoft as a company is not an angel, and they are not totally innocent. But the settlement is more than fair. More would be, in my opinion, mean and vindictive. And ultimately very damaging to everyone except those that might benefit from a shift in political power, or who might get some gratification for tearing down someone else's achievement which they envy. End this travesty of justice now and help the American People get back to work.

Thanks.

Steve Parker
 rsparker@ameritech.net

MTC-00011812

From: Gary(u)Withrow
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:51pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

I vote for Microsoft in this issue.

MTC-00011813

From: Arlena-Ann B. Neff
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 4:56pm
 Subject: Microsoft controversey

I strongly feel that this matter has gone on long enough and it's time to reach a settlement. Furthermore, I feel that the terms offered by Microsoft are more than adequate and should be accepted by the courts and contesting states. It's time to move forward and have everyone put their efforts in a more fruitful direction, instead of beating this issue endlessly to death. Let's accept Microsoft's offer and let the technology world move forward in other more positive areas.

Arlena Neffl

MTC-00011814

From: JMcg654550@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:52pm

Subject: Anti-trust lawsuit by various states
The States Attorneys General who involved themselves in the Justice Dept. lawsuit against Microsoft bring nothing to the table. They are in it for the publicity and because they have nothing to lose. They are still giddy from the windfall they got from their tobacco settlement and hope to extort money from Microsoft. I am a consumer and I have benefitted enormously from the products that Microsoft has created. These greedy attorneys general should be thrown out of court. They are contemptible extortionists who deserve no credibility.

Sincerely,
James A. McGrath

MTC-00011815

From: Robert And Vivian Weber
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:55pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Hello,
We would like to express our support for immediate settlement of the Microsoft case. We think that the marketplace has proven that Microsoft is an example of a company that we should support. Their innovative ways of providing consumers with the best-possible software choices work. No more litigation!!

Thanks for listening,
Vivian and Robert Weber

MTC-00011816

From: VEstaba@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:56pm
Subject: Settlement

We fully support Microsoft for a fair settlement which primarily will benefit consumers maintaining the integrity of an institution which on the other hand is one of the strongest pillars of the economy of the United States of America.

Respectfully,
Victor Estaba, M.D. & Carmen Estaba

MTC-00011817

From: Wayne/Eileen Grove
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:57pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
Settle now. without delay.

MTC-00011818

From: beverly wakeland
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

THE MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT WAS FAIR AND JUST. BUSINESS'S SHOULD HAVE THE FREEDOM TO INNOVATE. THE NINE STATES OPPOSING THE SETTLEMENT ARE COMPETITORS. MICROSOFT PROVIDES JOBS FOR THOUSANDS. IT IS TIME YOU SETTLE AND LET ALL INVOLVED MOVE ON.

MTC-00011819

From: JOHN (038) Mary McLaughlin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:58pm
Subject: Microsoft

Many of us are quite upset that the justice system has not declared a mis-trial in the case against Microsoft who was found guilty by a judge (Jackson) who has publicly acknowledged that he is bias when it comes to Microsoft or Bill Gates.

MTC-00011820

From: MRourke555@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:00pm
Subject: Mark Rourke

Microsoft is a company that has added immeasurably to the ability of a nonprofit agency, like mine, to keep costs down and do more with our limited resources. I oppose and measures that would stifle the success and generosity of Microsoft. I am continually disheartened at the penalties implemented by the US Justice Department.

Mark Rourke Director
Bement Camp and Conference Center

MTC-00011821

From: EMIL (038) BONNIE KELLER
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:01pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs:
I believe that the present arrangement for settlement of the Microsoft case is fair and should be accepted. We do not need more litigation.

Emil Keller
11909 Bayswater Rd
Gaithersburg, Md. 20878

MTC-00011823

From: Kenneth
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft Antitrust Proposal Comments
Comments on settlement proposal <http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/f9400/9495.htm>
Under Prohibited conduct: Section D: First paragraph.

In the case of a new major version of Microsoft Middleware, the disclosures required by this Section III.D shall occur no later than the last major beta test release of that Microsoft Middleware.

The phrase major beta test seems overly vague. I suggest restating it to read: "shall occur no later than the last test release released to over 20% of licensees who normally receive test releases from Microsoft."

(Commentary: Microsoft could quite easily move from an Alpha/Beta test cycle to an extended Alpha cycle or simply introduce an Alpha/Beta/Gamma or some new totally orthogonal process which would render the entire paragraph useless.)

Section G: Third paragraph, that prohibits such entity from competing with the object of the joint venture or other arrangement for a reasonable period of time. The phrase "for a reasonable period of time." seems vague. I suggest restating it to read:

"for a time period consistent with industry practices."

Section H: Says "provided that the technical reasons are described in a reasonably prompt manner to any ISV that requests them."

This phrase appears to allow Microsoft to develop hidden APIs and features, release them and then claim that no one else supports them and then only provide the documentation to an ISV that specifically requests it etc.

I suggest restating it to read: "provided that the technical reasons are clearly described in existing documentation released under the guidelines of this order"

Section J: "disclosure of which would compromise the security" As all of the products described are security products and as the term security is continually mis and reinterpreted (Microsoft itself being a large infractor).

I suggest restating it to read: "disclosure of which would compromise the effectiveness"

Kenneth Kron (CTO)
Last modified: Tue Jan 15 13:59:37 PST 2002

MTC-00011824

From: John Garrison, Sr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 4:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I retired three years ago after over 40 years in the information technology field with the last 32 years in a variety of mid and upper level management positions. While I personally preferred the UNIX operating system, I found the Microsoft Windows operating system was preferred by most of my technical staff and non technical users as it was easily learned and offered tremendous capability at a very reasonable price. Based on this experience, I feel it has been indeed an injustice to Microsoft and the American people that unworthy competitors has used the political process in an effort to survive. It is interesting to note that the nine states that have not agreed to the settlement are states that are home to some of the companies that simply cannot compete on their own merit. Request the settlement as agreed to by all but nine states be finalized as is. I believe the settlement is more than fair to the public interest.

Respectfully submitted:
John E. Garrison, Sr. mailto:johnhg@sun-usa.com

MTC-00011825

From: jd107778@sr-ungw03-01.Central.Sun.COM@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:01pm

Subject: Proposed Microsoft Settlement
To whom it may concern,

The proposed settlement proposed by the US Department of Justice and nine states is, in my opinion, inadequate because it doesn't address the problems that made Microsoft a monopoly in the first place and the enforcement procedures proposed are insipid.

Microsoft is currently a monopoly because they've engaged in a repeated practice of bundling "feature" software with their Windows operating system. Since the Windows OS is a monopolistic operating system, bundling these features is, in effect, predatory pricing because it drives the other vendors of the feature software out of business because they can't compete with the features offered by Microsoft for "free". Any remedy intended to fix the antitrust practices of Microsoft has to address this issue.

Furthermore, having any agreed-upon remedies enforced by a "Technical Committee" comprised of members that Microsoft partially chooses is tantamount to having "the fox guard the hen house." I believe that if the current settlement is agreed upon it may lead to certain short-term benefits for consumers, vendors involved with Microsoft and certain macroeconomic forces in the world, but I strongly believe that the far more important long-term benefits of software innovation and real consumer competition in the computer software, computer security and computer hardware industries will suffer consequences far greater than any short-term benefits if the remedies aren't reworked to be effective.

Thank you,
Respectfully,
Jim Dixon
Staff Software Engineer Enterprise Services
Sun Microsystems, Inc.
9800 Mt. Pyramid Ct. Suite 300
Englewood, CO 80112
Phone: 720/895-3041
Fax: 720/895-1607
E-Mail:
jim.dixon@central.sun.com

MTC-00011826

From: Bertha Keogh
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Bertha Keogh
12114 Brookside Ave
Port Charlotte, FL 33981-6727
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Bertha Keogh

MTC-00011827

From: David Carr
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust Settlement
David Carr
2700 Kent Avenue
West Lafayette, IN 47906
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial was a tremendous waste of taxpayer money and a impediment to the development of the computer technology sector of the American economy. It is time to let the companies innovate and develop new products to meet peoples' needs.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David Carr

MTC-00011828

From: Janet Kirk
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Janet Kirk
2589 Washington Rd.
Pittsburgh, PA 15241
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Janet F. Kirk

MTC-00011829

From: Gary McVey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gary McVey
10715 Hillview Dr.
Evansville, IN 47720
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gary P. McVey

MTC-00011830

From: Greg OLSEN
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Greg OLSEN
9415 Friendsville Road
Seville, OH 44273-9121
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Greg OLSEN

MTC-00011831

From: Joanne Ames
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Joanne Ames
R.R.#2 Box 515
Gillett, PA 16925
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Joanne Ames

MTC-00011832

From: Wayne Mieth

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Wayne Mieth
1050 Merritt Lane
El Cajon, CA 92020
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Wayne Mieth

MTC-00011833

From: Kathy Casteel
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kathy Casteel
4502 State Road E
Auxvasse, MO 65231
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kathy Casteel

MTC-00011834

From: JSteele76@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Government Persons

My comments on the Microsoft Settlement issue is, I'm afraid, only pointing out the obvious, however, the fact that the issue is still in doubt suggests my views should be expressed.

I own no Microsoft stock and don't work for microsoft. I have no close friends or relations that work for microsoft. I am using an apple Computer to send this through AOL Internet access. I do use Microsoft programs.

The fact that two of the states not accepting the settlement are California and Massachusetts seems to, in itself, show why the issue is purely political. These two states alone contain many major Microsoft competitors who have lost business because Microsoft was just better than they were. Success in our economy should be based on free market, not on government decree. Microsoft's products have been better accepted by the free market. Bundled products are indeed better than a bunch of incompatible products. Apple, Linux, Unix, etc.s systems are there as options but more people freely choose Microsoft.

Gerald Steele
506 Susana Ave.
Redondo Beach Ca.
90277

MTC-00011835

From: Paul Burke
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Paul Burke
5569 Turnbull Circle
Fair Oaks, CA 95628
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Paul Burke

MTC-00011836

From: Sandra Weber
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sandra Weber
148 Main St.
Sullivan, WI 53178
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sandra Weber

MTC-00011837

From: Charles Guest
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charles Guest
1506 Clarence
Bossier, La 71111
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charles E. Guest

MTC-00011838

From: Nathan Leon
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Nathan Leon
2905 Colorado Ave
Turlock, CA 95382
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Nathan Leon

MTC-00011839

From: Craig Balter
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Craig Balter
220 Chapman
Placentia, Ca 92870
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Craig Balter

MTC-00011840

From: Charles Fisher
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charles Fisher
7307 N. 13th. St.
Tampa, Fl 33604
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charles Fisher

MTC-00011841

From: Edward Poole
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Edward Poole
29 River Bend Park
Lancaster, Pa 17602
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Edward H Poole

MTC-00011842

From: Rex Maxey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Rex Maxey
3171 Highway 946
Ezel, KY 41425
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Rex Maxey

MTC-00011843

From: User166160@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:03pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

The settlement with Microsoft is fair & in the best interests of the country. All of the remaining state sponsored law suits should be dropped. It is bad for Microsoft & the USA for them to continue.

R. Di Benedetto

MTC-00011844

From: Dale Best
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dale Best
4156 Ridgeway Drive
Indianapolis, IN 46221-3442
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dale Best

MTC-00011845

From: Joe Orlick
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Joe Orlick
3406A S. Brust Ave
Milwaukee, WI 53207
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Joe Orlick

MTC-00011846

From: Keith Fouts
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Keith Fouts
108 N Parkview
Coffeyville, KS 67337-1237
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Keith A. Fouts

MTC-00011848

From: N broidy
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

N Broidy
1621 114th
Bellevue, WA 98004
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Neal A. Broidy

MTC-00011849

From: Geof Foster
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I agree with the proposed settlement, which in my opinion is indeed in the public interest. Furthermore, I commend Microsoft for all that it has done in providing world leadership for this technology and for essentially creating a world wide standard (or highway on which every one can drive) on which we are all able to communicate so effectively. This is very much different than when microprocessors were commercialized where one companies system could not communicate with other companies systems causing enormous cost and inefficiencies and the loss of US technological leadership.

Microsoft's world leadership has financially benefited the United States and all of its citizens to a far greater degree than the so called costs outlined by its competitors in the lawsuit.

Lets stop litigating and recommence innovation and advance the US leadership and dominance of technologies.

Sincerely,
Geoffrey M. Foster.

MTC-00011850

From: Eugene Denbow
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Eugene Denbow
8739 Amador Ave
Yucca Valley, Ca 92283
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Eugene & Dorothy Denbow

MTC-00011851

From: Cameron Davis
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Cameron Davis
123 South Garfield
Junction City, KS 66441
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Cameron E. Davis

MTC-00011852

From: David Mackey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Mackey
1205 North 57th Place
Fort Smith, AR 72904
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David Mackey

MTC-00011853

From: Carol Benton
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Carol Benton
619 S. Sunshine Ave.
El Cajon, CA 92020-5126
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Carol Benton

MTC-00011854

From: Athena Reizakis
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Athena Reizakis
1920 L St NW, Suite 200
Washington, DC 20036
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Athena Reizakis

MTC-00011855

From: Donald Shaw
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Donald Shaw
10816 LaQuinta Dr.
New Port Richey, FL 34654
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,—Don
Donald W. Shaw

MTC-00011856

From: Keith Farthing
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Keith Farthing
1343 Wyoming St
Dayton, OH 45410
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Keith E Farthing

MTC-00011857

From: Marsha McIntosh
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Marsha McIntosh
7330 Bock Ave
Stanton, CA 90680-2117
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Marsha McIntosh

MTC-00011858

From: William Wright
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
William Wright
2509 Thomas Lane
Harlingen, TX 78550
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
William Wright

MTC-00011859

From: Fredda Shutes
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Fredda Shutes
2117 Island Lake Cr.

Panama City, FL 32405
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Fredda B. Shutes

MTC-00011860

From: Demetris Papageorgiou
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Demetris Papageorgiou
4739 Yuma Street, NW
Washington, DC 20016
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Demetris Papageorgiou

MTC-00011861

From: karen richards
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Karen Richards
9036 Tarrington Ln
Franklin, TN 37029
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Karen Richards

MTC-00011862

From: Marla Lewis Oliver
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Marla Lewis Oliver
561 Tuscany Valley Court, Unit 3
Crestview Hills, KY 41017
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Marla Lewis Oliver

MTC-00011863

From: David Fedders
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Fedders
5106 carpenter drive crestwood, ky 40014
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

David G. Fedders

MTC-00011864

From: Alissa Jesle
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Alissa Jesle
1911 Camino De La Costa, #402
Redondo Beach, CA 90277
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Alissa Jesle

MTC-00011865

From: Theodore E. Caldwell
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Theodore E. Caldwell
1129 Blackburn Ln
Virginia Beach, VA 23454-1941
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Theodore E. Caldwell

MTC-00011866

From: Patrick Heslin
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Patrick Heslin
2009 Meadow lark Rd
Spring Hill, FL 34608
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Patrick J. Heslin

MTC-00011867

From: Robert Montgomery
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 3:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert Montgomery
PO Box 1561
Charlottesville, VA 22902-1561
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert D. Montgomery II

MTC-00011868

From: Carole Sigtermans
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Carole Sigtermans
105 Schrempf Lane Ext.
Pine Bush, NY 12566
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Carole Sigtermans

MTC-00011869

From: Mario Villanueva
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:23pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Mario Villanueva
1529 Lassen Way
Frazier Park, Ca 93222-5323
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mario M. Villanueva

MTC-00011870

From: Rebecca Groves
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Rebecca Groves
7506 STONE PINE LANE
HOUSTON, TX 77041-1527
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Groves

MTC-00011871

From: Gail Waechter
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gail Waechter
5768 US Hwy 77A North
Yoakum, TX 77995-2431
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tim & Gail Waechter

MTC-00011872

From: George Humberson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
George Humberson
12722 Newbrook
Houston, TX 77072-3815
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
G. Hollis Humberson

MTC-00011873

From: Sheron Willingham
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement—
Sheron Willingham
P. O. Box 3430
Pahrump, NV 89041-3430
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered too much of our taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sheron M. Willingham

MTC-00011874

From: Tina Miltner

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Tina Miltner
700 Airport Blvd. #300
Burlingame, CA 94010-1937
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tina Miltner

MTC-00011875

From: BobGFitz@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:07pm
Subject: (no subject)

Dear sirs. I feel it is time for the DOJ to settle the Microsoft case. Bob Fitzsimmons

MTC-00011876

From: buck@nfdc.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The monopoly laws state that harm to the consumer must be proven. With all that I have read and drawing from my personal experience (6 years as a CTO), this was NOT proven. The only ones complaining about Microsoft are those that Microsoft leapfrogged (not always technologically, but always in mind/market share).

If Microsoft really did use bully-boy tactics in the licensing practices, I believe they deserve to be slapped down big time. This in no way implies that the federal government should be overseeing Microsoft or any other area as to product development, R&D, etc.

Apply appropriate measures for anything illegal Microsoft may have done, but do not punish the rest of the computing world in the same stroke.

MTC-00011877

From: Stan Casteel
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Stan Casteel
4502 State Road E
Auxvasse, MO 65231
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

I would add that many of us don't appreciate the fact that because most of our 403b accounts contain Microsoft, we are being robbed of our retirement by the trial lawyers. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Stan W. Casteel, DVM, PhD

MTC-00011878

From: Marco DiBiase
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:13pm
Subject: comments

Bill Gattres mistake was in not making contributions to the Democrats and Clinton. Therefore, they unleashed the Justice Dept on them. This provides work for the lawyers. The customers get screwed because the cost of litigation has to be reflected in the price of the products. This was a politically motivated suit. Throw it out and move on! Don't kill the goose that lays the golden egg!
mdibiase@parrett.net

MTC-00011879

From: Bryce Buchanan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To: Justice Department
Re: Microsoft Settlement

We are writing to let you know that we are strongly in favor of Microsoft's position on the proposed antitrust settlement. It is in the best interest of the country and the economy to resolve this matter now.

The action of some of the state Attorneys General have resembled extortion much more than they resemble a reasonable approach to the issue.

The more the government throttles the rapidly changing high-tech industries the worse it will be for everyone.

Sincerely,
Dr. Bryce Buchanan
Diana Buchanan
18962 Barton Road
Lake Oswego, Oregon 97034

MTC-00011880

From: STAUBOFFLO@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:15pm
Subject: Settlement of suit

It is about time this suit was settled. I sincerely hope Microsoft will continue to provide the best as it always has in the past.

Attorney General Blumenthal must cast away his bitterness and join in supporting the settlement that has been proposed.

Sincerely,
Bob Stauffer

MTC-00011881

From: John.Davis@Home.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I hope that common sense and reason are used here. The settlement should be accepted and let the free market do its job. This trial has been counter productive against the interest of anyone with a computer.

Sincerely,
John Davis
CC:John.Davis@Home.com@inetgw

MTC-00011882

From: stephen.macdonald@gte.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft has contributed significantly to the increase in productivity enjoyed the world over. That said the only way Microsoft can continue to grow is through planned operating system obsolescence and the cannibalization of niche software applications.

Microsoft is doing both. It's time to extract the operating system/business from Microsoft and force it to stand on its own. Publish the source code of all Windows X O/S's. Therefore providing open competition and equal access to the latest planned feature enhancements of Windows X O/S.

Forcing Microsoft to donate $1B worth of WinTel product only further cements Microsofts' grip on the US economy and the minds of our children. If you plan to penalize Microsoft financially—get cash from Microsoft with no strings attached. Invest the money in business development within the affected states.

However, if the states are not willing to force the separation of Microsofts' O/S and application business. It's obvious that they are just in it for a quick revenue hit. Just like the smoking settlement. What ever the outcome, the buyer of Microsoft products is sure to eat the cost of litigation and settlement.

CC:stephen.macdonald@gte.net@inetgw

MTC-00011883

From: Ronald Soussa
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:17pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I believe that the terms of the proposed Microsoft settlement are in the public's interest and should be approved. Get on with the settlement and end the litigation.

Thank you.
Ronald S. Soussa, SIOR
Delaware Hudson Realty Group, Inc.
239 New Road, Building A
Parsippany, NJ 07054-4294
Phone (973) 575-6080, Fax (973) 575-4590
rsoussa@delawarehudson.com www.delawarehudson.com

MTC-00011884

From: Elaine Rearden
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Case

This case should be settled as quickly as possible. . . it's a diversion to the day by day work and innovation of Microsoft and is adverse to the well-being of customers who use computers and computer products. I urge you to get it behind you and get on with the bright future we have with regard to computer technology.

Elaine Rearden

MTC-00011885

From: MWeber7766@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:18pm
Subject: (no subject)

Please end the litigation against Microsoft. It's been long enough and I believe that justice has prevailed. Thank you.

MWeber

MTC-00011886

From: rfdpe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have no complaints against Microsoft and I feel their proposed settlement was more than fair and should be accepted.

Richard F Donovan
Columbia SC

MTC-00011887

From: chuckbeatie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please, leave Microsoft alone, and let them get back to business! Tell those states and the companies that are crying, that if Microsoft's competition want to catch-up and get ahead that they need to spend their time writing better code, not crying about how Microsoft is cornering the market.

This is a free society, and Microsoft's competition can get in there and compete, quit the crying!

Chuck

MTC-00011888

From: smithersx3@yahoo.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:24pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am extremely interested in having the anti-trust case against Microsoft resolved immediately. It appears to me that the main impetus for this whole matter is based on politics rather than market dynamics.

Specifically, the states that seem to be resisting settlement are ones who host some of Microsoft's main competitors. While I believe that Microsoft has indeed engaged in anti-competitive acts, namely in the area of restrictive licensing agreements, I fail to see how Microsoft is a monopoly. The public has always had other options regarding personal computer operating systems in the form of SCO Xenix, SCO Unix, MacOS, Geos, and Linux. All of these are viable operating systems. Microsoft should be rewarded for providing the product that the vast majority of users want to use, not punished for it. No one is forced to use Microsoft products. The market has spoken and it has chosen Microsoft Windows. It seems that the bulk of the anti-trust case is sour grapes of Microsoft's competitors.

CC:smithersx3@yahoo.com@inetgw

MTC-00011889

From: Charles Chambers Sr
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

when will the government get out of the way and let tech companies innovate? I am for the settlement as it now exists. The governments actions to date in perusing this case against Microsoft has just added to the collapse in the economy. It will be technology that will bring us out of the poor economy if the government will just settle this case.

Charles R. Chambers, Sr.

MTC-00011890

From: BOBDIXIEPEARCE@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:25pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Lawyers:

Please accept the present offer to settle this and lets get the markets going in a positive direction. We feel that without an immediate settlement the markets will go further down and the recession will last longer.

Sincerely Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Pearce 5404 Via Maria,
Yorba Linda, Ca
92886 e-mail: bobbixiepearce@aol.com

MTC-00011891

From: DSchen2835@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:26pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

WE URGE THE US DOJ TO RESOLVE THIS CASE AGAINST MICROSOFT AND GET ON WITH THE MORE SERIOUS MATTERS SUCH AS ENRON. AT NO TIME AND IN NO WAY HAS MICROSOFT CREATED PROBLEMS FOR THE COMPUTER INDUSTRY. WITHOUT MICROSOFT, WHERE WOULD THE INDUSTRY BE? INSTEAD OF PENALIZING A FORWARD THINKING, CREATIVE COMPANY LIKE MICROSOFT, ENCOURAGE THEIR COMPETENCE! AS

USERS, WE FEEL THEIR PRODUCTS TO BE SUPERIOR IN EVERY WAY—THIS KIND OF BUSINESS SHOULD BE REWARDED, NOT HARASSED. SO, WE REQUEST THAT THIS MATTER BE RESOLVED QUICKLY AND FINALLY AND LET MICROSOFT DO WHAT IS DOES BEST AND LET THE DOJ DO WHAT IT DOES BEST AND THAT IS TO GO AFTER REALLY ABUSIVE COMPANIES LIKE ENRON. BEVERLY AND DALE SCHENDEL

MTC-00011892

From: Ruth Silveira
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:24pm
Subject: Back Off

Finally they think they have justly done what they set out to do. God knows why this was an issue anyway!

Aren't we living in a free country where inventors of all shapes, sizes, inventions et. make millions every year? We even have foreign inventors putting their ideas on our consumers.

It seems to me that we could have spent all this time looking for aliens and the money would have been better spent.

re: The WTC bombing.

Get real go after the bad guys not an American who happened to enter the market at the right time!

BACK OFF LEAVE MICROSOFT AND BILL GATES ALONE!!!

If it weren't for Microsoft I never would have been able to learn my computer by myself and send this e-mail!

Thanks,
Ruth Silveira

MTC-00011893

From: GSta227586@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:28pm
Subject: (no subject)

Settle the matter and stop further waste of money. . . .
GS

MTC-00011894

From: Bud Howe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:27pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is my firm opinion that the US Gov't should accept Judge T. P. Jackson's ruling in this case in regard to the education donations. Further suit against Microsoft is counter productive to the best interests of the people of the USA & the software using world at large. Rejection of this proposed settlement is not in my opinion in the best interest of the software world.

Thank you for reconsideration of this matter,
Allen C. Howe II

MTC-00011895

From: Elwin, Michael J
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

To Whom It May Concern,

The initial settlement that Microsoft made for the schools is very fair. Alot of those schools have Black students attending and they have no computers or what they have are very old. As a Black man from the West Indies living in the United States since 1968 I am fully aware of what is going on. The administrators in those schools rejecting the offer just want the money to spend on other things that will NOT help the students. Also the Apple Computer Company which has a strong monopoly in the public schools is part of the rejection process. For once can we stop playing games and do what is BEST for the students/children. Microsoft is not ripping off the consumer. I know because I am a consumer of their products. Stop playing around and let Microsoft help turn the economy around. Thanks for listening.

Best regards,
Michael J Elwin
Import/Export Compliance
Worldwide Site Operations
Phone:425-957-5729 Fax 425-865-4305
Pager:206-797-0694
M/S 7M-TJ "Apres Bon Dieu C'est La Terre" Commonwealth of Dominica.

MTC-00011896

From: Martin Schentes
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:33pm
Subject: Settlement

I would like to see this case settled as quickly as possible. It is taking up too much of the Justice Department's resources for what appears to be a dubious outcome that will benefit no one. The Justice Department could then have time for the real criminals at Enron.

Martin Schentes
1672 Applefield St
Thousand Oaks, CA 91320

MTC-00011897

From: Judi Gibbons
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Lawsuit
STOP THE LAWSUIT, SETTLE THE ACTION AS PER THE LAST COURT AND GET ON WITH LIFE.

MTC-00011898

From: Gerald W. Cusack
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement—DOJ
Dear Sir:

It is time for these nine state Attorney Generals to agree with the DOJ. Further confusion, and litigation only adds to an unsettled business climate and to our current recession. The fact that the federal government and the other states thought it fair should be enough. Stop the politics and get the issue resolved. People need jobs.

Mary and Gerald Cusack

MTC-00011899

From: ALPHONSLARUE@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:34pm
Subject: (no subject)

It is time to get on with normal activities in the new computer world. Things have changed and we can no longer judge today's business with the conditions of the past.

The proposed settlement between the plaintiff and microsoft is a fair one and the government should embrace it and move out of the way.

This segment of the business world is fast and changing.

Move On

MTC-00011900

From: kay in arizona
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov.?@inetgw
Date: 1/15/02 5:35pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

We do not understand why the government hasn't put a stop to this suit. There has been thousands of dollars spent on litigation by both parties.

The government is spending our tax money to sue one of the most successful companies in our nation, who has contributed so much to the economy here. The suit is based on other technology companies who are unhappy with the success of Microsoft.

We are involved in a manufacturing business and we do not divulge how our product is manufactured, allowing other companies to make the same thing.

Please allow Microsoft to be the inovative company they have always been.

Thank you.

Howard & Kay Worden

MTC-00011901

From: Carolyn Emery
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe it is in the best interest of United States citizens to accept the Microsoft Settlement as outlined by the Department of Justice.

Carolyn Jill Emery
1124 Garden Circle
Fircrest, WA 98466

MTC-00011902

From: Gary Rosen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi,

For your information I just received the following email from ACT. I am sure that Microsoft is funding ACT. As a small software company who has worked closely with Microsoft and as a consumer in my opinion Microsoft has been guilty of any number of illegal activities related to price fixing and illegal trade practices.

Gary Rosen

It's time to get back to work: Your comments can encourage approval of the proposed settlement in the Microsoft case.

Your opinion on the proposed settlement between Microsoft, the federal government, and nine states is due by January 28, 2002.

Click here to find out more!

<<http://www.actonline.org/action/settlement.asp>>
<http://www.actonline.org/action/settlement.asp>

Under the Tunney Act, a law that encourages public comment on a proposed settlement, the trial judge reviews comments to help determine whether this settlement is in the public interest. All comments submitted will become part of the public record.

Helpful information for developing your comments:

<<http://www.actonline.org/press-room/releases/110501.asp>> ACT's analysis of the proposed settlement
<<http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/ms-settle.htm#submit>> Information from the U.S. Department of Justice
<<http://www.actonline.org/press-room/releases/Senate%20testimony.pdf>> ACT's testimony to U.S. Senate

Three ways to submit your comments to Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly:

1. Send a fax to: 1-202-307-1454 or 1-202-616-9937
2. Mail a letter. Please note, however, that the Justice Department strongly encourages that comments be submitted via e-mail or fax, given recent mail delivery interruptions in Washington. Letter mail should be addressed to:

Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division, U.S. Department of Justice

601 D. Street NW, Suite 1200
Washington, DC 20530-0001

3. Send an email. If you send the email on your own, please address to <mailto:Microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov> and use "Microsoft Settlement" as your subject line. Or, see

<<http://www.actonline.org/action/settlement.asp>>
<http://www.actonline.org/action/settlement.asp> for on-line form to send your email.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Zuck
President ACT

MTC-00011903

From: Richard Lowenthal
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Honorable Judge in Microsoft Monopoly Suit:

Sir: I am just sharing the thoughts of a very senior citizen.

Respectfully,
Richard Lowenthal

Date: Mon, 14 Jan 2002 14:15:50-0500

From: Richard Blumenthal
<attorney.general@po.state.ct.us> X-
Accept-Language: en

To: Richard Lowenthal <rlowe@coslink.net>

Subject: Re: Microsoft, the monopolist

Richard Lowenthal wrote:
Honorable Gentlemen,

I wish to indicate my support for your position in the case of Microsoft, the Monopolist. I truly feel, as a very senior citizen, that I have been taken advantage of, many times because of Microsoft's position. I have been forced to buy version upgrades, at exorbitant prices, when the "upgrade" is little more than a "beta" version given out to the public for money, and it is the public's job to find the glitches and notify Microsoft so they can make changes and sell another upgrade. In reality, they should have been doing the research and after getting a good product, then making it available to the public.

How can any of the other Attorneys General resolve this case when Microsoft is a convicted monopolist? It is my hope that you will see this case through the courts until justice is done and a suitable resolution is found in the courts. I want all to be equal. I just do not want Microsoft to be MORE EQUAL THAN ANYONE ELSE. KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK.

CORDIALLY,
Richard Lowenthal
Frankfort, MI.

Dear Mr. Lowenthal:

Thank you for your recent thoughtful correspondence concerning the Microsoft antitrust case. As you know, on November 6, 2001, the United States Department of Justice and Microsoft filed a proposed settlement. I did not join that settlement because I do not believe it would accomplish the goals we set when we filed the case. Nor would it accomplish the remedial goals set by the U.S. Court of Appeals: (1) to prohibit the illegal conduct and similar conduct in the future, (2) to spark competition in this industry; and (3) to deprive Microsoft of its illegal gains.

You may also express your opinion to the judge of the federal trial court considering this settlement by filing written comments with the United States Department of Justice by January 28, 2002, as follows:

Mail: Renata B. Hesse
Antitrust Division
U.S. Department of Justice
601 D Street NW
Suite 1200

Washington, DC 20530-0001

Given recent mail delivery interruptions in Washington, DC, and current uncertainties involving the resumption of timely mail service, the Department of Justice strongly encourages that comments be submitted via e-mail or fax.]

E-mail: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov

In the Subject line of the e-mail, type "Microsoft Settlement."

Fax: 1-202-307-1454 or 1-202-616-9937

Please keep me informed of your opinions on the case.

Thank you again for contacting me.

Sincerely,
Richard Blumenthal
Attorney General

MTC-00011904

From: Mauijpn@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:41pm

Subject: Microsoft case should be settled

Dept. of Justice. In my opinion the Microsoft case should be settled asap. Competitors seem to be dragging it out to their advantage. The longer it goes the more it hurts the economy. Please settle!

Jim Nieu Kirk.

<mauijpn@aol.com>

MTC-00011905

From: JLMDOUG@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:43pm

Subject: microsoft settlement

it is blatantly obvious that this suit should end now. the nine attorney's general, who are holding out, are only doing this to force an extreme payoff. one, that i feel they have absolutley no right to expect. ending this travesty now would help the markets to go forward.

thank you,
jayne mcgarey chattanooga, tn.

MTC-00011906

From: cmendenhall

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:43pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a longtime user of Microsoft products beginning with the early dos program on the Radio Shack TRSDOS machines available before the floppy was perfected, I feel strongly that the government should settle the matter with and disallow the continuing harassment of rogue states. It is obvious that these states want to continue to keep the computer business environment in a state of upset. Lets settle the thing and get on with things.

C Mendenhall

MTC-00011907

From: LWTeerling@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:42pm

Subject: Put an end to the litigating

Why are we trying to ruin a company just because they happen to excel? I think the all the states should join in the settlement and lets move forward. Hasn't Microsoft been penalized enough? Do we want to crush them entirely? Where would our economy be without the vision of Microsoft?

Let's settle and move on.

Lois Teerling
Concerned consumer

MTC-00011908

From: sandra willis

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:45pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I can not believe our government is still trying to 'punish' Bill Gates and his company. The man has given more to charity than all the politicians I've ever heard of, combined. He wants to Give to so many schools now, I'm sorry, I just have no patience with the ignorance of our government.

MTC-00011909

From: Sandra Bailey

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:46pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

It is time this Microsoft Antitrust suit is settled. As part of the general public I feel that it has taken up enough time and we should get on with other items that need work done on them. Believe me there is enough to keep your Department busy.

As a customer I did not believe that the antitrust suit should have ever happened. Microsoft provided it customers with a great product at fair value. It is my understanding that the general public did not believe in this antitrust suit and that it was done solely to benefit some Millionaires who could not keep up with Microsoft.

Please add my opinion that it is time to get this settled and move on.

Sincerely,
Sandra Kaye Bailey

MTC-00011910

From: PetkoPapcha@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:47pm
 Subject: (no subject)

As a shareholder of Microsoft and an avid user of Microsoft products I would like to see that the case be settled as quickly as possible. For the sake of the faltering economy I can see no reason to prolong litigation, stifle essential technological progress and handcuff an industry which the world relies upon. A reasonable solution to the perceived problems that Microsoft had caused in the past has already been reached. . . let's get on with it.

Enough is enough!!
 Alice Petko

MTC-00011911

From: Steve Bryant
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:48pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

The case should be settled now!
 The Bryant Design Group & Steve Bryant
 Const.
 P. O. Box 502
 Denison, Texas 75021
 <<http://house-plans-and-more.com>>

MTC-00011912

From: Leh1314@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:49pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:
 The proposed settlement of the DOJ case against Microsoft should be accepted by all parties. The benefits accrued by the public as a result of Microsoft software integration far exceeds any problems that may have resulted from Microsoft actions. The actions taken against Microsoft appear to be largely based on the fact that other companies could not compete effectively with products that were provided by Microsoft. Actions taken against Microsoft to date appear to be far more concerned with the perceived harm of a few large companies than on any harm caused to the public. In fact, the public has significantly benefited from the actions of Microsoft through the availability of integrated software application programs at a reasonable cost.

Please accept the Microsoft/DOJ proposed settlement without further delay.

Leo Hansen

MTC-00011913

From: H Tavassolie
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:51pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement.

I would like the Department of justice settle the current agreement ,and not to drug on this conflict for the sake of a few unhappy states,since we as a majority of united state citizens believe that continuation of this conflict is against the public interest.

Sincerely,

MTC-00011914

From: Ron Merchant
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:51pm

Subject: Settle the Case

It is imperative that the case against Microsoft be settled within the framework of the DOJ guidelines. It is apparent that the nine states are not interested in the economy, shareholders, or the utilization of governmental resources, paid for by taxpayers, that would be far better utilized in other venues.

Settle this now.
 Ron Merchant

MTC-00011915

From: Ronald S. Frantz
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:52pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Gentlemen;

As a consumer of Microsoft products, I believe that all actions against the company should be settled as expeditiously as possible.

I have not been harmed by the company in any way.

Sincerely,
 Ronald S. Frantz
 872 Porterville Road
 East Aurora, New York 14052

MTC-00011916

From: Rick Lauder
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:54pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let Microsoft do it's business! It is helping to shape the world.

MTC-00011917

From: Michael@MichaelMoore.net@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:56pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This case is a ridiculous. Microsoft's so called monopoly is based on technical merits not market manipulation. Without Microsoft's vision and highly integrated products the whole computer revolution would not have happened.

Give them a break—too many of us owe our livelihoods to them.

CC:Michael@MichaelMoore.net@inetgw

MTC-00011918

From: AMEINTJES@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement

It is time to bring all litigation against Microsoft to an end without any further legal proceedings. The courts have ruled in the case against Microsoft and that ruling should stand. Our tax dollars, the time of the courts and the U. S. economy can all be best served by putting this matter behind us. As a user of Microsoft's software I have never felt that I was being forced to deal with a monopolist, overcharged for the products I bought or deprived of the opportunity to purchase something better because Microsoft had stifled innovation by others.

Sincerely
 John A. Meintjes.

MTC-00011919

From: john hickman
 To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 5:58pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

I own no Microsoft stock. I get upset with Microsoft at times just as many others do, but this settlement should not be overturned.

First, I believe the intrusions of politically driven solutions into settlements other than those of typical "case law" suits, ie. land problems, immigration, the right of political entities the right to and necessity of taxation as examples will diminish clarity within the courts. Second, I feel an overturn will continue to punish the concept of commercial knowledge ownership and that has great peril for innovation and advancement into the technical future of our nation.

Thank you
 John Hickman
 2266 E. Montrose Canyon Drive
 Tucson, Az. 85737

MTC-00011920

From: Cynthia Olson
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Speaking as a stockholder of Microsoft and middleclass American worker— Teacher— I have been dumbfounded about the course of this procedure— Please settle this case in favor of Microsoft— let innovation ,of all kinds, have the freedom it deserves to create advances in technology. Thank you,

Cynthia Olson

MTC-00011921

From: benright@alventive.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:58pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

For me personally as a Internet Software product manager, it would be better that Microsoft WAS a monopoly. That way, I do not have to insure that my products run in Netscape on Unix Clients and I do not have to worry about J2EE zelots insisting that I rewrite my products to suit their IT knowledge base. The weaker you make Microsoft, the harder my job is. :)

CC:benright@alventive.com@inetgw

MTC-00011922

From: Lynn Walton
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:59pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotelly,
 I was very disappointed when I first heard the results of the settlement that the DOJ agreed to with regard to the Microsoft Antitrust case, because I believe that it does not really prevent Microsoft from continuing in the same unethical business practices that they have been found to have engaged in for years. I was likewise very pleased that at least nine of the states did not agree and continued to push for a settlement that, in my opinion, would more appropriately fit the charges for which Microsoft was found guilty.

I am a Software Developer in the Internet industry. At first, I was not in favor of the Anti-trust suit at all, feeling that Microsoft (or any successful company) shouldn't be punished for being successful. But even when I felt that way, I still believed that they engaged in unethical business practices regarding dealing with OEM's, etc. And for that I believed they should be tried and if found guilty punished in enough of a way that it would stop them from doing it in the future.

However, as I've studied both sides of the issues I have concluded that it isn't in the best interest of the people of the United States for Microsoft to continue to be allowed to maintain it's monopoly hold. Microsoft's patterns of behavior ultimately harm the consumer because they stifle competition from those who might otherwise make more reliable, quality products. Microsoft hasn't ceased in these harmful behaviors even when under the threat of the Anti-trust lawsuit. I do not believe they will change these patterns without a much stricter settlement that FORCES them to do so.

I hope you will find that the Proposed Final Judgement is NOT in the best interest of the people and will give more consideration to the settlement proposed by the remaining nine states. In fact, in many ways I think that Microsoft gets off so easy in the Proposed Final Judgement that they make the DOJ look like a JOKE because Microsoft's legal team out smarted them. Microsoft barely get's a slap on the wrist, they get to continue to use the same unfair business practices they always have, and they even gain some protection for their bad practices.

Thank you for your consideration,
Lynn Walton
Director of Internet Services Franklin University

(These views do not necessarily represent those of my employer.)

MTC-00011923

From:

murat.divringi@cacheflow.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement Honorable Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly,

I am an IT Professional (Vice President of Product Development) at CacheFlow—an Internet infrastructure company not affiliated with Microsoft.

After reviewing the documents published by DOJ on the matter of the "Microsoft Settlement" as well as arguments pro and con from supporters/opponents, it is my belief that this settlement reaches a good balance of keeping Microsoft "in line" regarding their business practices without imposing undue restraint to hinder innovation from Microsoft or any other technology company. I also find the punitive measures sufficient and simple.

I hope you will find the settlement satisfactory and not give in to critics whose sole purpose is to keep the case unsettled and in some cases, extort financial or competitive gain from delaying the settlement.

Sincerely,
Murat Divringi
Vice President of Product Development
CacheFlow Inc.
CC: murat.divringi@cacheflow.com@inetgw

MTC-00011924

From: Joy Ulskey

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 5:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As a concerned citizen I want to see the Microsoft case settled. Despite the aggressive lobbying efforts of a few of Microsoft's competitors, the federal government and nine states finally reached a comprehensive agreement with Microsoft to address the reduced liability found in the Court of Appeals ruling. This settlement I'm sure was tough, but seems reasonable and fair to all parties involved.

Consumers overwhelmingly agree that settlement is good for them, the industry and the American economy. The last thing the American economy needs is more litigation that benefits only a few wealthy competitors and lawyers and stifles innovation. Don't let these special interests defeat the public interest. Settle now so we, The United States, can move on. Haven't we endured enough setbacks with Sept 11th?

CC: joyul@email.msn.com@inetgw

MTC-00011925

From: Dennis Battrick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern:

I really think that it's time for you folks to settle this issue. We've forgotten what the issue was anyway so now you all look like even bigger money wasting fools. As a consumer, I was never convinced that this was ever anything more than a money grab by certain influential individuals who were unable to design and produce software that anyone wanted. Have you noticed that nothing really new has been produced lately? Let the market take care of itself and quit trying to protect your special interests under the guise of "protecting the public from the big bad corporation". Enough is enough!

Sincerely,
Dennis T. Battrick

MTC-00011926

From: Alex Ray
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Alex Ray
31830 Bittorf Lane
Cordova, MD 21625
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

First the Clinton Justice Department and now President Bush's legal beagles are trying to damage the one company that is directly responsible for this nation's economic boom in the 90's and our world leadership in technology.

Fine them if they broke the law, but get on with it. No company should endure the hoops that Justice Department forced on Microsoft.

I thought this Administration supported entrepreneurship, no matter how tough one of the competitors might be.

Sincerely,

Alex Ray

MTC-00011927

From: Cheryl Shirk
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Cheryl Shirk
2420 Rollins Ave.
Panama City, FL 32405
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Cheryl L. Shirk

MTC-00011928

From: Erika Gifford
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 4:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Erika Gifford
14431 Greencastle Dr #10
Chesterfield, MO 63017
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Erika T. Gifford

MTC-00011929

From: george m kousaleos
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:03pm
Subject: Microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov. January 15, 2002

Dear Sir,

I have very little to gain by a settlement, but I Had 800 shares of microsoft as the investment climbed in the past all of a sudden a fellow graduate SunMicrosystems convinced everybody he was the injured party. For 4 months I had stock in SunMicrosystems as recommended by JBOH. I held it and never made a trade. After transfer to First Union I still hadn't been able to trade for a profet it was only after Microsoft got in trouble, and long after I sold my shares in SunMicrosystems did SunMicrosysems stock move.

After changing my account to Fidelity Instead of buying Intel I bought Microsoft and for two years Microsoft only did good for those of us investors.

The courts made an unfavorable ruling and the entire USA and world economy has been suffering. People like me that have a stock that's climbing invest in other stocks by margin spending.

I can tell you from experience that when Microsoft dropped I could no longer acquire stocks that I was investing in because my portfolio didn't have any winners left.

I don't even have 50 shares of Microsoft.

I have 300 Ford

“““Juniper

I “300 Xerox

I hope Microsoft can reclaim their leadership. I wish I could be rich or at least get some shares on margin.

Last year I had 540,000 shares of a certain stock which reverse split 1:50 and then 1:40 leaving me with 450 shares

I sold 400 shares for $4000. which I also lost .

People Like Bill Gates I liked spending the money he was making me. I would like to do it over and be a soft spoken and generous as he is generous. I would like to have confidence that can make a man so soft spoken.

I hope this letter affirms that I want the market to go up, not down, and Bill Gates and company are past and have the potential to be future leaders. All businesses have like sports have outstanding contributors. Microsoft is one company even my parents liked and encouraged my owning stocks.

With Respest,
George M. Kousaleos
P.S. I do not own any Microsoft today but I would risk some money if the economy picks me up.

MTC-00011930

From: Larry Gribble
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Larry Gribble
11408 W 112thTerr
Overland Park., KS 66210
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Larry Gribble

MTC-00011931

From: Timothy Aden
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Timothy Aden
21289 Iverson Avenue North
Forest Lake, MN 55025-7902
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tim Aden

MTC-00011932

From: Earl H. Conrad
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Earl H. Conrad
720 West Main Street
Waynesboro, Pa 17268
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Earl H. Conrad

MTC-00011933

From: Dianna Gibson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dianna Gibson
7000 E. 47th Avenue Drive, Suite 100
Denver, Co 80216
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dianna S. Gibson

MTC-00011934

From: Myron Schreiner
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Myron Schreiner
215 Belmont Dr
Reeds Spring, MO 65737
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Myron M Schreiner

MTC-00011935

From: Barbara Wiot
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Barbara Wiot
1001 Main Street
Cincinnati, OH 45202
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Barbara Wiot

MTC-00011936

From: Sharon Robie
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sharon Robie
1986 Pickering Trail
Lancaster, PA 17601
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sharon Robie

MTC-00011937

From: Kris Pitcairn
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kris Pitcairn
po box 233
Bryn Athyn, PA 19009-0233
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kris H. Pitcairn

MTC-00011938

From: CHRISTINE WILLHAUCK
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
CHRISTINE WILLHAUCK
PO. BOX 1100 PMB 277

GASTONIA, NC 28053-1100

January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

CHRISTINE L. WILLHAUCK

MTC-00011939

From: Carol Bourgeois

To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/15/02 5:06pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Carol Bourgeois

4013 Manchaca Road #6

Austin, TX 78704

January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial spent taxpayers' dollars wisely while creating cutting edge case law to govern the high tech industry. To place the burden of such a litigation onto smaller companies would have been a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial to be over, however, patience is a virtue, often forgotten in litigation.

Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, guided by new and applicable interpretations of our precedential law, rather than flailing about in the courtroom, reinventing the wheel. And the consumers who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief, with some reassurance that the expensive hunk of plastic on their desks will continue to function, however imperfectly.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. Of course, most of those Americans had absolutely no idea how much the Microsoft litigation benefitted them in terms of establishing the ground rules under which E-Commerce is conducted.

Once the case is finally over, high tech companies can get into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation with the 3000 pound gorilla that is Microsoft.

True competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. Microsoft can serve by example.

Should our current government consider getting out of the business of stifling product litigation and tying the hands of consumers in pursuing their options- (ahem, "tort reform") American consumers will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street.

With the benefits of the Microsoft litigation; a usable body of precedential law, the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to return to creating new and competitive products and technologies like they did in the Clinton administration, rather than hoping they can buy access and favors. (Like Enron?)

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Carol Bourgeois

MTC-00011940

From: Stu

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 6:06pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle this litigation immediately.

Nine states wishing to continue litigation are not enough out of 50 states, to justify to continued the expense of litigation.

Sincerely,

Stuart B. Stephens, Jr.

Stu Stephens, Assoc. Broker, CRS, ABR,

GRI

RE/MAX Island Properties

PO Box 1449 or 199 Main St., Eastsound

WA 98245

800 551-1677, 360 376-2599; fax: 360 376-

6211

<www.orcas-stephens.com>

<www.stu-patsy-stephens.com>

<www.orcasislandonline.com>

mailto:stu@orcasislandonline.com

For a tour of Orcas, click

<www.visualtour.com/show.asp?T=12655>

MTC-00011941

From: William D Fowble

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 6:05pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

January 15, 2002

We have a free enterprise system in this Country. Perhaps it would be a monopoly for Microsoft to give it's products out in this settlement, BUT perhaps the 1 billion would allow disadvantaged schools to make a "choice", as to whose products they would prefer to use and renovating their license practices would be a plus. Not being a computer geek, I like using software from other companies, as well as the Microsoft products. It's pertinent for the Court to come up with a reasonable solution to this problem and "Let's move on"!!! I think some people/

States are playing "hardball" on this issue and "milking the cow" for all it's worth!! Let's not have happen in this settlement, like in the tobacco settlement, that the money/products from Microsoft gets short changed for the purpose for which it is intended.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Fowble

Lynnwood, WA.

MTC-00011942

From: Patterons

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:16pm

Subject: Ref:Microsoft Suit

I personally feel that the Government should drop the whole thing as soon as possible, before the DOJ looks anymore foolish. I think that the "Software" companies that complained about Microsoft's supposed unfair practices used you folks at DOJ on a "witchhunt" against Microsoft because these other "Software" Company's have inferior products and can't compete unless it cries to the DOJ that Microsoft isn't playing fair!!!!!! And then tangle everybody up in a asinine lawsuit. The "States" of course have to get on the band-wagon because they smell "Big Cash Settlements". So the States, who really don't give a real shit about they're consumers, are just in it to try and line their state coffers with Corporate money. (Just look at the Tobacco Suits, none to those settlements went to prevent or stop smoking, in most cases I read about it went to the "States" General funds. The Tobacco Companies paid out the money for the Anti-Smoking Ads.

The States still want the TAX Money from the Tobacco.) So as usual its the American people who get screwed by this kind of B.S. Suit against a Company who just makes a better product. The DOJ could do us all a favor and try not to protect us so much. If there is a product out there that doesn't work or if we don't like it, guess what, we the consumer don't have to buy it!!!! Gee what a novel concept, I think its called Capitalism.

So please stop wasting tax payers funds and go after some real criminals, maybe Terrorists Money Laundering Operations, Organized crime, etc. I'm sure these problems haven't gone away since DOJ devoted so much time to the Microsoft case.

Thank you for your time.

S.L.Patterson,

Okanogan, WA.

MTC-00011943

From: Jane F Chi

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 6:09pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

Please let Microsoft free because you didn't do any good for consumers!!!!!!

MTC-00011944

From: RICHDUX@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 6:10pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This case should have been settled long ago. It is wasting tax payers money. Microsoft, Intel and other technology companies are the architects of the Untied States current prosperity. We should be thanking them for making all of lives better than they would have been without them. Don't allow Microsoft's competitors to use our tax dollars for their benefit. Settle the case NOW!

Richard J. Dux
8509 Trumbull
Skokie, IL 60076

MTC-00011945

From: Everett Snelson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:10pm

Gentlemen: The public does not want to hamper future innovation at Microsoft. Please settle this now!

Everett Snelson

MTC-00011946

From: mark scheel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As private citizens and shareholders of Microsoft, we would like to state emphatically that we believe this matter should be settled now and all further litigation terminated. It's in the best interests of the country as a whole to move on. Thank you.

Mark Scheel and Dee Snook

MTC-00011947

From: ArlenPar@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the Justice Dept. should take the necessary course of action to swiftly resolve the cases pending against Microsoft. Enough is Enough! From my viewpoint the entire anti trust affair was instigated by Senators and Congressmen sympathetic to Microsoft's competitors. These elected officials have just been carrying on a vendetta for the companies that are in competition with Microsoft, with no regard for the consumer's interest. The competing software companies should expend their efforts towards making software that is competitive and usefull in the marketplace, instead of trying to stifle software and systems that the public needs and desires.

Lets get on with the future.

Arlen Paranto
P.O.Box 304
Eatonville, Wash. 98328

MTC-00011948

From: The Lamoses
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

My vote is for Microsoft. This has always been a ridiculous battle between Microsoft's competitors and Microsoft, and a bunch of money-hungry politically-motivated Attorneys Generals. Shouldn't this be about consumers? How can anyone honestly say that consumers have been shafted or gotten a raw deal, from a company that practically invented personal computing, enabled the popularization of the Internet, and all of the benefits and wealth they have brought to this country?!

My biggest concern is that you're not going to hear from the majority of the citizens, who are very happy and satisfied with Microsoft and their contributions to the technology industry and this country's economy. Instead, you'll hear the beating of drums from their competitors (who have accumulated and perfected their anti-Microsoft rhetoric producing machinery and anti-Microsoft lobbying tactics), and who stand to gain a lot from the debilitation of Microsoft. It's a sad day in America when competitors and AGs use the justice system to further their own agendas, instead of doing their jobs and allowing companies to compete in the open market.

Thanks

MTC-00011949

From: Tom Freeman (Salt Lake City)
To: 'Microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 5:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I do not encourage you to pursue the private settlement proposed by Microsoft. It would, in my opinion, create even more of a monopoly than they already have. There has to be some cost to a company that has done what Microsoft has done. Justice. These opinions are my own and in no way reflect the position of my company.

Thanks,

Tom Freeman
Citrix Systems, Inc.
tom.freeman@citrix.com
801.816.3309

MTC-00011950

From: Jeff Gillings
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have 15 years experience in software engineering and a B.S. in business. The Revised Final Judgement addresses a number of important points; good job on those.

However, it does not address the following:

- 1) Punishment to Microsoft for past monopolistic behavior, specifically, destroying Netscape.
- 2) Microsoft predatory pricing. This should be a major piece of the settlement. After the development costs are paid for, sales of software are almost all profit; allowing Microsoft (or any company which can license software to hundreds of millions of customers) to reap huge profits. How are you going to keep Microsoft from using that money to price competition out of the market.

Microsoft has a strong history of this behavior; Internet Explorer was given away. I don't see anything in the Final Judgement that addresses this very important point.

MTC-00011951

From: Rices21@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft is convicted of having overcharged for a product which people bought of their own free will because it was better than any other. Now Microsoft has made a tremendously generous offer to give it away, but a judge says it isn't enough, and would help to popularize Microsoft products, which the public already prefer. The government seeks to discourage excellence, and condemns businesses which give the public what they want, while protecting businesses which offer less popular products. Socialists in government penalizes successful businesses, even though they pay huge taxes, because socialists want success to be dependent on government, rather than private initiative, regardless of consequent loss to the consumer. Socialists seek government power, not social prosperity.

Houston Rice

MTC-00011952

From: Stephen Heaton
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think Microsoft will never change. I think the government is too slow to react to the largest computer software maker in the world. They have a lock on the desktop, you still cannot buy Linux preloaded from Dell, HP etc. Money is NOT the answer, if you cannot break them up, why spend all my tax dollars?? It all seems like another mass waste of my tax dollars (again).

Break them up in 3 parts, but since the "new" group of public servants decided not to seek that, Microsoft should have refund to us, over 100 bucks each, to any one who has bought a software package from them that cost 100 dollars or more In the last 3 years. The end user needs a large refund, if money is the only thing they understand.

Thanks for reading this!

MTC-00011953

From: Jon Roberts
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly,
I am an information technology professional with 8 years of extensive experience in software engineering, systems administration, data design, coding, and testing. I have a broad background, but my core competencies are in web systems. While serving as a commissioned officer in the US Air Force, I installed, administered, and developed with my first web server in 1994, at the advent of the world wide web. In my career, I have worked with a variety of operating systems, including flavors of Unix and versions of Microsoft Windows. I've also used an array of open standards, including HTML, CSS, Http, LDAP, CGI, XML, and Java. Very recently, I moved an entire internet and intranet infrastructure for a large academic medical center from a Unix (Sun Solaris) hosted environment to one using Microsoft based servers. Currently, I work independently as a developer and consultant. As such, I feel I have relevant insight into Microsoft's technology and business practices. I favor a best of breed approach to system development, so I also believe I represent an objective point of view. I regularly use Microsoft software at work and home, and continue to do so where I deem appropriate; I am writing this message in Microsoft Outlook, for instance. I also use other operating systems and recommend their use in circumstances where I judge there is a better alternative.

Throughout my career, my ability to provide value to my employers or customers has been adversely affected by Microsoft's technology and business practices. The software they deliver, particularly new software, is typically far less efficient, stable, or secure than alternative approaches. Their products are usually designed with dependencies that require you to use other Microsoft products and sabotage the concurrent use of non-Microsoft approaches. Many of their offerings do not uninstall properly, and leave a permanent presence on the hosting system. Because they write the operating system too, some of their applications make use of capabilities that are not available to non-Microsoft developers. Their licensing practices are mercenary and anti-competitive, using vehicles like sole-source relationships to build inordinate market share. Once Microsoft gains control of a market, they begin raising prices at a rate faster than the industry in general. Most importantly, Microsoft has repeatedly undermined and perverted open standards to serve their own ends, including every one I listed above.

I know that business is competitive by nature, but I agree with the Justice Department's repeated findings that Microsoft's business practices crossed the line and were illegal. Further, I believe that Microsoft created a situation for itself that is bad for the industry and the economy at large over the long term. While I will concede that many dot-coms burned capital on irresponsible business models and implementations, I attest that Microsoft has some amount of personal responsibility for the bursting of the bubble economy and the current economic woes of the information technology industry and the country. The cost of developing on the web should not be as high as it is now, but who knew in the early days of e-commerce the momentum of progress in open standards could be stymied so effectively by one player. Microsoft is in direct conflict with the cooperative culture that brought us the internet, and their long term strategies will exacerbate this problem: where Microsoft succeeds, all others will bleed. History will not be kind if we will have to address the same issues again because of an ineffectual remedy.

If the terms of the anti-trust settlement can be realized, then it may make some difference. However, I don't have faith that Microsoft will adhere to the spirit of the settlement, I have even less confidence in the Justice Department's ability to enforce the terms of the settlement expediently (especially given how long this initial anti-trust process has dragged on), and I believe the problem is larger than middleware. In particular, I don't believe anything short of making Windows open source would prevent Microsoft from taking advantage of the ambiguous nature of a "middleware interface" to continue to constrain consumers and developers. Don't forget that in addition to the operating system and productivity application markets, Microsoft has a big stake in development tools; a hook into middleware functionality doesn't mean much to me if I have to use another Microsoft product to implement it. And I've read some of Microsoft's published information on its software in the few instances where it doesn't directly involve one of their development tools, and it still didn't enable me to communicate cleanly with the Windows operating system or their middleware (even when it's supposed to). At best, they're support staff has pleaded incompetence. I'll buy it, too; they have no history of successfully supporting cooperative development outside of Microsoft tools. Microsoft's entire oeuvre has a tendency to be black box. To achieve its aims, this settlement would have to completely reverse Microsoft's closed corporate and development culture. I'm skeptical that this settlement will lead to anything more than continued legal squabbling.

On a separate note, the recent class action settlement is too plainly a vehicle for Microsoft to broaden its market share while simultaneously getting good press. I view it less as ineffectual and more as a disgrace to our legal system.

This message is a general statement of perspective. If you want more insight, specific examples, or verification of my credentials feel free to contact me.

Jon
Jon Roberts
jon@jonanddeb.net

MTC-00011954

From: g-igold@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We in the state of New Mexico were the first to recognize the futility of constant attacks on Microsoft Corporation. I urge you to settle the lawsuits once and for all. While Apple corporation postures about being shut out of the schools by Microsoft, I don't see them giving away an equivalent dollar amount of computer hardware and software. . . .

The political interests of several states should not hold up the settlement.

Gerald N. Gold, MD

MTC-00011955

From: PWoodbery@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This is to register my approval of the microsoft-DOJ settlement. Only nine states refuse endorsement; the other nine states, the DOJ, and Microsoft all agree that the settlement makes retribution for Microsoft's anti-trust wrongs and provides safeguards against future violations. Not only is the remedy of the nine refusing states unfairly draconian, it could well be a harm to the technology economy. Originally, anti-trust laws were to protect the consumer, not advantage competitors.

I fear that one thing motivating the recalcitrant states is serving the special interest of competitors located in their respective states. Microsoft should not be allowed to squelch competition, but competitors should win because their product satisfies consumers and not through legal machinations.

Sincerely yours,

W. Potter Woodbery, Ph.D.
PWoodbey@aol.com

MTC-00011956

From: Bidwellmoore@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

In the interest of stabilizing America's wavering economy, I earnestly urge an end to this long running attack on Microsoft. The recently proposed settlement among the defedant and the majority of the plaintiffs appears to be more than just for all parties. To have a minority contingent holding out for more damages is dragging the country down in the hope that the minority may benefit at the expense of the well being of all Americans.

Bidwell Moore

MTC-00011957

From: David R Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To the Honorable Judge Kollar-Kotally:

I am writing to express my concern that Microsoft is getting off the hook for its illegal monopolistic activities. The current Proposed Final Judgment announced by the Justice Department fails to deal with the illegal activities pointed out by past court investigations and rulings. It would be wrong and bad for the public well-being to allow this to happen. I hope that you will take action to do what is lawful, just, and in the public interest, not what is in the interest of Microsoft. When every personal computer sold in America, apart from Apple computers, carries Microsoft software as its primary mode of operation, it is apparent that they have totally cornored the market. This was the finding of the latest court decision. Therefore, Microsoft's illegal hold on the market should be broken and Microsoft should be denied the fruits of its past violations, just as the Apellate court ruled. I hope that you will uphold this ruling and take appropriate action.

Finally, I hope you will make it impossible for Microsoft to carry on any future anticompetitive activity. I have friends who work in the computer industry, and they have verified that Microsoft indeed engages in this type of activity, much to their dismay. Our country and economy thrive on competition and the freedom to develop and market new products. Microsoft has the money and power to squelch all competition and to continue to further their own interests at everyone else's expense.

Therefore, you are really the last hope of doing something to stop them. Please do so. This is a huge and incredibly important decision. Please do all that you can to end this monopoly. I appeal to you as a public servant to indeed do that which is in the interest of the citizens whom you serve. Illegal activity should be ended, not pandered to and empowered to continue.

Sincerely yours,
David R. Hill
66 Hobson St.,
Brighton, MA 02135

MTC-00011958

From: Clayton Harrington
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:30pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To Whom It May Concern:

I hereby express my approval for the settlement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. I am saddened and angry that nine states refuse to accept the settlement and are forcing more litigation. I sincerely hope they lose. I believe it is past time to settle this case and for everyone to move on.

MTC-00011959

From: DavidGuidos@MSN.Com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:31pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please accept the settlement. Microsoft has always acted in the best interest of the software industry. Their active encouragement of industry-wide standards has made us all winners, even those companies and states now claiming foul, and they have promoted the rise and success of an entire new industry. Even though they had the capability to do so, Microsoft has never acted as a monopoly. They have kept the cost of their systems and programs very reasonable, and by doing so, they made incredibly advanced information processing capabilities available to nearly everyone in our country.

Thank you.

CC:DavidGuidos@MSN.Com@inetgw

MTC-00011960

From: Rogers536@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:31pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Microsoft has made a good offer. Lets settle this and get on with business. We have enough other problems without trying to break up a business.

Russ Rogers

MTC-00011961

From: Carter, Mark
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:32pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This litigation continues to leave uncertainty for both customers and the market.

Please get this case closed ASAP.

Mark L. Carter

* (205)967-9330

7 Fax (205)967-0120

* mailto:MarkCarter@ACP-Inc.com http://www.ACP-Inc.com <http:// www.acp-inc.com/>

MTC-00011962

From: Earl Hoveland
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:49pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

I consider Microsoft's settlement offer to be more than fair. I have purchased Microsoft products for ten years and have never felt they should be penalized for making an honest dollar. Their prices have been fair and to penalize them in order to put dollars in the pockets of their competitors smacks of socialism and over regulation. Obviously the states that are dragging their feet are just like the rest of this country—they have too many attorneys who can't get employment in the private sector. I say Hurrah for Bill Gates, even if he appears to be a liberal democrat. He must be the exception that proves the rule

Earl Hoveland
 PO Box 786
 Packwood, Wa 98361

MTC-00011963

From: NY. . . NY
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:32pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Consumers have not been effected by any "Anti-trust Act" by Microsoft. This pro-long at is being made by Microsoft's competitors who are using the nine state attorney generals as their lawyers,

Lets end this cast with the nine state attorney generals and competitors so that the consumers may be able to receive Microsoft's innovative technology.

MTC-00011964

From: Gail Fox
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:32pm
 Subject: MicroSoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to urge a settlement in this endlessly dragged-out litigation against Microsoft.

Right from the beginning, I was appalled by the U.S. government interfering with—and penalizing—one of the few remaining successful business (and superior products) still extant in the U.S.

I am a writer-editor—proud graduate of Brown University, proud former resident of Washington, DC—and I have lived long enough to remember pride in American products. However, if that sentiment were not enough, I have ALSO lived long enough to have tried MANY early software products, many word processors, many programs. The ones that could not measure up died on the vine along the way.

My particular success story with Microsoft is that I had to return to a 5,000-page, 5-volume history that I had edited fifteen years earlier for a client on a Microsoft WORD-DOS-based program. The hardware had long been deceased and I was left with the discs. This translated perfectly and easily into a WORD 2000 for Macintosh, about as foreign an exchange as you can get. I find that Microsoft is on top because IT HAS THE BEST PRODUCT. I thought this was what America was about.

Now I live in the Pacific Northwest. Seattle does not need another economic blow (think Boeing), nor does the U.S. (I personally think the stock market bubble that broke in March, 2000 was pricked mightily by the U.S. government going after a good business model—Microsoft.)

I support Microsoft because it makes the best products. It is run by a man who would probably be hacking around with computers even if HE had to pay YOU to do it. His success came from excellence, not slippery business practices.

Sincerely, Gail Fox, Bellingham, Washington

MTC-00011965

From: Jim Hoechstetter
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:33pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sir or Madam,

I have been in the computer industry in a number of capacities since 1958 when it was in its infancy and am retired from IBM. It was absolutely unconcionable that you went after Microsoft in the first place. They were and are guilty of one thing: developing and producing the best products available. Microsoft products have been chosen by most businesses and consumers because they are the best. It appears that the Justice Department feels your charter is to find successful businesses and cripple them. How that helps the consumer is beyond me. The "settlement" that has been agreed to by Microsoft, you, and 9 states, is generous on the part of Microsoft and much more than the governments involved should get. I urge the judge to accept the agreement and end this whole debacle.

Jim Hoechstetter

3100 Cutchin Drive

Charlotte, North Carolina 28210

MTC-00011966

From: robert
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 5:12pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Having read The Revised Proposal Final Judgement, including the Competitive Impact Statement, it is in my opinion a thorough investigation of the Microsoft Corporation has been completed and it is now time to finalize the U.S. Government's involvement in this matter.

I do NOT believe that any further penalties are justified and that the U.S. Government should conclude it's case and let the Microsoft Corporation continue to offer to everyone all their products legally without any more prosecution since they have agreed to abide by the penalties and remedies imposed upon them and did them voluntarily and are abiding to th U.S. Government's wishes by law.

Finally I believe it is time to give Microsoft some praise for producing great products, products that are inovative and products that are well researched and promoted legally. Wishfully I would hope that more corporations would be at least as inovative as Microcoft thereby preventing the severe jealous feelings that I believe they have for Microsoft.

I believe that in a free business society that corporations should be free to inovate while breaking no laws.

Sincerely,

Robert W. Thacker =====

MTC-00011967

From: James Chambers
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 6:35pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Good Day,

I would like to say that I thought that the settlement in the Microsoft case is harsh enough and serves its purpose and the better interest of the public.

I do believe, though, that Microsoft should be on probation, much like a high-risk re-offender. I believe that at this stage, Microsoft has appointed an internal Compliance Officer to adhere to the settlement and the other rulings of J. Penfield Jackson. This shows tremendous effort on their part that they are trying to do their best, but I think there should also be external monitoring.

This is not because I feel that Microsoft will reoffend, but rather that, in the eyes of the public, they will not be afforded such an opportunity. As we all know, you attract more ants with honey; let's keep the honey out of reach and everybody wins.

James Chambers

MTC-00011968

From: Dr. James F. Gaines
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:39pm
Subject: Antitrust settlement

Sir/Ma'am= I am a perennial user of Windows and many of its applications. I have n complaint about prices, service , upgrades or other aspects that some of the Attornies General seem to want to focus on upon directions from their respective corporate cohorts who compete with Microsoft. Microsoft has done a good service for me and for all of my friends who are part of the computerized public. If Apple doesn't want Microsoft to install computers in the poorer school for free, then let Apple install them for free. Antitrust statutes were established to protect the consuming public and not the businesses that fail to keep up. James F. Gaines, DVM, MS, Business owner.

MTC-00011969

From: Samhael
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
208 50th Street NW
Bradenton, FL 34209-2880
January 15, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice,
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I very much appreciate your strong leadership of DOJ over the past year. In order for the recent settlement agreed to by Microsoft and the Justice Department to go through it is critical that you demonstrate uncompromising support for this agreement. This settlement will end three years of litigation that have cost both sides dearly in time and resources. Outside interests would like this settlement eliminated because they claim it is unfair. The truth however is the settlement will give competitors never before offered access to Microsoft's secret code, including internal interfaces. Microsoft has also agreed to make it very easy for competitors to place their software on Microsoft operating systems. While both sides, MS and the DOJ, are ready to settle there will be those, many with anti-Microsoft prejudice, who will try to have this settlement removed. I would like to state again that it is critical for you to show tenacious support for this settlement. Thank you.

Sincere regards,
Sam Espy

MTC-00011970

From: Bill Lucks
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I strongly support the settlement entered into with the DOJ and encourage you to do all possible to put this unfortunate attack by Microsoft's competitors behind us.

William G. Lucks

MTC-00011971

From: douglasleifeste
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:45pm
Subject: Microsoft hearing

To whom, Please dont let a few narrow minded ,selfish people hold up the settlement of this case particularly after 911. We need to get this country back on its feet.

Thank You, Douglas Leifeste,1214 Vine Ave,Sunnyside Wa

MTC-00011972

From: Apurva Dalia
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe that the court should accept the settlement. Public money should not be used in bringing such cases against corporations that have helped USA become the world 's leading economy that it is today. If companies feel intimidated by government interference such as this, America will not remain the prime location that it is today to establish global businesses.

The current recession and events threaten to set us back. We need to do everything we can to not let this happen. The Government needs to focus on issues like Security, Foreign Policy and Economic Stimulus. There is no point in dragging this case any further. Please accept the settlement.

Thanks

Apurva Dalia
9926, 128th Ave NE
Kirkland, WA 98033

MTC-00011973

From: Rgakins@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:47pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Members:

I admit that I have Microsoft stock in my meager retirement account and have a vested interest in their well being. However, as I see it you have an opportunity to provided common sense solutions to this legal debacle that has gone far too far already. I urge you to find for Microsoft and allow them and other companies to get on with the business of innovation and life improvement for us all.

Thank you,
Robert G. Aikins

MTC-00011974

From: Smith-Bates, Jacqui
To: 'microsoft.atr(a)usdoj.gov'
Date: 1/15/02 6:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I would encourage the DOJ and the States to settle the Microsoft case. It has been tedious, has not proven that Microsoft has hurt consumers, and has been detrimental to the U.S. Economy. The case should be settled immediately.

Thank you,
Jacquelyn Smith
4319 Wallingford Ave
N Seattle, WA 98103

MTC-00011975

From: WannaBnLV@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle the Microsoft case and allow Microsoft to function without government intrusion. Microsoft is a model of entrepreneurial spirit in the United States and the other companies who cried foul should take a lesson from Microsoft and compete in a capitalistic marketplace that is unfettered by government manipulation.

Thank you for your consideration,
C. Austin

MTC-00011976

From: thebirdsalls
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:52pm
Subject: Move on and off Microsoft
Get off Microsoft's case!

Elise M. Birdsall
1896 Peachtree Ave.
The Villages, FL 32162
352-259-9870

MTC-00011977

From: Scott Futral
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

As both a stockholder and a citizen I am appalled that the Microsoft offer of settlement was not accepted!

MTC-00011978

From: WILLIAM A CLEMENTS
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

This whole law suit is a terrible thing for Microsoft and our country. It is preposterous for our justice department to stick their noses in private business when they "failed to share" with other merchants their secrets. If these other designers of software can do a better job than Microsoft on their own, then so be it.

And don't try to cheat Microsoft out of its just rewards for doing a superlative job.

William A Clements
ollietoo@thegrid.net

MTC-00011979

From: Walt Casey
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

We have wasted enough tax money on the Microsoft case, it is time stop any more action.

Walt Casey

MTC-00011980

From: thebirdsalls

To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 6:58pm
Subject: finalize the Microsoft case ASAP
Gentlemen:

It's time to move on. Microsoft is the goose with the golden eggs. Oracle is using USA's, DOJ for competitive advantage. Finalize it!

Marianne Gyle
1896 Peachtree Ave.
The Villages, Florida 32162
352-259-9870
MarianneGyle@thebirdsalls.com
CC:Elise M. Birdsall

MTC-00011981

From: JEskelin@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gentlemen:

This action by the remaining States can only continue the attack on American enterprise and the freedom to be innovative. The nine States are simply going after Microsoft's cash position so they can make high settlements with outside attorneys and add more to each States' general funds. Much the same as those States sharing in the bonanza produced by the tobacco industry.

Buyers in the past had the opportunity to load what ever was available in the operating system inventory if they wished. They were not forced to buy MS products anymore than we are forced to buy a Ford. As for buyers paying too much, how in the world will this ever be determined?

Finish this farce being done in the name of justice.

Sincerely,
John L. Eskelin
Puyallup, WA

MTC-00011982

From: SHARONNE PLOTNIK
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:07pm

I find it very disturbing that we do not let microsoft help our public schools. The settlement and lawsuits are now just feeding into people that want to make money on lawsuits. Think of the rest of the people—get over it and get on with the business of progress.

MTC-00011983

From: James Lambo
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gentlemen:

Microsoft is providing a tremendous product to the public. Please find a way to settle this case fairly and let them get on with their work.

Jim Lambo

MTC-00011984

From: EDWARD E KELLUM
To: microsoft.atr@usdoj.gov.?@inetgw
Date: 1/15/02 7:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I concur with the proposed Microsoft Antitrust settlement with the exception of Microsoft supplying schools with Microsoft software. This would be very unfair to Apple Corp. As I understand it, this part of the agreement has been denied by the judge. If Microsoft gave money only to the schools and the schools could select the hardware software they chose, I think that would be OK.

I am a Mac computer user and I also use Microsoft Office Software, Microsoft Internet Explorer and Outlook Express. I think that Microsoft has supported the Mac computer very well. That is in contrast to Word Perfect word processor which dropped Mac support and to Netscape which was a much poorer browser than Internet Explorer. I used to use Word Perfect and Netscape. I think it would be detrimental to computer users and the United States if more destructive terms were adopted, such as a break up of the company.

Edward Kellum
615 Vaquero Rd.
Monrovia, CA 91016
ekellum@earthlink.net

MTC-00011985

From: Gunner Agosto
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whom it may concern,
The Microsoft settlement is too critical an issue to allow the stalling tactics by a small minority of users bent on enriching themselves. The issues have been argued endlessly and a reasonable settlement reached through the Tunney Act. Let's finally move on.

Gunner Agosto

MTC-00011986

From: Shelley Blumberg
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I am a consumer who uses and likes Microsoft software. I hope that the settlement that was reached with the Department of Justice and nine states will be accepted. I want Microsoft to focus on developing more and better products. Microsoft produces good products that work well, are easy to use, and are low cost. I don't think that taxpayer money should be spent on yet more lawsuits against Microsoft to benefit Microsoft's large competitors, such as Sun Microsystems and Oracle. These companies should compete with Microsoft by producing better products at competitive prices rather than using the judicial system to try to prevent Microsoft from producing innovative products. I hope that I will open my Wall Street Journal soon and see that the DOJ-Microsoft settlement has been accepted and that the case is over!

Sincerely,
Shelley Blumberg

MTC-00011987

From: TJMARYHANA@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:15pm
Subject: (no subject)

I think its time the government left private business alone

MTC-00011988

From: TedVanzwol@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

They sure are making a lot about little. Why not make a small reasonable settlement to those that are crying because of their inability to compete and move on.

What an expensive pain they are being.
Ted Vanzwol

MTC-00011989

From: Evelyn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:21pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

In my opinion the settlement that has been reached in the Microsoft case should be consummated. I am in favor of settlement now and in not prolonging this case with further litigation. It is good for America and therefore in the public interest. It is not in the public interest to spend taxpayer's dollars to drag this out further.

Sincerely,
Evelyn H. Payne

MTC-00011990

From: james.scrivener@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust

Litigation on Microsoft Anti-trust charges have gone on much too long and continuation cannot be good for our economy.

Microsoft provides a great reliable service which may be seriously compromised if it is further restricted.

J.R. Scrivener

MTC-00011991

From: Kerlin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:21pm
Subject: Microsoft

Microsoft has done more to bring order and ease of use in it's software than any other company.

THANK YOU. KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK.

Rick Kerlin

MTC-00011992

From: markthome
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:22pm
Subject: Holding up progress

Please do what you can to enable the companies of the United States to progress on the basis of their achievements. Not on the basis of one suing another in order to compete.

Mark Thome,
Bellevue, Washington

MTC-00011994

From: GKowa49992@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:28pm
Subject: Fwd: Returned mail

January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DO 20590-0001

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I am writing to express my opinion of the recent settlement between the US Department of Justice and Microsoft. I think the case dragged out far too long, and should be finalized, even if the penalties imposed on Microsoft are too harsh.

I am a proponent of free enterprise and I think Microsoft should not be restrained from being able to innovate and grow as they have in the past. I also do not think Microsoft has a monopoly that could possibly be construed as bad for our economy. Actually, I think Microsoft as it is today does more good than harm for our public. But, I understand some of the lawmakers' and politicians' complaints, and that is why the terms of the settlement are more than fair. Microsoft will be conceding internal interfaces and protocols. They will be designing future Windows versions so that competitors can more easily promote their own products. And, the government will be forming a three-person team to monitor compliance with the settlement. We are at war and in recession. We need Microsoft's industry strength to be building wealth and technology for our country instead of fighting legal battles in the courts. I thank you for your time and hope your office looks out for the public's best interests, and I hope that you work with Attorney General Butterworth to have this settled in the State of Florida as well.

Sincerely,
G. Kowalski
201 Orlando Boulevard
Indialantic, Florida 32903

MTC-00011995

From: AAA270@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe the Microsoft settlement is fair and should be approved. Let's put this behind us and grow our economy, to which Microsoft contributes a good deal.

Al Ackerman
9141 NW 13 Street
Plantation, FL 33322

MTC-00011996

From: hairdoc
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I do now and always have felt that the DOJ's and various state attorneys suits against Microsoft Corp. are the result of the prejudiced views of elected officials from states where Microsoft's competition reside. This constitutes what I and everyone I speak to considers an injustice perpetrated against Microsoft Corp. As you know millions of our tax dollars have already been wasted in an attempt to wrongfully punish this company. I like most Americans who used P.C.'s. before the advent of Windows hold Microsoft in the highest regard. I am proud of it's performance in dominating it's field because in doing so it took us out of the realm of cryptic DOS code and into the future of computing. Lets face it, the driving force behind any great advancement has always been profit. By punishing Microsoft for doing exactly what any other large corporation or small businessman would do in it's place sends a bad signal to those of us who have the nerve to gamble in the high stakes world of business. By the way what would the trade deficit have been last quarter if Microsoft did not sell software worldwide?

Please stop this nonsense and accept this settlement that is already much larger than the so-called (but in my mind fabricated) harm done to the "public" Let this great American company thrive and grow.

Thank you for considering my position.
Stephen F. Dasaro

MTC-00011997

From: Michael.Martak@sun.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft
ATR,michael.martak@sun.com@inetgw
Date: 1/15/02 7:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To Whom It May Concern,

In 1997, I took a job as a software graphical user interface engineer for a company called Imedia Corporation. At that time, the technical leadership of the company had determined that the graphical user interface for the project needed to be supported in a web browser, and as a result, Sun Microsystem's Java technology was chosen. As a then Microsoft developer, I preferred to retain my skills in Microsoft's tools while learning what was required to complete my task in Java, remaining agnostic towards any particular platform or vendor. What happened externally during the life of that project was shocking, unprofessional, unethical, and (as we now know) historic. Microsoft decided to wrest control of Java technology from Sun Microsystems, not only at a platform libraries level, but at the language-specification level by adding new keywords whose intention was uncontestedly to subvert the promise of "write once, run anywhere" that made Java technology an appealing choice for developers. As we know, Sun Microsystems sued Microsoft over this issue and won it, but at the cost of Microsoft's dropping Java support entirely from their operating system and browser. While this was happening, though the future of the technology was uncertain, my own project at Imedia Corporation was going extremely well. Java technology had allowed me enough time to complete my project and had given me plenty of time to tune it, a much faster turnaround for a project than I had ever been accustomed to. The entire time I could not help but feel that the world was losing a fantastic technology that was being stifled only through monopoly power.

Now it is 2002, and sadly, Java technology has still not become widely available on the desktop. I now work for Microsoft's competitor, Sun Microsystems, which I find ironic because of Microsoft's attempt to determine the future of my project and own my code or choice of language. Microsoft made me a competitor, and all I ever wanted to do was to own my own code, and be free to choose the right technology for the right job. As a professional software developer, it is highly important to me that Microsoft's illegal abuse of monopoly power has stifled innovation, created an environment with little to no regard for security, and left the consumer vulnerable and unaware that there is even anything missing or wrong. Innovation is easy to measure, but measuring non-innovation is difficult.

It is important for software developers and the future of technology that Microsoft not be allowed to walk away from stifling innovation for so long without suffering so much as a scratch, and for these reasons (as well as more specific technical ones), I highly disagree with the proposed settlement between the Department of Justice, nine states, and Microsoft.

I would like to extend support to the proposed remedy by the nine states which objected to the settlement, including the state of California, of which I am a resident as well as a registered voter. I believe that this solution is far better for the state of technology, Java technology in particular, as well as the security and integrity of data for all consumers. Because I work for a competitor of Microsoft, I want to assert that my opinion as a software professional is my own and is unsolicited by Sun Microsystems.

This I swear under penalty of perjury,

Sincerely,
Michael Martak
Oakland, California

MTC-00011998

From: rick
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:32pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement
TO: DOJ

The software industry is highly competitive and one dimension of that competition is to use government to gain a competitive advantage rather than one's own creativity and initiative. To settle this case now in favor of Microsoft is the best way to ensure competition, satisfy customers and help the economy get back on track

Thanks

MTC-00011999

From: Normakorn@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:32pm
Subject: Microsoft

I am in favor of supporting Microsoft. They should not be penalized for their success.

Norma Korn
normakorn@aol.com

MTC-00012000

From: Intlglstc@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:36pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

I believe that as a taxpaying citizen and someone who is eager to see the United States keep it's lead in technology, it is time to settle this prolonged action against Microsoft. I, more and more, get the strong feeling that legal action is intended to foster an unfair competitive advantage for manufacturers in those states working to further "muddy the water". Why not let actions agreed speak for themselves and let competitive products work to obtain their own marketing success rather than ask Microsoft to subsidize their operations. Enough already!

Donald S. Chakas
810 W. Pacificview Road
Bellingham, WA. 98226

MTC-00012001

From: PATRICIA ANTLITZ
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:37pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

P.O. Box 1395
Hampton, NH 03843-1395
January 16, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I appreciate the difficulty of your job, and the many weighty issues you must consider, particularly in these difficult times. I appreciate your strong leadership and the difficult decisions you are called upon to make.

I am in favor of the Microsoft antitrust case settling. I am disappointed the settlement has been held up for so long and view this as not beneficial to Microsoft, its competitors, the computer industry, or the US economy. I believe that Microsoft is great American company and has done many great things not only for the computer industry, but also for the US economy as a whole. I am supportive of the work they have done to make technological advances. I would like to see the parties involved in this case move on so that Microsoft may continue to innovate. I believe that any further delays will be detrimental to our nation.

The settlement agreement should satisfy those who feel Microsoft has engaged in any anticompetitive behavior. The changes purported in the agreement are fair to all parties involved. There is no reason to continue the litigation. Monies being spent on litigation would be better put to use in research and development, an area that has helped our nation maintain a competitive edge in technology and remain a leader among nations.

Thank you for considering these comments.

With greatest respect,
Patricia Antlitz

MTC-00012003

From: Dean Parsons
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:42pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
Dept. of Justice.

This is a great company in a great country. Microsoft built a better mouse trap and people want it. This country was built on competition, and great ideas. We should have more people like Bill Gates, and no more Bill Clinton.

This is a huge waste of tax payer dollars. And I for one have seen enough waste to last a thousand years. For anyone that is crying about Microsoft, if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen.

Sincerely
Dean Parsons

MTC-00012004

From: l.m.james@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

SETTLE!!!! This is a ridiculous, old, tired argument and Microsoft has awesome products at fair prices that have never harmed anyone. They have made my life at home and running my own business easy! I am so happy with their product, and as a business owner I hope the government does not decide to sue every successful company Americans make!

Laurel James

MTC-00012005

From: Cecelia Breidenbach
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I can't believe how long this litigation has dragged. With all that has happened, it seems prudent to wrap this up. The states holding out are, in my opinion, are more than greedy—in that they turned down the MSN gift of computers for their schools. I believe they are holding out for $$$ which I hope they don't get.

MTC-00012006

From: Robert Wright
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:43pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
TWO VOTES FOR SETTLEMENT NOW—
ROBERT C. WRIGHT
SUSAN V. WRIGHT
1524 HARVEST LANE
MANASQUAN NJ, 08736

MTC-00012007

From: Laurent Tardif
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
I'm a research fellow at Monash university. I read the judgment and all the informations given on the Proposed Final Judgment in the US v. Microsoft case on the java-sun web site. I'm quiet surprise, that the judgment give only restriction to the middleware and OS issues. The judgment doesn't give restriction on the key points, for my point of view.

I give a example. I designed a plug-in to visio, a microsoft product. To design this plugin, the documentation tell me that I can write my plugin in visual C++ or visual basic. Two microsoft languages. To write and compile such language I needed to buy a license to be able to write the application. (at the same time, we can notice that the microsoft compiler for C or C++ language doesn't not provide a full implementation of this language, which decrease the possibility to compile an application written in C under unix/linux on windows system).

After buying the Microsoft visual suite, I need to access some API information, to do so, because the free information are useless I need to buy a license to access the developer web site of microsoft.

I used to use netscape to browse the web, the microsoft web site is unaccessible with this browser, most of the page are unreadable. So I need to set up internet explorer.

So, in conclusion, to write 200 lignes of code, I have to buy 3 microsoft license, and install 4 microsoft products. if that, is not taking advantage of the situation, what is it.

Also the judgment doesn't say a word on what microsoft did on free-standard, like html, or XML today. The free standard allow, in the idea, every body to access information, from every operating system, every browser. But microsft doesn't not provide a full implementation of these standard, and add some private extension inside. The effect, is, the HTML (xml now) page written by microsoft application is only readable under microsoft.

Ask to people using linux/unix, how many html pages they can't read, because of some microsoft features.

Also, nothing is said about the policy of microsoft to provide free/cheap license to school, university of microsoft product. The effect, is that new student / child know only microsoft product. And because when you buy a new computer you have microsoft on, most of the people don't know they have other solutions.

Laurent
Laurent Tardif
Monash University
mailBox 36—Building 26
School of Computer Science and Software engineering
Clayton Victoria 3168
Australia
Phone : (03) 99055779
www.csse.monash.edu.au/tardif/

MTC-00012008

From: david thurlow
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:49pm
Subject: The Microsoft Settlement

It is high time the Government's case against Microsoft was settled. To continue this protracted litigation against Microsoft is a waste of taxpayer dollars and a major contribution to the legal profession who control far too much in America and represent competitors who want a bigger piece of the pie without earning it through competitive effort.

The State Attorney Generals are no more than a vested interest group seeking to transfer wealth from a creative, productive enterprise and it's shareholders to the legal profession and causes espoused by them.

Look what has happened in the tobacco settlement—the enormous funds extracted from tobacco companies ostensibly to be used in programs aimed at reducing teen smoking habits has instead been used by most states to balance state budgets. Where is the integrity and fairness in that—and at what cost in legal fees. Why doesn't government stand up to the legal profession and control excessive fees paid in this type of litigation?

Throw out the States case and let Microsoft get back to participating in the resurgence of our damaged economy.

David Thurlow

MTC-00012009

From: Bettye Ray
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Think it is time to settle this and move on to other things. Microsoft has had enough and other things are more important now. Enough is enough.

MTC-00012010

From: Joy Buck
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 7:55pm
Subject: Settle Microsoft

This is a free country. Yes, Bill Gates has become a millionaire, however, he had the brilliance to do so. If you personally had the foresite to pursue as he did, would you be a little upset about the government involvement in your business? I think you need to leave his business alone.

Joy Buck

MTC-00012011

From: G. Franklin South

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 7:56pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is difficult for me to understand why there is still so much controversy about settling The United States versus Microsoft, when the United States and nine of these 'united states' have accepted a proposed settlement. Nine other states, supported and encouraged by competitors of Microsoft, seem to question the wisdom and the veracity and the ability of their litigation partners to monitor and enforce the provisions of the proposed settlement.

I fail to see how continued litigation and argument and rehash is going to benefit me as a computer user. For that matter, I still do not see how I have been disadvantaged or overcharged by Microsoft. As an example, I used the Netscape Communicator for almost a year, but then downloaded Internet Explorer and after some use, decided that I liked the Explorer better. On the other hand, even though I use Microsoft Word, I do not use Microsoft Excel, but rather use IBM Lotus 123. I read the argument that the competitors of Microsoft do not have a level playing field, that they are disadvantaged by Microsoft size and market share. I do point out that not too many years ago, IBM was in a similar position—they had a monopoly on the data processing business. I dare say that many competitors by hard work and improved technology have disproven the argument that you can't compete against the big bully.

I think it is time for those state attorney generals who are trying to disrupt a proposed settlement of United States versus Microsoft, written, reviewed and accepted by the US Department of Justice, and nine states, to put personal ambition aside for the good of all of the data processing users. I believe it is next to impossible to try to substantiate how further delay is going to reward individual users of computers and computer software.

MTC-00012012

From: David Hoech

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 7:58pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe it is in the best interest of the consumer to drop all charges against Microsoft. Shame on the justice department for letting criminals such as ADM continue to screw America and want to take down Microsoft

MTC-00012013

From: Patty J. Le Beau

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:12pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

PLEASE SETTLE

I am loyal to Microsoft because I love their products and firmly believe if left to the other computer companies we would still be in the dark ages. Microsoft is a company which has done much for the U.S. and much for computer users, both business and personal. I don't understand why people keep messing around with them. I for one am sick of it.

PLEASE SETTLE

Patty Le Beau

lebeau@thesurf.com

MTC-00012014

From: GibIV@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:00pm

Subject: Government should look at PRIORITIES. .

IF the U.S. Government spent the money,time and resources on the war against terrorism, cancer research, education instead of wasting OUR TAX $$$ on this matter our country would be way better off, The only potential here is to stifle innovation and creativity and without that we would be just another third world country instead of a great superpower that owes it's strength to innovation and creativity to the likes of Microsoft.

MTC-00012015

From: Cliff Magnussen

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:00pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

I believe this settlement is fair, Microsoft, as far as I'm concerned is a great Company, the amount of technology that they have passed on to the public is more than any Company would normally do. Lets get on with it, and SETTLE !!! and let Microsoft do it's job, and get this all behind us, it has been far to long in coming.

Cliff Magnussen

MTC-00012016

From: HoTaxLady@cs.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:02pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe it would be in the interest of the global economy to settle this lawsuit quickly and swiftly.

One must take under consideration that Microsoft has not just made itself wealthy but has spread the wealth among many people—its own employees and many outside stockholders. Matter of fact the stockmarket began to spiral downward the moment you started messing with the company. Please consider that Microsoft has donated millions to good use and is continuing to do so. That does not erase some of the tactics Microsoft might have used in obtaining business that you consider illegal and for which Microsoft will suffer consequences and already has. Punishing the company more and more and breaking it up into pieces will not help many folks. Look at what has been done to the telephone company in Washington State. The negative effects are still felt today and that was 15 years ago. Sure it has brought about many small competitors which meanwhile increased the bankruptcy numbers of this country. It is a good thing that you let folks speak out for or against Microsoft. Thank you.

MTC-00012017

From: Carol

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:05pm

Subject: litigation ended or prolonged

In the interest of all, lets get to the bottom of this fast and resolve it. All want the freedom to be innovative, and we should not be curtailed; however, there must also be a way to protect the little guy and the weak in all charity, and not just at the whim or preference of the rich and powerful. Humility, fairness and charity of heart is needed here.

Carol Dixon Klein, Naples, Fl.

MTC-00012018

From: lillian ingram

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:05pm

Subject: Bad Joke!

All the opposition to Microsoft is nothing more than the competition being unable to compete with the Research and Developments of MSFT. The government should butt out. MSFT has done more for this country than the others combined.

MTC-00012019

From: Jim Kilgore

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:05pm

Subject: Gov't vs Microsoft

To Whom It May Concern:

Please stop using Microsoft as a political football. Leave them alone and let them innovate. I enjoy their products and I consider that the price they charge is reasonable. Why does the government not want companies to be successful?

Sincerely

James L. Kilgore

MTC-00012020

From: Lemastfam@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:08pm

Subject: No Subject

To Whom it May Concern:

I was disappointed to see that the Government refused Microsoft's offer to donate 1 billion dollars to the schools of the United States. The children of this country will be the ones who lose. I thought this administration was the Education administration but with this decision it makes me question if the government is really interested in education.

Lawrence E. Mast

MTC-00012021

From: lbstuart@webtv.net@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:09pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is about time to end this litigation which only serves to enrich the lawyers and give the politicians a platform to attempt to get votes. All of this is a great waste at a time when it serves to further slow economic recovery.

Please, put an end to it!

L. B. Stuart

MTC-00012022

From: Sandra Maino

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:10pm

Subject: Settlement

It is about time the government needs to stop this witch hunt. Microsoft innovations have allowed the common man to enter the realm of technology by providing user friendly software and operating systems.

We are a country which allows competition among the industries, and if you have a good product, your company will flourish. Should we condemn Chrysler for selling more cars than Chevrolet and call them a monopoly? If the other software companies were so great, they would be another Apple or Microsoft.

Perhaps in our down economy, the Justice Department would like Microsoft to become another Enron.

MTC-00012023

From: AGGIECHURC@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:10pm

Subject: microsoft

Hi Microsoft is the best company in the world. The justice department has ruined a great economy by trying to bread up and control Microsoft & the rest of the computer science world. Just leave private enterprise alone. The government spent millions of dollars that could have been given back to the tax payers, because it is our money, but or no Clinton was in the pocket of the California computer science group. Just think of all the money spent by the government and Microsoft combine, the tax payers could have been buying all kinds of new computers and software, that would have been very good for the economy. Get off Microsoft's back and let it innovate for the good of us all. Good by.

MTC-00012024

From: Brassytrader

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:13pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Enough is enough, Microsoft has done more for the computer industry and the economy in general than any corporation in history. The competition failed to realize that proprietary and non integrated technology has no place in the computer industry and have become part of our economic slowdown. (I remember well the pre Windows era when new programs did not work without re-configuring the whole operating system, now thanks to Microsoft it all works together) Please drop this ludicrous litigation and let Microsoft get on with the business of helping the country move ahead.

Regards,

Michael Harrington. 5097477412

MTC-00012025

From: AToll1211@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:12pm

Subject: Re: Microsoft Settlement

Dept. of Justice:

Please tell me by what "moral" right the government of The United States of America goes after, with such malice, one of America's greatest companies and one of this countries greatest businessmen?

Could ANYONE in the Dept. of Justice write one piece of software or produce any goods that could be marketable?

I strongly suggest that this government leave it's most productive citizens alone because what you are doing is so immoral that you are not only damaging the company Microsoft but all the millions of people who have invested in this company. He, unlike the government did not steal anyone's money but produced a product "better" than his competitors. This is precisely why he/ Microsoft is being punished.

The attack on this country from within is far greater than from outside.

I urge you and your immoral laws to simply "LEAVE THEM ALONE"!

MTC-00012026

From: MelHorwitz@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:17pm

Subject: Microsoft litigation

Please cease the expensive litigation surrounding Microsoft. The effort thus far has been detrimental to our economy and an example of businesses that could not compete in the marketplace trying to compete in court. This is an everchanging playing field and open to anyone with new and good ideas. ENOUGH is ENOUGH>

Melvin Horwitz

223 Ludlow Road

MAnchester, CT 06040

MTC-00012027

From: W. Roger Gehman

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:19pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Sirs,

Let's end this farce and let Microsoft get back to doing what they do best. This whole case was nothing more than a big political football cooked up by Microsoft competitors, with the full cooperation of the Clinton administration, and Attorney General Reno. She investigated everything imagineable, except what was really in need of investigation—namely her boss, the President!

Warren R. Gehman

126 Park Avenue

Miunt Joy, PA 17552

MTC-00012028

From: Okey McQuain

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:04pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

Do not appeal Microsoft settlement. Please let Microsoft alone.

Okey McQuain

227 Evergreen Drive

Elkins, WV 26241-3007

e-mail — omcquain@neumedia.net

MTC-00012029

From: WPear76@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:21pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think it is not the american way to penelize a company for working hard, taking the risks involved, and making a success.

I further feel that it is envy, or jealousy on the part of the others to accuse Microsort of being a monopoly. after all, one of the biggest monopolies of all time is the U S Postal Service, and their service is poor in many cases, They fail to perform a suitable service to the american public. So I say "Lay off microsoft, and let then continue to provide services that have became essential to the american public.

William H Pearson.

MTC-00012030

From: Khwbc@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:22pm

Subject: Microsoft

This agreement that Microsoft has offered is more the gererous so this argument should be settled once and for all.

Kathryn Wells

MTC-00012031

From: Srinivasa Eedarapalli

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:24pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Microsoft Settlement is great for consumers. I do not see that Microsoft was at fault in the first place. Judge Penfield Jackson just used his personal opinions arrive at a rash judgement. His judgement should have been thrown out atleast after listening to his post trial comments.

I am a Technology Consultant and I know how SUN & Oracle loot Companies with thier high priced products. AOL—Look who is talking about misusing monopoly. AOL refused to let other instant messengers to integrate with their version. Their advertisements say "all my friends are in AOL (basically their instant messenger)", saying that if you do not take AOL internet access you will miss out on istant messages to your friends. Is this not misusing monopoly? Is this good for consumer?

Let companies compete in marketplace. Not go to government for help compete.

Srinivasa Raju Eedarapalli

MTC-00012032

From: Carole Joy

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:23pm

Subject: microsoft ruling. . .

I believe that who ever invents and sells their product should be allowed to keep it fully theirs and all the profit from it. . . . Microsoft did the research, work, invention, and building of the product and should be able to reap its reward for it. carole taylor

MTC-00012033

From: Frank Spencer

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:25pm

Subject: microsoft settlement

It is in the interest of this voting family to resolve tthe Microsoft issue as soon as possible, and we urge the courts to quickly and fairly resolve the current litigation.

Frank & Pam Spencer

MTC-00012034

From: Tom Bires

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:26pm

Subject: You got the wrong guy

With all due respect, Microsoft is not the bad guy in the world of computers. As a software developer and user for the past 26 (yes 26) years, I can say that Microsoft has been a breath of fresh (and inexpensive) air in a world of otherwise expensive computer hardware and software. Just look at the price for any of the standard PC applications we know and depend on. Word processors, spreadsheets, databases, personal information managers, and yes Web browsers. Microsoft has employed the standard economies of scale to slash prices on all of these major applications at all times in their history. How can that be bad for consumers. Does our justice department really think that we are not paying enough for our software. All of these applications on all other platforms over the past 25 years were MUCH more expensive before Microsoft entered the market. Sun Microsystems, the chief Egger Onner of the Justice Department against Microsoft is a prime example of a company with proprietary hardware and limited market software and the resulting MUCH higher prices for all major applications—not to mention slower performance relative to the incredibly fast Pentiums which are a direct result of the beneficial mass marketing efforts of Microsoft and Intel. Go after Sun if you want to punish a company that tries to corner a market and turn the screws on its customers.

I have lived the computer revolution from the inside and can say with no qualms, "You got the wrong guy."

Please feel free to contact me if I can clarify or elaborate.

Thank you for taking time to listen,

Tom Bires

Thomas L. Bires

Application Networks

444 Ramona

Palo Alto, CA 94301

(650) 289-1048

MTC-00012035

From: John W. van der Hulst

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:28pm

Subject: Settlement

I encourage the Government to settle this matter ASAP. Microsoft's offer appears appropriate. Our economy needs this company to concentrate all its resources on developing and exporting its technology, not endless legal maneuvering with the Justice department.

John van der Hulst

MTC-00012036

From: SUE BONK

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:32pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

Please settle this suit, it would help the economy, especially since it was the beginning of our economic slump and until this is settled, we will remain in a slump. Microsoft leaders are not bad guys, Enron leaders are bad guys, can't you see a difference????

S. Bonk

MTC-00012037

From: Durand C. Waters

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:34pm

Subject: Fwd: Returned mail: see transcript for details

Note: Forwarded message attached.

Durand C. 'Randy' Waters

How can you even seriously consider allowing Microsoft to gain an even bigger hold on the software market and drive schools away from their beneficial relationship with other systems that they have used for years, such as Macintosh, UNIX and LINUX.

If you allow this to go as the accused is asking, you will have lost any credibility that you may have had.

Durand C. Waters

5922 Brook Falls

Windcrest, TX 78239-2648

Durand C. 'Randy' Waters

MTC-00012038

From: NJWRESEARCH

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:34pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please settle case as is. States' continuance will be against consumers' best interests.

Gerry West

MTC-00012039

From:

hodgson@gogol.humnet.ucla.edu@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:38pm

Subject: <http://www.usdoj.gov/atr/cases/ms-settle.htm>

Having read the relevant documents, I am persuaded that the U. S. Government has caved in to special interests. This is particularly distressing, since it coincides with the recent change in federal administration.

Puteracy is a new medium. America is playing a world wide role in defining its parameters. It would be a disgrace if we were to stifle competition at this early stage.

Microsoft must not be allowed to bully the American people, or the world.

Yours truly,

Peter Hodgson

[Emeritus Professor]

MTC-00012040

From: Ernie12237@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:35pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

This case against Microsoft doesn't make much sense to me.

Compare it to Ford and General Motors. Lets say Microsoft is General Motors who makes a very good pickup truck and is equipped with a very good Chevy engine. Prior to this Ford had a better engine but the GM engine now out performs the Ford. Now here comes Ford who thinks it is unfair that GM is selling so many more units with the Chevy engine than Ford sells so they get the Government to try to force GM to put a Ford engine in the GM pickup.

What would DOJ do in a case like I just explained?

Microsoft does not have a monopoly, they just build a better product. No one says another company cannot design something better but if they did, people would buy it. Computer users want the best regardless of who makes it. If people want to buy a Chevy pickup, they want a Chevy engine in it, not a Ford.

If this settlement is supported, it will smell of politics supported by only the lawyers that are pushing it and the outlandish fees they will reap.

Ernie Aufenkamp

Mission, TX

MTC-00012041

From: (123)USER(u)FIRSTNAME(125)

(123)USER(u)LASTNAME(125)

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

It is my belief that the proposed settlement by the U. S. DOJ is fair and equitable and should be adjudicated on that basis promptly.

Ronald Matthews

San Diego, Calif

MTC-00012042

From: Terrie Takemoto-Sua

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:35pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

The Microsoft case should be settled. I am extremely disappointed that the suit has returned to litigation.

I felt that the agreement was fair to all parties involved. That is the last thing the US economy needs. . . .

Please do not drag this on. Let us get a settlement as quickly as possible.

Terrie Sua

MTC-00012043

From: S. A. Cranney

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen:

I would ask the United State Justice Department to drop the Microsoft case and let them get on with their work. It is plain and simple, the government has egg on its face and should cut their losses and take care of more important matters.

Thank you,

Spencer A. Cranney

1760 North 400 East

North Logan, Utah

84341

(435) 752-2273

MTC-00012044

From: Ruthanna Wolf

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:36pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Think you MUST accept Microsoft's offer. Suggest you research the history of computers in education (a field I worked in for years)—that research will show that Apple got special government privileges and perks for donating Apples to Schools around the country in the early 1980's. That is why the education system is behind the rest of the computer world in system implementation and design.

Suggest you give the school professionals a chance to "catch-up" with M/S's offer to assist US Schools.

And that should end the entire matter.

Ruthanna Wolf
Whittier, California 90603

MTC-00012045

From: Susan Brunasso
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:37pm
Subject: SETTLEMENT OF MICROSOFT LAWSUIT
GENTLEMEN

I think getting MicroSoft to donate $1 Billion in equipment and/or services to the US Public School System is great for America. I wish more settlements of this nature were made that would benefit the general US Public. I would add that some of this settlement value should be given to the private schools also. Maybe the value could be appropriated in porportion to the students are in the overall school population. Thank you & "go get the money from MicroSoft for the People!"

Mario V. Brunasso

MTC-00012046

From: Beth (038) Bob Vogt
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom It May Concern:
I feel that the Federal and State Governments should have never gotten involved in this case. There is no telling how many years they have set back free enterprise and initiative. Please get this case settled fairly. Do not believe all the sour grape sources that are anti Microsoft and want a free ride. I have used Microsoft products going back many years. I have found their product to be well integrated and thus easy to use between platforms. I can't stand to think what can become of this good company and their products if their adversaries have their way.

Sincerely,
Robert A. Vogt

MTC-00012047

From: ABrisolara@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:38pm
Subject: Microsoft litigatin

It is apparent that the original steps taken to pursue litigatin against Microsoft was politically motivated. Microsoft has enabled the ordinary individual to become com- puter competent. The various programs developed have been a boom to users and to the economy. Any punitive action would appear to smack of jealousy.

Somehow the entire process has done nothing but collapse the computer industry. We hope that the case would be dropped, so the public can continue to receive the kind of service which Microsoft has been able to afford its customers, not to mention the many who have benefitted from its charitable donations.

The Brisolara Family

MTC-00012048

From: MANYAKA8@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Gentlemen or whoever it may concern:

It's high time to put the Microsoft suit and settlement to bed. The current settlement parameters are fair to both sides. No more court time or monies should be spent persuing more penalties against Microsoft. Most states have agreed to the latest terms. What are the other nine or so looking for? More bucks?

There are plenty more pressing items our federal and state governments and politicians should be spending their time on.

MTC-00012049

From: JPEO826@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:42pm
Subject: DOJ SETTLEMENT FOR MICROSOFT

This is to strongly recommend that the proposed DOJ settlement of the Microsoft litigation be upheld.

John Peoples

MTC-00012050

From: MIKE ESS
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi, My name is Mike. I am 16 yrs old. Microsoft Corporation should be required to include Java with Windows XP. I go to a chat room called Wetbuster. Its for kids that wet the bed and have wetting problems. Its a place to talk and cope about it. You need Java to chat there, if there is no more Jave, then there no more wetbuster. Also tns of people wont beable to chat there either if you take it way. So please keep java. THANK YOU MIKE

MTC-00012051

From: Jim
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To Whom it may concern, I believe the settlement with Microsoft is fair. Let's not waste any more time and money regarding this issue. This is what stifles free enterprise and a strong economy. Let everyone get back to work on the important things.

MTC-00012052

From: Carole
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
501 TidePointe Way #5118
Hilton Head Island, SC 29928-3053
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
United States Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

I support the Department of Justice's endeavors to settle the Microsoft antitrust case. This case has dragged on for far too long, and a rapid conclusion is in everyone's best interest.

The settlement agreement in its present form is quite reasonable. The federal judge should approve the agreement, and all parties should move forward. No further federal action is needed or justified.

I am particularly impressed with the concessions Microsoft has made in the interest of resolving the case. In essence, Microsoft is making it easier for its competitors to compete. Microsoft's concessions include the agreement to allow computer makers rights to promote software other than Windows; the agreement to not retaliate against software developers who promote software other than Windows; and the commitment to not enter into contracts with retailers or distributors to exclusively sell Windows technology, to name a few.

I appreciate your ongoing efforts to resolve this case.

Sincerely,
Carole Fowler
cc: Senator Strom Thurmond by snail mail you also will receive a copy by snail mail

MTC-00012053

From: Margaret (038) Doug Green
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:42pm
Subject: Settlement

Will you please do the whole world a favor and drop these charges? We don't need the same settlement we had with our phone system years ago.

MTC-00012054

From: Richard W Carr
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:43pm
Subject: SETTLE THE CASE

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH. WHY SHOULD THE WHOLE COUNTRY SUFFER FOR THE WHIMS AND JEALOUSIES OF A FEW. AS I HAVE STATED BEFORE, THIS IS A WORLD OF COMPETITION. IF THOSE WHO ARE WHINING ABOUT MICROSOFT WANT TO DO SOMETHING, LET THEM BUILD A BETTER MOUSETRAP.

MTC-00012055

From: CobraBitten@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:45pm
Subject: Please. .

To whom it may concern,
Please, support the settlement and stop wasting money. Prevention is the key, learn from it and set up preventative measures.

Sincerely,
Geoff Morrison??
God's judgment may not be immediate, but it is inevitable.

MTC-00012056

From: Erik N. Funk
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 8:46pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice:

Please record this citizen's petition to let the market decide the fate of Microsoft. . . this will allow the Justice Department to focus its considerable energy on people who and corporations that have actually done something wrong besides facilitate development of standards and make great software.

Best regards,
Erik Funk

MTC-00012057

From: Charles Barrett
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:48pm

Subject: microsoftsettlement

I am retired from a successful partnership farming operation with my Father and Brother which lasted 52 years; so you see I have had a lot of experience. I own a personal computer and have had several programs in it and the one I like best, which I was not forced to buy is Microsoft. I think they are a very brilliant and advanced company. I think that since a majority of the states involved in the litigation against Microsoft have elected to settle the suit, I think the remaining states should settle also.

The settlement would be good for the economy and for our Nation. Thank You for a "voice" in this important litigation.

Charles R. Barrett charlelyme@intplsrv.net

MTC-00012058

From: JasonAllen12@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:48pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement Please install JAVA in there XP operating softwear

Hi

My name is Jason, I go to a support chatroom for kids that uses Java softwear Microsoft has taken the Java softwear out of its XP computer softwear. Without the Java in the XP format that means other kids who dont have it cant get support from support chatrooms. Please consider having them put it back in their XP format so that adults and kids can get support online. Thank you

MTC-00012059

From: TOM (038) SUE PONTIUS

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:51pm

Subject: Settlement

Please settle the Microsoft case, it is fair to all but most importantly the consumer!

Tom and Sue Pontius
Mariemont, Ohio

MTC-00012060

From: Arcilla, Ryan

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:52pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Department of Justice,

I strongly agree with the proposed Microsoft settlement. I question the motives of the nine states that refuse to join in the settlement. Is it a coincidence that these states are the home to some of Microsoft's rivals? Obviously not. I hope these non-joining states are looking out for consumers and not for Microsoft's competition.

I use Microsoft products and I also have a choice on what to install on my computers. I also use Linux, StarOffice from Sun, and a host of other non-Microsoft products. Consumers always had a choice.

This settlement should come to fruition. The non-joining states should reconsider.

Sincerely,
Ryan Arcilla

MTC-00012061

From: Michael A Waller

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:57pm

Subject: Microsoft Antitrust settlement

To whom it may concern. . . .

I believe that the Microsoft settlement is fair.

It's time that the DOJ realizes that Microsoft makes a greater contribution to the world of technology and the overall growth of our economy than the negative impact of their aggressive practices. I am in favor of the DOJ accepting the settlement and stopping the remainder of litigious actions in play.

Get on with life. There are bigger fish to fry.

Regards,
Michael A. Walter
25 Lexington Road
South Barrington, IL 60010

MTC-00012062

From: Deborah Kaplan Clancy

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 8:57pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

The Microsoft vs DOJ case has gone on long enough and wasted enough taxpayer money. I think and thought the case should have been dropped long ago. But, since that is not what happened, I implore you for a speedy resolution.

It's time to end this lawsuit.

I believe Microsoft DOES have the interests of the consumers at heart and believe this company should be left to do what it does best—create software. Because of Microsoft technology many companies are able to run their businesses better and faster.

The DOJ should move on to more important matters.

Sincerely,
Deborah Kaplan Clancy

MTC-00012063

From: Fussweg@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:01pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's put an end to the hounding of Microsoft, easily the most innovative and influential company of the last decade. As a computer geek (but not part of Microsoft), I was in the business when there were literally dozens of brands of personal computers, each with their own operating system and software. IBM's open architecture and Microsoft's DOS and Windows operating system put an end to the chaos. Microsoft's Office and email have become such a standard that it would be difficult to imagine a modern company without them. I also believe that the suit against Microsoft was the beginning of the stock market downturn. Yes, Microsoft has become a large company. Yes, Microsoft has zealously positioned itself as the market leader. Yes, Microsoft's Windows is now the world standard and has become one of the great American success stories. Microsoft should be allowed to continue its journey unshackled by excessive regulation. Please, allow them the "Freedom to Innovate".

Thanks,
Mac Salfen
Arlington, Texas

MTC-00012064

From: jsb

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:01pm

Subject: microsoft settlement

To whom it may concern:I would urge you stongly to approve the microsoft settlement!!!Microsoft provides real jobs to our country which are desperately needed.To continue this costly litigation under the guise of facilitating competition is a sham on our country.I am a hard working citizen and its time to end this horrible litigation to help out other competitors.

If these competors cant make a better product that is there problem.Thanks for your consideration.

MTC-00012065

From: Hgknuth@aol.com@inetgw

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:02pm

Subject: Microsoft settlement

The provisions of the agreement in the Microsoft settlement are tough, reasonable, fair to all parties involved, and go beyond the findings of Court of Appeals ruling.

Consumers, including myself, overwhelmingly agree that the settlement is good for us and the American economy, and we, overwhelmingly, want to move beyond this litigation. Yet 9 state's attorney generals refuse to listen to the citizens they serve, and refuse to accept the settlement.

It is long past time to take whatever action is necessary to get them on board and move on (a 2x4, maybe)! This process has gone way past helping the public, and is now actually doing harm. Thank you, Harvey Knuth 160 Regency Dr Conway, SC 29526

MTC-00012066

From: Bill Williams

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:03pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Please, enough is enough. Within the last thirty days I had sent an email to you folks praising you on coming to an agreement concerning Microsoft. Again I believe the settlement to be fair to all parties and now we must move on.

Please do all possible to bring this case to a swift close.

Regards,
W. G. Williams

MTC-00012067

From: Donald E. Olsby

To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:04pm

Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To all concerned. Would you please take the offer Microsoft has put on the table. It may serve you well to get out and about to realize how much Microsoft has helped our children. I am unable to understand how people are so selfish to deny our children the vast spectrum of the best and most innovative software in the world— for FREE ! They have to be self serving !! If it so important to hurt Microsoft in some way take them out behind the barn and slap them with a wet noodle. Thank God for Bill Gates and family that shares wealth like no other family—and for the children not the "The States" with there hands out to use it where?// Donald E. Olsby, Carol M. Olsby, Cynthia A. Olsby, Dean E. Olsby, Daniel S. Olsby, David E. Olsby, just another American family that knows the "RIGHT THING TO DO"=Settle Now!!!! Go Microsoft Corporation they can't take your brains away!!

Donald E.Olsby

MTC-00012068

From: Marge Moe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:09pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

This case should be settled immediately, it has gone on far too long. I suspect the only reason is to get more money from Microsoft. Please settle this so we can continue to receive the benefits of Microsoft's innovation.

MTC-00012069

From: charles jantho
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:09pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

IT IS MY SINCERE AND EARNEST OPINION THAT THE MICROSOFT SUIT BE SETTLED IN ITS' FAVOR IN THE MAJOR PART AND IMPLEMENTED AT THE EARLIEST DATE.

THANK YOU,
CHARLES ROBERT JANTHO
133 WELCOME ALLEY
BALTIMORE, MD. 21201

MTC-00012070

From: rbsox@att.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I do not own Microsoft Stock, but I use their products. No, I depend on their products and I also need their updates and innovation to continually improve the way things work for me. I do not support the concept that Microsoft has done anything wrong. Rather, I feel that they are being penalized simply for being successful at doing what they do.

Please do not take any punitive action toward them; rather, please reward them for their important contributions to our productivity and enjoyment of life.

Sincerely,
B. Richard Bowersox
A long-term resident of Ohio.

MTC-00012071

From: Malini Balakrishnan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:14pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

I believe that the Microsoft case should be settled as quickly as possible, and that the current settlement agreement is fair to all parties concerned.

Malini Balakrishnan

MTC-00012072

From: Ben Vega
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's get on with it. Have you not caused this Company enough unwarranted grief? Or do you think that prolonging the fiasco will serve to get your brain addled fifteen minutes of fame?

MTC-00012073

From: KATHIE MC CLURE
To: Microsoft ATR

Date: 1/15/02 9:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
To Whom it May Concern:

It is my opinion that the Antitrust Settlement that was made with Microsoft should be upheld in the interest of the economy and the furtherance of technology. I believe that the economy will suffer even more if the Microsoft case is not settled and goes back to court, especially in light of the events of September 11, 2001 and the war against terrorism. Thank you,

Sincerely,
Kathie L. McClure

MTC-00012074

From: Georgie Seitz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

Microsoft is responsible for creating millions of jobs.

At a time when our economy is so poor, we need to get companies like Microsoft back to work full time and out of the court system. The longer this trial continues the more our economy will suffer. Millions of Americans have already lost their jobs, and millions more will lose them soon if there is not a spark of hope to ignite the economy and the consumer confidence.

People will not spend, if they are in fear of losing their jobs or worst yet, if they have already lost their jobs. Let's get on with it and let one of the leading forces of our economy lead us out of this recession before it turns into a depression. We do not have anytime to waste, this case must be settled immediately. Microsoft and Bill Gates should be given a medal of honor and the fact that there has been an antitrust suite brought against them is total ridiculous. The most important consideration today is getting America back to work, getting Americans to spend money, and getting the economy back to normal. There are not many corporation left that can clearly lead the way in doing this, but Microsoft can and has done so before. If we waste any more time, they may lose the momentum to spark a resurgence and that would be devastating to us all.

A settlement to the states would result in little more than the outcome of the tobacco settlement. The only winners were the states who frivolously have spent the settlements on everything other than what the money was intended for. Is that the governments intent here too? I implore you to settle this case so Microsoft can continue to make the strides it has in the past by creating a competitive environment with new technologies which create jobs for us all.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,
Georgie Seitz
Certified Senior Consultant
IBM Global Services—USA
27 Commerce Drive
Cranford, NJ 07016
Phone: 908-931-4918
e-fax: 707-313-2433
Email: gseitz@us.ibm.com
God Bless America. God Bless the US Troops.

MTC-00012075

From: Ambugnu@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:23pm
Subject: Microsoft suit

Let Microsoft get back to developing more programming options rather than spending time and money on court fights. Until Windows came along computers were only for people who had time, money and energy to learn intense programming. Microsoft opened it up to the whole world.

Bonnie Magure

MTC-00012076

From: Laverne Wilson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

How can you possibly delay the Microsoft Settlement? It appears to me that too much has been made of a successful company that takes care of its employees and the other companies that Microsoft works with in the daily operation.

If you have so much time and money to spend please spend it on companies that take advantage of its employees and the other companies should be important to its day to day operation. Please settle with Microsoft as soon as possible and let them get on with what they do best. Make products that a tremendous number of United States citizens are very pleased to have at their fingertips.

MTC-00012077

From: Rita Silva—Home
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I think this whole entire case against Microsoft is absurd & should be dropped. In my humble opinion, Bill Gates came up with a good idea or two, developed those ideas and marketed them. There are those in the world who are jealous of his business skills and they decided to wreak havoc on Microsoft. I am disappointed that our judicial system would let this whole mess get so out of hand!

Rita F. Silva
8019 E. Troop Circle
Prescott Valley, AZ 86314
(928)772-2615—home
(928)442-5141—work

MTC-00012078

From: SBrown3633@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe there should be a settlement. Enough already! Too much time and money has been spent on this. Let Microsoft spend its efforts creating its wonderful products for the consumer. Sandra Brown

MTC-00012079

From: BryanLizG@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

201 Freedom Court
Rockwall, Texas 75032
January 9, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft

US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

After three years I believe it is time to end the Microsoft antitrust case. The settlement that you have reached with Microsoft will end this case at least at the federal level. This settlement represents the most viable solution to date in this case, and that is should be put in place soon. Despite the contention by some that this settlement is not hard enough against Microsoft this settlement is fair and balanced. The settlement will end any contractual restrictions Microsoft may have that could possibly harm competitors. Furthermore Microsoft has agreed to share formerly secret information with competitors so they will be able to place their own programs on Microsoft's operating system. The only reason to continue this case would be to satisfy those with anti Microsoft bias, and this we should not do. This settlement will bring our country back towards economic health, and for that reason it should be supported. I do not want to see any more legal action taken against Microsoft. Sincerely, Bryan Griesbach

MTC-00012080

From: June
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:05pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

PLEASE -SETTLE THIS SITUATION AND LET MICROSOFT DO IT'S JOB. DO NOT WE HAVE ENOUGH PROBLEMS IN THE WORLD WITHOUT DRAGGING THIS THING ANY FURTHER. WE NEED TO FOCUS OUR MONEY TOWARD SOMETHING CONSTRUCTIVE. IF SOME ONE WANTS TO BUILD HIS OR HER POLITICAL FUTURE LET THEM LOOK FOR SOMETHING OTHER THAN MICROSOFT. LET THE AMBITIOUS FOLKS AT MICROSOFT INVENT. AFTER ALL THEY DO IT BEST AND OTHERS WANT TO PROFIT FROM IT. SO FAR THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALLOWED THAT TO HAPPEN. JUNE HUBER 701 14TH NE EAST WENATCHEE, WA 98802

MTC-00012081

From: dgcj4
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:33pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs:

This case has turned into another political, counter productive, bad for the country's economy and spirit exercise that too often occurs when soap boxes and greed are supported by competitors and those who covet the success of others. This has gone on far too long. Between a judge who used his position to most inappropriately foster his personal and perhaps others' prejudices and the politicians and lawyers who want to make many dollars by hiding their greed behind the hollow statements of justice for the common man, this case is an embarrassment to the country, our justice system and common sense. The common man, with free choices, has selected Microsoft products millions and millions of times—I suppose this would irritate a competitor. The ability of competitors to have the government use my tax dollars and resources to do their dirty work is disgusting. Having spoken to friends in other countries, we are the laughing stock around the world for, particularly in these times, forcing one of our most successful and creative companies to defend itself against the bottomless well of government. This certainly does represent me. There are many millions of people who understand that Microsoft may at some point played too hard ball in this highly competitive industry and some reasonable price is to be paid, but thus far it has gone beyond reason. We are not, and do not want a socialist government that discourages ambition and incentive. Our government is supposed to work for all people even those in business that work hard to grow and keep people employed have not chosen to base themselves in any number of other countries who would be eager to have them. Settle this thing now and reasonably. The sooner the better for both sides and our country.

MTC-00012082

From: Karl Van Blankenburg
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear U.S. Department of Justice, Please proceed with settling the case with Microsoft. The United States has far more greater issues that it needs to focus on rather than continuing to pursue litigation against a U.S. company. I believe that the proposed settlement is fair and just. Please let us focus on the other pressing issues at hand to make this a better and safer place. Thank you, Karl Van Blankenburg

MTC-00012083

From: AL FRODERBERG
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:36pm
Subject: Settlement

It is time to settle this case—the attorneys general have grandstanded long enough. I am tired of their political machinations. End it!

MTC-00012084

From: Motelman2@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:38pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

The Dept of Justice and all but nine states have spoken. The Microsoft matter should now be settled as proposed. The actions of the minority (9 states) should not be allowed to overrule the actions of the majority. In these times of economic uncertainty, we have better things to do with our energy and funds than to drag out the Microsoft matter unnecessarily. H. Johnson, New Jersey

MTC-00012085

From: Edward W. Hackett
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Please stop these never ending court cases. Settle the case and let MicroSoft go back to making the software we all need and use.——— Join the world's largest e-mail service with MSN Hotmail. <http://www.hotmail.com>

MTC-00012086

From: Cdory22@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:44pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

My feelings on the remaining states holding out on the settlement reached, is one of unbelief. Microsoft and its products have never harmed me or anyone I know in any way whatsoever. For these holdout states to not settle on this fair agreement is not in anyones interest in this country. With the economy reeling and taxpayers dollars being wasted on further litigation is crazy. This company has done nothing but developed better products than the competition, which has benefited me and not harmed me in any way. I urge you to settle this litigation by accepting the tentative agreement reached, so this country can move along with innovating. Also this economy does not need anymore stumbling blocks. Thanks for letting me share my thoughts on this very important matter. I hope you choose to settle. Sincerely: Jeffrey D. Schmitt

MTC-00012087

From: Kenneth Bond
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Hi

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I would like to say how much Microsoft has added to my life by providing programs and software that an older person like myself can use and depend on and I think at a very reasonable price. I would hate to see all the progress Microsoft has made be destroyed in favor of competitor's that are trying to destroy Microsoft. Microsoft has brought the whole world into the high tech arena which has created millions of jobs and economic advances which will probably lead to many more. So I say lets not kill this horse because we have all benefited from it.

Sincerely,
Kenneth Bond
CC: Kenneth Bond

MTC-00012088

From: Larry Clason
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:45pm
Subject: MicroSoft Settlement

I respectfully request that the Department of Justice not appeal the revised proposed settlement in the (Subject) case. I feel that further contest of the legalities and punishments would be a further waste of everyone's tax dollars—money that could be much better spent by each one of us to increase the quality of life for ourselves, our families, and our neighbors. Most sincerely,

Larry F. Clason
larryc@itis.com
112 N. Mills Street, #207
Madison, Wisconsin 53715

MTC-00012089

From: PegHMcL@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:47pm
Subject: Leave them alone.

It is my desire that you simply leave Microsoft alone. They have done so much for our world, the computer age, and advances beyond belief. If they make money by doing so, then so what? Doesn't everyone need money? On top of that, they are giving back to our society, not only with unimaginable feats in technology, but through monetary gifts as well. GO! MICROSOFT!! Let's clean out our own closets, then maybe our views will be clearer. Peggy Youngblood

MTC-00012090

From: Paul Goetsch
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:46pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

The time has come for all the states that are holding out to either settle or have it done for them. We have spent too much time and tax payers money already on a case that never should have started to begin with. . Please get off the dime. PR Goetsch

MTC-00012091

From: Bob McDermott
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:51pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Please get off Bill Gate's back, & go catch some terrorists instead!!!!

MTC-00012092

From: raven3001
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's sad with all the other things going on like the WTC, recession, and war, that people are so petty that they think they paid too much for a free browser. I think this anti-trust business has gone on too long and costing the tax payers too much money. I believe that this bogus lawsuit angst Microsoft is a bunch of money-hungry, sleazy lawyers and showboating bureaucrats trying to justify their existence.

Tired Of Hearing About small Petty Problems.

J. C. Oost.

MTC-00012093

From: Pat Collins
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
P.O. Box 315
Belmont Street
Carbondale, PA 18407-0315
January 15, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530-0001

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft:

It is considerate of Microsoft, as the dominant source of hardware and software, to open its doors to competitors. I realize that they have been in an antitrust settlement with the U.S. government for three years. So I am glad that they will have a fresh new start in software development. One way that Microsoft is providing their expertise in software development is by configuring Windows so as to promote non-Microsoft software programs as well as their own. The interim release of Windows XP will ensure that computer makers, consumers, and software developers can promote non-

Microsoft software within Windows. Not only will this benefit the computer manufacturers, but it will give choice to the consumers as well.

I am glad that the leading American company in software development will finally be released from the grip of this antitrust settlement. Now Microsoft can focus on doing what they do best, being innovative in software development. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Patrick Collins
cc: Senator Rick Santorum

MTC-00012094

From: Victor Hoover Sr.
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

To whomever it may concern.

In my opinion, the legal action against Microsoft should never have gone to court, but since it has, it should be settled quickly with no further litigation's. I believe that court actions against the corp. of Microsoft is not in the best interest of the public.

In contrast to what the competition would like the public to believe, I believe that Microsoft has done more than any similar business unit in making computer systems available, useful and affordable.

Thanks
Victor Hoover

MTC-00012095

From: Stuart Thiel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:00pm
Subject: Civil Action No. 98-1232 (CKK), etc.

This is my opinion on what I have read. I am 3rd year University student in the field of Software Engineering and a part time software consultant, software designer.

Regarding Sun's suggestions that the proposed civil action against Microsoft: ***

1 Fails to reduce the application barrier to entry that Microsoft was found to have illegally protected;

2 Fails to remedy the injury done to the Java™ technology community;

3 Fails to remedy the illegal injury that Microsoft was found to have done to Netscape Navigator and the browser market;

4 Fails to curtail Microsoft's illegal bundling of middleware programs including browsers, media players, and instant messaging software into the monopoly Windows operating system;

5 Is ambiguous and subject to manipulation by Microsoft because it lacks an effective enforcement mechanism. ***

I have little/no information regarding the first point. I would fully agree with the second point (being very interested in java development). I would agree with the 3rd point, especially considering Microsoft's habit of ignoring the majority of standards and modifying existing systems (Javascript) just enough that they have to be re-written to be IE specific (not to mention that they feel renaming it to DHTML and calling it a new language fixes that. . .). I have some difficulty agreeing with the 4th point as it clearly indicates in the proposed action that OEM and others may remove icons of Microsoft stuff stated above and add non-Microsoft software. I would agree with the enforcement issue. A firmer/clearer stance should be taken regarding enforcement as Microsoft is large enough to ignore tiny barbs.

With regards to the following sections of the proposed action (not properly quoted, but still getting the main idea): ***

III.C.3

Microsoft shall not restrict by agreement any OEM licensee from exercising any of the following options or alternatives:

* Launching automatically, at the conclusion of the initial boot sequence or subsequent boot sequences, or upon connections to or disconnections from the Internet, any Non-Microsoft Middleware if a Microsoft Middleware Product that provides similar functionality would otherwise be launched automatically at that time, provided that any such Non-Microsoft Middleware displays on the desktop no user interface or a user interface of similar size and shape to the user interface displayed by the corresponding Microsoft Middleware Product.

III.H.3

1. Ensure that a Windows Operating System Product does not (a) automatically alter an OEM's configuration of icons, shortcuts or menu entries installed or displayed by the OEM pursuant to Section III.C of this Final Judgment without first seeking confirmation from the user and (b) seek such confirmation from the end user for an automatic (as opposed to user-initiated) alteration of the OEM's configuration until 14 days after the initial boot up of a new Personal Computer. Microsoft shall not alter the manner in which a Windows Operating System Product automatically alters an OEM's configuration of icons, shortcuts or menu entries other than in a new version of a Windows Operating System Product. ***

Section III.C.3 seems to be saying that Microsoft may restrict OEMs from displaying a user interface completely dissimilar to that of Microsoft software. This is very wrong in that Microsoft then has control of the user interfaces developed, thus fortifying its monopoly position. I may have misunderstood this section, it seems ambiguous. I feel that it would be better to say that Microsoft has no right to restrict OEMs from using any software based on the user interface period.

Section III.H.3 has a section that states Microsoft software may modify an OEM configuration without warning after 14 days from initial boot-up. This is clearly a bad idea. Whether 1 day, 14 days or 100 days from any point, software should not modify configurations of other software without warning (when automatically initiated) unless the original soft was intended to be updated in that manner possibly with specific intent to be modified by the modifying software exclusively or inclusively. Otherwise, we call the modifying software a virus. The exception to this, is the upgrading of OS or software that the modified software is based upon, in which case automatic modification of the original configuration should be allowed if it is necessary to continue the proper functionality of the software modified. Lastly, a clear definition needs to be made as to what the modification of a configuration is, as one could consider changing the order of icons a change in configuration given the existing proposed action (which would be false in my opinion).

Thank you.
Stuart Thiel

MTC-00012096

From: Bill Sharpe
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I urge you to accept the settlement in this case. No more taxpayer's money needs to be wasted in pursuing this litigation further. Let the market and consumers control the fate of Microsoft, not the courts.

William E. Sharpe
1 Silver Oak Court
Pooler, GA 31322

MTC-00012097

From: evelyn saunders
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:08pm
Subject: Microsoft SETTLEMENT
I AGREE WITH MICROSOFT.

GOVERNMENT NEEDS TO LEAVE THEM ALONE.

MTC-00012098

From: Al Wedekind
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 9:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Let's get this settled and let Microsoft continue to do what they do best and that is to satisfy their customers. We think they are great!

MTC-00012099

From: LWellsNYC@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:09pm
Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT

As a citizen of the US and a stockholder of Microsoft, I urge the Department of Justice to accept the terms of the settlement now on the table. It is our taxpayer dollars that pays for the litigation, it is our consumer dollars that pay for the products and it is our brains that choose the products that we want. In a country founded on the principals of equality and freedom, every company has a clear, even playing field, but only a few rise to the top. This is America, after all, and that is the reward of Democracy, but not of Socialism. I thank God all our voices can be heard.

Lynda Wells
311 E. 72nd St.
NYC, NY 10021

MTC-00012100

From: Louis F. McDonald
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Without question, settlement of the Microsoft antitrust litigation is in my best interest as well as the best interest of the rest of those who use personal computers.

Louis F. McDonald
4250 Lansdowne Dr.
Atlanta, GA 30339-4615

(770) 434-3816

MTC-00012101

From: JOHN CAMPBELL
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:55pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
JOHN CAMPBELL
5040 N DESERT TORTOISE PL
TUCSON, az 85745
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:
leave microsoft to the marketplace,we consumers are perfectly capable of defending ourselves against predatory pricing and price fixing.

Sincerely,
JOHN CAMPBELL

MTC-00012103

From: Blair Marsteller
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:15pm
Subject: The settlement

Dear DOJ:
I believe the settlement pounded out which all but a few states have signed is good. Microsoft should not be subjected to further measures and the nine states should agree to the fair and reasonable settlement the DOJ and the other states have produced. Say no to further troubles and litigation. Let the reasonable settlement stand.

Blair Marsteller

MTC-00012104

From: Zanetta Laskaris
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I have been following the litigation of DoJ against Microsoft for several years now, and as a concerned citizen I would like to voice my opinion that it is in the public interest of consumers that this case be settled as soon as possible rather than continue with further litigation.

MTC-00012105

From: Wallace Greene (MSLI)
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement-A GOOD THING!

I am more than pleased that the United States Government has come to a settlement agreement with Microsoft. Our country certainly has more pressing matters than fighting an American company that we should all be proud of. A company that is innovative and energetic, to the benefit of so many.

Thank you
Wallace Greene

This communication is strictly private and contains confidential information intended solely for the addressee(s). Access to this communication by parties other than the intended recipient(s) is unauthorized. If you have received this communication in error and are not the intended recipient, any disclosure, copying, distribution or action taken is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful.

MTC-00012106

From: John Manning
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:19pm
Subject: anti trust suit

When are politicians going to get it? They are not in business to break all of us, they are going to far again and again. Tax payers and our daily Joe Nobody are going to find a way to get someone in office that will follow their lead and not what the parties want!

John Manning
johnm23301@earthlink.net
EarthLink: The #1 provider of the Real Internet.

MTC-00012107

From: Bill Mcilveen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:24pm

Subject: Why don't you just leave Microsoft alone. These attorney generals should

Why don't you just leave Microsoft alone. These attorney generals should concentrate on the problems of their own states. Chasing deep pockets so they can spend additional money on state pork projects (RE: Cigarette settlement) is a load of crap. The American consumer is bright enough to make their own decisions. The public would be better served if these guys would go after clowns like ENRON. Must be all of the graft is gone at that point.

MTC-00012108

From: Glennp58@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:25pm

Subject: Comments on Microsoft settlement

I am not a developer, I am a home user of a PC. I am concerned that Microsoft is starting to take advantage of not only the industry, but the public at large. I have been informed that Microsoft now has a mechanism in their Windows XP operating system which sends the registry back to Microsoft if the system is connected to the internet. Considering that I would guess that a conservative 90% of the pc's are running Microsoft operating systems and are connected to the internet, this is disconcerting to me. The registry includes everything about the hardware, the software you run, whether it be Microsoft applications or not and information about each user of the system. This is not only an unfair advantage for Microsoft in the marketplace, but an invasion of privacy. I know that not many systems are running Windows XP at this time, but that will change as Microsoft stops distributing and supporting Windows 98 and ME.

Please consider this while deciding what is fair to the American public.

Kindest regards,
Glenn Philllips

MTC-00012109

From: Shuryl A Potter
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Department of Justice;

My family along with many friends, beg you to vote in favor of Microsoft. We admire Microsoft for everything they stand for. The courts and their completion may see Mr. Bill Gates as a Butt head, but we the people view him as a Great businessperson, who created great, jobs, serves not only his community but contributes large amounts of money to many great causes throughout the world. Again, we sincerely beg the courts not to destroy Microsoft, one of the greatest corporations in America today.

Shuryl A. Potter

MTC-00012110

From: Keith Bingaman
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Keith A. Bingaman
119 Main Street
Lykens, Pennsylvania 17048
January 14, 2002
Attorney General John Ashcroft
US Department of Justice
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Mr. Ashcroft:

I would like to see the Microsoft antitrust case settle as soon as possible. I do not believe this case should have been brought against Microsoft in the first place. It is in the best interest of everyone that the Court approves the settlement as soon as possible. Microsoft has really gone far beyond what should be expected of them in the interest of bringing this case to a close. They have taken steps to make their servers operable with those of its competitors. They have also agreed not to impose any contractual restrictions on third parties that will require them to exclusively distribute or promote Microsoft products. These types of concessions will help ensure that no antitrust laws are violated. Settling this case will benefit the technology industry and consumers alike. Thank you for your efforts to bring this case to its resolution.

Sincerely,

Keith Bingaman cc: Senator Rick Santorum
Representative George W. Gekas

MTC-00012111

From: mdonald
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to put this to rest for good and Finally.

Miriam E Donaldson m donald@alaweb.com

MTC-00012112

From: Jesse Stence
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:31pm
Subject: microsoft settlement

Please settle the Microsoft problem by helping the schools soon. Sincerely Jesse Stence

MTC-00012113

From: BGFG57@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:30pm
Subject: Micosoft Settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft,

I am writing to inform you that hearing of your decision to settle with Microsoft brought me relief and pleasure .Our nation has endured enough of this and this settlement is a fair one. It is time to move on to more pressing issues .

The complainants should be thrilled with the concessions Microsoft has made and allo should look forward to putting their energies to the most productive causes.

I urge you to promote and support this settlement and end this litigation.Thank You.

Brian Grimm 8 Apache Drive
Englishtown,New Jersey

MTC-00012114

From: SunRm60@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement To Whom It May Concern:

Please settle this litigation as soon as possible.

Marianne Montrose

MTC-00012115

From: WIN B ENDERS
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:36pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Stop this endless and expensive litigation once and for all. Microsoft is the goose that lays golden eggs for our economy. Don't kill it!

win enders

MTC-00012116

From: Walt Statkiewicz
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Firstly, it was the consumer who gave Microsoft the monopoly through its choice of purchases when there was competition. Through their choice, the consumer essentially voted for a Microsoft dominant environment to simplify their computing needs. Without this populous consent, the consumer would be left to determine on their own whether some new software and / or hardware would work properly with their system. This is sometimes difficult for the experts let alone the individual who only wants to send and print emails.

The consistency standards enabled the productivity gains of the consumers and fostered the growth of the American economy for the past ten years. The point here is that it was an active choice by the consumer and not a situation that only Microsoft could push their products down the consumer's throats. When the decision by the consumer was being made, alternatives were available that offered similar environments (e.g., IBM's OS2, Apple Computer's Macintosh, etc.). At that date in time, one could hardly argue that Microsoft was too large for someone like IBM to challenge. Yet Microsoft did challenge IBM and enabled innovation and productivity gains that formed the foundation for much of today's computing technology.

Microsoft learns from its markets what the users desire, works at making the changes that users desire, and has become dependable at issuing updates that users desire. Without these three things, many people might recommend other software, but the other companies either do not or cannot provide these things which businesses depend upon. Indeed, many companies are having trouble maintaining their businesses because the competition is fierce and hard to deal with. Not because there is only one competitor (i.e., Microsoft) and you can't compete against them. Companies such as Adobe compete with Microsoft all the time and have been doing so for many years.

You will note that Adobe follows the same things listed above as prerequisites for success: they learn from their markets what the users desire, they work at making the changes that users desire, and they are dependable at issuing updates that users desire. In other words, these companies provide comfort for the users and the future of computing.

These are the notions that consumers use to make sure their work get's done. The essence of the arguments presented here is that the consumers are the ones who drive the industry and whenever innovation occurs, the consumers decide based on a set of business rules whether a company can compete or not. To think otherwise would be to deny that business and consumers are some idealists that have no justifications for their actions and can simply be manipulated through mass marketing. Such people would not survive for very long in today's fast paced global economy.

Walter R. Statkiewicz
218 Sivia St.
N. Cape May, NJ, 08204

MTC-00012117

From: kitsten matson
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:40pm
Subject: SETTELMENT.
January 14, 2002

It make me very angry that "The Justice Department" continues to keep Microsoft in the courts. How many years does it take? How much does Microsoft have to give up? Remember this is the land of the free and where everyones dreams can come true, except when you don't like someone. It got so out of hand during "The Clinton Administration" Microsoft is a huge player in our economy and everyone knows what happened when Janet Reno and Co. went after them. Not many companies would be able to survive the length of time you have kept Microsoft in the courts.

I would like to see the Justice Department go after fraud in the Government with as much determination as it has gone after Microsoft.

SETTLE THIS SUIT!

Sincerely, Kirsten Matson

MSN Photos is the easiest way to share and print your photos: Click Here

MTC-00012118

From: Robert Grauel
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 10:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It's time to settle the Microsoft antitrust case and move on. I fear greed is getting in the way of the good judgement of nine attorneys general.

MTC-00012119

From: Frank Harmuth
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:41pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Please do not appeal the Microsoft Settlement.

Frank D. Harmuth
 1128 Sweet Spot Circle
 Morrisville, NC 27560
 e-mail address:
 harmuthfd@worldnet.att.net

MTC-00012120

From: hayho
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:43pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Please do what is best for the economy and settle the suits against Microsoft.
 Thanks

MTC-00012121

From: Lloyd McKee
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:48pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Hello, The United States government needs to request Microsoft to maintain a data base of all bugs in Microsoft products and Microsoft fairly compensate people who discover any bugs in Microsoft products. The United States government needs to increase the punishment against Microsoft.
 lloydmckee@attbi.com

MTC-00012122

From: Byron Stavrou
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:51pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Please quit punishing Microsoft. There is enough trouble in this world. Let's let one of our economy's strongest influences help right the ship. Market forces will dictate Microsoft's future.
 Byron Stavrou

MTC-00012123

From: Drlaser@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:54pm
 Subject: MICROSOFT SETTLEMENT
 PLEASE SETTLE THIS REDICULOUS ASSAULT ON THE BEST INNOVATIVE INSTITUTION IN THE USA (THAT WILL BE ATTACKED BY FOREIGN CORPORATIONS) BY AGREEING WITH THE MICROSOFT APPROACH TO ENDING THE LITIGATION AND MAKING MICROSOFT THE AMERICAN ANSWER TO THE 21ST CENTURY REGARDING COMPUTER TECHNOLOGY AND AMERICAN SURVIVAL IN THIS GLOBAL ECONOMY—
 FRANCIS A. L'ESPERANCE, JR. M.D.

MTC-00012124

From: KATHLEEN JENKINS
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/15/02 8:56pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 KATHLEEN JENKINS
 3315 CR 762
 JONESBORO, AR 72401
 January 15, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement: The lawsuit against Microsoft was a stupid waste of our tax dollars. And it harmed investors in the high-tech industry, without giving us any benefit in return. It is time for this trial, and the wasteful spending, to be ended. Consumers need to see competition in the marketplace, rather than in the courtroom. Competition creates better goods and services for the consumers, and Microsoft has done a great job of giving us what we want and need, at ever better prices. Let's get our government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations.

Sincerely,
 Kathleen Jenkins

MTC-00012125

From: charles jantho
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:56pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement
 IT IS MY SINCERE AND EARNEST OPINION THAT THE MICROSOFT SUIT BE SETTLED IN ITS' FAVOR IN THE MAJOR PART AND IMPLEMENTED AT THE EARLIEST DATE.
 THANK YOU,
 CHARLES ROBERT JANTHO
 133 WELCOME ALLEY
 BALTIMORE, MD. 21201

MTC-00012126

From: HALCAMICIA@aol.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement
 Gentlemen, we have spent far to long on thwarting microsoft from moving forward with their innovations and resulting benefits to we consumers. The products that microsoft developed has enhanced my life significantly and at a price which I feel is fair. Continuing this case further only makes the lawyers in this country richer and we consumers/tax payers poorer financially and intellectually. Lets settle the bloody case and get on with life. yours truly.
 Harold P. Camicia

MTC-00012127

From: Bernard
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:57pm
 Subject: Microsoft settlement
 Let us end the farce of competitors trying to enrich themselves with the Governments help. Microsoft has done no harm to anyone. It has helped us tremendously.
 The others can whine and cry and try and to tare Microsoft down for their own benefit. Please don't help them.
 Help Microsoft!
 End this Now!
 Thank you,
 B Gert Hollin

MTC-00012128

From: Edgar Gallardo
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 10:58pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To the United States Department of Justice:

In light of the ruling handed down by the court finding Microsoft guilty of monopolizing several aspects of software and operating systems, I wish to voice my hopes that your agency will punish the corporation.

Fines and token apologies are not enough in my opinion, especially considering the vast amounts of revenue that the company has produced along with the powerful grip over countless businesses, home owners, even school districts. Significant restraints and reprimands should be levied against the large corporation.

An idea gaining large acceptance within the technological community would be to standardize the Windows API code, which I believe would be a great step towards ensuring a more competitive market. Intellectual property is important and quite cherished in our society, but it is because of the great value placed on it that it must be the source of punishment for Microsoft.

Considering the vast resources the company has at its disposal, fines and lawsuits are hardly going to prevent or even hinder their continued stranglehold on the market they so obviously dominate.

Your duty is to prosecute those who violate the laws of the United States of America. If Microsoft was a first time offender, leniency would obviously come into play. However, they are in fact repeat offenders that have blatantly broken and scoffed at the laws in place to protect the greater population of society. I implore your agency to protect the consumers and competitors of Microsoft and force them to cooperate within our capitalist economy. We are driven by competition and market sharing, it is the core of our society. You are the best hope for society to topple the juggernaut.

MTC-00012129

From: jmorris
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:00pm
 Subject: Enough is Enough
 Why do we allow the Anti Trust action against Microsoft to drag on after it aww settled? You have made a deal to punish them and that's enough. The States continuing anti-trust action IMO have an anti business agenda or get a very successful business at any costs. Microsoft did wrong, got punishment and it's way past the time to move on.

MTC-00012130

From: ed barry
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:01pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Settle this matter as soon as possible. The only beneficiaries to ongoing litigation are the lawyers.
 Respectfully,
 Edward L. Barry

MTC-00012131

From: Ron Authier
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:04pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 To those involved; It is time to agree on this settlement and move on to other matters much more important to the taxpayers of this country.

Yours truly,
 Ronald G. Authier
 23 Cote Rd
 Monson, Ma 01057-9763

MTC-00012132

From: Bernard H
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:06pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Please end this, Now!

Microsoft should not be hurt to help Competitors who want to enrich themselves with the Governments help. Myself, my Companies all are very happy with our Microsoft Products. We wont even do business with the sniveling cowards who want the Government to enrich them by tearing down Microsoft. So please stop this now. More important things need to be dealt with.

MTC-00012133

From: Bill Marshfield
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:05pm
 Subject: Antitrust Settlement

I for one do not understand why the Federal Government wants to meddle around in private business when they can not even run the Government. What makes them think that they know how to run a business. If anyone of them could they would be in business where they would control their own destiny, not sponging off of the people of the United States. If these other companies cannot compete then they should get out of the business.

As I heard the other day. From the Democrats point of view it is scandalous for the White House to let Enron go under but OK for the House and Senate to attempt to put Microsoft out of business. Fed's leave Microsoft alone and let them do their business the way they know how.

William E. Marshfield
 20 Fox Glove Ct.
 Reno, NV 89511

MTC-00012134

From: Bill
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:06pm
 Renata B. Hesse
 Antitrust Division
 U.S. Department of Justice
 601 D Street NW
 Suite 1200
 Washington, DC 20530-0001

As a consumer I feel Microsoft has damaged, prevented and delayed innovation in the computer industry. Microsoft's dominance (technical monopoly) severely limits competition and innovation. Even though I am a member of the Microsoft Freedom to Innovate Network, I still feel changes must be brought about to promote the growth and innovation that Microsoft's monopoly position is limiting. I don't feel I can give a adequate description of the complex and integrated relations within the technical industry and computer technique itself in this email. but as a consumer I urge the justice department to act to limit Microsoft's control of the software marketplace. I don't know if I should list the blue screen, Dr. Watson, crashes, of other issues. I don't know if the recent "market control" exhibited with the release of XP and "2000" product version has been presented in this case. If not please let me present a consumer who is being forced to "choice Microsoft" not because the products are good, but because they are the only ones available, because "Microsoft owns the market place.

I can't resist giving one example in a recent book published by Microsoft Press "Microsoft Visio Version 2002 Inside Out" by Nanette J. Eaton; ISBN 0-7356-1285-4. On page 11 under the title "Features Deleted from Visio" . . .some tools, . . .have been removed from Visio 2002 . . . In some cases, Microsoft plans to make an add-on or tool available as a download . . . In general Microsoft has consolidated it's control. While Microsoft speaks of it's innovation, most is not all Microsoft's products and ideas were copied from a want-to-be competitor or bought. Apple, SUN, Netscape all are reminisces of good companies now playing second fiddle in Microsoft land. If this includes breaking the company up, making the core code open source, I can't say, but one or more activities should be implemented. Please continue with the case against Microsoft, don't let Microsoft buy of the government. The justice department is the last hope.

Thank you
 Keith Elkin
 Keith Elkin
 1800 Beech CT
 Frederick, MD 21701.
 SN 229-62-4368

MTC-00012135

From: ateepee
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:06pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement

May I urge you to settle the Microsoft case as soon as is possible. From my viewpoint, Microsoft has provided great benefit to the consumer, and all the anti-trust actions are a grave injustice to Microsoft. I am convinced that the growth of the PC market and business is largely due to the fact that Microsoft provided a 'standard' software which enabled all of us to work on the same wave-length. Let's continue to have America reward those that provide the most benefit to the nation—not arbitrarily reduce everyone to the 'lowest common denominator'.

Thank you.
 T. P. Higgins,

MTC-00012136

From: maryasara
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 So settle it already.

MTC-00012137

From: Glenn Sproule
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:09pm
 Subject: Antitrust Settlement

It is my opinion that the antitrust suite should be settled without further investigation or delay in which would be in the best interests of the consumers.

W.G.Sproule MD

California
 CC:GLENN SPROULE

MTC-00012138

From: mlorr1@juno.com@inetgw
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:08pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Gentlemen:

I believe it is in the public interest that all government entities drop their current law suits against Microsoft. Our government, both state and federal, should not prosecute and persecute people and organizations for being successful. If they have violated the law; then enforce the law. If they have not; then get the governments hand and the lawyers hands out of their pocket.

Respectfully,
 Marvin L. Orr
 P.O. Box 63
 Moreland, Idaho 83256

MTC-00012139

From: Kathryn Mills
 To: Microsoft Settlement
 Date: 1/15/02 7:38pm
 Subject: Microsoft Settlement
 Kathryn Mills
 3275 West 128 St.
 Cleveland, OH 44111
 January 15, 2002
 Microsoft Settlement
 U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
 Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

It is time that we put the litigation against Microsoft to rest. Enough of the taxpayers' dollars have been squandered. This trial must be over. The marketplace, not the courtroom, should now decide how Microsoft performs. We need to unshackle Microsoft so that they can again be innovative and creative in the hi-tech economy . . . moving freely and competitively. The consumers need it . . . the investors certainly need to know that the hi-tech industry is again on steady ground.

Let America do what America does best in the marketplace . . . allow an economy to grow freely and creatively . . . this will not happen if we continue to drag this company, and others, through the courts. Enough is enough!

Sincerely,
 Kathryn C. Mills

MTC-00012140

From: Rick Girdner
 To: Microsoft ATR
 Date: 1/15/02 11:12pm
 Subject: microsoft settlement

Dear Sirs,

I am sure everyone is hammering you guys over the Microsoft settlement. My main concern is that the way Microsoft wants to pay their debt to society is through a giant sales campaign to the schools. I am so tired of people in Washington doing crappy jobs on every front, then saying they are doing it for the good of the CHILDREN. This is the wrong settlement for America. Have their executives go out and pick up trash if they want to do some real good things, but do not let them infiltrate the schools with sales pitches.

Thank you,

Rick Girdner, Concerned Taxpayer

MTC-00012141

From: Tracy Pipkin
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Monopoly
Please break up the Microsoft monopoly
. . . as an IT professional, they have caused much grief over the last 10-15 years.
Thanks.
CC:attorney.general@po.state.ct.us@inetgw

MTC-00012142

From: Arsenio Calle
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
For the good of the Us and of our economy
I humbly ask that this case be settled as soon as possible. The Us needs less litigation and more innovation to get the economy going again. This litigation is only helping the economy of the lawyers involved in the case.
Respectfully,
Arsenio Calle

MTC-00012143

From: Bob Condie
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:18pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
I've been involved with the computer days since its inception. Let Microsoft play in the free market. There products are great and have set the standard and platform for the future that no other company could have.
Others can compete with the latest and greatest technology.
Bob Condie
Executive Director of Engineering
(303) 652-3464

MTC-00012144

From: ICUTTER@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:21pm
Subject: microsoft settlement
I believe that this matter ought to be settled immediately. It is a drain on the economy, and if one polled the many millions of users of msft products, I believe it would be difficult to justify that we were overcharged for an operating system that we freely chose (over Apple or Linux), and that we use every day, with additional features added at no extra charge. I still remember that I had to forgo getting Netscape because I did not want to spend hundreds of extra dollars—in the end, I got it free from msft.

MTC-00012145

From: Warren Taylor
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Enough litigation already! Settle the Microsoft suit and let's get back to the business of innovation. This was never about the interests of the consumer but only about the pathetic attempt of competitors to do in the court room what they couldn't do in the market place. As I believe the secretary of the US Treasury said of the Enron collapse:
That's the genius of the free market system;
you have winners and losers. In this case, only sore losers who convinced enough people so that years later we're still suffering the effects of this ill timed and poorly managed suit. Witness the collapse of the high tech market. We, the consumers of high tech goods and services, are the losers.

Best wishes,
Rev. Warren F. Taylor
607 E Mulberry Ave
Porterville, CA 93257
559-781-0266 the
So we row on . . . boats against the current— f. scott fitzgerald

MTC-00012146

From: Steve T
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dear Sir/Madam.
My name is Steve Tripp, and I live in a small town in Iowa and work at a local ISP.
I will not pretend to know the legal minutia of the case, but have been keeping abreast of the situation through online news and newsgroups. I have used Microsoft products at work, not because they are the best or even good, but because there is no other choice.
The software market did not start out as a monopoly, and the best man did not win. But as someone who works with computers every day, and would even if I did not get paid for it, I know who the losers are. . . we are.
What truly amazes me is watching supposed experts debate whether or not Microsoft as a monopoly has hurt the industry. As a Network/Internet technician in Algona, Iowa
I deal with Microsoft products every day at work, but will not have them in my home.
I know they have hurt the industry, and I know their products are not the best that could be on the market. The Microsoft stranglehold on OS and application software needs to be relaxed, and Microsoft will not do so on its own.
Thank you for your time.
Steve Tripp
505 N. Main St.
Algona, IA 50511

MTC-00012147

From: ART1300@webtv.net@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Please do not appeal.

MTC-00012148

From: Curtis Killorn
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Attention: Renata B. Hesse
I wish to comment concerning the upcoming settlement of the corporation of Microsoft. Under the federal law of the Tunney Act, I believe I have this right. In my thirty years as a working tax paying citizen
I have never had a good experience with the products of Microsoft, my exposure is as follows:
I was a Composition Manager for the largest publication company in central Colorado for six years and found the software to be cumbersome and very difficult to carry out our daily work load without the constant problems which seemed to be inherent with this product. As technology progressed and the internet become much more important, our work load and complexity doubled. The experience of networking servers and work stations together with Microsoft programs required constant maintenance and a continual bills for technical support and training.

As a owner of the largest restaurant in Chaffee county, Colorado, I have inherited a point of sales system which runs on Microsoft. I have spent over $120,000 on a networked system which is at best faulty and at the worst useless. This system has been the source of constant frustration. The system promises great efficiency and productivity to help enhance the work load of a restaurant, but in turn has become the signal largest liability we have to contend with.

On a personal note: All the talk of Microsoft has been that they the "great innovators" and "revolutionary designers", well, I just don't see it. If this settlement allows Microsoft to "give" their leftover products to our children, Microsoft will only be given an even greater advantage to propagate their product. Here's an idea: why not have Microsoft pay Apple to give their new iMacs to the poorest schools in America.

Curtis Killorn Owner wind@chaffee.net
Check us out on-line @ www.windmillonline.com
The Windmill Restaurant
720 E. Rainbow Blvd.
Salida, CO 81201
719-539-3594 fx 719-539-3479

MTC-00012149

From: Simon Selitser
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
As a consumer and as a developer I do not believe that proposed final judgment (by DOJ and nine states) is in a public interest. I believe that this settlement will do little to restore competition or prevent Microsoft from monopoly behavior. Far more reaching in preventing Microsoft from abusing its monopoly are remedies proposed by nine states and District of Columbia and, if adapted, will protected the public interest.
Simon I. Selitser, Ph.D.
President,
TimeDomain CVD, Inc.
470 Division St.
Campbell, CA 95008

MTC-00012150

From: Ray Hix
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ray Hix
209 W Troy Street
Dothan, Al 36303
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530
Dear Microsoft Settlement:
The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ray Hix

MTC-00012151

From: Stan
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Don't you think you have spent enough of the tax payers hard earned money.

It is time to settle.

Stanley R. Kneppar
8109 Hibiscus Circle
Tamarac, Florida 33321-2134
(954) 720-0413

MTC-00012152

From: R. Ronald Corbett
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
R. Ronald Corbett
231 SE 45th Terrace
Ocala, FL 34471
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

It's time to leave Microsoft alone, to allow that big company to get back to producing good products and creating jobs for the American workers. The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars and was a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. Consumers should see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom.

Most Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, instead of wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
R. Ronald Corbett

MTC-00012153

From: Cy Rayburn
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Cy Rayburn
p o Box 83
Gibbon, NE 68840
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Cy Rayburn

MTC-00012154

From: Ken DeJonge
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ken DeJonge
2911 52nd SW.,
Grandville, MI 49418
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely, Ken DeJonge

MTC-00012155

From: Jane Smith
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jane Smith
27259 Hedge Rd
Albemarle, NC 28001
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jane Smith

MTC-00012156

From: Karl Hanson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Karl Hanson

76 Drew Ave.
Manchester, NH 03104
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Karl Hanson

MTC-00012157

From: Don Bates
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:36pm
Subject: Microsoft settlement

Dear Attorney General Ashcroft: Having been a Microsoft Windows user for over a decade, I would like to take a moment to go on record supporting the recent settlement reached between Microsoft and the Department of Justice. In my opinion Microsoft has been a target of unfair criticism over the years. Sure, as a Windows user I've had my share of headaches but I feel that overall the product is reasonably priced and a valuable addition to my lifestyle. I am pleased that the three-year-old antitrust suit against Microsoft is now over and being put to rest.

You are well aware of the terms of the settlement where Microsoft agreed to not enter into any agreements forcing any third party to distribute or promote any Windows technology exclusively. Personally, I'm pleased to see that Microsoft is being forced to turn over intellectual property to its competitors. This allows for software that is more compatible with Windows to be produced and allows for competition.

All in all, I am happy with the settlement because it is going to be beneficial to the American economy, the tech industry, and competition and in the end the consumer.

Sincerely,
Donald Bates,
Cincinnati, Ohio

MTC-00012158

From: Kenneth Brown
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kenneth Brown
PO Box 234
Windermere, FL 34786
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kenneth W Brown

MTC-00012159

From: Lynn Sant
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lynn Sant
P.O. Box 329
Preston, ID 83263-0329
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Lynn Sant

MTC-00012160

From: Ted Piatt
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ted Piatt
3403 Fox Lake Rd.
Wooster, Oh 44691
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ted Piatt

MTC-00012161

From: David S
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David S Campbell
Vanceboro, NC 28586-8055
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Steve Campbell

MTC-00012162

From: G. MARIC
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
G. MARIC

113 Crestwood Avenue
Branchburg, NJ 08876-3911
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
G. Maric

MTC-00012163

From: Robert Cave
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert Cave
4953 B Ave
Marcus, IA 51035-7009
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert C. Cave

MTC-00012164

From: David Houk
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Houk
217 Cedarwood Dr.
Madison, In 47250
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David Houk

MTC-00012165

From: John Gerber
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Gerber
698 S. Cascade Dr.
Woodburn, OR 97071-3022
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John Gerber

MTC-00012166

From: David Tiry
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:17pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Tiry
217 May St.
Rockland, Wi 54653
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David Tiry

MTC-00012167

From: William Peteet
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
William Peteet
2024 Fordham
Denton, Tx 76201
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

William Peteet

MTC-00012168

From: John Mackey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:38pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Mackey
3520 Scenic Dr
Redding, Ca 96991
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John E Mackey

MTC-00012169

From: Susan Blevins
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Susan Blevins
P.O. Box 162
Nashville, GA 31639
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Susan Blevins

MTC-00012170

From: Willis Gray
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:27pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Willis Gray
2218 Graystone Drive
Sumter, SC 29150
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Willis T. Gray

MTC-00012171

From: John Giesey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Giesey
203 Galway Dr.
Niceville, FL 32578-2377
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John Gieseey

MTC-00012172

From: Gary Stolp
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gary Stolp
1218 Boston Street
Muskogee, OK 74401
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gary C Stolp

MTC-00012173

From: David M. Holly
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David M. Holly
1211 Shady Lane
Tecumseh, MI 49286
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David M. Holly

MTC-00012174

From: patsy Rowzee
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Patsy Rowzee
P.O. Box 323
Slagle, La 71475
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Patsy Rowzee

MTC-00012175

From: Betty Lloyd
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Betty Lloyd
145 Valley Dr
Bridgeport, WV 26330
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Betty M Lloyd

MTC-00012176

From: Tracey Sigle
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Tracey Sigle
5303 Stockwell
Lincoln, NE 68506
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tracey Sigle

MTC-00012177

From: Kennyth Long
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kenneth Long
928 Dove Lane
Louisville, KY 40213-1322
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kenneth Long

MTC-00012178

From: Lynne Piper
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lynne Piper
8015 Chorale Ct
Houston, TX 77040
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Lynne Piper

MTC-00012179

From: James Lucas
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
James Lucas
11108 Church Rd.
Ellsworth, MI 49729
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James Lucas

MTC-00012180

From: David HARold
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David HARold
PO box 3465
Mount Airy, nc 27030
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David Harold

MTC-00012181

From: ICUTTER@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:36pm
Subject: msft settlement

We common people depend on the developers to make things easy for us. If there was not Windows, millions of people could never use a computer. Apple was out there for yrs., with a graphical user interface (GUI) but it took Windows which was fairly priced at about 80 dollars, to unlock the many millions of users nowadays— IT IS NOT

BECAUSE WE HAVE NO CHOICE——WE CHOSE Windows over IBM OS2, We chose Windows over Linux, and over Apple, and especially over UNIX and Xenix. Now there is a monopoly—if u were a physician, in 1990, there was absolutely no software other than UNIX/Xenix—and it cost thousands of dollars, and could only run certain types of applications . Please, please, please make this stupid lawsuit go away!!!!!!!!!!!!

MTC-00012182

From: John Moore
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:16pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Moore
22340 Bracketts Rd.,
Shorewood, MN 55331
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John W. Moore

MTC-00012183

From: Walter Kubli
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Walter Kubli
300 Solari Rd.
Coos Bay, OR 97420
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Walter Kubli

MTC-00012184

From: Glenn Dobson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Glenn Dobson
2203 Palmersville Hwy-89
Dresden, TN 38225
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Glenn Dobson

MTC-00012185

From: R Keith
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:21pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

R Keith
1146 Millers Mill Road
Stockbridge, GA 30281-4712
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Randy Keith

MTC-00012186

From: Jerry Franks
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jerry Franks
2353 Magnolia Dr
Little Elm, TX 75068
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jerry L Franks

MTC-00012187

From: Robert Bubala
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert Bubala
1103 E. Miller St.
Griffith, IN 46319
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert Bubala

MTC-00012188

From: Edward Citak
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Edward Citak
6216 Anaconda St.
Las Vegas, Nv 89108-3926
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Edward J. Citak

MTC-00012189

From: Jack Russell
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jack Russell
143 Adobe Court
Weatherford, TX 76087
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jack Russell

MTC-00012190

From: David Alvar
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Alvar
7727-236th St SW
Edmonds, WA 98036
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David M. Alvar

MTC-00012191

From: Sandi Johnson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sandi Johnson
3182 Quail Dr
Deltona, FL 32738
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sandi Johnson

MTC-00012192

From: Gary Guptill
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gary Guptill
P O Box 1
Springfield, SD 57062-0001
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gary Guptill

MTC-00012193

From: Allen Palmer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:29pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Allen Palmer
901 Easton Place
Dallas, TX 75218-2347
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over,

companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Allen Palmer

MTC-00012194

From: lander@samref.com.sa@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/15/02 11:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement.

The US and State governments continued action against Microsoft is ridiculous and a total waste of our taxpayers money. Microsoft is one of the greatest companies in the US and has produced fantastic products that no other software company can. When we have so much crime and criminal activities within companies (e.g. Enron) why are we continuing to punish success. Stop prosecuting Microsoft now!

Nigel Lander Superintendent CIS SAP
Project Manager
Samref Refinery, Yanbu, Saudi Arabia
Phone: +966-4-396-4590

MTC-00012195

From: Ed Johnson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ed Johnson
9541 Silver Spur Lane
Highlands Ranch, CO 80130
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ed Johnson

MTC-00012196

From: Kendall Funk
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kendall Funk
200 Aspen St. Apt. #23
Clayton, NM 88415
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kendall Funk

MTC-00012197

From: Carol Rowe
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Carol Rowe
102 W Railroad Box 366
Lake Park, IA 51347-0366
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Carol Rowe

MTC-00012198

From: art selhorn
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:07pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
art selhorn
3604 McCormick St . SE
olympia, wa 98501
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Art Selhorn

MTC-00012199

From: Kim Stowe
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kim Stowe
5407 59th Place NE
Marysville, WA 98270-9016
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kim Stowe

MTC-00012200

From: Rex Shinholt
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Rex Shinholt
8885 E 400N
Van Buren, IN 46991
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

The Shinholts

MTC-00012201

From: Betty Grimm
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:44pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Betty Grimm 922 Sugar Hollow Rd.
Apollo, Pa 15613-8007
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Betty R.Grimm

MTC-00012202

From: Sally Young
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:40pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sally Young
2700 Highway 54
Moreland, GA 30259
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sally Young

MTC-00012203

From: Roy Hamilton
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:39pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Roy Hamilton
230 SE 2nd Street
Gresham, OR 97080
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Roy Hamilton

MTC-00012204

From: Ira Paul
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ira Paul
18495 NW 78th Avenue
Hialeah, FL 33015-2704
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ira J. Paul

MTC-00012205

From: Michael Fry
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:49pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Michael Fry
229 Southport Dr
Newton, KS 67114-5429
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Michael Fry

MTC-00012206

From: John O'Brien

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:59pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John O'Brien
68 Lyford Drive
Tiburon, ca 94920-1715
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
J.J. O'Brien

MTC-00012207

From: Lawrence Gold
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lawrence Gold
880 Westmont Dr.
Chico, CA 95926-7761
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers.

With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
L. Gene Gold

MTC-00012208

From: Oliver Arnold
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:28pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Oliver Arnold
1252 N. Hazelton Drive
Chandler, AZ 85226-1333
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. The investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Perry Arnold

MTC-00012209

From: Tom Fisher
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Tom Fisher
6931 Azalea lane
Dallas, TX 75230
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dr Tom Fisher MD BSEE

MTC-00012210

From: Harold Cantley
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Harold Cantley
513 Dumas st.
Watson, AR 71674
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Harold Cantley

MTC-00012211

From: Jim Zitek

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jim Zitek
5785 Hyland Courts Dr
Bloomington, MN 55447
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James Zitek

MTC-00012212

From: James Huspek
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:24pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
James Huspek
PO Box 893
Jackson, WY 83001
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
James P. Huspek

MTC-00012213

From: Linda Fitzhugh
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Linda Fitzhugh
2207 Lytham Lane
Katy, TX 77450
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Linda Fitzhugh

MTC-00012214

From: Sharon Kellogg
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sharon Kellogg
RR 1 Box 774
Shinglehouse, PA 16748
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech

industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sharon Kellogg

MTC-00012215

From: Wanda Trapp
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Wanda Trapp
Rt. 4, Box 327
McAlester, OK 74501
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Wanda Trapp

MTC-00012216

From: Robert Owens

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:06pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert Owens
408 West Jefferson
Cole Camp, MO 65325
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert L. Owens

MTC-00012217

From: .net@wolverine.capwiz.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Pierce Mills
Rt. 3, Box 108-3
Lake City, FL 32025-9424
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers.

With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Pierce Mills

MTC-00012218

From: Lia Olivieri
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lia Olivieri
31 N. 3rd Street
Cortlandt Manor, NY 10567
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Lia Olivieri

MTC-00012219

From: Steven Svec
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Steven Svec
PO Box 552
Chillicothe, MO 64601-0552
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Steven T. Svec

MTC-00012220

From: Stanley Burris
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Stanley Burris
P.O. Box 368
Keystone Heights, FL 32656
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Stan Burris

MTC-00012221

From: Barbara King
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Barbara King
7311 Oak Hill Dr.
Sylvania, OH 43560
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Barbara King

MTC-00012222

From: Mikel Conner
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Mikel Conner
12616 Darryl Dr.
Buda, TX 78610-2572
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Mikel W. Conner

MTC-00012223

From: Joyce Oberly
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Joyce Oberly
97 East Bethany Road
Womelsdorf, PA 19567
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Joyce M. Oberly

MTC-00012224

From: Dorothy Rush
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dorothy Rush
5965 Happy Pines Drive
Foresthill, CA 95631
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dorothy Rush

MTC-00012225

From: Richard Ellis
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Richard Ellis
1072 Hayes Ave
West Liberty, IA 52776
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Richard Ellis

MTC-00012226

From: Tom Hill
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Tom Hill
10839 Hortense Street
N. Hollywood, CA 91602
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Tom Hill, E.A.

MTC-00012227

From: Alfonse De Marco
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Alfonse De Marco
3-7 Atlanta Court
Freehold, NJ 07728
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Alfonse De Marco

MTC-00012228

From: Gregg E Finley
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gregg E Finley
1386 Rockdale St
Upland, CA 91784-7422
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gregg E Finley

MTC-00012229

From: Jay Pattiz
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jay Pattiz
102 Cottonwood Close
Warrensburg, MO 64093
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW

Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jay Pattiz

MTC-00012230

From: Frank Murray
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Frank Murray
618 Avenue B
Trevose, PA 19053
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Frank Murray

MTC-00012231

From: Michael Moore
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Michael Moore
5309 Round Prairie
Shawnee, KS 66226
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Michael E. Moore

MTC-00012232

From: Timothy Sawyer
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:19pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Timothy Sawyer
P.O. Box 278
Hudgins, VA 23076
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Timothy P. Sawyer

MTC-00012233

From: Kenneth G. Loeb
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kenneth G. Loeb
434 7th St
Jesup, IA 50648
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement

U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division 950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW Washington, DC 20530 Dear Microsoft Settlement: The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kenneth G. Loeb

MTC-00012234

From: Lisa Cahill
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:50pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lisa Cahill
1615 W. Blue Springs Ave.
Orange City, FL 32763
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division

950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Lisa M. Cahill

MTC-00012235

From: George Rush
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
George Rush
534 W. Chisholm St.
Sanford, NC 27330
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
George B. Rush

MTC-00012236

From: Clara Reese
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Clara Reese
4006 132nd St. E.
Tacoma, WA 98446-1938
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Clara Reese

MTC-00012237

From: Maurice Knudsen
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Maurice Knudsen
4428 Main Street
Elk Horn, IA 51531
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Maurice J. Knudsen

MTC-00012238

From: David Sheehan
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:00pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Sheehan
1208 Wine Spring Lane
Baltimore, MD 21204
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David J Sheehan

MTC-00012239

From: Robert Hartsell
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:30pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert Hartsell
RR 2, Box 18
Lockwood, MO 65682-9601
January 15, 2002

Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert N. Hartsell

MTC-00012240

From: John Beasley
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:41pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Beasley
319 E. Thompson Ln.
Nashville, TN 37211-2663
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John W. Beasley

MTC-00012241

From: George Isaacs
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:13pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
George Isaacs
1858 Middlebury Drive
Aurora, IL 60504
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
George U Isaacs

MTC-00012242

From: Barry Stephens
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Barry Stephens
37 Gray Lodge Rd
Kittery, ME 03904
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Barry D. Stephens

MTC-00012243

From: martin guerra
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:14pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
martin guerra
1606 Arkansas Ave
Killeen, TX 76541
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
martin v. guerra

MTC-00012244

From: Fred Stacey
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:48pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Fred Stacey
9309 Habersham Drive

Louisville, KY 40242-2309
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Fred Stacey

MTC-00012245

From: Donna Soares
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Donna Soares
3704 Coco lane
North Highlands, Ca 95660
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Donna Soares

MTC-00012246

From: Glenna Potts
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:22pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Glenna Potts
110 Marina Dr. #13
Needles, CA 92363-3717
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Glenna Potts

MTC-00012247

From: Cynthia Knight
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:10pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Cynthia Knight
1982 McGirr Road
Ashton, IL 61006-9547
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW.,
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Knight

MTC-00012248

From: Charles Rowe
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:12pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charles Rowe
102 W Railroad Box 366
Lake Park, IA 51347-0366
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charles Rowe

MTC-00012249

From: Perry Staley
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:42pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Perry Staley
411 Orchard Street
Ironton, OH 45638-1166
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Perry L. Staley

MTC-00012250

From: George Kelder
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
George Kelder
4012 El Norte Rd.
Cameron Park, Ca 95682
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
George Kelder

MTC-00012251

From: Nile Gomez
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:52pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Nile Gomez
220 Meadow Lane, #D11
Secaucus, NJ 07094-4319
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Nile Gomez

MTC-00012252

From: Andy Hatle
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:43pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Andy Hatle
22827 Muscupiabe Dr.
San Bernardino, Ca 92405
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Andy Hatle

MTC-00012253

From: Joy Wilson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:25pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Joy Wilson
3260 Keith Bridge Rd. #270
Cumming, GA 30041
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Joy Wilson

MTC-00012254

From: Terrence Moore
To: Microsoft Settlement

Date: 1/15/02 9:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Terrence Moore
102 Recreation Dr.
Baden, Pa 15005
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Terrence M Moore

MTC-00012255

From: Lillie Price
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:58pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Lillie Price
7815 CHIPPOKES ROAD
RICHMOND, VA 23881-9335
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Lil Price

MTC-00012256

From: JAMES HIBBS
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:33pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
JAMES HIBBS
2504 south cheryl ct.
veradale, WA 99037
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
JAMES C HIBBS

MTC-00012257

From: Jennifer Terhune
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:36pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jennifer Terhune
3938 Lott Ave.
Corpus Christi, TX 78410-6033
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech

industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Terhune

MTC-00012258

From: Jean Freeman
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:05pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jean Freeman
413 Columbia Ave.
Lumberton, NC. 28358
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jean Freeman

MTC-00012259

From: Dwaine F. Keck

To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:31pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Dwaine F. Keck
321 Fox Rd.
Lexington, OH 44904-9337
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief. Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Dwaine F. Keck

MTC-00012260

From: Kevin McElroy
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:47pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Kevin McElroy
24 Brushy Ridge Court
Plum, PA 15239-1140
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers.

With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kevin McElroy

MTC-00012261

From: Christy Perez
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:32pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Christy Perez
3824 Jarrett Dr.
North Tonawanda, NY 14120
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Christy Perez

MTC-00012262

From: Betty Wyhowanec
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:08pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Betty Wyhowanec
32 West Main Street
Vergennes, VT 05491
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Betty L. Wyhowanec

MTC-00012263

From: Charles Huelsmann
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Charles Huelsmann
8321 N. Pocono Dr.
Citrus Springs, FL 34434
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Charles Huelsmann

MTC-00012264

From: Ed Schulz
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:54pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Ed Schulz
7643 Wachtel Way
Citrus Heights., CA 95610
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Ed Schulz

MTC-00012265

From: John Mack, Jr.
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:53pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
John Mack, Jr.
5254 S. Riverview Circle
Homasassa , FL 34448-3629
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
John Mack Jr.

MTC-00012266

From: Sallie Pierdolla
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:55pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Sallie Pierdolla
5232 FM 2538
Marion, , TX 78124
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Sallie Pierdolla, Texas, Bush Country

MTC-00012267

From: Robert P. Hanrahan
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Robert P. Hanrahan
7268 Evans Mill Road
McLean, VA 22101
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Robert P. Hanrahan

MTC-00012268

From: Joseph Wojtowicz
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:04pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Joseph Wojtowicz
1390 Northfield Drive
Mineral Ridge, OH 44440-9420
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,

Joseph T. Wojtowicz

MTC-00012269

From: Gerald Kotyuk
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:37pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Gerald Kotyuk
2300 Orleans Ave
Marietta, GA 30062-7214
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Gerald and Debbie Kotyuk

MTC-00012270

From: Alan De Ville
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Alan De Ville
7111 Tuckahoe Rd.
Williamson, NY 14589
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Alan De Ville

MTC-00012271

From: Rex Wilson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:15pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Rex Wilson
912 Pavillion Street
Dallas, TX 75204-5513
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Rex Wilson, LCol, USMC Ret

MTC-00012272

From: Michael (Mick) Orton
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:51pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Michael (Mick) Orton
1099 D Street, Suite 205
San Rafael, CA 94901
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Michael Orton

MTC-00012273

From: Scott Johnson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:34pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Scott Johnson
6003 Westbourne Place
Centreville, VA 20120-1865
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Scott Alan Johnson

MTC-00012274

From: Hal Scoggins
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 9:35pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Hal Scoggins
2807 Jackson St.
Houston, TX 77004-1242
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation.

Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Hal Scoggins

MTC-00012275

From: David Jacobson
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:01pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
David Jacobson
700 Norcova Dr.
Chesapeake, VA 23320
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
David Jacobson

MTC-00012276

From: Edward Smith
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 7:03pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Edward Smith
130 Somerset Drive
Brooklyn, MI 49230
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Edward R. Smith

MTC-00012277

From: Thomas Zamrok
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:45pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Thomas Zamrok
4805 Transit Road #1808
Depew, NY 14043-4904
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Thomas P. Zamrok

MTC-00012278

From: Jennifer Freeman
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:09pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Jennifer Freeman
226 Wilson Dr.
Summerville, SC 29483-3032
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Jennifer M. Freeman

MTC-00012279

From: William Signorile
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 5:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
William Signorile
2360 Hemlock Farms
Hawley, Pa 18428
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies. Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Kathy & Bill Signorile

MTC-00012280

From: Donald McGee
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 6:26pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Donald McGee
545 Hidden Creek Drive
Merritt Island, FL 32952
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Donald D. McGee

MTC-00012281

From: Frances Colvin
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:57pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
Frances Colvin
323 Bailey Blvd
Tahlequah, OK 74464-9261
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the wasteful spending accompanying it, to be over. Consumers will indeed see competition in the marketplace, rather than the courtroom. And the investors who propel our economy can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

Upwards of 60% of Americans thought the federal government should not have broken up Microsoft. If the case is finally over, companies like Microsoft can get back into the business of innovating and creating better products for consumers, and not wasting valuable resources on litigation. Competition means creating better goods and offering superior services to consumers. With government out of the business of stifling progress and tying the hands of corporations, consumers—rather than bureaucrats and judges—will once again pick the winners and losers on Wall Street. With the reins off the high-tech industry, more entrepreneurs will be encouraged to create new and competitive products and technologies.

Thank you for this opportunity to share my views.

Sincerely,
Frances and Charles Colvin

MTC-00012282

From: C. Mack Powell
To: Microsoft Settlement
Date: 1/15/02 8:23pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement
C. Mack Powell
1437 N. Easman Rd Apt B
Longview, TX 75601
January 15, 2002
Microsoft Settlement
U.S. Department of Justice-Antitrust Division
950 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20530

Dear Microsoft Settlement:

The Microsoft trial squandered taxpayers' dollars, was a nuisance to consumers, and a serious deterrent to investors in the high-tech industry. It is high time for this trial, and the