

the procedures for handling Sensitive But Unclassified (SBU) and personally identifiable information, before being allowed to access the Department of State SBU network. Annual refresher training is mandatory. Before being granted access to the system of records, a user must first be granted access to SBU network. Access is only granted to users with Diplomatic Security-approved clearances. Users must sign a Password Receipt Controls Form.

Access to the Department of State and its annexes is controlled by security guards, and admission is limited to those individuals possessing a valid identification card and individuals under proper escort. All records containing personal information are maintained in secured filing cabinets or in restricted areas, access to which is limited to authorized personnel. Access to electronic files is password-protected and under the direct supervision of the system manager. The system of records structures access privileges to reflect the separation of key duties that end-users perform within the functions of the application supports. Access privileges are consistent with the need-to-know, separation of duties, and supervisory requirements established for manual processes. The system manager has the capability of printing audit trails of access from the computer media, thereby permitting regular ad hoc monitoring of computer usage.

When it is determined that a user no longer needs access, the user account will be disabled.
